Our Magnificent, Imperfect World Will Survive

ANN GERBER

WE WILL NEVER FORGET the thousands of French citizens, as well as liberty-loving people in Berlin, London, America, who carried signs, held up pens (mightier than the sword) as they stepped forward to support the journalists slain at offices of Charlie Hebdo, France's satirical magazine.

UNITED, STRONG, DEFIANT, men, women rose up to show the terrorists that "Je Suis Charlie" (I am Charlie) will not be denied. These resilient masses were mobilized by the daring attack and slaughter of 12 veteran newspapermen who penned cartoons and wrote articles often caricaturing the Muslim Prophet Muhammad, angering the Islamic faithful. Democracy will survive thanks to the immediate repudiation of terrorism, sympathy for the victims, solidarity with the liberal people of France, and belief in freedom of the press.

THREE MILLION COPIES OF THE OFFENDING MAGAZINE are expected to be printed Wednesday, where 60,000 was the norm, former Chicagoan Renee Johnson, of Sister Cities Paris-Chicago, phoned to tell us. A native Parisian, she lived at the Water Tower for three years when married to banker George Johnson, and will return to visit Chicago at the end of February. We both cried at the bloody turn of events in our beloved Paris and Renee, who knew murdered chief editor Stephane Charbonnier, mourned his death.

WE JOIN THE MILLIONS of good people, civilized and willing to stand up to terrorists, who will make sure unpopular opinions can be read and can be heard. Our magnificent, imperfect world will survive this assault on free expression, Paris and sanity.

VOWING ACTION TO STOP the poison-pen letters that she alleges are ruining her life, the victim, a Gold Coaster, will take legal action. We revealed in a recent issue that six friends received copies of ugly, damning allegations. We also got copies mailed by

Q Brothers men's grooming store adds a new 'destination' to visit in Lincoln Square

BY MIRA TEMKIN

For wet shaving products, men's grooming accessories and fine fragrances for both men and women, the new Q Brothers store in Lincoln Square has the largest selection on the planet. Located next to their flagship store, Merz Apothecary, 4718 N. Lincoln Ave., this new store has everything grooming related in a friendly, welcoming atmosphere that will appeal to many many men.

And, oh ya, there is a small corner in the back of this glorious guy-centric store that has products for women... [but ladies, if you're looking for unique and important gifts for your favorite men, this is your stop.]

Q Brothers stands for owner Anthony Qaiyum and his two brothers, Gregory and Jeffrey. Between the two stores and the Q Brothers online site (www.smallflower.com), shoppers will find more than 13,000 products from over 40 countries, including soaps, teas, homeopathic remedies, candles and more.

Just launched at Thanksgiving, the store is off to a momentous start. "We really didn't know what to expect," said Anthony Qaiyum. "There's really nothing else like our store in the country, so both our website and store have been extremely busy. People are just blown away by what they see.

We find many of our customers keep coming back."

Indeed just walking in the front door, many first time shoppers will stop dead in their tracks as they gaze over the unfamiliar store dedicated to one of men's most familiar tasks: grooming. This store is but one more 'destination shop' to visit in the oh-so-unique Lincoln Square neighborhood.

Q Brothers are bullish about their prospects despite the proliferation of beards among the city's hipsters. Most men [and women] still shave and those with beards still need them trimmed.

Qaiyum views the renewed interest in shaving and shaving tools not as a passing trend, but an indication that men are moving toward more natural and organic products.

Their three most popular items for the holidays were wet shaving products like double edge razors and shaving brushes, followed by beard and moustache care kits and fragrances.

"Men are discovering that the wet shave is really a superior shave. It provides a closer shave, there's no irritation, it's less expensive and it's more eco-friendly," says Qaiyum, himself sporting a beard that would look good on the cover of Gentlemen's Quarterly. "Instead of being a tedious chore,

Candidate in 47th Ward knocks new incumbent

Charges of 'Corporate follower' and 'rubber stamp alderman'

BY GEORGE HOWE

Okay, so 47th Ward residents may have heard that there is a challenger for alderman and are perhaps asking 'who is this Rory Fiedler and why is he running?'

On most sunny days you will likely see Fiedler buzzing around on his scooter throughout the North Side doing errands and meeting friends and neighbors. No fancy automobile needed.

Practical, unpretentious, approachable, and quick witted are just a few qualities of the man who has lived in the area for more than 50 years. That doesn't really fit the traditional politician mold.

Growing up in a Catholic household, he and his eight siblings attended elementary school at Queen of Angels. Fiedler went on to Lane Tech High School and attended the school of the Art Institute of Chicago. He says that a sense of family values and community is deeply rooted in him from early on.

Wide open race greets 2nd Ward residents

BY PATRICK BUTLER

All six 2nd Ward aldermanic candidates agreed the city's biggest problems for the foreseeable future are runaway city debts and pending pension costs that are budget busters.

The city faces a $600 million lump sum pension payment to make later this year and the Chicago Public Schools have their own nearly $700 million payment to make. So far nobody has identified where that money will come from.

And at least three of them told a Jan. 7 forum at Wicker Park Lutheran Church, 1500 N. Hoyne, that probably the biggest individual problem facing whoever gets elected on Feb. 24 will be to bring some coherence to the newly-created ward.

[The 2nd Ward -- previously located on the Near South and Near West Sides -- is currently represented by Ald. Robert Fioretti, who is not running for re-election, but is challenging Rahm Emanuel in the mayor election. Ald. Fioretti was literally re-drawn out of his own ward during the last ward re-mapping.]

The 2nd Ward is Chicago's only ward located in an entirely different part of the city than it was before the ward boundaries were rewritten following the lat-

Worst stretch of Clark St. is in Lincoln Park

I regularly walk to and from my Lakeview home and downtown office enjoying diverse routes. When I walk the section between North Ave. and Diversey Pkwy. along Clark St., I have become painfully aware of a puzzling, unfortunate community situation. Could it be true that the worst stretch of Clark St. in the city is in Lincoln Park? There are approximately 70 street-level store spaces that are unoccupied and prominently display signs indicating that they are for sale, rent, or lease. Lamentably, the number of these sites has been increasing. So, what do these vacancies indicate? While we know that there has always been a complex, and at times even contentious relationship between development and preservation, is that a factor here? Who is going to move into those spaces, and what services or products will be offered?

I have lived in that area for over 50 years and know the neighborhood well. Furthermore, as a psychologist for decades, I deal daily with realistic hope and am not given to denial. I recognize the signs of decline and know that this situation does not augur well for the robust future of our beloved community. The Diversey Pkwy. area is among the most diverse and vibrant populations in our city. While that richness offers unlimited opportunity, it presents countless challenges as well. Leaders with expertise, vision, and character could convert this cascading real-estate nightmare into a fulfilling neighborhood dream. One notable exception on Clark St. is the Hotel Lincoln. For all things there is a season, but there is no longer one season for the Hotel Lincoln’s spectacular roof-top restaurant and bar, the J. Parker. As of January 1 its glass-enclosed, retractable roof makes its superb views available year round and a must for all to experience in 2015. Bravo Hotel Lincoln! Get there while you can still get in.

Tradition, family, giving and birthdays

Heart of the ‘Hood

By Felicia Dechter

When I was a little girl, every Christmas my Grandma Peggy and I would catch the #151 bus from near my grandparent’s apartment at Diversey and Sheridan and ride to Marshall Field’s on State St. Once there, I always felt like a princess as we dined at the Walnut Room and lovingly shopped together (for me, of course!). It was always the most special day in every way and I have cherished those memories my entire life. My grandmother started a tradition that I’ve tried to keep up with my family. And that’s what we did recently, when I took my daughters and granddaughter to the Walnut Room prior to seeing the jaw-dropping acrobatics of the “Cirque Dreams Holidayze” show at the Chicago Theatre. The Walnut Room’s Christmas tree was as glorious as ever, and even more thrilling was meeting Snow Fairy Princess Jade Nicole. Although our local princess has returned home to the North Pole, she was kind enough to answer a few questions before taking flight. FD: What made you decide to become a snow fairy princess or were you born one? JN: I was born a snow fairy 178 years ago in a tree in the Northern North Pole. I was the size of a snowflake and I lived in an acorn until I was 19! FD: What does a snow fairy princess do exactly? JN: I am a keeper of wishes... I collect wishes and bring them to Santa. I also reign over all the fairies of the Northern North Pole. FD: You recently released a second book. When did that come out and what is it about? What made you decide to write a book and where can people buy it?

Snow Fairy Princess Jade Nicole thrilled my granddaughter Jordan at the Walnut Room.

JN: I have a new book that came out last November. It’s called “A Snow Fairy and The North Pole Pirates.” It’s a follow-up to “A Snow Fairy in the Windy City.” I wrote the stories so I would have a little piece of magic to send home with kids at the Walnut Room. I have been telling the stories for so long, I thought it would be fun to put them in a book. Also, I think it’s important for little girls and boys to know that they can grow up to be whatever they want... a fairy princess author or a prince engineer or anything they put their mind to. There are so many possibilities and we are limitless in what we can achieve. Books are available at flightlessfairies.com. FD: How many Christmastimes have you spent at the Walnut Room? JN: I have been granting wishes in the Walnut Room for seven seasons, in the months of November and December. We fly away on New Year’s Eve (there is an awesome New Year’s Eve festival in the North Pole that we don’t want to miss). FD: I know you live on the North Pole (what do you live in there?), but when in Chicago did you say you’re in Wicker Park? JN: I live in the Northern North Pole in a castle of snow, with my pet penguin George. However, the Flightless Fairies office is in Wicker Park, so I stay there often when the weather is bad and my reindeer can’t make it back to the North Pole. FD: What’s it like to be a princess? JN: It’s the best! I feel blessed every day. I think next year I will try my hand at being Queen :).

Purchase a special giving card or buy an Imerman Cake, made with organic ingredients and baked using recipes the Imerman family developed. Happy birthday wishes ... to two of my favorite readers, Streeterville residents Dot and Walt Paas. Dot turns 87 on Jan. 14, and Walt turns 91 the following day, Jan. 15. May they have birthdays just like them... awesome!

First annual Roll the Cold Bike Challenge tracks riders on frozen roads Don't let a little cold slow your roll

The Active Transportation Alliance announced the first annual Roll the Cold Bike Challenge, which will be held January 17 through 23. Participants in the challenge will track their trips to earn bragging rights for the most miles biked during a frigid week that includes the anniversary of Chicago’s coldest day ever on January 20, 1985. Challenge participants will also receive information and tips for how to stay safe and warm while biking through the winter, which includes not biking at all when road and/or weather conditions are unsafe. Even in winter cycling is on the rise on the North Side, and winter biking is now common. Data from the U.S. Census and City of Chicago bike counts indicates that more than 8,000 Chicagoans bike commute in the winter, with many more biking to transit, school, the grocery store and other destinations.

Active Transportation Alliance, a non-profit quasi-government advocacy group that is funded primarily by government grants, promotes better biking, walking and transit, is hosting the Roll the Cold Bike Challenge to recognize these winter warriors and raise money to continue the fight to make our streets safer for everyone who uses them. Challenge participants will be eligible for prizes, including merino wool socks from Icebreaker and windproof biking gloves and a fat tire bike provided by Kozy’s Cyclery. The participant with the most tracked miles will win the title of King or Queen of the 2015 Roll the Cold Bike Challenge. Active Trans is also encouraging all winter commuters and biking enthusiasts to join us for the Winter Bike to Work Day on January 23 from 6:30 to 9 a.m. in Daley Plaza. Silent peace march Sunday to honor Martin Luther King

A silent march will take place Sunday in honor of Martin Luther King Jr. The 1.5-mile Polar Peace March begins and ends at St. Pauls United Church of Christ, 638 W. Kemper Pl. The event begins with a King Day Celebration at 4 p.m. Sunday followed by the march at 5 p.m. Participants will return to St. Pauls for food and refreshment by 6 p.m. Attendees will honor King's legacy while also marching against guns and violence and toward a more peaceful Chicago. Each year, 200 Chicago youth ages 10-25 are killed by gunfire. The social costs of gun violence in Chicago are estimated at $2.5 billion per year, or $2,500 per household. It costs more than $70,000 per capita per year to incarcerate a juvenile offender in Illinois. Sunday's march will benefit the Uhlich Children's Advantage Network [UCAN] and its violence prevention initiatives, including the Peace Hub, which fosters collaboration among social service providers and uses a data tracking system to ensure at-risk youth receive support. The family friendly march is free and open to adults and children of all ages. To register or for more information call UCAN at 773-588-0180.

Condo buying for dummies: an essential 10-point shopping checklist

BY DON DeBAT

A new Illinois law designed to educate consumers on their rights as condominium owners, and provide policies to help mediate disputes between owners and associations recently was signed by outgoing Gov. Pat Quinn. The law calls for an ombudsman's office to offer education materials and training to unit owners, associations and condo boards. Unfortunately, that officially won't happen until July 1, 2018. So, with the currently vastly unregulated world of association living, where does an Illinois condo buyer go for education, guidance and protection? According to City of Chicago consumer advocates, educating yourself is your best defense against future problems. "If you don't understand the terms of the transaction, ask more questions. Get answers from your real estate professional, your lawyer and other people helping you in your condo purchase," advises a free 25-point Condominium Disclosure Summary [CDS] prepared by the City of Chicago Dept. of Business Affairs and Consumer Protection. Unfortunately, the CDS form is a voluntary disclosure and is not required by the city. "To fully protect yourself in your condo purchase, make certain to ask the right questions and get answers," said Realtor Sara E. Benson, president of Chicago-based Benson Stanley Realty. "Insist on complete and full disclosure before taking the plunge." Benson, co-author with this writer of "Escaping Condo Jail," (www.escapingcondojail.com) a new 624-page book on navigating the risks and surviving the perils of the carefree community lifestyle, suggests prospective buyers rely on the following 10-point checklist to ensure a healthy purchase:

- ✓ Quality of life. Visit the community on a Saturday afternoon and get to know the neighbors. Request a brief meeting with one or more of the board directors to see how you get along—and if they will openly answer questions you may have about the association.
- ✓ Attorney review. Your purchase contract should be subject to your attorney's review. The building's budget, balance sheet, bylaws, special assessment history, rules and regulations, and any pending litigation should be carefully considered. Ask your attorney if he or she reviews the documents, and if not, who will be responsible for the review.
- ✓ Documents and disclosures. You are legally entitled to the association's documents before you commit to purchasing. Upon request, your real estate broker or the seller of the property must provide you with the declaration or covenants, conditions, and restrictions (CC&Rs), bylaws and rules and regulations. Also ask for fine and fee schedules, current budget, previous year's budget, income and expense statement, balance statement, board minutes for the most recent 12 months, a reserve study, a reserve review analysis and/or replacement fund, a financial audit and/or review, an insurance certificate, bank balances from both the operating and reserve accounts and a disclosure of any upcoming planned capital expenditures.
- ✓ Assessments and special assessments. High-rise condos typically have higher monthly assessments than walk-up buildings or free-standing homes in a homeowners association. When comparing different properties, it's important to consider what's included in the monthly assessment. Inadequate financial planning and insufficient reserves can lead to special assessments. These are fees that condo and homeowner associations charge to individual owners to cover the costs of repairs and maintenance that exceed the amount in the current budget. These fees can range from a few hundred dollars to $100,000 or more. Ask how many times the owners have been special assessed in the past seven years and the amount of each special assessment.

- ✓ Financial stability. Generally speaking, associations should be putting a minimum of 10% of the gross annual assessment income into a reserve account for maintenance and repair of the common areas. Keep in mind, the higher the amount of money in the reserve account, the healthier the association. Ask an advisor, such as an accountant or CPA, to look over the budget to see if it makes financial sense. If an association's legal fees are higher than the management fees, trouble may be brewing.
- ✓ Delinquencies. What is an acceptable percentage for assessment delinquencies in a condominium or a homeowners association? The Community Assn. Institute gives the following guidelines: three percent or less is excellent; four to five percent is good, and six to 10% is poor or average. If delinquencies are greater than 10% the association is in a deteriorating financial position.

- ✓ Owner-Occupancy Ratios. The higher an association's owner-occupancy rate, the healthier the association. The best associations have owner occupancy rates of 80% or above. Many private mortgage insurance companies require an owner-occupancy rate greater than 75%. At a bare minimum, the rate should never fall below 51%.
- ✓ Corporate governance. Ask if board directors have signed a code of ethics and a conflict of interest policy. Transparency and ethical behavior is critical to good governance. Examine board minutes closely to determine how often the board meets and if proper business protocol is followed. Board minutes are one of the few places buyers can find out about an upcoming special assessment that they will have to pay after they close.
- ✓ Lawsuits. Proceed carefully if lawsuits are brewing. If a judgment is levied against the association, you could be on the hook for thousands of dollars in legal fees. Ask the board for a written statement as to any and all current or pending lawsuits in which the association is a defendant.
- ✓ Physical condition and environmental influences. Take a good look at the common areas. Are they well maintained and well lit or is there peeling paint and signs of neglect? Poor physical condition is most often an indicator of both poor management and underfunding. Take special care to check previous land use in a newly constructed condo development. The land previously may have had an industrial use or served as a landfill, and may require extensive cleanup. Ask the developer for a written disclosure of previous land use.

The Home Front

You are legally entitled to the association's documents before you commit to purchasing. Upon request, your real estate broker or the seller of the property must provide you with the declaration or covenants, conditions, and restrictions (CC&Rs), bylaws and rules and regulations.

'Rooted in Soil' connects art, environmental science

DePaul Art Museum
exhibition debuts Jan. 29

Beneath the grass and pavement that cover Chicago lies a vital, under-valued ecosystem that gives rise to a new art exhibition — "Rooted in Soil" — opening Jan. 29 at the DePaul Art Museum, 935 W. Fullerton. Curators Laura Fatemi, interim director of the museum, and her daughter Farrah Fatemi, an environmental scientist and assistant professor at St. Michael's College, combined their knowledge of art and science to explore the under-appreciated role of soil in human life. "Soil is a fundamental component to our lives and health that we often ignore, and throughout history artists have contemplated our relationship to nature," said Laura. "'Rooted in Soil' offers viewers a unique way to engage with environmental issues through the arts." "We are really examining the human connection to natural cycles in this exhibit," said Farrah.

Artist Jenny Kendler will bring "Milk-week Dispersal Balloons" to the museum as part of the "Rooted in Soil" exhibition. Image courtesy of Jenny Kendler and the Natural Resources Defense Council

Usage of CTA’s Ventra Card prompts annual privacy postcard

Those seeking privacy may lose use of Ventra Card

BY PETER VON BUOL

Users of the Chicago Transit Authority’s Ventra Card have been mailed cryptic-looking postcards from First Data Corporation’s Money Network. The postcards make no mention of the city’s transit agency or the Ventra Card. The postcards ask interested recipients to read the company’s privacy-policy by visiting its corporate web-site. The postcards also offer the option of calling a telephone number “listed on the back of your Card” but does not provide a telephone number to call.

According to text on the postcard, its purpose is to simply comply with federal banking privacy laws.

“Federal Law requires Money Network to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Our privacy policy has not changed and you may review our policy and practices with respect to your personal information at: www.firstdata.com/money-network/mn-program-privacy or we will mail you a free copy upon request if you call us at the toll-free Customer Service phone number listed on the back of your Card.”

For those who use the Ventra Card to simply ride the CTA, it may come as a surprise its usage would generate a banking privacy notice.

In a recent phone conversation with this newspaper, an employee at the Money Network headquarters confirmed the cards were generated by Ventra Cards. For those concerned about their banking privacy, the Money Network representative offered to close an active account. However, doing so, she said, would also close the person’s Ventra Card.

For those concerned the postcard was an attempt at identity-theft known as phishing (in which criminals ask victims to provide personal information to unknowingly facilitate theft), employees at the Money Network and the CTA confirmed the content of the postcard was authentic.

For those concerned about their banking privacy, the Money Network representative offered to close an active account. However, doing so, she said, would also close the person’s Ventra Card.

While not yet able to issue an official statement, an employee at the CTA headquarters also confirmed Ventra Cards are issued through the First Data Corp.

Introduced in the summer of 2013 (with some highly-publicized glitches), the Ventra Card can be used on both the CTA and the suburban PACE systems. The card also works as a prepaid debit payment-card.

Two candidate forums planned before 43rd and 2nd Ward election

The Lincoln Park Chamber of Commerce [LPCC] will hold candidate forums for the 2nd and 43rd ward aldermanic races prior to the Feb. 24 election.

Organizers say candidates at both forums will address important issues impacting the neighborhood as well as the broader Chicago community.

The event for 2nd Ward candidates is at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 21, at the DePaul Univ. Cortelyou Commons, 2324 N. Fremont St. The moderator will be Paris Schutz of Chicago Tonight.

The event for 43rd Ward candidates is at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 27, in room 314 of the DePaul University Student Center, 2250 N. Sheffield Ave. The moderator will be Greg Hinz of Crain’s Chicago Business

For more information or to submit a question for either forum call 773-880-5200.

est census. The fishhook-shaped ward now cuts through parts of the Gold Coast, Old Town, south Lincoln Park and then west into Ukrainian Village, Bucktown and Wicker Park.

There are no clear favorites in this race and in a Chicago oddity, ward residents will likely make a decision free from insider influence and machine machinations as the new ward boundaries have likely made a shamble of the old 2nd Ward origination.

It doubtful that the outgoing alderman’s opinions would sway the now unfamiliar voter base and with his own mayoral race to run, Ald. Fioretti is most likely too busy to invest heavily in that race. Considering the diverse area that the new ward layout covers it could be the most interesting and unpredictable aldermanic race city-wide.

“Second Ward voters have been left with a ward that does not reflect one particular community, but three distinct regions,” each with their own problems and interests, noted Cornell Wilson, an attorney and Marine Corps reserve officer. Wilson said the incoming alderman and community residents will need to “develop the ward holistically.”

“But what’s important is that which unites us. Residents of all parts of the ward will expect and demand good service from their alderman,” said Brian Hopkins, a former aide to Cook County Comr. John Daley.

The issues facing the ward will include the future of the Finkl Steel plant site [at Cortland and the Chicago River] and a likely increase in street festivals and other neighborhood events, several of the candidates agreed.

“This map is not your fault. You should not be suffering for that now. As your alderman, I will make sure you get the city services you deserve,” said Bitu Buenrostro, an Iranian-born restaurant manager who speaks five languages and said her previous community involvement included “filling potholes in my high heels.”

Steve Niketopoulos, a community organizer and educational TV producer, said he’d introduce participatory budgeting to the 2nd Ward as is already being done in other wards like the 49th in Rogers Park. The idea is to let residents decide how to spend the ward’s menu money.

Former Ald. Fioretti aide and Preservation Chicago Stacey Pfingston -- who called herself “the lone independent in this race” -- said that if elected, she will do a comprehensive survey of the ward’s infrastructure needs and bring that list to residents and other stakeholders for feedback. “And while it would be nice to have more money for the ward,” Pfingston said that may not be an option.

Alix Pattison, a lawyer and local school council member in Ukrainian Village, said she’d create “sister neighborhood” program to connect the ward’s diverse communities and organizations, but would not be interested in any participatory budgeting programs.

“When I make the decision as to where menu money is spent -- and I will make that decision because I believe that’s what you elected me for -- you will have an understanding of why I made the decisions I made,” Pattison said.

Rooftop owners call Cubs' new sign plans "retaliatory," seek reversal of Landmark's approval

BY BETHANY KRAJELIS
The Cook County Record

The owners of several Wrigley Field rooftops have filed court documents describing the Cubs' recently-approved revision to its renovation plan for the century-old stadium as "retaliatory."

Although the revised plan the Commission on Chicago Landmarks approved last month reduces the number of proposed signs in the outfield, the rooftop owners claim the ball club moved the placement of the signs in a way that will still block their views of the park, but not the ones from the rooftops the Cubs contracted to purchase.

The ball club, according to the rooftop owners' complaint, is seeking tax breaks from the NPS stemming from its multi-million dollar renovation that is already underway and tore down the bleachers.

The rooftop owners filed a complaint Thursday, asking the Cook County Circuit Court to reverse the commission's Dec. 4 decision to preliminarily approve the Cubs' revised renovation plans, as well as its July 10 decision that provided the initial thumbs up.

The Cubs modified its plan shortly after the National Parks Service [NPS] raised concerns over the originally proposed outfield signage, which included two Jumbotron and a handful of signs for advertising, would take away from Wrigley Field's historic and architectural features.

The ball club, according to the rooftop owners' complaint, is seeking tax breaks from the NPS stemming from its multi-million dollar renovation that is already underway and tore down the bleachers.

"Instead of substantively modifying the outfield sign plan, the Cubs reconfigured the outfield signs so as to completely block the views of the Rooftops the Cubs were unable to purchase and to restore the views of the Rooftops the Cubs contracted to purchase," the owners allege.

The complaint marks the latest court filing the rooftop owners have brought over the Cubs' proposed renovations, which the ball club has insisted are essential to the future viability of both the Cubs and Wrigley Field.

The rooftop owners filed a lawsuit in Aug. 2014 against the city and its commission, claiming the plan violates an ordinance governing landmarks, as well as a 2004 agreement between the Cubs and the rooftop owners, because among other allegations, it would block their views and basically put them out of business.

They also allege Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel and other city officials negotiated with Cubs' owners behind closed doors, and then pushed the plans through the commission in violation of the rooftop owners' constitutional rights to due process and equal protection.

The rooftop owners repeated many of the arguments lodged in that suit in the latest filing, saying "unlike other applicants, the Cubs' proposals were rushed through without the customary review because all City Departments were directed to give the Cubs whatever they wanted."

Are more rooftop clubs in play?

Last Friday a Wrigleyville rooftop club owner reached an amended settlement with Fifth Third Bank stemming from the bank's attempt to foreclose on the business as it owed more than $18 million on mortgages and had missed loan payments on their line of credit.

Fifth Third Bank has asked a judge to dismiss all financial claims against Tom Gramatis, who is the majority owner of rooftop operations at 3617, 3619 and 3637 N. Sheffield Ave. It is believed that Gramatis is in the process of negotiating a sale of the properties.

The settlement did not include Gramatis' business partners, Max Waisvisz and Dan Finkel. Both men have said that they believe claims against them will eventually be dismissed.

Many of the rooftop owners are now in financial jeopardy as the key to their business model are unfettered views into Wrigley Field. The construction of the outfield Jumbotrons and advertising billboards in Wrigley Field put those views in dire straights.

In recent years many the rooftop club owners have faced financial difficulty due to lack of interest in watching a failing Cubs franchise from the pricey rooftops. Many of them couldn't make payments on the hefty commercial mortgages on their properties.

This will likely further the prospect of those rooftops being sold to another investor group. It is broadly rumored that they will likely be sold to the Ricketts family, owners of the Cubs and Wrigley Field.

They went on to allege that after the commission gave its preliminary approval in July, the "Cubs demanded that the rooftops agree not to sue in connection with the left field Jumbotron and the right field sign..." Obviously, as evident from the lawsuit they filed in August, the owners didn't agree. The suit remains pending, although it is now being heard in federal court, where the city in September removed it to. The next court date is set for February.

In its complaint seeking review, the rooftop owners have asked a judge to reverse the commission's July 10 and Dec. 4 decisions, revoke any city permits issued pursuant to those decisions and make the city file a complete record of the administrative proceedings (they claim they don't have access to whatever materials the Cubs gave the commission before last month's meeting).

They also want a judge to issue a judgment declaring the parties right and an injunction to stop the Cubs' construction of the outfield signs and additional bleacher seats.

A lot at stake in this election

Candidates' stands on economic growth, pension and budget crisis are paramount

BY DICK SIMPSON

The 2015 elections have officially begun. You may not believe it because the arctic cold currently prevents door-to-door campaigning. Nonetheless, mayoral and aldermanic candidates are officially on the ballot after the weakest were eliminated by petition challenges. At issue in this election are the solutions to the looming budget and pension crises. Crime and school closings still loom large. Large local developments like those at former Children's Memorial Hospital and at Wrigley Field challenge neighborhoods that surround them. Finally, this election is a referendum on mayoral dictatorship, rubber stamp aldermen, and continuing corruption.

We are choosing elected leaders to navigate between our history and our hoped-for future. We lived through the Richard J. Daley machine, the too-brief Harold Washington progressive era, and the new global city period under Richard M. Daley and Rahm Emanuel. We must now decide if we will re-elect the current mayor and aldermen or change course on February 24?

The landscape is different in every ward but consider the big city-wide issues. There is a looming pension crisis because the state is requiring the city to make a $550 million payment into the pension system by the end of 2015 and the Chicago Public Schools $600 million. Moreover, pension funds are greatly underfunded overall. The courts have upheld the state constitution which limits the amount that can be cut from guaranteed benefits to public pension holders. Different candidates have different solutions for the pension crisis but all require some form of reduced benefits (at least for future employees) and higher taxes.

Obviously, strong economic development would provide greater tax revenue. A growing economy would also decrease the demands for social services as more people get jobs. But we must decide if our economic development should be Loop and tech-centered as the Emanuel administration has promoted. Or can neighborhood-centered economic growth be achieved as Jesus Garcia, Bob Fioretti, and some aldermanic candidates have proposed?

Commentary

At issue in this election are the solutions to the looming budget and pension crises. Crime and school closings still loom large. Finally, this election is a referendum on mayoral dictatorship, rubber stamp aldermen, and continuing corruption.

Some candidates have also proposed taxing stock and commodity trades or, even better, taxing commuters who work in the city. But would stock and commodity taxes drive the exchanges out of Chicago and kill the goose that lays the golden eggs? And figuring out how to create a viable "commuter tax" isn't easy.

So when the precinct worker does come to your door or the mayoral debates come to your TV screen, candidates' stands on economic growth and their plan to deal with pension and budget crisis are paramount. But there are other choices to be made in this election as well.

To alleviate crime, Garcia has proposed hiring 1,000 more police officers and community policing. Ald. Fioretti has proposed hiring 500. Black businessman Willie Wilson has proposed a less well-defended plan of getting 75% of the police out of their cars and on buses, trains, and walking rather than driving their beats. Firing the Police Superintendent is also being discussed.

Other than Rahm Emanuel, all mayoral candidates support an elected school board and Garcia has pushed to end conflicts of interest by school board members. In the wards, the debates about how to improve neighborhood schools and the dislocation of closing 50 of them at one time are hot and heavy.

Locally, aldermanic candidates like 43rd Ward's Caroline Vickery are proposing a Community Zoning Board to provide residents more voice in zoning decisions. Other aldermanic candidates pledge to institute or, in cases like Ald. Joe Moore [49th], to continue the Participatory Budgeting Project to allow voters to control more than a million dollars in city infrastructure spending.

Meanwhile, Rham Emanuel's PAC is already spending big money to defeat the mayor's critics in the city council like Ald. Scott Waguespack [32nd].

So the race is on. If mayoral and aldermanic candidates don't get 50% of the vote February 24, there will be hotly contested runoff elections in April.

It is your job to register (which you can do electronically), to learn about the candidates, and to help decide our future.

One-woman show explores civil rights history in Chicago

A free performance is Monday at the Chicago History Museum

A special Martin Luther King Jr. Day performance of "The MLK Project: The Fight for Civil Rights" will take place at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the Chicago History Museum [CHM], 1601 N. Clark St.

The free event will kick off the ninth annual tour of the production, which was written by Yolanda Androzzo and directed by Jimmy McDermott featuring Caren Blackmore as Alaya.

Weaving together poetry, hip hop and history, the one-woman show follows Chicago student Alaya's personal transformation as she studies the civil rights movement. Alaya initially uses her fists as an outlet for her anger, but after interviewing local heroes of the movement, she discovers she can put "anger into action" and that her power is in her voice and her hip hop, not violence.

Seen by more than 48,000 students so far, the cross-cultural multi-media performance draws on personal interviews with Chicago-based civil rights activists, featuring heroes of the movement like The Rev. Samuel "Billy" Kyles, founder of the DuSable Museum of African American History; Margaret Taylor Goss Burroughs; The Rev. Jesse Jackson; and Puerto Rican poet and activist David Hernandez, among others.

During its six-week 2015 run, The MLK Project will travel to more than 40 venues including Chicago public schools, community centers and juvenile detention centers. All performances include a post-show discussion and study guides with wrap-around curriculum.

The Monday event also includes a post-show community discussion. The performance at CHM is open to the public, and audience members will receive free museum admission for the remainder of the day. For more information call the CHM at 312-642-4600.

The MLK Project also will play Jan. 24 through Feb. 6 at the Chicago Children's Theatre [CCT] as part of the new Later Stages series for kids ages 8 and up. For more information or tickets for the production at the CCT call 872-222-9555.

Free concert honors MLK

Members of the Chicago Chamber Choir will sing hymns, spirituals and other songs commemorating the life and death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. during a free concert at 12:30 p.m. Monday at the Chicago History Museum, 1601 N. Clark St.

The museum will offer free admission Monday. The concert is titled, "Precious Lord: A Tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr." For more information call 312-409-6890.

Shared sidewalk program now open

The Chicago Dept. of Transportation administers the Shared Cost Sidewalk Program (SCSP) each year. The Program offers sidewalk repairs for a cost significantly below what a private contractor would charge. Senior citizens and those with disabilities may qualify for a discounted rate.

Traditionally, the program to Chicago property owners opens on New Year's Day, January 1, 12:01 a.m. This year there is a change in the opening date and time for the program since there have been numerous complaints from citizens that the New Year's Day program opening is not convenient. In many circumstances the property owners are on vacation during the entire application period.

In order to address this issue, the City opened the 2015 Shared Cost Sidewalk Program on Tuesday.

Applicants can begin by calling the City's 311 System or access the City's service request website www.cityofchicago.org/311.

The Law Project offers high-quality, pro bono legal work to aid important community missions

BY ANDREA OTT
Special to Inside

What happens when you combine a high-powered private attorney, a dedicated public interest attorney, and a socially conscious innovator? The Law Project, that's what. The Law Project (TLP), which is part of the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights, pairs nonprofits, low-income entrepreneurs, and first-time home buyers with high-quality, pro bono legal services, allowing their clients to focus on their important community missions.

In 2014, TLP provided legal assistance to approximately 160 nonprofit organizations and 40 small businesses with just a five person staff. They are the only community development legal assistance provider of their kind in Chicago.

TLP clients are consistently thrilled by the level of attention and quality of legal services that The Law Project provides. And, as they succeed in their industries, clients have a tendency to return to TLP.

For example, Calvin Flowers, one of TLP's 1998 small business clients and founder of Tel-Lock, Inc., had so much success with his small business that he returned to TLP in 2004 for help in forming a new nonprofit organization: the Chicago Inventor's Organization (CIO; formerly the Chicago First Black Inventors Entrepreneurs Organization). CIO provides legal, business, and other support services to economically disadvantaged inventors across the country.

After receiving its 501(c)(3) status, Flowers returned to TLP again in 2011 to help him legally change his business name, making his organization "more inclusive." In 2014, the law firm of Drinker Biddle & Reath helped CIO draft rules for its first "Pitch Contest." Over the course of 17 years, Calvin Flowers has received more than $250,000 in free legal services to help build and strengthen his business and nonprofit.

Besides helping individual clients, The Law Project also provides ample educational opportunities for its client base. TLP regularly hosts workshops on how to start a small business, determining the right corporate structure, obtaining tax exempt status, nonprofit board compliance, and simple estate planning, among others. In 2013, TLP began offering "Emerging Nonprofit Certificate of Training" bootcamps for aspiring nonprofit founders to learn the ins and outs of starting a new nonprofit organization. The program—offered four times per year—regularly sells out, and it tends to generate a wait list.

But clients aren't the only people offered unique opportunities from The Law Project. As a public interest, volunteer driven operation, The Law Project is one of the only organizations in the Chicago area offering corporate transactional pro bono experience to private attorneys. According to one volunteer attorney, "the staff and clients make [volunteering] a unique experience. It is very apparent that the staff truly cares about the clients, and that makes a big difference."

This year The Law Project celebrates its 30th Anniversary. Many TLP clients acknowledge that they could not have done their work in the community without the help they received from TLP. TLP is proud of the work it has accomplished in the last 30 years, but—more importantly—TLP is excited to see what their clients and volunteers will accomplish in the next 30.

For more information, including applications for legal services, visit www.thelawproject.org, write to tlp@thelawproject.org, or call 312-939-3638.

DePaul budget for new arena jumps $12.5 million

BY MATTHEW PARAS
The DePaulia

DePaul Univ. will pay $12.5 million more than the previously planned $70-75 million for the university's new basketball arena in the South Loop, bringing DePaul's new estimated amount to $82.5 million.

In a memo circulated to faculty, interim president Patricia O'Donoghue said that DePaul's Executive Committee of the Board Trustees approved the increase in December. She said that the building has been redesigned, "raising it to ground level and accepting a number of other engineering changes."

O'Donoghue said that the change in cost won't affect student tuition or the operating budgets in place.

"DePaul has built or renovated more than a dozen buildings in the past 15 years, and is well familiar with having to adjust the funding or change the design for projects as costs become clearer once they are bid to contractors," O'Donoghue said in a memo. "Thankfully, DePaul's commitment to complete the project with no impact to student tuition or operation budgets remains in place."

"Current estimates continue to show that naming rights, corporate sponsorships, ticket sales and fundraising will offset the anticipated project construction cost increases," she said.

The total cost of the arena construction will be $164 million between DePaul and the Metropolitan Pier and Exposition Authority (McPier), $150 million for the Event Center's construction and an additional $14 million for 'soft costs.' McPier also paid $40 million for the cost of the land, which is located on the corner Prairie Ave. and Cermak Rd.

To shoulder the increase of costs, DePaul and McPier will split the estimated 25 million in half.

"DePaul is making a substantial investment in this facility along with (McPier). We would not have been able to build the event center without DePaul's participation," McPier CEO Jim Reilly said in the release. "In addition, the University will pay at - or above-market rent for using the facility. When you add it all up, DePaul is getting its long-sought home court in Chicago while also supporting the city's tourism and convention industry."

The project is slated to break ground in the second quarter of 2015. The completion of the project is anticipated to be finished in 2017.

Mayflower Tours positioned to showcase Cuba under new U.S. normalization policy

Chicago's Mayflower Tours announced their People-to-People Travel program to Cuba last July recognizing the value of fostering a deeper cultural understanding and interaction between Cuba and the U.S.

With the recent announcement of President Obama's new policy pertaining to the U.S. relationship with Cuba, Mayflower, is positioned to provide the educational travel experience in Cuba with an itinerary developed by Founders and Co-Owners John and Mary Stachnik that showcases Cuba as it is today with limited space still available on Spring 2015 departures.

The Stachniks are ready for a swift change in fully opening Cuba to all travelers. "Our industry has been a firm believer in 'open borders,' and that everyone should have the opportunity to make their own decisions as to where they wish to travel," said John. "Nine U.S. presidents have been in office during this embargo. It is time to try another approach to the normalization of relations between our two countries. Hopefully this can take place in one majestic swoop, rather than a piecemeal approach. Both countries deserve no less," he said.

"We have been providing life-enriching experiences to thousands of travelers to destinations around the world for over 35 years. In respect of the license granted to us by the U.S. Dept. of Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control, we are honored to be [given] this opportunity to share Cuba and its people with travelers partaking in a variety of personal experiences with the Cuban people as they are today," said John.

"We have included visits to sites of historical significance, economic importance and natural beauty," said Mary. "Travelers should expect a life-enriching, educational experience offering meaningful interactions with the people and culture of Cuba."

Guests will be in the company of an experienced Mayflower tour manager and expert local guides who are native to Cuba. "Travelers meet and engage with a remarkable cross-section of the Cuban people: school students, cigar-makers, artists, farmers, historians and more. Our tours will take you to the heart of what makes this country so fascinating," she said.

Included in the $4,199 per person price, the nine-day program includes 20 meals with several of the meals at Cuban "paladars," privately-owned and operated restaurants which add to the flavor of our visit; all meal gratuities included, round trip transfers between Miami hotel and airport, non-stop charter flights from Miami to Cuba and return, baggage fee for the Miami to Cuba flight, airport transfers in Miami and Cuba, Visa fee and accompanying work to obtain visas, four-star hotels throughout --all lodging is air conditioned and has full service amenities, portorage for all hotels, Universal Health Care in Cuba --cost of mandatory health insurance included. In addition, travelers are accompanied by an English-speaking Cuban guide, many People-to-People activities, including interaction and traveling in Cuba's antique car fleet.

All gifts and gratuities for these experiences are included.

Solo travelers can take advantage of the guaranteed share program or add the single room supplement of $799 to the per person price.

Half Acre meets with Lakota Sioux community, agrees to change name of its pale ale

‘Hey bartender, pour me a Senita’

BY MARK SCHIPPER

The popular Lincoln Square craft brewery Half Acre, 4257 N. Lincoln Ave., announced Monday, Jan. 5, that it would be changing the name of one of its pale ales after members of the Lakota Native American community expressed its disappointment in the brewery for naming the beer with a Lakota word.

The two-year-old seasonal ale formerly known as Heyoka India Pale Ale will now be known as Senita India Pale Ale, Half Acre said today in an announcement.

“We didn’t and aren’t going to spend any time defending or explaining our use of the word,” wrote Half Acre founder Gabriel Magliaro. We’re simply making the right choice and respecting their wishes.”

The word heyoka in Lakota refers to a venerated figure within the tribe who is capable of receiving visions of thunder beings and operating as a type of seer for his people. Heyokas are accepted as contrarians and considered holy fools and pranksters within their tribe. They are greatly respected as having powers of vision not bestowed on common people, according to the native lore. The great Lakota warrior Crazy Horse, for example, was considered one of the greatest heyoka’s of the Lakota Sioux.

Magliaro indicated that Half Acre had several conversations with the Lakota community that ultimately ended in a “very positive place.”

“I guess just a fascination with just that exact spirit of the contrarian aspect of it and sort of living life in the opposite direction, just a basic interest in the whole idea. In the end, this has been a huge learning experience for Half Acre, and we’re pleased to respect the wishes of the Lakota People,” said Magliaro.

Quite a few members of the tribe contacted the brewery. “It was dozens, so I’m not sure who exactly got word of it in the community, but it was a pretty effective initial onslaught of reaching out to us in a lot of different ways. We were able to have a lot of very positive conversations and it was actually just as much positive feedback after that moment than that there was initial concern or negative comment,” he said.

Without expounding on the details of the new name, Magliaro indicated that Half Acre is pleased with the new name and hopes consumers will get behind it as well. Magliaro says the beer is hugely popular.

“We feel good getting behind its new name,” said Magliaro.

The nature of their objections to the use of the word was ultimately that it was ‘their’ word and the North Side brewer decided that they were right. This was no marketing gimmick.

“I certainly wouldn’t have created this scenario to get that reaction, but the fact that it happened I’ll consider myself better off in the end,” said Magliaro.

“I think people were just upset that we were using it and they [offered] a lot of obvious things that we maybe should’ve steered clear of it with Native American history and alcoholism and sort of what is a holy spirit for them. Once they were met with our respect [and realized] we appreciated the fact that [they’re] respecting who we are and reached out ... so we did the right thing. [We] had a lot of ongoing dialogue ... there’s unfortunately a lot of sadness that’s connected to their history and a lot of it that’s still very raw today. People are just not being respectful from their perspective.”

“We also feel that the name Senita reflects the vibes we’ve always looked for when mapping out this beer and its identity.”

A Senita is a cactus that grows in the Southwest and Half Acre changed the label design to reflect it. “A lot of the names and imagery don’t necessarily connect for us all the time, it’s more finding words that are of interest, finding imagery to attach to it sometimes there’s another connection and sometimes there’s not.”

One image they are not using is the one that comes up in a search of The Urban Dictionary which defines Senita as “A person oblivious to their own miscues, often filled with excuses and quick to place blame on anyone but themselves. When confronted on their shortcomings, they have been known threaten legal action without basis and are equipped with painfully unoriginal put downs that take them far too much time deliver.

Indeed the natural habitat of that Senita is more often Twitter and Facebook; not trendy restaurants, bars and brewpubs on the North Side.

Cans with new designs, cartons and tap handles would begin to be delivered to stores and bars this week.

Fiedler understands the natural cycle of life where families grow up, move away and new people emerge. He says that his concerns are that many of the residents that have built these areas are being forced out due to over development of large multi-story structures hence a steep increase in property taxes and over-crowding, something that has plagued the Lincoln Park area for many years.

He says these issues are just a sample of problems that he’d like to see resolved when he announced his candidacy for Alderman. “The 47th has been good to me throughout my life,” said Fiedler. “This is a way to pay that forward. By dedicating myself full time to my constituents and my neighbors.”

He feels that has not been the case for first term incumbent Ald. Ameya Pawar. According to the Callaway report first broadcast on WTTW’s Chicago Tonight show, Ald. Pawar was only in attendance 28% of the time at City Council committee meetings that he either was appointed to or asked to join. He also took 60 unpaid days off and according to some residents “just wasn’t at his office most of the time,” says Fiedler.

Illinois Action, a grassroots organization of community organizers launched a website called Take Back Chicago. Their “People’s Score” rates Alderman on a scale of 0 to 100. Ald. Pawar was rated a 30, due in part for his ‘Corporate Follower’ label, voting in the City Council chambers in favor of the interests of corporations over people. Fiedler also considered Ald. Pawar ‘rubber stamp alderman,’ voting 93% of the time for Mayor Rahm Emanuel’s policies. “The city and its residents should not be strong armed into a dictatorship type government,” he said. “I will keep my constituents best interests as my top priority when I vote on key city issues and not what the majority will try and pressure me to do.”

Rory Fiedler is running for alderman in the 47th Ward.

Running as the incumbent will be new territory for Ald. Pawar who won a stunning victory in 2011 as the ‘outsider’ over a weak Chicago Democrat Machine candidate. He was the first Indian American and Asian American elected alderman in Chicago history. Being an incumbent alderman in City Hall has advantages, unless you want to position yourself a ‘outsider’ and reformer.

Fiedler faces his own challenge and denies to being defines as a developer by trade... he says he has “saved neighborhood homes from actual developer’s bulldozer, by rehabbing the current structure on the properties, while keeping them affordable.”

Two recent multi-unit buildings given the go ahead by Ald. Pawar have some residents of the ward concerned. There is opposition building over the nature of the Transit Oriented Development (TOD) Montrose Green Project. Just around the corner at 4416 N. Winchester, the property was originally zoned for a single family home, has now changed to a four unit condo without any prior warning.

“This project has been going on for three months really snarling traffic,” said longtime resident

Cathy Manning. “[Ald. Pawar] insists that a certified letter was sent out to the residents along with a ‘green card’ that we were to sign regarding the change in zoning and the process. No letter ever came, or an orange sign ever posted, nor was a neighborhood meeting was ever announced. The lack of parking is a big deal. The meters and the permit parking force many of us to park blocks away. Adding more residents means more cars. I guess the Alderman didn’t think that it was very important. He works on his own agenda.” said Manning.

“One of my key objectives if elected is that I will not have over density and lose the family atmosphere from over building,” said Fiedler. “This has never been a transient area and I don’t think that residents want that now moving forward.”

Fiedler thinks that savvy city resident know that aldermen like to take credit for state and federal funds directed toward their respective wards. He says Ald. Pawar is no different. One example is the allocation of money to the public schools. Fiedler agrees with Ald. Pawar that it’s important to have good schools, but feels that the funding can be better spent on academic issues rather than playgrounds or gymnasium floors.

There are many residents that have moved into the area to send their children to the area’s private schools, some that have won the National Blue Ribbon Award for academic excellence. “I will include these schools for any possible assistance provided going forward,” said Fiedler.

Another of his goals is to bring back the kind of sports programs and kids’ activities that he, his family and friends participated in growing up throughout the 10 parks in the neighborhood. “Hundreds of kids from preschool to their teens got a chance to play seasonal sports and got to know many of the kids from other schools, established lifelong friendships while staying out of trouble running the streets,” he said. “That’s what makes this neighborhood so unique.”

Fiedler is confident that the voters of the 47th will help him bring the ward back to the people. “I promise to be the alderman 100% of the time, being accessible, transparent and truly represent the community and to resolve issues here.”

Qaiyum feels that these trends show that the average guy now has a greater interest in taking care of himself, including his facial hair and skin. “We carry quality products that make taking care of their hair and skin easier.”

Q Brothers has always carried an extensive line of hard-to-find fragrances. With the new store, they now offer more than a dozen new lines. Popular brands include cult-favorite Tauer of Switzerland, Amouage from Oman and Italy’s Carthusia. “We have classics and independent fragrances that are hard to find in mainstream stores,” said Qaiyum, but what you won’t find are the traditional department store fragrances.”

In addition to two separate street entrances, there’s an open wall between Merz and Q Brothers shops, so customers can go from one store to the other. The new décor is airy and open, reflecting the look and feel of the 1950s. A restored 1920s barber chair, made in Chicago is one of the store’s focal elements. “We plan to use the chair for events and demonstrations,” continued Qaiyum. “Many Chicago barbers send customers our way for products they don’t have and we’re more than happy to send our customers to the barbers we know. It’s a great partnership.”

Indeed their standing room only grand opening celebration in December was attended by friends, family, neighbors and a half dozen of the North Side’s most popular barbers.

As a Chicago institution, the Merz store was opened in 1875 by pharmacist Peter Merz, and passed down through two generations until Abdul Qaiyum bought the apothecary in 1972. Merz Apothecary also has a second location in the Palmer House.

What really sets the store apart is their staff. “With a larger space, we have experts in every category who really understand the products and can demonstrate them. When a customer comes in, they can talk to friendly, knowledgeable people who can match them up with the best products for their needs. Customers can see, try, smell and touch the products as they learn about them,” says Qaiyum. “It’s really a sensory, educational adventure!”

And about that Q Brothers musical group? Yes, GQ and JQ are the same guys who act produce, write and act under the Q Brothers name!

Police Beat

Strongarm robbery

Police said a strongarm robbery occurred Jan. 4 between Lincoln Square and Uptown.

The victim, a 22-year-old woman, said two men attacked her about 4:30 a.m. on the 1400 block of W. Winona St. One man had grabbed her arm while the second punched her in the face, police said.

The woman had fallen to the ground and one of the men took her iPhone 5C. Both men ran east toward Glenwood Ave., police said. Officers responding to the call toured the area but did not make any arrests.

Gang member arrested with machete he says was for work purposes

A documented Latin King gang member was arrested Jan. 2 in West Ridge and charged with possession of a deadly weapon in addition to other minor charges.

The 29-year-old was taken into custody about 11 p.m. in the 6000 block of N. Maplewood Ave. Officers had found a 16-inch machete tucked between the driver’s seat and the center console.

Officers said the offender stated that he used the knife for his work as a metal scrapper, according to the report.

In addition, the offender was charged for driving with a revoked license, operating an uninsured vehicle and parking in front of a fire hydrant.

Officers had approached the man’s vehicle for a minor parking violation when he was unable to produce a driver’s license, according to the report. A further background check showed the license had been revoked for DUI and that the offender had a documented history of gang arrests.

Woman says she was robbed for rent money

A 44-year-old woman said Jan. 3 two men robbed her of her rent money in Rogers Park.

The victim had been walking on the 7500 block of N. Oakley Ave. about 7:45 p.m. when two men approached her, according to police.

The first offender had pushed something into her back, implying a weapon, and demanded money. The woman surrendered $600 cash which she told the responding officer was her rent. She had been on her way to the currency exchange when she was robbed.

The men fled west from Oakley in the alley south of Howard St. Police toured the area with the victim but did not make any arrests.

Cicero man sentenced in series of armed robberies, sexual assaults

A Cicero man responsible for a three-week spree of North Side armed robberies, including the sexual assault of a teenaged girl, has been sentenced to 40 years in prison, according to the Office of Cook County State’s Attorney.

Vidal Rainey, 25, has pled guilty to multiple charges including Aggravated Criminal Sexual Assault, Armed Robbery, Attempt Armed Robbery and Robbery in connection with 19 separate cases that occurred in 2012 in the Humboldt Park and Wicker Park neighborhoods.

According to prosecutors, from July 11 to July 31, 2012, Rainey went on a robbery spree targeting women who were walking alone and in some cases threatening victims with sexual assault. The robberies followed a similar pattern in which Rainey would approach the victim and produce what appeared to be a handgun and demand money, cellphones, and credit or ATM cards.

In one case Rainey forced a 14-year-old victim into a gangway where he robbed her of $15 and then sexually assaulted her at gunpoint. Rainey was arrested by

Chicago Police on Aug. 1, 2012, after being caught on surveillance video using one of the stolen credit cards at a gas station. Rainey’s fingerprint and the gun used in the robberies, which turned out to be a BB gun, were recovered from the stolen car Rainey had been driving.

Rainey pled guilty during a hearing at the Leighton Criminal Courts Building before Judge Thaddeus Wilson, who imposed the 40-year sentence.

Hard time for serial Lincoln Park, Lakeview burglar

Professional burglar Arthur Nielsen, 35, was arrested in February, 2014, after he broke into two of three units in a Lincoln Park residence. He was charged with those two burglaries as well as a Wrigleyville break-in that took place in the 3800 block of Wilton. Detectives continue their investigation of Nielsen and connected him with a series of burglaries on the North Side. Nielsen pleaded guilty to residential burglary and received three 13-year sentences to be served concurrently.

Aggressive begging for ‘Bucket Boys’ gets panhandler arrested

Implying he had a gun – and would use it – got a panhandler in River North arrested last month and charged with aggravated assault.

The victim says the panhandler was begging for money on behalf of the “Bucket Boys,” a group of street musicians who perform with drumsticks and five-gallon buckets.

The man told Chicago Police he was walking near the corner of North Dearborn Street and West Hubbard St. 2:30 a.m. Dec. 6 when the panhandler asked for money. When he was refused, the panhandler said, “I will shoot you,” and grabbed his waistband, implying he had a gun.

The victim walked away and flagged down police officers, who found the suspect one block away near Hubbard & State streets. He was taken into custody and searched but no gun was found. He has a court appearance scheduled for Feb. 13.

Robberies in Lincoln Park

Employees of a DePaul-area FedEx Office store were said to be traumatized after getting robbed at gunpoint 2:40 p.m. Friday. No one was hurt.

A gunman walked into the store at 744 W. Fullerton and demanded money, then fled in an unknown direction after getting about $100 from the cash register. The assailants image has been captured with store surveillance cameras.

Police reports describe the robber as a black man, 40-to 50-years-old, 5’5” tall, 130 lbs, with a beard. He wore an “Eskimo hat” and a navy or black coat.

That same day yet another man has reported that he was the target of an attempted robbery near the 500 block of Diversey. The Lincoln Park resident is the third person to report being targeted there in the past 10 days.

Chicago cab driver convicted of 2012 Lincoln Square sex assault

A former Chicago cab driver has been convicted of the brutal sexual assault of a Lincoln Square resident during a 2012 robbery attempt, according to the Office of Cook County State’s Attorney.

Admon Shasho, 30, was convicted by a jury of two counts of Aggravated Criminal Sexual Assault and one count of Attempt Robbery for attacking the victim in an alley as she was walking home during the early morning hours of April 14, 2012.

According to prosecutors, Shasho was on duty in his cab when he observed the victim, who was listening to music through the speakers of her phone, walking westbound on S. Sunnyside Ave. Shasho parked his cab and followed the victim into an alley, where he approached her from behind.

Shasho grabbed the victim and attempted to take her phone, but she yelled and resisted. Shasho then put his hand over her mouth and told her to shut up because he had a knife. Shasho then tossed the victim to the ground and raped her.

The victim continued to yell, which resulted in several witnesses calling 911 and one witness coming outside to confront Shasho. Shasho fled the scene and ran to a nearby park, with the witness in pursuit. A Chicago Police unit was dispatched to the park and officers apprehended Shasho a few minutes later. Shasho was then returned to the scene, where the victim positively identified him as the perpetrator.

Armed robbery with a handgun

An armed robbery with a handgun occurred Jan. 5 in Rogers Park.

Officers responded about 6:55 p.m. to a call on the 1200 block of W. Sherwinn Ave. A 24-year-old female victim told police a man had put a gun to the back of her head as she stood on the street next to her vehicle and said, “Don’t move, give me everything you have, b—.”

The offender took the woman’s designer purse and a wristlet wallet with a credit card inside. The purse had between $500 and $600 cash inside, police said.

The victim said she believed the offender

24 sawed-off catalytic converters x 5 gang members = a bunch of misdemeanors?

BY CRIME IN WIGLEYVILLE AND BOYSTOWN

In last week’s police blotter we reported on a theft ring of five known gang members stealing catalytic converters in Lincoln Park and Lakeview.

Five members of the Traveling Vice Lords street gang were found hiding on a Lakeview rooftop after allegedly crashing their van Tuesday, Jan. 6. Found inside the van were 24 catalytic converters that had been sawed off of vehicles in the Lincoln Park and Lakeview neighborhoods.

Each of the men is charged with one count of trespassing (being on the rooftop) and one count of theft of lost/mislaid property (the pile of catalytic converters.)

How does one come into possession of 24 “lost” catalytic converters? Only a Cook County prosecutor knows.

Newspaper readers heard the story and they are upset. They’ve called and emailed aldermen, police stations, and wrote to us.

“I was one of the victims of these thugs...Clearly there should be 24 counts as they stole 24 catalytic converters. I know this will cost me at least $1000 to have repaired and my car cannot be driven because the exhaust system or what remains of it is hanging on the ground.”

Many North Side neighbors have been in touch over the past couple of days, all victims of “cat thieves.”

One ex-police officer who asked to remain anonymous offered an insider’s view:

“The on-duty watch commander dropped the ball on this because, frankly, he or she didn’t [care]. They need to come to a CAPS meeting and explain why they didn’t fight to the death to get felony charges approved...”

And once the prosecution case is laid out, it’s not easy to upgrade. The challenge is identifying victims and the damage to each person which would help the prosecutor. Since the police cannot identify all the victims they will need people to come forward. We are not sure how many others were identified of the total of 24 victims.. perhaps other victims will be able to help in this matter as well.

If you or someone you know had their catalytic converter stolen in Lakeview, Lincoln Park, or North Center early last week, report it to 311 and insist—in-sist—that the case be cross-referenced with HY105569.

was the same man who had followed her into the vestibule of her building in an earlier incident. The victim and building manager were attempting to retrieve video of the robbery for detectives at the time the report was made.

Victim fends off man with knife

A Lakeview resident knocked an armed man to the ground and escaped during an overnight robbery attempt near Addison and Broadway Monday morning. The mugger fled empty-handed.

In a statement to police, the victim said the offender pulled a 5” knife and tried to take his wallet shortly before 3 a.m. But, rather than surrender his valuables, the victim turned the tables by knocking the thug down and running away.

The offender is described as a 6’ tall black man in his late 20’s wearing a dark blue hoodie, a black skull cap, and dark pants.
