“Toni Speedwinkle” Board President roars through town

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle says she does not condone speeding. She says any speeding tickets issued to her county car “are paid.” We found the truth to be a little different.

There must have been quite a political emergency in the Austin neighborhood at 11:15 a.m. on Sunday, Feb. 25. That’s when Preckwinkle’s county car—captured on video—went barreling along Central Ave. at 45 MPH in a 30 MPH park zone. (She’s lucky. On school days, the speed limit is 20 MPH.)

The emergency lights on Preckwinkle’s car were flashing. In the video, you can even see an oncoming driver pull over to make room. The driver was probably wondering what terrible emergency the oncoming SUV with flashing lights was heading to.

Toni Preckwinkle.

It wasn’t really an emergency. Preckwinkle has yet to pay the $100 ticket, according to a City of Chicago website.

Back in Oct. 2016, a reporter tweeted a speed cam pic of Preckwinkle’s county car barreling down South Cottage Grove at 47 MPH in a 30 MPH zone. Emergency lights a-blasting.

When we asked on her Twitter site @Toni-Preckwinkle “Will the $100 speed cam ticket be waived?” Preckwinkle tweeted back the next morning: “I don’t condone speeding. Any tickets issued are paid.”

One small problem, the ticket didn’t have to be paid. It was dismissed, according to the city’s website.

That’s right. City of Chicago records show that Preckwinkle didn’t “pay” the ticket she said she would. Somebody contested it and had it thrown out.

Saying “any tickets issued are paid” and then turning around and having that exact same ticket dismissed is almost as bold as speeding around the city with your emergency lights on for no apparent reason.

Since March 2015, Preckwinkle’s primary county car has been cited 10 times for speeding in Chicago:

- One ticket was a warning.
- Six tickets were paid.
- Two speed cam tickets are unpaid.
- One speed cam ticket has been dismissed.

Police Strategic Decision Support Center up and running

Officers in the Strategic Decision Support Center.

The Chicago Police Department’s (CPD) 12th District went live March 1 with a Strategic Decision Support Centers (SDSC) focused on technologies predicting, preventing, combating and responding to crime. They are the 11th station to go online, with all the new technologies. Districts that preceded them are 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 15 and 25.

In early 2017, the CPD launched Strategic Decision Support Centers in districts that have presented historical challenges with violence.

Large screens and new computers on the inside, POD crime cameras, Shot Spotter and mobile phones on the outside coupled with several software systems are the components of the new department wide technology initiative. However the 12th District does not have Shot Spotter.

Up and running 24-hours a day in a newly equipped room, there are at least two officers manning the SDSC 365 days a year in the 12th District. One is responsible for administrative activity and the other the online monitoring, while also listening to the radios to provide any other possible assistance to officers on the beat.

A civilian Univ. of Chicago data analyst, who will collect and analyze data trends, and who partners with the District Intelligence Officer to coordinate the information directly with patrol units in the field, is also part of the 12th District team. He is an Evanston Police officer who worked to get the room set up and is helping with administration and training.

SDSC officers have three computers with five desktop screens, four of which also display on large wall hung screens. Officers in that room can be “on the scene” a lot faster with a few taps of computer keys than the officers in a car or on foot.

On one screen, they have access to any camera owned by the City of Chicago, the Chicago Transit Authority, Dept. of Transportation and Chicago Public Schools. Even private businesses can opt into the online program. On some cameras, they can manipulate them to get a better 360 view, on others they can only zoom in and out.

In addition to accessing cameras, SDSC officers can see a list of calls entered by the Office of Emergency Management and Communications (OEMC) “911” and “311.” Officers can click on a specific record then see the details on the call. “We can record incidents, bookmark them, take photos and snap shoots, then email them to the officer on the scene. This is an officer safety issue too,” explained Officer Nelson Rivera.

All of this is possible via overlays of resources shown on a map on one screen next to the monitor showing the live camera views. Overlays include icons for cameras, officers and incoming OEMC calls.

To illustrate, Rivera opened a

Skimming guru set free, goes AWOL

*After month-long pause, new skimmer discovered
on North Side*

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

It’s probably just a coincidence, but three days after a man charged with possessing a stack of skimmed debit cards skipped bail, police recovered a skimming device last Friday from an ATM in Lincoln Square.

According to police records, this was the first skimming device recovered by police on the North Side since suspected skimming guru Marius Manolache was arrested Feb. 11.

The skimmer was found around 1 o’clock, Mar. 23 on an ATM at Walgreens, 4801 N. Lincoln, police said. An evidence technician was seen retrieving the device a couple of hours later.

Skimmers are small devices that criminals plant on ATMs to secretly capture users’ banking information and PINs. After allowing the sneaky contraptions to collect data for a period of time, fraudsters return to the ATM, collect the skimmers, and then create fake ATM cards using the captured data.

A couple dozen skimmers had Yo-Yo Ma playing with Swift students.

Yo-Yo Ma visits Swift and Senn schools

As part of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra’s CSO Connect program, Swift students were treated to a performance by the members of the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, along with special guest Yo-Yo Ma. After the performance, students performed their own original music compositions for Ma that amplify the learning they’ve done in their science and social studies classes.

Two of the pieces performed explored two very different, but similar subjects: The impact of climate change on our planet and the impact of bullying on the human body. Yo-Yo Ma and Swift students also paid honor to the young people in Florida and in Chicago who have lost their lives to gun violence.

Yo-Yo Ma then visited Senn High School to mark the beginning of a partnership with the Negaunee Music Institute at the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Civic musicians, and Yo-Yo played together with Senn music students in a side by side rehearsal that featured two pieces of music that will be performed with the full Civic Orchestra at Senn High School on Sunday, April 29.

Leading up to this performance, students will have several opportunities to work with Civic musicians in master class settings.

Problem isn't humor, it's loudness of our laughter

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Has your laugh ever turned you into a laughing stock? Does your cackle transform you into a hyena? When you howl are bystanders likely to be showered with food? When you double up in laughter does your mouth stand fully agape, and get you expelled from a finishing school?

Does your laugh break the sound barrier at times, as well as the ear drums of people nearby?

Dinner in two posh restaurants, recently, drew my attention to the foul manners that some diners have. They, regretfully, have no inside voice, no interior mechanism softening their vocal chords when they are in more quiet, intimate surroundings. They seem to laugh boisterously everywhere they go like they were on the deck of a pirate ship. Like chubby ceds in a college bar looking for acceptance, a boyfriend and free beer.

When did this disgraceful behavior of opened-mouthed, uncontrolled laughter begin to fill the better restaurants and environs of our city's past graceful behavior? Do parents not explain to their children that the louder they are, the less people will like them and contributes to their social decline?

It is unpopular to be a debutante, but who actually chooses to move through society sounding like Ronnie Woo-Woo? Who goes out for dinner, paying $65 for an entrée and remains content to sit beside people laughing like Harry Caray before the 7th Inning Stretch?

Perhaps it's the fact that many people only socialize in t-shirts and baseball caps, like they are always at a Sox game. Perhaps it's the discarding of blazers and tweed jackets or custom shirts and rep ties? Take a look around at the number of people who are out for dinner in gym sweats or athletic clothes, most would be unacceptable at a picnic in these get ups. So perhaps it's unreasonable to expect anything better when adults dress as teenagers and behave like learning disabled thugs and unwashed cretans.

At a recent lunch with six people beside me at a round table, each time someone spoke they raised their voice louder than the person who was speaking, as if to say, 'stop talking and listen to me.' Perhaps loud talking, like loud laughter, is a way a seeking attention and getting noticed. Fighting for your just desserts. Or merely recognition.

The cackles of the upper register's banal laughter seemed to grow with every Moscow Mule and Bloody Mary.

I used to love the way old Mayor Daley laughed, the deep humor of a gentleman, a polished man appreciative of life's ironic hilarity. Mayor Harold Washington also had an infectious laugh of dancing crescendo. You just wanted to embrace his laughter and keep it around. And Mayor Daley the younger had his own brand of laughter that was captivating. Like the boys in the back row of the classroom who could not contain their laughter, no matter how hard they tried.

Come to think of it, Chicago's a lucky place. I'll bet most cities don't have mayors who are such proponents of good humor. Between the three of them we're looking at 70 years of mayoral laughter.

But they neither cleared the room with their laughter or shattered any chandeliers.

The real power of laughter is shaped by personal character as it celebrates the nuances of human irony. Life has devised great triggers for laughter, from the banana peel to the dirty joke. And there are many ways that humans respond with spontaneous emotion and appreciative impact to them all. It is found in many expressions. How do you do it? How do you laugh? What's your trigger?

There are a lot of ways to do it. There's the nervous laugh, the breathy laugh, the teary-eyed laugh, the side-splitting laugh, the quiet titter laugh, the giddy laugh, the belly laugh, the under your breath laugh, the inebriate's laugh, the psychotic's laugh, the evil laugh and the laugh of relief.

There are many who think that laughter should soothe and incubate us. Keeping us from taking ourselves too seriously, or seeing ourselves as too important or indispensable.

The Irish think that laughter is a lilt, as the song goes. In it they say "You can hear the angels sing." If only.

I just wish that we had a ceiling to the loudness of our laughter. I'm no killjoy, making people laugh has always been one of my pursuits. From my pleased-as-punch father to my enraged fifth grade nun Sister Lamberta; from a bar full of Irish comedians, to a room full of humorless lawyers, I have always been willing to go a few rounds in the humor department.

My problem isn't humor. It's loud laughing. But maybe I'm wrong. Maybe it's a Chicago thing, like bagpipes in a parade. Maybe loud laughter is a political defense mechanism, like when the feds are banging on your front door at 3 a.m. (They like to wake your whole house up when they early morning arrest you, scaring your wife and terrifying your children.)

Maybe loud laughter drowns out the complaints and criticism of local governmental affairs. Maybe if it's loud enough you won't have to hear the sound of newspaper editorials or investigations about crooked pols and dirty cops.

Maybe if your laughter is loud enough you won't hear the sound of gun shots or the sirens of the ambulances carting away the dead, now at all time highs. Maybe if the laughter is loud enough, we will hear the angels sing, and our politicos can be able to get themselves elected again.

RAMBLER SUNSHINE: Sister Jean Dolores Schmidt, 98, has been Loyola U.'s secret weapon since 1994. Officially she's the team's chaplain. Her duties are prayer, but that doesn't mean she doesn't keep an eye out on more. Her love and goodness have been spilling overtime these days with championship fever in the air. She has NCAA Tournament success in her heart. She lifts everyone.

PASSOVER: Food writer Georgia Freedman sends this: "My Matzo Ball Soup is utterly simple to make—just puffy balls of matzo meal and egg bathed in a rich chicken broth. The only differences between one cook's soup and another's lies in the details. Some cooks add a bit of shredded chicken or small pieces of carrot to the clear broth. Others add a bit of farfle (broken up pieces of matzo). You can choose to garnish your soup with parsley or dill or nothing at all.

My version of this dish is simple. All the recipe requires is the willingness to set aside a little bit of time to cook everything patiently. I make a clear broth out of chicken carcasses so that I don't waste meat and some extra chicken wings (which thicken the broth

Students from local schools gathered in Washington Square Park to decry gun violence.

Chicago students speak out against gun violence

As part of the March 14 student walk-out, an impressive group of local teens mounted soapboxes in Washington Square Park, aka Bughouse Square, to speak out against gun violence.

Heart of the 'Hood
By Felicia Dechter

They stood in solidarity with the students of the tragedy-stricken Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, FL, where 17 victims were killed on Valentine's Day after a former student opened fire at the school.

"We are the next generation," said Nissrine Bedda, a freshman at GCE Lab School, 1535 N. Dayton St. "We are the ones who are able to choose how we want to be represented. That starts by the decisions we make in order to make our generation the most memorable out of all the others."

"We do not need violence... We will not be recognized as the 'dangerous generation,'" said Bedda, who helped spearhead the day's event. "We demand to be recognized as the 'strongest generation.'"

The soapboxes the students stood on to make their voices heard were created at GCE. Many of the afternoon's speakers had honed their skills in the Young Chicago Authors' annual poetry slam competition, Louder Than A Bomb (LTAB). GCE freshman Tymony Nolan's LTAB poem offered a direct challenge to President Trump's dismissive responses to the anti-gun movement via social media: "The streets know what you did while you thought you were defending your honor/All you were doing was making our summers hotter/Another life lost in the crossfire of lies/Prayers aren't valid over Twitter."

In between student speeches, Chicago's irreverent 'HONK' band and performance art group Environmental Encroachment (EE) volunteered to blast horns and drums to help draw attention. "The intelligence, eloquence, and passion of the speakers was just awe-inspiring," said Mike Smith, EE's bunny-eared trombone player. "If adults think this generation is apathetic, think again."

Students from Ogden International and Nettelhorst Elementary wrote messages of hope on some 1,300 strips of orange paper, representing all the children who were victims of gun violence across the country last year. Neighbors started adding their own notes as soon as the public art piece went up. Soon, a range of new orange items appeared, including handmade signs, toys, and plastic flowers, reminiscent of the white memorial 'ghost bikes' scattered across the city.

On March 15, with the help of a broad coalition of schools, GCE students added 7,000 strips of orange fabric to the park's fence, representing the number of children's lives lost since the Sandy Hook massacre in Dec. 2012.

To those who know Chicago history, the location holds special significance.

Washington Square Park, better known as Bughouse Square, was ground zero to Chicago's radical free-speech movement from the 1910s through the 1960s, and in the park's heyday, thousands of bohemians gathered in front of the library on summer evenings to speak out against injustice. Student activists hope to inspire continued weekly Wednesday afternoon speeches in Bughouse Square, culminating in a uniquely Chicago Summer of Love.

To me, it's amazing that a whole new generation of Bughouse speakers and activists came out to voice their opinions. And apparently, I'm not alone in that feeling.

"The Bughouse Square tradition must live on, and I hope that students everywhere stand up and show the world their passion, their talent, and their voice," said historian and Newberry Library vice president Brad Hunt.

Tiny-house living rocks for over-night vacation stay

First of two articles on tiny-house living.

ATLANTA Tiny-house living may not only be in vogue, but an extremely efficient, affordable, eco-friendly residence can also be fun to rent.

While heading to the North Carolina mountains for a spring visit, this writer and another guest stopped overnight in Atlanta, and rented an Airbnb tiny house for $170, including tax and cleaning fee, for one night.

Suitable for up to four guests, the two-bed, one-bath “cube” was parked in the backyard of an existing older single-family home in the Grant Park neighborhood just minutes from downtown.

The “Eco Tiny House” has all the comforts of home tucked inside of about 300 square feet of space. A living room, kitchen-dinette with flip-down breakfast table, Wi-Fi, a flat-screen TV, a shower bath with washer/dryer, two sleeping lofts, a nicely landscaped and fenced patio and free parking is included.

While the small-house trend that has taken off over the past decade, the history of the tiny house can be traced back thousands of years to our cave-dwelling ancestors. Other ancient options were Indian Tee pees, Bedouin tents, Eskimo igloos, medieval thatch-

A tiny house generally is defined as a residential structure consisting of less than 500 square feet of space. Some extreme versions contain only 80 square feet. The average cost for a do-it-yourself built tiny house is about $23,000, but retail cost typically is $75,000 or more.

roof homes, yurts and pioneer log cabins.

In 1854, after residing for more than two years in a 150-square-foot cabin overlooking a pond outside Concord, MA, poet Henry David Thoreau wrote “Walden,” and offered a blueprint for residing modestly within tight quarters. [Point of order, his parents did have a lovely full-sized home nearby.]

“The popularity of tiny homes really took off in America in 2008 during the foreclosure crisis when people were losing their homes and needed an affordable alternative to traditional housing,” noted author and Chicago Realtor Sara E. Benson, president of Benson Stanley Realty.

During the subprime-mortgage crisis, foreclosure filings spiked more than 80%, and interest in downsizing and living in more modest homes, including tiny homes, came into vogue, Benson said.

Typically, tiny houses are affordable, economically accessible, sustainable and ecologically friendly, advocates say. Downsizing of space, reducing the carbon footprint, use of recycled rainwater and solar power can lead to living a simpler, less burdensome lifestyle off the grid.

Today, a tiny house generally is defined as a residential structure consisting of less than 500 square feet of space. Some extreme versions contain only 80 square feet. The average cost for a do-it-yourself built tiny house is about $23,000, but retail cost typically is $75,000 or more.

The National Assoc. of Home Builders notes that the size of typical new homes in the U.S. has been growing larger over the past few decades, and so has the price. Today, the average 3-bedroom, 1-bath new home costs $272,000—more than 3.5 times the retail cost of a tiny house.

In 2013, the average new home boasted 2,662 square feet of living area, up from 1,780 square feet in 1978. Today, only one-percent of all U.S. home buyers purchase houses containing 1,000 square feet or less.

To any of our readers who are contemplating a future tiny-house stay, or a complete lifestyle change off the grid, here are a few small home design and living suggestions:

- Tie that trailer down. We could feel the tiny house rocking in 20-MPH winds blowing in Atlanta. This tiny house sits on wheels and is movable. Other homes are built on concrete-slab foundations.

- Kitchen-design suggestions. Forget the fancy stainless-steel range hood. Install an over-the-range microwave to free up counter space. Make space for a four-burner range top, instead of a two-burner. An over-sized, five-blade ceiling fan/light seemed like over-the-top design. However, it was hung from a nicely wood-paneled, 1½-story ceiling.

- Sleeping arrangements. Good split-loft design, with sleeping areas on opposite ends of the tiny house under a low wood-paneled ceiling of less than about three feet. One loft was accessed from a narrow eight-step wooden stairway. The other loft had a ladder, designed for kids and young adults.

Both lofts have sturdy one-inch-thick black pipe handrails for security. Access to both lofts could be challenging for aging, ex-jocks with creaky knees.

- Bathroom design. Nested under one of the lofts, the bath features excellent compact design, with a full-sized shower and a washer-dryer tucked under stairs. A white and black mosaic-tiled ceramic floor is a nice contrast to the mountain-cabin-like interior.

- Windows. Excellent light flows from 10 transom windows plus more than a half dozen main-level windows and a front door. All windows and the door feature thermopane glass and are finished with natural wood trim. However, the tiny house has only one exit and no loft escape hatch except for two windows at the top of the unit.

- Living room. The space features a U-shaped bench-style seating layout with storage bin. The design might have been more livable with one deep full-sized couch suitable for napping.

- Abundant wood. Nice pre-finished six-inch-wide plank floors on main level of the house. The tiny-house ceiling is paneled with handsome tongue-and-groove six-inch-wide knotty pine planks, not cheap paneling.

- Storage and closet space. Lots of storage nooks and crannies, but there’s only one “tiny” closet with hanging space tucked under the stairs in the bathroom. There also is space in the closet for four folding chairs and an ironing board.

- Efficient heating. A hotel-style combo heating and air-conditioning unit is mounted above a full-size window in the dinette area. In winter, the unit warmed the lofts, but it was chilly on the main level in the morning, even with thermostat set high.

- Exterior design. The tiny home features an attractive cedar-sided exterior. However, the front porch needs handrails or at least a grab-bar for senior renters. A nice landscaped yard with wood fencing and a flagstone patio with table, chairs and a fire pit is a sweet bonus.

NEXT WEEK: How compact, tiny-house living could benefit Chicagoans searching for affordable homes.

The proposed 24 acre North Branch Park + Preserve between North and Cortland avenues.

River and Lakefront belong to all of us

BY ALD. MICHELE SMITH

True public open space with playing fields, nature walks, public gathering spaces and year-round activities can and should be located on the east side of the Chicago River.

Over the last several months, we’ve joined with Ald. Scott Waguespack (32nd) and this growing coalition to fight for true public open space in the former North Branch Industrial Corridor.

Chicago’s renowned architectural community, our community groups, park and river advocates, recreational sports leagues, and respected civic groups all agree, a new park along the North Branch of the Chicago River is essential to balance massive development coming to our doorstep. After meeting with the editorial boards of the Chicago Tribune and the Sun-Times, a Sun-Times story put the challenge this way:

“Here’s one vision for a stretch of the aging industrial corridor along the North Branch of the Chicago River: A wide-open public park teeming with native grasses, wildlife and people enjoying the outdoors.

Here’s another: An urban “wall” of high-rises along the river, with little pockets and slivers of green space.”

A new community of 50,000 residents (equalling the population of Lincoln Park) and a 20,000 seat stadium are proposed to be concentrated on the river between Webster and North Ave., according to developer Sterling Bay.

Over the past year, our community has consistently called for contiguous public open space on the North Branch Industrial Corridor. Design professionals told the editorial boards last week, “No major city in the world would design a plan for 50,000 additional people in a dense urban environment without a plan for significant public open space.”

A proposal for Lincoln Yards development owned by Sterling Bay includes an “Amazon” emblazoned field in a stadium.

“No major city in the world would design a plan for 50,000 additional people in a dense urban environment without a plan for significant public open space,” said design professionals cant public open space.”

Designers also said, “meaningful park space is vital to the economic development of the city to attract new business and provide a desirable lifestyle to residents.” We are encouraged that Sterling Bay supports the effort.

For now, the city maintains the park is unnecessary because their “Framework Plan” provides for 60 acres of open space. A closer look reveals no real, public parkland is planned in the 750-acre site.

Most of the 60 acres of city planned “open space” consists of 25 acres of concreted 30’ wide bike or pedestrian paths, 17 acres of underwater marsh and habitat restoration, and 10 non-contiguous acres, chopped into seven “developer driven” initiatives surrounded by new residences and businesses.

The Chicago River and our lakefront belong to all of us. In the next few weeks we will be making 100-year decisions for our city, our neighborhoods and future Chicagoans. Please contact me at yourvoice@ward43.org if you would like to join the effort to secure critical parkland.

Japanese-American community to continue history project with donated equipment

The Japanese American Service Committee (JASC) and the Chicago Japanese American Historical Society (CJAHS) have launched of Untold Stories, an oral history project that documents experiences of Japanese Americans during World War II and resettlement in Chicago.

This joint project will continue the collection of oral histories initiated during the recent exhibition, Then They Came for Me: Incarceration of Japanese Americans During WWII, which was held at the Alphawood Gallery in Lincoln Park in 2017.

Thanks to a donation of equipment, collected material, and the support of Alphawood Exhibitions, Untold Stories will continue to record the experiences of those second generation Nisei and third generation Sansei Japanese Americans whom the incarceration and resettlement processes affected during World War II.

Oral histories will be recorded on video or audio either in participants' homes or on-site at the JASC. The collected material will be edited and archived in both the JASC Legacy Center and CJAHS collections, and some will also be shared online with participant permission. Through a joint partnership with StoryCorps, audio recordings will additionally be preserved in the StoryCorps collections and the Library of Congress.

"Untold Stories will explore the continued impacts of the WWII incarceration process," stated Jean Mishima, President of the CJAHS. "In recognizing the urgent need to collect these stories to ensure their preservation, [we] will work together to not only document these stories, but to make this information publicly available."

Anyone who experienced the incarceration process in the US, was in Japan during World War II, or resettled in Chicago during and after the war is invited to participate in this project. For more information write or call Anna Takada, at atakada@jasc-chicago.org or 773-275-0097 ext.229.

Lillstreet Art Center files for bankruptcy

Lillstreet Art Center, 4401 N. Ravenswood, the long-time art studio, gallery and school, has filed for bankruptcy protection, according to a report in Crain's Chicago.

Founded in 1975, Lillstreet Art Center is a large community of artists and students who work side-by-side in an environment which they think encourages artistic growth in their clients. They blamed a dispute with a website developer for its financial woes.

The business, which relocated from a converted horse barn on Lill Ave. in Lincoln Park to a former gear factory on Ravenswood in 2003, listed liabilities of $500,001 to $1 million and assets of $100,001 to $500,000 in a March 5 filing in federal court.

In the filing, Lillstreet said it lost a Cook County Circuit Court case in November against Trilogy Interactive, which had sued in 2016 over a website-redesign contract Lillstreet expected to cost a maximum $137,050. Lillstreet countersued, according to Crains.

Lillstreet Art Center continues to operate as a debtor in possession, after filing for bankruptcy protection.

After the verdict, the filing says, Trilogy "improperly served a citation on Lillstreet's bank," freezing the account and causing checks to bounce before the citation was lifted. Lillstreet, which continues to operate as a debtor in possession, declined to comment to reporter Steven Strahler. In the filing, it said that Trilogy asked to recover $762,318, including attorney fees, more than seven times the amount of the jury verdict. The largest creditors listed were Robbins Management for $234,000 in rent, Trilogy for $105,000 and Skokie-based Alan J. Mandel for $25,000 in legal services.

Lillstreet offers instruction in ceramics, printmaking and five other disciplines. Its First Slice Pie Cafe feeds 32,000 needy people annually, according to the filing. The art center started in 1975.

American Theater Co. closing, never recovered from death of artistic director

The Board of the American Theater Co. [ATC], 1909 W. Byron St., has decided to close down the North Center theater.

In a released statement they said that "Ultimately, the challenge to transform the organization in the wake of the tragic and sudden death of former artistic director PJ Paparelli was more daunting than expected. Despite the approach to ATC that current artistic director Will Davis brought to our theater, the theater has suffered from a reduction in earned revenue."

"We're Gonna Be Okay" was ATC's final production. It last played on March 4.

The board said that their challenge was particularly acute this year, "when despite the enormous success of works such as Tony Award winner "The Humans" and Pulitzer Prize winner "Disgraced" - our current productions have not been able to reach" a large enough audience. "In the theater-rich Chicago community, it is increasingly difficult for a small non-profit organization like ours to thrive."

ATC was founded in July 1985 as American Blues Theater, a company dedicated to exploring and developing theatre that addressed and affected working-class people of Chicago. In Nov. 2007, Paparelli was named as the company's third professional artistic director. Paparelli was killed in an automobile accident in May 2015 while on vacation in Scotland.

Quest Theatre Ensemble to close doors

The North Side lost a theater company offering free live productions when Quest Theatre Ensemble, founded in 2002, ceased operations last week. The announcement was made by Jason Bowen, President of the Quest Board of Directors. Chicago's other free theater company - Oracle Productions - ceased operations in Dec. 2016.

Bowen said the company closed down due to the founders moving on to new positions in the entertainment industry.

Founded by alumni of Indiana State Univ., Quest's inaugural production was Blue Nativity - an original pageant featuring large-scale puppetry that was performed in nine different churches its first year and continued with tours of area churches every year up through 2016. Another show, Children of the Light - a retelling of the Passion story with large-scale puppetry - was created after multiple requests from churches for Quest to return. The first tour prompted St. Gregory the Great Church, 1609 W. Gregory, to invite Quest to become a member of their Artist in Residence program.

For the last 14 years, the parish has housed the company's office on the third floor of its school building on Ashland Ave. and allowed the lower level Bingo hall to be re-imagined as The Blue Theater, named for founding company member, Buck Blue. In May, 2017, Park was honored as one "Edgewater's Living Treasures" by the Edgewater Historical Society.

"Quest added much to our community and many of our parish made it a tradition to attend their holiday spectacles. They continually added flavor to our events and donated time and funds to many of our fundraisers. They will be deeply missed," said Father Paul Wachdorf of St. Gregory Parish.

Edgewater Church works to save life of eight-month-old with rare disorder

Marrow donor registry drive April 1 at St. Andrew's

BY DANIEL ZAGOTTA
Edgeville Buzz

Imagine welcoming a little boy into your life only to find out a few months later that he has a immune disorder so rare that only 22 others have been diagnosed with it in the US. The latest person to have the condition, eight-month-old Elias Argirokastritis, is fighting for his life and a local church is ready to help.

Evelyn and Antonio Argirokastritis, who live in Macomb, MI, were excited when their son Elias was born in Oct. 2017. However, Elias started to turn bright red soon after he was born, prompting doctors to diagnose it as an allergic reaction or eczema. But as time went on, the little boy started breaking out in horrible rashes that looked like bad sunburns.

Over time things got worse as Elias experienced high fevers, lethargy and feeding issues. At three months of age, Elias was brought to Univ. of Michigan C.S. Mott Children's Hospital to undergo testing. With fungus growing in his lungs and his white blood count extremely high, the doctors realized he was fighting off three viruses and three bacterial infections.

It was clear Elias' immune system was not working properly. Then came the heart-breaking news, he had an incredibly rare disorder called Nuclear Factor-kappa B Essential Modulator Deficiency Syndrome (NEMO). So rare in fact, that he is only the 22nd registered case in the U.S. Immunodeficiency Network.

To keep him healthy and alive, Elias receives systematic IV immunoglobulin infusions at the hospital. His tiny body endures regular therapy as he receives purified plasma pooled from thousands of blood donors on a regular basis. But he will eventually need to find a perfect 8/8 donor match for a transplant. Currently there is no registered match in the world.

Elias' parents, knowing that their son needs to find a donor to save his life, took to social media. Because the parents are Greek, they focused on Greek donors because those who share ethnic origins have increased probabilities for matches. Other drives to find a match for Elias have already happened in their own state of Michigan, across the rest of the US and around the world including Greece.

After the urgent pleas from Elias' family spread across the world, Vicki Dimitrakakos (a Chicago-area woman) heard about the story on Facebook and was immediately affected by the heart-wrenching situation.

"I was drawn to it because the boy shares the same name as my own little son," said Dimitrakakos. "I began to think about ways to help. I am very involved in the Greek community, my church and the all the Greek events throughout Chicago. I wanted to see what I could do local, here in Chicago."

Adams Playlot to be rebuilt

The Chicago Park District has announced that they will be building a new Water Park at Adams Playlot, 1919 N. Seminary.

Back in 1997 the new water-play area, named for retired school teacher Dorothy Melamerson, opened in Adams Park. Melamerson provided funding for the children's water feature through a bequest in her will. Since it opened, the soft surface of the water park has completely degraded and been replaced several times. The District says that repair parts for the equipment are no longer made, and the park district is decommissioning these types of water parks city wide due to safety concerns.

The Park District is providing $100,000+in renovation funding and neighbors, led buy the Adams Park Advisory Committee, have raised $15,000 of the $20,000 goal to fund additional enhancements and features; and Ald. Michele Smith [43rd] has announced that she would be matching the contributions dollar for dollar.

Two new proposed Landmarks Districts

BY PETER VON BUOL

Two potential new landmark districts are being discussed for a pair of North Side neighborhoods. If approved, new landmark districts would be created for a section of East Lincoln Park, and for East Lakeview.

In both neighborhoods, high-profile properties by architects deemed historically significant have been sold or are being currently offered for sale. Concerns about the possibility of having a nearby property sold and replaced by a larger building or high-rise have prompted neighbors of both neighborhoods to seek a historic district designation from the city of Chicago.

Concerned about the April 2017 sale of an apartment building at 325 W. Fullerton Ave., a group of nearby residents began to investigate the possibility of having their neighborhood which sits on the western edge of Lincoln Park [the park] designated as a landmark district. These properties include architect Simeon Eisendrath's Prairie-style Shakespeare Co-Op building, 2230-2256 N. Lincoln Park West; Meyer Fridstein's Beaux-Arts Belden-Stratford Apartments, 2300 N. Lincoln Park West; a multi-story Art Deco style residential building at 2344 N. Lincoln Park West by architects Karl Vitzhum and Frederick Teich and, architect Andrew Sandgren's Classical Revival building at 301-317 W. Fullerton Pkwy.

The buildings are already considered architecturally significant as they been listed as "orange-rated" by the city of Chicago on its historic resources survey. The second-highest preservation designation, an "orange" rating requires an automatic review of any demolition permits by landmark officials.

While the effort to create a Lincoln Park West historic district is still in its preliminary stage, the effort to create an East Lakeview historic district has been moving quickly and has the support of Ald. Tom Tunney (44th). Residents began their efforts after they learned the board of the Serbian American Museum wants to sell its current building at 448 W. Barry. The building was originally built for Daniel O. Hill, a prominent silk merchant in the early 20th century. Designed by Francis Perkins, one of the city's most celebrated architects of that era, the house is an embodiment of an architectural style known as American Four Square.

While Tunney has supported landmark status for individual properties such as the Hill House, he has actively proposed a landmark district as a possible solution to preserve the historical character of the East Lakeview neighborhood.

The boundaries for the proposed district would be Diversey to the south, Belmont to the north, Broadway to the west and Sheridan to the east. Approximately 30 individual properties have been identified for a larger landmark district.

"I am currently working with the preservation division within the Chicago Dept. of Planning and Development to further research property in the East Lakeview area that meets criteria for Landmark eligibility. We want to save the best of the best properties. I fully support efforts to preserve "first-generation" single-family homes and two-and-three flats in this area, to keep the character of the neighborhood now and in the future."

"The buildings also reflect Lakeview's growth, from suburb to annexation to the City in the late 19th Century," said Ald. Tunney.

Among those supporting the creation of the new landmark district for East Lakeview are the non-profit architectural preservation Landmarks Illinois and Preservation Chicago.

"We are encouraging several larger houses of about the same age nearby to the [Hill House] to [also] be designated as landmarks and also, the creation of the East Lakeview Landmark District," said Ward Miller, the executive director of Preservation Chicago.

According to a spokesperson in the city's department of planning and development, to be recommended by the city's landmarks

'The Chicago Mural' now on view at Cultural Center

The city has staged a free public showing of Keith Haring: The Chicago Mural on view now through Sept. 23 at the Chicago Cultural Center, 78 E. Washington, in the Sidney R. Yates Gallery, 4th Floor North.

The exhibition features 36 original panels of the monumental mural created in 1989 by internationally-acclaimed artist Keith Haring with the assistance of 500 Chicago Public School students in Chicago's Grant Park. The mural is a reflection of Haring's incisive draftsmanship and symbolic characters.

Over five days, May 15-19, 1989, which the City of Chicago declared "Keith Haring Week," the artist worked with approximately 500 Chicago Public Schools [CPS] students from 63 area high schools to paint a monumental mural in his familiar energetic style. The 488' long mural, made up of 122 4x8-foot Masonite panels, stretched along the edge of Grant Park at Michigan Ave. between Randolph St. and Madison St.

Without any sort of sketch or plan, Haring first painted his signature black outline drawings of figures and symbols. The students were then given five colors - red, orange, sky blue, light green and yellow - and minimal instructions to paint each section in a solid color and adjoining sections in different colors. Many students took creative license and included personal messages, from their own initials to support for their schools, to social messages.

For a number of years, these 36 panels resided at Chicago's Midway Airport. Following the exhibition at the Chicago Cultural Center, the panels will be returned to the Chicago Public Schools for conservation and distribution to select schools. Other panels have already been placed at various schools and other locations throughout the city.

Throughout his career, Haring devoted much of his time to public works, which often carried social messages. He produced more than 50 public artworks between 1982 and 1989, including the Chicago mural.

Haring was diagnosed with AIDS in 1988. In 1989, he established the Keith Haring Foundation to provide funding and imagery to AIDS organizations and children's programs and to expand the audience for Haring's work through exhibitions, publications and the licensing of his images. Nine months after completing the mural in Chicago, Haring died of AIDS-related complications at the age of 31 on Feb. 16, 1990.

Presented by the Chicago Dept. of Cultural Affairs and Special Events and CPS, the exhibition will also feature a collection of photographs, correspondence, designs, plans, t-shirt drawings and much more. The project was planned and managed by Irving Zucker, a teacher at William H. Wells Community Academy, after meeting Haring at a dinner party in New York. The artist expressed interest in a project with kids in Chicago, and the planning began in 1987 for an innovative arts-in-education program to be developed by the CPS Bureau of Art and the Museum of Contemporary Art of Chicago (MCA).

Shamrock Shuffle to tie up traffic March 25

The 39th annual Shamrock Shuffle 8K and two-mile walk will be held on Sunday, March 25. Approximately 40,000 runners will be racing through the streets of Chicago, as they kick-off the 2018 running season.

The Start and Finish Line are both located in Grant Park on Columbus Dr. The course runs north on Columbus Dr., turns west on Grand Ave., south on State St., and then winds through the loop before turning south to Roosevelt Rd., and then finishes back in Grand Park on Columbus Dr.

Second extension of deadline for Senior and Senior Freeze Exemption applications

Cook County Assessor Joseph Berrios has extended the deadline for the Senior Citizen Exemption and Senior Freeze Exemption renewal applications and new applications for Tax Year 2017. The new extended application deadline is March 30. Any application postmarked by Friday, March 30 will be on time.

"This year, we have found the number of senior citizens needing added time to get their applications in was more than usual," said Berrios. "My office is happy to assist seniors by giving them this second extension." The original deadline was Feb. 7.

More than 270,000 applications were mailed in early January to seniors who received the exemptions last year. The Senior Exemption application is part of a booklet that also contains the separate, income-based Senior Freeze Exemption application.

Tax Year 2017 taxes are billed and mailed in 2018. Savings appear as deductions on Second Installment Property Tax Bills which will be issued later this summer.

"I extended the deadline so all seniors have extra time to return their applications to ensure they receive the expanded exemption savings this year," Berrios said. "It is also important to remember that under Illinois law, seniors are required to reapply annually for both the Senior and Senior Freeze Exemptions."

To qualify for the Senior Citizen Exemption for Tax Year 2017, the property owner must have been born prior to or in the year 1952, owned the property, or have a lease or contract which makes them responsible for the real estate taxes, and used the property as a principal place of residence.

The new law will increase savings this year from $5,000 to $8,000 in Equalized Assessed Value (EAV).

EAV is the partial value of a property to which tax rates are applied; it is this figure on which a tax bill is calculated. The Assessor does not set tax rates.

To qualify for the Senior Freeze Exemption, taxpayers must have been born prior to or in the year 1952, have a total household income of $65,000 or less for [income] Tax Year 2016, owned the property or had a legal, equitable or leasehold interest in the property on Jan. 1, 2016 and Jan. 1, 2017, and used the property as a principal place of residence as of Jan. 1, 2016 and Jan. 1, 2017, and been responsible for the payment of 2016 and 2017 property taxes.

"If you don't qualify for the Senior Freeze Exemption because you exceed the income level, this does not mean you will not be eligible for the Senior Exemption," Berrios explained. "The Senior Exemption has no income restrictions."

Seniors receiving the Senior Citizen Exemption automatically receive the Homeowner Exemption. Seniors receiving the Senior Freeze Exemption automatically receive both the Homeowner and Senior Citizen Exemptions.

Who pre-paid property taxes?

After the Federal Tax Cuts and Jobs Act was passed Dec. 19, 2017, many North Side residents will recall the clambering by public officials and tax lawyers calling for the wealthy to pay local property taxes early in hopes the IRS will allow those taxes to be deducted from income taxes in that they were paid in the year 2017.

Well as North Siders anxiously await the coming city-wide property tax reassessment, it looks like may have listened to that advice.

Those property tax re-assessments for Rogers Park Township are expected April 2, in Lake View Township April 9 and North Township Sept. 14. And the Cook County Assessors office has noted that they expect a significant jump in property assessments since the last assessment was done in 2015.

Because of President Trump's tax reform, which lowered individual tax rates but also capped the amount of property taxes those in high-property tax states like Illinois could write off at $10,000, a record number of Cook County homeowners paid their bills early, allowing them to keep the write-off for one more year.

In fact Cook County Treasurer

Richard Parrillo, pre-paid over $153,000 in property taxes for this 25,000 square foot home at 1932 N Burling St. last December.

Maria Pappas personally greeted people at the treasurer's office on New Year's Eve. She opened the office for special hours, throwing a sort of taxpaying party. The sweets were there to help on a day many wealthy local taxpayers were feeling sour about the nation's new tax reform law.

Pappas said the number of people prepaying last year county-wide because of the new law was unprecedented in Cook County. In 2016, 1,775 homeowners prepaid $14.4 million. But in 2017, the numbers skyrocketed to 113,000 who combined prepaid a total of over $757 million. Chicago residents prepaid $249 million in property taxes for 2018, according to a Blockshopper.com analysis of local data.

Many of those early payers have real estate located on the North Side. Below are the top taxpayers:

The Ruth Page Center for the Arts announces its annual artists in-residence showcase performance Center Stage at Ruth Page at the Ruth Page Center for the Arts, 1016 N. Dearborn St., 6:30 p.m. Thursday. General admission tickets are $5 and a reservation is required in advance as space is limited.

Center Stage takes place on the 119th anniversary of the birth of international dance icon and Ruth Page Center founder, Ruth Page (1899-1991). In honor of her birthday, and to celebrate the recent extensive exterior and interior building renovations, events begin with birthday cupcakes and a celebratory toast to Ruth Page, followed at 7:30 with performances by the six Ruth Page Center of the Arts' Artists In-Residence: CDI/Concert Dance Inc., DanceWorks Chicago, Hedwig Dances, Porchlight Music Theatre, Ruth Page Civic Ballet and ShawChicago Theater Company.

An incubator of artistic excellence and the center local dance history, the Center for the Arts carries forward the vision of dance icon Page to make dance accessible to everyone, ensuring that children and dance artists have a place to study, work and perform at the highest level of excellence.

The performance will also be presented at Northeastern Illinois Univ. 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 13, in the Steinberg Fine Arts Center, 3701 W. Bryn Mawr. Tickets to this performance are free to NEIU students, faculty and staff and $5 to the general public.

For more information visit www.RuthPage.org.

with extra collagen), and I add just a bit of ginger and garlic, to pump up the soup's cold-fighting properties. I make my matzo balls simple and light, with beaten egg whites that keep them fluffy. But I add just a touch of saffron—a nod to my grandmother's family's ancient Sephardic roots—which gives the whole thing a deep gold flavor and a slightly richer flavor." Passover begins March 30.

REQUIEM AETERNAM: Garech Browne, 78, a member of the Guinness brewing family (his mother was Oonagh Guinness), died last week near Dublin. He was the energetic midwife in the re-birth of traditional Irish music in the 1950s, co-founding Claddagh Records and helping form The Chieftains in 1962. He lived at the famed Lugala House. Angels lift thee, dear Garech! We shall not see your like again.

CHEESE: Is the "selfie" photo (tres risqué) of a well-respected attorney real or a hatchet-job? Fellow attorneys are refusing to believe that the snap found on several iPhones of young ladies in the firm has any merit. And no truth.

BLIMEY: Word is former British PM Tony Blair will be in Chicago to receive the Lincoln Prize on April 24.

SKULLS AND OARS: Violet du Brul made crew at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, CT, to everyone's delight and has been given a hero's meal at home during a recent visit.

PAIX: Hubert de Givenchy, (1927-2018) the Parisian fashion designer, died this past week. A name synonymous with elegance and chic, like his La petite robe noire (little black dress). Adieu, Monsieur!

URBAN HERO: Chicagoan Jahkil Jackson, 10, brightened lives when he delivered 5000 "Blessing Bags" to Chicago's homeless on the streets (toiletries and essential comforts) inspired by his mom. Jackal is a pupil of Pat Toney's daughter, Dr. Mikyra Toney, and was saluted by President Barak Obama.

SINGULAR SENSATION:

The Skokie Theater was the place to be when 11 artists joined in a three-hour production of Broadway musicals to benefit the continued artistic legacy of the Skokie Theater. Denise Tomasello, joined a superb program with Tom Michael, Charlene Brooks, Russ Goeltenbott, Carmen Aquino Severino, Jeff Dean, Carla Gordon and Daryl Nitz. Directors Judy McLaughlin Rossignuolo-Rice and Bernard Rice and Musical Director, Beckie Menzie were spectacular. In the audience, Barb Bailey, front and center.

WE ARE STARDUST: March 14 saw the passing of one of the world's greatest minds, Stephen Hawking. A man very particular about his tea, according to an writer for The Atlantic.

Hawking once said, "Look up at the stars and not down at your feet. Try to make sense of what you see, and wonder about what makes the universe exist. Be curious." We should all take his advice.

ME-OW: Has a rising star young corporate executive whose close ties of friendship with the big boss CEO of a family-owned company been wrecked by the discovery he's an animal phony? It seems that the tie that bound them like glue was the issue of the protection of domestic animals. Has the junior exec's love of animals been found bogus? It has been discovered that he has never been a pet owner and the fluffy cat he said was the love of his life was never real, but stuffed. The big boss owns many pets and is said to be broken hearted over the false animal protection stories he was fed. It now appears the young man is heading for a tumble. Especially since he has no little feline mouths to feed.

ROYAL WEDDING AT THE DRAKE: The May 19 Royal Wedding between Prince Henry of Wales and American TV star Meghan Markle will be celebrated at the Drake Hotel that Saturday with a special Reserved Group Screening of the Royal Chapel Windsor Rites in the Grand Ballroom with the same luncheon served in 1996 to Diana, Princess of Wales at the Drake. It is essential to book in advance. For more information: <http://www.thedrakehotel.com>. That evening "A Grand Finale" event will take place featuring Cabaret Queen, Denise Tomasello, who will sing and entertain at a special three-course dinner with open bar. Reservations for this are essential as well.

Cabaret Queen Denise Tomasello, opened at the Skokie Theater, seen with pal Barb Bailey.

DINING: Astor Street's Aaron Miller and Rob Sabetto found dining with U of C Professor Michael Silverstein and wife, Cool-Classics' Mara Tapp, chop-sticking it in Little Italy at Jade Court on Racine after an afternoon of Gilbert and Sullivan.

WHO'S WHERE? Michael Kerrigan and Christie's Steve Zick in Palm Beach for the Irish Georgian Society Board shindig at the Colony... Spencer Gartner and singer Aaron Carter at Q Bar in Darien... Bobbi Panter getting in shape for what's to come at Barry's Bootcamp motivated by fitness expert Joe Nicastro... Edmund Lester in Bocca Grande, FL at Gasparilla Inn & Club... this column is thankful for Cy Gaffney and his good memories of longtime scribe, Ann Gerber.

LUXBAR EXHIBIT SALE: My pre-St. Patrick's Day Art Exhibition Sale last Saturday was a long day but exhilarating from breakfast (the Lux Skillet is superb) to dinner (Steak Frites) with the best coffee in Chicago. We were crowded for most of the day, robustly filled with regulars from the Lake Shore neighborhood. Lux's Mark Edwards, a management dynamo, was so helpful and organized in all things. Gibson's (and Lux's) boss Steve Lombardo was on hand as were numerous friends and local pals. I love the people who come and look and talk, especially the precocious children poised and well-bred, it's a great opportunity to meet Chicago face to face, picking up gossip that fills this column. Lux employees are top rate and dear friends and the crowd is, of course, art friendly. Big shout out to Diego and Jorge who helped to pack me up and get me into my Uber.

UBER SHAME: Driver Dan, LEXUS ES, IL plates ZV32469 3/10/18 5:17 p.m., when asked refused to turn his car around on Bellevue St. and then pulled away and cancelled ride. Unstable and wacko! Hotel doorman witnessed. Thanks Uber. SHAME.

CHAMP OF CHAMPS: An engaging lunch was had last week with Chicagoan Jay Tunney, brother of the recently deceased

U.S. Sen. John Tunney (D-CA), both the sons of famed American "undefeated" heavy weight prizefighting champ Gene Tunney. We were joined by London filmmaker Jo Mosaku. My connection was artistic, chiefly my more than two decades of research on Irish artist Sir John Lavery and his Chicago wife, Hazel, Lady Lavery who grew up on Astor St. Sir John painted a fine portrait of the famous young boxer in 1928, so we share a connection. The champ and the Laverys' were all friends of Irish writer George Bernard Shaw. Jay has written a book, "The Prizefighter and the Playwright" about the deep friendship between his father and the author of "Pygmalion." A documentary film is in the works for which I was interviewed.

CLUB SODA, PLEASE: Has a well-known, unpopular, annoying member of a private arts club been warned, recently, of her excessive drinking and failure to bill pay on time? Neither shall be tolerated. Hazleton, anyone?

"What you do speaks so loud that I cannot hear what you say." —Ralph Waldo Emerson

Police Beat....

Teen charged as adult in shooting of Truman student

Bryan Santos throws up gang signs while sitting on a CPD squad car.

A West Ridge 17-year-old has been charged as an adult with attempted murder for allegedly shooting a Truman College student near the school's Uptown campus on March 8.

Bryan Santos of the 6000 block of North Claremont was ordered held without bail this afternoon by Judge Sophia Atcherson. Santos was arrested at his home on Tuesday after being positively identified as the person who shot a 21-year-old rival gang member in the 4500 block of N. Magnolia during a dispute, police said. A police source confirmed that Santos was first taken into custody about 30 minutes after the shooting. Witnesses tipped off cops to a man who had been hiding under a porch near the shooting scene. Officers approached the porch and apprehended Santos after a brief chase, according to the source. In court today, prosecutors said Santos approached the victim on the street around 12:10 p.m. with his face covered by a mask and hoodie. He initially pistol-whipped the victim, but when the 21-year-old fought back with brass knuckles, Santos opened fire, prosecutors said. Santos and the victim were both studying in a Truman program that helps young adults secure their high school diplomas. According to posts on Santos' Facebook page, he is a Latin King gang member.

Release on bond for Uptown burglary, man arrested for Lincoln Park burglary

Just under a month ago, David Phipps, 20, of Hazel Crest was featured in this crime blotter when he was arrested for burglary, then set free. Now, he's back in jail. Last time Phipps was released on a recognizance bond after cops arrested him in Uptown. He had stolen credit cards in his possession and a 9-millimeter handgun and ammunition in his car, police said. Prosecutors charged him with possession of ammunition without a Firearms Owner ID card, felony identity theft of two or more persons, two felony counts of unlawful possession of a credit card, and burglary. Judge Sophia Atcherson, carrying the torch of "affordable bail" in Cook County, released him on a recognizance bond. Police arrested him again on March 18 after a Lincoln Park resident reported seeing Phipps breaking into a car in the 1400 block of W. Shakespeare. Cops searched him and allegedly recovered an iPhone, money, a wallet, and credit cards belonging to other people. There was no gun found in his car this time, though cops did recover four broken spark plugs from his center console, according to their report. (Broken pieces of ceramic from spark plugs are commonly called "ninja rocks" because car burglars use them to easily shatter vehicle windows.) Phipps has been charged with burglary, possession of burglary tools, and possession of cannabis. Judge John Lyke ordered him released on electronic monitoring, but Phipps was rejected from the program and is now sitting in jail with bail set at $50,000. Lyke also revoked Phipps' recognizance bond in the Uptown case.

Death on the Brown Line

A man believed to be in his 50's was found dead the night of March 15 on a Brown Line train at the Belmont station, 945 W. Belmont. Police believe the man died from natural causes. An ambulance was called to the station around 1:55 a.m. after the unknown white male was found unresponsive on a southbound train. Detectives conducted a routine death investigation on the scene. For now, the police department had classified the case as a non-criminal death. Police on-scene said the man was not carrying identification and he appeared to be homeless. The medical examiner will conduct a further investigation.

Three charged in Loop armed robbery

Antonio Dorsey, Terry Brewer and Demarcus Moore, all 20 years old, were taken into custody Feb. 28 after being positively identified as the offenders involved in an armed robbery that occurred in the 0 – 100 block of W. Wacker Dr. on Feb. 27, at approximately 2:17 p.m. During the incident an offender opened the passenger side door to the female victim's vehicle and demanded her property while holding a handgun. The offenders then fled on foot with the victim's cell phone and necklace. Responding officers located the offenders a short distance from the robbery and were placed into custody. The victim was not injured and the offenders were charged accordingly.

"Evaluation" underway for man sought in Red Line sent to medical facility
A man who was featured in a Chicago Police Dept. community alert on Friday afternoon for allegedly grabbing and holding multiple women on the Red Line in recent months has been released to a medical facility for evaluation, police said. No charges have been filed against the 19-year-old. Police announced on Saturday that they had the person of interest in custody for questioning. Police today said the man has since should be pursued, the department said. Around 7:25 on Thursday morning, a 15-year-old girl was on her way to school when the man wrapped his arms around her and held her at the Roosevelt Red Line CTA station, the police said Friday in their alert. After holding the girl for several seconds, the man released her and walked away. Police believe there are 10 similar incidents in which the man went up to a girl or woman and touched them without consent between last summer and Thursday. All of the episodes were reported between the hours of 7:20 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on the Red Line between Clark-Division and Cermak-Chinatown, police said.

Cops release pix of Lane Tech sex abuse suspect

Police said this man inappropriately touched and solicited a girl March 15 near the Lane Tech campus.

Chicago police have issued new information about last Thursday morning's attempted sexual abuse of a Lane Tech student near the school's campus. Cops issued these photos of the suspect which were taken by surveillance cameras at McDonald's, 2608 W. Addison. The restaurant is located across the street from Lane's campus. In updated information, the new community alert said the incident unfolded around 7 a.m., March 15 when the offender sat down next to the 15-year-old girl and tried to solicit sexual favors in exchange for money. The man then touched the girl's buttocks, exposed himself, and grabbed the girl's arm, police said. The girl immediately reported the incident to staff members at Lane and the staff then summoned police. She was not injured. Police said the suspect is a Hispanic man between 23- and 30-years-old who stands 5'-6" to 5'-9" tall and weighs 170 to 195 lbs. Anyone with information about the suspect is asked to call Area North investigators at 312-744-8261.

Prison time for fake Uber Driver who robbed Old Town, River North men
A Wisconsin woman who posed as an Uber driver to rob passengers in Old Town and River North last November is going to prison. Posing as a rideshare driver, Nyatina Raymond picked up a man outside of Old Town Pour House, 1419 N. Wells, early on Nov. 4. Police said one of two teens who were also in Raymond's car pulled out a gun and demanded the victim's phone and wallet. Raymond pleaded guilty last week to that crime and another similar robbery the same night. Judge Timothy Chambers sentenced Raymond to three years with 130 days credit for time served on each count. The sentences will run concurrently. Both teens were charged with robbery in juvenile court, but information about their cases is shielded by law. Raymond's 24-year-old victim was released after she and the teens successfully withdrew money from his account at a Chase ATM in the 1500 block of N. Kingsbury. Town Hall cops tracked transaction information from the man's credit card company to find Raymond and the juveniles at a Walmart store in Niles about two hours after the hold-up. Investigators later connected Raymond to another robbery the same night in River North. About an hour before the Old Town victim climbed into her fake Uber, another man got into Raymond's car outside of an Italian restaurant in the 200 block of W. Grand, police said. Raymond then punched the victim in the face and robbed him of $100, his phone, and credit cards, according to charges.

Man with "Fk The Police" tattoo on forehead tried to rob Lakeview East bank

A suburban man who has the words "Fk The Police" tattooed on his forehead has been charged with the attempted robbery of a Boystown bank on Friday evening. Geovany Valencia, 25, walked into Fifth Third Bank, 3601 N. Broadway around 5:30 p.m. and told a teller, "I want all your money. Give me all your money," according to court records. The teller activated a silent alarm and arriving officers said they found Valencia sitting on the bank floor. State charges of attempted theft of $15,000 were filed after federal bank robbery charges were declined by the U.S. Attorney's Office, according to court records. Valencia, of south suburban Harvey, was ordered held on $30,000 bail by Judge Michael Clancy. Valencia will be required to go onto electronic monitoring if he posts a $3,000 deposit, Clancy said. In 2015, Valencia was sentenced to two-years in prison for cutting off an electronic monitoring bracelet with scissors. And in 2011, he was sentenced to three years for being a gang member in possession of a firearm. Court records show that Valencia is currently awaiting trial on allegations that he bit and cut a man with a knife and kicked a woman in her stomach on Feb. 21 in suburban Sauk Village.

Student brought gun to Alcott College Prep High School
A 17-year-old student sent threatening messages to a girl and brought a handgun to Alcott College Prep High School, 2957 N. Hoyne, after class last week, police said. Now, the boy is facing a felony weapons charge in juvenile court. Area North Gang School Safety units worked with Alcott security to locate the boy yesterday in the 3100 block of N. Leavitt. A handgun was recovered from the teen as he was taken into custody, police said. Police said the boy sent threatening messages to a 16-year-old female student last Wednesday and the girl then reported that he brought a gun to Alcott and showed it to students after class. Prosecutors charged the boy with felony possession of a concealed weapon and misdemeanor possession of ammunition without a valid Firearms Owner Identification card. At precisely the same time the boy was allegedly displaying the handgun at Alcott last week, a Chicago police officer assigned to Lakeview High School (LVHS) was taking further battery reports in connection with a series of fights that erupted near that school's campus after class on March 2. The Chicago police department said only that "200 to 300" Lakeview students "walked out" of Lakeview on March 2, but police sources said that multiple fights broke out on the streets and in businesses near LVHS. Two juvenile boys and one juvenile girl were taken into custody at Lakeview that day. Additionally, one 18-year-old LVHS student, Joshua Gaudin, was charged with mob action. Those under the age of 18 were not named by police due to their protected status as juveniles. Following the March 2 incidents, LVHS Principal Paul Karafiol sent an email to parents promising "a stronger police presence" outside the school while "our security officers will ensure the perimeter of the building is clear before we release students."

Charges filed in robbery of Loop high-rise resident

A man is in custody, charged with robbing a Loop resident as the victim walked into his apartment complex's rear door early on March 3. James Morgan, 51, was arrested last Tuesday afternoon on the corner of State and Lake, about a block from where the robbery took place, police said. Patrol officers recognized him as being wanted. He is charged with one count of felony robbery and has been ordered held without bail by Judge John Lyke Jr. Around 12:30 a.m. March 3, Morgan slammed a 26-year-old man into the wall of an apartment building at 8 E. Randolph as the victim tried to enter the complex's back door, prosecutors said. With the intoxicated man pinned, Morgan reached into the victim's pockets, took valuables, and fled, according to police. According to an email sent to this reporter by a resident of the apartment complex, the March 3 robbery may have been the second such incident at the same location. So far, Morgan has only been charged in one case. The mixed-use building is also home to the Joffrey Ballet's headquarters.

In 'rare' move, judge increases defendant's bail amount
A review of recent firearms cases and how the allegations have been handled by Cook County's court system: Kelly Hoard, accused of trying to carry a firearm into a federal passport office in the Loop on Jan. 5, has pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct. Judge Anthony Calabrese sentenced her to six months court supervision and dropped the weapons charge against her.

POLICE BEAT from p. 14

In new cases:

- Police conducting an anti-robbery mission in the 5600 block of N. Rockwell said they saw convicted felon Alfredo Delgado, 41, evading them and walking into and out of gangways around 9:45 a.m. Feb. 28. Officers stopped Delgado and allegedly saw a 9-millimeter handgun weighing down his front hoodie pocket. As they recovered the gun, Delgado put his hands in the air and said, “It’s yours man. I’m not gonna fight with you,” police said. Police say Delgado told them that he carries the gun for protection because there is a lot of vehicle traffic in his alley lately. Delgado is a Latin King gang member according to police. He was charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm. Judge Sylvia Atchison initially set bail at $5,000, meaning that Delgado could go free by posting $500. In a court hearing March 14, Delgado’s lawyer asked Judge Charles Beach to reduce bail. Instead, Beach quintupled it to $25,000. Beach, formerly assigned to the Traffic Court division, is up for election this month.
- A group of cops who were standing in line at Portillo’s, 520 W. Taylor St., noticed that the man in front of them had a gun with an extended magazine sticking out of his waistband last Saturday evening, according to court records. The cops secured the 40-caliber handgun and arrested Lapre Apple, 20, of Indianapolis. While processing Apple, cops say they found 350 suspected ecstasy pills and $3,202 cash in Apple’s pockets. He’s charged with felony unlawful use of a concealed weapon, felony possession of ecstasy and possession of a high-capacity magazine. Apple reportedly told police that he has a concealed carry license in Indiana. Police informed him that he was in Illinois, where his out-of-state permit is not valid. Judge Michael Clancy set bail at $20,000, which means Apple quickly posted a $2,000 deposit to go free before trial.

- Juancho Padolina, 51, is accused of threatening two people with a handgun near Peterson and Western March 13. Charged with aggravated unlawful use of a weapon without a Firearms Owner ID (FOID) card, two counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and possession of a mounted laser sight, his bail was set at $10,000 by Judge Michael Clancy. Padolina can go free before trial by posting a $1,000 deposit.

Jimmy John’s worker pleads guilty to robbing Loop Subway sandwich shop
The woman accused of trying to rob a Loop Subway restaurant while wearing her Jimmy John’s uniform pleaded guilty yesterday. Cherene Slue, 27, also entered a guilty plea to charges that she held-up a nearby Dunkin’ Donuts the same week. Slue was sentenced to two years probation on each count and was given credit for 58 days time served by Judge Neera Walsh, who approved the plea deal. On Jan. 14, still decked out in her Jimmy John’s t-shirt, Slue walked into the Subway at 604 S. Wabash and handed the clerk a note: “I have a gun and give me $60,” it said. When the Subway sandwich artist said he had no money, Slue insisted that she had a gun. The clerk walked to the back of the store and Slue left empty-handed, police say. Police found Slue standing on the sidewalk about two blocks south of the Subway 10 minutes later. A police lock-up guard reported that Slue told her “I did something stupid. I just needed money.” In her left jacket pocket, prosecutors said, was a note: “I have a gun. I don’t want to hurt you. Please don’t speak, just give me $60 now!!” A few days after being charged in the Subway case, police went to Slue’s home and arrested her again. She had been identified as the person who robbed Dunkin’ Donuts at 1231 S. Wabash on Jan. 12. According to a Dunkin’ Donuts worker, Slue walked into the donut shop, stated that she had a gun, and demanded that the clerk hand over $40. The worker handed over exactly $40 and Slue reportedly left satisfied.

Probation for dentist who secretly filmed boys in North Ave. Beach bathroom
A suburban man who secretly video-recorded a 16-year-old boy in the North Ave. Beach men’s room last summer has been sentenced to sex offender probation. Gregory Stump, 68, pleaded guilty to a single count of felony unauthorized videotaping of a person under the age of 18 last Thursday. Twenty-one other counts, including three child pornography charges, were dropped in the plea deal that was approved by Judge Thomas Gainer Jr. Last July, a Chicago police sergeant arrested Stump after catching him in the act of secretly recording a teenager in the lakefront bathroom, prosecutors said. Stump was masturbating while holding his phone over the top of a bathroom divider to record the teenager who was changing clothes in the next stall, the sergeant said. Investigators said they found video of the teen with his buttocks exposed and a photograph—also taken in the North Ave. Beach bathroom—of a young boy’s penis on Stump’s phone. Pictures of other men using the facility’s urinals were also collected, police said. In 2014, Stump pleaded guilty to public indecency after he was caught performing sex on another man in a Forest Preserve parking lot near Elk Grove Village. He was sentenced to probation, which he successfully completed, according to court records. At the time of his latest arrest, Stump listed a home address in the Gold Coast, about two blocks from North Ave. Beach. His dental practice was in northwest suburban Schaumburg. State records show that Stump surrendered his dental license last September rather than face disciplinary action in connection with the beach incident. Also in September, the 16-year-old victim and his mother sued Stump for invasion of privacy, seeking more than $50,000 in damages. The case is scheduled for a status hearing on Thursday.

SAVE LIFE from p. 7

boy's mother, Dimitrakakos contacted her childhood priest, Father John Kalomas, who is currently in charge of St. Andrew's Greek Orthodox Church, 5649 N. Sheridan Rd. Having one of the largest congregations in the city, she knew that enlisting the church to help find Elias a donor was a terrific plan.

Father Kalomas was very receptive to help bring attention to Elias' situation. So it was decided to do a marrow donor registry drive at the church 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 1, on one of the church's biggest Holidays – Palm Sunday. Expecting a large crowd that day, anyone 18-44-years-old in attendance will be able to give a sample of their DNA through a simple swab wipe in their mouth.

After the DNA is collected it goes into a world-wide registry where people have the possibility of not only saving Elias' life, but many others as well. If a match is found, most transplants do not require surgery as it is often collected through blood or stem cells.

After the DNA is collected it goes into a world-wide registry where people have the possibility of not only saving Elias' life, but many others as well. If a match is found, most transplants do not require surgery as it is often collected through blood or stem cells.

Dimitrakakos is dedicated to getting people to the registry drive. Since hearing about the Argirokastritis' efforts to find a donor, she has felt personally connected to their family.

"What if this happened to me or one of my kids?" Dimitrakakos added. "Only 30% of people who have conditions where they need a donor find a match in their family, the other 70% are put in a position to find it amongst strangers. I'm glad to help in the search."

Dimitrakakos wants to remind readers that you do not need to be Greek to help and everyone between the ages of 18-44 is welcome to participate.

Navigating Illinois pension reform April 17

The Civic Federation is partnering with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago to co-host "Navigating Pension Reform in Illinois: What Lies Ahead?" 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 17, at the Bank, 230 S. LaSalle St., 3rd floor.

The purpose of this forum is to examine the options available to the State of Illinois as it attempts to address its ongoing fiscal crisis, precipitated in large part by its severely underfunded public pensions.

The panels at the conference will look at the experiences of other states as they have worked to address their own public pension difficulties and explore several of the suggested paths forward, from finding a revenue source sufficient to simply fund the obligation to changing the Illinois Constitution. To register call 312-322-5757.

Wetland restoration topic of April 5 Garden Society meeting

The Northtown Garden Society will meet 7 p.m. Thursday, April 5, at Warren Park, 6601 N. Western Ave., with a guest speaker Dr. Agnes Wojnarski. Her passion is a slough wetland restoration. Dr. Wojnarski is part of the Prospect Heights Natural Resources Commission, an all volunteer organization governed by six city appointed Commissioners. The Commission's goal is restoration of the prairie to it's natural ambiance. Co-founded in 2014 by Wojnarski, the commission works in conjunction with the City of Prospect Heights, reporting to the City Council and making recommendations for legislation and other actions that would pertain to the natural resources of the city.

been found in recent months. Before March 18, the last time a skimmer was recorded by police on the North Side was Feb. 8 in the 400 block of W. Armitage. Four days later, cops found Marius Manolache withdrawing cash from an Avondale ATM with a stack of homemade debit cards, according to charges. Each fraudulent card had the victim's PIN written on the back. The PINs and embedded card numbers were captured earlier by skimming devices, prosecutors allege. Manolache, 42, was living in a hotel room near Clark and Diversey at the time of his arrest. Cops who arrested him said he had 17 fraudulent debit cards and $3,040 worth of $20 bills in his pockets. Prosecutors charged him with felony burglary, felony aggravated identity theft of a person over age 60, and felony theft of identity from more than three victims. Judge Sophia Atcherson ordered him to surrender his Romanian passport and set bail at $5,000. Manolache—a man with $3,040 worth of twenties in his pocket—easily posted the $500 deposit to walk free. He was never seen again. Court records show he skipped his court appearance on March 12. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

call that showed a disturbance at a school. It reported that student has a mental illness and is off his medication. He checked a camera in the school to see if he could provide any additional information to the responding officer. In this case, he could not. The school camera was fixed and he could not control it except to zoom in and out. As with all software, no doubt newer versions will provide more abilities for communications between the office and the officer. But as it is, this consolidated data not only aids in real time patrolling, it improves investigations as well, providing all CPD officers with historical offender records and crime data on one platform. The second major technology in CPD's crime battle is the predictive system HunchLab. Using a compilation of data sources every eight hours, it utilizes advanced statistical models to predict what crimes will occur where and when. This allows police to patrol their beats based on community needs and align resources with the need. Furthermore, officers are provided with suggested tactics based on case history. In the field on his cell phone, an officer is given his computer assisted mission for the day by HunchLab. He sees where problems may occur in his beat and suggested strategic tactics recommended to resolve it. Once they click on a specific recommended action, a countdown begins showing how they spend the next 'X' amount of time doing specific actions. While command officers used the same data, paper and pencil procedures took longer and did not provide the visual representations possible on computer systems. "With technology we can function a whole lot better and easier," comments Rivera, a 23-year CPD veteran. "At roll call we were told, 'Your mission today is this, this and this,'" explained Officer Paris Edwards. "Now, based on the same analysis, the system is telling us that." Command line officers also are affected too, being able to spend more time managing rather than being responsible for compiling and assigning personnel based on the data. Officers, on their cell phones, can also access the Clearsystem. This type of data accessibility over the internet translates into a better informed efficient officer who does not have to return to his station to lookup data. Calling "911" and "311" is often described by civilians as an experience to avoid. However, OEMC is part of the a three way partnership that needs to work well to make Chicago safe. Officers Rivera and Edwards suggest that when placing a call to OEMC, it may be a better experience if the following facts are remembered:

- Each OEMC operator has a template of questions. The template aids operators in determining the calls priority.
- If the caller says they want to be anonymous, their name and contact information will not go over the air or go on the record given to officers.
- Each call is assigned a priority number, the highest priority is given to "in progress" situations.
- Operators will ask specific questions which calls may seem irrelevant but are used in determining priority.
- Officers do not see calls until CPD dispatch processes the call(s).
- Call is dispatched dependent on manpower and priority number.
- It is possible that officers will be called off a call because a higher priority call requires their service.
- Officers do knock on neighborhood doors for some cases. When they do that the anonymous caller may be among them. But that is done not because they called but because they are one of the neighbors.
