Compromised lock system has Divvy battling surge in bike thefts

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Last week the operators of Chicago's Divvy Bike sharing program cited a "recent series of thefts of bikes" from docking stations for a decision to install new "more tamper-proof lock mechanisms" system-wide.

Divvy's statement followed an inquiry from this reporter about an apparent surge in thefts of the ubiquitous blue bikes after personally witnessing two Divvy bikes being stolen in separate locations downtown over recent days.

Our team of reporters have since found social media photos of up to 10 apparently-stolen Divvies being posed like trophies on the North Side.

Also signaling a systemic problem: Between July 2 and 6, four adults were arrested and charged with possessing stolen Divvy Bikes in the Near North neighborhood alone, according to police and court papers.

Divvy bikes have also been used by gunmen in "pedal-by" shootings on Lower Wacker Dr. in the Loop on June 29 and near the Sedgwick Brown Line CTA station in Old Town on July 2. While it is not known if the shooters are members of the paying Divvy community, there is a general feeling among cops that the bikes were stolen.

Easy Peazy

An editor first saw a Divvy bike being stolen from a docking station outside of the Daley Center in late June or early July. Without going into detail about the technique used, the editor's attention was drawn to the man because his behavior was unusual. Within seconds, the bike came loose, and the man pedaled away toward Daley Plaza.

Our editor didn't quite know what to make of the scene until July 3 when he saw a different person performing the exact same behavior at a Divvy rack near Washington Square Park on the Near North Side. Within seconds, the bike was free and he pedaled away.

This newspaper is withholding the details of how the Divvy lock mechanism is being defeated. Combined with the familiar tugging and pulling on bikes that thieves have been seen doing for years, it now looks like Divvy has a real problem on its hands with locks that can be defeated.

A company spokesman declined to say how many thefts have been experienced systemwide or to compare this year's theft statistics to previous years.

Stakes heightened for tonight's meeting as players make moves on North Riverfront

Real estate developer Sterling Bay and Ald. Brian Hopkins [2nd] will be hosting a community meeting tonight to discuss the future development plans for the North Branch of the Chicago River.

The meeting will be held at the Near North Montessori School, 1434 W. Division, starting at 6 p.m.

Right now the City's plan for riverfront development does not include any public park space of the size required to service the public needs for green recreation space. In fact the bulk of the space the city is setting aside is composed of linear park space made up of a 30' wide easement running seven miles along both river banks.

Increasing the stakes on the plan going forward now was news that broke last week that the General Iron scrap yard is moving off their property, and putting it up for sale. General Iron owns a large amount of the land on the east bank of the Chicago River between North Ave. and Cortland that Ald. Hopkins and two other North Side aldermen would like to see made into a recreational park.

If the City does not move quickly on a plan to purchase this white hot real estate then the property will surely be gobbled up by Sterling Bay or some other wealthy developer.

Only Monday it was discovered that Sterling Bay had purchased the 19,000 square foot parcel at 1901 N. Elston on the northeast corner of Elston and Cortland. Previously it housed Bucktown's Star Car Wash.

This massive development will have an unprecedented economic, environmental, transportation and social impact on all of the surrounding communities for generations to come.

Available information shows a potential for 19 million additional square feet of new mixed-use real estate, eight million square feet of commercial space, thousands of new residential units, a stadium, a massive entertainment district, and a need for $1 billion in funds to pay for infrastructure to serve the development area. This massive development will have an unprecedented economic, environmental, transportation and social impact on all of the surrounding communities for generations to come.

Bike lanes under viaducts in Uptown clear out homeless for good

BY JIM VAIL

The homeless who once lived under the viaducts on Wilson and Lawrence avenues in Uptown will not return now that the city and state have finished renovating the bridges as they now feature walkways where bikers and pedestrians share space, while cars have four lanes.

"Now that it's done, it really shows just how gratuitous the City is with its 'defensive architecture,'" leftist activist Andy Thayer said in an email.

Defensive architecture is when the city designs its public ways — such as benches with numerous arm rests — to discourage homeless people from sleeping or camping out.

Thayer joined the fight to prevent the city from evicting the homeless who were living in tents under the viaducts in Uptown before the reconstruction project began last year. Prior to that people were living in tents in sub-zero temperatures during the winter.

The encampment highlighted for many city residents the plight of people who are getting priced out of the city and have nowhere to live.

For one half block [in the viaducts], the painted lines curve up onto the sidewalk so that 'traffic' can use all four lanes under the bridges. Bikes are generally prohibited from riding on sidewalks in most parts to the city. Signs have also been installed on the sidewalks so that people don't accidentally walk in the bike lanes and vice versa. "Totally absurd," said Thayer. "Really shows the spitefulness of [Ald. James] Cappleman."

Uptown has been front and center in the drive to gentrify the city as expensive housing is replacing affordable housing. Ald. Cappleman [46th] has been the recipient of thousands of dollars in donations from developers who are building new high-rises and condos in an area that also has shelters and drug treatment centers.

The alderman and many other city officials agreed with many Uptown residents that they no longer wanted to see homeless people camped in the viaducts under Lake Shore Dr.; preferring that they should instead be housed in shelters.

However, the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless filed a lawsuit against the city for driving the homeless from their encampments without providing them with adequate housing.

John Greenfield, who edits Streetsblog Chicago, a website dedicated to biking and city transportation issues, wrote that he understood both sides of the debate: that it is unlawful to camp out in public spaces vs. the tents providing homeless with shelter and a sense of community.

The tent cities also were a visible reminder of the city's failure to address homelessness, a problem festering in other urban areas of the nation too.

Greenfield pointed out that there is no real need for bike lanes to be put on the sidewalk because the wide sidewalks allowed people enough room to ride slowly if they were afraid of the street while the homeless living there were mostly courteous and respectful to passing pedestrians.

Still those tents, chairs and other belongings did take up half of the sidewalk's previous space.

Cameron Puetz wrote on Streetsblog that the intersection at Marine Dr. is a terrible place to have to transition from a sidewalk bike lane to a street lane.

"In addition to seeming to target the homeless, it's not even good cycling infrastructure," Puetz wrote.

Indeed drivers now will find embedded bollards on the entrance ramps to Lake Shore Dr. pinching their own turning radius. They are there to protect the bikers but anyone who has seen the smashed and tangled crosswalk bollards all over the city knows these too are destined to be quickly demolished by cars.

The only other place in the city where bikes share the sidewalk with pedestrians is in a Metra viaduct on Randolph between Canal and Clinton in the West Loop, and parts of Sheridan Dr. in Edgewater. The city said the new viaducts and bike lanes will accommodate the high number of people, cyclists and cars that travel to the lakefront and is consistent with other repairs and building of bridges along Lake Shore Dr.

The two bridges at Lawrence and Wilson avenues had fallen into horrible disrepair due to a general lack of regular maintenance. These were also the two underpasses where the primary homeless camps had established themselves.

"This is [likely] a very intentional attempt by the city to use bike infrastructure as defensive architecture, to try to keep the homeless from occupying public space in the future," Greenfield wrote. "Other bike advocates may disagree with me on this issue, but in this case I say 'Not in my name.'"

Americans seem overwrought with suspense

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

How do you feel about cliff hangers? You know, that pen- sive uncertainty that surrounds the outcome of a frightening set of circumstances. And you wait for the other shoe to drop. Hang- ing from a ledge? Waiting for the smoke to clear? Waiting to hear from the doctor for the results of your lab tests, the other shoe to drop? Waiting for news about the ultimate outcome. Time for a thousand "Hail Marys," or pleas from the gut. A time for whole- some thoughts that just might find their way into the ear of God.

Suspense is a powerful device when used in literature. It gener- ates an immediate emotional re- sponse from readers. Deep seeded stirrings, no matter how vaulted the writing.

Suspense raises the level of personal investment by the read- er, lifting the intellect and the heart, suspending them in the delayed outcome of current cir- cumstances. The hero just may go over the cliff edge. The vil- lain just may succeed, capturing the demure young princess. The terrorists might very well cap- ture the president. A government informant might discover how to get evidence to the New York Times.

So we have to turn the page. Or come back and watch the show next season. Or patiently read ahead a chapter or two. Suspense provides us with delayed gratifi- cation.

We must wait to see how things will turn out. Will we make it to the gas station, riding on empty and not run out of gas? Can we get out of the car trunk, before we run out of air?

Cliff hangers shout for resolu- tion. Some timely solution. May- be a secret exit to escape. Or a hidden rope to shimmy out a win- dow. Or a can of gas to keep us moving. Anything to staunch the inevitable cataclysm, the disaster that looms ever near.

Cliff hangers are essential in television dramas. That's how you keep your audience on the edge of their seat. It's the per- fect way to end one season of programing and build anticipa- tion for another one to begin. The suspense builds as we wait for the resolution. Tomorrow. Next week, or next year. The tension builds as the outcome gets nearer to some resolve. It's a device as old as the story of Troy, or of Od- ysseus wandering the sea.

Some recent real life cliff hang- ers have been pungent with sus- pense. The movement towards resolutions has been dramatic and ripe capturing all our imagina- tions.

The first cliff hanger unfolded in Thailand, where 12 members of a youth soccer team and their coach were trapped in an under- ground-underwater cave. The long, arduous process of finding a way to rescue them captured the imagination of the world. Finally, guided by Thai Navy Seals, the boys were rescued. Their rescue was complex and laborious and we hung on every word describ- ing the details of their bad luck in the flooded cave. Slow and meth- odical. Filled with nail-biting suspense. But in the end, all the boys were freed and all the boys were safe.

In another cliff hanger closer to home, Father Michael Pflieger, the tempestuous pastor of St. Sabina Church, announced that his members were organizing a march over gun control and their neighborhood's high death tolls. The ineffective response of local government, and the need for jobs for their community.

They revealed that they would march on the Dan Ryan Express- way. In the weeks leading up to the actual march, much name calling, arm twisting and organi- zational confusion seemed to ex- pand the suspense of the march. Pflieger was pitted against Illi- nois' Republican Governor and Chicago's Democratic Mayor. Threats of mass arrests were made. The Archdiocese of Chica- go and Cardinal Cupic were cited for not ordering Pflieger to desist from such a dangerous undertak- ing. Suspense was ripe on the day Pflieger and the marchers gath- ered at the entrance ramp of the expressway. But reason prevailed and an orderly march was permit- ted. Public safety was sustained. Pflieger and Chicago's police su- perintendent walked arm in arm on the ramp. The Cardinal was out of town. The Mayor was in China and the governor lowered no hammer on anyone's head. It was a cliff hanger reasonably re- solved. But to what end?

Another cliff hanger came with the recent resignation of associate justice Anthony Kennedy from the U.S. Supreme Court. The selec- tion of a nominee to replace him has been filled with suspense. Ev- eryone had their inside scoop on who the president might choose. Finally, when we almost could not take it any more, the president announced that he would make his choice public. He addressed the nation July 10, in prime time interrupting "The Bachelorette." His choice was Judge Brett Ka- vanaugh. A young, conservative, intellectual federal jurist who had clerked in his younger days for Justice Kennedy. The Democ- rats then took the full measure of God's truth to try and stop Ka- vanaugh, while the Republicans over-strategized how they could champion the nomination. It's not over yet.

Americans seem overwrought with suspense. Maybe it's all the television they watch. Maybe it's all the books they don't read. Or all the porn they watch. Maybe it's all the social media that holds them hostage. But culturally we are weak with all the cliff hang- ing we do. Without much of a payoff.

Perhaps we have reached our saturation point with the news, with the flow of information about what's happening. Burdened by fake news and inconsequential news. And then all that technical knowledge about law, the Con- stitution and the functioning of responsible government. The de- bate about who is fit to serve is hardly well-positioned by the left who exaggerates the menace of the Supreme Court appointment and the right who refuses to ab- sorb the serious concerns of the nomination.

Listening ceased long ago and no longer permits a deeper un- derstanding of the nation's highest court. The nation is now trapped. Hanging by its fingers from a ledge, surrounded by suspense. We are hungry for reasoned in- telligence that ignores the blind vision and hurtful sound of shat- tered patriotic ideals. We need the uplifting patriotism of sacrifice and compassion demonstrated in the actions of millions who serve the nation with love and generos- ity. And we need the freedom that only the Constitution can bestow to the people who choose to live beneath its protective embrace.

Life is a cliff-hanger. We must measure out its truth and its unique ability to help us sur- vive and thrive. Hanging by our thumbs between the well-inten- tioned rescue of soccer players thousands of miles away and the well intentioned civil disobe- dience of those who entreat for gun control marching on the public roadway. Our high values and moral code are enshrined for all to see in the clarity of everyday sacrifices on behalf of others and truth telling that is the result of facing life head on.

'All Shook Up' over Elvis Presley musical

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

I can't help falling in love with "Heartbreak Hotel," the rollicking musical about Elvis Presley's early career years, which opened last Sunday at the Broadway Playhouse in Water Tower, 175 E. Chestnut St.

Set during 1954 to '57 in Memphis and other locations, "Heartbreak Hotel," follows Elvis as he and Sun Records founder Sam Phillips create the music that will forever change their lives, and the lives of countless and adoring Elvis fans. Besides the incredible tunes, learning the legend of Elvis' beginnings at Sun and how he hooked up with the tough but legendary "Colonel" Tom Parker was a real treat for this King lover.

The musical takes us into Elvis' career as it skyrockets while both lifting and shattering the lives of those he loves. Like any good show it has a love story, and betrayal, and we watch how Elvis and Colonel Parker change the course of musical history in just 18 months.

The play features hit songs from the King himself as well as the legends who influenced his iconic music, with chart-toppers including "Blue Suede Shoes," "That's All Right," "Shake, Rattle and Roll," and, of course, "Heartbreak Hotel."

Elvis, aka, Eddie Clendening -- who really does bear a striking resemblance to the real King -- plays his role with finesse and ease, as he should because he has been performing it for a long time. Clendening originated being The King in the Broadway production of "Million Dollar Quartet," where he performed more than 2,200 performances. He also played Elvis in the Chicago production of "Million Dollar Quartet" at the Apollo Theater. When he's not busy playing Elvis, Clendening tours as a vocalist/guitarist with his own group, The Blue Ribbon Boys. His success as The Eddie Clendening and the entire cast of "Heartbreak Hotel," brought the house down at the show's opening Sunday at the Broadway Playhouse.

King has landed him appearances on TV programs such as, "The Late Show with David Letterman," and "Late Night with Jimmy Fallon."

Every performer in this musical feast is top notch, with each song being better than the next. The female singers blew me away, as did Geno Henderson, who has toured and recorded with the likes of Smokey Robinson, Roberta Flack, Sly Stone, Billy Preston and many others. Henderson played multiple roles in the show and nearly stole it from "Elvis." There wasn't a performer in the house who didn't put their full heart and soul into making this musical rock.

This is a show that would be great for tourists, out of town visitors, or those just wanting a couple hours of great music. Honestly, the only thing I would have liked to see was a little more gyrating from Elvis, er, I mean Eddie. Just a wee bit more shaking of those sexy hips and nice tushie.

Hey, you can't blame a girl for that. See it if you can.

My cup of tea... is the new Argo Tea, 6576 N. Sheridan Rd., which opened a couple of months ago. Last week, thanks to manager Jacqueline Bradford, the shop displayed community spirit at its best when it held a free Tea for Tots tea party for about 20 kids/parents.

Bradford, who recently moved to East Rogers Park, "thought it would be nice to get the community together."

"One of our core values is community, and I thought it would be exciting to invite moms and kids to taste everything," said Bradford, who has worked for Argo for five years.

Tracy Kalman, with Quinn, 4, and baby Harrison called the tea party "really great and wonderful."

She was right. It was a wonderful event. Everyone there -- myself included -- was so impressed by what Argo did.

Guests sipped a variety of teas, as well as hibiscus apple cider and hibiscus lemonade. They dined on mini ham and cheese sandwiches, vegan chickpea salad, chocolate chip cookies and brownies, among other things, which were all served with smiles by Bradford and Argo employees Vincent and Alex.

Everyone who attended had a blast and loved not only the really spiffy new store, but also its generous hospitality.

"It's fantastic," said Peter Serb, who recently moved to the neighborhood from Bridgeport and was attending with his son, James, 2. "This is the most family friendly and dog friendly neighborhood I've ever lived in."

Chicago's affordable housing dream moving ahead after 18 years

The Home Front
By Don DeBat

Affordable housing is an elusive dream for thousands of low-income Chicago residents. That vision has been slowly moving ahead for the past two decades, regardless of what critics say.

After a long delay caused mostly by the Great Recession of 2008, vacant land on the Near South Side finally is being targeted for 900 mixed-income housing units at the former site of the Harold L. Ickes Homes public-housing development. Eleven Ickes high-rises containing 738 units were razed eight years ago.

The ambitious, three-phase plan for the new Southbridge community calls for construction of 770 apartments and 107 townhomes and condominiums on the site bounded by Cermak Rd., Dearborn and State streets and the Stevenson Expressway, according to the developers, Community Builders and McCaffery Interests.

The $90-million first stage of the mixed-income community consists of two six-story apartment buildings featuring 200 units—68 public housing units, 18 affordable rentals, and 114 market-rate apartments, plus 18 for-sale townhomes.

The plan, which would eventually create 244 public housing units, is scheduled for review by the Chicago Plan Commission on July 19.

The site is near a new Green Line CTA station serving McCormick Place, where construction of new hotels and a DePaul Univ. basketball arena is booming.

Southbridge is part of the Chicago Housing Authority's 18-year-old plan to create 25,000 public housing units. Through June 30 some 24,251 new or rehabilitated units have been completed on CHA land.

While the coming kick-start of Southbridge is a significant affordable-housing event in Chicago, housing analysts say now is the time to give former Mayor Richard M. Daley some long-overdue applause for his vision in launching the city's first mixed-income community in 2000 at the infamous Cabrini-Green community on the southern border of the Old Town neighborhood.

On June 4, 2000, Mayor Daley and top city housing officials hosted grand-opening ceremonies at North Town Village, the landmark $70-million, mixed-income residential community at 1401 N. Halsted St.

North Town Village was called a "prototype concept" in the revolution of urban housing—a flowing together of the housing needs of a diverse group of residents, from low-income to upper-income, according to co-developers Harold Lichterman of Kenard Corp. and Peter Holsten of Holsten Real Estate Development Corp.

"This is the future of public housing in Chicago," Mayor Daley prophetically said. "We are breaking down barriers that have isolated public housing residents from the rest of society and creating a community that is integrated racially and economically."

Today, the seven-acre North Town Village community, on Halsted and Evergreen streets immediately south of the intersection of North and Halsted, consists of 261 rental apartments, condominiums, stacked duplexes, coach houses and townhomes.

With the first 16 families moving into North Town Village in 2000, Mayor Daley thanked the developers for "creating a community that improves the residents' quality of life."

"North Town Village, its recreational facilities, and a nearby commercial district are all part of the Near North Redevelopment Initiative, originally announced by the city in 1991," noted Holsten.

The plan involved razing the northern portion of Cabrini-Green, bordered by Halsted, Larabee and Division streets, and North Ave. Eventually, most of the 3,600 high-rise apartments at Cabrini-Green were demolished. Only 586 original two-story row house units remain along Chicago Ave. The project once housed more than 15,000 public housing residents.

Over the past 18 years, when later mixed-income phases were built, the area's housing went from ghetto to Gold Coast-quality, and the neighborhood south of North Ave. now is a commercial and retail boomtown.

After North Town Village proved the mixed-income housing concept worked, several other Chicago public housing projects containing 18,000 units were demolished between 1999 and 2008 under the CHA's 10-year Plan for Transition.

Demolished projects included the 1,662-unit Ida B. Wells, Madden Park and Clarence Darrow Homes developments on 39th St. and Cottage Grove Ave. on the Mid-South Side.

Others followed, including the 4,321-unit Robert Taylor Homes, a collection of 28 high-rises housing 27,000 people that ran south along State St. from Pershing Rd. (39th St.) to 54th St.

The 92-acre Robert Taylor Homes—once called the largest public housing project in America—was razed by early 2007. In its place rose Legends South, a collection 2,300 low-rise homes and seven community facilities, built along State St. and on scattered sites in the adjoining neighborhood.

Ironically, Rich Daley was instrumental in tearing down what his iconic father, Richard J. Daley, had created in the 1950s—high-rise low-income ghettos with designs based on World-War II replacement housing in war-torn Germany under the Marshall Plan.

better for the poor, law-abiding, public housing residents in Chicago, and this is his legacy, despite complaints about budget and pension shortfalls under Mayor Rahm Emanuel's watch, housing analysts say.

for the first time in his life to Darla on Christmas Day in 2016 in perhaps his most romantic gesture yet. The two met years ago when Darla came in to Geja's with her daughter Abby, visiting from Columbus, Ohio. There was a spark, but the two were both in relationship. A year later, they found themselves single, and a mutual friend encouraged them to go on a date. In June of 2015, Darla and her two daughters moved to Chicago. They knew they wanted a destination wedding and both realized the little mountainside church built in 1925 outside of Jackson would be the ideal place. They had visited the church in a visit to Jeff's aunt in Oct. 2015. They honeymooned to Willamette Valley, Oregon, to enjoy Pinot Noirs, and a drive along the Pacific coast.

CARL GRAPENTINE: I must confess to being a member of the "5:58 Club." That's A.M. when WFMT morning voice Carl Grapentine comes on the air.

Since 1986 the erudite soft tones of Carl's voice are often the first sound that I hear each day. His harmonious tone is pure WFMT. In the old-style of decades ago. From Beethoven to Mozart Carl fills the morning with his rich introductions, embellished weather reports and Chicago's most refined news of the day. His last day of morning work will be July 27. And then retirement. There doesn't seem to be a way to say thank-you enough for glorious music and rich personal sounds. Carl has enriched the air and landscape of Chicago with his stunning musical conversations. He will stay active at WFMT, but not as he has been. Thank you, Carl, for such a dedicated life as yours.

Lakeview man arrested for up-skirt video

A Lakeview man used his phone to film up the skirt of a woman who was ahead of him on a Loop department store escalator, police say.

John Billhorn, 57, is charged with one misdemeanor count of videotaping through clothes. He was released on a recognizance bond and is due back in court on July 26.

John Billhorn

At 11:45 a.m. June 28, a 27-year-old woman filed a report and reported that she felt Billhorn touch the back of her dress and heard his phone drop as the two rode up an elevator at TJ Maxx, 1 N. State St. The woman told officers that she could see Billhorn's phone was in camera mode, so she approached the police for help.

Officers stopped Billhorn who had his phone in his hand, already opened to the photo album, police said. He claimed to have no images of the woman.

But officers said in a report that they found a photo of the victim's legs, buttocks, underwear, and dress in the deleted images folder of Billhorn's phone. When the woman identified the person in the image as herself, Billhorn was taken into custody.

Lincoln Park man arrested for fondling little girl

A Lincoln Park man lured three nine-year-old girls into an apartment building laundry room and proceeded to sexually abuse one victim while soliciting the others, according to prosecutors.

Police said Charles Clayton, 50, lured the girls into the laundry area of a building in the 1500 block of W. Fullerton on July 2. Inside, Clayton gave each girl $1 and gave one of them a beer, according to allegations laid out in court records.

Clayton fondled one of the girls over her clothing and exposed himself to the children, prosecutors said. According to allegations, Clayton made a lewd sexual comment to one girl about what he would like to do to her.

The girls told their mothers about what happened and they, in turn, notified police. The U.S. Marshal's Fugitive Task Force arrested Clayton near his home July 5.

He has been charged with three felony counts of sexual exploitation of a child; felony indecent solicitation of a child; and felony aggravated criminal sexual abuse of a victim under age 13.

Judge Stephanie Miller ordered him held on $100,000 bail, meaning he could go free by posting a $10,000 deposit bond.

Woman robbed on Red Line train at Belmont

A woman was pushed against the door of a Red Line CTA train and robbed of her phone at the Belmont station July 11, police said. And two unrelated armed robberies have been reported since late last night—one in Lincoln Park and the other in Uptown.

Here's what we have learned: A female CTA passenger was pushed against the doors of a Red Line train by a man who took her phone and then ran from the Belmont station just after 9 p.m. July 11. The offender fled eastbound on Belmont, then north on Wilton, according to witnesses. Phone tracking determined that he made his way to the 1300 block of W. Belmont, where he ran south on Lakewood before shedding his shirt and abandoning the woman's phone in the 1300 block of Barry, according to police.

The suspect is black, 16- to 25-years-old, with very short hair. He was wearing a long-sleeve blue and orange shirt before he took it off at Lakewood and Barry around 9:15 p.m.

Then, around 11:30 p.m. July 11, a Lincoln Park man was robbed at gunpoint in the 1100 block of W. Dickens. The gunman took the victim's Apple watch, phone, and debit card, then jumped into a dark red, older-model Toyota Corolla that headed west on Dickens, according to police. The gunman was a black male with dreadlocks who was wearing a dark hoodie and black pants.

Finally, around 1:30 a.m. July 12, a man was robbed at gunpoint in the 800 block of W. Belle Plaine. Two men with dark hoodies pulled over their heads approached the victim and one produced a handgun while announcing the hold-up, police said. The victim handed over a watch, phone, wallet, and car keys to the offenders who fled westbound in a white SUV. No further suspect description was available.

Report: Chicago has only two SWAT members working overnights

The third-largest city in America has just two SWAT officers on duty during overnight hours, according to a report in the local online news site Chicago City Wire. And if something serious happens during the thinly-staffed nighttime hours, Chicago is at the mercy of off-duty SWAT officers who may choose to volunteer for service "but they are not required to [respond]," the report said.

According to the report, The source said that the CPD has a total of 60 full-time deployable SWAT members as part of its Special Functions Division. But they perform other duties as well. The CPD reports that over the past year, its SWAT team has responded to 40 calls, including barricaded subjects, suicidal subjects and hostage-rescue incidents. It has also engaged in 65 high-risk search warrants and 500 missions at professional sports venues, large concert venues and major events, such as the Chicago Marathon.

In a follow up story published last week, Chicago City Wire quoted an unnamed former Chicago Police Dept. SWAT team member saying that "at night the full SWAT complement on patrol is at most four, and sometimes as low as two. Typically from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. we have two SORT teams (Special Operations Response Team) on patrol," he said. "From 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. we have one team. That means two guys in one pick-up truck covering the entire city."

The follow-up story also raises questions about Chicago's SWAT training and capabilities.

"...What's more, Chicago SWAT has no training in explosive breaching. Other inadequacies include Chicago SWAT having only two armored vehicles — one a 20-year-old BearCat "that's always breaking down" — and no maritime training."

"If the Odyssey (a dinner cruise boat docked at the Navy Pier) is ever taken, we would not know how to respond," he said.

The Chicago Police Dept. declined to confirm the manpower numbers contained in the City Wire report.

In July 2017, the SWAT unit had 69 total members, according to information provided by CPD in response to a Freedom of Information Act request.

Lakeview couch crasher charged

An Avondale man who was allegedly found sleeping on a stranger's couch in Lakeview last weekend has been charged with trespassing at that home and damaging a house nearby, according to court filings.

Around 1:45 a.m. July 8, a woman called 911 to report that a man she did not know was sleeping on her couch in the 4000 block of N. Clark. The man was gone when police arrived. About 15 minutes later, though, a homeowner flagged down police a couple of blocks away to report that a man was trying to break into a building in the 1400 block of W. Cullom. The man was detained and the woman who called police a few minutes earlier was able to identify him as the prowler who was inside her home, police said.

Joachim Borha, 30, is charged with criminal trespass to residence and criminal damage to property. He was released on a recognizance bond.

No charges after gunman threatens teen in Lincoln Park

A 15-year-old boy who was being chased by armed men sought shelter in a Lincoln Park restaurant restroom July 8, but he was not injured. Police later detained two men who matched the offender descriptions, and a gun was recovered from the suspects' vehicle, but no charges have been filed.

Around 7 p.m., multiple witnesses reported seeing armed men cruising the area of Halsted and Fullerton in a silver van. The men were said to be chasing a teenager who eventually took shelter in the men's room of a Mexican restaurant in the 2400 block of N. Lincoln, according to police.

Officers located the 15-year-old and gave him a ride to the Fullerton Red Line CTA station so he could go home.

Around 8:20 p.m., witnesses to the original incident called the police again after the silver van returned to the area. Police found the van in the 2400 block of N. Lincoln with two 18-year-old men standing outside of its sliding passenger door.

One of the men was identified by a witness as the man who lifted his shirt to display the handle of a handgun during an argument earlier in the evening. Cops recovered a gun from inside the van's sliding door, and the men were taken into custody for questioning.

A police spokesman reported that both men were later released without being charged.

Uptown prowler bust

A 26-year-old Uptown resident called 911 around 10:30 p.m. July 7 to report that someone was trying to break into his occupied home. Officers arrived and found a man crouching down in the front yard who quickly stood up and ran from the scene, according to police.

Antonio Burgin

After a short foot chase, Antonio Burgin, 30, of south suburban Lynwood was taken into custody.

Police found damage to the home's front door and fingerprints on a window that the burglar tried to access, according to a report. Burgin was placed into custody after the alleged victim identified him as the person who tried to break into his house, police said.

Burgin is charged with felony burglary and misdemeanor obstruction of identification. Judge Anthony Calabrese set bail at $10,000, meaning that Burgin can go free by posting a $1,000 deposit.

Man charged with injuring two cops in Old Town

Two police officers were injured as they took a man into custody for allegedly trespassing at two Old Town residences 12:15 p.m. July 8, prosecutors said. Martel Money, 30, was charged with two felony counts of aggravated battery of a police officer and misdemeanor charges of criminal trespass to land and criminal trespass to a residence. He is free on bond.

Money was identified by a resident as the person who minutes earlier entered his home without permission in the 200 block of W. St. Paul. A neighbor who lives nearby in the 1700 block of N. Wells also told police that Money remained on his property after he was asked to leave.

Martel Money

As officers tried to place Money into a transport vehicle, he leveraged his feet against the truck and headbutted a 45-year-old officer, prosecutors said. Money then bit that officer on the arm and battered another officer who was trying to detain him, according to charges.

The officers were treated at Northwestern Memorial Hospital and released.

Money previously served three years for aggravated battery to a police officer in 2011.

Uptown menace dies hijacking van "full of pot" in California

An Uptown man who had been awaiting trial for multiple weapons cases has died in rural Calaveras County, California, after he jumped from a moving SUV that had been used in the robbery of a large marijuana shipment, according to media reports.

Donter Essex, 29, was free on bond while awaiting trial in Chicago for two separate gun charges in Uptown. Now, it looks like he took his criminal show on the road while Cook County's wheels of justice turned.

Around 6:45 p.m. on June 28, Essex was in a group of armed men who confronted another group of six men outside the old mining town of Murphys, CA, police said. The victims were tied up, threatened, beaten and tortured with a taser before being robbed of their personal belongings, cash and a U-Haul van that was "filled with marijuana," according to local news outlet My Mother Lode. One of the men suffered severe injuries.

The robbers sped off in the pot-filled van and several other vehicles, including a Range Rover that was driven by Essex. Minutes after the robbery was reported, a local deputy saw a caravan composed of vehicles matching those used in the robbery.

When the officer tried to pull Essex over, the Chicagoan accelerated and then "exited out of the Range Rover while it was still traveling at a high rate of speed," according to the report. Essex was pronounced dead at the scene, and robbery evidence was found next to his body.

Meanwhile, the driverless Range Rover with two passengers continued at a high rate of speed until it crashed through a fence and some trees, police said. The two remaining occupants "were located and placed under arrest with the help of Angels Camp Police Dept. K9 Thor," The Mother Lode reported.

Two more suspects were arrested when the U-Haul van was found nearby.

POLICE BEAT from p. 7

Two of the arrestees are from the Chicago area: Mark Noble, 32, and Dontia Arrington, 38. They and the other two suspects are charged with armed robbery, conspiracy, kidnapping, false imprisonment and torture.

Two more men remained at large. They are said to have been speaking Armenian.

In Chicago, Essex had been awaiting trial for throwing a gun onto the roof of an Uptown Dunkin' Donuts while being chased by police. He was charged with Class X felony armed habitual criminal; felony unlawful use of a weapon by a felon; two felony counts of aggravated battery of a police officer; two felony counts of resisting police; and misdemeanor resisting arrest. A "friend" posted $10,000 for him to go free awaiting trial.

Last April, cops chased Essex through Uptown after hearing shots fired in the area. They eventually found him hiding on the second-floor deck of a home in the 4600 block of N. Kenmore. Essex jumped from the porch to prevent being captured, but he injured his leg in the fall and was taken into custody. A handgun was found in a nearby yard. Bail was set at $1,000, which was quickly posted.

In a separate matter, Essex was also awaiting trial in a case that had him facing 12 felony counts of aggravated battery to police and two felony counts of resisting arrest in Uptown.

All of those cases are now scheduled to be formally resolved pending verification of Essex's California death certificate.

Missing man drowned, Med Examiner says

The man whose body was found in the Lincoln Park lagoon on April 4 died from drowning, according to a newly-released ruling from the Cook County Medical Examiner. The office did not reach a conclusion regarding the manner of death (such as an accident, suicide, or homicide).

Brian Dennard

Brian Dennard, 27, of the Oakland neighborhood went missing on Feb. 2. He was last seen around 8 p.m. that night heading west on Fullerton from Lake Shore Dr., police said. On April 4, a passer-by found Dennard's body in the lagoon near 2400 N. Cannon Dr.

Mag Mile gunplay ends with car crash

No arrests have been made after a car chase and crash that began with men posting photos of themselves with handguns near the Historic Water Tower on Friday evening, police said.

Around 7:35 p.m., officers working near State and Wacker were told that four men in a white Dodge Charger had been taking photos while displaying a handgun near the Ghiradelli Ice Cream and Chocolate Shop, 830 N. Michigan. The photos were reportedly shared on social media.

The officers broadcast a description of the car. Minutes later, a car matching the description sideswiped another car on southbound Lake Shore Dr. near McCormick Place. The Charger made a turn and started heading northbound before it crashed and four occupants ran from the scene toward McCormick Place. Officers recovered three handguns from the crash site.

Lincoln Park mugging

A 60-year-old man was battered and robbed outside of a Lincoln Park grocery store on Sunday evening, police said. No one is in custody.

The victim was jumped around 6:45 p.m. outside of the Jewel-Osco store at 2550 N. Clybourn, according to police.

He described the offender as a six-foot-tall Hispanic man in his mid-40's who has a shaved head. The suspect may live or "hang out" in the immediate area, according to the victim.

Firebug arrested at Brown Line Station

A man who started a small fire at the Irving Park Brown Line station late Saturday is in custody and he may be responsible for another fire in the area that was discovered earlier this week.

The man was taken into custody just after 11 p.m. after setting fire to newspaper on a stairwell at the CTA station, 1816 W. Irving Park Rd., police said. His name was not immediately available because charges were awaiting approval.

Detectives were working to determine if the man is also responsible for setting a rubbish fire outside the front doors of CVS, 3944 N. Western, early Thursday.

HOUSING from p. 5

and residents with habitual criminal records.

The exodus of thousands of African-Americans from the city and relocation of many trouble makers to Section-8 apartments in Englewood, West Englewood, the West Side of the city and the near south suburbs is part of the result. This relocation action likely sparked the endless drug-turf battles and killings in these neighborhoods which continue today.

While some neighborhoods have experienced urban rebirth because of mixed-income housing, the Plan for Transition is not yet fulfilled, housing advocates say.

Along with North Town Village, one of the great success stories is the replacement of public-housing with mixed-income homes at Oakwood Shores.

Starting in 2006, the 94-acre Oakwood Shores community rose between 37th and 39th streets, Cottage Grove Ave. and Dr. Martin Luther King Blvd. The master plan for Oakwood Shores called for five phases of construction and 3,000 market-rate and affordable housing units.

The housing mix featured for-sale homes, row homes, townhomes and condominiums interspersed with about 2,000 rental apartments, according to Oakwood Boulevard Associates, the developers.

Although Oakwood Shores is a private development, it includes a mix of both affordable and market-rate apartments. More than 800 rental and senior apartments have been completed and are fully rented, and 74 homes, townhomes, row homes and condos have been sold. The community is moving forward with plans for new apartments and new for-sale units, the developers said.

A commercial renaissance is beginning on Oakwood Boulevard with the completion of the new Mariano's store, and plans are underway for a new bank and other enterprises.

David Doig, president of Chicago Neighborhood Initiatives, recently told Crain's Chicago Business: "The mixed-income Oakwood Shores housing complex and smart public investment have created greater density and a desirable mix of incomes and attracted schools, parks and businesses that serve the community and are important centers of employment."

Parks border Oakwood Shores on two sides. The revamped Mandrake Park serves as the gateway to the North Kenwood/Bronzeville neighborhood, with greystone mansions, landscaped parks, a fountain and well-maintained boulevards.

"Security of Divvy's bikes and stations is a top priority. The system has existing software and hardware that monitors when and where riders take out and return bikes and charges riders for lost or stolen bikes," the spokesman said.

But the new problem appears to be not Divvy users who don't return bikes, but a compromise of the Divvy port locking system.

"We're also retrofitting all of our docks with stronger, more tamper-proof lock mechanisms," the spokesperson said in a nod to the new challenge.

Score Four

Police in the 18th Near North Police District made four separate arrests of adults for allegedly possessing stolen Divvy bikes over the course of just four days earlier this month:

- At 12:20 p.m. July 2, a 55-year-old Wicker Park man was arrested in the 800 block of N. Michigan for "aggressive panhandling" while in possession of a Divvy bike that he claimed to own. Police checked with Divvy and learned that the bike had been reported stolen.
- At 10:30 a.m. July 3, a 26-year-old South Side man was arrested in the first block of W. Chicago for riding a stolen Divvy bike on the sidewalk.
- At 12:15 p.m. July 6, a 23-year-old Chicago Lawn man was arrested in the 300 block of W. Chicago for riding a stolen Divvy bike on the sidewalk. The man allegedly told police, "the bike isn't mine. I picked it up down the road."
- At 12:20 p.m. July 6, a 25-year-old South Shore man was arrested as he rode a stolen Divvy bike in the 800 block of N. State. The man told officers that "someone" gave the bike to him several days earlier. The accused man is a twice-convicted robbery offender who's currently on parole.

All four arrestees have each been charged with theft of lost or mislaid property, according to court records. They were each freed on recognizance bonds.

A police department source provided a link to one Facebook page where apparently-stolen Divvy bikes are seen lined up for trophy photos.
