Private local security firm loses license and NFL contract in Minnesota

"Hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of personnel problems"

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

A local company that provides security for Wrigley Field, Chicago Gay Pride Parade and the Chicago Marathon has lost its license to operate in Minnesota after an investigation found widespread hiring irregularities, inadequate training and double-billing.

Monterrey Security's contract to provide guards for Minneapolis' U.S. Bank Stadium, home of the Minnesota Vikings, has been canceled as a result of the investigation.

"Hundreds and hundreds and hundreds" of Monterrey's personnel were not adequately trained and licensed according to Richard Hodsdon, chairman of the Minnesota Private Detective and Protective Services Agency Board. The firm also double-billed the stadium and failed to conduct background checks, officials said.

Among the guards provided by Monterrey was Ricky Eugen Pouncil, who served 16 months in prison after he was convicted of trying to extort money from a 57-year-old man in a 2010 sexting conspiracy.

Pouncil and a friend blackmailed the suburban Minneapolis businessman after the friend convinced the target to send sexually explicit text messages, prosecutors said.

The man was later found dead in a remote area. A note left behind said "I am being extorted over $500,000. Best for my family and friends."

Despite the conviction, Pouncil was found checking security credentials at the door of U.S. Bank stadium during an NFL game last season, authorities said.

Felons are prohibited from holding security jobs in Minnesota.

Monterrey's problems are not over in Minnesota. The FBI and state authorities continue to look into allegations that the company falsified government documents and hired convicted criminals.

The company's president, Juan Gayan, Jr, called the Minnesota problems an "administrative issues."

Monterrey reportedly admitted to Minnesota licensing regulators that they bused in 100 workers from Chicago to work the Viking's home opener last month against the New Orleans Saints. The company said it could not find workers in the Twin Cities.

"We were operating to the best of our ability, following industry best practices and trying to do our best," a Monterrey official said.

Two new security companies have taken over for Monterrey in Minnesota. Both said they are interested in hiring displaced Monterrey employees who successfully complete background checks and licensing requirements.

In addition to the Marathon and Cubs, Monterrey provides guards for the Bears, Blackhawks, and the Chicago Pride Parade.

The Chicago Cubs and Monterrey Security did not respond to requests for comment. The Chicago Police Dept. was not able to provide an immediate response due to time constraints. We will publish the department's statement when it is made available.

This newspaper first reported on the Minnesota situation in June after publishing a series of reports that showed another local security company utilized unlicensed guards and police look-alikes while patrolling Lakeview during last year's Cubs post-season.

Follow our Victories!

We are more than the jobs we do and tasks we perform

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Does your occupation define you?

Or do you have interests and outlets that further fill out who you are?

You might be a baker of breads. But perhaps you are also a genius at the backgammon board.

Maybe you drive a truck for a living. But with a deep devotion to the operas of Puccini as well.

Then again, you might crunch numbers for a living as a CPA, but also cherish the wind and the sea sailing on Lake Michigan.

As humans we can be defined by many things. We are free to widen our horizons and expand our vision with what lifts our minds and our hearts to adventure and discovery. And in the process elevate our capacity to broaden our living and enhance the direction of our lives. No matter who is the president. No matter who we are married to. No matter where we live, went to school or do from 9 to 5.

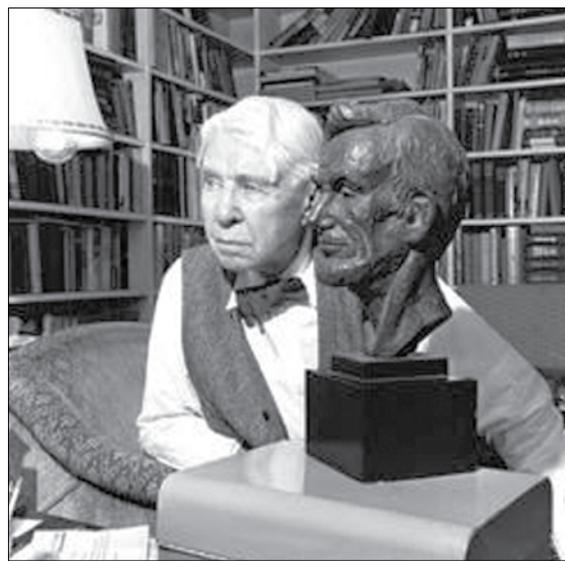

This is what I mean. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was an aristocratic aesthete. It was in his blood. He was a good Secretary of the Navy, a better Governor of New York and the best, I believe, President, not only through the Depression, but also through the trauma World War II.

What many don't know is that he was a superb philatelist, a stamp collector. Compiling through his lifetime one of America's greatest collections. Maybe it helped him govern better in a dark time.

The American actress Geena Davis, is an Oscar-winning star in some remarkable films, like Thelma and Louise, The Fly, A League of Their Own and Beetlejuice, plus some hit television series. But she is also an accomplished archer and was an Olympic finalist back in 1999.

The quirky Irish actor Daniel Day Lewis, celebrated for a lifetime of cerebral cinema success, has spent his life wrapped tight in the world of method acting. That's where the actor kind of becomes the character he portrays. It's intense, a deep, and almost mystical, intimacy with the film role. Over time he has retreated to interests that seem to lift him from the drama of his isolated acting career. He is also a fully accomplished cobbler. He can make shoes from scratch following the ancient method of that trade. He even moved his family to Florence, Italy, some years ago to apprentice at an antique hand-made shoe maker.

Napoleon, historians tell us, relied on his passion for chess to revive him on the military campaign trail.

President Theodore Roosevelt, beyond all his accomplishments, was an avid practitioner of Judo. It is said that at one diplomatic dinner, he tossed the Swiss Ambassador around like a bale of hay.

Charlie Watts of the Rolling Stones has been a diligent student of the American Civil War and has spent some of his fortune amassing an enviable collection of historical artifacts.

America's great 19th century poet, Emily Dickinson, often known as the Belle of Amherst, was prolific. She was also a prize-winning baker, noted for her superb breads.

The Nobel Prize scientist, Madam Marie Curie may have discovered the mysterious element of radium in the Paris lab she shared with her husband, Pierre. But she was also an avid bicycle enthusiast. She rode everywhere. Clocking unfathomable miles flying in every direction.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was a musical genius, an 18th century prodigy who performed for emperors and other crowned heads. But did you also know that he was also a superb magician with playing cards? He was taught while recuperating from a childhood illness by a savvy hospital chaplain.

And he amazed and amused his friends with remarkable card tricks throughout his life.

President Thomas Jefferson may have authored the Declaration of Independence and steered the infant American Republic towards its heroic destiny, but he was also a skilled humanist and gentleman farmer. But did you know that he was a skilled violinist? His musical ability is often overlooked by history. But his virtuosity added a remarkable layer of musical aestheticism to his political and diplomatic style.

A few years ago while in Springfield for an Illinois Supreme Court dinner, I was given a private tour of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library. The Chief Librarian welcomed me and a curator from the Lincoln Collection and walked me through the vaults to see the outstanding treasures of the 16th President's life. It was overwhelming.

After seeing an original copy of the Emancipation Proclamation, I noticed that there were boxes indicating materials belonging to the American actress Marilyn Monroe. I asked how items of the "blond bombshell" wound up in the Lincoln vault. Then I was told of her remarkable connection to President Lincoln.

Apparently the actress had suffered from the absence of a father in her early life. She was said to always be searching for a strong substitute. Apparently she found him in Lincoln. She lamented to her second husband, the American playwright Arthur Miller, that she was never taken very seriously as an actress. Type cast as a blond sex-pot. Miller apparently suggested that she intensify her interest in President Lincoln. And thus empowered her avid collecting of all things Lincoln. She even became friends with Illinois' favorite-son poet, Carl Sandburg, whose biography of Lincoln she had read. In the 1950s they began a friendship that would last until the actress's death in 1962.

Among the items of hers in the vault were a bust of Lincoln and one of Sandburg. As well as many smaller items purchased at auctions of Lincoln materials. There was even a collection of photographs of a meeting between she and Sandberg on a Hollywood soundstage when the poet was acting as a historical advisor on a film. Marilyn Monroe was making a movie at the same studio. Life Magazine sent a photographer to capture the meeting of the actress and the poet. The images of that moment remain semi-sequestered, as the actress did not own the copyright on the photos. So while they can be viewed by the public at times at the library, they cannot be reproduced.

A number of Marilyn Monroe's dresses were included with the Lincoln items sold at auction to the Lincoln Library. One black, knit, off-the-shoulder dress is the one worn by the actress when she met Sandberg in Hollywood. I think it is a great symbol of the actress's yearning for intelligent understanding as a bright thinking woman. She was, in fact, terribly erudite and accomplished. Not at all the empty-headed screen kitten she was portrayed to be. She was well-read and well-spoken.

Sandberg delighted in their friendship. They had, after all, President Lincoln to share.

Studios were still buttonholing actors under contract to them in those days. Often the persona of a star was manufactured by the publicity departments of the powerful studio system. Marilyn Monroe's struggle for wider intellectual understanding and respect demonstrates how complex humans are. We are more than the jobs we do. Or the tasks we perform. Whether we are cracking open radium isotopes, conducting the Chicago Symphony, bagging groceries at Mariano's or smooching on screen with a famous leading man. We need always to reach for wider fulfillment. We need to reach for brighter stars.

THE BIRTH OF THE MOSCOW MULE:
In a story that is now legend, in 1941, Jack Morgan of Cock and Bull Ginger Beer was sitting with John G. Martin of Hublein and Rudolph Kunett, the President of Smirnoff. They were experimenting, putting their heads together on the invention of a new cocktail. Ultimately they added Smirnoff Vodka to Ginger Beer on crushed ice with a healthy squeeze of fresh lime.

Painting the town pink: The memory of Lynn Sage lives on

Heart of the 'Hood
By Felicia Dechter

Lynn Sage was a beloved mother, daughter, wife and friend, as well as a Lake View High School alum. She was diagnosed with breast cancer at the age of 33, and sadly, she lost her battle six years later at age 39.

To honor Lynn and applaud her strength and spirit, in 1985 a small group of her family and friends established a foundation in her name. Today, that foundation -- the Lynn Sage Cancer Research Foundation -- is still alive, well, and thriving. It held its 32nd annual Fall Benefit Luncheon last week at the Hilton, raising more than $800,000 for breast cancer research, fellowships and educational programs at Northwestern Medicine and the Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center of Northwestern Univ.

I've attended this heartwarming luncheon for many years, but this was my first time there as a breast cancer survivor. As usual, it was an afternoon filled with those impacted by cancer in some way or another, as well as a lot of laughter and a few tears. Also as usual, the emcee, Chicago Sun-Times columnist Bill Zwecker, did an awesome job. So did co-chairs Sofia Ahmad Jones, herself a survivor, and Julie Roth Novak, whose mother and grandma both had breast cancer and who last year lost her 49-year-old sister/best friend Sara Schottenstein -- a mother of three -- to stomach cancer.

"I saw firsthand how research can save people's lives," said Novak, who became involved to honor her sister. "Cancer research is so close to having breakthroughs. Now is the time to fund. It's not a matter of years or decades, it's a matter of days and months that make a difference."

Margie Korshak, Kathy Bates, and Janie Goldberg-Dicks at the Lynn Sage Cancer Research Foundation 2017 Fall Benefit Luncheon.

The luncheon began with the PURSUE THE CURE purse auction, which featured more than 200 new, collectible and kid's handbags from top retailers, upscale boutiques and private collections. This year's speaker was Oscar, Emmy and Golden Globe winning actress and two-time cancer survivor, Kathy Bates, whose battle with breast cancer began five years ago.

Bates' mother, aunt and niece all had breast cancer, and Bates had already had ovarian cancer when the breast cancer appeared. One story she told was how she was going to adopt Yorkshire Terriers. But "I just didn't know if I'd be around to raise puppies," she said. When her doctor told her that lymph nodes were involved in both arms, "I went berserk, screaming and crying," recalled Bates, who has lost weight and looks fabulous. "I ran out of the room. Having cancer a second time went from bad to worse."

Day by day, Bates said, she was getting more despondent. "I didn't feel like a woman any more," she said. "There was no work on the horizon and I was old by Hollywood's standards."

Then one day when she was finally feeling a little stronger, Bates was sitting out in the sun and a little bird dropped in front of her and fell to the ground. Its neck looked broken, its legs were twisted. "I whispered, 'I have the power to heal you,'" she said. The bird flipped over and stretched its little wings. Bates' niece was there and they gave it some water and the bird flew away.

Bates' niece asked her if she had gotten the message. "You thought you were dead and now you're getting a second chance in life," the niece said. "It was a profound moment for me," said Bates. "I was healed and wanted to go back to work."

Ironically, Bates now plays the owner of a medical marijuana dispensary in "Disjointed" on Netflix. "As we say, 'When they go low, we get high,'" she laughed.

"The last five years of my life have been the happiest," said Bates. "My aunt didn't have those years, I'm grateful for mine." She tearfully thanked groups like Lynn Sage for doing such important work and keeping women alive. "It gives me so much hope," said Bates.

"My journey with breast cancer is teaching me that no matter how much time I have left, to savor each moment," she said. "It taught me to be more compassionate. I love to make new memories with those I love. I say yes to invitations I would have said no to."

"I feel like I've gotten younger," said Bates. "And those Yorkshire Terriers, I did get them!"

After her touching speech, Bill Zwecker interviewed Bates, and one question he asked was whether or not she smokes "weed."

"I take the fifth," Bates laughed, then added: "I usually snuggle down in bed and read the next script for 'Disjointed.' It's so much fun." (The next 10 episodes start in January).

As it always has been for me, the luncheon was a reminder of what great strides are being made in breast cancer. It also offered hope, lots of laughter, and reflection time. Many thanks to Margie Korshak and Janie Goldberg-Dicks for having me as their guest. I was tickled pink to be there once again this year.

Loss of mortgage-interest deduction could hurt home-ownership

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

The mortgage-interest deduction—the bedrock on which the nation’s housing policy was built for the past 75 years—may be on shaky ground as the Trump Administration crafts its new federal tax plan.

What is even more surprising, analysts say Capitol Hill real estate lobbyists are divided and fighting among themselves on the future of the coveted mortgage-interest deduction (MID) that potentially benefits 74 million homeowners and creates $70 billion in annual federal income tax breaks.

Insiders report that the National Assoc. of Home Builders (NAHB) changed its stance on the importance of the mortgage-interest tax deduction, while the National Assoc. of Realtors(NAR) is lobbying hard for the survival of MID.

“This is the first time in NAHB’s 75-year history that we have been open to the idea of broader options regarding housing tax incentives,” said Granger MacDonald, NAHB chairman and a Texas builder and developer. “Now is the time to reform tax policy and housing will not be left behind in this process.”

Earlier, the NAHB stressed that the mortgage-interest deduction has been a cornerstone of American housing policy since the inception of the tax code.

But after President Donald Trump announced his new tax plan, which would double the standard deduction and eliminate state and local tax deductions, such as property taxes, NAR continued to lobby for MID support, while the NAHB didn’t.

Home builders said they voted to revise their policy regarding the nation’s tax code in light of recent discussions on tax reform between congressional leadership and the Trump Administration.

“Today’s vote gives NAHB greater flexibility as the tax debate unfolds and stakeholders seek consensus to shape a tax code that best serves the nation’s consumers and small businesses,” the NAHB said.

“Starting back with the release of the Republican [tax] blueprint about a year and a half ago, it’s been clear to us that tax policy is changing,” said Jim Tobin, NAHB chief lobbyist and head of government affairs.

While NAHB has concerns with the doubling of the standard deduction, Tobin explained, “For us, it’s an opportunity for our industry to remain flexible in its ability to respond to potential changes down the road.”

As the Trump Administration continues to work through tax reform, NAHB said it is promoting the following tax policies:

- A homeownership tax incentive.
- The low-income housing tax credit, along with additional resources to meet the affordability crisis.
- Tax incentives for remodeling, including energy-efficiency tax credits.
- The exclusion of capital gains on the sale of a principal residence.
- Business interest deductions for small businesses.

Tobin noted that although the NAHB hasn’t seen any concrete proposals, the administration has clearly stated that they want homeownership to be a priority going forward.

As a guardian of housing tax incentives, NAHB said it will keep defining that incentive and ensure to homeowners that housing policy is still supported. “Right now, the MID is a middle-class tax break that helped people buy and afford the home they already purchased,” said Tobin.

Experts say both the doubling of the standard deduction and the eliminating local and state real estate tax deductions effectively would challenge or erase incentives for homeowners, and potentially inhibit the national homeownership rate which has slipped to about 63% from nearly 70% before the Great Recession.

“We have always said that tax reform—a worthy endeavor—should first do no harm to homeowners,” said Bill Brown, president of NAR, who noted that the current Trump tax-reform proposal misses that goal.

“This proposal recommends a backdoor elimination of the mortgage interest deduction for all but the top five percent [of homeowners] who would still itemize their deductions,” Brown said.

“When combined with the elimination of the state and local tax deduction, these efforts represent a tax increase on millions of middle-class homeowners,” Brown said. “That tax increase flies in the face of a reform effort ostensibly aimed at lowering the tax burden for Americans. At the same time, the lost incentive to purchase a home could cause home values to fall.”

An analysis by PricewaterhouseCoopers commissioned by NAR found homeowners earning $50,000 to $200,000—thereabout middle class—would realize an average $815 more in taxes in the year after the proposed reform takes effect, while non-homeowners earning in the same range would see an average $516 less.

The analysis also found a 10%-plus plunge in home values, which could push some homeowners back into negative equity, undoing the recovery.

“Plummeting home values are a poor housewarming gift for recent home buyers and a tremendous blow to older Americans who depend on their home to provide a nest egg for retirement,” said Brown.

“Congress can still score a win for American families by promoting lower rates and comprehensive reform that doesn’t single out homeowners for a tax hike, while also preserving important investment incentives such as 1031 like-kind tax-deferred real estate exchanges,” Brown said.

“Proposed changes—such as the increased standard deduction and elimination of other itemized deductions—mean that many who claim the mortgage-interest deduction under today’s tax laws will no longer be able to do so,” said Danielle Hale, chief economist at Realtor.com.

“Although the plan recognizes the role of the mortgage-interest deduction in strengthening society via homeownership, other changes in the plan could affect its incentive value, Hale said.

“The proposed tax plan also eliminates most types of itemized deductions, including payments for state and local taxes, which include property taxes. When you consider the total package, many middle-class homeowners are really looking at a tax increase,” Hale said.

Daniel D. Mennenoh, president of the American Land Title Assoc., said: “Congress should focus on the potential for tax reform to incentivize faster growth and investment. That goal will not happen unless tax policy continues to promote investment in real estate, which accounts for more than 15% of the nation’s gross domestic product.”

To commemorate the CTA's 70th anniversary, the Chicago History Museum compiled highlights about their rich history from the Museum's collection. Above is a 2400-series rail cars from 1976.

A 4000-series trains from 1923.

Vintage CTA bus from 1960.

Celebrating the CTA's 70th Anniversary

Last week the Chicago Transit Authority [CTA] celebrated their 70th anniversary, and the agency is hosting a yearlong celebration in recognition of the role the CTA has played in the growth and development of Chicago.

On Oct. 1, at the Daley Plaza, residents had the opportunity to ride on 4000-series trains from 1923, as well as 2400-series rail cars from 1976, which were making trips around the Loop, along with a vintage bus from 1960.

CTA officially began operations on Oct. 1, 1947, taking over operations by the Chicago Rapid Transit Co. (who ran the 'L' system) and the Chicago Surface Lines (who ran the streetcar system and some bus lines).

In 1947, a loaf of bread cost 13¢, a gallon of gas cost 15¢, and a new car could be purchased for $1,300. And in October of 1947, buses and trains in Chicago began operating under a new governmental organization: the Chicago Transit Authority.

Before 1947, several privately-owned companies built and operated elevated train, streetcar and bus lines throughout Chicago. These struggling companies competed with each other for riders, in many places offering duplicative service that could be operated more efficiently under one umbrella.

In 1945, the State of Illinois passed an act that created the CTA, which consolidated these systems with the goal of providing one unified transit system, one dedicated to operating more efficiently, modernizing the system and doing so as a rider-focused public service.

Soon thereafter, a third company, the Chicago Motor Coach Co. who ran many bus lines (including a number of lakefront express routes), was later acquired on Oct. 1, 1952, completing the consolidation of mass transit in Chicago under the CTA.

The first 'L' service in Chicago began on June 6, 1892 when a four-car train of wooden cars pulled by a small, coal-burning steam locomotive departed a modest terminal at 39th Street just east of State St. headed for its downtown terminal straight north at Congress St. A year later service was extended to bring passengers to the World's Columbian Exposition in Jackson Park.

This first segment of the 'L' system lives on today as part of the Green Line—the very first portion of the very first line on what's become a unified system of elevated, at-grade and underground railways that Chicago and neighboring communities have, in many ways, grown up around.

Today's 'L' now has 224.1 miles of track, over which nearly 1,800 train trips are made, logging more than 221,000 miles of travel—all on a typical weekday.

"The CTA will forever be woven into the fabric of Chicago," said Mayor Rahm Emanuel. "The CTA is not only a celebrated part of our City's past, but also a key component to our future."

"For 70 years, Chicagoans have turned to the CTA to get them where they've needed to go," said CTA President Dorval R. Carter, Jr. "Our 70th anniversary gives us the chance to not only look back at our proud history, but also to look ahead to the improvements and investments we're making to serve customers for another 70 years."

MORE THAN from p. 2

We will always be good at what interests us. And the payoff is most likely a quiet affirmation of our own abilities. We are all born with renaissance souls. Fresh interests expand those souls and widen our character, as well as the imprint we leave on the world.

Perhaps our passions make for odd pairings or unusual partnerships. But there is always a curve to our learning and a synchronistic connection in all we learn.

Former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, presently on the faculty of Stanford Univ., is a superb classical pianist. Chicago restaurateur Ferdia Doherty plays the bagpipes. Butch McGuire, Chicago's inventor of the singles' bar, learned how to knit. The Newberry Library's Karen Skubish played the harp like an angel.

We were all born to stretch and reach beyond the limits of circumstances or clearly seen abilities.

Just remember that scene when Marilyn Monroe met Carl Sandberg. Through the prism of Honest Abe, I think it was love at first sight.

Cubs video board honors Jan and Hal Winer.

Haynes of the celebrated band Aliotta Haynes and Jeremiah, a band that formed in Chicago's Old Town, has died at 70. Haynes wrote the song Lake Shore Drive back in 1971, after a night out in Chicago and cruising the lakefront along the iconic thoroughfare that "starts up north from Hollywood" to downtown at 4 a.m. It is reported that Haynes wants his ashes spread along Lake Shore Drive. Why not? It's sacred space! "And them blue lights shine with a heavenly grace help, you right on by."

STAR MAN: Congrats to Turtle Wax's Dennis Healy Sr. on his recent reception of the 100 Club of Chicago's Lifetime Achievement Award at the Adler Planetarium.

LOVEBIRDS SING: Congratulations to Harold and Janice Winer, 50 year residents of Rogers Park who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Aug.

4. In September, their children threw a party for them at the newly renovated Davis Theater with a private showing of Mel Brooks' History of the World, Part 1, followed by dinner at Carbon Arc (located adjacent to the theater). Mrs. Winer's brother owned the Davis Theater in the late 70's and 80's, so the event and locale were extra special for the family. On Aug. 4, the actual anniversary date, the Winer children took their parents to a Cubs game where an anniversary message was posted on the video screen during the 5th inning. MAZEL TOV!

TRAIN WRECK: Word is one of Chicago's most ideal couples, and most powerful business teams, has been shattered with the discovery that hubby has two out of wedlock children. Pushing all involved over the edge. The divorce is on-going. And sad.

RULE BRITANNIA: Yes, that was Sir Alan Duncan MP, British Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs at the splendid reception at Chicago Shakespeare Theater at Navy Pier. Also on hand, the new British Consul General John Saville, who does not officially start until November. He is currently Ambassador to Venezuela... a change of pace for him to come to Chicago!

CLEVER RABBIT: Run don't walk to the newest and tastiest restaurant in trendy Wicker Park (really Ukrainian Village) at 2015 W. Division St., five doors west of Damen. It's stylish and cerebral, lighthearted and hip. Menu is centered on wondrous vegetables like carrot dumplings and mighty salads. Salmon, brick chicken, scallops balance out the vegetable-is-king menu. The crudite is massive and serves multiple diners. The Elote (high-end Mexican-style roasted sweet corn) is a show-stopper. Brussel Sprouts will shatter your senses. Fine bar. Big outdoor space.

BLIMEY: The machinations appear to be Shakespearean in a local cultural organization's ongoing battle with leadership reorganization. It's a real War-of-the-Roses with resignations and emotional beheadings, as well as lots of huffing and puffing. When the bottom line is coin of the realm, it never ends pretty. Seems the elite are in defeat. Is something rotten in Denmark?

LAKE FOREST SYMPHONY:

On Oct. 4, in Reed Hall of the Gorton Center in Lake Forest, the Board of the Lake Forest Symphony (LFS) hosted a party, "Martinis with the Maestro." Vladimir Kulenovic, the maestro, opened the kick-off for the 60th Anniversary Season of the LFS and announced its opening concerts on Oct. 7 and 8 at the James Lumber Center.

ANY LUGGAGE? Has a local Gold Coast five-star hotel just shelled out some hefty cash to an outgoing long-time concierge who was planning to write a tell-all book about the libidinous goings on there, as well as the slimy corporate shenanigans? Word is they were bought off and no book will be forthcoming. You can now exhale.

GOING, GOING, GONE: Has a local well-known auction house been doing some double dipping? Apparently both sellers and buyers have been eating the high 25% cost of any auction sale with them. Usually only buyers gets hit with the fee. Just asking.

WHO'S WHERE: Diane O'Connell and Sean Eshaghy sipping afternoon Rob Roys celebrating Diane's birthday at Gibson's at an outside table, meeting and greeting the passing Gold Coasters, with many stopping to share a toast... Brian White and Jim Kinney sadly placing their fabulous sailboat into winter quarters signaling a change of seasons with their nautical guests... We hear Kinney will undertake a new role as the British Consul General's liaison to the Illinois Realtors... bravo. Lynn Graham, Margaret Nagel and yours truly joined Col. Paul Malarik III for a birthday lunch at RL - Ralph Lauren Bar and Grill for a great gabfest.

seum's Take a Stand Center, an immersive new permanent exhibition empowering people to stand up for humanity, on Thursday, Oct. 26, in advance of its official opening Sunday, Oct. 29.

18th CENTURY GALA: The Irish Georgian Society Gala Dinner will be held at The Casino, Friday, Oct. 27. Sir David Davies, IGS President, will join the Chicago Chapter for the festivities that will feature Dr. David Fleming and Mr. William Laffan speaking on the crossroads of Art and Architecture in contemporary Ireland.

CHICAGO OPERA: The American Opera Society of Chicago will hold its Fall Scholarship Luncheon at the Fortnightly on Wednesday, Oct. 18. Program begins at 11 a.m. followed by lunch.

CHICAGO FILM FESTIVAL: The 53rd Chicago International Film Festival, presented by Cinema/Chicago, announced that acclaimed actress Alfre Woodard will be honored with a Career Achievement Award as part of the 21st edition of the Festival's Black Perspectives Program which is generously supported by AARP Illinois. The award will be presented on Saturday, Oct. 21 at a special event during the Festival to be held at the AMC River East 21, 322 E. Illinois St. The "Tribute to Alfre Woodard" will feature an onstage discussion with the actress, showcasing clips highlighting her decades-spanning career.

LET THERE BE PEACE: "Let's Make the Cure Contagious" will be held October 19 at the Arts Club 6 p.m.-9 p.m. honoring Chicago Musical star Ramsey Lewis. Chairwoman Diane Weinberg and Co-Chairs Jeremy Kaufman and Soma Roy are joining together to alter the forces of Chicago violence, working toward the cure for violence. Hazelden marks 20 years in Chicago

Mansion where potheads and winos once congregated, now hosts 37 weekly Alcoholics Anonymous meetings

While addiction treatment is always undergoing improvements, most still work in conjunction with the time-tested 12-step program developed by Alcoholics Anonymous, said Hazelden/Betty Ford Chicago executive director Ransom Koska.

The stately mansion at 867 N. Dearborn has gone through a lot of changes since its creation in 1886 by architect William LeBaron Jenney, father of the Chicago-style skyscraper.

Back in 1917, sometime anarchist Jack Jones bought the building and opened the Dil Pickle Club, a hangout for artists, writers, and aspiring revolutionaries, linking people like Ernest Hemingway and (reportedly) a young Hugh Hefner who worked out the ideas for what eventually became Playboy magazine.

Here also were occasional appearances by Carl Sandburg and John Reed, the Red-leaning reporter who wrote "Ten Days that Shook the World" and ended up being buried in an honored place in Moscow's Kremlin Wall.

During the Roaring '20s, the "Pickle" was also a sometime speakeasy.

Later - after the Cold War began thawing - it became the Russian consulate.

But Remsen Kasha would probably say the biggest change likely came 20 years ago when the Hazelden/Betty Ford Foundation took over the building.

Founded in 1949 at a Minnesota lakeside farmhouse, Hazelden has grown into one of the world's largest and most respected private not-for-profit alcohol and drug addiction treatment providers, paving the way for its 2014 merger with the Betty Ford Center.

Today where potheads and winos once congregated, there are 37 Alcoholics Anonymous meetings every week and the city's first Video Gaming Anonymous chapter, said Kasha, the facility's executive director who as of last week also oversees Hazelden's entire East Coast operations.

Kasha said he's seen a lot of growth in the dozen years since he joined the staff when there were only about 10 clients.

Hazelden residence houses up to 13 men and up to 11 women who have to commit to at minimum a three month stay. Two to three people share a room and a bath. Amenities include a family room with a television, refrigerator, and microwave oven. Residents are given access to a business center with internet-ready computers, a daily continental breakfast, and a weekly community meal.

What's expected is that residents remain abstinent from all mood-altering substances, have a sponsor, attend four or more 12-step meetings a week, do service work, attend weekly community meetings, meet with a coach/counselor regularly, and have a job, go to school or volunteer full-time.

Today Chicago's Hazelden has closer to 70 clients in total and counting, Kasha told the nearly 100 supporters and "alumni" who turned out for an Oct. 5 20th anniversary celebration.

Many in the audience were former patients like Jared, an investment banker who called his time at Hazelden "the most important 15 months of my life."

"I thought I was all grown up when I came to Chicago from back East, but fell into a major depression and used cocaine and liquor to get out of it," Jared said.

"My marriage had ended, I was about to lose my job. Things were deteriorating with my family," Jared said, adding that while he knew he needed help, "I fought it every step of the way like any good addict would."

"Until I finally realized I had a major problem."

While he's been clean and sober for some time now, Jared said he still goes to meetings almost daily and remains active at Hazelden to give back.

"I keep coming back because there's no place I'd rather be than here helping others. I keep coming back because I need it. This wasn't

'Global Kids WorldFest' coming to Sullivan High

Sullivan High School, 6631 N. Bosworth Ave., will host its first "Global Kids WorldFest" 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21.

The public international carnival supports WorldChicago, a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting citizen diplomacy by empowering local and international youth to be service-minded global citizens.

To support that effort, WorldFest will help families explore global cultures through food, games and crafts.

With an immigration population close to 300 – 45 percent of the student body – Sullivan High school also promotes international diversity on a regular basis.

The school accepted 89 refugees during the 2016-2017 academic year.

Sullivan is leveraging its diversity to increase academic achievement. By focusing on refugee resettlement, the school's administration has increased academic funding and raised its Chicago Public School ranking from a Level 3 (the lowest possible score) to a 2-plus ranking over the last year.

This year, Sullivan High School hopes to continue its academic growth and achieve Level 1 recognition.

Entry to the carnival is free and open to the public. Early bird activity tickets can be purchased online.

For more information call the school at 773-534-2000.

Roger Ebert

Emerging filmmaker to be awarded Roger Ebert Award Oct. 20

The Chicago International Film Festival will present the fourth annual Roger Ebert Award at the Festival's Awards Night Ceremony on Friday, Oct. 20. This award is presented to an emerging filmmaker with a fresh and uncompromising vision, selected from films in the New Directors Competition.

"One of Roger's favorite things in life was discovering and championing the work of bold, audacious emerging directors," said Chaz Ebert of her late husband, the legendary, Pulitzer Prize-winning critic for the Chicago Sun-Times. "His relationship to Chicago International Film Festival began in the 1960s, and thanks to the Festival, he was among the first to write about such auteurs as Martin Scorsese, Wim Wenders and Bertrand Tavernier."

"Roger had an immeasurable and lasting impact on our Festival," added Founder and President Michael Kutza. "He first covered us as a newsman and critic and became a supporter, jury member and presenter, and his enthusiasm for adventurous new work was contagious. Many international directors received their first American press attention thanks to Roger's tireless commitment to highlighting the work of young talent."

Last year, the Roger Ebert Award was presented to Hungarian feature Kills on Wheels, directed by Attila Till. This year 16 films will compete for the prize.

The 53rd Chicago International Film Festival is October 12-26. Screenings take place at the AMC River East 21 (322 E. Illinois). Tickets are available by calling 312-332-FILM (3456), online at chicago-filmfestival.com, at the Festival Box Office at AMC River East at 322 E. Illinois Street, and at the Festival Pop-Up Box Office at 400 S. Dearborn.

tion stations to make big differences in the lives of these kids. This program also promotes community building through art and advocacy efforts.

Ava's Change4Youth was created by youth for youth. Ava brought the idea to PAT after seeing other cities using repurposed parking meters to raise funds for the homeless. She and her moms, Theresa and Mercedes, worked with local artist Sam Kirk to create a model art meter for Chicago, with a special design, Future Focus, for their first meter.

The art meter will be unveiled from 4 to 8 p.m. today during the Andersonville Arts Week kick-off at Women & Children First Bookstore, 5233 N. Clark St. The bookstore will continue to house the meter even after arts week ends.

Ava heard about the high rate of homelessness among youth, including an estimated 40% who are LGBTQ. She wanted to do something about it. Sam Kirk, known for her murals across the city, will attend the launch along with Ava and her family.

"My friends and I really want to have an impact, even if that means 25¢ at a time, or larger donations to this important cause," said Ava. "My hope for Ava's Change4Youth is for teens to enjoy art and be a part of something that makes them feel good about themselves, knowing they're supporting others who might be going through tough times too."

The art meter will be at the bookstore through Oct. 13, when there is a Friday night Stroll & Soiree Art Walk throughout the neighborhood. It will also be displayed during the City Made Handmade Market in the Swedish Museum's parking lot at Foster and Ashland on Oct. 14 and 15. Arts Week attendees can donate spare change to the working art meter and learn more about the program from Ava and program volunteers.

Ava's Change4Youth's goal is to have dozens of art meters, designed by artists and young people impacted by homelessness, across the city. In addition, Art Houses painted by youngsters will be available as donation stations in retail outlets.

All donations will go to AIDS Foundation of Chicago, which is the parent organization for PAT. Funds raised will be directed toward impacting youth specifically, while actively engaging them to help with a problem affecting their lives.

Congrats to Ava on her amazing accomplishment!

All aboard... Chicago was graced with Smile Train goodwill ambassador Christie Brinkley this past weekend to kick off World Smile Day, and joining the supermodel was U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin and Deputy Mayor, Andrea Zopp. They joined together to light up 2 Prudential Plaza in red and blue Smile Train colors. Smile Train uses World Smile Day to shed light on the millions of children suffering from untreated cleft in 85+ developing countries worldwide. Immediately after the lighting event, a free celebration and concert took place and despite the rain, local greats Nick Tremulis Orchestra, Billy Branch and the Son's of Blues, Sergio Mayora, Nellie Tiger Travis and Wayne Baker Brooks rocked the celebration. And the nearly five dozen Chicago Marathon runners of Smile Train Team Empower -- from all over the world -- raised more than $100,000 for the charity.

Chicago History Museum takes on the Yates papers

BY ADAM MELVILLE
Chicago History Museum

Project archivist Adam Melville worked with Chicago History Museum [CHM] archivist Julie Wroblewski as part of his graduate school practicum. In this article, he describes how he processed one of the largest acquisitions in recent CHM history.

This summer, I received the exciting but daunting opportunity to process the papers of U.S. Rep. Sidney R. Yates—a 262-linear-foot collection (the equivalent of more than 500 boxes) in 10 weeks.

Challenge accepted!

So who was Sidney Yates? A representative for the Illinois Ninth Congressional District for nearly 50 years, he is probably best known for his support of the arts and humanities. Other signature issues included advocating for the elderly, U.S. support of Israel, and responsible environmental stewardship. Rep. Yates was born in Chicago on Aug. 27, 1909 and graduated from Lake View High School in 1928; He got his B.A. from the Univ. of Chicago in 1931; his J.D., also from the Univ. of Chicago, in 1933; served in the U.S. Navy, 1944-1946, and was ultimately elected to serve in 16 succeeding Congresses, from Jan. 3, 1965 through Jan. 3, 1999.

Rep. Yates died on Oct. 5, 2000, and his Congressional seat is now held by Rep. Jan Schakowsky. The district covers most of the North Lakefront and North Shore suburbs.

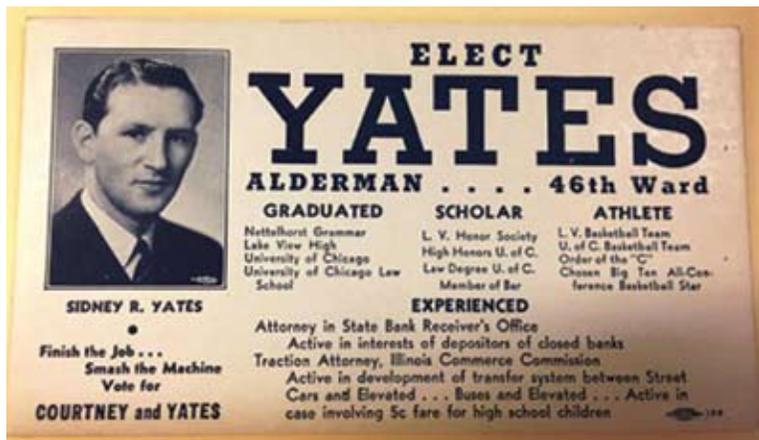

Typically, an archivist begins by surveying a collection as a whole in order to develop a processing plan and formulate series in which the materials will be arranged intellectually. The sheer size of the Sidney Yates papers, however, coupled with the fact that most of it was in off-site storage, meant we would need to alter this workflow.

After some deliberation, Wroblewski and I decided that we would start processing items and let the series arrangement unfold as we made our way through the collection. Now, this can be a risky approach since success rests on the unprocessed items being organized in the first place (which is not always the case). But seeing as these items had come from a congressional office, we hedged our bets and it paid off: over the decades, Yates had maintained a consistent filing method, and the vast majority of materials were highly organized.

For three months, we processed the papers in batches, each comprised of approximately 60 boxes. We never knew what the next batch would bring, and the arrival of new boxes from storage was met with anticipation. About 100 boxes into the project, we had a pretty firm idea of what the series arrangement would be, although we made revisions as we uncovered new items.

A somewhat unusual aspect of this project was that researchers were using the collection as it was being processed. This added some pressure to deliver quickly, but it also came with advantages, such as the ability to tap on-site subject experts for content knowledge. In addition, whereas a collection of this size would not normally include detailed descriptions of the contents of each box, since researchers needed immediate access to the materials, we developed a box inventory. Through some experimentation, we found a way to automate converting the working inventory into a more detailed finding aid, a technique which will help us process large collections in the future.

A great feature of the Sidney R. Yates Papers is the breadth of subjects covered in the collection. Because of his lengthy career, the congressman was instrumental in a large range of subjects, including water diversion; Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore and radiation in U.S. territories; Admiral Hyman Rickover and the development of the nuclear navy; supersonic transportation; the House Un-American Activities Committee; the National Endowment for the Arts; and Jewish topics including Chicago-area Jewish congregations and organizations, Soviet Jewry, Days of Remembrance, and the creation of the US Holocaust Memorial Museum.

Police Beat....

Retired couple robbed in Lincoln Square where muggings up sharply in 2017

Armed robberies continue to plague Lincoln Square, where muggings are up nearly 100% compared to year-ago stats.

The latest victims are a retired couple, held-up at gunpoint around 11:30 p.m. Oct. 1 in the 2700 block of W. Leland.

Two young offenders approached the couple and one robber pulled out a small handgun, police said. After getting the victims' cell phones, both robbers ran westbound on Leland.

Police said both men are black, 18-20 years old, about 5'-7" tall and thin. One wore a black hoodie, and the other wore a White Sox hat, which was left behind at the scene.

Detectives issued a community alert on Sept. 11 that warned of a similarly-described robbery team that includes a member who wears a White Sox hat.

Chicago police beat #1911, which includes the scene of the hold-up, has recorded 29 robberies this year. That's up from 17 at this point in 2016.

Another Boystown Mugging

Meanwhile, Lakeview East racked up its second mugging in as many days Oct. 2. A man told police that four offenders pushed him to the ground in the 700 block of W. Brompton and took his wallet and keys around 1:30 a.m.

The suspects, described only as four young black men wearing red hoodies, were last seen running southbound on Halsted Street, police said.

Social service darlings charged with threatening staff, shoplifting at Boystown Jewel

Let's hope a friendly neighborhood grocery store is more concerned about crime in our neighborhood than over-forgiving Cook County courts and a North Side social service agency.

Two former clients of the Center on Halsted—

both of whom are now banned from entering the agency's premises due to their conduct—are charged with

Witnesses told police that Brian Connor, 24, and Donovan Mylander, 19, each shoplifted some Heineken and headed for the exit around 1:30 p.m. on Sept. 26. Jewel workers were able to reclaim the alcohol in the parking lot, sparking a series of threats from the two thieves.

Connor told one worker, "I'll knock you out. I'm from the South Side. I don't give a fk." And Mylander got into a worker's face, yelling "I'm from the South Side! You took my property. I should start swinging on you."

Connor, who lists his home as the Night Ministry, 4711 N. Ravenswood, and Mylander (who lives in the West Loop) is charged with assault and retail theft.

Brian Connor

Records show that both Mylander and Connor have been charged with criminal matters that occurred at the Center On Halsted, 3656 N. Halsted, only to walk free when the center failed to show up in court.

Connor was blessed with two free passes from the center in 2015: In one case he was accused of threatening two security guards. In the second case, he allegedly threatened a COH employee: "so you got my peoples locked up" and brandished a "black and silver combat knife," causing the victim to flee the scene and call police.

But, Connor went free because no COH workers ever showed up for his court cases. Now, he's merely barred from entering the COH, making him everyone else's problem while the center enjoys operations without him.

Mylander was arrested at the Center on Halsted during June's Pride Fest celebration. Witnesses told police that Mylander pushed an employee and refused to leave the premises. He was arrested and charged. But, once again, the COH did not send anyone to Mylander's court date, forcing the state to drop charges... once again making him everyone else's problem except their own.

Last November, this newspaper reported that—despite publicly-made promises—the Center failed to show up in court for 25 out of 26 cases in which its employees or agents were listed as victims.

On parole for Red Line gropings, sexual predator grabs teen at Truman College

A registered sexual predator who's on parole for fondling two women at the North/Clybourn Red Line station in 2014, is back behind bars.

Prosecutors say Barry Marquez, 32, grabbed an 18-year-old woman in a hallway at

Barry Marquez

Truman College and refused to let her go on Sept. 20. Marquez was arrested last Monday when he returned to the school at 1145 W. Wilson in Uptown, police said.

He is charged with simple battery. A judge set bail at $3,000 and an Illinois Dept. of Corrections official said the agency would seek to revoke Marquez's parole.

Records show that Marquez was released from prison in July 2016 after serving a fraction of two five-year consecutive sentences that he received for fondling women on the Red Line in 2014.

DNAInfo reported at the time that Marquez "grabbed and fondled women on the North/Clybourn Red Line platform... attacking a 28-year-old and a 19-year-old in the course of about 20 minutes" during the evening rush hour.

Marquez currently lists a Rogers Park address as his home.

Rogers Park Alert

Police have issued a community alert after young female victims reported sexual misconduct by an unknown offender in the 1900 block of W. Fargo.

A girl told officers that the man was standing behind the glass front door of a building on the block as she walked past between 7:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. on Friday. The man stared directly at the girl, pulled his pants down, and exposed himself, police said.

In a separate case, a man made eye contact with a girl and placed his hand into his pants and began inappropriately touching himself, the alert said.

The offender is a 20- to 30-year-old white man who stands about 6' tall and weighs 170-200 lbs. He has short light brown hair, a light complexion, and he was wearing a white or gray t-shirt with black shorts.

Anyone with information about the matter is asked to call police at 312-744-8261.

Cubs home game arrests plunge 45% this year; two people account for 10% of the season's arrests

Arrests at Chicago Cubs regular season home games dropped 45% this year compared to 2016, with just 48 arrests being reported compared to 87 last year. Overall, the home game arrest ratio this year was one for every 66,658 fans in attendance.

Incredibly, two people with multiple arrests account for more than 10% of this year's total. More on them later.

First a few stats on this year's arrestees: 83% male with an average age of 32.7 years. That's up from an average of 28.6 last year.

Battery, trespassing, and unlawful sale of admission tickets were the most common charges filed. Although one distinguished fellow managed to get smacked with a count of "teasing of a police animal."

Arrestees were most likely to be taken into custody at Wrigley Field (14) followed by Old Crow Smokehouse (3) and Cubby Bear (2).

Their most common hometown is Chicago (29 arrests) with Englewood being the most common neighborhood of origin. Lakeview and the Near West Side tied for second place.

No arrestees were tazed this year. That's down from two last year.

And the teams that sparked the most arrests were the Pirates (9); Cardinals (7); Brewers (6); and White Sox (5). Last year's top three: Brewers (20), Cards (19), Reds (9).

Most commonly-arrested names: Tyewon (3); Nicholas (3) Jerry, Gregory, and Inshirah (2 each)

Which brings us back to those two folks who managed to get arrested multiple times at different games.

The easiest to explain is Tyewon Haywood, a prolific ticket scalper who was arrested on July 24, August 29, and September 13. Haywood is personally responsible for three of Englewood's four arrests this season.

Not-so-easy to explain are the adventures of Inshirah S. Khatib. Police records show that Khatib was charged with trespassing at Wrigley Field on July 4 and with battery at Old Crow Smokehouse after the Cubs' Sept. 9 game.

Khatib provided police with a St. Charles address in July and an Aurora address in September.

Methodology: Editors determined if arrests are "Cubs related" by reviewing police reports for all police detentions made within a quarter-mile of Wrigley Field and within 3 hours of any Cubs home game. When individuals face multiple charges, we only include the first two counts on each arrest report.

Using private police hotline, alderman's "noisy boater" complaint receives massive CPD response

It's no secret: In Chicago, ordinary citizens routinely endure long waits for routine police service.

But Ald. Tom Tunney [44th] is not a common citizen. He's an alderman.

According to multiple police sources, Ald. Tunney dialed a private number at the 19th District police station around 10:50 p.m. Saturday and demanded that officers shut down "loud music" at Diversey Harbor.

Tunney's 18th-floor lakefront condo overlooks the harbor from a distance.

While most neighbors would consider themselves lucky to receive any kind of police response to a low-priority noise disturbance, the alderman's complaint gained the attention of a lieutenant, a sergeant, two patrol cars and a rapid response unit.

That's right. A rapid response unit—which typically trolls higher-crime

Inshirah S. Khatib

areas to pounce quickly on incoming violent crime calls—was diverted to handle the sleepy alderman's noise complaint along with the others.

Responding officers "saw no harm... and refused to hassle" the folks who were celebrating the end of summer at the harbor, one source said.

Ald. Tunney's office did not respond to a request for information about the incident.

This is not the first time that the alderman turned to his private helpline because the harbor was too noisy for his personal comfort.

In Sept. 2015, Tunney called the 19th District around 9:30 p.m. to complain about a "rock concert" at the harbor. Responding police were given strict orders: "check their permit or shut it down."

Officers who arrived on-scene discovered "this is not a rock concert at all. It's some boaters. They turned the music down."

In Town Hall district, police resources have been fully depleted on 121 occasions already this year to the point they could not assign officers to respond to 911 calls.

Stabbed with nail file, man suffers collapsed lung

A Lakeview East man who was repeatedly stabbed with a metal nail file early Sunday suffered a collapsed lung, police said. Now, two men are charged with simple battery in the case as detectives continue to investigate.

Prosecutors say the victim saw Stefan Elzy, 33, lying on the ground in the 2900 block of N. Clark around 12:30 a.m.

As the victim asked if Elzy was OK, Elzy got up and asked for the victim's phone—possibly believing that it belonged to him.

When the victim refused to hand over the phone, Elzy and Joseph Brown, 27, began arguing with the victim and punching him in the face, police said.

As the fight progressed, Brown pulled out a metal fingernail file and stabbed the victim in chest and back, causing the victim to suffer a collapsed lung, police said. Officers who later searched for the weapon came up empty-handed.

The victim was transported to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center where he was reported to be in serious condition after the attack.

Prosecutors approved misdemeanor battery charges against Elzy and Brown on Tuesday while police continued their investigation. Both men are free on $1,500 recognizance bonds.

Brown lists the Howard Brown Health Center at 4025 N. Sheridan as his home. No address was available for Elzy, who is identified as "John Doe" in his arrest report.

Burglar busted after he refuses to leave Southport CTA station

There's never a good time to be on a CTA platform after service hours. But being there after burglarizing a nearby resident is a particularly bad decision.

Just ask Julio Liberman.

Police were called to the Southport Brown Line CTA station early on Sept. 27 because the 19-year-old Albany Park resident and two other teens refused to leave the platform, prosecutors say.

As police issued Liberman's trespassing citation, they learned that he had been seen on video burglarizing a garage and rummaging through a car in the 1300 block of W. Newport, authorities say.

Armed with the new information, cops arrested Liberman. He's now charged with felony residential burglary and felony burglary.

Given probation for 2015 Rogers Park mugging, man is accused of mugging another man in Rogers Park

A Rogers Park man who was sentenced to merely probation for a 2015 robbery is in custody again, charged with robbing another man in Rogers Park last week.

Officers were searching streets near the Jarvis Red Line CTA station early last Wednesday after a 29-year-old man reported that two offenders—including one who was "black, fat, and shirtless"—had just punched him repeatedly in the face and robbed him of his computer bag and schoolwork in the 7200 block of N. Greenview.

It wasn't long before cops found a fat and shirtless Markus Turner, 21, the 7300 block of N. Clark St. Turner was detained and subsequently identified by the victim, police said. He's charged with felony robbery.

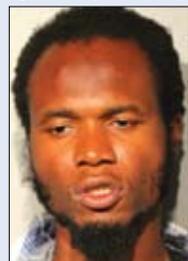

In 2016, Turner pleaded guilty to choking, punching, and robbing a man in the 7700 block of N. Paulina on Aug. 18, 2015.

A judge sentenced him to no prison time and just two-years probation for the crime.

Man accused of trashing Trump's restaurant 16

The 16th-floor restaurant at President Donald Trump's hotel is perfect for taking in our city's breathtaking views. But few are as breathtaking as this.

A Philadelphia man stands accused of trashing Trump's eatery around 5:30 Monday evening—causing more than $14,000 in damages before hotel security could intervene, according to police.

Holdson Marcelin

Holdson Marcelin, 36, entered the restaurant at 401 N. Wabash and immediately set out to destroy the place, employees told police.

Marcelin's rampage included "smashing glass, flipping tables, throwing chairs, pouring red wine on upholstery" and breaking signage before Trump security detained him, police said.

Police said video of the incident was captured on surveillance cameras and cell phones, but no further details were available.

Last March, a 30-year-old scam artist from Canton, GA, skipped out on a $1,838.90 bar tab at Trump Tower Terrace. Robert Heath missed a March 17 court date and remains at large.

CTA's "White Powder" suspect in custody

The guy who intentionally sprinkled white powder on an inbound CTA Red Line train during last Thursday's bustling morning rush is in custody, police said.

Kelvin Davis, 41, of West Ridge was caught on CTA surveillance video, pouring powder from a brown paper bag, the department said. Eyewitnesses were able to identify him. He is charged with one count of reckless conduct.

Detectives hoped to have Davis charged with felony counts, but the Cook County State's Attorney refused to pursue the more serious charge, according to a source who requested anonymity.

First responders arrived at the Addison Red Line CTA station around 8:30 a.m. on the morning of the incident and tests found the substance to be "non-harmful."

Nonetheless, Chicago police quarantined the affected car at the Howard train yard where bomb and arson detectives conducted a complete investigation.

At the time, we reported that a source said the suspect had been described as a light-complected black man in his 20's with freckles on his face. He was wearing a beige canvas hat, a red Bulls jersey, and knee-length shorts.

Chicago Marathon a metaphor for life

The 40th Chicago Marathon was held on Sunday, and was a superb example of how tens of thousands of people can get along splendidly, eagerly, happily, and with no noticeable violence.

This most democratic of international athletic events had men and women of every race, religion, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation, political preference, skill, etc. running together. Inexperienced and elite runners participated enthusiastically in the same event. It was an exemplary demonstration of what human beings are capable of. Each person ran his or her own race, but within the community of the other racers.

A million and a half cheering spectators lined the 26.2-mile course. People of every imaginable kind pursued their dreams on that sunny, extra-warm day.

Our pathetically challenged, collapsing world has everything to learn from the poignant exertions of those 40,000 stellar athletes, from over 100 countries. Speed, except for some, was probably the least important factor in what was most significant about that day. Some people run fast, some more slowly. Some are competitive, other are not. Each runner has a specific reason for participating in such an historic event. One cannot fail to be moved emotionally when learning about the runners' myriad reasons for being there. There are as many stories worth writing as there were runners. The people supporting them merit accolades as well.

The marathon is a metaphor for life. Waste none of it. Pursue your dreams. If not now, when?

Leon J. Hoffman, Lakeview East

What if a Harvey or Irma-like storm pummeled Chicago?

We do think offhand that 50" of rain here in one storm is science fiction, but I'd like Mariyana Spyropoulos [story Oct. 2] to give readers a plausible scenario which could cause this. If there's no plausible scenario, it's highly unlikely to happen while Chicago is in its current tectonic location and in the Temperate Zone of climate.

She wrote about the need for hardscape infrastructure improvements, green infrastructure improvements, and development which respects the hydrological services of greenspace.

It's not enough.

The original area of rivers, floodplains, and wetlands showed us what Nature needed to deal with exceptional storms. Most of the floodplains and wetlands have been paved over.

The basic idea of a storm sewer system is to lower the base level of the natural drainage system. It would have to add the areas of the floodplains and wetlands destroyed, to its capacity, to be able to accept that water.

But it's actually worse. When storm water went onto floodplains

Life was better when we were kids

Fabulous column [Sept. 13 by Thomas O'Gorman], seems we have the same reaction to the obsession with phones on the streets and in restaurants. Life was beautiful in our childhoods... hoping we can get back to that and some human connections.

Mary Laney, Chicago

and wetlands, it stayed there for a long time, until the rivers went down and the water flowed into them or percolated into the soil. Unless a storm sewer is pumped downstream, gravity will carry the water only so fast, and no faster. Even the Deep Tunnel Project isn't big enough.

We need to begin downzoning floodplains and former wetlands to nature preserve status when a flood cripples the buildings on them. Nature will show us which properties to downzone first, by attrition. It's not enough to prevent the mistakes of the future. The mistakes of the past also have to be fixed.

Locals out to impact violence

Ramsey Lewis to be honored at dinner at Arts Club

A fundraiser to honor Ramsey Lewis and raise money to help combat violence will be held 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Arts Club, 201 E. Ontario St.

Titled "Let's Make the Cure Contagious", the gala is being chaired by Diane Weinberg who is leading a group of citizens "who love Chicago and who are trying to positively impact the occurrence of violence in our community," she said. "We believe that violence is contagious, and that it can be treated and ultimately cured using a health-based approach. This is the concept behind Cure Violence, an incredibly successful program developed by Dr. Gary Slutkin and used in 28 cities and over 15 countries...

and which has just been reinstated in a number of at-risk communities in Chicago."

This event will honor iconic musician Ramsey Lewis "who has been loyal to Chicago and active in our community for over 50 years," said Weinberg.

A native Chicagoan, Lewis is artistic director of Jazz at the Ravinia Festival and helped organize Ravinia's Jazz Mentor Program. He also serves on the Board of Trustees for the Merit School of Music and The Chicago High School for the Arts. In 2005, the Ramsey Lewis Foundation was created to help connect at-risk children to the world of music. Lewis still lives in Chicago with his wife, seven children, 13 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Man arrested for shove off CTA platform

Chad M. Estep, 34, of the 1700 block of W. Ellen in Wicker Park has been charged with one felony count of Attempted Murder - First Degree one felony count of Aggravated Battery in a Public Place and one misdemeanor count of CTA - Trespass when he was arrested after being positively identified as the offender who pushed a 46-year-old Rogers Park man causing him to fall off a CTA Platform onto the train tracks.

The incident took place on Aug. 1, between 11:30 a.m. and noon. Estep menaced Ben Benedict who was standing near the edge of the Washington St. subway platform before being shoved down onto the tracks. As Benedict was trying to climb up off the tracks Estep allegedly blocked his path, only to run away once confronted by others waiting for trains nearby. He was placed in custody at his residence at 5:10 p.m. Oct. 9, and charged accordingly.

Chad M. Estep

Benedict did not sustain a serious injury and was assisted off the tracks by fellow CTA users.

City officials at the time were accused of covering up the crime as the attack happened more than a month earlier before the city, police and CTA issued any public alerts about the crime.

Classified, Legal and Service advertising information:

- Classified ads are sold by the line. The cost is $4.50 per line per insertion. One line of copy is equal to 25 letters, characters and spaces long. There is a minimum of 3 lines per ad.
- Service directory ads are sold by the column inch. One column inch is 1.5 inches wide by 1 inch tall and costs $30 per insertion. Additional space above 1 col. inch can be purchased in increments of 1/4th column inch. Each additional 1/4th column inch costs $5. Adding artwork, logos or images or use of special fonts are no additional charge.
- Legal notice advertising rates are charged based on the actual size of the ad. The cost is based on the same rates as Service Directory advertising. "Doing Business As (DBA)" and "Assumed Name" legal ads are based on a flat rate of $50 per week. By law they are required to run for three weeks for a total cost of $150.

For more information call Karen Sonnefeldt at 773-465-9700. Fax ads to 773-465-9800 or email them to: insidepublicationschicago@gmail.com

The DEADLINE for service and classified advertising is Monday 5 PM, excluding national holidays. Ads will sometimes be accepted after deadline on Monday with an additional service fee of $20. Inside Publications reserves the right to refuse any advertising we feel is inappropriate or that could result in harm to others.

Arts Week at Swedish American Museum

With the onset of Arts Week the Swedish American Museum, 5211 N. Clark St., plans to conduct arts-related events this week including night strolls and art walks involving more than 70 community businesses. Free admission to the Museum will also be offered on Saturday and Sunday.

Ongoing through November 26, the Museum's first-floor gallery contains the exhibit, "Roots: Source of Inspiration." These works are by artist and sculptor Christina Juran, who has an arts center and gallery in the St. Claude Arts District of New Orleans.

The opening of the "Sidewalks and Lampposts," exhibit of Chicago street collages by retired graphic designer Gordon Strömberg starts Friday on the museum's second-floor and runs through Nov. 19.

Mulle's Andersonville Adventure, a crafts program for all ages on the art of appreciating nature and outdoor life through the eyes of a Swedish folk character, will take place at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Featuring the art of music, the Museum will present a concert by "Blue Eyed Blondes" at 4 p.m. Sunday. This will be the first visit to the Midwest by the Swedish folk, gospel and country music duo of Lina Lönnberg and Kristoffer Emanuelsson.

During the following weeks, the Museum will stress Music in Sweden during its monthly Hejsan, a story and craft hour for children of all ages and their parents. The disco group ABBA will be featured at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 20. Call 773-728-8111 for more information.

Surgical Science Museum open house

The lakefront mansion at 1524 N. Lake Shore Dr. that houses the International Museum of Surgical Science is hosting an open house this weekend 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday where visitors can visit the library and see original architectural drawings and historical photographs of the mansion.

The property was originally constructed for Eleanor Robinson Countiss as a wedding gift from her father, an executive at the Diamond Match Co. The Countiss residence was designed by Howard Van Doren Shaw in imitation of Le Petit Trianon, a chateau on the grounds of Versailles that Louis XVI gave to Marie Antoinette.

Since 1954, the structure has been home to the only museum in North America dedicated to the field of surgery—symbolized in front of the building by Edouard Chassaing's sculpture "Hope and Help."

Morbid Curiosities

Those so inclined can enter the anatomical theatre of Dr. James D. Pembroke, a doctor and surgeon working in 18th century Britain, and watch as he performs a gruesome surgery on a live patient Friday, Oct. 27, during a International Museum of Surgical Science show titled "Morbid Curiosities."

Period tools will be used and discussed in this demonstration which is not for the faint of heart. Dare to ask the doctor questions on his techniques after his surgery. the show is recommended for ages 18 and up. Limited seating available and standing room only tickets available at the door.

HAZELDEN from p. 7

my plan, but I'm glad it turned out this way," he said.

Bob Bozanavich voiced similar sentiments.

"Nothing's better than representing something you really believe in," said Bozanavich, the Chicago Hazelden's marketing director.

Over the 20 years since Hazelden opened its North Side branch, "the community has changed, the way we collect money for treatment has changed, but our purpose is the same as it has always been," Bozenavich said.

Today one of the biggest changes has been suddenly having to learn how to respond to the current opiate "epidemics," said Kasha, who has been working in the addiction field for the past 17 years.

But even opiates aren't the biggest challenge faced by the treatment community these days, Kasha said.

The biggest challenge is still getting people to recognize addiction as a disease like any other – and to understand addiction doesn't come in one particular size or shape, he warned.

"Everyone in this city knows someone who's struggling with this disease. Unfortunately, this disease still carries some shame so people don't always seek treatment," Kasha said.

"It's the deadliest thing on the street these days. More people are

New gaming museum in Loop hosts opening reception

Attention all gamers and classic game enthusiasts, the Chicago Design Museum (CDM) has announced that its latest exhibition, “Hey! Play! Games in Modern Culture,” [Hey Play] will open on Oct. 20.

The opening reception will take place at the Chicago Design Museum on the third floor of Block 37, 108 N. State St.

Hey! Play! is an interactive experience for all ages that promoters hope will demonstrate that games live in users minds and social relationships as well as in consoles and controllers.

Curated by DePaul Univ. School of Design faculty members Dr. Brian Schrank and LeAnne Wagner, the exhibition will feature nine games that visitors are encouraged to play.

“People aren’t going to see things like Pac-Man or Poké-mon,” said Wagner, “but rather a broad range of play experiences they may not be familiar with. The game pieces take diverse physical forms, from cardboard-box interfaces and virtual reality headsets to entire hallways and even parachutes, demonstrating how game design is a medium of self-expression, social change, cybernetic spiritual practice and formal aesthetics, among others.”

The games on display include “SuperBetter” by Jane McGonigal, “Slapsie” and “Parachute” by Bernie DeKoven, “Videoball” by Tim Rogers, “Spacebox” by the Champlain College Sandbox team, “Long March: Restart” by Feng Mengbo, “SoundSelf” by Robin Arnott, “Untitled Game” by JODI, a collection of games by Anna Anthropy and a console running Terry Davis’s specialized TempleOS operating system.

Schrank, who’s penned a book on the subject of creating, critiquing and playing video games as an art form, says that the games featured will explore the complex and varied gaming avant-garde.

“Gaming is a huge $100 billion dollar industry, but most people only think of one type of game. This exhibition will show the diversity of the medium, and serves as a launching point for exploring all that games can do,” said Schrank.

The event is open to the public and tickets are available for purchase. The exhibition will be open Tuesday through Saturday, noon to 7 p.m., until Feb. 17, 2018. Admission to the museum is free, but donations are encouraged. For more information: <https://chidm.com/>.

Illinois Fall Trout Season

Salmon snagging season kicked off Oct. 1 in the Lincoln Park La- goon and the 2017 Illinois Fall Trout Fishing Season will open Saturday, Oct. 21 at 54 ponds, lakes, and streams throughout the state.

The Fall Catch-and-Release Fly Fishing Season is also now open at nine sites while fly fishing anglers can use fly fishing gear to catch and release trout now as well at those nine sites.

No trout may be kept during the fly fishing period, but anglers can keep trout after the opening of the regular fall trout season beginning Oct. 21.

No trout may be taken from any of the stocked sites until 5 a.m. on Oct.21 (not all sites are open at 5 a.m. on opening day).

Anyone caught attempting to take (harvest) trout before the legal harvest season opening will be issued citations.

All anglers – including those using fly fishing gear who intend to release fish caught before Oct. 21 – must have a valid fishing license and an Inland Trout Stamp, unless they are under the age of 16, blind or disabled, or are an Illinois resident on leave from active duty in the Armed Forces. The daily catch limit for each angler is five trout.

Illinois fishing licenses and Inland Trout Stamps are available at DNR Direct license and permit locations, including many bait shops, sporting goods stores and other retail outlets.

Fishing licenses and trout stamps can also be purchased by using a credit card through DNR Direct online via the IDNR website at www.dnr.illinois.gov, or by calling DNR Direct toll-free at 1-888-673-7648.

Chicago, a city of stories

Classical genre offered to a non-traditional audience

BY JOANNA BROUSSARD

Stories of courage and a fighting spirit told through classical music on period instruments in a Jazz club in Chicago? Couldn't happen! Oh, but it is happening this Oct. 14- 15 with the premiere of Chicago Stories at the Green Mill and the Univ. of Illinois at Chicago.

As programs like Amazon's Mozart in the Jungle (MITJ) bring a renewed interest in the classical genre to a non-traditional audience, what many think of as "old" is suddenly new and fresh again. And Chicago has its own brand of MITJ in the Bach + Beethoven Ensemble (BBE).

An experiential endeavor that began in 2009, violinist/fiddler and founder, Brandi Berry Benson, took a leap of faith, and brought together a cohort of classical musicians who wanted to make Bach, Beethoven, Mozart and hundreds of long-dead classical composers rock! Since then, they have been attracting audiences — from millennials to Baby Boomers — with their take on classical and early music that defies how the genre is typically represented. With the BBE, there are no tails, no formal concert hall, no baton, no quiet and no patrons snoozing in the upper balcony.

"Did you ever stop to think that in their times, Bach and Beethoven were creating new music?" says Brandi Berry Benson, BBE founder and artistic director. "Not a soul had ever heard anything like Bach's Brandenburg Concertos or Beethoven's nine symphonies before they were given to an ensemble to play for an audience. They were at the cutting edge, thinking of new ways to use their instruments, tell a story, revamp the concert as an event, and most importantly, engage the audience at a whole new level.

"They were the 'Beyonce' of their times," says Benson. "They were experimenting — stretching the capabilities of both instruments and musicians. We decided to follow the example of our heroes and namesakes by creating an experience that makes sure their music, and many others remain relevant to today's eclectic music audience."

Bringing together composers, writers, and musicians with community heroes, Chicago Stories weaves together music and vocals in six original compositions that expose the underbelly of the cultures, customs, and creativity that fuels this historically diverse city of sanctuary and hope.

Through Chicago Stories, the audience learns about the Alvarez Brothers and their renaissance efforts to revive the Pilsen Latin Jazz scene. They then take a journey through the harrowing escape from the war-torn Middle East of members of the Assyrian immigrant community, who finally found refuge in the neighborhoods of Rogers Park and Lincolnwood. Finally, the audience scales the wall along with a group of minority women in executive leadership roles who crushed their glass ceilings to reach the top positions in their chosen careers.

Chicago Stories premieres on 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 14, at the Univ. of Illinois, East Terrace, UIC Student Center East, and 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 15, at the Green Mill, 4802 N. Broadway. Advance tickets for the UIC performance available at chicagostories.brownpapertickets.com/. Tickets at the door only for the Green Mill performance.

questions about the qualifications of the private security firms hired to patrol public events after the June 2016 Pulse Nightclub shooting.

Our interest then was in knowing how the city would confirm that Chicago Pride Parade organizers would provide a promised 160 off-duty police officers for parade security.

Ald. Tom Tunney's 44th Ward office referred us to Chicago Special Events Management, which stated "Our security service is license [sic], bonded and insured, [it is the] same group that does the neighborhood security for the Chicago Cubs. Most are permitted for carrying firearms, a few are certified... but non-carrying firearms. All are certified security personnel."

No one ever answered our questions about how the city would confirm that organizers provided all of the officers they promised to or how the city would ensure the guards' qualifications.

neighborhood segregation policy of the time, the development was intended for whites only. As the development matured, it became more racially integrated.

In recent decades, the Lathrop Homes have been subject to many of the same problems of increasing crime as other housing projects in Chicago, including narcotics trafficking and gang activity. The housing project was dominated by the Latin Kings and The Deuces street gangs in later years.

The first construction permit for the redevelopment was issued in June for a new six-story, 59-unit structure at 2737 N. Hoyne Ave. Located south of Diversey, the new mid-rise building will eventually be joined by a second, similarly-sized development to its immediate west.

The Lathrop Homes master plan will see the demolition of existing buildings and new construction on the site south of Diversey Pkwy while the collection of 14 original buildings north of Diversey will be preserved and renovated.

According to the city, the first phase of the redevelopment will deliver 151 units public housing, 91 affordable units, and 161 market rate apartments. The mixed-income residences are planned to be scattered throughout the various buildings.
