New DNA lab offering immigration testing to Edgewater

Testing imperative in proving relationships

BY MAUREEN COWHEY

DNA Diagnostics Center, the DNA lab used by popular television shows such as Maury, opened a new location on the North Side in May. Offering everything from paternity testing to immigration testing, the new lab located at 6315 N. Ridge Blvd. is servicing the community's large immigrant population.

With the Supreme Court partially approving President Trump's travel ban on June 26, access to immigration testing may become increasingly necessary. The court ruled that foreign nationals from six-majority Muslim countries could be kept from entering the United States if they do not have a bona fide relationship with someone already residing here. While the court is set to hear the full case in October, immigrants can now be banned from entering the country.

This is where AABB Immigration DNA testing comes in. For immigrants looking to come to the United States to live with relatives, the DNA testing proves biological relationships and can expedite the approval process. Especially in countries where many people do not have legal birth certificates such as Kenya and Nigeria, DNA testing is imperative in proving relationships, said Chase Centeno, Chicago Operations Manager.

DNA Diagnostics Center helps coordinate with foreign embassies to set up appointments for foreign family members, collect and ship DNA samples, and provide notarized legally defensible test results to immigration authorities.

The demand for Immigration DNA testing has "blown up in the Chicago area," says Centeno. People who have been waiting years want to do it now due to the unpredictable political climate, he explained.

Originally out of Ohio, DNA Diagnostics is one of the most popular and reliable labs in the world with 5,000 locations across all 50 states and 165 different countries. Due to the increase in calls from the Chicago area, the company opened this new office on the border of Rogers Park and West Ridge, which has a large immigrant population. "We are excited to be able to serve a community in need," Centeno said.

"It is a big deal to be in a community that I call home," said Centeno who is himself an Edgewater resident.

The center is growing bigger each week and increasing their "local footprint." Over the past month and a half that they have been open, they have administered 400 tests.

In addition to Immigration Testing, DNA Diagnostics Center does paternity tests, maternity tests, sibling tests, Native American tests, home kits for testing and more. All tests, besides pre-natal paternity tests, can be done with a non-invasive cheek swab.

The demand for Immigration DNA testing has "blown up in the Chicago area," says Centeno. People who have been waiting years want to do it now due to the unpredictable political climate, he explained.

The Center also partners with the City of Chicago to do Child Support cases and the local Planned Parenthood chapter to do non-invasive pre-natal paternity tests, which can be done with a simple blood draw at eight weeks of pregnancy.

Most famously, the company does the paternity testing on television shows such as Dr. Phil, Judge Judy and Divorce Court. They have also processed thousands of tests in order to help deliver Maury Povich's famous phrase, "you are/are not the father" for almost 20 years.

Immigration testing can range anywhere from $400 to $1,200 depending on the country and number of people tested. Centeno said that the company gives discounts based on needs, offers payment plans and will provide test results without full payments.

For more information call 312-445-9589 or visit dnacenter.com/Chicago. DNA Diagnostics Center is open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and by appointment Saturday.

Can vague promises about bringing technology to Chicago change hearts?

Most hated company in America

BY MAUREEN COWHEY

Comcast XFINITY hosted the "2017 Civic Technology Forum" at Lincoln Park's Studio XFINITY, 901 W. Weed St., on June 15, gathering together representatives from the City of Chicago, Cook County and Comcast. The panel discussed "how to help residents and businesses benefit from opportunities that stem from having access to technology," according to a press release from Comcast.

Analytics firm 24/7 Wall St. declared Comcast the "most hated company in the country" in January 2017. Compiling employee reviews, customer reviews, and responses from the American Customer Satisfaction Index, the largest telecommunications company in the world topped the list ahead of other corporate giants such as Bank of America, McDonald's and Walmart.

Comcast, which has a reputation for poor customer service, outages, monopolizing the market, and billion dollar lawsuits, was named the worst company in America by The Consumerist in 2014, beating Monsanto. The company has made strides in recent years to improve their customer service and public image. Comcast claims that the number of customers that had to call Comcast was down 14% in 2016.

In what seems to be another PR move, Comcast's Civic Technology Forum made vague promises by press release to "increase the contribution technology can play in neighborhoods across the Chicago area."

"If we are going to succeed in our modern economy, it is imperative that both the public and private sectors understand the im-

Fritchey also stated that this forum of public officials and Comcast higher-ups was going to increase the public's access to technology. One way in which Comcast is going to make good on this promise is through its Internet Essentials program. The program, which started six years ago, promises to provide eligible low-income families Internet service for around $10 per month.

This program has been criticized for not providing service to individuals without children, providing slow Internet, and not serving enough low-income households.

"Comcast Internet Essentials is a customer acquisition program in disguise. Because it is limited to non-subscribers in Comcast's existing footprint, the program allows Comcast to acquire additional customers without needing to invest in expanding or upgrading its network," wrote Tim Price of the Roosevelt Institute.

"Comcast's goal in bringing Internet Essentials to communities in the Chicago area and across the country is to boost technology access and adoption in an effort to engage more individuals in the technology economy," said Matthew Summy, Comcast's Regional Vice President of External Relations.

Whether truly interested in increasing "economic opportunities" in Chicago or merely in cornering every aspect of the market including low-income families, Internet Essentials has succeeded in providing thousands of families with Internet services according to Summy.

Present at the forum was Fabian Elliott, CEO and Founder of Black Tech Mecca, a Chicago-based think tank whose goal is to make technology accessible in black communities.

Ald. Joe Moreno [1st]; and Danielle DuMerer, Acting Commissioner of the Chicago Dept. of Innovation and Technology, as well as members of ChicagoNext CLARITY Partners, Comcast NBCUniversal, Ellis Consulting and Tristan & Cervantes were also in attendance.

Meeting July 12 to review N. LSD plans

Improvement from Grand to Hollywood avenues

The Illinois and Chicago departments of transportation are hosting the third public information meeting 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday July 12, concerning the improvement of U.S. 41 (N. Lake Shore Dr.) from Grand to Hollywood avenues.

It will be held at the DePaul Univ. Student Center, 2250 N. Sheffield Ave.

Since the last public meeting, the project team has been evaluating citizens ideas for improving the Drive so the purpose of this meeting is to present the initial range of alternatives and obtain feedback from the public.

The meeting will be held in an open house format and exhibits will be on display, and an audio-visual presentation will be shown continuously during the meeting. Although the Drive has been repaired and resurfaced many times since initial construction, the bridges and appurtenances have reached the ends of their useful lives, and now need complete reconstruction or major rehabilitation.

The proposed project involves improvement of seven miles of the eight-lane boulevard, including the 12 highway junctions. Project team members will be present to discuss the project and answer questions. For more information call 312-561-3140.

Remember the roots of revolution

By Thomas J. O’Gorman

In 1682 the peaceable Quakers founded Philadelphia. How did it become America’s most revolutionary city in less than 100 years? Not to be confused with Chicago, America’s most violent city. That’s quite a different story. From Liberty Hall to the Liberty Bell, Philadelphia is thick with shrines to the “free thought” that inspired American independence. And revolution. Guns in the streets, farmers shooting muskets.

The freedom established in the colonies was a fresher liberty than anyone had ever known on earth. One guided by what many believed to be a new and fairer principle for living lives of meaning and purpose. A startling humanism that recognized the worth and value of the whole person, a sense of revival of harmony with others and the earth. Someone to share a craft ale with.

Britain’s 13 colonies along the tidewater of the Atlantic were a paradise compared to the rat-infested, sewer-clogged waterways of Tubercular England back home. Colonials loved their neo-classical Eden of abundant crops, herds and craft ales. Of course, there were no beef-steak tomatoes, yet, but quality food none the less. America was a vibrant and majestic agrarian landscape as far as the eye could see. Worth fighting for. And dying for. Remember one if by land. Two if by sea. The only question wasn’t will the British Army come after us, just how they would arrive.

Celebrating the lofty grandeur of explosive politics is still important to Americans, even after 241 years. We genuinely embrace the liberty of others and the freedom all humans have a right to expect. Twice in the last century it was our reason for returning to Europe to liberate with war those imprisoned by tyrants and despots.

It is ironic that one hundred years after the Declaration of Independence was written and signed in Philadelphia (1776), jump-starting our own “Brexist” with a revolutionary war of separation from Britain, General George Armstrong Custer (1876) and his troops engaged in the very non-humanistic Battle of the Little Big Horn. How do we former colonists sort out our decisions that are often too self-serving to be human?

It is important for us to remember the roots of revolution.

IF MUSIC BE THE FOOD OF LOVE: Marking the recent loss of his wife, Janet Doris Fishman Thau, to the world of classical music and the arts, Howard N. Reisman celebrated a remarkable musical extravaganza in her memory at the Merit School of Music. Sixty-eight musicians and artists presented this unusual salute to Thau, a natural musical prodigy, in Gottlieb Hall. Five members of the Chicago Symphony took part. From 1:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. the works of composers from Copeland to Schubert gave tribute to a wonderful woman of Chicago music. The full spectrum of classical orchestration and operatic expression gave a profound farewell to a graceful Chicagoan who was dearly loved. Mr. Reisman was assisted in the organization of the event by Susan Merdinger.

PROM NIGHT: London House will celebrate their first anniversary, everyone is invited to come dressed (black tie) for the adult prom, July 22, 6:00 p.m., a view of Chicago not to be missed.

MOST UNDER-RATED RESTAURANT: Jason Hammel, chef/owner of the unmatched Lula’s Cafe in Logan Square, has been named one of the world’s most underrated restaurants, one of twenty around the globe. What a list. He’s a genius and a smart man in the kitchen. This is better than two stars from that French tire company.

HUT-ONE: Who’s the lovely penthouse lady who appears to be hostessing her own USO shows for visiting young G.I.s?

HUT-TWO: What well-known Chicago writer has been spouse battling, enduring a bout of fisticuffs that seem certain to hurt the larger family who no longer cares about seeming noble or sophisticated? They just wanted peace between mom and dad. Word is, however, that dad will not be calmed as long as her favorite remains in the picture. Mom claims she is tired of being alone. And the waiter won’t admit he even knows them publicly.

HUTTHREE: Rumors abound that the other shoe is about to drop in the Headquarters of the Cook County Circuit Court, home to Chief Judge Timothy Evans. Those dissatisfied with court organization (mainly other judges) seem to never let up attempting to vacate Evans from his long held position (some think it’s his consolation prize for letting go of ever being mayor). Not so, his judicial supporters say. He’s an OK guy, well-liked mostly and respected in a senior leadership position that is just overwhelmed by the courts’ volume and workload. After 16 years some think he should have taken the hint a long time ago. But old-timers think he deserves to fade with dignity and go out on top. September is usually Circuit Court warfare month.... let’s measure what goes down. Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle has the ball in her court. Though some African-American aldermen don’t seem as unified on Evans as they used to be.

HUT FOUR: Is there a shift in the political and racial tectonic plates underway that could spell disaster for some long-time office holders? Apparently a down-low cabal of aldermen has been loud with their criticism of the new Cook County soft drink tax. Local politicians are running out of words to explain themselves, while the senior office holders wish they could find a new place to hide. And there is once again a strong sense of intelligence behind the introduction of term limits for aldermen and a reduction in the numbers of seat in the Chicago City Council.

LUNCH LADIES: Many ladies who eschew brown-bagging are quietly chattering about the tremors coming from that big gay wedding and then big acrimonious divorce. If you read between the lines of the lads Facebook pages, one cannot stop traveling to exotic ports (just like the honeymoon) and the other can’t keep his hands off his latest buddy (just like the honeymoon). There’s only so much cross-over friendships that can survive that like of rigorous frenzy.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE THAT COOKED? What well-known waiter invited six friends to join him in the Pride Parade? Everyone looked great, fit, tanned and chic. Although all the gentlemen were friends with the host, they hardly knew each other, until someone realized that they all had been bedded by their host. He later managed to make a joke out of their discovery. And while the convertible could carry six, amply, if they wanted to transport his reliable one-night stands along the parade route, those candidates would have necessitated hiring some CTA buses.

Forever young - and rockin'

'Piano Man' and 'Rod the Mod' lively up The Drake's Palm Court

Heart of the 'Hood
By Felicia Dechter

When Barb Bailey put on her dancing shoes and went to see -- and shake her booty to -- the popular '70s musical group KC & the Sunshine Band at the Arcada Theatre in St. Charles in 2014, opening for the band were "Billy Joel," and "Rod Stewart," aka, respectively, Nicholas Psychios and Cliff Tartaglia.

After hearing the opening pair perform, Bailey, an artist management and booking agent who owns Barb Bailey Entertainment, booked them at the Sandwich Opera House in Sandwich, IL. That inspired her to audition them for the Palm Court in the Drake Hotel, where "A Tribute to Rod Stewart & Billy Joel" is now presented once a month from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. The next two shows will be held July 15 and Aug. 5.

"Billy and Rod are from the same era of music - both icons and they appeal to both men and women so the audience appeal is wide," said Bailey, an Edgewater resident who has been in the music business since 1980. "I was attracted to the idea of Billy Joel playing piano for Rod Stewart, which he does in the act, and each not only looks like Billy and Rod, they sound like them."

"It was a natural to put two powerhouses together on the same stage - and it worked," said Bailey. "They have songs they do together but much of the show is Rod being accompanied by Billy - then Billy accompanying himself and singing - so the audience gets to hear the best songs by each artist."

Bailey, who also writes shows for her singers to perform at performing arts theaters and casinos, has been rockin' 'n' rolling for most of her life. After graduating from college at Michigan State, she became a DJ at The Hangge-Uppe nightclub on Elm St., a gig that segued into her becoming the music rep for music producer Bobby Whiteside. At the time, Whiteside had the entire second floor of Universal Recording Studio -- a huge jingle house at Walton and Rush. There, Bailey pitched advertising agencies and landed accounts for Whiteside like McDonald's, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Coors Beer, United Airlines, and Pepsi.

After Whiteside moved his family to Nashville, Bailey moved to Los Angeles, where she ended up becoming the music rep for music producer Dick Marx, the father of singer, Richard Marx, who was originally from Chicago but who had moved to L.A. to enjoy his top-of-the-charts success. In Hollywood, at the Sunset Sound Recording Studio, Bailey procured jingles, as well as episodes for television and movie scores. After Dick Marx was killed in a car accident driving back from Las Vegas, Bailey moved back to Chicago and ultimately became a Senior Music Agent at Lily's Talent Agency, representing Chicago Cabaret artists like Beckie Menzie, Tom Michael, & KT McCammond.

"This was following a hiatus I took from music when I sold real estate for Rubloff Residential in the Gold Coast," recalled Bailey. "But the music business beckoned - it is embedded in my blood, so I opened Barb Bailey Entertainment around a new 21-year-old client I had been referred to named Dakota."

"That was Jan. 2008, and he is still with me," said Bailey. "I have added quite a few more artists to moves on the dance floor!"

One of those beautiful people, cabaret songstress Denise Tomasello, checked out the packed show with hubby, Don Conover.

"It was fun being at a mini Rod Stewart and Billy Joel concert," said Tomasello. "My friends and I enjoyed the entertainment and reminisced about the songs of Rod and Billy the entire night. The energy in the room was great from beginning to end."

Both are sensational musicians in their own right, so putting them together seemed like a winner - and it has more than proven itself, said Bailey, who is also writing a book, "The Tally Ho Baby," her story of being found in a cardboard box when she was one-week-old and what has transpired since then.

"The Drake is very happy," said Bailey, whose roster of clients range from singers to tribute acts to comedians. "Audiences love Cliff and Nick and are on the dance floor until the final song of the night... and Cliff even goes to the tables and sings to them personally. It's a hoot!"

Edgewater resident Barb Bailey with "Rod Stewart" and "Billy Joel," who will perform their next show on July 15 at the Palm Court of the Drake Hotel.

my roster. Some I manage. Some I'm their booking agent. I love what I do. I book in the Midwest, New York, Las Vegas and the West Coast, primarily."

She said some venues have found that the more their guests dance, the longer they stay, so Rod and Billy have actually become a successful business model.

"I'm told this is the first time the Palm Court has ever featured two tribute artists for their Friday/Saturday entertainment series," said Bailey. "And it's proved quite successful."

"It is three-and-a-half hours of solid dancing to favorites like 'Uptown Girl' and 'Maggie May,'" said Bailey. "The room is abundant with the 'Beautiful People' dressed in the trendiest styles - eager to razzle-dazzle their new

New targets: student-loan burden and hispanic homeownership gap

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

Housing advocates continue to worry about a shortage of Millennial first-time home buyers in the residential marketplace nationwide because of the burden of student-loan debt.

More than 43 million Americans owe a whopping $1.4 trillion in outstanding student debt. Seventy-one percent of America's non-homeowners (apartment renters) believe their student debt has delayed them from buying a home or condominium, according to data from the National Assoc. of Realtors (NAR).

"For too many borrowers, student debt feels like a big barrier to the dream of homeownership," said Rohit Chopra, Senior Fellow at the Consumer Federation of America.

However, there are changes in the wind for young borrowers who managed to buy a home despite hefty student-loan debt.

Fannie Mae recently updated its Selling Guide to permit originators that sell loans to the mortgage giant to offer a new refinance option for the purpose of paying off a student loan. Proceeds from the refinancing will go directly to the student loan servicer to fully pay off at least one loan.

Targeting current and future homeowners with student debt create both opportunities and risks for consumers, especially for those who use mortgage credit to pay off a student loan, experts say.

"Swapping student debt for mortgage debt can free up cash in your family budget, but it can also increase the risk of foreclosure when you run into trouble," Chopra said.

"For borrowers with solid income and stable employment, refinancing can help reduce the burden of student debt. But for others, they might be signing away their student-loan benefits when times get tough."

Fannie Mae's policy change will likely have the effect of greater availability and lower interest rates for homeowners refinancing their mortgage to pay off college loans.

Homeowners who tap home equity to pay off student debt give up their rights to income-driven repayment options on their federal student loans, which cap federal student loan payments at roughly 10% of their income.

Income-driven repayment is a critical safeguard during periods of unemployment or other income shocks that help avoid the consequences of default. Homeowners may also be trading away loan forgiveness options available to teachers and others who work in public service.

"While these changes won't change those feelings overnight, they may help the mortgage industry adapt to the financial realities of today's aspiring homeowner," Chopra said.

Yet another road block to the American Dream of homeownership looms on the horizon. A new report released by Freddie Mac explores the Hispanic-homeownership gap, which not closing fast.

At 45%, the nation's Hispanic homeownership rate was 26 percentage points less than the homeownership rate for Whites in 2015, Freddie Mac reported. The homeownership gap was 29 percentage points in 1995.

"For decades, the homeownership rate of Hispanics has remained more than 20 percentage points below the rate for Whites," noted Sean Beckett, chief economist for Freddie Mac. "This gap has narrowed in the last 25 years, but very slowly."

White and Hispanic populations are growing and aging at different rates, Beckett said. The average age of Whites is expected to increase by six years over the next 45 years, compared with nearly 10 years of age growth for Hispanics.

"If these U.S. Census projections about age distributions are realized, the White/Hispanic homeownership gap is likely to narrow by 20% by 2035," Beckett said. "In addition, changes in other factors like income and education should further reduce the Hispanic-homeownership gap."

Another long-term trend not favoring Hispanic homeownership is shrinking home affordability and slow wage growth.

The U.S. median home price hit $253,000 in second quarter of 2017—up 7.7% from a year ago. This is the least affordable level since the third quarter of 2008, and a nine-year low in affordability, reports ATTOM Data Solutions, the nation's largest multi-sourced property database.

"While home-price appreciation in the second quarter of 2017 accelerated to the fastest pace in more than three years, wage growth turned negative, posting the biggest year-over-year decrease in five years in the fourth quarter of 2016—the most recent average weekly wage data available," said Daren Blomquist, senior vice president at ATTOM Data Solutions.

The average weekly wage nationwide was $1,067 in the fourth quarter of 2016, down 1.4% from a year ago—the biggest annual decrease since the fourth quarter of 2011, reports the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"That combination of accelerating home-price growth and slowing wage growth, along with mortgage interest rates that are up nearly 50 basis points from a year ago, eroded home affordability nationwide to the lowest level in nearly nine years," Blomquist said.

Median home prices in the second quarter of 2012 grew at a faster annual pace than average weekly wages in 403 of the 464 counties analyzed in the report, which included Cook County; Los Angeles County; Maricopa County, Arizona in the Phoenix metro area; San Diego County, and Orange County, California.

Admiral resident honored as 'Outstanding Volunteer'

AFP Chicago cites Toni Smith's 'dedication of significant personal time, talent and resources'

Toni Smith was recognized by the Association of Fundraising Professionals with its Outstanding Volunteer Award during its annual "Faces of Philanthropy" awards luncheon May 5.

God, go I," was as much a part of her upbringing as, "Finish your spinach – think of the starving Armenians!"

Educated at the Brearley School and Vassar College, Toni married a native of La Grange Park, and they moved to the western suburbs where they raised three children. All three forged careers in nonprofit enterprises, and Toni's six grandchildren are active in philanthropic causes.

The suburbs eventually proved too much of a disjuncture for her New York DNA, and Toni moved into the city, where she got a job as receptionist for an executive recruiting firm, Spencer Stuart.

Four years later, she became the first female consultant on the staff, and within 10 years she was the first female partner.

Not surprisingly, given her DNA, she soon gravitated to the nonprofit clients and recognized that there was a huge market in that sector. She convinced her firm to let her create a "specialty nonprofit practice" (the first for a large recruiting firm), which she headed for the balance of her 30-year career.

She worked primarily with boards seeking new leadership for nonprofits throughout the country and beyond. Some were large and traditional (museums, major orchestras, large foundations); others were smaller (human service and civic organizations); some were idiosyncratic (like Executive Women in State Government).

Many of the leading cultural and civic organizations in Chicago in the 1980s and 1990s were led by Smith recruits (and some still are).

Toni had limited free time while working, but she served on the Chicago Botanic Garden and Associated Colleges of Illinois boards and on advisory boards for the National Easter Seal Society and Northwestern University's non-degreed, nonprofit course program. She became a member of The Chicago Network, where she has been a board member and committee chair.

When she retired, wanting to be more involved with Chicago and its residents, she joined the boards of Lakefront SRO and a children and family agency that has grown to become One Hope United. She also joined Executive Service Corps of Chicago as a volunteer consultant (she recently chaired that board) and volunteered at her neighborhood Lakeview Pantry. Because of a lifelong interest in archeology, she became a docent at the Oriental Institute and, later, a member of the Visiting Committee. And love of theater led her to Steppenwolf Theatre Company, where she has chaired their Directors Circle committee. She is still active with most of these organizations today.

At The Admiral at the Lake,

Toni chairs the Lifelong Learning Committee, bringing outside speakers and university courses to the building, and is currently serving on the Executive Committee of the Residents Board.

Because of her years of work with boards and CEOs, she developed an expertise in nonprofit governance and has used that to chair boards and governance committees wherever she has served.

Her goal as a recruiter was to recruit CEOs who could help nonprofits grow and thrive; she now tries to use her own experience toward the same goal. Toni is still the go-to person for people transitioning in their careers or from full-time work to retirement—which she insists is really just "reWIREment."

Senior LIVING

Know healthcare options before you need them

At the Continental Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, 5336 N. Western Ave., we realize that not everyone subscribes to the Boy Scout motto: Be Prepared. However, it's darn good advice for anyone – Scout or not.

Consider the unexpected illness or a scheduled surgery for a hip or knee replacement – definitely not high on anyone's priority list, if given the choice. Would you know what to do or where to go when these care decisions arise?

The fact is, no one's immune to life's downturns. A little prevention, along with some pre-planning, "does a body good" when health takes a hit.

Here's how to be in the driver's seat instead of under the bus:

Defining post-acute care and respite stays

Are you familiar with the term "post-acute care?" After getting discharged from the hospital for an illness or surgery, patients sometimes need to go to a facility for ongoing medical care or rehabilitation. This portion of your recovery is referred to as "post-acute care."

Physical, occupational and speech therapies can do wonders for rehabbing a patient back to optimal functioning again so they can return home and pick up right where they left off. Post-acute care may also include intravenous antibiotics, dialysis, pain management, respiratory therapy or nutritional services.

And, if you live alone and are apprehen-

Physical, occupational and speech therapies can do wonders for rehabbing a patient back to optimal functioning again so patients can return home and and return to a normal life.

CONTINENTAL NURSING & REHABILITATION

Celebrating 40 Years of Caring & Commitment to Good Health

At Continental Nursing & Rehabilitation, your care will include an innovative approach for shorter treatment times, faster recovery, and a better quality of life ahead! Comprehensive clinical services include:

- IV therapies,
- Respiratory
- Physical, Occupational, & Speech Therapies
- In-house Hemodialysis
- Respite Stays (for ongoing recuperation when you can't yet go home)

CONTINENTAL NURSING & REHABILITATION

sive about meeting your daily needs during recuperation, you can go to a post-acute care facility for respite care. There, you will receive the assistance you need for ongoing recovery while staying in your own room for five days to five weeks, or more. It's up to you. Most post-acute care facilities offer respite care. Ask if they do, and if so, find out what their length-of-stay or minimum/maximum stays might be, along with daily or weekly rates.

Tour a facility ahead of time

Did you know that you can tour post-acute facilities (once called nursing homes) just by calling and making an appointment? A designated staff member will escort you around the building, explain services, and even show you an empty guest room. You are welcome to ask questions and even watch rehabilitation therapy sessions in progress.

Taking a tour ahead of time demystifies post-acute care and provides you with the reassurance you might need.

You'll also want to screen post-acute facilities for the types of insurance plans accepted to make certain you're in network ahead of time.

Whether you're exploring care options for yourself or a loved one, facilities are accustomed to clients calling and asking for tours. So, take advantage of this opportunity to learn more before making such an important decision that will greatly impact ongoing recovery.

Feel free to start your search at the Continental Nursing and Rehabilitation Center. For more information call 773-271-5600.

An insider's look at the evolution of the Internet

Trademark expert answers questions: 'What is the Internet?'

Clare resident David Maher has had a full life and a distinguished career.

He graduated from Harvard College with a degree in classics (Latin) and went on to Harvard Law School. His biography could place him among the most notable "Who's Who of American Attorneys." David has been as a successful registered patent attorney. He is admitted to the bar in New York, Illinois, Wisconsin and the United States Patent and Trademark Office. He served for more than 20 years as general counsel to the Better Business Bureau of Chicago and Northern Illinois and received the bureau's Torch of Integrity Award in 1999.

But of all his life accomplishments, David (arguably) most enjoys sharing his story of how, over 20 years ago, he became involved in the beginnings of a technology that would literally change the world and the way we communicate: The Internet.

David's journey started in 1994. He had just received his first issue of a new magazine called Wired. The first article he read was by journalist Josh Quittner, who wrote about some amusing conversations he'd had with the McDonald's Corporation. Ironically, David was the outside trademark counsel for McDonald's at the time. Quittner, speaking with a media relations representative, asked whether McDonald's cared about a "domain name" on the Internet.

"The answer from McDonald's was along the lines of, 'What is the Internet?'" David chuckles.

Quittner went on to register McDonalds.com and wrote the article David was reading. In the article, he mentioned that he might auction off the domain to Wendy's or Burger King.

"As I read this, I thought, 'Oh, no, this is a problem,'" David says.

At that moment, his office telephone rang.

"It was my client, McDonald's," David says. "The first question was, 'Have you ever heard of Wired magazine?'"

This started David down a path he never expected to travel. At the time, he knew practically nothing about the Internet. As he began educating himself, he discovered his wife, Carlotta, who was working at the University of Chicago's Oriental Institute, had her own Internet address for scholarly use.

"I was very jealous," David says. "In 1994, it was not possible for most people to have an Internet address. It is hard to believe, but at that time, there was still a policy that the Internet was not to be used for commercial purposes."

In his research, he soon learned about rampant "cybersquatters." These people knew very little about the Internet but understood the value of famous trademarks.

"They were grabbing domain names right and left," David says. "Unauthorized people were registering names like coke.com, xerox.com, ford.com and so on."

As a trademark lawyer, he knew that these were clearly infringements, but he found there were no laws on the subject and no court decisions since the Internet was so new. David brought his concerns to the International Trademark Association (where he was a member), which was already planning on forming an "Internet Subcommittee."

David was asked to be a co-chair.

The subcommittee started to become David's main focus. Over the next few years, as the Internet was exploding, David became a key figure in setting policy, adhering to trademark law and battling cybersquatters.

In 1995, a trip to Dublin to speak at a conference proved to be fortuitous. He met several colleagues on a pub crawl (they were in Dublin, after all), and they created the basic concepts of coordinating the registration of domain names.

"Over pints, we argued about different ways of administering the technical side of the Internet's domain name system," David says. "We agreed on the outline of a plan that became the structure of the organization that now does the technical coordination."

By 1996, David became a founding member of the International Ad Hoc Committee, which aimed to restructure the entire domain name system. And by 1997, the committee came up with an agreement that would do two things – first, restructure the domain name system by adding new domains (.info, .store, etc.) and second, create a system for getting rid of cybersquatters.

David went on to serve as vice president for public policy of the Internet Society, and in 2002 he became a founding director of the Public Interest Registry (the non-profit operator of .org, .ngo, and .ong domains). Since 2004, he has served as senior vice president for law and policy there.

As for McDonald's, the reporter who originally purchased mcdonalds.com eventually agreed to turn over the domain name to the McDonald's Corporation in exchange for a gift to his favorite charity. "McDonald's gave approximately $5,000 and some computer equipment to a public school in a poor section of Brooklyn, and everybody was happy," David says with a sigh of relief.

If all of this sounds exhausting, you're right. That's why David and Carlotta, his wife of 63 years, enjoy their relaxing life at The Clare.

"The location, the décor and amenities, the dining options, and the friendly staff and residents were all important factors in choosing to live at The Clare," David says.

Not to mention the high-speed Internet connection.

You can't predict the future.
But you can plan for it.

Classified, Legal and Service advertising information:

• Classified ads are sold by the line. The cost is $4.50 per line per insertion. One line of copy is equal to 25 letters, characters and spaces long. There is a minimum of 3 lines per ad.
• Service directory ads are sold by the column inch. One column inch is 1.5 inches wide by 1 inch tall and costs $30 per insertion.
Additional space above 1 col. inch can be purchased in increments of 1/4th column inch. Each additional 1/4th column inch costs $5. Adding artwork, logos or images or use of special fonts are no additional charge.
• Legal notice advertising rates are charged based on the actual size of the ad. The cost is based on the same rates as Service Directory advertising. "Doing Business As (DBA)" and "Assumed Name" legal ads are based on a flat rate of $50 per week. By law they are required to run for three weeks for a total cost of $150.
For more information call Karen Sonnefeldt at 773-465-9700. Fax ads to 773-465-9800 or email them to: insidepublicationschicago@gmail.com.
The DEADLINE for service and classified advertising is Monday 5 PM, excluding national holidays. Ads will sometimes be accepted after deadline on Monday with an additional service fee of $20. Inside Publications reserves the right to refuse any advertising we feel is inappropriate or that could result in harm to others.

Edgewater Village activities in July

Mark your calendars to attend free Edgewater Village presentations beginning July 6 in the Lounge at the Edgewater Satellite Senior Center in the Broadway Armory, 5917 N. Broadway.

First up is a Storytelling Circle, 6-7 p.m. on July 6 presented by author, teacher and Edgewater Village member Carol LaChapelle. She will begin the program with a story topic and invite everyone to share personal or family stories. Or, you can just sit and listen as participants relate their stories. If interested in attending, email edgewatervillagechicago@gmail.com or call 773-382-0764.

Also beginning Thursday and for the next three consecutive Thursdays, Edgewater Village and Loyola Community Nursing Center are offering a series of presentations with light refreshments and a free raffle.

All the events will be 12:30-1:30 p.m. in the Lounge of the Edgewater Satellite Senior Center; no reservations are required for these free presentations.

The July 6 presentation is "What's All the Buzz About?" and will focus on the benefits of local honey. On July 13, the topic is "Big Benefits in Micro-nutrients;" the July 20 topic will be "Take a Moment to Unwind," and will discuss meditation and relaxation to improve daily living and sleep. The July 27 topic will be "Super Aging in Edgewater."
