The Underline concept was derived from a group of active community members with the idea of enhancing the space beneath the tracks and by looking at other projects around the country that have been re-imagining and revitalizing unused spaces, especially near transit.

Wilson Underline project supporters want plans considered before it's too late

STORY BY ADAM PRAHL

As work on the Wilson “L” renovation chugs along, a group of Uptown residents have a plan in mind on what they would like to see happen 13’ below the $203 million dollar reconstruction project. A group of about 15 people called the Wilson “L” Public Space Committee, would like to create a beautified, functional, safe and welcoming community space beneath the Wilson “L.”

According to Uptown resident Julianne Scherer “This is a once in a lifetime generational opportunity, this project could be the catalyst for change.”

Right now, the CTA plans would simply create a fenced off parking area for Aldi and 4554 Broadway.

The project, dubbed The Wilson Underline, was co-created with the input from Scherer, committee chairwoman and Brett Weidl, co-chair on the committee - an architect and landscape architect, respectively, by trade. According to Scherer, “time is limited” as the Underline project is not a ‘go’ just yet as there has been no financial backing from the CTA or current outside funding.

According to Uptown United (Uptown’s chamber of commerce) Executive Director, Sara Dinges, the Underline concept was derived from “different places. A group of active community members with the idea of enhancing the space beneath the tracks and by looking at other projects around the country that have been re-imagining and revitalizing unused spaces, especially near transit.”

Supplemental design input was gathered from additional architects and landscape architects as well as city planners and the Graceland-Wilson Neighbors Assoc. Two Underline Project surveys have been taken with over 500 responding to the first and over 800 responding to an additional survey that just closed recently. The study results from the community were “very, very positive,” Weidl said.

Three years-in-a-row winner of Redeye’s ‘Crust Station’ contest as the “crustiest” CTA station (voted on by L riders), the Wilson station, built in 1923 is in Stage Two of a five-stage renovation slated to be completed in the Fall of 2017. It is the largest station renovation in CTA history.

The Wilson reconstruction plan was formally announced on Nov. 3, 2011, as part of the Illinois Jobs Now! program. According to Ald. James Cappleman [46th], the project is about “40% complete.”

The CTA reports that “the project will also include significant track and structural work that will allow for easy and convenient transfers between the Red Line and Purple Line Express; enhance the street-level environment on Broadway; and improve CTA operations.”

Also included in the plan are two elevators, wheelchair access at the turnstiles, ramps and braille which would bring the station into accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Further additions include over 100 security cameras, brighter more

Broadway Youth Center moving north to Uptown

BY PATRICK BUTLER

After several years of friction with some of its neighbors, the Broadway Youth Center [BYC] will be moving from the Wellington Avenue United Church of Christ, 615 W. Wellington, to new quarters in a former H & R Block office at 4009 N. Broadway.

The move to larger space – along with the appointment of Latonya Maley as the agency’s new director – was announced at the Howard Brown Health Center’s [HBC] March 30 annual meeting held at the Howard Brown Resale Shop, 5404 N. Clark St. The youth center is a HBC agency.

The “transition” is expected by the end of the year, according to David Munar, HBC’s CEO. The larger space, he explained, “will allow for expansion of hours, and an increase in the number of young LGBTQ (lesbian/gay/bisexual/transgender and questioning) people we can serve.”

than 1,500 12- to 24-year-olds receiving free “refuge, medical care, social services, food and clothing,” will offer storage lockers, use of computers, showers, and “insurance navigation,” according to an HBC news release. BYC also offers confidential HIV testing and STD screenings for syphilis, chlamydia, gonorrhea, trichomaniasis, bacterial vaginosis, yeast infections, HPV (warts), and HSV (herpes). They provide pregnancy tests, birth control options, gender-affirming hormone therapy, and basic medication and flu/cold season care.

Will towing pirates walk the plank?

Officials from several city departments wait to provide any technical information that may be needed during the Lincoln Towing hearing.

Some blame state regulators for lax oversight

“We all live in glass houses, it doesn’t mean we’re all bad. And just because we get into trouble doesn’t mean we can’t resolve those issues,” said Lincoln Towing lawyer Allen Perl.

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY PATRICK BUTLER

Lincoln Towing got taken to the woodshed by Ald. Ameya Pawar [47th] last week during a joint hearing of the City Council’s License and Public Safety committees.

Allen Perl, Lincoln Towing’s lawyer, called Ald. Pawar a “bully” for demanding Perl explain his client’s decades of controversial behavior at a public hearing and not in a private conversation.

“I thought it was important to meet here instead of discussing 40 years of complaints in a back room,” Ald. Pawar shot back.

And there was no lack of irate citizens lining up to administer spankings of their own during the two-hour hearing.

Among them were Abbey Amey, who said she moved out to the suburbs after her car was illegally towed by the notorious “Lincoln Park Pirates,” even though it had an authorization sticker. Amey told the committees that when she tried to point this out to a cashier at Lincoln Towing’s automotive lockup at 4887 N. Clark St., she was told by a “foul mouthed” employee that she could have put it on when she came to reclaim her car.

“They shouldn’t be in business. They need to be shut down,” Amey said.

She added that she got little help from the Illinois Commerce Commission, which is supposed to oversee towing practices and is currently conducting an investigation of its own into the industry. Amey said she eventually filed a civil suit, regaining the money she paid to recover her car, 20th District police Cmdr. Sean Loughran confirms reports that police spent some 600 hours handling Lincoln Towing-related complaints last year.

Nous Sommes Belgique!

By Thomas J. O’Gorman

I love the Belgians. They are swell people. To many Americans they are mysterious people. We do not have intense experiences of the Belgians here in Chicago. I do not know if there were large settlements of them here in America. Logan Square used to have a large population of them. At St. John Berchman’s Church on the Boulevard there is the traditional parish of the Belgians in the Archdiocese of Chicago since 1905.

They don’t throw huge parades down busy Chicago streets. They are not known for stealing elections, hiring their relations, getting their wives made judges or scamming their way through law school. So obviously they do not have much in common with the rest of Chicago’s elite.

I think they came for land. And farmed those homesteads in Illinois, Wisconsin and elsewhere. Lived quietly and simply. No green beer or scandals. They grew leeks and carrots and potatoes out south, educated their children and quietly joined the ranks of civilized America.

In Europe they have always been far less highly strung than their Frenchy neighbors, and yet still managed to give the world great pommes frites, mussels in beer and golden waffles. Wine not so much, but of course, the finest of beers, often made by the recipes of Trappist monks.

The Belgians always seemed a circumspect culture. Not into the panache of, I don’t know, their French neighbors. Of course they gave the world its greatest detective (thanks to Agatha Christie), Hercule Poirot. More cunning than Conan Doyle’s Sherlock Holmes and less morbid than Georges Simenon’s French detective, Jules Maigret (soon to return to PBS).

But of course what the Belgians have really given to the world is the greatest of all gifts. Chocolate. Yes. Chocolate. Shiny, smooth, complex chocolate. And a nation of chocolatiers.

Some Belgian chocolates are so well known that the mere color of their boxes alone say it all. There are over 2000 high-end chocolate makers in Belgium. That says it all. “Copper” boxed Neuhaus opened in 1857 and in 1912 Jean Neuhaus invented the praline bonbon. He changed the world. “Silver” boxed Leonidas opened in 1913 (there is one on Chicago Ave.) and “gold” boxed Godiva began in 1926 (they are easy to find here).

Belgium’s painters fill the museums and galleries of Brussels and other European capitols, but with less commotion than their neighbors to the south. There’s a pattern here, I think. I am very fond of Alfred Stevens, Theodore Verschueren and Bellor (Rene Miessen), the symbolist painter. I think Belgium is a Chicago kind of place. And France is a New York kind of place.

As I look at it, Belgium had great painters, but bad kings, inept and nasty, like the Leopolds and the Alberts whose record of colonial cruelty in Africa is a long, bitter tale. Everybody wanted diamonds. But, of course, the Belgians found them. The present ruler, King Phillipe, and wife, Queen Matilda, are actually good eggs. Simple. Well-liked. Considerate and relevant to the times in which we live.

Belgian culture is complicated in some ways. Two main cultural-groups have shaped the nation. The Flems (Flemings), who are more than 50% of the population, speak Dutch. And the Waloons, who are abundant, and speak various dialects of French. Both groups are heavily Roman Catholic. They have achieved cohesion. A strong sense of national purpose. Powerful economic muscle. And significant European political influence as the host country to the government of the European Union. They are deeply internationalist. You can travel to many neighboring countries easily and quickly from Belgium.

Of course, it must be said that Belgium’s European centrality made them tragic victims of the Kaiser Wilhelms (I and II), as well as Hitler. If you want to invade France, well, then the backdoor of Belgium is made to order. They were cruelly treated.

Belgians are highly educated. Sophisticated. Liberal. Well read. Theologically progressive. Scientific. Musical and passionately kind. It must be all the chocolate and the beer.

Belgium has been a quiet home to many refugees over the centuries. No place better in the 17th century for the princes of Ulster, (Ireland’s Northern Province) the O’Neills and the O’Donnells and others who fled the wrath of Queen Elizabeth I in “The Flight of the Earls.” Many of the exiled families of the flight wound up spending the rest of their lives in Belgium, particularly in Louvain, the site of the Catholic University so famous for their great library (destroyed in World War I). Many women of the flight are buried there. So too, is Father Damian of Molokai, now a saint, who worked among the Lepers in Hawaii until he contracted the disease himself. Rose O’Neill and I prayed at his tomb. We took the TGV from Paris to Brussels in little more than an hour. We relished the leafy beauty of lush Brussels and Louvain.

Father Arnold Damen, SJ, of St. Ignatius/Holy Family Parish fame in Chicago (after whom Damen Ave. is named) was from Belgium. So was Audrey Hepburn, Peter Paul Rubens, Adolphe Sax (inventor of the saxophone) and artists Rene Magritte, Peter Paul Rubens and Anton Van Dyck. Jacques Brel was Belgian, along with Liz Claiborne, Jean-Claude Van Damme, novelist Marguerite Yourcenar and organ composer Cesar Frank.

As a youth I was enamored with the travelogue of elementary school geography. Like a convict looking at a hacksaw. Even in third grade I was always reading geography and planning my escape. Looking at the photos of town squares, cathedrals, open markets, fine hotels and cafes, I knew just where I wanted to go. I was fascinated with what was then the vogue “the Benelux” countries. Belgium. Netherlands. Luxemburg.

There was some talk of a “Common Market,” some day and the Benelux countries’ trade pact in the 1950s was the precursor. Brussels, Bruges, Antwerp, and the rolling pastures of the “low countries,” consumed me.

I have been thinking about all this lately, of course, in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks in Brussels. The Belgians have long offered hospitality to people seeking a fresh start and a new European living. They have been light years ahead of their neighbors. Quietly. Without fanfare. Gently. They have never been afraid of multi-cultural mixing - after all they have had to do it from the start as Flems and Waloons.

No “Brexit” panic in Belgium. They are committed to the principles of co-operation and mutual understanding among the signature nations of the European Union. They remain trusting and hopeful amid the carnage.

But do we? Going thermo-nuclear does not seem to be such a terrible option. Make more sand in the desert. End the threats. Put an end to Jihad. Enough is enough. The sights and sounds of the victims in Brussels’ airport and train station are unforgivable. And we all know that its only a matter of time before it is repeated somewhere else. But no one deserved it less than the Belgians.

I think we need to turn back to that more hopeful Belgium detective, Hercule Poirot, whose logic I suspect represents more fully the “Belgian” quality of our search for some rational resolution.

He says, “It is the brain, the little gray cells on which one must rely. One must seek the truth within--not without.” That’s more like it. More like the people who have given the world chocolate, fine beer and savory mussels.

Award-worthy and award-winning Chicagoans

Heart of the 'Hood By Felicia Dechter

commendable is that she doesn't treat them like criminals.

A Cook County adult probation officer at the courthouse at Harrison and Kedzie, De La Cerna has started a "really cool program of giving," according to one of her co-workers. De La Cerna's copier room has become her "closet," filled with all sorts of free items for anyone in need or who wants to take anything -- no questions asked, no strings attached.

The co-worker who alerted me to what De La Cerna is up to is a public defender, and she sent me an email, saying that in light of all the bad things going on, how about writing about something good? She then told me what De La Cerna was doing and guess what? I couldn't agree more with her more.

The idea began as '40 Days of Giving' to support the Lenten season, said De La Cerna. That inspiration led her to request gently-used, freshly-cleaned or new clothing, shoes, toys, gifts, trinkets, greeting cards, toiletries, jewelry, etc., to distribute at no cost to those she sees that are in need.

"A new client of mine reported for his first visit with me," said De La Cerna. "I learned that he had been living on his sister's floor, virtually homeless for a few months, which is not unusual for my clientele. But his sentence was for stealing two children's books and a card for his granddaughter's birthday.

"His charge was a misdemeanor and if recall correctly, under $150, but because he had been previously convicted as a felon, the charge was upgraded to a felony and he was thereby sentenced as a felon for a misdemeanor theft," said De La Cerna. "I completely understand the position I have as an officer of the court, and the position of retailers and the community recouping loss and that holding offenders accountable is absolute. What breaks my heart is that we often consider the homeless need of basic essentials, but neglect their desire to be there for their families and friends and not be completely out of touch or non-participatory with their loved ones, and their loved ones lives, simply due to unfortunate present circumstances."

Her goal is to reduce recidivism -- repeating criminal behavior -- in those who have a conscience and simply want to continue life as normally as possible by giving things that are not necessarily "necessity" but are desired, said De La Cerna.

"My hope is to allow some normalcy for those attempting to help themselves," she said. "They can shop, in peace, for free."

De La Cerna -- who was born in South Shore and has lived in Wrigleyville, Andersonville, Dwana De La Cerna spends her days working with people who've committed an array of various crimes, but what's Dwana De La Cerna has started a "really cool program of giving," according to one of her co-workers.

Avondale and Pilsen -- started collecting the various items about a month or so ago, inspired by people on Social Media cleaning out their closets during the Lenten season. "I saw all of the excess people had packed up, and knew that I had the perfect place for all of that goodness to end up," she said. "I immediately posted on Facebook to send it all to me and they did."

The items are for anyone who wants them, said De La Cerna. "The goal is for no stealing on my watch!" she said.

Anyone who would like to donate can drop off or ship their stuff to: Cook County Criminal Courts, 3150 W. Flournoy, Chicago, IL 60612, Attn: Probation. De La Cerna doesn't accept furniture or large appliances, but she is really in need of unopened toys, children's books or educational items, gift cards, work clothes for men, purses, and interviewing or business casual attire for women.

Thus far, probationers have benefitted and shopped more than $500 worth of clothing (with many things being brand new) and shoes. Two probationers have also donated clean, gently used items themselves.

Although her co-workers are amazed at what she is doing, for De La Cerna, it's just a way of paying it forward and also continuing the service she has provided to her community for the last 28 years.

"I give because I have been given so much," said De La Cerna. "When I was newly divorced in the late 1990s and temporarily without housing, my girlfriends opened their homes, their hearts and serviced my little family -- me and my young sons -- in so many ways that it really left an impression on me.

"Selflessness is really a beautiful thing."

The best of the best ... My heartiest congratulations to entertainment reporter Bill Zwecker, who on April 20 will be honored by Cinema/Chicago and the Chicago International Film Festival at the 52nd Chicago International Television Awards, which pays tribute to some of TV's most respected and acclaimed personalities and entities.

Zwecker will receive this year's Chicago Award, which is apropos because although he jet sets around the globe covering everything we want to know about celebs, he definitely represents the best of Chicago.

A Chicago native, Zwecker graduated from Princeton Univ. and attended the Univ. of Chicago Graduate School of Business. After working in politics (for former U.S. Sen. Charles Percy), banking and retail, his journalism career started in the same place mine did, at the Lerner Newspapers, where he was a columnist and associate editor before joining the Chicago Sun-Times in 1992.

Bill Zwecker

From there he pretty much skyrocketed, and since then Zwecker has contributed as an entertainment reporter and film critic for numerous media outlets and shows, both locally and nationally, including "The Joan Rivers Show," CBS and NBC news, "Biography," and a bunch of others.

Yet Zwecker's accomplishments don't end there, and the list is extraordinarily impressive. Among other accolades and awards, he was inducted as the first male in the Women in Film "Hall of Fame" in early Oct., 2012, is the two-time recipient of the Peter Lisagor Award, has been nominated for three Emmy Awards and was part of the WBBM-TV news team honored with an Associated Press award.

He also supports the people and places of Chicago with his philanthropic work. That includes, again among many others, board memberships or involvement with Roosevelt Univ., the Chicago Academy for the Arts, the Off the Street Club, School of the Art Institute of Chicago, the Greater North Michigan Ave. Assoc., Auxiliary Board of Lincoln Park Zoo (founding member), the AIDS Foundation of Chicago, the North Dearborn Assoc. and the Headline Club of Chicago.

And the best part is, that besides all of the above, he's a nice guy!

"With the exception of a couple of Emmy nominations -- all previous honors/awards have been for my print work," said Zwecker, who took the time to email me while vacationing in St. Barth's. "So this television award -- named for my hometown -- is especially sweet, as well as being very humbling."

Along with Zwecker, also receiving special awards this year are director, playwright and Emmy Award-winning actor Regina Taylor and entertainment reporter Janet Davies. Cinema/Chicago Founder/Director Michael Kutza called this year's honorees, "extraordinary examples of why television is so vital and meaningful."

Recovery rolling, but where have all the new condo developments gone?

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

The housing recovery may be rolling along in the Windy City, but where have all the new downtown condominiums gone?

If you are shopping for a brand new condo in the Loop, West Loop, South Loop, Streeterville, River North, River West, Gold Coast and Near North Side neighborhoods, this housing type virtually has become an endangered species.

Until CMK Development started construction in the spring for 2014 for the 144-unit 1345 S. Wabash project, ground had been broken on no new high-rise condo buildings in seven years.

“Clearly, there has been a sales recovery in the existing condo market downtown,” said Gail Lissner, vice president of Appraisal Research Counselors Ltd., Chicago’s top condo appraisal firm. “However, with the limited new-development activity occurring sales volume in new buildings is extremely modest.”

Only 415 new condos were built downtown in 2015, a slight improvement over 400 units Average downtown condo prices rose to $421 per square foot in the third and fourth quarters of 2015, up a hefty 25% from $388 per square foot at the bottom of the market in the first and second quarters of 2012.

built in 2014, reported Appraisal Research’s “Downtown Chicago Benchmark Report” covering the fourth quarter of last year.

On the positive side, for developers at least, condo resale prices downtown have rebounded from the depths of the Great Recession. Average downtown condo prices rose to $421 per square foot in the third and fourth quarters of 2015, up a hefty 25% from $388 per square foot at the bottom of the market in the first and second quarters of 2012, according to Appraisal Research’s survey of 65 buildings which were sold out by 2007.

“There are significant price gaps in developer inventory which is available for sale in the downtown market,” said Ron DeVries, vice president of Appraisal Research. “At the present time, the new inventory which began marketing in 2014 and 2015 is priced in the $300-per-square-foot range or the $700-per-square-foot range with no inventory in between,” DeVries said.

“With an expanded range of condo product type, there would certainly be the potential for increased sales,” he said.

Appraisal Research’s report noted the following developments in the marketplace:

- Affordable condos scarce. One of the few examples of condos targeted to first-time buyers and listed with average prices of $335 per square foot is The Guild, a 14-story tower at 1555 S. Wabash in the South Loop. Sixty percent of the 176 units are now sold or under contract in this five-year-old project which was caught in the Great Recession. Original unsold units were rented.

“To compete in today’s market, the original units have been extensively renovated with new finishes, including new hardwood floors, cabinets, appliances and quartz countertops,” Lissner said.

The building’s common areas also are being upgraded.

- Boutique projects. While few developers are beginning large condo buildings, the smaller boutique project with less than 50 units will most likely be favored in the near term.

Related also has acquired the failed Spire site on the eastern edge of River North. Earlier plans for this site called for a 1,200-unit luxury condo high-rise.

- Condo pipeline growing. There is a growing pipeline of proposed condo projects which have not yet been launched. “Numerous projects are being pursued by developers, all in varying stages of the pre-development process including the entitlement process which can be lengthy,” Lissner said.

For example, One Bennett Park is planned by Related Midwest overlooking a 1.7-acre park in Streeterville. Vista Tower, a 410-unit condo/hotel, is planned by a joint venture of Magellan Development and Wanda Development in the Lakeshore East community south of the Chicago River. Marketing recently started for Vista Tower.

Related also has acquired the failed Spire site on the eastern edge of River North. Earlier plans for this site called for a 1,200-unit luxury condo high-rise. “Related is in the process of developing a plan for this high-profile site, which likely will include a condominium component,” DeVries said.

- Condo resale prices rise. With little or no new condo inventory being added to the downtown market, and developer-owned inventory being sold, prices of resale units are beginning to rise.

“Condo resale prices were up 5.5% on a year-over-year basis for the period of third and fourth quarters of 2015, compared with the same period 2014,” Lissner said.

During the same period, Appraisal Research reported that the greatest resale condo price increases were posted in the Loop (up 11%), West Loop (up nine percent), Gold Coast (up seven percent) and South Loop (up four percent). Two percent increases were posted in Streeterville and River North.

Rock and Roll Hall of Famer Chris Hillman, singer/songwriter Herb Pedersen recall their past at Old Town School

This strip mall on North Ave. is the original site of the Old Town School of Folk Music and where McGuinn honed his craft.

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY PETER VON BUOL

Two musical legends, Chris Hillman and Herb Pedersen, who in the late 1980s formed two-thirds of the chart-topping country-rock band The Desert Rose Band, will be performing Friday at the Old Town School of Folk Music [OTS], 4544 N. Lincoln Ave.

Hillman and Pedersen have spent more than 50 years each in the music business as singer/songwriters and musicians.

In the late 1980s, they were two-thirds of country-rock The Desert Rose Band. Previously, the musicians had spent decades as singer/songwriters and musicians in different genres of music, including rock, folk-rock, folk, country-rock and country.

As a member of highly-successful and influential rock band, The Byrds, Hillman was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1991.

Performing at the OTS has always been very special for Hillman. In 1964, he had joined a band in Los Angeles that included four other musicians; guitarist Jim (now Roger) McGuinn, guitarist David Crosby, singer/songwriter Gene Clark and drummer Michael Clarke. The distinctive sound of the band had its origins in lessons McGuinn had been taught by one of the founders of the OTS.

“Roger had been a student of Frank Hamilton’s at the school. He had taught Roger to play the banjo and the guitar. The Byrds’ distinctive sound is directly due to Roger’s finger-picking style, a style he had learned from Frank Hamilton. It was also at OTS that Roger met Mike Bloomfield, the late Chicago-born blues guitar legend. Bloomfield was one of the greatest guitarists that ever lived. I have a great respect for OTS. To play that venue, because of its history, it is very close to me,” said Hillman, now 71.

In April 1965, Hillman, then 20, and his fellow Byrds had achieved worldwide success with the release of the band’s first single, an electric cover version of Bob Dylan’s “Mr. Tambourine Man.” Even in that first recording, the band stood apart from its competitors due to the distinctive sound emanating from McGuinn’s guitar. The recording was a number one hit record in the U.S. and Great Britain and Hillman and his bandmates found themselves compared to the giants of rock, The Beatles and The Rolling Stones. The band was even credited with launching a new musical genre, folk-rock.

“I was more into traditional music. The others were more into contemporary music. It all worked. We did not start off as a rock band. [Already at that time], Roger was just one of the most wonderful of musicians. The Byrds’ sound was really Roger’s finger-picking style. Another important mentor of Roger at OTS was Bob Gibson, who taught him five and 10 string banjo,” Hillman said in a recent interview.

Hillman, who grew up in rural North San Diego County, credits his older sister Susan with sparking an interest in authentic American folk music.

“My sister, Susan, was a bohemian in the late 1950s. She had been into the beat poets. I had been listening to the (mainstream folk) of The Kingston Trio when she brought me these records. These recordings included Leadbelly, Woody Guthrie and Pete Seeger. There was also this gentleman, Bill Smith, from rural Arkansas. He had been the janitor at my high school and he taught me guitar. If I hadn’t met him, I would never have gotten into music. He, ever so gently, showed me this unique musical form and he allowed me into his family. I learned how rural people from Arkansas thought. It was a completely new insight,” Hillman said.

In the early 1960s, while American folk music had found mainstream success with the music of The Limelighters, Peter, Paul and Mary and The Kingston Trio, Hillman found himself looking for something different. Interestingly, it was the same folk music that was then being preserved and taught by the instructors of Chicago’s OTS.

“The [popular folk groups] presented these diamond recordings in public. I had listened to them and I liked them but, they didn’t win me over like those from [bluegrass pioneers] Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs. My dad listened to Count Basie and he would ask me ‘What are you listening to?’ He didn’t understand why I would be listening to [what was the music of the rural poor],” Hillman said.

Initially, most of the original songs recorded by the Byrds had been written by Gene Clark, McGuinn and David Crosby. By 1967, Hillman was given more songwriting opportunities and, he co-wrote “So You Want to Be a Rock ‘n’ Roll Star,” a song about the recording industry. Upon its release, many considered the song a swipe at The Monkees, a rock band prefabricated to star in a television series.

Hillman disagrees and says the song has a more nuanced meaning.

“We knew The Monkees but, we didn’t run around with them. It was not against them. It was a tongue-in-cheek look at how contrived the music industry can be. Their show was such a steal of The Beatles ‘Hard Day’s Night,’ which was a wonderful movie. That movie really captured the time period. But, we never denigrated The Monkees. Mike Nesmith was actually [by then] a really good songwriter and musician. I saw him when he was just starting out,” Hillman said.

It was in Chicago that the Byrds themselves experienced their own version of the screaming pandemonium of fans depicted in the Beatles movie and The Monkees television series.

“We had our own taste of what it was like when we played a show to 4,000 screaming fans in Chicago. They had to close the show after three songs, due to them,” Hillman said.

According to a Chicago Tribune article from March 7, 1966, the concert promoter for the band’s show at the Civic Opera House, 20 N. Wacker, had descended into pandemonium due to the inexperience of its ushers, most of whom were college students inexperienced in crowd-control.

Worried about a stampede, the police had abruptly canceled the show. In the ensuing mayhem, a

Judge says Chicago red light cameras valid, constitutional

BY JONATHAN BILYK
Cook County Record

The city of Chicago will be allowed to continue to hand out tickets to motorists caught on camera running red lights after a Cook County judge garaged another legal challenge arguing both the city’s ordinance and a state law enabling cities, villages and counties within the Chicago and St. Louis metropolitan areas to set up red light camera systems were valid and constitutional.

On April 1, Cook County Circuit Judge Rita M. Novak ruled in favor of Chicago in turning back a “Herculean challenge” brought against the ordinance and its enabling legislation in a class action led by several motorists who had received and paid $100 tickets issued under the city’s red light camera program.

The lawsuit, brought in 2012 by named plaintiffs Terie L. Kata, Maureen Sullivan, Nicholas Clarke, Bohdan Gernaga and Niraj Rami, had demanded the city’s red light program be shuttered and the hundreds of millions of dollars in fines paid since 2006 be refunded. The city collects more than $60 million in fines under the program each year.

The judge’s ruling marks the latest chapter in ongoing efforts to challenge the red light camera program and its various facets on multiple fronts. In February, for instance, a Cook County judge refused to dismiss a class action brought by plaintiffs who claimed the city’s policies concerning how much notice is required to those issued tickets through the red light camera program before the city can actually move to collect fines and late fees, if the fines aren’t paid.

However, the lawsuit brought by Kata and her fellow plaintiffs directly challenged the validity of the program under the Illinois constitution.

The lawsuit asked the judge to declare a state law enabling only municipal governments in eight counties – Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will counties in the Chicago metro area and Madison and St. Clair counties in the St. Louis metro area – to install red light cameras is an unconstitutional “local law,” illegally applying for no rational reason to just certain communities.

The state constitution generally forbids laws in most instances from applying only to certain areas of the state, when laws covering the whole state are more applicable.

The plaintiffs noted, for instance, that, while the eight counties are among the most populous in Illinois, they do not include all of the state’s most populous counties, particularly noting Winnebago County, which encompasses the city of Rockford, is excluded from the authorizing legislation. Further, the irrational nature of the law is revealed in inconsistencies among the municipalities allowed to install the state.

“It was rational for the General Assembly to presume that there are more cars and intersections in the affected areas,” Novak wrote “As such, the occurrence of red light violations is also presumably higher. Further because more cars are likely to be near an intersection ordinance.

However, she said the ordinance would not have been void, meaning, after the state enacted its 2006 law, the ordinance took effect and did not need to be reenacted. And that, in turn, meant the city’s red light camera tickets were similarly supported by state law.

Finally, the judge brushed aside assertions that the city’s red light camera program should be invalidated because the city’s traffic signals do not conform to generally recommended principles declaring yellow lights should last a minimum of three seconds.

In Chicago, the yellow lights can be considerably shorter, making it more likely motorists could inadvertently run a red light and receive a citation.

Judge Novak said those standards, which she noted are considered by “a majority of jurisdictions” to be “nothing more than a guideline,” cannot be applied to a facial challenge to the law, saying such allegations would be more applicable under a negligence claim resulting from a traffic accident at an intersection monitored by red light cameras. But none of the plaintiffs involved in the case were involved in such a crash.

The city argued it had the inherent authority under its home rule powers to enact the ordinance.

red light camera systems. For instance, the plaintiffs said, tiny towns on the outskirts technically considered to be in the Chicago metro area in McHenry and Will counties could install the cameras, while larger communities just as far from Chicago or St. Louis are not similarly authorized.

While calling the argument “valiant,” Novak said they are “ultimately unavailing,” noting precedent allows the state to enact special laws applying to communities and regions “uniquely situated” compared to the rest of the state. She said this particular law could be considered “rational” as state lawmakers could have easily decided the traffic needs of the eight counties closest geographically, in general, to Chicago and St. Louis would be different from those of the rest of at any given time in the affected areas, the risk of a serious accident occurring as a result of a red light violation goes up. Accordingly, the legislature could have rationally concluded that these areas have different enforcement needs than the rest of the state.”

Alternatively, the plaintiffs had also argued that the city’s ordinance concerning the red light camera program should have been considered void following the passage of the 2006 state law. And, since that ordinance was never reenacted, the lawsuit argued tickets under that ordinance should also have been considered void.

The city argued it had the inherent authority under its home rule powers to enact the ordinance. Novak disagreed with this assertion, saying state law would have preempted the city’s plus $1,200 in penalties assessed against Lincoln Towing.

Another witness, William Rankin, who said he has a contract with Lincoln Towing that specifies no car can be towed from his lot without his express permission, said several cars had been towed without authorization in the past two years.

“Has it occurred to anyone in this august body that (Lincoln Towing) doesn’t give a damn about what ordinances you pass?”

“It’s the Illinois Commerce Commission, not Lincoln Towing, that’s the enemy here. They’re just the owner’s mad dog,” Rankin added.

The only thing Lincoln Towing’s owners will understand is to get its clients to cancel their contracts, said Rankin, who passed out copies of a brochure that included copies of letters he sent to several agencies, including the Illinois Attorney General’s office as well as Cong. Michael Quigley (D-5th).

Disputing Ald. Pawar’s assertion that there are nearly 4,000 complains against Lincoln Towing currently pending with the ICC, Perl said it’s more like “only 90” and just four-tenths of one percent of complaints against the company are upheld.

Supporting the towing industry if not all of Lincoln Towing’s alleged practices were Ed Forsythe, president of the Professional Towing and Recovery Operators of Illinois, and William Nestos of Rendered Services, 2019 W. Rascher, which Nestos emphasized had “no affiliation whatsoever” with Lincoln Towing.

Nestos said a lot of disputes could be avoided by putting cameras on all tow trucks. “Ninety-nine percent of the time, I’d say people are towed correctly. If there’s a dispute, call the police.”

Lincoln Towing’s automotive lockup at 4887 N. Clark St.

Like Nestos, Forsythe said his organization “does not condone any illegal activities, whether by our members or others. Most companies are totally honest, with hard working people. Some

Allen Perl, Lincoln Towing’s lawyer, called Ald. Pawar a “bully” for demanding Perl explain his client’s decades of controversial behavior at a public hearing and not in a private conversation.

(companies) have rogue drivers and they straighten them out or say goodbye.”

This isn’t just about the complainants, but the 600 man hours officers in the 20th Police District spent last year dealing with complaints and reports regarding Lincoln Towing, Ald. Pawar said. “That’s 600 hours they weren’t on the streets patrolling our neighborhoods.”

Cmdr. Sean Loughran of the 20th District said 324 of the 7,030 calls the station received during all of 2015 were about Lincoln Towing.

While Ald. Pawar agreed at least twice during the hearing that there’s a need for honest towing services, he noted there’s a need for better regulation.

The purpose of the hearing is to figure out just which regulations are needed, said Ald. Pawar, promising to come back with some proposals “very soon.”

For Ald. Ed Burke (14th), who has spent more than 35 years in the City Council, “this all seems like déjà vu. In 1987 and 1988 the legendary (Sun-Times columnist) Mike Royko was writing about Lincoln Towing’s owner Ross Cascio and (folksinger) Steve Goodman was singing about the ‘Lincoln Park Pirates’.”

Burke began reciting the lyrics, mercifully stopping short of breaking into song.

The North Mansion in Berger Park was built for pharmaceutical company executive Samuel Gunder, who lived in the house from 1910 to 1919.

Gunder Art Series showcases poetry reading

The more than 100-year-old Gunder House, the north mansion in Berger Park at 6219 N. Sheridan Rd., was the scene of a new form of poetry on March 25. Sara Deniz Akant read several of her poems during her performance as part the latest installment in the Gunder Exhibitions Winter Performance Art Series.

Robert Fernandez, guest editor of PEN Poetry Series, said her work “flowers, rolls, scabs, heaves, and shudders.” The 26-year-old performance artist and poet is the author of Babette, which was selected for the Black Box Poetry Prize. Akant received the John Logan Prize for Poetry and an award from the Academy of American Poets, among others.

Sara Deniz Akant appeared in costume for part of her performance at Gunder House.

She has taught poetry and writing at the University of Iowa and the City Univ. of New York and currently resides in Brooklyn.

Maley – who will take the helm at BYC April 15 – has worked at BYC for the past three years and has a decade of experience in youth work and HIV prevention, said Kristin Baker, HBC’s COO.

“BYC has been looking for a permanent home for some time, and I’m confident Latonya will make the transition as seamless as possible,” Baker said.

“I’m proud to continue working with the resilient and inspiring young people who come to BYC for services,” Maley said. “I’m eternally thankful to Pastor Alli Baker and everyone at Wellington Avenue United Church of Christ, who supported BYC’s ‘temporary’ use of their space from day one.”

Relations with the community were strained after a few meetings in 2013 evolved into name calling and shouting between the two factions.

The BYC had been operating out of the church for a number of years, but eventually divided the community at one point over whether the facility should continue at that location. Some neighbors called for the BYC to move in the wake of an increasing number of incidents ranging from thefts, muggings, robberies, prostitution and panhandling to outright harassment they blamed on the BYC’s troubled clients.

Relations with the community were strained after a few meetings

Chicagoans are leaving the city for myriad predictable and understandable reasons. Whether our beleaguered, beloved Chicago will be able to prevent its lamentable decline is anyone’s guess.

Survival is the primary goal for all living beings. Furthermore, all biological creatures hoping to succeed, thrive, and perhaps even prevail understand that they must distance themselves from toxins and pursue nutrients.

Personally, though I was born and raised in Brooklyn, I’ve enjoyed a fulfilling life in Chicago for over half a century. Nevertheless, the

The Uptown Chamber of Commerce will be hosting a networking luncheon 11:30 a.m. April 13 at Pho Viet restaurant, 4941 N. Broadway.

Tickets can be purchased online for $15 until April 11. For more information call 773-508-5885.

LPAC to meet April 13

The regular monthly meeting for the Lincoln Park Advisory Council will be held 6:45 p.m. Wednesday, April 13, at the Margate Park Fieldhouse, 4921 N. Marine Dr. Expected to be presented is a report from the nominating committee regarding a new Board for the 2016-17 term.

Also on the agenda is a new archery group which has formed in Lincoln Park and who is coming to introduce themselves to the community.

Our history does not have to be our destiny current pathetic departure scenario should remind reasonable citizens of the following age-old profound wisdoms: To all things there is a season; all business relationships come to an end; the only thing permanent is change; and suffering is optional.

While I find it sad to experience its demise, I also maintain some hope because I know that one’s history does not necessarily imply one’s destiny. There may yet be hope that Chicago can reclaim much of the stature that it has lost. But then again, I’ve always been a bit of a dreamer.

I would like to spend a good part of the next half century living in, and enjoying, Chicago, wouldn’t you?

Police Beat.....

Wanted for robberies on North/Milwaukee

The above pictured offenders are wanted in connection with burglaries occurring on the Near North Side throughout January and February. During these crimes the male offender broke a window to a business and took money from the cash register. The female offender acted as a lookout.

Incidents have occurred along North and Milwaukee Avenues mainly between the hours of 12 a.m. and 5 a.m. Police are asking for anyone with information on these two suspects to contact the Bureau of Detectives Area North at 312-744-8263.

Shots fired near Addison/LSD

A Chicago police officer who was handling a routine matter in the 3600 block of N. Recreation Dr. early 4:17 a.m. April 3 witnessed shots being fired from a vehicle on nearby Lake Shore Dr.—and two of the gunshots were transmitted on the officer's emergency radio call of “shots fired.”

The officer reported that multiple shots were fired from a black SUV in the northbound lanes of Inner Lake Shore Dr. near Addison St. The vehicle turned west on Grace St. and disappeared before the officer was able to cross over from the park.

Audio reviewed by this newspaper revealed the officer breaking onto he airwaves, “Shots fired! [Gunshot]... [Gunshot]...”

The Recreation Dr. area and nearby lakefront are popular after-dark hangouts for members of several gangs and the Lake Michigan seawall is frequently covered by large swaths of gang tags.

Two people were shot during a gang-related conflict near the tennis courts at 3600 N. Recreation Dr. in July 2014.

Sentencing In Recreation Dr. melee

A 20-year-old man from the Austin neighborhood has just received a two-year prison sentence for possessing a loaded handgun during a melee near the baseball fields at 3700 N. Recreation Dr. last summer.

Jesus Amaya pleaded guilty to one count of aggravated unlawful use of a weapon. Seven other weapons-related charges were dropped in the plea deal.

Three other men were also charged in the case that witnesses said involved a man with a gun and people fighting on the lakefront rocks and the tennis courts along Recreation Dr.

Officers recovered one firearm and rounded up several offenders, but up to 15 others—including one who was allegedly armed with a second gun—escaped on foot and by vehicle.

Wrigleyville robbery ends with arrest; other weekend hold-ups investigated

A 19-year-old man from the Austin neighborhood is accused of robbing another man near the Sheridan Red Line CTA Station early around 12:30 a.m. April 2.

The victim told police that a man wearing a white ski mask and a black hoodie claimed to have a handgun during the hold-up.

Officers searched the area and soon found a man who matched the suspect description at Irving Park Rd. and Fremont St. The man was arrested after the victim positively identified him to officers.

Jalon E. Middlebrooks of the 1400 block of N. Latrobe is being held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Meanwhile, another offender is at large after a woman reported being robbed at gunpoint in the Buena Park neighborhood at 11:40 a.m. April 2.

The victim was walking in the 4200 block of N. Clarendon Rd. when a man displayed a handgun and fled with her black leather backpack and an iPhone.

The offender jumped into the back seat of a black 4-door sedan with a driver. It was last seen heading westbound on Hutchinson from Clarendon, the victim said.

Also from this weekend, Chicago police are investigating a Sunday evening incident near Lake Shore Dr. and Addison as a possible carjacking attempt.

A cabbie reported that three men battered him and attempted to take his Flash Cab around 3:50 p.m., but a language barrier was making it difficult for officers to confirm exactly what happened, police said.

Video from the taxi cab is being reviewed.

Three charged in Lakeview East burglary, but break-ins continue

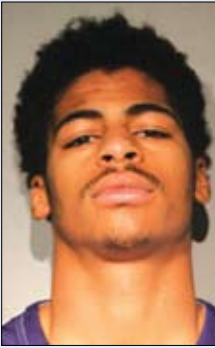

Three South Side men face various charges in connection with the March 7 burglary of a Lakeview East home and the subsequent sale or possession of items taken during the break-in.

The 71-year-old victim told police that the back door to her home in the 500 block of W. Hawthorne Place was removed while she was at work and property—including her 2013 Lexus—was taken.

Emmitt Crayton, 22, of the Chatham neighborhood is charged with burglary. He is a documented member of the Gangster Disciples street gang, according to police.

Marko Lawson, 20, of the Morgan Park neighborhood is charged with theft after he allegedly admitted to selling the victim's flat screen TV to a Calumet City pawn shop for $60, according to court records.

Stephen Kee

the pawn shop, court records say.

The arrest of those three men has had no effect on this year's soaring burglary rates in Lincoln Park (+70%), Lincoln Square (+30%),

Marko Lawson

Stephen Kee, 18, of the Ashburn neighborhood is charged with theft and possession of a stolen motor vehicle. He allegedly possessed the victim's Lexus, took property from within the vehicle, and helped Lawson carry the victim's TV into North Center (+25%), and Lakeview (+113%).

• Late on March 29, a burglar took about $900 from Nuts on Clark, 3830 N. Clark St. A woman called 911 at 8 a.m. the next day to report that a Nuts on Clark cash register was lying in an alley near Clark and Byron. She also told police that she saw a man breaking the cash register open around 10:30 p.m. the night before, but she didn't call right away.

• On April 2, an AT&T store employee in the 1700 block of W. Fullerton reported that someone broke through a wall overnight and stole merchandise. Police confirmed receiving a burglar alarm call around 11:30 p.m. Friday, but the officers saw no sign of trouble, so they cited the store for a false alarm.

• An employee at the Twisted Baker, 2475 N. Lincoln, called police around 6 p.m. March 31 after three men allegedly entered the shop and stole money from her purse. One offender entered through the back and two came through the front, she said. The men were last seen fleeing the area in a navy blue Dodge Town & Country with an extended top and dealer plates. Offender descriptions:

- 1) male, black, 5'9" tall, 170 lbs, long dreads, black puffy jacket
 - 2) male, black, 5'10" tall, 150 lbs, short dreads, black hoodie, bleached jeans
 - 3) male, black, 5'11" tall, 170 lbs, shaved head, black hoodie, bleached jeans
- Also on March 31, employees of the Town Hall Apartments, a residence for LGBT seniors at 3600 N. Halsted, reported that someone broke into their basement and stole a key-making machine.

• The Chicagoland Community Church, 836 W. Aldine, discovered that their house of worship had been forcibly entered and burgled on March 28.

Police say man accused of killing cabbie in Lincoln Square robbed another cabbie the next day

The man who's accused of fatally shooting a veteran taxi driver during a robbery in Lincoln Square this winter is now charged with robbing two other cab drivers—including one on the day after the murder.

Lamon Weathers, 19, was charged with murder after he allegedly hailed a cab on Feb. 22 and then shot driver Kamil Shamji in the head as the two sat behind the Sulzer Regional Library, 4455 N. Lincoln.

Now, police have tied Weathers to two more cab robberies—one before the murder and one on the day after.

Prosecutors say a taxi cab surveillance system captured images of Weathers robbing a 47-year-old cabbie at gunpoint in the 400 block of W. Erie around 1:15 a.m. on Feb. 16. The driver was not injured.

And the day after Weathers allegedly killed Shamji, prosecutors say he hailed another cab and robbed its driver at gunpoint in the 800 block of W. Belden near the DePaul campus in Lincoln Park. The next day, the driver recognized Weathers in a mugshot that aired during TV news coverage of his arrest.

Chicago police arrested Weathers at a Joliet Metra station on Feb. 24. He was wearing the same clothing as the man who was seen on video shooting Shamji in the head, prosecutors say, and he was carrying a .32 semi-automatic handgun that was later determined to be the murder weapon.

This newspaper has learned that Weathers was in possession of two cellphones at the time of his arrest. One of them had been used to order the Flash Cab ride that ended with Shamji's death.

Investigators have also said that Weathers tried to cover up the murder by stealing the video camera from Shamji's vehicle. Unfortunately for Weathers, the video system's memory card was left behind.

A Cook County grand jury returned an 18-count true bill against Weathers. It includes 12 murder-related charges, three robbery counts, and three counts of unlawful vehicular invasion. Bond for Weathers is set at $1 million.

Three sets of father and son among more than 15 charged with dealing cocaine and heroin

More than 15 defendants, including three fathers and their sons, are facing federal or state drug charges for their alleged roles in dealing wholesale amounts of heroin and cocaine in Chicago and surrounding suburbs.

During the course of the investigation, dubbed “Operation Chicago Storm,” law enforcement agents assigned to the Chicago Strike Force seized more than 100 kilograms of cocaine, nine kilograms of heroin, 14 firearms and $600,000 in narcotics proceeds. Authorities uncovered the criminal activity through the use of wiretapped cellular phones, cooperating witnesses and extensive surveillance.

Fourteen federal defendants were arrested in the past week. Two state defendants have been charged in separate complaints filed in state court.

According to federal criminal complaints, the investigation revealed that Julio Martinez, Sr. and his son, Julio Martinez, Jr., trafficked kilogram quantities of heroin and cocaine primarily on the Northwest Side of the city. Edwin Del Valle worked with the Martinezes to supply the narcotics to wholesale customers, the affidavits state. Del Valle allegedly stashed the narcotics in a garage in the Portage Park neighborhood of Chicago.

The three are each charged with one count of conspiracy to knowingly and intentionally possess with intent to distribute heroin, and one count of knowingly and intentionally possessing cocaine with the intent to distribute.

Two other sets of father and son were also charged as part of the investigation. Juvenal Martinez, 66, and his stepson, Israel Martines, were charged with participating in a conspiracy to distribute cocaine. Also charged in a cocaine-dealing conspiracy were Phillip Vega, 42, and his son, Jacob Vega, 24.

Strike Force agents executing a search warrant as part of the investigation discovered a Glock 17 semiautomatic handgun in the home of Phillip Vega. The search also uncovered 56 rounds of ammunition, 60 grams of cocaine, and a digital scale.

Throughout the course of the investigation, authorities surreptitiously recorded numerous drug transactions, including one near the Kennedy Expressway at Armitage Ave. More than 140 grams of cocaine was allegedly sold in that deal by Nicholas Padin, 28, who is charged with both the conspiracy and the possession with intent to distribute.

Also charged in the complaints with participating in a conspiracy to distribute heroin are Jose Rivera, 56, and Maurice Hart, 46. Charged with participating in a conspiracy to distribute cocaine are Adam Aguiar, 41, Charles Medina, 32, and Luis Montes, 47.

Rogers Park man arrested for drug, gun charges

Willie Johnson, 66, of the 6400 block of N. Clark St., was arrested after a search warrant of his residence revealed two hand and Delivery of Cocaine; two felony weapons counts, and two felony counts of Possession of a controlled Substance, among other charges.

guns, narcotics, drug equipment and packaging materials.

The search warrant was executed on March 30, at approximately 7:35 p.m. Johnson was charged one felony count of Manufacture

Kite festival provides free kite kits for kids to build, decorate and fly at Montrose Harbor May 7

A favorite family event and a harbinger of springtime on the North Side is the annual Chicago Kids and Kites Festival which returns to Cricket Hill in Lincoln Park (Montrose and Wilson) on Saturday, May 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Once again, the free festival will provide kite kits for children to build, decorate and fly, while supplies last. Other activities include face painting, balloon artists and crafts.

One of the most popular highlights of the festival is the Big Kite Candy Drop, which is a piñata-like kite filled with candies that drop from the sky, taking place during the afternoon, weather permitting. Kite Harbor will be onsite for kite buyers, and professional kite flyers will demonstrate their skills with oversized and uniquely-shaped kites.

The Chicago Park District [CPD] opened online registration Monday for its popular summer programs, and day camps that can turn summer days into fun-filled adventures. In-person registration begins either Saturday, April 9 or Monday, April 11, depending upon the park

In 2015 more than 40,000 Chicagoans participating in CPD camps.

Standard day camps run six weeks, from July 5 – Aug. 12, typically from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. or 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. Many parks offer early morning and late-day sessions as well. Fees vary depending on location, offerings and hours. No child will be turned away for inability to pay.

As part of the summer camp curriculum, campers will embark on an enriching journey through Chicago's 77 neighborhoods. The camp theme, Explore the Spirit of Chicago - My Neighborhood, Our City, will offer new and unique ways for campers to enjoy their summer experience at their local parks, and explore our city through a series of exciting indoor and outdoor activities.

"There's nothing better than summer in Chicago, and the CPD has a wide variety of offerings at an affordable price allowing residents and families to enjoy, explore and get active," said Mayor Rahm Emanuel. "CPD summer day camp enables kids to have fun with field trips and recreational activities, as well as learning new skills with arts and crafts and designated reading time."

In addition to day camp, patrons of all ages can choose from a wide array of programs, including favorites like Learn to Swim, fitness center memberships, indoor basketball, gymnastics and more. Regular summer programs run the week of June 20 through the week of August 22.

"We're preparing to make summer 2016 one of the best by giving campers a passport to the city and offering them an opportunity to explore and enjoy their neighborhoods through play," said Michael P. Kelly, General Superintendent. "The CPD offers a menu of camps at parks throughout the city to ensure that our young park goers keep active, engaged and safe this summer."

This summer, the Chicago Park District will premiere two new camp sites in the Little Village and Bronzeville communities. In Little Village, La Villita Park will offer day camp in partnership with the local elementary school for indoor activities, and in Bronzeville, day camp will debut at the new Ellis Park field house. With the addition of these new sites, there will be an extra 200 slots available for day camp.

Park patrons are encouraged to browse through the list of programs for 2016 and create wish lists in advance at www.chicagoparkdistrict.com.

Financial assistance and family discounts are available. Applicants that do not qualify for financial assistance may inquire about the payment plan option at their local park.

The CPD will also participate in the Summer Food Service Program in conjunction with summer day camp. Lunches and/or snacks will be provided for enrolled children at most camps.

efficient lighting as well as restoration of architect Arthur U. Gerber’s station entrance terra cotta facade at Wilson and Broadway.

Although the Wilson Underline committee is pleased with the Wilson “L” renovations, they feel that more can and should be done to further enhance the Uptown neighborhood. Scherer imagines “public space events, concerts, farmer’s markets, (a space to) make people feel welcome, give life to it; currently the design does not have that, it is just a parking space. Our surveys show parking is very low on the list.”

“Wilson is not the first to push this plan, there have been recommendations from the Metropolitan Planning Council, UIC, transit oriented design studios, the design studio at Virginia Tech, all of these places physically came out and looked at the space and the same exact recommendations came out of it,” Scherer noted. Proposed permanent additions include landscaping, bike racks and a Divvy station, designated pedestrian walkways, brighter, less harsh lighting, local artworks that showcase Uptown, a food truck area, picnic area, over 100 newly paved and lined parking spots, as well as a spot for emergency vehicles.

At the intersection of Wilson and Magnolia, less than 400’ from the CTA station, Luna’s Salon & Spa, Magnolia Cafe and Starbucks have all closed within the past 3-4 months, which is another reason Scherer and Weidl feel the Underline is also important to “spur economic development” in the Uptown community. “This could be a huge economic driver, the epicenter and catalyst for growth,” said Scherer.

There have been some concerns from the community regarding public safety, funding of the Underline and the possibility of homeless congregating beneath the tracks. However, Dinges reiterates that “we are not looking to build a park, we’re looking to enhance an area that’s already being used. This will be an enhanced public transit-friendly place that is already used to access Target and Aldi. This will not be a hangout, we want a distinction between park and public transit.” Scherer and Weidl drew up plans with input from ‘Design Out Crime by Ian Colquhoun: Creating Safe and Sustainable Communities,’ an urban architectural design book that shows how, through integrating simple crime prevention principles in the design process, it is possible, almost without notice, to make residential environments much safer.

Weidl does not agree with the current CTA plans or “the thought that the space being fenced and well lit, so ‘it’s safe.’”

“From a landscape design architecture perspective that does not create safety. Fencing to me says ‘scary,’” she said. “If I walk through and there is no walkway, that feels scary. Shadows, fences, cars people can hide behind. We want it safe and secure, there will be cameras there. The design provides unobstructed, 360 degree horizontal views, we want to give people ways to see all the way around them. A lot of under the “L” spaces do not feel safe, they’re a little scary.”

Dinges supports the Underline project’s theory that it’s creation would further secure the area as “with increased traffic, increased safety.”

An Uptown resident, who requested that her name not be used, feels that “It is a good plan and (would be) money well spent. When the fence was down I used that access all the time to get to Target, yoga or Broadway to catch a cab. That junky parking lot/Truman pass through was not deserted; with the new “L” stop and the Wilson Underline, it will be even more populated.”

Scherer suggests that the CTA funds allocated for the unwanted fencing or

Is this just a further wearing away of dependable service in Rahm's Chicago. What's next?

DATE NIGHT? Something came across my desk saying that Chicago was chosen as the number #1 date night metropolis in the nation (maybe the world)! I always run from such exaggerated nonsense. What decade was this written in?? Date Night? Is that embarrassing? Do you cringe when it is obvious that people are on a "date"? I know it sounds cruel, but this isn't the 1950s and we're not at the Malt Shop. Thank God social media and social regressiveness have toned down the old movie and a burger night cliché. And why would Chicago be any better a metropolis than any other city for hosting queerdoes out on a date? More murders? More public officials in the slammer?

RL NEWS: Keeping up the traditions for St. Patrick's Day meant double duty for Lynn Graham and her cousin, Michael Rambert who made sure there was plenty of green at both lunch and dinner. They managed to be at RL both times the Shannon Rover Pipe Band marched through the restaurant.

OYSTER NEWS: Hugo's Frog Bar may just have the best lure in the Gold Coast. Every day from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. all oysters at the bar are just $1 apiece. Truth. I stopped in on Friday and had 18. Nine Kumamoto (West Coast) and nine Blond Beach, Rhode Island (East Coast). I found it necessary to continue my experiment on Saturday. Same deal. Best ever. Sweet. Juicy. Succulent. And the shaved, tangy cucumber ice is refined, light and filled with flavor. No hot sauce, thank you!

BRAVO! BRAVO! Windy City Playhouse's founder and artistic Director, Amy Rubenstein, has been hilariously electrifying audiences, starring in their first production of season two, "Explorers' Club." Theater thrives on Irving Park. Don't miss this.

MAZELTOV: Invitations are out for the Bat Mitzvah of the sweetest and smartest of girls, Anna Mednick, along the Chesapeake in historic Annapolis, Maryland. What a time we will have. And the invites can be planted in the ground and will grow into flowers. Imagine.

GAINER ALL THE WAY: Quartinos was packed for the recent fund-raiser for 10th District Cook County Board Commissioner Bridget Gainer. Heavy with powerful political fans, Gainer is gearing up for the future. Surrounded by a crowd of both veteran politicians, as well as younger supporters willing to roll up their sleeves, it was a real pro-Chicago night of people who invest heavily in Chicago and want to see the city healthy and safe.

Gainer is a bright and intelligent County representative who is fluent in the language of the urban metropolis. She's an aisle-crosser, and her quick-witted moxie just the thing that a city like Chicago needs. She's low on ego needs and is different from the political self-promoters who have made Chicago stagnant. She has a great West Point graduate for a husband and a house filled with smart red heads.

She is young, so she possesses time. She has wits, so she possesses patience. And she has big things to do each day already, so she is not without great plans. When she speaks, people listen. Her nouns match her verbs. Cook County Board President

Toni Preckwinckle, Ald. Pat O'Connor, De Paul College Prep President Mary Dempsey and Ald. James Cappleman, were among the many elected officials who turned out. Jonathan Jackson was on hand as well.

As the race continues to break ground on the Underline Project Scherer knows that "time is limited. We'd hate to see the CTA, the alderman or some person just say 'well, we ran out of time.' This was brought up over two years ago and nobody listened, we feel as a community this will really push us backwards instead of propelling us forward."

Weidl added "what's frustrating is that these initial voices are not being heard. No one is questioning the station design, but initial Underline plans started in 2012, yet CTA plans proceeded without the voice of the public, they ignored what the public was saying."

Local man finds historical treasure in old photo album

Greatest long distance walker, E.P. Weston re-discovered

BY JIM MATUSIK

As Arthur Henning browsed through an old photo album that he had recently purchased he noticed a shot of an old gentleman on some railroad tracks with handwriting above that said Edward Payson Weston walking from Los Angeles to New York.

That seemed like a pretty ambitious journey and when Henning looked him up online he was surprised to find volumes of information about a man whose exploits, although now lost in time, had for half a century, been one of the most famous Americans.

Edward P. Weston

1839 and was a direct descendant of two Mayflower Pilgrims.

He was described as a small sickly child who grew into a tenacious boy who reportedly ran away with the circus, and later, as a teenager, ran his own publishing business. His flamboyance was obvious, and he always lived his life with a “head full of dreams.”

But those dreams were always filled with schemes and well laid plans and a remarkable skill for self promotion as is first observed with his premier walk to Washington.

Before that time no one in America had ever walked such a distance or imagined it. Even horses needed to be exchanged for such a journey.

A month before his trip Weston headed to New York City to find sponsors for his newly discovered walking skills and became the first ever walking promoter for several different products.

He scored contracts with a sewing machine company, a druggist, a photographer, and a rubber suit company (rain gear) and distributed their advertising materials along a route that would conveniently run through established and highly populated areas.

And with his journalistic savvy, he landed the story in many local papers and the news of his unthinkable walk spread like wildfire up and down the east coast. Suddenly people were obsessed with seeing the “pedestrian” and wound up waiting long hours into the night for a chance to see him walk by.

He averaged 50 miles a day and completed his 478 mile walk in 10 days and four hours. He arrived in the capitol at 5 o’clock unfortunately late for the inauguration ceremony, but in time to make a luminous appearance at the Inauguration Ball later that evening where he met the president and Mrs. Lincoln and astounded them with his tale of endurance.

A few years later in 1867 he took Pedestrianism to a new professional level when he walked from Portland, Maine, to Chicago, a distance of 1200 miles that he completed in 26 days.

Now there was a new player that would be traveling with him on his trips and that was professional gambling. From this day forward the bets would be on and the Portland walk netted him $10,000. Always amid controversy and curiosity he took on all comers for time and distance records all across America. He was a dandy and a charmer and always a big hit with the ladies who would flock to see him.

In 1871 he walked backwards for 200 miles around St. Louis Missouri in 41 hours.

And in 1876 he went to England where the news headlines read, Hero or Humbug? There he would spend the next eight years usually pulverizing his English opponents. Competitive Long Distance Walking had gone international.

Weston was always monitored by Queen Victoria’s physicians and he left his rivals broken and bloody in his wake as they tried to keep up with him in races that lasted up to six days and were enthusiastically viewed by thousands.

After a thousand mile walk around Great Britan in 1884, medics from the Royal Society concluded that his feat was the greatest recorded labor that any human being had ever undertaken without injury.

It wasn’t until 1909 on his 70th birthday that Weston began what was to be his most famous achievement of all, a 4000 mile walk from New York to San Francisco which he completed in 105 days when the record in a motor car was 15.

He began accompanied by a car, but wound up walking most of his time alone because the car kept breaking down on the rough terrain and was finally abandoned.

It was reported that the winds were so
