NEWS OF LINCOLN PARK, LAKE VIEW, NORTH CENTER & LINCOLN SQUARE

Divorces Peak in January

ANN GERBER

MAYBE THEY DIDN'T GET WHAT THEY WANTED for Christmas, or they finally decided the toes under their shared blankets were not the hot ones they dreamed about? WHATEVER THEIR COMPLAINT, more couples divorce in January than at any other time. It is now known as "the divorce month."

Experts from research engines like RPG Life Transition Specialists say the huge jump in splits is due to couples staying together for the holidays. There is roughly a one-third increase in filings, agrees eDivorcePapers.com.

DOWN COMES THE CHRISTMAS TREE and holiday decorations and up in smoke goes "Mr. and Mrs." THE AVERAGE DIVORCE COSTS $20,000 but you can cut expenses with mediation and common sense instead of hostility, anger, unrealistic visions of revenge.

Fight and the lawyers get more of your hard-earned cash. Destroying your emotional health is worse than depleting your bank accounts. Grow up! Be realistic and sensible, all you who seek to rid yourself of your husbands and wives.

REMEMBER LORENA BOBBITT who cut off her husband John's penis in 1993 when a simple divorce would have solved her problem of getting rid of the cheating, abusive mate? Surgeons sewed his manhood back on and miracle of miracles -- it works almost as good as new.

ANOTHER "CRIME BENEATH THE BELT" occurred in China just a few weeks ago. A furious wife cut off her husband's penis as he slept and then snuck into his hospital room after he had the penis sewed back on, and hacked it off again! Then she threw it out the window. Her husband, Fan Lung, 32, father of five, got out of his bed and chased his wife and tried to find his penis. Hospital personnel joined the search but were unsuccessful.

THE WIFE, FENG, 21, had seen a hot email Fan Lung had sent to his mistress and she went berserk. Lung's penis was never found.

Small town library was Bannon's gateway to opportunity

Where else could two doctors learn to print a 3-D skull as a guide for a cranial/facial reconstruction operation in an afternoon... or a high school student learn to do T-shirt designs that were showcased at Washington D.C.'s Kennedy Center?

At the Chicago Public Library of course.

If you haven't been there in awhile, you'll be pleasantly surprised it's not what you remember, Library Comr. Brian Bannon told a Jan. 28 City Club luncheon at Maggiano's, 111 W. Grand Ave.

Today's libraries, Bannon said, not only house books and are where 40% of today's early voting takes place, but provide meeting spaces for neighborhood organizations, book clubs and CAPS programs, and which last year

Libraries are among the most respected and used public agencies, said Brian Bannon, noting that 81% of those questioned in a Pew research poll said they use their local library at least once a month and 79% said they have a high satisfaction rate.

Illinois still losing residents and their economic impact

Chicago minority teens suffer the worst in ongoing economic depression

Illinois still has a long way to go to recover from its economic crash and IRS and Census figures show that the state has lost nearly 1.4 million residents on net over the last 20 years. This out-migration comes with an estimated cost to government of nearly $8 billion annually.

At the same time a new report was just released which provides a comparative analysis of youth unemployment between Chicago and the U.S. showing that Chicago is one of the nation's leaders in teenage youth joblessness, with low-income Black and Hispanic teens continuing to fall significantly behind the rest of the nation.

The data paint a picture of how this out-migration and teenage unemployment crisis is breaking state and local budgets and hindering any true economic recovery.

The Internal Revenue Service, which compiles taxpayer filings that show when taxpayers move from one state to another, and how much income they take with them when they leave, put a firm number on the net loss of wealth and talent from Illinois.

In every year from 1995-2010, Illinois lost more taxpayers and adjusted gross income, or AGI, than it gained. In addition, the average taxpayer who left Illinois earned about $8,700 more per year than the average taxpayer who entered Illinois.

Illinois' net loss of $35.3 billion in annual adjusted gross income from 1995-2010 resulted in a loss of $5.9 billion in annual tax revenue for state and local governments. Over the 16 years from 1995-2010, the cumulative loss of tax revenue was nearly $52 billion dollars. [This tax revenue loss is divided approximately equally between the state and local levels.]

The IRS has since delayed releasing additional data for 2010 and beyond. But in general, the migratory data from other sources show red states as destination states and blue states, such as Illinois, New York and California, as major exporters of families, wealth and talent.

Using data from the U.S. Census Bureau [USCB] one can estimate how out-migration since 2010 has affected Illinois budgets. The USCB data use IRS migration information as an input, and also include broader measures that capture migrants who don't pay taxes, such as students.

On average, IRS out-migration numbers are 81% of the broader census measurement which means that Illinois lost an estimated 250,000 additional taxpayers plus dependents from 2011-2014.

The estimated loss of tax revenue from 2011-2014 is $10.3 billion in annual income, along with

Chicago Restaurant Week a mostly North Side affair

Of the 300+ restaurants, barely two dozen are located south of Roosevelt

STORY AND PHOTO
BY KARIN VANDRAISS
Medill News Service

Restaurant Week, the annual winter event that offers locals the chance to eat at top-flight restaurants at relatively low prices, opened Saturday. But the imbalance between North Side (and north suburban) restaurants and South Side eateries is hard to ignore.

The event that runs through Feb. 12 has become a Near North and North Side centric affair.

Since its launch in 2008, Chicago Restaurant Week [CRW] has grown exponentially, from 44 restaurants to over 300 listed in this year's lineup. Of those 300, however, barely two dozen are on the South Side or southern suburbs.

Choose Chicago, the city's official sales and marketing organization, advertises the event as an opportunity for both visitors and locals to enjoy the city's "rich, culinary diversity... all across the city and suburbs." It is also a way to drive traffic to participating restaurants during the winter months when business typically slows. While the week's culinary offerings may be diverse, "all across the city and suburbs" is a bit of a stretch.

Jason Hammel, owner of Nightwood Restaurant, 2118 S. Halsted St. in Pilsen, participates in order to open his restaurant to "people who might not come in the rest of the year."

"If you look at the sheer number of restaurants, there are a lot on the North Side," Hammel said. "Restaurant Week also caters to a specific type of restaurant, nicer than casual, and people associate that type of restaurant with the North Side. But there are a lot of South Side options; the area is really exploding."

While CRW originally featured restaurants in the heart of the city, the event has expanded to include the suburbs, locations at O'Hare and even Mariano's grocery stores.

But financially, CRW can be a burden. "The economics can be tricky," said Hammel. "We're already running on a tight profit margin, and I think some people don't want to discount their product for that amount of time." All CRW menus are prix fixe, $22 for lunch, $33- $44 for dinner. "The substantial fee is also a deterrent," he added.

Participating restaurants must first register as partners of Choose Chicago, which offers three tiers of membership packages with annual fees ranging from $99- $699. There's an additional $500 fee for participating in CRW itself (discounted to $350 for second- and third-tier partners). It costs restaurants a minimum of $600 to participate, not including indirect costs.

Another issue may simply be one of communication, or lack thereof. But some think it's up to the restaurant, not Choose Chicago, to reach out.

Hammel said he's "comfortable with (Choose Chicago's) efforts. There's a responsibility for us to get our foot in the door."

Michael Sutton, general manager of Farmhouse in Evanston, agreed. "As far as what restaurants are featured," he said, "it's more up to the restaurants themselves to become a member versus Choose Chicago going out and trying to pull restaurants in."

However, restaurants on the South Side and in the south suburbs, which are off the beaten path for tourists (and perhaps off Choose Chicago's radar as well) may have to make an extra effort to get that foot in the door.

“given to the prince” in London in 2001 by his pal, billionaire Jef-frey Epstein, a New York financier and convicted sex offender. Ex-wife Fergie believes him. One wonders why Andrew would be friends with Jeffrey Epstein in the first place? An affidavit was filed in a Florida federal court in which Roberts swears that Epstein’s colleague Ghislaine Maxwell recruited her to satisfy the sexual needs of Epstein and his friends with under-age girls on his private Carribbean island. Former president Bill Clinton has also been known to spend a lot of time with Epstein and Max-well as she once worked for his foundation... birds of a feather. But seeing as many other well-known people have also been to Little St. James [now referred to as “Little St. Jeff”] Island as part of Epstein’s circle, he was hardly alone.

WHO IS THE KING OF BROADWAY when it comes to selling tickets? Writer/actor/producer Larry David has the crown, causing box office charisma that generated $11 million in sales for his newest role in “Fish in the Dark,” opening in March. Daniel Craig in “Betrayal” generated $11 million but Larry’s gig will make a larger imprint after the Feb. 2 preview date. The multi-talented star wrote the comedy for himself and his reputation from “Sein-feld” and “Curb Your Enthusi-asm” guarantee audience interest.

Mike Ditka

MIKE DITKA SAYS that NFL teams regularly offered narcot-ics to their players to overcome injuries and get back on the field. This is said to have contributed to many of the former Bears being severely debilitated 30 years later. Last year, Bears Jim McMahon, Richard Dent and Keith Van Horne, all retired, filed a lawsuit accusing the league of giving them potent painkillers to enable them to play, but at the heavy price of later physical problems. Their lawsuit seeks damages for more than 500 former players.

The heat is on, 49th Ward aldermanic election sure to be hot, hot, hot

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

Because I'm a 39-year resident of East Rogers Park, people have been asking who I'm voting for and what I think about the upcoming aldermanic election, which is being held Feb. 24.

I tell them that I think the 49th Ward will be one of the hottest, if not the hottest, race in town.

There are only two people vying for the job, incumbent Ald. Joe Moore, and Don Gordon, who forced Moore into a runoff in 2007.

Since I have no idea who will win and I don't want my city service needs to be ignored for the rest of my days, I'll just give you my very short list of some very basic pros and cons for each challenger. (It'd take this entire newspaper to vent all the issues properly).

When Ald. Moore was first running for alderman way way way back when, more than two decades ago, I attended a coffee klatch at my neighbor's house. Ald. Moore was a humble, likeable guy, and I've supported him for many years, even when I couldn't walk a few blocks from home because of the out-of-control crime on Morse Ave.

There are so many good things that have been happening in the ward nowadays though, especially since Ald. Moore nearly lost the election eight years ago. That seemed to really propel our alderman into action and he started paying more attention to his constituents getting killed and less attention to geese getting killed. (Remember his foie gras banning ordinance?) Yep, the alderman definitely stepped up his game.

I don't call him often, because who needs to hear a crock of you-know-what? And he's got his nose stuck way up Col. Jennifer Pritzker's rear end, allowing that big giant ugly parking lot on Sheridan Rd., which sticks out like a sore thumb on the lakefront. I really hope the strip mall that Pritzker bought on Morse Ave. doesn't turn into a parking structure too. Oh yeah, and did I mention that some people say Ald. Moore's nose also seems to be stuck somewhere up in the mayor's body too?

But Ald. Moore absolutely has done a much better job since Gordon gave him a run for his money. The ward looks good. Heck, these days we make our neighbor to the west, the 50th Ward, look like the ghetto. And, among a few other likable things, I always enjoy the free food he gives away right out my back door at his Back to School Picnic.

A political pundit I'm Facebook friends with, Joe Lake, tells me Ald. Moore will win –because there are only two opponents and someone is sure to get 50% of the vote. Lake, a former Bucktown and Lakeview resident, no longer lives in the city but administers 119 neighborhood and political Facebook groups and has been following the city's political scene for 50 years.

"It's hard for a challenger to beat an entrenched incumbent," said Lake. "You need two, three, or four more challengers. It's unlikely Don will get Joe into a runoff. Joe has the bucks and he's got the squirrely people on Everyblock."

Meanwhile, there were a total of 13 homicides in 2013 and 2014 in the ward and 62 total shooting victims. That makes a total of 75 shooting and homicide victims in two years, which is more than all of the north lakeshore communities added together during those two years, said Lake. Considering the lack of faith this newspaper has in the City's crime numbers, that total is likely low. Those are not pretty stats and I agree with Lake, who said: "Somebody has to take care of that problem, whether it's Don or Joe. It's not going away."

Will Don Gordon be the guy to tackle "that problem" though?

Gordon has lived in the neighborhood for decades. Like me, I truly believe he loves living in this community and cares deeply about it. I ran into him one morning on the lakefront and we started chatting about Morse Ave. This was after there'd been shootings there last summer.

Gordon told me the business owners on the street were terrified. We made a plan to walk down Morse together and talk to some of them. I was going to report about it. I messaged him on Facebook and he said he'd get back to me. He never did.

Message to Gordon: Never blow a reporter off, especially when you are running for public office. It's an unwise move and makes me wonder about your common sense. I know you're busy, but blowing off a reporter who lives and writes in the very neighborhood you're trying to win an election in is bad politics.

Watch out for the mighty pen, Mr. Gordon. I like you. I'm going easy on you. But not keeping your word is verry troubling to me.

So are some of the silly political jabs against Ald. Moore, although I'm not saying Gordon is responsible for them. "Morse Ave. trash cans support Joe Moore," with a picture of Joe Moore's campaign stuff in the garbage? Really? Then there was the Facebook post that had a Moore sign lying in the grass and next to it, a pile of stinky-looking dog poop.

For all the community activism in this ward it's sort of pathetic that there are only two contenders. There were a few others in the beginning, including the Party for Socialism and Liberation's John Beacham, an activist who not too long ago was taking part in anti-brutality/Mike Brown protests in Ferguson, MO. The Web site opposition-news.org says that Beacham actually made it through the first round of candidate removals before being "Removed," which is how his status is currently listed on the Chicago Board of Elections Web site.

Apparently, an objection was filed contesting some of his petition signatures. A hearing officer also found that the petition sufficiently stated grounds, which, accepted as true, would also invalidate the nomination papers. But Beacham never showed up to the hearing so whether the claims were valid or not is a moot point. He was found in default and removed.

So who will get my vote, and the most votes from the people in 49, Joe Moore or Don Gordon? What's better, the devil you know or the devil you don't know? Time will tell, but I surely won't.

Don Gordon

Chicago should not squander public park land for Obama Library

BY DON DeBAT

When it comes to squandering future development opportunities on Chicago's South Side, Mayor Rahm Emanuel and city planners lead the pack. Urged on by Univ. of Chicago bigwigs, Mayor Emanuel's heralded plan for the proposed Barack Obama Presidential Library calls for using 20 acres of public parkland in western Jackson Park as a library site. The proposed site in the Woodlawn neighborhood is bounded by South Stonely Island Ave., South Cornell Ave., East 60th St. and East 63rd St. An alternative 22-acre site, also proposed by the university, would gobble up public park land on the west edge of Washington Park, and 11 acres outside of it. This site is bounded by South King Dr., South Ellsworth Dr., East Garfield Blvd., and East 51st St. Both sites are on the fringe of the Univ. of Chicago's elite campus in gentrified Hyde Park. And, Obama's personal mansion homestead is located not far away in East Woodlawn, another elite South Side neighborhood. Since the white-flight era of 1950s, the university has acquired numerous parcels of land and buildings surrounding the campus and diligently worked to stabilize Hyde Park, one of the crown jewel neighborhoods of the South Side. Annexing park land for the library seems to coincide with this stabilization plan.

However, the Friends of the Parks oppose the carving up of two landmark public parks that are on the National Register of Historic Places. Earlier, the Friends of the Parks filed a lawsuit to stop Mayor Emanuel from transferring 17 acres of lakefront parkland to movie mogul George Lucas to build a museum in a parking lot next door to Soldier Field. And, many South Side African-American residents say they cherish their neighborhood parklands, which symbolize freedom—open recreation spaces for barbecues, family picnics and softball games. How many tourists visiting the world-class city of Chicago really would venture on unsafe public transportation to fringe South Side neighborhoods to enjoy the bountiful political and intellectual collection to be ensconced in Obama's presidential library? In 2014, there were four homicides in Woodlawn and four in Washington Park. Meanwhile, critics have suggested that the mayor should think outside the box and combine the presidential library with the George Lucas museum and build them on a new South Side Museum Campus. The perfect place for the South Side Museum Campus would be the 37-acre former site of Michael Reese Hospital in the Oakland neighborhood on the Near South Side. This land once was touted as an Olympic Village site by former Mayor Richard M. Daley. In 2009, demolition contractors, hired at a cost of $20 million, razed more than two dozen buildings at the former hospital complex, including several designed by Bauhaus founder Walter Gropius—one of the 20th Century's most influential modernists. In addition, dozens of trees were chopped down and serene courtyards designed by landscape architect Hideo Sasaki were destroyed on the former hospital campus. If you add the $80 million the city spent to acquire the land, Chicago already has invested $100 million into the Michael Reese site. It's time to dust off existing plans to install infrastructure improvements into this vacant no-man's land between 26th and 31st streets along Cottage Grove Ave. A Tax Increment Financing District already is in place, and long-range plans include construction of a light-rail commuter system from McCormick Place to 63rd St. along Cottage Grove Ave. Ironically, the 37-acre Michael Reese site exactly meets the land requirements for both the presidential library and the Lucas museum, and there may be nearby acreage left over for business, retail and housing development in an economically struggling neighborhood that desperately needs it. By the way, Oakland is a safe neighborhood. Zero homicides were committed there in 2014.

With easy access to McCormick Place, immediately to the north, plenty of tourists and Chicago-area residents could hop on the light-rail system and enjoy two new important attractions to our world-class city. Old Town CHA complex up for sale It has been reported that real estate titan Related Midwest is acquiring affordable housing landlord Metroplex. One of the properties in the mix is the 10-building, 628-unit Marshall Field Garden Apartment Homes, 1448 N. Sedgwick St. in Old Town. The site occupies two square city blocks and was the largest moderate-income housing development in the U.S. at the time of construction in 1929. No closing date or sales prices have been announce for the 4,000-unit Midwestern portfolio that Metroplex controls, according to Crain's Chicago Business. While it is all just rumor and speculation, observers now wonder if Related Midwest might have plans to redevelop the six-acre Marshall Field site, or whether the property would remain subsidized housing? The property lies just to the east of a booming retail and residential corridor of growth and development. Related Midwest is also trying to redevelop the former Lathrop Homes public housing site on 32-acre prime riverfront acres at Diversey, Damen and Clybourn avenues.

Shore Chamber of Commerce, would like to encourage more local restaurants to be involved in CRW. The South Shore's one participating restaurant is Parrot Cage Restaurant, 7059 S. South Shore Dr., run by students from the Washburne Culinary Institute. "Of course, it's not necessarily considered a tourist area, but there is some great food here," Trice said. "I would like to find a way for our businesses to participate and gain exposure. I want to send something out to our businesses and residents so they can be more aware."

Wallace E. Goode, Executive Director of the Hyde Park Chamber of Commerce, hopes to increase Hyde Park's presence in future CRW's as well. Hyde Park, home of the Univ. of Chicago, is represented by two restaurants this year. He says he's concerned that many local restaurateurs don't even know the dates of the event. "There are 91 eateries in Hyde Park, from Michelin top-rated restaurants to restaurants that have been here for 40 years or more," he said. "I would love them to be involved. One restaurateur mentioned she just heard about it last week. How are restaurants notified about CRW?"

Wallace admitted that other factors, like fears about personal safety, may be at play. "People from the North Side are afraid to come south," he simply said.

The contrast couldn't be greater between the South Side and many North Side Chicago neighborhoods, like Lincoln Park, which has 21 participating restaurants. The Lincoln Park Chamber of Commerce maintains a close relationship with Choose Chicago, said Padraic Swanton, the Chamber's communications director. "Our partnership involves everything from promoting CRW to best practices for promoting the tourism market," he said.

Swanton didn't have any theories as the South Side's relative absence at Restaurant Week. "We're excited that so many of our community members are participating," he said. "I don't know why that's not the same story across the whole city."

Jordan Engerman, director of partnerships at Choose Chicago, said the organization does their due diligence reaching neighborhoods across the city. "We do a little bit of everything, we communicate via email, directly to restaurateurs, newsletters, phone outreach, social media, etc. We do everything we can to communicate the CRW promotion."

He explained that existing partners are their first priority. "We have a large restaurant partnership who we reach out to first because one of the requirements is being a partner... as word gets out we do respond to many restaurants who want to participate, and spend quite a bit of time working with them," he said.

"We do have people that work with us from Choose Chicago," said Goode. "And we plan to reach out to see how our community can play a bigger role next year."

Why can't we stop all this crime? How did all this happen? Why is it happening?

Where oh where are our politicians in all of what Ann Gerber writes about "If a Gunman Suddenly Appears?" Born in 1935 and raised in the City of Chicago, I remember quite well:

- When neighbors in buildings did not have to lock their doors.
- When if given permission, milkmen came into one's apartment to put new milk in the refrigerator and take out the empty bottles.
- When people walked the street and had no fear of criminal activity or assault in their own neighborhoods. Schools were safe places of learning.
- When plain-clothes police men and women were present to deal with crime "on the spot" if it took place, which was very rare.
- When police were on lots of corners in the City helping with traffic control during rush hours, particularly so at Lawrence and Kimball when one police officer worked that beat for years and years.
- When beat police were present to become a part of their neighborhood.
- When there were no "hired guns" to induce legislators to allow a City like Chicago to become a part of the "wild west"... when, as you wrote, we live in mortal fear that a crime is surely going to happen to us one day or another.

I try my best to prevent my wife of 40+ years from going into the Streeterville neighborhood without me, to go shopping or just window shopping on Michigan Ave. I try to make certain that she has enough money in her purse to "satisfy" a criminal in order to not have the living hell beat out of her! I think, every day, about what I will do if ever confronted with such criminals on Ontario, Ohio, Superior, Huron or Erie streets or wherever. And where are the police officers in these and other areas?

How did all this happen? Why is it happening? What is City Hall and the police department doing about it? While our Mayor gets millions of dollars into the hands of new construction and things that need to be built or rebuilt, why do our Mayor and legislators not figure out a way to win the "war" on crime?

How do we let multi-millionaires like Mayor Emanuel or the governor get into these positions of power? And, how did they get there? How does a Mayor close scores of schools and make our children walk through gang infested territory and expose those children to danger? Why is it allowed to continue?

Why do we see ads on TV pushing us to contribute to very worthy causes, like helping veterans and those in terrible need, when that is a function of government? Where has all the money gone?

Why are there not more major investigations in the media and at the U.S. Attorneys' office or the Illinois AG or the Cook County

States Attorney putting an end to bribery, Chicago-style politics and bad examples in our politicians? Why the lack of civility and ability to sit down and resolve problems? I could go on and on and on... 55+ years a lawyer and still not believing what I see happening in Chicago and all over the place

Politics has ruled our land for decades. I saw it when the Pied Piper shoe company sold out to another party who only wanted the name and so took the last U.S. Manufacturer of shoes out of this country. And, after WW II when the U.S. rebuild Japan and Germany, was it not clear then that low labor costs would eventually take away manufacturing? And how is it that tuitions are outrageously high? When I went to law school, everyone who graduated and passed the bar was sure to get a job as a lawyer. I do not remember any of my fellow law school students having even one-dollar of student loans to deal with.

My main purpose of writing to you is not just to "congratulate" you on your words of wisdom, but to ask: why is all this happening and why can't government be in charge, take control and end this era of lawlessness?

Please keep up your good and excellent work. We need you and your visibility to help us focus on what needs doing.

Hey, Clark St. in Lincoln Park is better than you say it is

I am writing in response to the Letter to the Editor titled "Worst Stretch of Clark St. is in Lincoln Park" (January 14-20). While we recognize that there is always more work to be done to enhance our local commercial districts, the Lincoln Park Chamber of Commerce (LPCC) believes Lincoln Park is a strong community and that it is important to clarify the numbers and overall condition of Clark St. in Lincoln Park as presented in the letter.

The LPCC's number one priority is supporting businesses and maintaining Lincoln Park's vibrant commercial corridors. We consider the current commercial vacancy rate - 3.2% for Lincoln Park's Clark St. corridor - as a positive sign and a four-year low for the corridor. For comparison's sake, the Clark St. vacancy rate is lower than that for the entire Lincoln Park neighborhood (4.3%) and the overall vacancy rate in the City of Chicago (6.7%). This is not to say that there isn't more work to be done.

To support this corridor, and others across Lincoln Park, we partner with Ald. Michele Smith (43rd), local neighborhood groups and community anchors including DePaul Univ., Green City Market, Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago History Museum and tourist destinations like Hotel Lincoln, who was referenced by the letter's author, to encourage residents and tourists to frequent Clark St. in Lincoln Park. We provide resources, programming and connections that businesses need to attract customers, reduce costs and positively impact their neighborhood. In 2014 we saw a record number of attendees at our Halloween event, Spooktacular, and launched the foodie-friendly "Cravings on Clark" to draw diners to the street.

Further, the rental trends are pointing in the right direction. Over the past year we have seen at least 12 new businesses invest in Lincoln Park's stretch of Clark St. Those diverse businesses included: Elle Val, Sweet Buddha, Crafters & Weavers, La Diosa, BenjYehuda, SCIMATH, Gaslight Bar & Grill, 40's TF Mediterranean Grill, Sleepy's Lincoln Park, My Fit Foods, Title Boxing, Compass Bar, and Urban Brain and Body. We also anticipate the opening of three new businesses along Clark St. in 2015.

Most importantly, we would point out how important it is that residents get involved and stay involved in the economic vitality of their neighborhood. The benefits of shopping local and keeping dollars in the neighborhood are well documented; however, the impact of an engaged consumer base is significant as well. Interested residents, businesses and organizations are encouraged to email us at info@lincolnparkchamber.com to discuss the great Lincoln Park community and learn more about how they can work with the LPCC and their neighbors to generate foot traffic, drive sales and impact the corridor's future.

Don't forget to "Make it Lincoln Park" for your shopping, dining, entertainment and service needs.

Yes to free speech; no to fear

While over the years I've agreed with Ann Gerber more than I've disagreed; now, on her advice for crime precautions and awareness [Jan. 21], her "don't try to be a hero" advice is abhorrent. "Ostrich (hide head in sand) security" is wrong. Surrendering to robbers does not equal safety. Killers rob, laugh and shoot you. Many thugs emboldened by successes in ill-gotten gain, will keep robbing giving them chances to hurt others or you again.

After maniac terrorists skyjack and crash planes into the World

Trade Center, African kidnapers behead their prisoners and the Paris murders, I am at war and will act to win.

The long-term gravity of further inciting citizens to subjugate in fear turns people into a reluctant class of 'eternally-worried victims.' I call on Ms. Gerber to retract her 'surrender advice.' I say "yes" to freedom of speech and "no" to ordering us to be fearful.

It's about time – management

IWOC meeting Tuesday focuses on time-saving techniques

Freelance writers are invited to learn about time management during a meeting of the Independent Writers of Chicago [IWOC] on Tuesday.

Many freelance writers feel there aren't enough hours in the day, but IWOC says it's the way those hours are managed that makes the difference between accomplishing much, or not-so-much.

During Tuesday's meeting, IWOC-ers and time management experts Laurel Johnson and Betsy Storm will reveal a myriad of techniques that will help writers save time, work smarter and make every second count.

After having worked for several successful marketing agencies, Johnson created her own career as an independent consultant, formulating successful campaigns for clients from museums to hospitals.

Storm, who has worked as a communications professional for institutions like Northwestern Memorial Hospital, has since been the principal of Top Drawer Communications, helping various business and individuals enhance their images and communicate to a variety of audiences.

Both professionals say time management skills have helped them keep their sanity. They will discuss effective techniques for time tracking, project management, identifying and squelching time wasters, setting priorities and developing doable work plans during the IWOC meeting, which begins with a networking event at 5 p.m. Tuesday in room 4A on the fourth floor of the Gratz Center, 126 E. Chestnut St. Discounted parking is available after 5 p.m., with validation, at the 900 N. Michigan Ave. garage.

The main program will begin at 6 p.m. IWOC members get in free and do not need to register. Cost is $15 for nonmembers or $10 for nonmembers who pre-register online.

Following the meeting, attendees are invited to a nearby restaurant to further discuss writing-related topics or to continue networking. For more information call 800-804-4962.

IWOC is a nonprofit professional association of freelance writers living in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Lakeview Pantry finds new home for the future on Sheridan

At 7,500 square feet, the Lakeview Pantry's new building will nearly double the amount of space for the organization's headquarters.

Lakeview Pantry, which provides emergency food assistance and other critical services to residents of Lakeview and surrounding neighborhoods, has announced that it has completed the purchase of a building that will serve as its new home.

The property, a 7,500 square foot building located at 3945 N. Sheridan Rd. in Lakeview, will nearly double the amount of space for the organization's headquarters.

The property also houses The Houndry, a pet boarding and day care center.

The Pantry had outgrown its longtime home at 3831 N. Broadway and launched a capital campaign in 2012 to raise more than $3 million to fund the property acquisition and build-out. This is the first building purchase for the non-profit organization, which has served the local community since 1970.

"This is a great milestone in our history," said Gary Garland, Lakeview Pantry executive director. "We've had extraordinary community support. People have stepped up in ways big and small to make this dream a reality. This gives us stability for the long term and the opportunity to expand the essential services we provide to the struggling members of our community."

The Pantry's mission is to try to eliminate hunger in the community by providing food to fill the basic need of hungry people, increasing the independence of clients through self-help initiatives and other innovative programs, and raising awareness of hunger and poverty and working towards solutions to eliminate them. They serve over 12,000 people annually and in 2014, the organization distributed approximately 1.5 million pounds of food. In the Lakeview neighborhood, nearly one in nine individuals struggles with poverty and food insecurity.

The Pantry will partner with architecture firm Wheeler Kearns to design the interior space. The building's first floor will house food distribution operations. The second floor will feature private meeting spaces, allowing caseworkers to meet with clients to assess food, healthcare and housing needs. Workspace for the Pantry's staff of approximately 12 also will be located on the second floor.

"This new home gives us the ability to provide more services, more food and more hope for the neighbors we serve," said Dan Laytin, capital campaign co-chair. According to Laytin, the vast majority of the organization's volunteers and donors live within one to four miles of Lakeview Pantry. Eight hundred volunteers donate approximately 25,000 hours of their time to the pantry's efforts each year.

Organizers of the effort to fund the project announced this week that the capital campaign has already achieved more than 75% of its goal. Construction on the building will begin this summer. The target date for completion of the design and build-out is June 2016.

At its current location on Broadway, food distribution takes place three times each week. Clients receive a two-week supply of groceries during each pantry visit. Lakeview Pantry offers home delivery of groceries for elderly, disabled and home-bound clients.

Pantry staff and volunteers also assist clients in obtaining other needed social services such as employment, healthcare, housing and Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program ("SNAP") benefits. In addition to the Broadway location, the Pantry also serves clients at a satellite location at 1414 W. Oakdale.

Seeking healthy seniors for clinical research study on cognitive health

Mild cognitive impairment (MCI) due to Alzheimer's disease (AD) refers to the early phase of AD in which an otherwise healthy-minded person experiences a gradual, progressive decline in thinking ability. This decline is significant enough to be noticed but not severe enough to interfere with daily life or the ability to function independently.

The TOMMORROW study seeks to learn more about the genetic risk for developing MCI due to AD and whether an investigational medication might prove effective in delaying the first symptoms of this condition.

You may be eligible to participate in this important study if you are:

- 65 to 83 years of age
- In good physical and mental health

Police Beat

Police nab pizza delivery robber in Rogers Park

BY MARK SCHIPPER

A J.B. Alberto's delivery driver who told Rogers Park beat officers last Friday night that he was worried about being robbed again promptly had his vehicle broken into while out on a delivery.

This time officers, who had taken the driver at his word, witnessed the crime and arrested an armed 30-year-old male on the 1700 block of Juneway Terrace after he took a pizza from the man's car, police said.

Ramone D. Patterson of the 1600 block of Sherwin Ave. was taken into custody about 9:30 p.m. Jan. 27 in the courtyard of a nearby apartment building. Patterson was charged with Unlawful Possession of a Handgun by a felon after police found a 9mm semiautomatic loaded with 15 rounds tucked into his waistband, police said.

The gun had a bullet racked into the firing chamber and the safety-switch was off when officers pulled the gun from Patterson's pants, according to arresting officers. Patterson said he had survived a shooting in front of his residence and only carried the gun for personal protection, according to the report.

On his way out on a delivery run, the 46-year-old driver had approached a police vehicle parked on the 7700 block of N. Marshfield Ave. and told officers he feared being robbed again in the tight cluster of streets on the far-north side of the city. At least two other drivers had been robbed at gunpoint in that section of Rogers Park, prompting the 24th District on Jan. 26 to issue an armed robbery alert for the area.

The driver asked the officers if they would escort him on the route. The officers told the driver to make the delivery normally and they would meet him at the listed address.

The driver had circled around the block and headed east on Juneway Terrace. The officers went north and turned onto Juneway headed west, toward the driver, according to the report. As they approached in their police vehicle, officers saw a man at the the driver's vehicle remove a pizza box before walking quickly toward an apartment courtyard.

The driver, who had been out of his vehicle with another order, approached and told officers that an unidentified man had just been dropped off by a separate vehicle that continued moving down Juneway and then left the block, according to the report.

Officers stated that when they approached Patterson he could be heard banging on doors and shouting, "Let me in!" When they had reached him, Petterson shouted, "I didn't do anything, why are you talking to me!"

Police said the butt end of the handgun could be seen protruding from Patterson's waistband and he was placed under arrest.

Man alleges English Mastiff mauled him in Washington Square Park

A man is suing the owners of a dog he claims attacked him in a Near North Side park.

Peter Harrison filed suit Jan. 27 against Stanley and Monique Friedman, the owners of a English Mastiff that apparently weighs more than 190 pounds.

According to the complaint, the Friedmans walked their dog to Washington Square Park, 901 N. Clark St. on Nov. 10, 2014, when they let the dog of its leash it mauled Harrison without provocation.

Smoke 'em if you stole 'em

Last Friday former Dept. of Business Affairs and Consumer Protection (BACP) tax and license compliance supervisor Abd Ayesh pleaded guilty to official misconduct and theft of cigarette cartons confiscated by BACP. The Circuit Court of Cook County sentenced Ayesh to two years of probation to include the completion of the Treatment Alternative for Safe Communities' Treatment Program.

Ayesh admitted he stole cigarette cartons from a city evidence room and sold them to his relatives' who re-sold them in their South Side convenience stores. He had been a $66,564-a-year supervisor of tax and license compliance for the city's Dept. of Business Affairs and Consumer Protection when he was arrested.

This concluded a joint investigation by the City's Office of Inspector General, the Cook County State's Attorney, and the FBI which established that, in April of 2010, Ayesh abused his position of employment with the City to steal and sell more than $2,000 worth of unstamped cartons of cigarettes confiscated by city inspectors. A second former City employee who engaged in the criminal scheme with Ayesh cooperated with the investigation.

City street sweeper accused of hitting biker on State St.

A bicyclist is suing the City over claims a city-owned street sweeper struck him back on April 30, 2014.

Mark Anthony Marshall filed suit Jan. 16 in Cook County Circuit Court against the City of Chicago, alleging negligence. According to the complaint, Marshall was riding his bicycle south on State St., near Delaware St., when a city street sweeper hit him, causing him to fall off his bike.

Marshall accuses the operator of the city's street sweeper of driving at an unsafe speed, making an improper U-turn and failing to warn him.

Rapist sentenced to 32 years

A Chicago man has been sentenced to 32 years in prison for the brutal sexual assault of a young woman who was waiting at a CTA bus stop on her way to work when she was attacked on the North Side, according to the Office of Cook County State's Attorneys Office.

Michael Campbell, 29, pled guilty to one count of Aggravated Criminal Sexual Assault and one count of Aggravated Kidnapping charges in connection with the assault of the 21-year-old woman which occurred at 5 a.m. on July 8, 2013 in the 1000 block of N. Western Ave.

Campbell was also at the CTA stop and attempted to engage the victim in a conversation. As the woman took a seat on the bench inside the bus shelter, Campbell grabbed the victim's face and slammed her head against the back of the enclosure. He then punched the victim in the face multiple times, grabbed her and dragged her into a nearby gangway. Campbell then got on top of the victim, struck her in the head and slammed her face against a brick wall.

The victim screamed for help and pleaded with the defendant to stop but Campbell told the victim "stop screaming, I have a gun and I will kill you." The defendant then raped the young woman. The victim suffered multiple contusions and bruising to her head as a result of the attack.

A witness heard the victim's screams and called 911. Campbell fled the scene with the victim's bag but was observed by the witness leaving the gangway where the attack occurred and removing some of his clothing, including a green t-shirt.

Police officers arrived at the scene and recovered the shirt in the alley. Campbell was arrested three days after the attack after police released his photo to the public and a witness identified Campbell. The victim was able to identify Campbell from the images obtained from the video and later in a police line-up.

Man attempts suicide at North Ave. Beach

A man was rescued after he jumped into Lake Michigan adjacent to the North Ave. Beach 3:50 a.m. Sunday morning in what police say was an attempt to commit suicide.

The Chicago Fire Dept. and Marine Unit responded to the scene and pulled the man from the water near the 1600 block of N. Lake Shore Dr. He was taken to the emergency room at Northwestern Memorial Hosp. where he is now in stable condition while under a psychiatric watch.

Police warn about residential burglaries in Lakeview

Police are warning Lakeview residents of recent string of afternoon burglaries taking place on Jan. 14 and 22. The offenders entered by forcing entry through the rear doors. Incident times are listed below 2:50 p.m. Jan. 14 on the 1000 block of W. Altgeld and then at 3:45pm Jan. 22 on the 3000 block of N. Greenview

In the Jan. 14 incident, three offenders enter from the alley before breaking through the rear door. One offender was described as being 5'07" to 5'10" tall, weighing 170-210 lbs., wearing a black hooded sweatshirt under a 3/4 length jacket, with gray Adidas gym shoes with a white stripe. A second offender was described as being 5'07" to 5'10" tall, 190- 220 lbs., wearing a baseball hat with white cursive writing on the front.

Police are asking anyone with information of these crimes to call the Bureau of Detectives – Area North at 312-744-8263 and refer to HY 114941 & HY 124727.

His co-defendant, Maria Baez, is due back in court on March 4. She faces an additional charge of aggravated battery for allegedly colliding with an officer who confronted the pair of robbers.

CTA warns about abuse of U-Pass, confiscates student cards

Chicago Police officers at the Fullerton 'L' stop continued to check U-passes since the turn of the year in an effort to stop an uptick in fraud that they say began before the New Year.

The CTA is on the prowl at other "L" stops near colleges in Chicago as well.

An email from the CTA to students using the cards said misuse of the U-Pass, or use of the card by someone other than the cardholder would result in "confiscation" and "suspension of the students participation" for up to a year.

The U-Pass discount fare program from the CTA is a transportation value for students, many of whom save hundreds of dollars a year with the card.

The use of U-Passes between friends has become commonplace says the CTA and the new policy is designed to eradicate the abuse.

Gang member arrested, charged with reckless discharge of a firearm

Police officers recovered a loaded 9mm pistol Jan. 22 in Rogers Park and arrested the gang member who had fled an investigation allegedly toting the weapon.

Ralph Banks, 18, of the 5500 block of N. Winthrop Ave., was taken into custody on the 6000 block of Winthrop and charged with reckless discharge of a firearm. Officers said the gun had gone off, discharging a single round, when it hit the ground after Banks threw it over a chain-link fence near the scene.

The weapon, a Browning 9mm semi-automatic, was loaded with 19 rounds in a 30 round-capacity clip, police said. Banks is a known Gangster Disciple operating in the Rogers Park area, according to police.

The officers had approached a group of three males just before 8 p.m. when Banks ran through a gangway and into an alley, police said. Officers pursuing him saw Banks running in an alley with the gun in his left hand and watched as he threw it into a parking lot on the 6000 block of Winthrop where it misfired a single round, according to the report.

Convenience store in Ravenswood robbed at gunpoint

The 7-Eleven near W. Foster and N. Ravenswood avenues was robbed at gunpoint Jan. 25.

The clerk on duty when the robbery occurred shortly after midnight said three men had entered the store together. Two of those men went toward the back of the store while the third man approached the register and pointed a handgun at him, according to police reports.

"I'm going to shoot you, open up the register," the man said, according to the clerk.

One of the other men walked up and took cash out of the drawer before all three fled the area on foot. A second employee told officers he had been in back restocking when the robbery occurred and had not seen anything. The clerk estimated the men got around $100 cash out of the register.

Detectives and an evidence technician were called to the scene to review the video evidence, police said. No arrests were made that night.

Loyola student called "fat" by a friend takes it out on Red Eye box

A 23-year-old Loyola Univ. student was arrested after kicking a Red Eye newspaper box into a CTA bus shelter and shattering a glass panel.

The student was charged Jan. 23 with misdemeanor damage to City property after security guards for the university witnessed the act about 1:40 p.m., according to police.

The guards had been patrolling in a marked security vehicle near the intersection of N. Sheridan Rd. and W. Devon Ave. when they saw the offender knock the box into the eastern-facing glass of the shelter.

When they approached the student he allegedly admitted to the act and said he had been upset because a friend called him fat earlier in the day, according to the report.

Prostitution sting on Clark St. nets three "Johns"

A Jan. 24 sting in the 24th Police District netted three prostitution arrests on N. Clark St. near Lunt Ave in Rogers Park.

An undercover officer posing as a prostitute was solicited by three men during a 45 minute stretch between 10 and 11 p.m., police said.

The first offender, 45, offered the officer $20 for sexual intercourse while she stood on the sidewalk on the 7000 block of Clark St.

The second offender, 43, proposed $11 for oral sex and sexual intercourse while the officer stood a short distance north of the first location on Clark St.

The third man, 42, offered the officer $20 for sexual intercourse on the 7000 block of N. Clark St. After being arrested, officers found a half-gram of cocaine in a plastic bag in one of the man's pockets, police said.

Police stop man prowling in alley, find burglary tools

A 51-year-old man was arrested Monday in East Rogers Park and charged with possession of burglary tools after officers found him prowling in an alley.

Officers responded Jan. 26 to several calls received just after 8 a.m. reporting a man snooping around doorways in an alley near the 1300 block of W. Greenleaf Ave. The calls included physical descriptions of the suspected offender and his clothing, police said.

When officers arrived the man was trying handles on locked doors as he proceeded through an alley. When they stopped the man for an interview officers found a 12-inch flathead screwdriver and a multi-tool set he had fixed to use as a pair of pliers, according to the report.

The offender did not have an explanation for being in the alley or a reason for carrying the tools, which often are used to break locks and open doors during burglaries, police said. He was taken into custody and transported to the 24th District for processing.

Man says he was robbed at gunpoint near Loyola Univ.

A man told police he was robbed at gunpoint the morning of Jan. 25 two blocks east of Loyola University's Rogers Park campus.

The victim, 30, said he'd been on the 1300 block of W. Arthur Ave. when a man coming from an alley confronted him shortly after 10 a.m. The unidentified offender was carrying a chrome semi-automatic weapon and ordered the victim to hand over everything he had, police said.

The victim surrendered $30 cash and an unspecified piece of jewelry to the offender, who fled east on Arthur toward the Loyola Red Line CTA station. The victim ran the opposite direction to his girlfriend's house before contacting police, according to the report. The offender was described as a black male, likely in his 20s, about 6-feet 2-inches tall.

More Winter, please!

Uptown Bike Shop, 4653 N. Broadway.

Uptown bike shop plan predicated on helping locals survive Chicago’s bike-eating winters

For the bicyclist daunted by this week’s cold, snow and ice—which Chicago got in spades last winter—a bike shop in Uptown has a system to store your machine in a safe, dry space to escape the wicked weather.

But as Maria Barnes, 48, the owner of Uptown Bikes, 4653 N. Broadway, said, until this week she thought she picked the wrong winter to start the program.

“We were inspired by last year’s Polar Vortex—the cold and snow but also the ice—there were very icy conditions,” said Barnes. “So we thought this year we’d give people the option that if they wanted to store their bikes at a shop, and then tag on some maintenance to that if they wanted to, they could.”

So how many circumspect cyclists have stored their bikes so far this season?

“We haven’t had anybody store them yet,” said Barnes, smiling. “But we don’t mind that, we want to see people riding.”

If a rider does quit hazarding the snow-sloppy streets, leaving that bike outside to bear the brunt of winter’s brutality is the worst thing they can do.

The good new for her is that snow, wind, and cold of the last few days may find business picking up.

“We’ve had a few people do their winter tune-ups, so if you count that as a little bit of storage, people who who commute all year and they know this is the best time for maintenance—not only because the bikes get a little more attention, you save money on winter specials for tune ups. Those people drop them off over the holidays, leave them for a certain period and then get back to town and grab them.”

Nora Gallagher, 36, the shop’s other full-time winter employee, partially attributes the rising numbers to a heartier breed of a cyclist that has developed over the last 10 years or so. More people ride their bikes throughout the year than ever before and the numbers seem to be continually growing.

Gallagher says there is an educated-class of rider who has become old hat at the year-round game, and Uptown Bikes definitely wants to help them stay on the road. But there is another wave of road warriors developing who might need assistance in learning the nuances of proper bike care.

“We have some people who will just call us up and ask: ‘How do I clean my chain?’ ... they are really serious—they want to keep their machine going,” she said.

“People are riding more and that’s great, but there needs to be some education with that. These people are just like anybody else, this is how they get around, they’ve learned to love it, and we want to be a resource for that—we want people to really enjoy it.”

If a rider does quit hazarding the snow-sloppy streets, leaving that bike outside to bear the brunt of winter’s brutality is the worst thing they can do. Gears and chains battered by snow, ice and salt can go to ruin in a hurry. Breaks will stop functioning, gears will refuse to shift, pedals don’t want to turn and the entire chain, gear, cable apparatus can seize up entirely.

“You’d be surprised how quickly things can go if your bike sits in the snow and salt,” said Gallagher.

“You hope it’s just gonna be a lubricate thing, but it’s not, you actually need a whole new part because it’s been seized and we can’t bring it back to life. Sometimes people get lucky, but that’s always disappointing. You know people who had a great bike and really it was in great shape but they come in and it’s like, aw shucks, you need a lot of work on this bike.”

For the rider who does resolve on storing their two wheeler, the process is simple. The shop’s basic intake price is $10. For that, they put the bike up on the rack, wipe it down, go through its component pieces, lubricate the machine and fill its tires with air. The bike is then taken to the basement and hung from the ceiling until you are ready to pick it up. The rolling charge is $15 a month.

“We write up a ticket as if we’re doing service on it, so it’s going to have a tag with it, it’s not going to get misplaced,” said Gallagher. “It’s indoors, in our basement, just like we store all our new bikes, same conditions. And if you did want to tack on service to it you can, and when you’re ready to pick it up, you’re ready to go.”

Barnes has owned and operated Uptown Bikes since 2004. Before that it was Urban Bikes, and more of a community bike shop and youth center—with an emphasis on the camaraderie. Back in those days kids from the area would grow up working in the shop or hanging out there, staying on until they were adults. The shop remains close with several former employees, including one who became an Emergency Medical Technician and another who works in Information Technology, Barnes said.

Uptown was a different neighborhood before 2004, and the new realities of the area—which include a wealthier gentrifying and element and fewer of the mental health clinics, social services and “flop house” hotels—have caused the shop to evolve to a more commuter-oriented approach, without the need for a youth center, according to Barnes. But the conscientious approach to training and hiring has not changed.

On Tuesday, three ladies were working in the shop. Barnes who was handling sales and management, Gallagher, who was servicing bikes, and an apprentice tech from Minnesota who was patching up a flat tire. Barnes herself wore a Susan B. Anthony suffragette pin on her sweatshirt alongside several politically-aware pins.

Traffic jams coming to Marine Dr. with improvement project
As part of a state funded program, Marine Dr., from Lawrence Ave. to Foster Ave., along Lincoln Park will be resurfaced this coming 2015 season.

Theater Week adding more dates
Due to their success in the last few years, Chicago Theatre Week is expanding in 2015. The upcoming celebration of theatre-going in Chicago is returning for its third year and will take place February 12 – 22, spanning a week and two full weekends for the first time.
More than 100 productions are expected to participate as part of this years lineup by offering tickets for $15 or $30, or less.
A few of Chicago Theatre Week's 2015 participating productions include The Selfish Giant at Chicago Children's Theatre; Waiting for Godot at Court Theatre; Rapture, Blister, Burn at the Goodman Theatre; Tannhäuser at the Lyric Opera of Chicago; Tommy at Paramount Theatre; Marie Antoinette at Steppenwolf Theatre Company; Mr. Burns: A Post Electric Play at Theater Wit; and Samsara at Victory Gardens Theater.
The complete list of participating theaters are listed on www.chicagotheatreweek.com. In the past two years, more than 200 shows have offered value-priced tickets to more than 600 performances in one week. North Siders will again have the opportunity to sample a wide range of theatrical offerings throughout Chicagoland.
"The decision to expand Chicago Theatre Week comes in response to the overwhelming success this celebration has seen over the past two years," said Deb Clapp, Executive Director of the League of Chicago Theatres. Chicago Theatre Week is presented by the League of Chicago Theatres in partnership with Choose Chicago.

Cortland St. to be closed Monday
The City's Water Dept. plans to close Cortland St. (and the Cortland St. bridge) between Elston and Clybourn for water main work starting 9 a.m. Monday, and ending no later than 4 p.m. Friday, Feb. 13.
Eastbound Cortland St. passenger cars will be detoured to northbound Ashland, to eastbound Webster, to southbound Clybourn, and back to eastbound Cortland St. The westbound detour will be the reverse. Additional signage will be posted on Elston Ave. as well.
Trucks and oversize/overweight vehicles will be detoured to North Ave. via Elston and Clybourn avenues, because of weight restrictions on the Webster Ave. Bridge.

MORE WINTER from p. 9
"That's 'ladies' with quotation marks," said Barnes, laughing. "We like to say we always encourage women to work at the shop, but we're still a community based shop. When we're looking for employees or prospective employees, we want people who are respectful and compassionate and who want to learn. We hope that most businesses look for that in their employees and we kind of encourage that, and want to project that."
No one has brought in a bike for winter storage—but should that need arise—Uptown Bikes is there to help the community's cyclists one road block at a time.

Local hotel in showdown on Travel Channel

The Guesthouse Hotel, 4872 N. Clark St.

The Guesthouse Hotel faces down competition for $25K prize

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY SHEILA SWANN

Not long ago, the stretch of Clark St. between Lawrence and Argyle was nothing to look at. Bland one and two-story buildings, some occupied, some not. It was the block you or a family member were buried in at St. Boniface Cemetery or had to go to in order to get your car out of hock after being towed by the Lincoln Park Pirates, Lincoln Towing. Now there's a much better reason to rest in peace on that block. The Guesthouse Hotel, 4872 N. Clark St., a well appointed extended stay boutique hotel where they encourage its clients to "live like a local."

They were just named one of Chicago's "Best New Hotels of 2014" in the December issue of Chicago Magazine.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 10, the hotel will get national exposure on the Travel Channel's "Hotel Showdown," where four hoteliers pack their bags and travel to each other's property, judging each one with an exacting eye, along the way. The hotelier with the highest score wins $25,000.

The hour-long episode "Bare Feet and Rock Star Sweets" will show Guesthouse owners Dave and Simona Krug wining and dining their competitors with dinner in the library, catered by local food truck and caterer Fat Shallot, during a 30-hour stay at their hotel.

Their competitors are Copperstone Inn, Rockton, IL, Holiday Music Motel in Sturgeon Bay, WI and the McCormick House Inn in Hayward, WI.

Straddling Uptown and Andersonville, the pet and child-friendly hotel has a modern, chic design, apartment style units with a balcony or deck, a gym, off-street garage parking, a gallery and a boutique offering locally-made soaps, coffees, jewelry and other wares, managed by Shelly Elfstrom. The lobby is inviting with a cozy library, a fireplace and woodwork custom made by Dan Wynne at Square Nail just a few doors south. It's a short distance to bars, shopping, the lakefront and Wrigley Field.

Yes, The Guesthouse has much to offer a visitor who doesn't necessarily want to stay downtown.

But, how much can you show a visitor/competitor in just 30 hours? The real question here is how perfect can your hotel be in the sense of comfort, aesthetics and a good place to lay your head at the end of the night. How did the Krugs come up with the idea of building private person, I never thought I would be on a reality TV show (well maybe The Amazing Race because I love to travel)! The other amazing take away was the collective time I spent with the other hoteliers learning about their businesses and lives. I know that The Guesthouse Hotel is better for having been on the show and I will be a stronger owner."

Does he think the other hoteliers learned anything from him? "Yes, everybody loves The Guesthouse Hotel and we really rolled out the red carpet for the other Hoteliers. We crafted a great itinerary and worked with some of our local Partners for the meals including Jordan Rose from River Valley a hotel where there weren't any to begin with in the first place?

They got into the hotel industry by accident. The Guesthouse Hotel was originally designed to be a 36-unit condo project. "The construction of the buildings couldn't have ended at a worse time," said Dave Krug. "We finished up in late 2008 and The Great Recession was in full force. I needed to find a way to keep the building, so I started off renting out a few units as vacation rentals and was blown away by the response. We continued to add more units and worked with our alderman (James Cappelman, 46th) to receive a special use to allow for a hotel on site and the rest is history."

Krug says it was a great opportunity for his business, but he learned from it as well. "I learned it's good to take a risk and get out of your comfort zone. As a fairly Farmers Table and Sarah Weitz and Sam Barron from The Fat Shallot. Simona and I are Ambassadors for Mollydooker Wines and Simona did a really cool wine tasting for the other Hoteliers. Everything we showcased are programs we've helped guests organize in the past, so if anyone sees something on the show that they would like to recreate for friends or business associates, please let us know."

Now that the show has been filmed, edited and is ready to air, Krug has implemented a few changes.

"One big idea we took from the show was to push for more special events including weddings, corporate retreats, baby showers, and business meetings. The Copperstone Inn does over 100 special events a year and was a great resource for us. The show also gave us a chance to look at our business from all angles and really concentrate on some fine-tuning. We focus on group and family travel, but also have loyal business travelers. We are probably one of the only concepts out there that can cater to both group, leisure and business travel and do it very well. We've been so overwhelmed by [our] success that we recently purchased some land in Austin, TX, and will be building our second property soon."

Did Krug have fun? "I had a blast!," he said. "I like the other Hoteliers and feel like our group blended really well. I'm excited to see how the show looks and feels. I also loved hanging out with the crew and learning a little bit about their industry."

Lawrence Hall announces selection of new CEO

Improvements needed for troubled Lincoln Square youth service provider

The Lawrence Hall Youth Services Board of Trustees announced Monday the selection of Kara Teeple as their new CEO. Kara joined Lawrence Hall, 4833 N. Francisco, in 2013 and has served as Chief Operating Officer [COO] and most recently as Interim CEO since June 2014.

Lawrence Hall was excoriated by a Chicago Tribune investigation last December as part of a series on the state’s inability to manage troubled and ‘at risk’ youth.

Founded in 1865, Lawrence Hall Youth Services has been know as one of the states foremost child welfare institutions delivering care to children, many of whom have experienced significant traumas in their lives. Last

According to the reports, “Amid staff shortages, youths are raped, assaulted and running away and many come out more battered than when they were admitted.” Horrendous crimes were being committed by youths on and off site, many which were witnessed by staff and other youth.

Board of Trustees and staff that change was needed.

Conditions inside Lawrence Hall, detailed in thousands of pages of juvenile case records reviewed by the Tribune, highlighted the crisis in Illinois’ loosely monitored system for caring for and housing disadvantaged youths, some who have behavioral and mental health problems.

According to the reports, “Amid staff shortages, youths are raped, assaulted and running away and many come out more battered than when they were admitted.” Horrendous crimes were being committed by youths on and off site, many which were witnessed by staff and other youth.

Teeple brings to the position over 20 years of experience in working in social services and child welfare, including various senior roles in the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services (DCFS) and positions with Catholic Charities and the Allendale Assoc.

In her time at Lawrence Hall, Teeple directed numerous programs and implemented system reforms. Her continued day-to-day operations include over-seeing residential treatment, foster care, independent and transitional living, workforce development, the therapeutic day school and specialized service programming.

The facility is required to send a report to DCFS every time an employee learns of or witnesses a crime or when one of the wards is put in danger so as COO she is well-aware of the troubles that are plaguing the institution. She acknowledged to the Tribune that many of the children they’ve taken in in recent years have troubled histories of trauma, absenteeism, criminal behavior and juvenile detention, and that the institution had room to improve.

“We are very fortunate to have someone as experienced and qualified as Kara who can be a continued advocate for our youth and their families. [She] exemplifies our mission and is committed to providing the most innovative and effective programming and treatment designed to provide our youth with better opportunities step down into a safe and reliable family or caregiver home setting,” said Mark McCareins, Board President.

Despite DNA evidence, no Asian carp in Chicago River, says IDNR

This map by Great Lakes Commission of Illinois waterways near Chicago shows Brandon Lock and Dam in lower left corner and the electric barriers north of there, on the other side of Lockport Lock and Dam. The red dot at upper right marks where the Chicago River meets Lake Michigan.

Apparently they don't like Chicago's small rivers

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

Bighead carp? Silver carp? Grass carp? The Asian Carp Removal Project does not discriminate. Over 2.1 million pounds of the nuisance fish have been removed from Illinois waterways since 2010. All of which was south of Romeoville, though. The Illinois Department of Natural Resources [IDNR] says it has never found Asian carp in the Chicago River and it is not for lack of trying.

Asian carp DNA in the Chicago River does not worry the IDNR like it used to. They are looking for the entire fish and so far they have been mostly unsuccessful.

When the “eDNA” of Asian carp, or DNA found in the water and not on the fish, started showing up near downtown Chicago about four years ago, the IDNR responded to what it saw as evidence that the large, hungry, and prolific Asian carp was trying to get from the Mississippi River to the Great Lakes. The Chicago River is one of five pathways.

Most recently, on October 20, 2014, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service collected 57 samples from the river and found the DNA of silver carp, a variety of Asian carp, in five of the samples.

In recent years, the IDNR has learned more about eDNA and they have learned more about Asian carp.

“Our understanding of eDNA has changed,” says Kevin Irons, manager or the IDNR’s Aquaculture and Aquatic Nuisance Species Program. “We don’t react to eDNA alone.”

The Asian carp DNA they are finding in the Chicago River may very well have got there on the hulls of boats or by birds that ate the fish.

“Not only can one meal of carp spread eDNA but the way their digestive system works, it will spread eDNA for a week.”

Irons says the IDNR has been trying to find Asian carp north of electric barriers near Romeoville, IL, about 31 miles southwest of Chicago.

“We spent thousands of hours

A 54-inch-long, 82-pound Asian carp caught in a pond in Chicago. State officials believe the carp was unintentionally stocked along with catfish 10-20 years ago. Photo obtained from Illinois Department of Natural Resources.

The closest they believe larger numbers of Asian carp have got to Lake Michigan is 55 miles away on the Des Plaines River and that is as close as they will ever get because, says Irons, the carp does not like our small rivers.

out there with commercial fishers. We caught a bighead carp in Lake Calumet in 2010 but haven’t caught anything since.”

The closest they believe larger numbers of Asian carp have got to Lake Michigan is 55 miles away on the Des Plaines River and that is as close as they will ever get because, says Irons, the carp does not like our small rivers.

Asian carp came here from the Mississippi River, the fourth longest river in the world, but he points out their native habitat is the Yangtze River, the third longest. While there is plenty of food for them on the Chicago River, they seem to lose interest the closer they get.

“They’ll stray up. They’ll go up below the Brandon Lock and Dam. But they don’t seem to linger there. The Asian carp, they’ll go up there and then they’ll turn around and go back downstream.”

Since 2010, the IDNR estimates it has removed 160,656 Asian carp from Illinois waterways. In Will County Forest Preserve alone, 900 Asian carp were removed. And they are not taking chances. At last count 32 bighead carp have been removed from landlocked ponds in the Chicago area.

Deal brings fast 4G network to the CTA's Subway, targeted to be completed by the end of 2015

Last Friday the CTA announced a $32.5 million deal, brokered by the Chicago Infrastructure Trust, with America's four major wireless providers to finance a network modernization project for the CTA to upgrade the wireless network in the City's subway system.

T-Mobile, AT&T, Verizon, and Sprint have collectively agreed to fund the entire upgrade related to the design and construction of a next-generation Distributed Antenna System (DAS) capable of supporting the latest 4G wireless networks and mobile devices. The network upgrade, which began earlier this month, will help improve first responder communications throughout the tunnel system, while also giving subway riders the opportunity to have a faster mobile experience throughout their commutes.

"By adding 4G wireless service all throughout the CTA, we are bringing 21st century technology to every rider on every line of our transit system," said Mayor Emanuel.

Upon completion of the upgrade, which is expected by the end of 2015, Chicago will be the largest city in North America to have a subway system with full 4G wireless coverage across its entire system of subway stations and tunnels. Specifically, there will be continuous 4G coverage crossing 22 miles from O'Hare airport through the underground tunnels and platforms of the Red and Blue Lines, the CTA's two busiest rail lines.

"The current wireless technology in Chicago's subway system dates back 10 years, predating most smartphones and many mobile devices," said Neville Ray, Chief Technology Officer, T-Mobile, the project's lead wireless provider. "We are thrilled to bring the millions of Chicago subway riders the benefits of an improved wireless experience and we are committed to a strong partnership and successful implementation."

"The network modernization project not only improves our commuters' experience by offering faster and more robust wireless services that supports today's tablets and smartphones, but it also increases system safety measures by providing more reliable communication between CTA personnel and emergency responders," said the mayor.

This initiative is one of several efforts by the City and CTA to modernize the City's infrastructure and improve Chicago's transit system. Over the past three years, several technology improvements have been implemented across Chicago's transit system, including expansion of Train Tracker and Bus Tracker functionality, digital information and train tracker screens at rail stations, and a dramatically expanded security camera network. The design and installation of the system will create approximately 50 jobs.

The Chicago Infrastructure Trust was created in April 2012 to assist the people of the City of Chicago.

Going gluten-free getting easier in America's breadbasket

Lakeview restaurant a haven for delicious meal without gluten worries

BY GABRIELLE WEISS

Going gluten-free in America's breadbasket is getting easier, at least in Chicago. Much more than a simple trend, access to good gluten-free food options is on the rise and bringing relief to a growing subset of the population that is often misdiagnosed, misunderstood and underserved.

Gluten, a naturally occurring component found in grains like wheat, barley and rye cause a host of dangerous symptoms for people who react abnormally to gluten. According to the National Foundation for Celiac Awareness, the vast majority, or 80%, of people with celiac disease remain undiagnosed or misdiagnosed. Currently, it is believed that 1 in 133 Americans has celiac disease. Going gluten-free is the only existing treatment for people with celiac disease, and for people who are gluten intolerant or have non-celiac sensitivity.

Ed O'Brien, the owner of Bountiful Eatery, 3312 N. Broadway, a gluten-free restaurant in Lakeview, suffered greatly prior to getting diagnosed with gluten intolerance 10 years ago. Unable to get answers about what was wrong with him, O'Brien, like many others in his predicament, began to do his own research. "My digestive track was still a mess. I felt weak; my stomach was always bloated. I wasn't my energetic and athletic self that I had been. Somewhere, I don't recall where, things were linked to dietary issues, and from that I discovered the word gluten. I had never heard of it. I had worked in the food industry for years, but no one mentioned gluten though," he said.

Much has changed in the food industry since his diagnosis. Today, a simple internet search for gluten-free brings up many blog sites, resources and savory recipes. Back then, however, O'Brien's food options were dismal. "It was horrible, it was like cardboard," he said. O'Brien began to learn how to adapt to his diagnosis and move on with his life knowing that he was limited to mostly tasteless food choices.

"This is an emotional thing—food is social," said Carol Shilson, executive director of the Univ. of Chicago Celiac Disease Center. "Out there you have to explain. Over the years, support groups have formed because it is such a unique experience."

Bountiful Eatery has become a go-to place for many in the area, including schools for field trips. It is a safe choice as food allergens become more prevalent in our society. A passionate advocate himself, O'Brien also works to educate the local community by partnering up with gyms, schools and other local advocates. He regularly posts on his restaurant's website as well.

According to Shilson, the prevalence of celiac disease alone has been on a steep increase over the past 20 years. "We are an underserved community in an environment that isn't very understanding," she said.

"The last four or five years have been much more positive and that's a really good indication of what's to come. For instance, the FDA passed what it means to label food as gluten-free."

These changes are being reflected in the marketplace. Packaged Facts, a leading publisher of market research, recently stated that total sales for gluten-free food approached $1 billion in 2014. In key categories, sales jumped 20%. Package Facts forecasts a 20% growth in the gluten-free category making it a $2.3 billion market by 2016.

Although there are more options available to people who have an abnormal reaction to gluten, Shilson warns that there is still a lot of misinformation. "This makes it dicey for traveling and eating out. Plan ahead; pack your bag," she recommended. "No one is currently held to a standard and there can always be cross-contamination. Call ahead and talk to the chef directly."

Bountiful Eatery is a haven for those who want to eat out and enjoy a fast, casual, delicious meal without gluten worries. "I have control of the menu and if it's not tasty—it's not on the menu." Curry bowls, ancient grains, kale, poultry and an array of options grace the pages of the restaurant's menu which also includes handmade and refreshing smoothies. Bountiful Eatery was voted to have the best bison burger by Grub Hub and was featured by Zagat as Best-Gluten-free-Friendly restaurants in Chicago.

Drugs fuel confrontation in Uptown parking lot

BY MARK SCHIPPER

A 70-year-old man was charged with felony drug possession and aggravated battery after police were called in to quell a confrontation over a parking spot at Parc Paris apartments in Uptown. Officers arrested Stanley Tharp in the parking lot at 941 W. Carmen Ave. after arriving about 6:40 p.m. to witness the tail end of a fight in which Tharp menaced the 31-year-old building assistant with his vehicle, according to a report. Tharp, according to Barbara Barker, the victim, had revved up his vehicle and charged her multiple times as she attempted to leave an assigned parking spot that Tharp pays to use after 6 p.m. Barker had gotten out of her vehicle and was waving her arms and shouting at Tharp to stop as he reversed to make a longer run at her. Barker believes the only reason Tharp did not hit her on the final charge was because police arrived and sounded their emergency equipment directly behind him. Tharp had denied menacing Barker but officers had witnessed the end of the confrontation and Barker signed the complaints against Tharp to have him arrested. “I worked remotely for three days after that,” said Barker. “I told the owner that day that I quit, and I’m gone March 1.” While being taken into custody Tharp was asked if he had anything that could be a danger to officers and responded that he was carrying crack/cocaine in the sleeve of his jacket, according to the report. Officers found a plastic bag with more than four grams of crack in Tharp’s jacket, police said. According to a Clark County, IN, prosecutor’s website crack/cocaine can cost up to $160 per gram. Possession of the drug, a Schedule I narcotic, is a Class 4 felony with a possible prison sentence of 1-3 years in the Cook County Dept. of Corrections. The fine can be as high as $25,000. When Tharp bonded out of jail Barker said she started suffering involuntary reactions associated with post-traumatic stress. “I was shaking when they said he got out of jail, my eye was twitching for a few days afterwards,” said Barker. “I was afraid he was going to hurt me. I thought he was going to be in jail for a long time.” Barker, along with contractors doing work at the building, have authorization to use the spot during the day up to 6 p.m. She had been working late in the office when Tharp arrived in the building about 6:25 p.m. and pounded on the office door, she said. He had sworn at her, blocked her path out of the office and then followed on her heels out to the parking lot where the serious confrontation occurred, Barker said. “Sober, he’s a smart guy and very calm and collected,” said Barker. “I know he doesn’t have any psychological problems so when there are these things it’s probably due to drugs.” Barker said she is waiting to be contacted by Cook County prosecutors and plans to testify against Tharp in court. He is schedule to appear in felony court February 15, according to the report.

Barker believes the only reason Tharp did not hit her on the final charge was because police arrived and sounded their emergency equipment directly behind him.

 NOTICE OF SALE
 PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on December 9, 2014, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on March 13, 2015, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive - 24th Floor, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following de- scribed real estate:

Commonly known as 15617 S. CHURCH AV- ENUE, South Holland, IL 60473

Property Index No. 29-15-221-002-0000 VOL- 0207. The real estate is improved with a single family residence. The judgment amount was $40,076.48.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by cer- tified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Muni- cipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or frac- tion thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirma- tion by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admon- ished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mort- gagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

Where a sale of real estate is made to satisfy a lien prior to that of the United States, the United States shall have one year from the date of sale within which to redeem, except that with respect to a lien arising under the internal revenue laws the period shall be 120 days or the period allowable for redemption under State law, whichever is longer, and in any case in which, under the provisions of section 505 of the Housing Act of 1950, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1701k), and subsection (d) of section 3720 of title 38 of the United States Code, the right to redeem does not arise, there shall be no right of redemption.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOMEOWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

NOTICE OF SALE PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on October 30, 2014, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on February 18, 2015, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive - 24th Floor, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate: Commonly known as 3514 N. LEAVITT STREET, CHICAGO, IL 60618 Property Index No. 14-19-303-033. The real estate is improved with a single family residence. Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale. Where a sale of real estate is made to satisfy a lien prior to that of the United States, the United States shall have one year from the date of sale within which to redeem, except that with respect to a lien arising under the internal revenue laws the period shall be 120 days or the period allowable for redemption under State law, whichever is longer, and in any case in which, under the provisions of section 505 of the Housing Act of 1950, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1701k), and subsection (d) of section 3720 of title 38 of the United States Code, the right to redeem does not arise, there shall be no right of redemption. The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1). IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOMEOWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales. provided 60,000 homework help sessions at most of its neighborhood branches.

The homework help program has been so successful “they’re on track to do 100,000 sessions this year,” he added.

A mentoring program exposes Chicago’s grade-schoolers and high school students to connect with tutors who can teach them advanced technology skills. “Learning coding and programming from a very early age can make things less intimidating and help them speak the language of the 21st century,” Bannon said.

“One teen, Philip, has be working with a graphic design mentor at the Harold Washington Library for the past couple years” and has been designing T-shirts that have been showcased at the Washington D.C. Kennedy Center. He’s a budding entrepreneur who hasn’t yet graduated from high school.”

“Whether or not Philip becomes a graphic designer, he was able to take this to the next level,” wherever that takes him, he said.

The library’s high-tech manufacturing training program brought in two surgeons from Loyola Medical Center who wanted to 3-D print a patient’s skull so they could use it as a guide in the operating room. Custom models used for that purpose cost about $4,000 and take about two or three weeks to make. They had it within an afternoon,” Bannon said.

A pilot Internet “hot spot” lending program at three South Side libraries will try to bridge the “digital divide” by allowing patrons to check out the mobile devices, said Mayor Rahm Emanuel, who joined Bannon at the podium. [Mayor Emanuel’s first act when he was elected to office in 2011 was to replace former library Comr. Mary Dempsey with Bannon.]

Roughly a third of all Chicago households do not have access to computers and 19% of the population have never been on line, Bannon said.

The lending program also allows patrons to borrow laptops and tablets. Each library will have 10 tablets available for rent.

The program follows a 2011 study that found in-home transmission broadband use barely reaches 50% in the lowest-income neighborhoods.

After the “hot spot” program has been tested, the city plans to try it in three more libraries.

“We are committed to working with public and private entities to bridge the digital divide throughout the city,” said Bannon.

The program is being paid for with a $400,000 grant from Knight News Challenge.

While there have been great libraries dating to the one at Alexandria, Egypt, founded in 330 B.C., they were only open to the elite, Bannon said. “In those days, information was not shared; it was controlled.”

It wasn’t until about 300 years ago that libraries became truly public, he said. “Benjamin Franklin believed they were essential to democracy. He believed in both public education and public libraries,” where many of the important scientific experiments were conducted.

Today’s libraries aren’t just “warehouses for books,” but active centers of knowledge, said Bannon, who had a very personal reason for being interested in libraries at an early age.

Bannon said he grew up in a small rural town in Washington state where he struggled with reading and writing. “Fortunately my parents realized I needed some extra help and it was the local public library that provided that help,” he said, adding that he also learned computers and “saw my library as a gateway to opportunities far beyond the town I grew up in.”

Key findings from the report

The slow recovery of jobs in the U.S. has done little to improve the job market connections of teens across the nation and in Chicago.

- In the nation and in Illinois about 26 to 27% of teens were employed on average.
- In Chicago the employment rate fell to just half of the state and national average.
- Just 13% of Chicago's 16-to 19-year old residents were working on average over the three year period.
- The chances of a significant increase in teen employment rates in Illinois or Chicago are not strong. The state ranked 46th among all states in its pace of new job creation, posting a rate of new job gains that was two-thirds slower than the nation as a whole.
- The state's job market had added just 67 jobs during the current recovery for every 100 jobs lost during the recession, ranking Illinois 43rd among all 50 states.
- In 2012-13 Chicago Black teens' employment rate stood at 10.5%, while 21.2% of Hispanic teens in Chicago were employed and 30.3% of White teens.
- A startling 91% of teenaged Black males in Chicago were jobless in 2012-13.
- Only 20% of Hispanic teens in Chicago

$1.7 billion in state and local tax revenues.

Over the last 20 years, Illinois has lost 1.36 million people to other states on net, according to the USCB. That is equivalent to 1.1 million IRS taxpayers plus dependents, and $45.6 billion in annual AGI.

Due to the last 20 years of flight, the annual tax-revenue loss to state and local governments is approximately $7.6 billion.

Last April Gallup released a stunning poll that shows 50% of State residents wanted to leave the state, the highest percentage of any state nationally. Illinois also had a worst-in-the nation performance in that poll that showed 25% of the state’s residents consider Illinois to be the worst possible place to live.

The top reason people gave for leaving Illinois was for job and business opportunities.

Chicago teens face barren job market, entry level jobs now going to elderly

Few of the local politicians running for office today are boasting about a group of former out-of-school students who now attend Alternative Schools Network (ASN) high schools or community-based programs that appeared before a panel of state and local public officials last Friday.

Those youths fleshed out the cold, hard statistics from a new report on youth joblessness in Chicago with their own real-life experiences on the impact of being unable to find jobs.

The ASN is a not-for-profit Chicago organization that works to provide quality education with a specific emphasis on inner-city children, youth and adults. Since 1973, ASN has been supporting community based and community-run programs to develop and expand training and other educational services in Chicago’s inner-city neighborhoods.

Their new report provides a comparative analysis of youth unemployment between Chicago and the U.S. It was released at a Chicago Urban League youth hearing titled “Youth Employment A Smart Investment.”

Despite an on-again / off-again national economic recovery, Chicago is unfortunately one of the nation’s leaders in teenage youth joblessness, with low-income Black and Hispanic teens continuing to fall significantly behind the rest of the nation. Joblessness was especially high among male teens from the lowest-income families in these two groups.

The report, “A Frayed Connection: Joblessness among Teens in Chicago,” conducted by Paul Harrington, director of the Center for Labor Markets and Policy and an education professor at Drexel Univ., were employed in 2012-13.

- The employment rate among Chicago's Black male teens dropped to 11% in 2012-13 from 18% in 2006-07, compared to a drop from 17.8% to 11.4% in Illinois and from 23.5% to 16.9% in the nation as a whole.
- Just 11% of Chicago teens from the lowest household income group (less than $20,000) were employed in 2012/2013 while the rate rose to 15.2% among teens in $20,000-$40,000 income group, to 19.4% among $60,000-$79,000 income group, and to nearly 30% among $100,000-$150,000 income group.
- In Illinois 15.7% of the lowest-income teens were employed in that period, compared to 19.2% nationwide.
- Only 10% of Black teens and 13% of Hispanic teens from low-income households in Illinois were employed in 2012/2013.
- In Chicago only 7.3% of Black teens in that lowest income group, 13.4% of Hispanic and 17.7% of Whites were employed.
- In 2013 1% of teens and young adults in the city of Chicago were disconnected - both out-of-school and out-of-work - which was five to six percentage points higher than Illinois and the U.S. average.

uses recent American Community Survey data and is part of an ongoing series commissioned by ASN. [To read the full report go to www.asnchicago.org.]

“We found that Illinois in general and especially Chicago are lagging behind the rest of the nation in job creation,” said Harrington. “And teenagers lost more than everyone, partly to workers 55 and over, and especially those 65 and over, who are retiring and then taking entry-level jobs that formerly went to teens,” he said.

Illinois “has a clearly demonstrated need to invest in the young people who are your future,” Harrington said. “The consequences of failing to do so are dire. Teens and young adults who are out of school and out of work, these disconnected youth, face adverse labor market consequences in their adult years, including higher incidence of unemployment, reduced earnings, and higher incidence of poverty. Among young males, being out of school and out of work is strongly linked to incarceration. Out-of-school and out-of-work young females have higher probability of being single mothers, being jobless, and being poor which have adverse impacts on the well-being of their children.”

“Right now we are fighting an uphill battle,” said Andrea L. Zopp, president and CEO of the Chicago Urban League. “Our organization has provided mentoring and employment opportunities that our young people so desperately need through our programs. But we need the resources to expand these programs. If we hope to make sustainable progress we need to continue to invest in our youth and their future.”

Established in 1916, the Chicago Urban League is a civil rights organization that tries to empower and inspire individuals to reach and exceed their economic potential through an agenda focused exclusively on economic empowerment as the key driver for social change.

“When the economy crashed eight years ago, Chicago’s teens were already in crisis,” said Jack Wuest, executive director, ASN. “As we see from this report, this crisis has grown even worse. The number of low-income African American and Hispanic teens who are unable to find employment and are disengaged from both work and school is staggering. Creating meaningful work for these youth will pay dividends immediately and for years to come. A failure to do so will have dire consequences for our city and our state.”
