‘The ghetto gets the ghetto’

New 49th Ward lakefront playgrounds reek of inequality

BY FELICIA DECHTER

My blood is boiling right now.
And my heart is breaking too.
This might not sound like an issue that would conjure up those kinds of emotions, but when you’ve lived in a neighborhood for 40 years, your entire adult life, somehow that happens.

And it’s exactly what happened
last week.

I’d been hearing some negative comments from family members, friends and neighbors about the new playground at Howard St.
Beach, which is at Howard and the lakefront. Let me repeat that, Howard St. The name doesn’t scare me, but some people run at the mere thought of being near it.

Before I get started, I just want to make it clear that this didn’t start out to be a column about black and white or anything to do with race.
It was going to be about people complaining about the lack of little kids’ options to play on at the Howard Beach playground.

But when someone said to me,
“The ghetto gets the ghetto,” it really stuck in my craw.

You see, I’ve lived in this

Amelie, left, who turns six in July, said she likes the park but would like to see some swings there. The father of three-year-old Zanders, right, said, “This is beautiful but it’s not for younger children.”

“ghetto” since I was 18-years-old. I love this “ghetto,” from Devon Ave. all the way up to Howard St. So, I decided to check out what another new 49th Ward lakefront playground looked like, to see if there was any truth to that statement.

The Voting Process

According to a statement by
Ald. Joe Moore [49th], Howard Beach Park’s playground had been nominated by a community group called the Baby Wranglers of Rogers Park to be rebuilt in 2015.
Four other playgrounds in the 49th Ward were also nominated:
Hartigan Beach, Mary Margaret

Langdon Park, Pottawattomie Park and Willye White Park.

The statement says the alderman notified ward residents of the selection process by posting fliers for a community meeting to vote on designs for the parks on every residential door in the 49th Ward.

I live in the ward, and never saw one on my door and this newspaper, which has covered Rogers Park now for over 110 years never got a meeting notice either.

Ald. Moore said he also sent an e-mail to more than 14,000 recipients of his electronic newsletter, which included links so people could look at designs ahead of a Nov. 15 community meeting held at Field School, which was the only place to vote. So if you could not attend that meeting, you could not vote.

“You had to go in person and it wasn’t at a convenient time and it wasn’t really out there,” said Octavia Brennan, a member of the Baby Wranglers with two children, 2 and 1, who have nothing to play on at the Howard St. playground.

The statement says that more than 100 residents heard the Chicago Park District’s [CPD]
presentation on each playground.
Votes from that night only were tallied and the Dynamo design won for Howard Beach.

Forty-nine people decided the park’s fate

There are about 55,000 people who live in Rogers Park, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. A total of 49 people voted on the five designs for Howard Beach playground, which sort of tells me that perhaps the outreach wasn’t as good as Ald. Moore thinks it was. Design one received four votes; two received six votes; three received four votes; four -- the current design -- got 23 votes; and the 5th design received four votes, according to the alderman’s aide Bob Fuller.

Therefore, 49 people decided the fate of Howard Beach Park at one community meeting held at least a mile away from the park in a different part of the ward. I can see why the 23 people who voted for the current design might have done so. On paper, the place must have had the wow factor. It looked cool. Futuristic.

“It’s beautiful, but it’s not for younger children,” said nearby resident Juan Rivera, there with his three-year-old son, Zanders.

Ten cases have been dismissed but owners of 85 residential buildings in Chicago, many of them upscale properties north of the Loop, are still working to comply with the city’s new Life Safety ordinance.

Between March 3 and May 14, the city filed 95 lawsuits against owners of buildings that flunked their Life Safety evaluation last year and do not comply, according to one lawsuit, “with the minimum standards of health and safety set forth in the building code.”

Each housing complaint was filed in the Municipal Division of Cook County Circuit Court.

Rust: The Great Destroyer

The hidden art of falling apart

STORY AND PHOTO
BY JIM MATUSIK

It destroys cars, collapses bridges, sinks ships, and sparks house fires. It is the U.S. Navy’s number one foe, but it isn’t a foreign country, its rust. Jonathan Waldman has just written a fascinating book about it called RUST: THE LONGEST WAR, and he was in Chicago on last Tuesday night at
The Metropolitan Planning Council’s Urban Think and Drink series to discuss it and answer questions.

Seeing as how Chicago has more bridges over water than any city in America, the front lines of this war on rust also includes us.

Waldman, from Boulder, CO, is a lively and entertaining speaker with enough funny stories to rust
the arm off The Statue of Liberty.

“I’ve spent the last three years traveling from Florida to Alaska learning how we keep the things that we use alive,” he says. “And when I tell people about my research they always say, ‘Boy have I got a rust story for you.’”

Inevitably the story is about their junky old car. “Every car on the market has been recalled because of rust, whether its wiper failure, axle failure, steering or brakes,
but the top prize goes to Ford,”
he says. “They recently recalled four million vehicles because they had the terrifying tendency to burst into flames while standing still.”

Waldman developed his unusual fascination for rust after attending the U.S. Navy
MEGARUST Conference in Virginia. There he met The Undersecretary of Defense for Rust Corrosion Dan Dunmire, the Pentagon’s number five man, who is single handedly waging an all out war against the corrosive menace. He is a charismatic character and a bold pioneer who is trying to cut down on the $20 billion that the Navy is spending on this perpetual problem. He can tell you which ships and planes are more prone to rusting and the cost per pound to maintain them annually.

He says that the U.S. Navy is loosing the battle, and that out of the 313 carriers, cruisers, and destroyers in the fleet, they are lucky to keep 250 battle ready at one time.

And this isn’t the first time that rust has interfered with our military might. Back in the 1960’s during the cold war, scientists in Los Alamos were trying to make our nuclear arsenal safe from corrosion and accidental detonation. They decided to wrap the warheads with tape made from cadmium and boron which were known to prevent rust. But these two ingredients also absorbed neutrons and it was later discovered that, had we chosen to become the great destroyer, we would have failed, because the warheads would not have exploded.

One of Waldman’s favorite stories that he related was about the attempted climbing of The Statue of Liberty in 1980 by two
San Francisco Hippies. Early

Warning: Danger

The play equipment at Howard is dangerous, not for small children. I cannot bring my granddaughters, ages two years and six months there. There is one and only one slide, which although I had no measuring tape, must be about 15 to 20' tall. To get to it, you have to climb through a spider web of rope before reaching the horizontal rope ladder leading to the slide, which is probably about 15' in the air. The ladder has huge gaps, easily big enough to fall through. The slide also has three warning stickers on it, one saying it's for kids 5 to 12, one saying no helmets are allowed, and the last one saying adult supervision is recommended and a fall could result in injury or death.

As if on cue, while I was at the park a two-year-old fell from the spider web slide ropes. And when I left, three teen boys were climbing the slide, chasing each other up and down it -- unsupervised.

The other three pieces of equipment, although labeled for two-year-olds and up, would not ever be something I would put my two-year-old granddaughter on to play.

In fact, the park is pretty empty. There are no swings, no baby

The slide also has three warning stickers on it, one saying it's for kids 5 to 12, one saying no helmets are allowed, and the last one saying adult supervision is recommended and a fall could result in injury or death.

swings, no slide for anyone under five and no trees to keep cool. And I totally agree with Aeesha Rand, who said, "It's dangerous. There are warning stickers on every single piece."

In July, Rand is moving next door to the park, which by the way lost two trees seemingly unnecessarily and now sits open without any shade.

"It was very attractive knowing I was steps away from a beach and park for my daughter, but I saw the park and said, 'Where are the swings? How can you have a park with no swings?'" said Rand. "My daughter being only 5, I'm afraid she'll slip through the cracks on the slide. It looks dangerous."

"There's nothing here," said Donang, a neighbor with three children, 6, 3, and 1. "Before was better."

Lauren Malato, there with her daughter, Star, 15 months, said, "I can't believe there's at least not swings," while Tanya, there with three children said: "It's not conducive to two-year-olds. I can't sit back and let them play."

To be fair, there were a few people with older kids enjoying the park. Others, including me, wondered why this particular design was even an option and why someone with a brain didn't intervene and say, we can't build this for children. And another person wanted to know when someone dies or breaks their neck, who they sue, the alderman, city, or park district for allowing something like this?

"It's too unfriendly for kids," said 10-year-old Henry Kopp, who likes the new playground but came up with a better design that includes baby swings for young kids. "They put a lot of effort into making it an empty play space. They could've put little kid's stuff in."

Henry's mother, neighbor Martha Campbell, said: "That thing scares me," referring to the boat see-saw supposedly for two-year-olds. I couldn't agree with her more. It all scares me. Someone is going to get hurt.

And just an FYI: Although Henry and his mom live across the street from the park, neither had heard about the playground design competition.

A tale of two parks

Out of sheer curiosity, I took a ride over to see the other new lakefront playground at Hartigan Beach, down near Loyola U., on a tree-lined, cul-de-sac block filled with white people and million-dollar homes. I wanted to see if the person who said to me, "The ghetto gets the ghetto," was even close to being correct.

As I pulled up to the playground, I actually got sick to my stomach when I saw that indeed, they seemed correct. While Hartigan got the best of playgrounds, Howard got the worst. Although I'm thrilled that one area in my neighborhood has such a beautiful new play area, I wanted to cry when I saw it because the disparity was so obvious and cruel.

Hartigan Beach playground is beautiful and filled with things to do for little kids. It has shade from trees, four baby swings, big swings, three real children's slides and lots of youngsters romping and having fun. I didn't get out of my car, but I'd have bet my last dollar there were no stickers on the equipment warning of death from falls.

Renderings by Henry Kopp

I had simple questions for the park district after seeing this: What were the budgets for each park and who was awarded the contracts? After giving the CPD ample time to answer, I had to file a Freedom Of Information Act request.

I just want to know how much more was spent on Hartigan than Howard? I'd also like to know if any hefty Moore campaign contributors received the contracts.

Again, this did not start as a column about racial inequality but it did turn out that way. As one person put it, "Howard St. equals black folks, Hartigan Beach equals white folks."

Indeed, Chicago was just named America's most segregated city. Things like this are how we earned that title.

Ald. Moore and the CPD can deny it all they want, but to me and a lot of others, the discrepancy in the quality of the two new 49th Ward lakefront parks is, well, as plain as black and white.

Clarification... In my June 16 column about Mariano Park, 1031 N. State St., I quoted the opinions of John Rudnick, a concerned neighbor of the park, identified as a "condo board member at Newberry Plaza." The folks on the Newberry Plaza Condo Assoc. board of directors would like me to clarify that Rudnick was speaking for himself and that his opinions do not necessarily represent the opinions of the Newberry Plaza board of directors.

Business Alliance presents awards for service to business community

STORY & PHOTOS
BY BOB KITSOS

Celebrating 22 years of service to the Rogers Park business community, the Rogers Park Business Alliance [RPBA] held its annual meeting on June 25 at Loyola Univ. Chicago's Mundelein Center, 1020 W. Sheridan.

The Center's Palm Room was the venue for more than 80 RPBA members and guests as awards were presented in a number of categories to individuals and organizations for their service to the community. RPBA President Summur Roberts chaired the event.

The RPBA is a not-for-profit organization specializing in business community and economic development in Rogers Park. It employs a professional staff and is governed by a volunteer Board of Directors, composed of local business owners, residents, institutional representatives and other stakeholders. The RPBA is a delegate agency of the City of Chicago Dept. of Business Affairs and Consumer Protection.

The evening's first award — the Capital Investment Award, was given to Three Corners Development and Manske Dieckmann Thompson, architect, for the Heartland Health Center.

The award is given in recognition of an organization or individual whose project includes improvements in signage, lighting, amenities, such as awnings, masonry cleaning, tuck pointing and window and door replacement. The level of investment reflects a commitment to the neighborhood.

Three Corners' crown jewel is the $5 million state-of-the-art facility at 1300 W. Devon. Heartland Health Center encompasses 9,200- square feet of primary care exam rooms, administration and office space as well as a community room that accommodates 100 people. Two of the 12 exam rooms are dedicated to behavioral health services, making it easier for providers to deliver integrated behavioral health and primary care services.

The popular Peterson Garden Project also was a winner in receiving the RPBA's Community Partner Award, which is awarded in recognition of an organization or individual who goes above and beyond the ordinary to build collaborative activities and projects in the community.

The organization says that learning together in the garden and kitchen does much more than put fresh, nutritious food on the table. It helps build stronger communities, connect to cultural heritage, improve public health and create a more sustainable, resilient city. In presenting the award, Roberts said, "Rogers Park sure loves to grow their own produce."

The Revive Consignment shop at 1606 W. Pratt was the Business Leadership Award winner, which is given in recognition of a business that provided hands-on leadership on a community project, improved the quality of life in Rogers Park or expanded its business and/or created additional employment opportunities.

Revive is consignment with a conscience — a women's and maternity clothing store (some men's clothing), offering a wide range of prices, styles and sizes. Owners Jackie Marchand and Olga-Florian-Mest recently celebrated the shop's first anniversary. Marchand said, "I was shocked, honored and excited to receive the award."

Chad Adams, Sullivan High School principal, received the RPBA's Friend of Rogers Park Award. The award is presented to a person of prominence who has made a significant contribution in improving the quality of life in Rogers Park. He replaced interim principal Richard Smith, a retired CPS principal and administrator in 2013. Previously, Adams was assistant principal at Harper High School in the city's Englewood neighborhood.

Community activist and civic volunteer Sue Lannin received the Volunteer of the Year Award — the first year the award has been presented. The 65-year-old former office administrator for the Sierra Club Illinois Chapter serves on the Glenwood Sunday Market Leadership Council. The Market was founded by the grassroots efforts and countless hours of work on the part of many Rogers Park community members.

The Market, which opened in 2010, is devoted to providing local, sustainable foods that also are organic whenever possible. The mission is to make sustainable, regionally produced foods available to the whole community. The market is open year-round and is located in the 6900 block of N. Glenwood.

RPBA Director Sandi Price said, "Thank you for supporting the work we do. The Alliance will reach out to Loyola students to enter our community to spend their dollars — to shop locally, especially during the holidays."

Consumer rip-offs steal billions of dollars from unwary Americans

BY DON DeBAT

While America is worried about bomb-throwing terrorists and illegal aliens sneaking across our borders, scammers are quietly defrauding homeowners and consumers of hundreds of millions of dollars by selling fake or shoddy services and worthless products.

That’s why a consortium of city, state and federal consumer-fraud experts met last week at Columbia College in the Loop to hold a news briefing on how to spot and avoid scams in Chicago, according to the Community Media Workshop, co-host for the event.

“We are awash in a sea of fraud,” warned Steven Baker, director of the Federal Trade Commission’s Midwest Region based in Chicago. “People are losing billions of dollars—11% of the adult population of the U.S. has been ripped off in the past 12 months.”

The rip offs span a multitude of areas from home repair and health care to debt collection, jobs, education and immigration. What’s worse, consumers are often too scared to report fraud when they have been victimized by it. And, Blacks and Spanish-speaking people are the most likely target for a rip off, Baker said.

According to the FTC, the following favorite rip offs currently are being practiced by professional scammers — well trained pitch persons who know how to get your money:

- Tech-support scams. Unwary computer owners invite scammers to “solve” problems by remote. Scammers typically charge $400 to rid your system of spyware. The rip-off artists actually install their own spyware to gain on-line access to your bank accounts.
- Auto sales scams. Beware of “zero” or “low-rate” auto loans offered in ads. The low advertised annual percentage rate (APR) may apply to loans up to a certain amount which may be significantly less than the purchase price. You will pay a higher APR for loans that cover the balance of the purchase price.
- Internal Revenue Service impostors. Scammers, who say they are IRS agents, call you demanding that you pay back taxes now by credit card or go to jail. The IRS never places phone calls for tax collections.

The Illinois Attorney General’s office received a whopping 21,791 written complaints about consumer rip offs in 2014, including many scams involving mortgages, consumer debt and identity theft, said Cecilia Abundis, Assistant Attorney General of Illinois.

Regarding computer-data breaches, Steve Bernas, president and CEO of the Better Business Bureau (BBB) of Chicago and Northern Illinois, advised consumers to “be vigilant about checking bank account balances online, and obtaining your credit report at least once each year.”

Maria Guerra Lapacek, Commissioner of the Chicago Dept. of Business Affairs and Consumer Protection (BACP), cautioned consumers about home-repair scams that prey on residents who have suffered water damage to their homes as a result of recent severe spring and summer weather.

“Scammers often descend on flood-stricken neighborhoods going door-to-door to offer clean-up services or home-repair services, and promise to do the work quickly,” Lapacek said.

They pressure people—especially elderly homeowners—when they are most vulnerable into making decisions on the spot, she said. “They tend to use cheap inferior materials, if they do any work at all. When things fall apart, or they do not complete the work, they are gone.”

The city’s BACD gives the following tips to help homeowners from being scammed:

- Be wary of door-to-door solicitors. Legitimate home-repair contractors generally do not seek customers in this manner.
- Confirm that the contractor is licensed, and verify that the company holds a valid insurance certificate with up to $300,000 in coverage. For license information, visit the city’s website: www.cityofchicago.org/bacp.
- Check the contractor’s business references, or seek referrals from friends and neighbors. Is the company rated by the BBB?
- Get written estimates. If you sign a contract, remember you have three days to cancel it. The contractor should provide a Notice of Cancellation form. Do not pay for a job in advance, and do not pay in cash.

- If you think you’ve been ripped off, call 311 to file a complaint with the BACD.

North Side man indicted for fraud in taking $9M from investors

A Chicago resident was charged with wire fraud last Thursday after fraudulently obtaining approximately $9 million from approximately 50 investors by making false and misleading representations to the investors, which resulted in a loss to investors of approximately $4 million, according to the indictment.

The charges allege that Nick Wurl, 25, President of Ludiera Capital, LLC, located at 733 N. LaSalle St., falsely represented to investors that Ludiera was in the business of buying, transporting, and selling commodities, such as corn and wheat, domestically and internationally, when, in fact, Ludiera never bought, transported, or sold any commodities.

Wurl was arrested on May 26, 2015, and released on bond. According to the indictment, between approximately July 2013 through May 2015, Wurl made false representations about the nature of Ludiera’s business, the financial condition of Ludiera, the expected return and actual return on the investment, the risk involved in the investment, the status of the investment, and the use of investors’ funds.

The indictment also alleges that Wurl misappropriated investors’ funds to trade futures and options without disclosing that he was using investors’ funds for trading and to pay personal expenses for his own benefit. According to the indictment, Wurl fraudulently retained investors’ funds and concealed the scheme by preparing and distributing fraudulent account statements to investors.

The indictment seeks forfeiture of approximately $9 million.

Bad weekend in St. Louis for Cubs doesn't have to mean a bad weekend for you Apotheosis of St. Louis is a statue of King Louis IX of France, namesake of St. Louis, located in front of the Saint Louis Art Museum overlooking Forest Park.

BY SHEILA SWANN

Despite last weekend's feeble effort, the Chicago Cubs are now contending in their division and trying to match the level of play of their arch rival the St. Louis Cardinals. This popular young Cubs team has created high expectations, adding weight to those games between the two franchises.

Last weekend only points to an even more important six-game series coming up with the Cubs visiting St. Louis Sept. 7-9 and the Cards visiting Chicago Sept. 18-20.

A right of passage for any true Cubs and Cards fan is the one that leads up and down I-55 on a road trip into the opposition's home field.

For those loyal Cubs fans who are thinking of making the pilgrimage to St. Louis for this series - or in future years - you may also find the town itself unexpectedly fun and affordable. Last weekend the town was perhaps more fun than the games themselves for some visitor from Chicago.

What Cubs fans will discover is that Busch Stadium in St. Louis, where the Cardinals play, is what we'd all like to see Wrigley Field become once team management has finished reconstructing the old ballpark.

It's clean, spacious and inviting with clear sight lines and all the modern conveniences fans have come to expect. Indeed a visit to any number of the new baseball parks built across America in the last few years is a cold reminder of what a dump old Wrigley Field is and how much it truly did need to be revamped.

Visiting Cubs fans may want to go early and take a tour of the Cardinal's Hall of Fame and Museum directly across the street from the stadium. Prepare to be envious. It surely has a lot to do with those 11 World Series titles the team holds. Cubs fans will see over 100 years of history through artifacts, photos, trophies and videos in an experience that celebrates the great players, teams and traditions of Cardinals baseball and dream of 'what if.'

Tickets are $12 (kids under 15 are $8), it's open Monday-Sunday from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m., and the museum remains open through the 7th inning on home game nights.

But you may want to look beyond the ball field and make a vacation of it by taking in the town and surrounding region itself. Locals call St. Louis "The Quilt" because of its many unique neighborhoods.

Due to its riverfront location and deep ties to the settling of the American West, St. Louis holds as much - if not more - history of the building of America than Chicago has. It was America's 'Chicago' before the advent of rail and air travel which moved the center of the continent's transportation 258 miles northeast.

Of keen interest to beer fans will be a visit to the mother of all breweries, Anheuser Busch Brewing. Their free tour includes a look at the famous Clydesdales, a factory tour and finally a stop at the tasting room for free samples. Ya, it's big corporate beer... but so what? It is one of America's great success stories and worth the effort. Don't forget, they now own Chicago's best selling craft beer maker [Goose Island] so don't be a beer snob. This is more than just a brewery tour and you won't be disappointed.

If tasting the local craft brewers is your goal then this town won't let you down.

One of the best places to start tasting local brews is 21st Street Brewer's Bar in the cellar of the historic Schnaider Malt House building, 2017 Chouteau Ave. The bar has at least one beer from every local brewery that distributes in town.

Managing partner, Jason Arnold, offers 50 beers on draft - yes, 50, and over 80 by the bottle. That's a lot of beer.

They're so serious about beer that you can check their website for beers that have been tapped within the last 48 hours.

They do have Anheuser-Busch on tap too but you may be more tempted to have something by Florian Kuplent's Urban Chestnut. Other locals include Schlafly, 4 Hands Brewing, Perennial Artisan Ales, O'Fallon and Modern Brewery, to name just a few.

In a town that is built on Anheuser-Busch's broad shoulders, its interesting to see the craft beer businesses booming. "There are about as many breweries in St. Louis now as there were before Prohibition," says Arnold.

If you're in need of food, upstairs is PW Pizza, Grand Petite Market and further upstairs is Vin De Set, on the rooftop. They have a wonderful wine list too, for those who favor the grape.

The Cubs would be lucky to have Wrigley Field turn out as comfortable, open and spacious as the Cardinal's Busch Stadium.

For more food, try taking the STL Culinary Tour with Beth Heidrich. Named 2014 and 2015's "Best of the Midwest" by Midwest

Living and "Top Gourmet Walking Tour in the US" by Wine Enthusiast, Heidrich will tell you all about the chefs and the history of the restaurants. Food and wine tastings at local restaurants like The Restaurant at the Cheshire, DeMum Oyster Bar, Parker's Table (fabulous selection of wines, cheeses and craft beers) and The Fox and Hound, will leave you with an intimate knowledge of the town.

Cubs fans traveling with kids will want to visit the City Museum - which oddly is not really a museum. It's a wacky, weird, wonderful one-of-a-kind 600,000-square foot "urban funhouse" where children can get lost for an hour, or a day, exploring one artisan-designed experience after another, including an eight-story tunnel system or a 20' slinky consisting largely of repurposed architectural and industrial objects. City Museum [www.citymuseum.org/] is housed in the former International Shoe building in the Washington Ave. Loft District and was

Police Beat

The usual post Pride Parade mayhem

As has now become customary, the post Pride Parade scene got ugly very quickly Sunday night.

Two people were stabbed, at least two others were robbed and over 50 people were arrested during post-Pride Parade mayhem in the Uptown and Lakeview areas Sunday night and into early Monday morning.

Most troubling of all perhaps was that the city's 911 emergency line was on Radio Assigned Patrol a good deal of Sunday night meaning that incoming 911 calls were put on a waiting list as there were not enough police on duty to service all of the calls.

Chicago Police estimates that 17 people were arrested while the parade was in progress and at least 35 more were arrested in the hours following the event. Many more could have been arrested but over-taxed police resources could not keep up with the mayhem.

Protesters within the Pride Parade staged a “die in” at Addison and Halsted at 1:44 p.m., blocking the parade route. Police estimate 25 protesters were involved. Six protesters did not disperse when ordered to by police and were taken into custody. They conveniently ‘died’ in front of the 19th District Police station meaning police were able to quickly clear the street.

A stabbing took place around 11 p.m. Sunday near 1030 W. Belmont. A 24-year-old man told police that a stranger stabbed him multiple times and then ran away. The victim went to Weiss Hospital under his own power. No one is in custody.

Thirty minutes after the first stabbing, another 24-year-old man was stabbed three times during an altercation at Halsted and Aldine. The stabbing victim fled and hid near dumpsters behind an apartment building one block away. Shortly after that police were forced to form a police line separating revelers at Aldine and Halsted St. The victim was taken to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center in an ambulance.

A man was robbed at gunpoint by two offenders in the 1200 block of W. Newport shortly before 1 a.m. Monday. The victim described the attackers as a Black male in his mid-20's with a light complexion who had facial hair and wore a blue hoodie with baggy pants. The second person is described as a 6’ tall man dressed as a woman. The pair displayed a small semi-automatic handgun and escaped with the victim's wallet and phone.

Another robbery was reported around 1:45 a.m. in the 3400 block of N. Sheffield. There, witnesses reported that at least one man was robbed by a group of offenders.

Around 5 p.m. Sunday a woman was taken to Advocate Illinois Masonic hospital with head injuries after a fight broke out in the parking lot of Sherwin Williams Paint Store. She was beaten after trying to tazer another woman in an all-girl fight in the parking lot at School and Clark streets.

Police eventually cleared the store parking lot of an estimated 400 people, many who were drinking liquor.

At 9:50 p.m. Security at the Sonic Restaurant in Uptown held an offender at gunpoint until police arrived after he had threatened the life of the restaurant security officer.

Shortly after 10 p.m. a woman was arrested at Roscoe's Tavern for stealing a purse and credit cards. By 11 p.m. police report that multiple fights had broken out at Halsted and Roscoe streets adjacent to Roscoe's Tavern. At around 11 p.m. police decided to closed down Halsted St. to traffic from Addison to Belmont to clear it of pedestrians.

The 7-Eleven, 1024 W. Belmont, closed early at 10:24 p.m., because multiple people kept stealing beer, and the clerk needed police help to clear the store out.

Arrests and reports of fighting went on until nearly sunrise on Monday morning. One of the final 911 calls of the Pride Parade festivities was at 4:13 a.m. over a victim who was being beaten by eight people at School and Clark St.

Woman threatens to kill cats and feed them to owner

A Rogers Park woman told police a neighbor threatened to kill her cats and feed them to her in a series of incidents dating back to middle May.

The 55-year-old victim, who lives on the 7600 block of N. Sheridan Rd., reported the woman June 20 to 24th District police. The department filed her report under aggravated assault with a weapon.

In an incident from mid-May, the 40-year-old neighbor stalked around the courtyard of the apartment building wielding a hammer and threatened to bludgeon people who passed through, police said. The victim said on that day the woman chased her back into her apartment and hammered against her door before leaving.

During the most recent incident the neighbor ordered the woman to give up one of her cats so she, the neighbor, could keep it as a pet. When the woman refused to give away an animal the neighbor said she would take all her cats, kill them and then feed them to her, according to police.

Man robbed early morning in Rogers Park

A man was hospitalized June 22 after being pummeled and prostrated during an early-morning robbery in Rogers Park.

The 40-year-old claimed two men attacked him around 6 a.m. on the 7200 block of N. Greenview Ave., police investigating the call said. He was punched, kicked and potentially hit with a metal pipe before the men took $800 and fled.

The cab driver who delivered him to the hospital told police he'd collect the man near the scene and drove him to the hospital after noticing he was bleeding from several injuries. Police said the victim believed he'd injured his face when he fell down attempting to escape.

Doctors at St. Francis Hospital in Evanston said the man was highly intoxicated and only slightly injured but would be kept overnight for evaluation, according to police.

Man shot by cyclist on Ashland

A gunman on a motorcycle opened fire on a vehicle near Lake View High School Saturday evening. A man inside the car was shot in the right arm and his girlfriend suffered injuries from flying glass and debris.

The targeted vehicle continued traveling eastbound on Irving Park after the gunfire, colliding with another car before pulling to a stop at a BP service station on the corner of Irving Park and Broadway.

According to the victims and witnesses, four motorcyclists pulled alongside the motorists vehicle near 1611 Irving Park Rd. and opened fire at 5:55 p.m. The bikers escaped southbound on Ashland.

The shooting victim, identified as either 19- or 23-years-old, was treated at Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center. His girlfriend was transported to Thorek Hospital for treatment. No one is in custody.

Woman robbed on morning-work walk to CTA

A Rogers Park woman lost a $900 iPhone when she was robbed June 23 walking to the Howard CTA Red Line station on her way to work.

Officers investigating the 4:15 a.m. report of a strong arm robbery located the 27-year-old on the 1700 block of W. Howard St. She told officers that a lone man who hustled up alongside her on the sidewalk took hold of a hand and said, “Let me walk with you.”

She had refused and pulled away when he grabbed hold of her, wrestled away the purse and ran, according to police. The woman chased him along Howard St., followed him north through the Jewel-OSCO lot at 1763 W. Howard St. and then west on Birchwood Ave.

During the chase the robber fished out the woman's phone before tossing the bag onto Birchwood Ave. The woman recovered the bag while the robber escaped on foot.

Officers toured the area with the victim in their patrol car but did not make any arrests.

Police arrest gunman who tried to ditch weapon beneath vehicle

After spotting a man who matched the description of a gunman toss an object beneath a vehicle on W. Arthur Ave in West Ridge, officers found a loaded .45 caliber semi-automatic handgun and arrested him.

Dani S. Asmaro, 23, of Skokie was charged with felony unlawful possession of a handgun after being taken into custody on the 2300 block of Arthur. The gun had four rounds in the magazine and one round chambered, according to the arresting officers.

Asmaro admitted to police he was a member of the Latin Kings street gang, according to the police report.

Patrol officers investigating a call of an armed man in the area encountered him around 11 p.m. When officers approached Asmaro, who matched the caller's description of the gunman, he walked west on Arthur a few steps, knelt down and tossed an object beneath a vehicle.

Officers heard a clacking sound as the handgun hit the pavement, according to the report. Asmaro was detained while an officer collected the weapon a short distance away on Arthur Ave.

Man punched and robbed

A man was punched in the face and robbed for cash June 21 in Rogers Park.

The 35-year-old victim was attacked by two men who addressed him with a racial slur as he walked from his vehicle to his apartment, according to police.

The victim, who is white, said two black males jumped him from behind on the 2600 block of W. Arthur Ave. One of the men grabbed him around the neck and said, “Yo n—r, I need some money. I know you have some money,” according to the victim.

One of the robbers took $269 from his wallet and then punched him in the face, splitting open his lip and bloodying his nose, police said. He was treated by fire department EMTs at the scene for minor injuries before being released.

Ex-con who worked at Edgewater carwash murdered

A man was shot to death at 4:45 p.m. last Thursday at a car wash on the 5900 block of Ridge Ave.

Devon Matthews, 21, was pronounced dead at Presence St. Francis Hospital in Evanston later that day. He had been shot in the back. The gunman walked into the office, pulled a gun out of a black bag and fired several shots, hitting the victim, according to police reports. The man put the gun back in the bag and fled, heading west from the carwash. The shooter was described as a male Black, in his 20s, with a dark complexion and hair in corn rows. He was wearing a white T-shirt under a black hooded sweatshirt, black jeans and white gym shoes.

Matthews had ties to a gang from Evanston that is in conflict with a Gangster Disciple faction in Rogers Park. Members of that gang may have been involved in a shooting in Evanston last Wednesday, say police. At the time he was killed, Matthews was on electronic monitoring in connection with a 2014 arrest on charges of marijuana and weapons possession, and had been allowed to work at the carwash under court order. Gawkers, police vehicles and media trucks caused a massive rush hour traffic backup at Clark on Ridge where parking normally isn't allowed.

Republic Bank receives bomb threat

Management at Republic Bank on Devon Ave. said they received a bomb threat over the phone the afternoon of June 19. The woman who made the threat has been in the bank in the past and is thought to suffer from mental illness, bank staff told police. She called around 12:30 p.m. and claimed there was a bomb planted inside the bank set to go off within the hour.

The bank was evacuated before a bomb sniffing K9 unit declared the building clear and safe to reoccupy, according to police. The woman is under investigation, police said.

Police catch men exchanging ammunition, handgun found in mailbox

Two men were arrested June 22 during an attempted exchange of a Cigarillo Cigar box loaded with 17 rounds of .22 caliber handgun ammunition. In addition, officers recovered an unloaded .22 caliber revolver inside a mailbox belonging to one of the men.

A regular beat patrol encountered the pair around 5:50 p.m. on the 1400 block of W. Arthur Ave, police said. The 28 and 24-year-old, who both live in Rogers Park, appeared to be arguing on the street. When officers approached, the first man handed an item to the second man and then walked toward the patrol car, police said.

The first man told officers he just had been robbed at gunpoint, while the second man quickly walked into the vestibule of a nearby apartment.

An officer followed him to the vestibule and stopped him as he came out. Tucked inside the vestibule was the box of Cigarillos filled with ammunition, police said. The man claimed he was just visiting his friend, who was in fact the same man talking to the officer at his patrol vehicle.

The friend told officers he had given the second man his keys so he could use the bathroom inside. But inside the mailbox, which was ajar when the second man let the officer into the vestibule, was an unloaded .22 revolver, police said.

The man at the vehicle then repeated that he had been robbed and that when he told his friend what had happened he said, “I got you,” and went over. He told officers he thought his friend had a gun but had not seen it.

Neither man had a FOID card and the gun was not registered, police said. Both were charged with unlawful possession of a handgun and ammunition.

Rape on Red Line in Uptown

Police are still looking for a man who sexually assaulted a woman on a CTA Red Line train near the Wilson Station 11 p.m. June 16 while threatening her with a knife.

Police say after the attack, the victim took herself to Mercy Hospital & Medical Center, where she was treated.

The CTA claims that the attack was recorded by surveillance cameras. No one was in custody as of last Friday.

Drop the gun, grab the cookies

A bike delivery man for Insomnia Cookies was robbed at gunpoint June 23 in an alleyway in Rogers Park.

The 31-year-old delivery man said he was held up by two men around 11:10 p.m. in an alley near 1300 W. Fargo Ave. One of the men had pointed a semi-automatic handgun at him and said, “Give me your money,” according to the victim.

He gave the men $100 cash. They escaped on foot headed north in the alley, police said. No arrests were made.

Uptown man held on 1997 murder charges

An police investigation revealed that on August 26, 1997, on the 100 block of N. Pine, at approximately 12:45 a.m., Humphrey Borgie, 56, of the 4500 block of N. Sheridan Rd., was responsible for fatally asphyxiating a 39-year-old female victim.

Borgie is being held for one count of First Degree Murder. The offender was located, placed into custody and charged accordingly. No further details are available at this time.

How can you tell if you're really eating organic?

BY KEVIN HARMON

The crowds are pouring into the Green City Market in Lincoln Park these days now that the weather is warmer. Within the rush and noise of the crowds, one of the main words being uttered according to patrons you talk to is “organic.”

It's a buzz word these days as more people are trying to be more mindful of what they put in their bodies in an attempt to achieve total wellness and ward off illnesses associated with contaminated food. It wasn't that many years ago that some of the vendors at Green City Market were discovered buying their ‘organic’ produce at the same food wholesalers that Jewel does.

The word organic is thrown around so much to consumers these days that the average person isn't sure the product they are buying is organic, or is it just a gimmick to get you to pay higher than ordinary prices for ordinary foods.

City folks who have never stepped foot on a farm are some of the most gullible buyers out there. Food scams have always been part of a the industry.

But as long as profit could be made, there has been someone willing to masquerade their product as something better, fresher and safer than it really is, cutting corners with cheaper ingredients or replacing it with something else entirely. In ancient Rome, winemakers sweetened wine with lead. In Europe in the Middle Ages, bakers, butchers and brewers faced harsh consequences for selling adulterated food or “contagious flesh.” In Britain in the 1700s, anyone who sold fake tea could be sent to prison.

Fake food has plagued mankind for centuries; next to prostitution, historians consider counterfeiting the world's second oldest profession.

But food fakery these days is vastly more complex, and much harder to trace than in the past. Like our food system, food fakes span the globe. In today's market, wheat gluten adulterated with melamine finds its way from China into “all natural” pet food in the U.S., killing thousands of pets. In New York a man sold synthetic fake organic fertilizer to the country's largest organic farm, leaving many consumers wondering if their organic spinach is true to its “certified organic” label. A red snapper at a suburban Whole Foods, scientists discover, is actually a much smaller, poorer fish.

For years swindlers have taken advantage of the federal government's lax enforcement of organic laws. After a federal auditor gave the Dept. of Agriculture poor marks on enforcement, authorities have made a show of cracking down on fake organics.

Whether going to the Green City Market or places like Treasure Island, Mariano's and Whole Foods, it helps to be armed with information as a consumer to make informed decisions, said Lincoln Park nutritionist and vegan Carrie Coleman. She said there are several important things you should consider before buying organic foods.

“Check those labels and look for seals of approval and certifications from such places as Green Seal and Energy Star and the term Certified Organic, which is monitored by the USDA,” said Coleman, whose parents run an organic farm in Southern Wisconsin. “Look for products that have received approval based on internationally recognized environmental standards. You also need to do your research online and research the manufacturer and investigate the claims they make.”

Coleman said sites such as www.coopamerica.org and www.greenpeople.org provide comprehensive directories of green products and services and acceptable labels for organic are Fair Trade Certified, Green Sea; Energy Star and USDA Organic.

Coleman said several other web sites can provide information on organic foods. Among them are www.thenutritionalsource.org, www.usdamypyramid.gov, www.eatingright.org and www.beactive.org.

“It's not a big deal these days that more people are concerned with all the impurities they put in their bodies. More people are seeking out USDA Certified organic labels to make sure they are giving their families food that are free of pesticides, synthetic chemicals, hormones and other antibiotics,” Coleman said. “It pays off being a smart consumer.”

Mary Munoz is a Lakeview registered dietician who said she regularly shops at the Green City Market. She said some of the foods that traditionally have the most pesticides used during farming include apples, peppers, celery, lettuce, berries, grapes, spinach and potatoes. She said other products such as asparagus and corn have little less pesticide residue and foods such as garlic, eggplant and tomatoes fight off the chemicals.

“It's a pretty competitive market and I don't think that it is a stretch to say that some farmers cut corners in order to stay competitive in a growing marketplace,” Munoz said. “There are certain things you can have control of in this world and one of them is what you eat, what you put in your mouth.”

Another prudent thing to do when looking for organic products is to scan the package and look for paper packing marked “post consumer,” which means recycled content was used to create it, and to look for a green marker on the packaging, as labels that are marked with it have been printed with soy or vegetable-based, non-toxic inks.

“One of the best ways to determine if a product is green or not is to consider the company,” Munoz said. “Are they environmentally conscious? For example, does the company power its plants with wind power? Does it provide funds for recycling initiatives? Stuff like that is important.”

Both Munoz and Coleman agree that of all the things in life that you that morning Park Rangers were notified that two men had begun an ascent on the monument. They immediately notified the NYPD's Emergency Service Unit who arrived just in time to see the two men unfurl a banner that read, "LIBERTY WAS FRAMED, FREE GERONIMO PRATT."

Pratt was a Black Panther who had been convicted of the murder of a Santa Monica teacher and had been languishing in prison for the last decade. All at once a prank became a heated political statement spread across the skirt of freedom.

One of the climbers, Ed Drummond, a 34 year old English poet with an arrest record for climbing buildings and hanging banners was having a problem.

He was making the climb using only eight inch suction cups and realized that the surface was covered with millions of little bumps which were making it difficult for the cups to stick. As he climbed, he could also see gaps between the copper plates and many little holes. His plan was to climb to the statue's back and on to her left shoulder, then camp out in a little cave under the lock of hair over her left ear.

But, because of the problem with the climbing surface, he didn't get very far, and he and his partner wound up spending the night on the statues' base and surrendering the next morning.

Authorities first thought that the climbers were driving spikes into the statue to climb it, but, upon investigation, they discovered the holes that had actually been caused by a century of unobserved corrosion.

The original insulating layer between the copper sheets and the iron support bars was an asbestos cloth soaked in shellac that separated the two metals. But the protective barrier had broken down and become a sponge that retained sea water and created a familiar chemical reaction.

The 1800 iron ribs were replaced with stainless steel ribs, which were then insulated from the copper using a Teflon polymer resin tape.

And that's how Lady Liberty was saved, thanks to the creative, politically guided fervor of two long hairs from California.

"Rust," says Waldman, "represents the disordering of the modern world, and yet a world

In 2004 The National Association of Corrosion Engineers published an action packed comic book adventure to introduce 8 to 15 year olds to the exciting world of rust.

without rust would be a world without metal."

He becomes animate when he speaks about how no president has ever said the word rust. Beating around the bush they have used crumbling, aging, and, in need of repair, but always skate around the R word. "They talk about race up the wazoo, he says, but wont touch rust. It seems sad because we are all here because we care about the stuff that civilization runs on. When you study engineering you learn that there is no such thing as the perfect thing, everything is a trade off, and rust makes us come to terms with the fact that material things are mortal."

As he followed the thread with his investigation he wound up at the Alaskan Pipeline. It is four feet around and stretches for 800 miles across a cold white infinity. And there is one man responsible for its care, a rust hunter, otherwise known as an integrity manager.

"Its one of the heaviest things in the western hemisphere," says Waldman, "and one man spends all his time looking for something the size of a pinhole, because one failure could cause untold disaster to the tundra and result in billions of dollars in damage, not to mention the demise of the entire project."

Fortunately we do have some super heroes to battle the great destroyer and galvanizing is of the most powerful. Steel is dipped into a molten vat of Zinc that is three times thicker that maple syrup and heated to a temperature of 840 degrees. Over days it goes through chemical reactions and becomes very impervious to the elements. But the best part is that, electrochemically, it heals itself when it is scratched whereas a pinhole in a painted metal surface will begin the relentless rusting process almost immediately.

Unfortunately the process produces a surface that is plain dull as a door grey and we live in an exciting world that demands bright and lively colors. It is possible to paint over galvanizing but when you are trying to get funding for a bridge its like trying to ask for money to get it painted twice.

Europe has five times as many galvanized structures as we do. Their bridges are all grey and the inside joke is that all the people wear colorful clothing to compensate.

When asked about an enduring solution to rust, Waldman takes a more philosophical approach. "I think that we need to accept that we don't live in a perfect world. We want more but we need to give more."

He harkens back to the 1930's, the era of the WPA and the Civilian Conservation Core when people really got together for a common cause and put all their energy into public building projects with integrity and durability.

"The technocrats have won," he says. "We all believe that things are all so perfect that we don't want to believe they aren't. We have all been swindled by our iPhones."

ORGANIC from p. 7

don't have control over, what you consume and the products that you have in your home are two things you do have control over.

"One of the big complaints that people have when it comes to organic is that the prices can be high, but you are better off buying organic for the most part, you know what's in your food and where it is coming from," Coleman said. "There are too many health issues out there these days to not be a smart consumer."

Dena Morgan is a spinning and yoga instructor who meticulously chooses her food when she shops. The Lincoln Park mom of a toddler said she did her research online when she made the decision to strive to consume organic foods for her and her family.

"I used to ask myself how did I really know if something was organic or not and empowered myself to do the homework. I know there are some pretenders out there. I wanted to be an informed consumer," she said. "I work too hard on my body to not be as mindful as to what I put in it and I want the best for my baby and husband as well."

It's pretty well established that organic foods are better for the environment, but whether they're healthier than conventional food has been a fierce debate for years. Last year, there were several studies that backed up the notion that organic produce has more disease-fighting antioxidants, and no toxic chemicals from fertilizers and pesticides. Studies have also shown that organic milk has more heart-healthy omega-3s than conventional milk.

While many at the Green City Market agree the biggest knock against organic food is still the price tag, you can cut costs by shopping smart.

"But fruits and veggies from farm stands or markets in season or on special," said one shopper. "They're far more affordable and you can freeze them for later."

WEEKEND from p. 5

the brainchild of the late artist Bob Cassilly. Tickets are $8-10 depending on your group. Have a rendezvous plan when you arrive as you can expect to lose track of the kids.

One of the jewels of St. Louis is Forest Park, one of the largest green spaces in the U.S. at 1,371 acres.

The park was the site of the 1904 World's Fair and The Pavilion from the fair still stands today. Iced Tea was invented here.

Within Forest Park are the St. Louis Art Museum, St. Louis Zoo, the Missouri History Museum, a theater, an amphitheater, a boathouse and much more. Again, all free.

Lunch at Panorama, located in the art museum, is advised, for its windows overlooking Art Hill. It is a beautiful and elegant setting to enjoy Executive Chef Ivy Magruder's edible creations.

One thing most Cubs fans will be shocked by is the amount of stuff offered for free to the public including the Saint Louis Art Museum. This is one of the principle art museums in the U.S., with paintings, sculptures, cultural objects, and ancient masterpieces from all corners of the world. The Beaux-Arts style building was designed by famed architect Cass Gilbert in the late 19th century. Multiple wings house the collections, including one of the best German Expressionist collections in the nation.

Did we mention that admission is free every single day? Helloooo Art Institute of Chicago?

A really good place to stay if you want to cover more of this area is the Moonrise Hotel, 6177 Delmar.

Very hip and urban is the Moonrise in The Loop neighborhood, named one of the "10 Great Streets in America." The hotel has a revolving moon on its rooftop and a color-changing staircase in its lobby. A space-age theme, from kitschy to collectible, their meeting rooms are done up in Apollo 8 and Apollo 11 themes.

Possibly the most pet-friendly hotel in America, this AAA Four Diamond hotel, offers gifts for your dog or cat upon check-in: a special Moonrise dog tag, moon and star-shaped treats, bowls, bandanas and even a litter box.

The Loop is one very popular dining, shopping and nightlife district and is close to Forest Park and the prestigious Washington to welcome folks who enjoy experiencing the sights and sounds of early America. Stroll along the brick-paved streets of Missouri's oldest and largest historic district, and explore one-of-a-kind shops, sample the local cuisine [don't miss the coconut creme pie at Mother-In-Law's House], or get a bike and hit the Katy Trail, a 237-mile trail stretching across most of the state of Missouri.

see something exciting that seems to be happening all around the St. Louis area, the well-thought-out revitalizations of old buildings, with a real touch for mixing the old and the new. There is a lot of care that has taken place with respect to the past history and traditional architecture, while infusing it with a vital modern day sensibility.

If you would like to meet some of the pioneers of the St. Charles

St. Charles loves its history, but may love food and wine even more.

If you're a gambler looking for that riverboat casino feel with all the humidity then book a room at the Ameristar Casino Resort Spa [One Ameristar Boulevard, St. Charles].

Sitting on the edge of the Missouri River, the first AAA Four Diamond hotel in Missouri, Ameristar offers contemporary, well-appointed rooms featuring over-sized bathrooms, sunken living rooms and floor-to-ceiling windows in every room overlooking the river. Its quite peaceful and the most strident hotel critic will find this facility delightful.

They offer a full-day luxury spa, Ara and an indoor/outdoor pool the kids will like. Ameristar has a casino that's big but isn't overwhelming, a music hall, 12 bars, seven restaurants and a wonderful bakery serving Starbucks coffee. Its a very manageable building, unlike some hotels in Las Vegas where you get lost just trying to make your way to get coffee.

The service is excellent, the hotel parking garage is easy to deal with and rooms are reasonably priced.

Hermann

One stop you'll want to make along the Katy Trail is in Hermann, voted "Missouri's Most Beautiful Town." This historic town was founded in 1836 by the German Settlement Society of

WEEKEND see p. 15

Univ. Better yet, its just a short walk to Piccione Pastry featuring authentic Italian sweets. Their handmade cannolis are a must.

St. Charles

Just up river a few miles from where the Mississippi meets the Missouri history buffs will want to stop in at the historic city of Saint Charles. Since 1769, Saint Charles has been welcoming visitors to its shores, including the expedition party of Meriwether Lewis and William Clark whose Corps of Discovery at the request of President Thomas Jefferson in May 1803 was one of the most important missions in American history.

The primary objective was to explore and map the newly acquired territory, find a practical route across the Western half of the continent, establish an American presence in this territory before Britain and other European powers tried to claim it and report back to the President once they completed that task... over two years later.

Today, the city is much the same as it was, and continues

The trail starts adjacent to the point where the Corps of Discovery departed from and more than half of it follows Lewis and Clark's path up the Missouri River, where you can ride beneath towering river bluffs while eagles circle overhead.

After leaving the river, the trail meanders through peaceful farmland and small-towns. It is America's longest "rails-to-trail" project, formerly the MKT rail line, is mostly flat and quite scenic. It's ideal for hiking, running, or cycling on just about any kind of bike. Many cross-country cyclists include the Katy Trail in their tours.

Or if biking isn't for you, take a walk down Main St. and visit the post office, built in 1918, it has been restored and re-opened as a co-working center for digital startups, fittingly named OPO Startups. This was the brainchild of entrepreneur Randy Schilling, and seems to be working quite well, as jobs that used to be outsourced to India are coming back to the U.S. and landing in St. Charles, MO.

Its inspiring to visit the OPO and revitalization movement, book a room or at least have a meal at Boone's Lick Trail Inn, 1000 S. Main St. The Inn, built in 1840, was bought by the Mydler family in 1981, and they helped to start a revival on Main St. The Inn is authentic Colonial Style, but with modern plumbing, gracious hosts and steps from the river.

Dinner, appetizers, wine, craft beer and craft cocktails can be enjoyed all along Main St. Of note are Prasino, Bella Vino Wine Bar & Tapas, Louis & Clark Restaurant on Berthold Square Park with views of the river and the Little Hills Winery.

Between March 3 and May 14, the city filed 95 lawsuits against owners of buildings that flunked their Life Safety evaluation last year and do not comply, according to one lawsuit, “with the minimum standards of health and safety set forth in the building code.”

The lawsuits ask the court to require each building owner to correct violations or else pay $500 for every day not in compliance. One of the first buildings sued, 1500 N. Lake Shore Dr., has not resolved its case for 113 business days and could be fined as much as $56,500. The amount, however, is a fraction of the property’s value. The condominium currently has two units listed for sale, one for $3.395 million and the other for $3.6 million.

Of the 85 remaining lawsuits, 25 are in the Gold Coast, River North, or Streeterville neighborhoods of downtown Chicago. They also include properties in Lincoln Park, Lakeview, Roscoe Village and Edgewater. Three are on the South Side and in the Loop and one is Fulton House, a condominium on the west bank of the Chicago River across from Wolf Point.

Is your building being targeted by the city?

Philadelphia, and thought to be chosen for the area's resemblance to the Rhine Valley. Nestled along the Missouri River, much of the downtown is a historic district where restored brick homes from the 1800s hug the sidewalk in the traditional German style. More than 150 buildings are on the National Register of Historic Places. This is wine country so plan to call it a night here once you've visited some of the seven wineries in town.

Stop at the Rockin' W Alpaca Ranch and enjoy sweet treats handmade in the Hummingbird Kitchen.

Then hit the Stone Hill Winery for a wine tasting and dinner. The Held family restored a carriage house and horse barn and turned it into Vintage Restaurant. The food is hearty, the atmosphere is unique and quite enjoyable, and their wines are fantastic.

Hermann also has the Tin Mill Brewing

All around the St. Louis area are well-thought-out revitalizations of old buildings, with respect to history and traditional architecture, infused with a vital modern day sensibility.

Company, so you won't miss out on local beer.

Cape Girardeau

Those in cars may want to travel 117 miles south along the Mississippi River to historic Cape Girardeau. With more than 250 years of heritage, Cape Girardeau is where Ulysses S. Grant took command of the Union Army on the Mississippi River. Cape Girardeau's heritage is captured in a sweeping, 1.5-mile mural along the town's flood wall. You'll also find the Trail of Tears State Park here. No, this has nothing to do with Cubs history, but the 3,415-acre park does have a very sad story to tell and features a breathtaking Mississippi River overlook.

Cape Girardeau also has a cute downtown with shopping and dining. Have a pint at Katy O'Ferrel's.

Ste. Genevieve

If you choose to stay longer in this area then plan to explore the French colonial town of Ste. Genevieve, founded between 1735 and the late 1740s (a full 100 years before Missouri statehood), and perhaps one of the coolest small towns in America.

This is an artist's colony with the Bauvais-Amoureux House and the Felix Valle House Historic Site. It really is like going back in time. You can walk around town to the different historic houses and do some shopping at the same time. ASL Pewter, 183 S. Third St., offers traditional handcrafted pewter pieces, lead free, so you can use any piece for serving food or drink.

Dinner at Audobons of Ste. Genevieve, named after John James Audobon who used to reside in town, will bring you back up to modern day speed. Another beautifully restored building, the restaurant serves farm-to-table food with locally made wines. Don't overlook their pizza if you want a quick snack.

Of course no visit to St. Louis would be complete without a visit to the Gateway Arch, especially as 2015 is it's 50th anniversary. Iconic to St. Louis, the Arch (at 630 feet) is the tallest man-made monument in the U.S. The Arch symbolizes St. Louis' historic status as the "Gateway to the West." Take the ride to the top for some amazing views of St. Louis. While there, Chicagoans should look east where a bridge just to the south crosses the river. That is I-55 north, your way back home toward Wrigley Field.
