Readers Open Door to City's Loved Doormen

ANN
GERBER

Doorman contest delayed one week due to overwhelming response

Inside Publications was inundated with Best Doorman contest entries and needs another week to finish reading, reviewing and process them all. Therefore our winners will now be announced in the December 9 edition.

In the meantime, this week we will publish a sampling of some of the entries.

Thanks to all who made the effort to enter their beloved doormen into this contest.

To answer Ann Gerber's question, yes, there is an efficient, capable, sensitive doorman in my building who is the best in the city!

I am happy to have the opportunity to recommend Bruce Peters at 3200 N. Lake Shore Dr., to you. I've lived at 3200 since 1973 and have know Bruce for 23 years. Every night when I come home from work, Bruce greets me with a big smile and hearty "hello." It's a perfect way to end the work day and I look forward to seeing him at the doorman's desk upon my arrival.

Obviously, after all these years I feel I have a strong bond with Bruce as I'm sure others do as well. He's watched my family grow including grandchildren with a benevolent interest and regard for all. He is professional and caring. He enjoys his job and gets along with everyone who appears in our lobby. He's helpful, informative and kind. I trust him and know I can depend on him completely.

I know he goes out of his way to support and befriend us without expecting anything in return. I can't imagine living in my building without Bruce and I can't think of anyone who deserves your prize more than Bruce. I hope you will seriously consider him because I and many, many others seriously consider him to be the BEST DOORMAN in the city of

Veteran ER physician says medical marijuana a compassionate choice for some as state claims abuses at his clinic

BY PETER VON BUOL

While medical marijuana became legal in Illinois on November 9, state regulators have already raised questions about three physicians who have made recommendations for their patients. Among those being questioned is Dr. Bodo E. Schneider, a downstate physician who spent more than three decades working in emergency rooms before he opened a primary-care physician's office in south suburban Orland Park. Dr. Schneider also operates a clinic in downstate Marion.

The State's pilot medical marijuana program allows physicians to write recommendations for patients who have one or more of about three dozen debilitating medical conditions. These conditions include Human Immunodeficiency Virus/Acquired Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV/AIDS), Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's Disease), Cancer, Crohn's Disease, Fibromyalgia, Glaucoma, Lupus, Multiple Sclerosis, Muscular Dystrophy, Parkinson's Disease, Rheumatoid arthritis (RA), Seizures, including those characteristic of epilepsy (Starting January 1, 2016) and Traumatic brain injury (TBI).

Physicians do not write prescriptions for patients to use medical marijuana. For a patient to legally purchase medical marijuana at one of the state's 13 medical marijuana dispensaries, they must first have their application certified by the state. In order for a physician to legally write a recommendation, there has to first be an established relationship between the doctor and the patient. If a patient's application is approved, they are issued registry identification cards by the state's department of public health. The card allows them to legally purchase medical marijuana at one of the approved dispensaries.

State officials add that a physician must have "ongoing responsibility for the assessment, care and treatment of a patient's debilitating medical condition, or a symptom of the patient's debilitating medical condition, for which the physician has certified to the Illinois Dept. of Public Health that the qualifying patient would receive therapeutic or palliative benefit from the medical cannabis."

State officials have told this newspaper questions were raised because Dr. Schneider seems to have written recommendations for many of the aforementioned debilitating conditions. Many physicians, they added, specialize in treating just a few of the listed conditions. It is unusual, they add, that a single practice would be

Lincoln Park's $30M toilet

Fullerton revetment project becomes a toilet for local geese

BY JIM MATUSIK

Hundreds of non-migrating 'couch potato' geese had a big Thanksgiving picnic at Fullerton and the Lake last weekend. The new 5.8 acres of freshly planted sod, part of the finishing touches of this newly repurposed landfill, have been turned into a giant snack bar by these insatiable birds.

For the most part these geese don't migrate south for the winter. Some people now call them "lawn carp" and "couch-potato geese." Most of these birds were born in and around Lincoln Park and will remain here lifelong, thriving amid humanity, devouring cultivated grass and stale bread, begetting progeny and grandprogeny and great-grandprogeny, seldom flying more than two or three miles from their birthplace, and never facing the rigors of migration.

These geese prefer large tracts of open land to feed on because it is easier for them to spot predators, (Lakefront park users can only wish that there were some) and the geese seem to heartily approve of the way the Revetment

Project has been laid out.

"The question I'm most often asked by the public," Jay Hestbeck, a senior wildlife biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service told the Audubon Society, "is, 'Why has the Canada goose stopped migrating?'"

Most of these birds were born in and around Lincoln Park and will remain here lifelong.

What North America has observed with wonder since the 1960s was the beginning of the now well-known phenomenon of resident Canada Geese. Today an estimated 4 to 5 million members of the species live cheek by jowl with civilization, year-round, in every state except Hawaii, and in every Canadian province. And most of us see them not as wonders of nature but as pests, polluters of land and water and an insult to the genes of wild goosedom.

They geese have definitely taken over this new stretch of Lincoln Park even before its official opening for the public.

One can look to the Park District and their lackadaisical attitude toward any type of population control for the source of this onslaught because these birds have nothing to stop their perpetual procreation.

The Canadian Geese now seen living year-round in most Chicago's parks are not the wild, free, and near-mythical creature they once were. They are boringly familiar, shamelessly dependent, and, like their great, wet globs of manure, always underfoot. By springtime the whole area will surely be goose poop pandemonium and what was planned as a beautiful expanse of new lakefront paradise will resemble a defecated disaster.

Sales of four City-owned River North parking lots approved for more than $12M

Four City-owned River North parking facilities will be sold for more than $12 million, or 60% more than their appraised value, under a plan approved last week by City Council.

"These sales are part of a strategic effort by the City to maximize our real estate assets on behalf of taxpayers, as well as accommodate ongoing demand for new development on the Near North Side," said Mayor Rahm Emanuel.

Acquired by the City between 1997 and 2005 and totaling approximately 27,000 square feet, the parcels are currently managed by the Dept. of Fleet and Facility Management and used as employee parking for the Central Administrative Hearings facility at 400 W. Superior St.

The parcels' appraised value is $7,480,000. Their sale prices, totaling $12,399,000, were negotiated through a public, two-phase bidding process this summer. The proposed sales include:

- 366 W. Superior 7,735 square ft. sold to Belgravia Group price $3,775,000
- 365 W. Huron 8350 sq. ft. sold to Morningside Huron LLC sale price $3,739,000

- 356 W. Erie St. 5,000 sq. ft. sold to Belgravia Group sale price $2,230,594

- 366 W. Erie St. 5,950 sq. ft. sold to Belgravia Group sale price $2,654,406

The sales are being brokered by CBRE, which has marketed the properties on behalf of the Dept. of Planning and Development since spring 2015. CBRE will receive a 3.75% commission.

The Inspector General's office advised the City last year that at least one of the parcels may be better suited for new uses.

Shopping Fair Trade makes a difference

For two days each December, Michigan Ave. shoppers have a special opportunity to make a difference by shopping fair trade.

The annual Fair Trade Gift Bazaar, hosted by Fourth Presbyterian Church, 126 E. Chestnut, features handcrafted merchandise, ranging from folk art to ceramics, textiles, baskets, jewelry, and more.

Vendors this year will include Ten Thousand Villages, Africa Circle of Hope, Chicago Fair Trade, Partners for Just Trade, Rahab's Rope, and Tree of Life

Imports.

This year's bazaar will be held on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the church. For more information visit www.fourthchurch.org or call 312-787-4570.

Groups in more than 30 countries benefit from the proceeds of this bazaar, making it possible for these artisans to earn a fair wage for their labors and provide food, shelter, education, and health care for their families.

National Shrine celebrates Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini's Feast Day

The Shrine Chapel welcomed a standing room only crowd on November 13 in honor of Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini's Feast Day.

The Most Reverend Francis J. Kane, Auxiliary Bishop of Chicago, celebrated Mass and during his Homily reminded us all to know, live and share our faith in the spirit of Mother Cabrini.

The Knights of Columbus Honor Guards added a regal touch to the festivities that were followed by a reception was enjoyed by all.

Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini is the first American citizen Saint and the Patron Saint of Immigrants.

Chicago Police recruitment

The Chicago Police Dept. is hiring for the first time since 2013.

From 6-7 p.m. Thursday, December 10, 20th District Commander Cornelia Lott and other police department representatives will be at the Broadway Armory, 5917 N. Broadway, to speak about opportunities to join the department.

Applications will be accepted through December 16 from anyone over 18 years of age. A written exam will be administered in February. Chicago Public Schools graduates and the military will be given priority treatment.

Chicago.

Jesus Oscar Diosdado Silva has been the night doorman for the Conservatory Building for 12 years. His shift is usually the graveyard, 11 p.m. until 7 a.m. The Conservatory is home for 40 families. With Oscar on the watch, there is never a problem with guests or residents arriving late, as Oscar is there always to meet people with a warm welcome. And most all, we feel safe and secure when he is on duty.

During a recent repair, the building was without electrical power. When the power came on late in the evening, Oscar was there checking out units even though he had an overnight shift ahead of him. He is always cheerful and demonstrates a can do attitude.

Several years ago, Oscar, while visiting his family in Mexico, was denied entry back into the US due to paperwork issues. The refrain from all the tenants was "Where is Oscar?" He is an invaluable member of the Conservatory team.

I would like to nominate Tyrone Williams at 1440 N. Lake Shore Drive for the best doorman award. Tyrone is the absolute best! He always knows how to brighten your day with a huge smile and lots of hugs. If anyone in the building is feeling down, he cheers us up and brings the best, most amazing positive energy to the building. And he has been going through a lot. His wife was recently very ill and he was right by her side taking care of her while still working long hours at 1440 LSD.

Thankfully Tyrone's wife is now recovered and back to good health. Even when Tyrone was going through the hardest time, he still brought his positivity and a huge smile to work. He is always helping everyone in the building... carrying packages... helping with their computers... But most of all bringing light with his smiles and hugs.

He deserves all the best. I hope he wins the award. I have a feeling he would use the award money to take a well-deserved vacation. He loves to travel to Puerto Rico and Tennessee and his face lights up when he tells us about his travels. No one deserves it more.

I have been a resident in the North Harbor Tower for only about a year and I already feel attached to the place. Why you may ask? It's because the complete doorman staff is so welcoming. They make us want to feel like staying here forever. I would like to nominate Leo Perez.

Although I wish I could nominate all the others too because each one is amazing in their own way. He is extremely nice to talk to, he will always hold up the door for me with a welcoming smile. He is a very pleasant personality. I am young and generally don't need help with grocery and stuff, but I am sure he would help me out if need be.

I am a realtor and do quite a lot of business at 345 Fullerton. Tony McMullen is the head doorman there and has been for over 30 years. He is a great guy and great at his job.

I know when I go up to a unit with a complete stranger he has "taken note" and checked out the person.

He has actually called me during a showing to make sure everything is ok. He has had to do well-being checks that didn't turn out so well. He's been the first on the scene for our only "jumper." He's there when people need him.

We have elderly people and very young people who are on their own for the first time. He's got it covered, always helpful and goes out of his way. I encounter various doorman every day in my job. Most are quite good but Tony goes above and beyond.

I would like to nominate Thaddeus Rounds as the best doorman ever. Thaddeus brings a sincere diligence and genuinely caring spirit to his work here at 3900 N. Lake Shore Dr. that make you understand he truly cares about his work and those of us who rely on him. I am grateful he chose his profession and that he continues to choose to work here at 3900 - he is simply the best!

Our doorman, Charles Powell, is the protector of us at 222 E. Pearson. For the past 18 years he has watched over residents. He personally greets each resident, almost all by name, as they enter or leave the building.

His work reflects confidence, leadership and professional experience as he monitors all.

One day my husband reported activity that looked like illegal drug behavior of a new resident and asked him to look into it. Charles investigated, got building management involved, and had those people removed. The safety and security of our building is enhanced by his professionalism.

On a personal note, the empathy Charles has shown to us is heartfelt and touching. This year our daughter was diagnosed with leukemia; she lived with us during this time and had almost 10 months of treatment at Northwestern Hospital. Charles had daily words of encouragement to relay to her; offering personal prayers for her recovery. She thankfully is in remission and has returned to her work. His touch of kindness each day as we went through this difficult time in our lives is what makes Charles so special.

I would like to nominate our doorman Antonio Smith of the

Cook County hires vendor for $30 million upgrade of online property tax systems

BY HANNA NAKANO
Cook County Record

Cook County's online property tax information system is getting a $30 million upgrade.

Plano, Texas-based Tyler Technologies, the company awarded the contract, will create a system to replace the 40-year-old technology currently in place.

"The old property tax system, supported by 1970's-era mainframe applications, has performed reliably and remarkably well for 40 years, but it has reached the end of its usable service life. It's high time we bring this technology into the 21st century," Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle said in a press release issued by Tyler Technologies.

The county's 40-year-old system incurs more than $5 million per year in costs, according to Joel Inwood, Cook County Bureau of Technology Public Information Officer, and depends on antiquated paper-based validation systems. The new online system will streamline the county's property tax procedure.

"The proposed contract will re-engineer business processes and workflows through the implementation of modern technology and provide myriad benefits, including increased property tax revenue from improved assessment, appraisal, and collection operations, an improved ability to accommodate property tax workloads without requiring additional staff, and enhanced public services and responsiveness for county tax payers," Inwood said.

The county received bids from five companies before settling on Tyler, according to Inwood.

According to Tyler Technologies, this new system will provide Cook County with improved workflow processes and data analytics, as well as better data accuracy and increased transparency for public-facing services. The contract includes software licenses, implementation, maintenance and support, according to Tyler.

"I firmly believe it is essential to modernize the legacy system that performs one of the core functions of the county - the administration of property taxes," said Cook County Clerk David Orr. "My office looks forward to giving taxpayers greater access to delinquent property tax records, providing local taxing districts with a sophisticated two-way communication portal and realizing increased government efficiency."

The $30 million purchase price will be covered by a special purpose fund, funded by a portion of the Document Recording Fee, which is collected by the county's Recorder of Deeds, Inwood said.

"The county has been carrying forward a positive balance in this special purpose fund in anticipation of the integrated property tax project," Inwood told the Record.

Cook County has more than 800 local government units and a population of 5.3 million - and collects more than $12 billion in annual revenue, according to the release from Tyler Technologies.

The original recyclables

When Walmart announces 'Christmas in July' a staggering amount of less than quality merchandise will flood the market by the end of the shopping season.

This is the time to give the "Antiques are Green" campaign a serious consideration. Antiques are from an era when people to pride in craftsmanship. Supporting the fine arts and antique industry not only offers one quality items, but the concept of tying the antiques to the green movement and recycling.

Today's mass produced merchandise will end up at the landfill long before an antique is recycled at an auction, or restored for another generation.

Furnishings, decorative objects such as pottery, old advertising items, vintage clothing and accessories, the list of 'eco-friendly' antique items is endless.

Antiques are undoubtedly the oldest recycling trade. Please support the well-being of our planet by introducing young people to the wonderful world of antiques and collecting. Why not make it a New Years resolution?

Low rates keep home-hunting on buyer's minds despite holiday cheer

BY DON DeBAT

With Black Friday fever raging and most people focused on Christmas shopping, the year's end can be the perfect time to buy home in Chicago—if you can find one you like.

"There is still very keen interest in buying this late in the selling season, and there's no indication that the zeal to own a home is diminishing," said Dan Wagner, president of the Chicago Assoc. of Realtors (CAR).

However, existing home inventories are shrinking, and "that's having a corresponding impact on sales and prices," Wagner said.

According to an analysis by the RE/MAX Northern Illinois real estate network, over the past 33 consecutive months the median sales price of homes in the Chicago metro area has been higher than it was in the same month one year earlier.

Some 2,109 existing homes were sold in Chicago in October, down less than one percent from October of 2014 when 2,128 homes were sold. The median price of a Chicago home was $240,000 in October, up 1.7% over $236,000 in the same month last year, reported the Illinois Assoc. of Realtors (IAR).

Sales of single-family homes and condominiums in the nine-county Chicago area totaled 9,155 units in October, a decrease of two percent from the 9,344 sales in the same month a year ago. The median price in October in the Chicago area was $200,000, up 8.1% from $185,000 in October of 2014.

"A substantial decrease in the number of homes on the market is having an impact on sales," said Mike Drews, president of the IAR.

"While there typically is a drop-off in inventory this time of year as potential sellers become immersed in holiday activities, the decline in October was particularly steep. The result is strong median-price gains and a decrease in the number of days to sell a home."

Statewide, it took an average of 68 days to sell a home in October in Illinois, down from 74 days a year ago. Available housing inventory in Illinois remained tight with 68,302 homes for sale, a 10.4% decline from October of 2014 when there were 76,205 homes on the market.

"In our view, the Chicago-area housing market is actually stronger than the October-unit numbers might suggest," noted Jim Merrion, regional director of RE/MAX. "TRID, the new federal regulations governing closing procedures took effect in October, and that almost certainly slowed down the closing process for many transactions, pushing them back into November."

Another positive force in the housing market is near rock-bottom mortgage interest rates, analysts say.

Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey reported on November 25 that benchmark 30-year fixed rate home loans averaged 3.95%, down from 3.97% a week earlier. A year ago, 30-year loans averaged 3.97%.

The average 30-year fixed rate mortgage hasn't risen above four percent since July 23, which is helping home-buyer affordability in the face of rising house prices due to low levels of inventory Freddie Mac reported.

"In a quiet week leading up to the Thanksgiving holiday, there were no major negative news announcements, and none are expected in the next few days," said Sean Beckett, chief economist of Freddie Mac.

With the year is winding down, analysts are waiting to see if the Federal Reserve Board will hike interest rates at its December 15 meeting. And that event could move would-be home buyers into action.

Tussle continues over who should be responsible for sunken haunted barge at Navy Pier

BY DANA HERRA
Cook County Record

Who should be responsible for the sinking of a haunted barge at Navy Pier last year remains an unsolved riddle, after a federal judge dowsed some counts of a lawsuit surrounding the incident, but gave the plaintiff time to address the issues and file an amended complaint.

The barge, a zombie-themed haunted house-style Halloween attraction, sank on Halloween 2014 while it was docked at Navy Pier in a wicked storm.

The Zombie Containment Haunted House was supposed to be the main attraction at Navy Pier's Halloween festivities, but the organizers ended up having to refund money when wave action and high winds buffeted the barge and forced the front part of it up on the pier while flooding other parts.

Foundation Theatre Group, Inc., the entertainment company that created the attraction, joined Black Diamond Marine Equipment, Inc., the company that leased it the barge, and against Kindra Lake Towing, L.P., the owner of the vessel, in each filing counter claims against the other over the incident.

Kindra brought the first action in April, asking a judge to absolve it of liability in the incident.

Kindra had leased the barge to Black Diamond, which in turn leased it to Foundation. Both leases were so-called "demise charters," under which those chartering the vessel take on full responsibility for the vessel — according to court documents, the charter stops just short of complete transfer of ownership.

Foundation also entered into a separate contract with Black Diamond and Kindra to move the barge to and from Navy Pier and to provide necessary moorings, court documents state. Only when it arrived, the barge did not have a proper fender to protect the pier wall and therefore it was not properly secured to the pier, causing it to slam repeatedly into the pier wall for about a week, causing damage to both the barge and the pier.

Kindra later oversaw installation of a new fender and again secured the barge to the pier, but did not inspect it for damage, according to court documents.

In its suit, Foundation claimed that Black Diamond leased a vessel that was not seaworthy and failed to take adequate precautions to prevent damage to the barge. U.S. District Judge Thomas M. Durkin granted Black Diamond's motion to dismiss three counts and one paragraph of a fourth count in Foundation's complaint, all of which related to the vessel's seaworthiness.

In his opinion, Durkin cited a section of the lease agreement that specifically states Black Diamond made no warranty as to the vessel's condition and that Foundation agreed to give up any right "to make any claim of any kind against [Black Diamond] under any theory whatsoever (including without limitation theories of negligence, unseaworthiness, or breach of warranty)."

The court said that "Foundation waived the claims against Black Diamond that Black Diamond seeks to dismiss. Specific waivers precisely mirror Foundation's allegations that Black Diamond breached the 'implied warranty of seaworthiness,' made misrepresentations with respect to the barge's 'seaworthiness,' and was negligent so as to render the barge 'unseaworthy.'"

Because Kindra had leased the boat to Black Diamond and not directly to Foundation, the waivers contained in the agreement between Black Diamond and Foundation do not apply, the court wrote. But, Kindra argued, the same lack of a contract with Kindra should mean Foundation's implied warranty, misrepresentation, and negligence claims do not apply either. Durkin agreed to dismiss the count alleging a breach of implied warranty of seaworthiness, but held that the misrepresentation and negligence claims are tort actions "for which a lack of direct contractual relationship between the parties is not a defense."

Durkin wrote that Foundation could attempt to "cure the deficiencies" in its claims and file an amended complaint by Dec. 11.

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

The premiere and after-party for the much-anticipated -- and dreaded -- Spike Lee movie "Chi-Raq" was held last week, and I got the scoop on the exciting night from attendee Liz Crokin, the award-winning author of the book, "Malice." Crokin, who divides her time between here and L.A., was in town hosting a charity ride at SoulCycle in Old Town for the organization Rape Victim Advocates. The ride happened to fall on the same day as the "Chi-Raq" premiere, and because she'd heard "a lot of good things about Spike Lee's new film," Crokin wanted to make sure she was there. The premiere was held at the Chicago Theatre and Paramount Events held the after-party at the Chicago Cultural Center.

Liz Crokin, right, with Rachel Haley of Paramount Events and actor D.B. Sweeney, who plays "Mayor McCloud" in the film.

"As a Chicago native who started her journalism career covering crime in Chicago, I'm very passionate about Chicago's violence and happy that this film is bringing attention to this problem," said Crokin. "I used to work the overnight shift at the Tribune's City News wire service and I found myself covering gang-related shootings nightly. That was over 10 years ago and the violence has only gotten worse."

The premiere started off a little rocky, Crokin said. There wasn't enough staff checking in guests and the line was around the block. People were waiting out in the freezing cold, and the movie started more than an hour late. Yet Spike Lee apologized profusely and no one seemed to mind, she said.

The movie was "entertaining, funny, and had a lot of satire," Crokin said.

"However, with that being said, I thought it glamorized the crime in Chicago and didn't accurately portray how bad the violence is in Chicago," she said. "But it wasn't a documentary, so people should expect the film to have that Hollywood factor, which it sure does."

"The whole audience seemed to love the film," said Crokin. "The theater was filled with laughter and cheers."

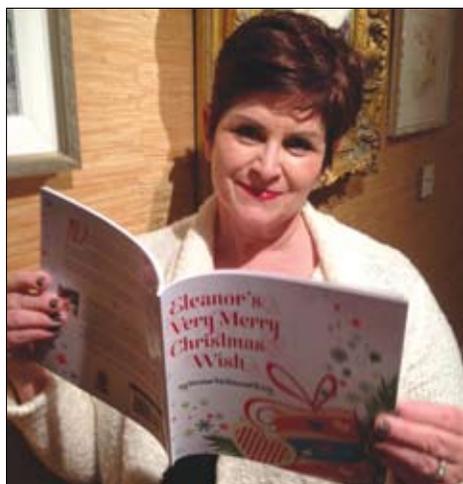

The after-party at the Chicago Cultural Center was a huge success. Paramount Events did a great job, Crokin said.

"They had a full open bar, delicious appetizers and a high energy DJ playing some old school hip hop music," she said. "Stars like Nick Cannon and D.B. Sweeney were dancing up a storm and Spike Lee took over the deejay booth a few times."

The night didn't go over without one party faux pas, however.

"Someone spilled a glass of red wine on Nick Cannon but all and all it was a fabulous event!" reported Crokin.

fashioned Christmas story sure to brighten any child's holiday season. "Eleanor's Very Merry Christmas Wish." The premise of the book is that, although she loves her magical, wonderful family and home at the North Pole, Eleanor's wish is for a best friend and home of her own.

"The book came about several years ago after I witnessed a very determined girl visiting Santa," said McGowan Tracy, who is also the producer and co-host of Petterino's Monday Night Live, a popular, impromptu musical showcase held downtown at Petterino's Restaurant every Monday. "She was very clear, crisp and direct with what she wanted and what she did NOT. I laughed a bit, leaned in to my friend and said, 'How'd you like to be the toy that gets that kid?' That sparked the idea of a toy wishing for a kid and from there my storytelling began."

McGowan Tracy, who lives on the Gold Coast, printed 100 copies three years ago and gave them out to family and friends. She wanted something, "old-fashioned with a bit of a lilt to it," and Eleanor was the first name that really resonated with her (she said her respect for Mrs. Roosevelt may have also played into it).

Eleanor's wish, said McGowan Tracy, relates to both the young and the old.

"The wonders of Christmas are magical and the desire for all of us to have a warm, loving home is universal," said McGowan Tracy. "I hope parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles will take the time to read her story aloud to a special child this Christmas season. A roaring fire in the fireplace and hot cocoa are optional."

The 34-page book is available on Amazon and at eleanorwish.com for $10.95 for soft cover, $18.95 for hardcover, and $4.99 for an e-book.

Giving made easy ... There are so many ways, big and small, to give this holiday season and one of them is at the North Dearborn Association's 22nd Annual 'Joy of Toys' Holiday Toy Drive, 1 to 3:30 p.m. Dec. 5, at Mario's Table, 21 W. Goethe St. Gifts will be collected for kids attending George Manierre School and the Catherine Ferguson Child Parent Center.

The afternoon features food, spirits, music, and gift wrapping -- and is made entirely possible thanks to the generosity of Mario Stefanini - owner of Mario's Table -- who provides the space, food, and holiday cheer, year after year.

Admission is free but requires a new, unwrapped gift valued at $20 for a child three to 10-years-old. Suggested gifts include dolls, sports equipment, action figures, games and remote controlled toys (with batteries included), but please avoid items requiring a computer or other hardware, toy guns, oversized toys, and strictly educational or religious-themed items.

All are welcome at Mario's Table, said Carol Truesdell, an emeritus NDA board member who sits on the organization's

Science, Dancing at the Breakthrough Ball

By Ann Gerber

On Saturday, November 14, 2015, The University of Chicago Cancer Research Foundation Women's Board together with Hartmann's of Copenhagen and Ralph Lauren hosted the 49th Annual Grand Auction Gala "The Breakthrough Ball" at the Four Seasons Hotel.

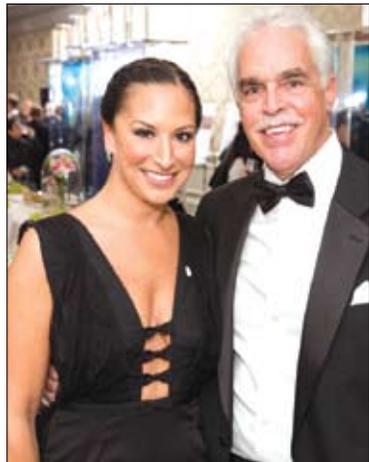

"The Breakthrough Ball" paid special tribute to the Ralph Lauren Corporation with the Partners in Discovery for their extreme generosity and commitment to the University of Chicago Medicine Comprehensive Cancer Center. The Four Seasons ballroom was transformed into a chic and elegant science laboratory.

Over $1,125,000 was raised and the celebration continued as guests danced the night away to the melodies of the Becca Kauffman Orchestra.

Cynthia Cherskin is the President of the Women's Board. Annette Carroll and Annemette Clausen are the Co-Chairs of the 49th Annual Grand Auction Gala.

Theft from U.S. Postal vans

Chicago Police and the U.S. Post office are asking citizens to be on the lookout for a recent rash of thefts from US Postal Service delivery vehicles that are parked in residential neighborhoods. Entry is made by punching or prying open the vehicle doors in order to steal packages and mail. Incident details include:

One of the 4700 block of Hermitage 2:15 p.m. November 23; one on the 2100 block of W. Bal-moral 2 p.m. November 19; one on the 500 block of W. Wisconsin on November 18, approximately between 11:50 a.m. and 2:00 p.m.; one on the 2300 block of W. Byron on November 18, between 1:15 p.m. and 1:45 p.m.; one on the 1900 block of S. May 9:30 a.m. September 23, and one on the 1600 block of N. Oakley 1:30 p.m. September 21.

In the incident on the 1900 block of S. May, the offender is described as a male Hispanic, approximately 5'-10 tall, 200 lbs, wearing a blue baseball cap and a white shirt.

In the incident on Oakley, one suspect is described as a male Hispanic, between 30 and 35 years old, weighing 220 lbs; and the second suspect is described as a male Hispanic, between 20 and 30 years old, 5'-07" tall and 160 lbs. In the Byron incident, the offenders are described as a male white and a female white. Offenders may be driving a dark gray Honda CRV.

Police are asking anyone with information on these thefts to contact the Bureau of Detectives – Area North 312-744-8263 and Area Central 312-747-8384.

Hookah lounges growing in popularity on North Side

BY KEVIN HARMON

Marshall Meyers said he first heard of hookah lounges when he and his friend visited Las Vegas earlier this year. He said unlike most of the country, the hookah lounge is an underground endeavor here at this point and many younger people view smoking the hookah as a safer alternative to traditional smoking.

Also known as a narghile, shisha or goza, a hookah is a water pipe with a smoke chamber, a bowl, a pipe and a hose. Specially made tobacco is heated, and the smoke passes through water and is then drawn through a rubber hose to a mouthpiece.

"I've heard about it in cities like Portland, Seattle, Denver and even Atlanta where it's much more popular and less secret than it is here in Chicago," said the 25 year-old Meyers, a Lakeview resident who provides security at several Lakeview and Lincoln Park-area bars. "The first time I was smoking one a guy thought it was some sort of illegal drug. I think there is an underground presence of hookah lounges here because people don't know what to make of them and wonder if it's illegal."

And Meyers and others think it's a safer and trendier way to smoke without really smoking.

In recent years, there has been an increase in hookah use around the world, most notably among youth and college students. The Monitoring the Future survey found that in 2014, about 23% of 12th grade students in the U.S. had used hookahs in the past year, up from 17% in 2010.

In 2014, this rate was slightly higher among boys (25%) than girls (21%). The Center for Disease Control's National Youth Tobacco Survey found that from 2013 to 2014, hookah smoking roughly doubled for middle and high school students in the U.S. Current hookah use among high school students rose from 5.2% (770,000) to 9.4% (1.3 million) and for middle school students from 1.1% (120,000) to 2.5% (280,000) over this period.

"What are you smoking dude?," was the reaction Meyers said he got from one person who saw him using it in the bathroom of an area nightclub recently. "I told him that I thought it was safer than smoking cigarettes, even though I didn't have all the facts," Meyers added.

Officials say don't let the fancy rigging and growing popularity fool you, smoking a hookah is just as dangerous as any other kind of smoking. Popular in the Middle East, Western Europe and Northern Africa, transplants from those areas have brought the water pipe contraption into mainstream America, more specifically to urban cities like Chicago.

It may be a water pipe and the tobacco may be flavored, and it may be socially trendy, but according to public health officials, it's hardly safe.

"There are some negative effects of smoking a hookah and people need to be informed about this," says former smoker and assistant professor of public health at the Univ. of Wisconsin's Jane Taylor-Ross, a former Loyola student and associate professor. "You are inhaling stuff that you probably didn't bargain for when you picked up a hookah in the first place."

Studies estimate that in a typical session, which usually lasts at least 45-60 minutes, you can inhale about 10 times as much carbon monoxide, 40 times as much tar and 30 times as many of some carcinogens as from a single cigarette.

Additionally, just two hours in a hookah lounge can cause nausea, headaches and dizziness in some smokers and even in non-smokers just hanging out.

That's what happened to Meyers' 20-something friend, who got sick just being in the presence of the hookah smokers at an Andersonville underground hookah lounge on Clark St.

"Talk about second hand smoke, I felt like I was getting high although the smoke wasn't as bothersome of regular cigarettes," said Chris Frey, a South Loop hairstylist living in Lakeview. "After a while, I had to get out of there and I was only in there in the first place because I got curious."

According to Taylor-Ross, the nausea, headache and dizziness come from the carbon monoxide emanating from the hookah's charcoal, which even the tobacco-free kind contains. The fact that the smell isn't offensive disarms some people, she says.

A study in Nicotine and Tobacco Research found that even occasionally smoking a tobacco-free hookah can impair recovery of your lung cells, which can contribute to future lung diseases. Another concern is that hookah pipes used in hookah bars and cafes may not be cleaned properly, risking the spread of infectious diseases. Sharing a pipe can also increase your risk of the common cold and even more serious diseases, such as Tuberculosis.

Frey said she has friends, mostly in their 20s, who think these alternative forms of smoking like e-cigarettes and hookahs are the way of the future and don't cause as much potential damage to the body long-term, since the tobacco isn't real. She said she's a little more cautious as to what she puts in her body.

"I don't know what's so socially cool about smoking these alternative things anyway and studies are coming out all the time that smoking in any form is bad for you, even if you think something might not be as bad for you," she said. "I've seen these hookah lounges popping up all over the place, too and look at it as the most recent fad. I think when some people hear about some of the possible side effects, they'll back away from it."

DOORMEN from p. 2

Park Tower Plaza. I don't know if Antonio ever delivered the baby, but I know that he is a caring and kind person.

He works the red-eye shift that means from midnight to 8-9 in the morning and always over the weekend. He is there late at night to greet us after we are coming back from having a good time out, and he is there in the late morning when we go for coffee. Always smiling, ready with quick joke and helping hand. I told him once how much we appreciate his working so hard, such brutal hours and he said he was doing it for his little daughter. There could not be better reason.

Mike Burger at 175 N. Harbor Dr. is definitely the best doorman I've dealt with. He has helped on more occasions than I can count. He is always professional and courteous. I would define him as trustworthy and reliable. I don't know of any problem he has been unable to solve. If he says "I'll take care of it" or "I will make it happen," you can guarantee it will be done. Peace of mind is priceless!

Every okay doorman is okay in the same way. Every great doorman is great in his or her own distinctive way (see first sentence, Anna Karenina).

A case in point, Ivan Knight, second generation doorman, 1240 LSD: Comes to work on time with a briefcase; very attentive to the special needs of his elderly parents; an admirable citizen active in the social and political activities of his community; a father who has educated all four of his children; a former SIU athlete who, sports savvy, will on appropriate occasions wear his Cubs or Blackhawks jersey at work and will send you upstairs to your own t.v. to watch the final few exciting minutes of a basketball, football, or baseball game.

But my special reason for naming Ivan a great doorman: He allows me to break a few severe family rules.

My wife of 55 years, Carroll, sets very strict limits on what we can eat. No dark greens (they thin the blood), no tasty seeds (they cause colon problems), no salty foods (they raise blood pressure), and, of course, no rich pastries or sweets (let's avoid diabetes). But Carroll's commitment to Ivan's responsible, mature good judgment will sometimes allow me special dispensation in my interactions with him.

Thus, if I bring home from Water Tower six whole wheat edamame baos, Ivan will eagerly take three and allow me three for myself. Similarly, if I bring home packages of sunflower seeds from Trader Joe's or trail mix from Treasure Island, Ivan will enthusiastically allot me a small portion and accept the rest for himself. And, if I bring home (did I lose my mind?) from Macy's a box of Toffee Frangos, Ivan will judiciously and circumspectly allow me to choose four pieces for my repast and confiscate the rest in the drawer in his front desk.

Being a senior citizen, who is mobile but walks with a cane, he is particularly conscious of helping me. Tony will stop what he is doing to walk me to the heavy interior doors, unlock them, and see me through. He is always there to open a car door and see that I'm settled. I keep telling him that he is spoiling me in my old age. I am privileged to live in a building where our doormen take such good care of me.

So, dear Ivan, thank you for your discipline and concern. Hail, fellow. I salute you. You are truly a Doorman Worthy. Bon Appetite.

Our High-Rise has the most thoughtful doormen. It is hard to pick one, but I nominate our Head Doorman, Tony McMullen.

Our building is located on a busy street with many trucks and deliveries coming in and out. Tony handles not only the building, but also the parking area and driveways that surround the buildings.

Tony is the go-to-guy who handles anything you need and answers any questions you have. It is a busy place containing 200 condos. He greets everyone warmly and sees they are taken care of. He often serves as a liaison for us to the management office and parking garage.

Being a senior citizen, who is mobile but walks with a cane, he is particularly conscious of helping me. Tony will stop what he is doing to walk me to the heavy interior doors, unlock them, and see me through. He is always there to open a car door and see that I'm settled. I keep telling him that he is spoiling me in my old age. I am privileged to live in a building where our doormen take such good care of me.

We would like to nominate Bruce Peters of Harbor House Condominiums for the award of best doorman.

Bruce has worked here for over 25 years and has seen the population of our condo change from the elderly to young adults.

In the 10 years since we have been a resident here he has served this community with kindness, sensitivity and courtesy and we have never seen anything else from him. He is friendly and helpful to the residents, our guests and the various work people who come through.

We would like to relate an incident involving Bruce that happened several years back. During a July heat wave the sidewalk buckled injuring water and electrical lines and leaving our building without light, water, working toilets, elevators or air conditioning for a few days.

On Sunday of this very uncomfortable period a knock came on our door. Standing outside was Bruce with a big bag of ice, bottled water and the Sunday New York Times newspaper that had been delivered to his desk instead of our door. We had no idea that Bruce was even working that day much less that he would take it upon himself to walk up 26 flights of stairs to bring us the best gift anyone could ask for. You can imagine how grateful we were to Bruce for such a kind and thoughtful gesture.

Over the years it has always been a very welcoming time when we walk in and Bruce is waiting with a smile and a kind word. We know he will probably be retiring in the next few years and his leaving would put a real hole in our lives. He has become a constant and true friend to the residents of Harbor House for over two generations and we cannot think of anyone more deserving of this award than Bruce.

I am writing you to tell you all six of our doormen are great at North Harbor Tower. We here are so blessed to have them this is what amazes me about them:

Jose Cordova- I am old and my health is deteriorating and whenever I need help in my unit, Jose always and are more than willing to help me. My husband is sick with heart and other problems, so he is weak and cannot carry or push items in our unit. I love Jose for being so thoughtful and I am blessed to have him here.

James Gruca- Is a holiday man, every time here at North Harbor Tower he dresses up like me in holiday attire. James amazes me with his personality and wit. I love him.

Mike Burger- Is Mr. Personally, everybody talks their personal problems over with Mike. I love him too and he is very confidential with matters. We here at North Harbor Tower are blessed to have him here.

David Lee- No matter what the season or what time of day it is, David is our doorman. He is always there and never not ever opened the door for everyone. I always see him at peoples cars picking up something and putting it on the cart, as do the other doorman, but David is exceptional and we here at North Harbor Tower are blessed to have him here.

Jose Eslava- Has been here at North Harbor Tower since the beginning. Jose knows everyone and talks to everyone. He makes my mornings. I could never come from my unit without speaking to Jose. Every morning he has coffee with our painters or Maintenance staff and bosses.

Leo Perez- Our doorman during the day, well I am mostly at work, but he too is great like all our other doorman and yes, I love him too and we at North Harbor Tower are blessed to have him here too!

All our doormen are great.

Torrence Pulley is an exceptional doorman. He always has great energy, something nice to say and a smile for everyone, but he also goes above and beyond for the residents of 345 W. Fullerton Pkwy. About a month ago, I had an absolutely terrible day and began to cry as soon as I entered the empty elevator in my building. When I got to my apartment, I received a call from downstairs and it was Torrence - he must have seen me bawling like a baby on the security cameras because he doesn't miss anything. He asked if I was OK, if there was anything he could do, and allowing me to vent about my problems.

Torrence not only keeps us safe and has an eye on everything in the building, he offers his kindness and support in times of trouble. Please consider him for Inside Booster's Best Doorman Contest.

I would like to nominate my Doorman

"woman," Willie Etta Fultz. Willie Etta has been assisting us and securing our building for seven years. In all that time she has never failed to greet me or any of the other owners here with a smile. She is the picture of positivity, whether it is December 1 before bonuses or February 1 in the middle of a blizzard.

Even with three children she works the worst hours. If the weather is bad she sees you coming, gets the cab light on, and rushes to get out in the street (rain, sleet, hail or snow) to grab the cab.

Recently, I had a friend from New York who sent me a birthday present. My friend kept calling to see if I had received the gift and when I hadn't my friend traced the package and found that it had been delivered at 8:30 p.m. one evening a couple of days earlier. I called Willie Etta and told her that the package had been delivered (not when Willie Etta was on duty) and she tracked down the doorman who had been on duty to see if he remembered the delivery, which he did. Even though I was home when the delivery was made, the doorman on duty put the package in a location that Willie Etta knew was only for our mailman to retrieve return packages. She continued to call me and give me updates as the evening went on and she figured out that the mailman had picked up the package by mistake. Sure enough, the next day the mailman returned the package which he had taken as per usual.

I don't think service personnel realize that it's not the obligatory hello or a one word response like "No, I haven't seen your package," but Willie Etta's response of "I haven't seen your package but I will look for it"—it's the extra mile, going above and beyond. She is the model. She looks up from her desk to greet you, she knows your family.

It is a pleasure to bring to your attention Mr. David Gantland who works as a doorman at 1325 N. State Pkwy. I have lived in buildings with doormen in Chicago for over 20 years now (this is my sixth building) and I can attest without qualification that of the literally dozens of doorman I have known over this period Mr. Gantland rises to the top of a most professional list.

While I have known some less capable figures over these years (such as the fellow who gave the only spare key to a cleaner who was not authorized to enter my unit) on the whole Chicago doormen are a professional and consistent group. Even in this august company Mr. Gantland stands out.

He arrives literally an hour before his (7 a.m. to 3 p.m.) shift starts every-single-day in order to attend to various tasks - delivering packages or dry cleaning to residence units, or working with the building engineers on any outstanding maintenance issues.

The only reason I know this is that, being an early riser myself I occasionally see him making his rounds and attending to the house's and residents' needs.

Of course he knows every residents' name and addresses them clearly and politely; he also knows their interests and needs in such a way that things are ready and waiting, rather than asked for upon arrival.

One of the powerful signs of Mr. Gantland's abilities is that it all appears so seamless. And only 20 years of observing other, less qualified, individuals has given me the ability to see how much work, attention to detail and careful professionalism Mr. Gantland possesses.

He may not have foiled a stick up or delivered a baby, but then again, given his attention to detail and careful planning, I can well imagine he would have arranged things so well that he wouldn't have to engage in such emergency measures as he has already smoothed things over such that they would be taken care of in their appropriate and proper order. He is a superlative doorman and one well worthy of consideration as a prizeworthy Best Doorman.

DOORMEN from p. 8

Gruca literally saved my life. Unconscious I, had wandered from the 18th floor to the lobby. Face/lips white, (hemoglobin 6), black eyes, red spider veins, swollen head. It didn't rattle James.

Though he thought I was dying, he calmly took charge, laid me on the sofa, touchingly put his winter coat over me so I wouldn't go into shock and quickly called an ambulance. The rest is history. Ten days in ICU all verifiable at Northwestern.

This is just one of the daily gifts from James. He is excellent at focusing in on the question of the moment, making each of us feel special, while multitasking and taking in everything in his sphere and addressing issues immediately. He calls us all by first name, loans books to book lovers, takes care of heavy loads, treats for dogs and all the extras not necessarily seen in a doorman (like bringing me yellow roses on my one year anniversary event).

James Gruca is our "go to" man in this "we all need help" world.

It is my great honor to nominate Willie Miles as the best doorman in the city. Willie loves everyone and everyone loves him. He is the friendly, funny and caring "grandpa" to the young children in the building, helper to the elderly and "best friend" to everyone in between.

I have lived at 77 E. Walton for three years and there has never been a day when he didn't have one eye on the monitors and the other with you as he helps you unload packages from your car. He is always there with a smile and ready to help with whatever you need.

He always goes the extra mile and expects nothing in return. The building runs very smoothly and Willie is definitely one of the major reasons why. If there is a better more conscientious doorman in the city I would like to meet him. I'm glad to have him in my building but, more importantly, I'm glad to call him my friend.

He may not have delivered a baby or rescued anyone from a burning unit, but at 1515 N. Astor, Henry Negrón is our Superman.

As our realtor told us when we looked here, "The unit is nice, but most people buy here because of Henry." She was right. Family, friends, neighbors even the local police love Henry. Henry also recruited his two brother-in-laws and a nephew to work here while his son visits daily. Everyone wants to be with Henry, he is the Mayor of Astor St.

Henry started here at age 18. He is now in his 42nd year of unwavering service, always with an infectious smile and terrific disposition.

Forty-two years of going the extra distance, walking in the rain to hail a cab, spending his free time driving folks to the doctor or for groceries. For Henry, nothing is a problem.

Henry is your man. Granted one brave feat is amazing, but 42 years is remarkable. We are thankful Henry isn't thinking of retiring.

I would like to nominate Bruce Peters from Harbor House as best doorman. Bruce has been with us for 23 years. He was able to help introduce us to the building,

I am sure Tyrone has bad days just like the rest of us, but you'd never know it. When Tyrone says hello, it is as if you are the only thing that matters to him at that moment. And I don't think you can fake this attitude every day. It is genuine.

its residents, and the rules and regulations in a way management could not.

Bruce is extremely helpful, discrete, remembers all of the residents, friends of residents, typically goes above and beyond what one would expect (standing outside in freezing rain to hail a cab on a day when few are available and all of the buildings' taxi lights are on, helping provide dignified care in removing deceased residents with unusual cultural or religious preferences, mourning the loss of an animal with a bereft resident). He is kind, respectful and thoughtful towards all. He brings a feeling of peace and welcome to all residents and visitors even during extensive renovations.

I am nominating Tyrone Williams of 1440 N. Lake Shore Dr. as the best doorman for your competition.

I don't know if Tyrone has ever delivered a baby at work, or stopped an assault (I am sure he could do both).

Your article talks about doorman being respected members of our family. Tyrone is what families should strive to be. He acknowledges everyone by name, is always cheerful and smiling, will help anytime with packages - and not just open the door; he'll take them upstairs.

I am sure Tyrone has bad days just like the rest of us, but you'd never know it. When Tyrone says hello, it is as if you are the only thing that matters to him at that moment. And I don't think you can fake this attitude every day. It is genuine.

Tyrone is always a positive spot in my day. I think he would be a great model as doorman of the year.

I nominate Thaddeus Rounds as the Best Doorman anywhere, but in particular, on the North Side at 3900 N. Lake Shore Dr. Condominium.

I became the Property Manager for 3900 LSD in February and within three months recommended the promotion of Thaddeus to Head Doorman due to his incredible work ethic, high standards and professionalism.

Thaddeus rarely sits down. He is always jumping up to open the door for our residents, guests, vendors, contractors and staff. Thaddeus takes his job very seriously, but is always polite and smiling. Thaddeus is not afraid of hard work and helps out whenever necessary without being asked.

We are in the process of getting new uniforms for the Door Staff, however, Thaddeus' appearance and attire are impeccable. His white shirts are cleaned and pressed, his shoes are shined and there is no lint on his black suit. He never has a stain on him; he looks like he should be on the red carpet.

Thaddeus has helped many residents over the years on his own time. They love him! I am proud and honored to work with Thaddeus Rounds and believe he deserves to be awarded Best Doorman.

For doorman of the year, I nominate Anthony Pulliam, doorman extraordinaire, who now works at 1300 N. Lake Shore Dr.

A big smile and greeting, welcoming words and a helping hand to take my heavy work bag and call the elevator for me every single evening when I come home.

Plus more:

He identified a resident having a stroke when she called the doorman for help.

He identified the live in boyfriend of an unsuspecting female resident as a rapist who had been terrorizing the neighborhood a few years ago.

He has taken residents to the airport for free.

He has helped a resident with MS who never asked for help, but greatly appreciated his gracious and unobtrusive way of providing it.

He is definitely the doorman of the year in my book and many others.

If you were to envision the perfect doorman for your building, you would surely think of someone strong and powerful. He is, after all, the first defense against unwanted intruders.

Bruce Peters is 6', 4" tall, and built like a football player, not someone an unwanted visitor would want to mess with.

You would envision someone reliable. For 23 years, the residents of Harbor House have relied on Bruce Peters to keep them safe. You would envision someone who knows the rules and enforces them, but with a sensible approach, not authoritarian.

The doorman you envision would have a liking for and desire to help people.

While many doormen sit at their desks while a resident attempts to hail a cab, Bruce steps out of his comfort and, in the worst of weather, takes over the job and, believe me, the cabbies spot him! He always has a smile and a kind word. He notices when you are struggling to open the door. He is such an asset to our building.

While I'd love to see Bruce honored by winning this award, I do hope no one tries to steal him from us after reading his reviews!

Willie loves everyone and everyone loves him. He is the friendly, funny and caring "grandpa" to the young children in the building, helper to the elderly and "best friend" to everyone in between.

I think Glenn Wagner of 1340 N. Astor is the best doorman on the North Side. He is always pleasant with a ready smile and greeting, he keeps the lobby extraordinarily clean, he helps with groceries and other packages daily.

When my elderly mother became wheelchair bound and could no longer make it up the five stairs to the building herself, Glenn helped my husband lift her in the chair both up and down the stairs (she was 160 lbs. at this point).

I had a terrible cabby one day who was smoking and never turned on his meter. (I did not notice because I was rushing home from work due to my mother being ill.) When we got to my apartment, I told him he did not have the meter on but I take this route every day so here is $8. He began to argue with me in a very aggressive way and told me I owed more. I said I did not and yelled back. He turned around and stared in my face, I got out and went into my lobby. They cab driver was still staring at me from the driveway. I explained to Glenn. He went out (Glenn is very physically fit) and asked the driver if there was a problem he could help with. They driver said no and drove away. Whew!

I nominate James Gruca of 175 N. Harbor Tower. We have wonderful doormen in our build-

Film screening shows response to 2012 Wisconsin hate crime

A free screening of the film "Waking in Oak Creek" will be held at 6 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10, in the lower level of the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St.

The movie documents the community response to the Aug. 5, 2012, hate attack by a white supremacist who fatally shot six Sikh worshipers in Oak Creek, Wisc.

A panel discussion will take place after the screening. Panelists include film producer and award-winning media producer Patrice O'Neill; Pardeep Kaleka, the eldest son of Satwant Singh Kaleka — the president of the Sikh Temple in Wisconsin who was gunned down during the attack; Center for New Community advocacy director Kalia Abiade; award-winning diversity professional, social justice facilitator and performance artist Precious Davis; Chicago Police Department Sgt. Lori Cooper; and Oak Creek, Wisc., Mayor Stephen Scaffidi.

Numerous DVD copies of the film will be available for check-out at neighborhood branches throughout the city. For more information call 312-747-4050.

Library presents holiday concerts

The Chicago Public Library [CPL] continues its annual Holiday Concert Series in December.

The lineup features performances by some of the Chicago's high school and university choirs and the Chicago Bar Association's Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, as well as "The Sinatra Centennial" program marking the 100th anniversary of the birth of Frank Sinatra.

The free concerts take place on select weekdays at 12:15 p.m., starting on Tuesday and continuing through Thursday, Dec. 17. All concerts will be held either in the lower level or in the ninth-floor winter garden of the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St.

On Tuesday, the Lincoln Park High School Chamber singers will perform in the lower level, led by choral music director Timothy R. Cooper.

On Wednesday, Dec. 9, the Hubbard High School Advanced Honors Choir will perform in the lower level, led by director of choirs Sharon Quattrin.

On Thursday, Dec. 10, the Chicago Bar Association Symphony Orchestra and Chorus will perform in the lower level, led by conductor Michael D. Pouloz and choral director Rebecca Patterson.

On Monday, Dec. 14, "The Sinatra Centennial" will feature CPL music librarian Christopher Popa presenting a special 100th anniversary celebration of Frank Sinatra's birth.

On Tuesday, Dec. 15, Walter Payton College Prep High School's "Sounds of Sweetness" will perform in the Winter Garden, led by director of choirs Kathleen Johnston.

On Wednesday, Dec. 16, the Columbia College Chamber Choir will perform in the Winter Garden, led by theory and musicianship coordinator Philip Seward.

On Thursday, Dec. 17, the Robert Morris University Concert Choir will perform in the Winter Garden, led by choir director Hannah Andersen and performing arts director Michael Zarella, featuring Celize Zeunert on piano.

DOORMEN from p. 9

ing, but James surpasses them all.

When I moved in 3.5 years ago, he immediately made me feel welcome. Not only remembering my name on the first meeting and always greeting me by name, but also always engaging in conversation. He is smart, funny, and wise and has a broad range of interests so he is an excellent conversationalist.

Although fortunately, I haven't needed anything major, he has helped advise me with decorating, shown me the best spots to hang pictures, and always been ready with a suggestion on where to eat or what to do. When I mentioned I was looking for a lamp, he immediately notified me when someone was moving and he thought that lamp might work for me. He also helped me locate other tenants I could give furniture to when I was redecorating.

When I am away, he notices, and asks about it. As a single woman I feel safer because he is there. I know of one of my neighbors with Stage 4 breast cancer... he has taken her over to Northwestern, shared meals with her, and helped her move in furniture she found in a resale shop. He makes sure that if he hasn't seen her that day, he checks in on her. For another neighbor when she moved in, he made sure that she met other single women and dog lovers. Many of us, when we talk about what we love about our building, the first thing anyone mentions is James.

I don't feel this does him justice, but I feel one of the best things about 175 N. Harbor is walking in and seeing James.

Tony McMullen has been the doorman at 345 W. Fullerton Pkwy. for many years, and he is the main reason I am still living here.

When we moved here in 2001, my husband's Parkinson's Disease was getting worse. Tony welcomed us with his legendary warmth, responsiveness and competence. As my husband's health severely declined and then when he was moved to a nursing home, Tony was always there with help and encouragement.

He remains so helpful and solicitous now that I am a grandma living alone with my own health problems. He knows how to get things done and always reaches out to other staff and management. Tony is the model of what a courteous gentleman should be, one who cares for people and is supremely conscientious at performing his job.

I have resided in Harbor House for 24 years. A few months after

William consistently displays consideration for residents and staff members; for example, on numerous occasions he has changed resident's flat tires off shift, as well as walking children to school in the parents absence off shift. He is always conscious of his surroundings and has aided elderly residents from falling.

I moved-in, Bruce Peters began working for Harbor House, as a doorman.

During all this time, Bruce has been responsive to my needs. In 1995 I had multiple brain surgeries; and, as a result, sometimes I have had some problems. Whenever Bruce saw a problem occurring, he quietly sat me down, returned to his job (while watching me) and made sure I was O.K., to go on my way.

During the 23-24 years I have known Bruce Peters as a Harbor House doorman, he has always been helpful. Pleasant goes without saying. Bruce just made living in Harbor House easier.

William Turpin works at 900 N. Lake Shore Dr. Although I don't have an incredible story to share such as knowing William to have delivered a baby or stop a crime in process, I'm certain that if he was presented with such a situation, he would act immediately by saving the day. What I can say and what I believe to make him worthy of this nomination is that he's not just a doorman, but a friend to the tenants whose consistent cheerful demeanor makes coming or leaving home feel safe and warm.

I base my opinion on seeing him mainly on Sundays, so quality speaks volumes. He's also a caring father of two boys and a friend to many. William takes his job seriously and you get the sense he enjoys being there. I have never seen him be less than cheerful, when he interacts with you even for a brief moment you feel the sincerity of his actions, he's not just going through the motions. His cheery smile is worth a thousand words.

William consistently displays consideration for residents and staff members; for example, on numerous occasions he has changed resident's flat tires off shift, as well as walking children to school in the parents absence off shift. He is always conscious of his surroundings and has aided elderly residents from falling.

In addition to his acts of kindness, William is extremely ethical, he does not let friendships with fellow employees cloud his judgment when someone is not fulfilling their duties as a doorman. He is very knowledgeable in regards to the employee handbook and does not hesitate to correct his fellow staff members when they seem misinformed.

He is very well liked by the residents and respected by staff. He is knowledgeable about the buildings architectural history, which is very important given that it is a Mies Van Der Rohe building. He will take on any task, for example he has worked as security during a riser project for a month whilst still fulfilling his doorman duties.

I would like to nominate Dwight Jones from our building at 400 E. Ohio St. as the best doorman. He is a wonderful addition to our building.

He is helpful, considerate and kind. He especially helps the elderly. I have a problem entering and exiting cars and he is always there to help me. He treats us all with respect and I feel safe when he is there. I know he will do all he can to assist in any problem, it is the way he is.

Our doorman Geru Martin goes above and beyond expectations to assist the residents of 1310 N. Ritchie Ct. cope with all sorts of problems.

In addition to announcing guests, fetching taxis, providing shopping carts to arrivals in the garage, and even assisting funeral directors with the removal of the deceased, Mr. Martin once helped put a pre-dawn fire in the building's garbage chute out before the firemen arrived.

A resident dropped a hot and greasy item from the microwave that was on fire down into the garbage chute. Within minutes the fire reached several floors and smoke spread throughout the stairwells. When Mr. Martin became aware of the fire, he quickly contacted the handyman on duty, who immediately succeeded in putting out the fire with a fire extinguisher before the fire department arrived.

The fire burned all the telephone wires for the intercom lines, a sensor in the garbage chute melted, and one resident was hospitalized for smoke inhalation. But fortunately because of his quick thinking and fast response to the emergency, no one was seriously harmed, and far greater damage was averted. His quick thinking helped save the day, which is why I would like to honor him as best doorman.

Apple store design peeled to fit riverfront

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

As daring a design as the planned Apple retail store near Pioneer Court will have, apparently it is toned down from the original concept.

Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] says he pulled the plug on a large video screen that would have faced the Chicago River.

"Although intended for educational and tutorial purposes," said Ald. Reilly, the proposed screen "was not appropriate or established by precedent, and violated the new Riverfront Design Guidelines adopted last year."

Stairs will lead from a 14'-high glass enclosed entrance on the plaza of 401 N. Michigan Ave. down to a 20,000 square foot concourse along the river, an area that is currently a vacant food court. The 91 x 71 foot store footprint will have walls that rise 42' above the walkway along the north bank. The roof will be 20' above Pioneer

Court.

The new stairs will replace curved concrete stairs that currently lead down to the river from Michigan Ave. There will also be an elevator.

Other changes included making the structure more transparent to not block the view of the river from Pioneer Court.

The store will absorb 1,100 square feet of space that is currently open but add 4,300 square feet of public space.

It is the vision of Foster + Partners, an architectural and design firm based in London. Their work in the U.S. includes the Art of the Americas Wing at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts, Winspear Opera House in Dallas, and Hearst Tower in New York.

Zeller Realty Group, owner of 401 N. Michigan Ave. and Wrigley Building, owns the property. The area is where Chicago's first permanent resident, Jean Baptiste Pointe du Sable, built his cabin in 1790.

English on the rise among Hispanics in the city

BY KEVIN HARMON

Helena Dominquez said she wanted to set a better example for her daughter. Her struggles with minimum wage jobs as an unskilled laborer were the reasons she wanted to learn proper English.

"I learned a little bit on my own and my daughter taught me a little bit, but I knew that having a better command of the language would open up doors for me," said the Edgewater single mother of two who has been among the protesters for higher minimum wages as a McDonald's worker. "I plan to go to community college and learn some other things that will hopefully help me ensure a better future for me and my daughters."

Dominquez emigrated from Costa Rica and got out of a bad marriage and extremely low-paying job and moved in with relatives, who managed an apartment building on Sheridan just steps away from Lake Michigan. She said she's had a variety of jobs from working at a car wash, cleaning apartments and working as a cashier at Aldi's before seeking better opportunities.

This started, she figured, with becoming a U.S. citizen and learning English.

She's not alone. More Hispanics in the U.S. speak English more proficiently than ever before and fewer speak Spanish at home, a report released recently showed.

The percentage of Hispanics who speak English "very well" reached 68% in 2013, up from a low of 59% in 2000. At the same time, 73% of Hispanics report that they speak Spanish at home, down from a high of 78% in 2000, according to the Pew Research Center report.

Part of the reason for the shift is the rise in U.S.-born Hispanics, like Dominquez' daughters Lilly and Maria, who outnumbered foreign-born Hispanics 35 million to 19 million and are more likely to be raised speaking English at school and at home.

"I wanted to be able to keep up and grow with my girls," Dominquez said. "I saw the movie Spanglish and was very moved by it. I saw how the woman in the movie learned English so that she could feel more a part of society and a part of her daughter's bi-lingual life."

Spanglish, starring Paz Vega, Adam Sandler and Tea Leoni, was partially about a Mexican woman who migrated to Southern California as a single mother and tried keeping up with the world her bright and talented bi-lingual young daughter was immerse in. She was afraid that "Americanization" would leave her left behind.

"I know of so many Hispanics who come here from Mexico and all over Latin America who never learn English, who stay in their little bubble, then complain about not feeling a like a part of Chicago as a whole, and I didn't want to keep feeling like that," Dominquez said. "It's all about stepping outside of your comfort zone."

The rise in English proficiency comes as several states consider adopting English as their official language and some in Congress push to make English the national language.

Immigration from Latin America, primarily Mexico, has slowed, leading to fewer Spanish-speaking new immigrant arrivals and a more settled U.S. Hispanic immigrant population, the authors of the Pew Research Center report found.

Dominquez' aunt Melina Salazar said she's seen the increase, Hispanics are doing a better job integrating in Chicago and taking courses at the City Colleges of Chicago like Truman and Harold Washington to improve their English skills.

Widespread bilingualism has the potential to affect future generations of Latinos, a population

"What I've heard from some people is that some Hispanics want to become Americans on their own and not feel forced to assimilate. My response to that is, learning English doesn't have to mean anything like selling out who you are, it's about making a better world for yourself and your family."

that is among the fastest growing in the nation. The Pew survey showed that Latino adults valued both the ability to speak English and to speak Spanish. Fully 87% said Latino immigrants need to learn English to succeed. At the same time, nearly all (95%) said it is important for future generations of U.S. Hispanics to speak Spanish.

"I think some people see it as a necessity rather than a choice," she said. "What I've heard from some people is that some Hispanics want to become Americans on their own and not feel forced to assimilate. My response to that is, learning English doesn't have to mean anything like selling out who you are, it's about making a better world for yourself and your family."

The rise in people learning English is not just restricted to Hispanics. Eastern Europeans, more specifically Russian and Polish immigrants, have been motivated to learn English. Helena Pomona, who came to Chicago six years ago from Poland and works as a nanny for a Lincoln Park family, said she was embarrassed that when she had the chance to learn English in high school in Warsaw, she skipped it.

"It would have made my transition to the job I have right now and living here in the United States in general much easier," said Pomona, who is taking classes at Truman College. "I guess I would think that if someone was going to live and work in Poland [they would want] to learn Polish."

Meeting Tuesday on 237 E. Ontario proposal

Representatives of the Tishman Realty Corp. development team will present their proposal to the community 6 p.m. Tuesday at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel & Towers - Ballroom 9/10, 301 E. North Water St., for the development of a 24-story hotel building located at 237 E. Ontario St., containing approximately 395 rooms. There will be no parking on-site.

The site was formerly used by the MCA and has been vacant for several years. The project will include the following neighborhood enhancements: new streetscape with café seating; the replacement of existing trees in poor condition along Ontario St.; and the creation of a new on-site porte cochere with widened alley to receive valet and taxi traffic, freeing up congestion along Ontario St.

Former Intelligentsia Coffee president says he's owed $15 million from sale to Peet's

BY JONATHAN BILYK
Cook County Record

The former CEO and president of Intelligentsia Coffee says his former business partners owe him $15 million, which he said is the amount he is entitled to under his employment agreement with Intelligentsia following the company's sale to Peet's Coffee last month.

On Nov. 19, Robert Buono, a former lawyer who made a fortune in real estate development before taking over management at Intelligentsia, filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court against Intelligentsia and its cofounders, Doug Zell and Emily Mange, saying they have refused to pay him the money he is owed for his years of work at their home grown North Side company.

The complaint centers on the sale of Intelligentsia to Peet's, which was announced Oct. 30. According to the complaint, published reports indicated Peet's paid $100 million for the Chicago coffee house chain.

Buono said his relationship with Intelligentsia dates back to its founding in the mid-1990s, when Zell, a longtime friend, approached him for help getting the coffee house business venture he had begun with Mange, who was then Zell's wife, off the ground.

According to the complaint, Buono's services to Intelligentsia at the time included helping Zell and Mange incorporate the business and negotiating the first lease for the coffee house's first location on N. Broadway in Chicago.

However, Buono became involved with Intelligentsia's management in 2010 when he was first approached by the company's then-CFO, Cara Miller to consider stepping into a leadership role to help what Buono portrayed as a floundering business regain its footing.

“Indeed, while the company's gross revenues were large, its profitability was small,” Buono's complaint said. “Much of the cause of this disarray lay with the personal situations of its founders.”

Those “situations,” which included a pending divorce between Zell and Mange, often led the company's senior leadership to be “absent from the company for long periods of time” and left them “generally not communicating with each other,” and “unable to deal with the mounting operational challenges.”

In 2011, Buono said he agreed to work as the company's co-CEO and president, and undertake the task of reorganizing the company and instituting a number of reforms to improve business practices and restore profitability, a series of tasks for which the “breadth and scope... was obvious a tall order,” Buono's lawyers say.

Since the company would not be able to pay him what he believed his time and labor were worth, Buono agreed to work for a share of the company's profits. The agreement spelled out Buono's interest would be fully vested in two stages: in August 2013, should he remain in his position until then, and at the time a majority stake in the company would be sold.

Essentially, that agreement entitled him to 15% of Intelligentsia's sale to Peet's, the complaint said.

Buono said he upheld his end of the deal, improving Intelligentsia's business and growing profits by 61%, resulting in a series of purported inquiries from others who wished to either invest in the business or acquire it. But some of his decisions were unpopular within the company, such as firing long-time employees who Buono alleged could not perform as required under the new system he implemented, and led to clashes with other members of the company's leadership. And ultimately, they fired Buono in July 2014.

However, following his termination, company leadership still acknowledged Buono's interest and stake in the company, listing him as one of the owners entitled to 15% profits interest.

Yet, following the sale to Peet's, Intelligentsia's leadership has not paid up, Buono said, which amounts to violations of state wage law and breach of contract.

For these alleged violations, Buono has asked for compensatory damages of at least $15 million, as well damages of at least $50,000 under the wage law, plus two percent of the alleged underpayment for each month “during which such underpayments remain unpaid.” He has requested a jury trial.

Holiday art contest for local high school students

Inside Publications is once again holding our holiday art contest for high school students.

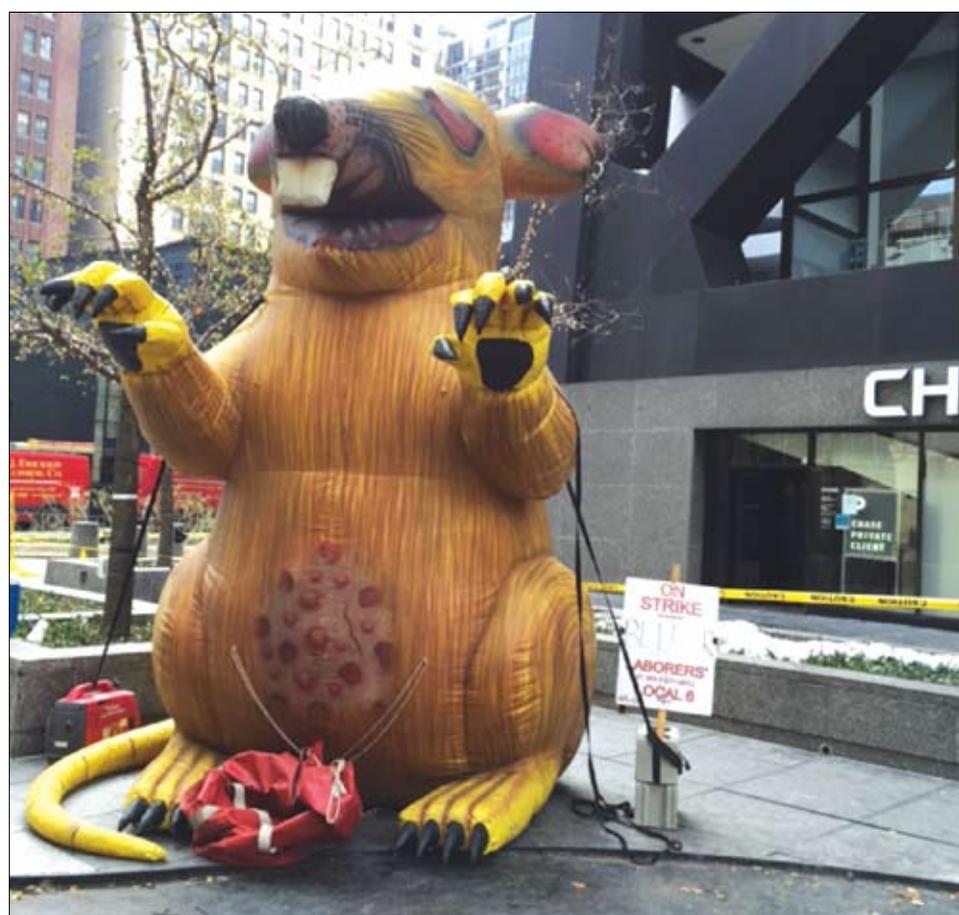

Students should hand-draw on an 8 1/2-x-11-inch vertical white piece of paper, in black ink. Submit a drawing of a North Side landmark with a holiday twist or theme. The student's name, age, telephone number, high school name, and year in school should be on the back, not front, of each drawing. Sorry, but computer artwork is not eligible.

The first place drawing will grace the cover of Inside's holiday issues for the Skyline, News-Star and Inside-Booster community newspapers on December 23, 2015.

The top artist will receive $100. Drawings by runners up will also be published on inside pages of the newspaper and will also receive recognition and prizes.

Mail or bring the students' drawings to: Inside Publications, Holiday Art Contest, 6221 N. Clark St. Chicago, IL 60660 so they are received by noon Wednesday, Dec. 16.

Voting will take place on Dec. 17-18. If you have any questions on how you or some student you know can enter or vote, call 773-465-9700.

A giant rat made interesting holiday conversation for shoppers as it stood outside the John Hancock Center after non-union laborers were hired for the fire clean up.

CHI-RAQ from p. 5

Zoning Committee. The NDA could not have continued the event for so many years without the generosity of Mario Stefanini, his staff and “our kind attendees,” said Truesdell.

“We have guests who brought their young children to teach about giving, and those children are now in college and still attend -- lesson well learned,” said Truesdell. “It is a chance to visit with friends, neighbors and recognize how fortunate we are to be able to spread some holiday cheer.”

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas... on the 2000 block of W. Lunt Ave., thanks to the lovely, unusual, and eye-catching string art decorations hanging on the trees in front of the house of former fashion designer James McCall. Thanks James, for brightening up the block!

Say cheese! ... Where are the biggest rats in Chicago? Well, last week, holiday shoppers were giggling at the giant, approximately 15-foot tall rodent in front of the John Hancock Center, placed there after the building hired non-union workers from Belfor Property Restoration for clean up after a Nov. 21 fire.

My sources in the building tell me that the fire broke out in Unit 5011 and floors quickly filled with smoke, prompting people to camp out in hallways after they got trapped in the stairwell, which was also filled with smoke. “What a mess and very scary,” said one person. “People were panicked! No communication except from friends hearing about this on social media and the Web...”

Apparently, there was no warning - no alarms went off -- and most neighbors heard about the fire from other neighbors. The commercial entity's alarm panel prevented effective communication from the Chicago Fire Department. “There were multiple failures of equipment meant to save our lives,” another person told me.

Residents “screaming” for clean air machines received them, but last I heard the machines were all silent because so many were running in the building that they blew out the electrical grid.

Kiddie holiday love ... It's a little out of the 'hood but “Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer: The Musical,” should be a fun outing for kids on Dec. 18 and 19 when it plays at the very prettily-decorated Rosemont Theater, which recently also had a cute “Chipmunks” show.

Happy birthday wishes...to the ageless Charlotte Newfeld, who turned 85-years-young last week!

NOW IN ITS 8TH SMASH MONTH!!

Ulster Outreach comes to Chicago to spread gospel of improved relations in Northern Ireland

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Back when he was in the Presbyterian seminary, the Rev. Bill Shaw never expected to be working with Catholics in still-divided Belfast, Northern Ireland.

He just knew the “tried and true” approaches to ministry weren’t working. “If you keep doing what you’ve always been doing, you get the same results. I wanted to break that cycle for my own well being,” said Shaw, who didn’t know many Catholics in what has long been one of the world’s most segregated cities.

Shaw himself had never even met a Catholic until he was 17, he noted during a recent talk before the Lake View Kiwanis Club luncheon at Ann Sather’s, 909 W. Belmont Ave.

Yet here he was running the 174 Trust, a non-denominational social service agency that runs a variety of community service programs designed – among other things to help both Catholics and Protestants get to know one another.

He concedes there have been “misunderstandings” on the part of his fellow Protestant clerics. “They had different expectations (of what he should be doing). I wasn’t physically attacked, but I have been misunderstood and misrepresented.”

And while Rev. Shaw never mentioned it during his talk with the local Kiwanians, someone did set fire to a 174 Trust building back in 2010.

Shaw, however, prefers to focus on all the positives that have been changing Northern Ireland since the 1998 Good Friday Agreement dramatically changed the political landscape in Ulster.

Power-sharing between Protestants and Catholics included an agreement by both the IRA and the Protestant paramilitaries to turn in their weapons, the hiring of more Catholics by the Ulster police forces, and the installation of Protestant firebrand Rev. Ian Paisley as Northern Ireland’s prime minister and former IRA leader and member of Parliament Martin McGuinness.

Paisley and McGuinness’ association changed both men, as well as Northern Irish politics, said Shaw, noting how Protestant firebrand Paisley had said more than once that he would never work with a Catholic deputy PM.

Lake View Kiwanis member Dan O'Donnell (left) and the Rev. Bill Shaw share a moment before a recent luncheon at Ann Sather's. Shaw, a Presbyterian minister who works to defuse tensions between Catholics and Protestants in Belfast, was honored by Queen Elizabeth II with the Order of the British Empire for his efforts to foster better relationships between the two groups in a city that has been segregated for at least three centuries.

In the end, the two unlikely allies actually forged a close friendship, said Shaw, recalling how the Free Presbyterian Church Paisley founded “had basically jet-tisoned him” for his changed attitude, an attitude Shaw described “almost a Road to Damascus conversion.”

Of course, it didn’t hurt when

Queen Elizabeth apologized for England’s past “mistakes” during her historic visit to Ireland in which she even began her speech in Irish, Shaw said.

While relationships between Catholics and Protestants in Ulster “are far from perfect, they’re not as bad as they once were. But they’re not as good as they’re going to be,” Shaw said.

Bill Shaw and a growing number of others like him plan to see to that.

comfortable treating patients from all the conditions listed.

The State's complaint against Dr. Schneider, filed June 15, names him as the co-founder of Gateways Certification Center in Ann Arbor, MI. They later changed their name to Gateway Compassionate Care Clinic [Gateway]. They expanded into Illinois on January 10, 2012.

The complaint says that Gateway, "At all relevant times operated to provide Medical Marijuana Registry cards to citizens of Michigan."

The State further charges that on Gateways' website they promoted their services by saying "Illinois [has begun] to accept certification for patients in Illinois for their use of medical marijuana... Gateway has established a clinic in Marion, IL, and is accepting new patients to start this process.

Under Illinois law "a physician may not accept, solicit, or offer any form of remuneration from or to a qualifying patient, primary caregiver, cultivation center or dispensing organization." In essence the law forbids accepting payment from a patient for the fee associated with the examination required prior to certifying a qualified patient.

The complaint goes on to list a variety of regulations they claim were skirted by Gateway, including taking an $80 application fee for an initial consultation, another $180 for a follow up second medical marijuana evaluation and $45 for the third visit where the paperwork for qualifying for medical marijuana was finalized.

The State says that they only accepted cash payments as well, and that Gateway has served approximately 250 patients.

While Dr. Schneider would not confirm the specifics of his case pending this week before the state's Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation, he said his more than three decades as an emergency room physician prepared him for nearly all medical conditions.

"As a practicing emergency-room physician, I had to form that medical relationship with a patient within just seconds. I had to be prepared for everything," Dr. Schneider said.

While he does not hide the fact he is open to the benefits of medical marijuana, he stressed his practices in Orland Park and downstate Illinois are conventional primary-care practices. While Dr. Schneider said he will write a recommendation for medical marijuana (but only if he believes it will help a patient), he discusses all treatment options with a patient.

"All patients who join our practice have to be seen a minimum of 90 days. That includes three visits. We get involved in that person's underlying condition. We work with them to get treated and we continue to work with them, afterwards. I have practiced traditional medicine for my entire career," Dr. Schneider added.

Some of Dr. Schneider's patients have had difficulties with their previous doctors and come to his practice in despair. Still, left unspoken but always at the back of a medical practitioner's mind is the fact that despite what state law says, marijuana possession remains a federal offense.

Reluctance on the part of many physicians to recommend cannabis for their patients is playing a role in what so far has been a low turnout of Illinois patients who have sought approval to medical marijuana, says Julie Stone, co-founder of the Cannabis Assoc. of Illinois.

Possession of marijuana is still punishable by up to one year in jail and a minimum fine of $1,000 for a first conviction. For a second conviction, the penalties increase to a 15-day mandatory minimum sentence with a maximum of two years in prison and a fine of up to $2,500. Subsequent convictions carry a 90-day mandatory minimum sentence and a maximum of up to three years in prison and a fine of up to $5,000.

As for the growers and dispensaries, manufacture or distribution of less than 50 plants or 50 kilograms of marijuana, it still is punishable by up to five years in prison and a fine of up to $250,000 under federal law. For 50-99 plants or 50-99 kilograms the penalty increases not more than 20 years in prison and a fine of up to $1 million if an individual, $5 million if other than an individual for the first offense. Manufacture or distribution of 100-999 plants or 100-999 kilograms carries a penalty of 5 - 40 years in prison and a fine of $2-$5 million. For 1000 plants or 1000 kilograms or more, the penalty increases to 10 years - life in prison and a fine of $4-$10 million.

"I have helped patients who have been dropped by other practices. Often these are patients with chronic pain. I am trying to keep them out of the emergency room. I have some who come three to four hours away to be treated. Instead of being judgmental, a doctor must treat a patient who needs medical help," he said.

Chronic pain, said Dr. Schneider, has caused many medical patients to become dependent on opioid-based prescription medications. Not only are these drugs highly-addictive, they also have a dramatic affect on a patient's health and mental well-being.

"The suicide-rate among chron-

"The suicide-rate among chronic-pain patients is very high. [Before it was legal in Illinois], some patients actually went to Colorado for medical marijuana and discovered they were able to live pain-free within three days. Contrary to depictions in the media, the age group of these patients is not 20 years old; the average age is actually someone in their 60s. These are not people trying to get high. They are seeking pain-relief but without all the negative side-effects associated with prescription drugs," ic-pain patients is very high. [Before it was legal in Illinois], some patients actually went to Colorado for medical marijuana and discovered they were able to live pain-free within three days. Contrary to depictions in the media, the age group of these patients is not 20 years old; the average age is actually someone in their 60s. These are not people trying to get high. They are seeking pain-relief but without all the negative side-effects associated with prescription drugs," Dr. Schneider said.

Dr. Schneider said.

Dr. Schneider did raise some eyebrows with his business-card, which reads "We'd like to be Your Doctor," a word-play on one of the many slang terms for marijuana.

"We'd like to be your Doctor" was done tongue-in-cheek. "We came up with that and thought it was clever. It gets the point across. We are compassionate for people who want to use medical cannabis. It is not the only thing we do. Indeed, it can't be the only thing we do," Dr. Schneider said.

Many patients seek Schneider out to treat their pain or to relieve their feelings of constant nausea. While he believes some would benefit from medical marijuana, others are treated in a more conventional manner. Dr. Schneider cites his decades of experience as preparation to treat the myriad of illnesses faced by his patients.

"I have a number of patients that are so complicated; no one else will even take them. One has a condition known as brittle diabetes (patients often experience quick blood swings). He came to me because he wanted to use cannabis due to nausea caused by his prescription medicine. Prior to coming to me, he had been in the ER about once or twice a month. He doesn't use cannabis. He was treated conventionally. Since I have been treating him, he has not been in the emergency room for four months. Today, his life has improved so much so that he is considering going to the university. He believes he can continue to stay healthy," Dr. Schneider said.

Another of Dr. Schneider's current patients came to him to relieve her chronic pain. Her complaints had been dismissed by her previous physician and she was seeking another opinion.

"She came to me and I sent her for a CT-Scan. It turned out her pain had been due to colorectal cancer. She had the tumors removed. Today, her prognosis is excellent. She is cancer-free. I can't tell you how many pain management patients I have found have been due to taking way in excess of the recommended doses of Tylenol. They are in danger of developing serious problems. I work with my patients and their problems. We are not running a factory to get high on medical marijuana. It is not a pathway to do smokes. What we are doing at our clinics is trying to get people to develop a long-term plan for their illnesses," he said.

The Director of Illinois Medical Cannabis Pilot Program, Joseph Wright, says that there are 13 medical cannabis dispensaries registered and operating today, with approximately 20 to 25 dispensaries registered throughout the State by end of the year. According to estimates from IDPH, there are 3,300 qualifying patients in Illinois. Medical Cannabis Registry Identification Cards began mailing to registered qualifying patients and caregivers on October 30.

Cannabis industry experts have already expressed their concerns about the low number of patients certified to purchase medical marijuana at the state's dispensaries. For the program to remain feasible, these experts believe there must be about 10,000 regular purchasers.

Illinois 3,300 patients are a far cry from the state's initial estimate of 75,000 potential patients and much less than many marijuana entrepreneurs had expected at this point.

"It's a huge, huge problem," Michael Mayes, CEO of Chicago-based MMJ consultancy Quantum 9, told reporter John Schroyer of Marijuana Business Daily. "With the lack of patients into the registry, businesses will suffer greatly... and may even go out of business due to the lack of a market. If all the cultivation centers have this entire product, the supply goes way up, and if demand is so low, there'll be pricing wars."

Mayes told Marijuana Business Daily that he's "incredibly worried" that the low patient count could actually jeopardize the future of the entire industry because Illinois' system is set up as a pilot program that will expire at the end of 2017. If the state doesn't get enough in tax revenue, or if the program isn't as widespread and successful as originally expected, then longstanding opposition to the program (from Gov. Bruce Rauner, for instance) could torpedo an extension.
