North LSD planning: making big plans with no budget

BY PATRICK BUTLER

It will be years before the new N. Lake Shore Dr. is finally ready, but planners have already started eliminating features deemed unnecessary or too expensive, city and state transportation officials said last week during an “open house” at DePaul University’s student center, 2250 N. Sheffield Ave.

Among them are a $4 billion reroute of the drive under Oak St. Beach and “light rail” trains running along the lakefront to ease traffic congestion, said Illinois Dept. of Transportation project manager Kimberly Murphy.

But other proposals including dedicated high-occupancy traffic lanes are still under consideration, Murphy said, noting planners are still looking at proposals to use landfill to expand the lakefront between Ohio St. and North Ave. to create more beaches and green space.

That plan would also replace the at-grade intersection at Chicago Ave. with an underpass -- getting rid of the dreaded stop light -- and “soften” the Oak St. “S”-Curve, according to state and city transit departments.

Indeed the Chicago Ave. interchange on the drive is the source of daily backups and the bane of many a commuter.

Among the top 20 ideas gleaned at the previous public meeting attended by 330 people three years ago are: separate lanes for cyclists and pedestrians; more trees and landscaping; a realigned Oak St. curve; more landfill to improve shoreline flood protection; better signage and mile-markers along pathways; and reduced speed limits on the drive.

Murphy said discussions on how to coordinate the needs of pedestrians, bicyclists, motorists and buses is likely to continue for awhile.

While the city expects to have final plans ready by 2020, Murphy said it could be several years after that before actual construction is complete.

The project was first initiated four years ago, with two public input meetings held in 2013 and 2016, according to CDOT.

Then too there is the task of finding a spare $4 billion laying around in a city and state teetering on the brink of insolvency. Still uncertain is who will pay for the project, since only the Phase One planning stage has been funded at this point, Murphy said.

But, with the Army Corps of Engineers involved, it’s likely that federal funds will play a role in funding the project.

Although the public was invited to fill out suggestion cards during the July 12, Murphy said concerned residents have until Aug. 9 to have their thoughts included in the official record of the July 12 meeting. Comments should be e-mailed to northlakeshoredrive.org.

Mayor’s Office offers gag order on parks talk

About 50 neighborhood residents wanted to talk about getting a 10-acre park on the North Branch corridor. But the city wanted to discuss zoning changes affecting the onetime industrial site during a July 11 meeting at the Old Town School of Folk Music, 909 W. Armitage Ave.

A big push was made by several communities in the area to carve out much needed park space and address the infrastructure problems that many people feel the plan still does not adequately address.

In the end, nobody got what they wanted, prompting Ald. Michele Smith [43rd] to call for another public meeting before any vote is taken by the Chicago Plan Commission or the City Council.

Ald. Smith said the Chicago Plan Commission is supposed to take a vote July 20, “and I believe there is a joint City Council Finance and Zoning Committee meeting July 24 and a vote by the full City Council July 26.”

“This is the fastest schedule for the approval of any comprehensive zoning ordinance I’ve ever seen,” longtime community activist Alan Mellis said.

Some of the zoning will change back to historical zoning classifications and all areas will be able to receive development bonuses to build to downtown zoning levels, or mixed use towers. A big push was also made by several communities to carve out much needed park space and address the infrastructure problems that the plan does not adequately address. Those concerns may have fallen on deaf ears.

“There are still a lot of unanswered questions,” Ald. Smith said, adding that “issues about density and open space have been ignored.” She was visibly disturbed when the DPD’s spokesmen said they did not have figures for how much money would be raised in fees imposed on zoning changes for mixed-used developments.

“I’m sure you’re very nice people and do your jobs, but [you] haven’t been able to provide the most basic information,” she told the city Dept. of Planning and Development [DPD] representatives who called the meeting.

This was one of six simultaneous meetings to allow for the pub-

Bringing technology to Chicago

Local tech forum hails benefits of access to technology, Internet

BY RONALD ROENIGK

Last month Comcast hosted the “2017 Civic Technology Forum” at Lincoln Park’s Studio XFINITY, 901 W. Weed St., gathering together representatives from the City of Chicago and Cook County with other tech industry experts and leaders. The panel was designed to spur a dialog among local stakeholders about how to help residents, entrepreneurs and businesses in all city neighborhoods benefit from opportunities that stem from having access to and adopting technology.

The Forum made it clear that the participants believe increasing access to technology can play a large part in helping neighborhoods across the Chicago area become more livable and prosperous.

“If we are going to succeed in our modern economy, it is imperative that both the public and private sectors understand the importance of continued investment in innovation and efficiency,” said

Cook County Commissioner John Fritchey, [12th].

One way in which the host Comcast is making good on this promise to help close the digital divide is through its Internet Essentials program. The program provides eligible low-income families across Comcast’s footprint – and public housing residents and community college students in Illinois – Internet service for $9.95 per month and the option to purchase a discounted laptop or desktop computer for as little as $150.

Launched in 2011, Internet Essentials has grown into Comcast’s largest and most successful community investment initiative and now provides residential Internet service to more than 40,000 Chicago homes – and several million people nationwide.

“Comcast’s goal in bringing Internet Essentials to communities in the Chicago area and across the country is to boost technology access and adoption in an effort to engage more individuals in the technology economy,” said Matthew Summy, Comcast’s Regional

Police seek info on man wanted for Lincoln Park child luring

At 4:45 p.m. Monday on the 1900 block of N. Orchard, an unknown male attempted to lure a 14-year-old girl into his vehicle. The unknown male, driving a white SUV, pulled up next to the juvenile and asked her if she wanted a ride. The juvenile fled the scene and the male drove away.

The driver is described as a male white Hispanic, approximately 34-42 years of age, brown hair, light brown complexion with triangle facial tattoos. He was last seen wearing a gray baseball cap, gray t-shirt and blue jeans.

Police are asking anyone with information on this to call them at 312-747-8380.

The sun may set, but the sun also rises, so watch your butt

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Are you a risk-taker? Do you size up the danger quota of everything you do? Is self-protection important to you? Or are you a gambler? Do you search for freedom of spirit so you can run where you want?

Have you ever run with the bulls?

Chicago writer Ernest Hemingway is known for inventing a new and challenging bare-bones narrative-style of fiction when he was young and living in Europe. He wrote about the bulls and the troubled youth who ran with them. Sitting in a cafe, he wrote everything out in longhand with a pencil on a tablet of paper. Drinking new wines and sampling troublesome kisses. He changed in the process. He was altered by the transforming cultural drama that only post World War I Paris and pre-revolution Spain could provide.

Hemingway endured much as a writer and an expatriate American Chicagoan living abroad. His mentor, American writer and critic Gertrude Stein, called his contemporaries "the lost generation." Hemingway was "lost," forever searching for the courageous in people. "Being true," he called it. Honest. That was what he thought essentially defined people. People letting go of the pretenses that disguise them. For him courage meant just one thing, he said it often: "Courage - Grace under pressure."

Over the years I have been fascinated with his passion for the bulls that run free in Spain during the annual San Fermo Festival in Pamplona. Quite the metaphor. I discovered that for all his suffering, though, Hemingway was never really gored in the buttocks, or anywhere else, by a stamped-ing "torro." His bulls, instead, trashed his ego, his sense of self-worth, his sense of manly purpose in World War I. They trashed his ability to find another worthy of his love. His real world as a wartime ambulance driver, and not a fighting soldier, was cruel. Broken and bloody, deeply psychological.

The front of battle was far from the world he inhabited in his Oak Park childhood of comfort and advantage. His father was a doctor. A leafy posh suburb was his beginning. But Hemingway was challenged by America's expanding leadership on the world stage. He was hungry for it, always, for affirmation and redemption of the past. For a way to find himself, express himself. Different from the writers and literature of the past. His shaky sense of sexuality pushed him to create a tough, no frills sense of American two-fisted "machismo." Many ask if it was true (his favorite word).

His friends cheered him on in his writing about life's truth. Short and sweet. Especially those who saw themselves as "modern." Expatriates, liberated from their roots, Prohibition and mobsters. Gertrude Stein, her lover Alice B. Toklas and Shakespeare & Co. Bookstore founder Sylvia Beech welcomed him into their world - elite, lesbian, aesthetic and gilded.

Every summer I revisit his quick-clicking prose and the bulls by rereading "The Sun Also Rises," his celebrated tale of lost Americans in the 1920s traveling across Europe to find themselves, as well as some meaning and purpose. They are Ivy League loners. Brash. Bitter. Mostly upper class snobs. They drink too much. Love too much. And worry too much. They live beyond the limits that Old American culture enforced back home. So they experimented, stretched their limits, tested Europe's artsy life of the cafe's and soirées. All to make a break for the Modern Age already dawning in Paris. So they drank surrounded by artists, aristocrats and peasants and the great new musicians of the age. Hemingway's literature is about escaping being middle class.

Ernest Hemingway sits with the bulls in Spain, circa 1920.

Chicagoan Bill Hillman was trying to do the same this past week in Pamplona, running with the bulls. Writing about his experiences, suggesting tour packages to Americans so they can get up close to the bulls. But just like characters in a Hemingway story, Bill got gored in Spain. Actually in his buttocks. The charging lead bull, apparently, made a beeline for poor Bill and managed to hook his tush on his horn. Then a quick flip in the air. People noticed he was bleeding right away and summoned the Servio Medico that responds to serious injuries.

Bill is now mending in a Spanish hospital.

Bill's injuries did not stop others from a run the next day. A young freelance journalist from California, Jordan Capra, 22, living in Paris, was also gored and then dragged through the streets and trampled on the ground. He sustained serious wounds. He will mend.

Hillman says that the bulls changed his life, made him want to be a writer and go to Spain to run with the bulls. He says that he has already gotten a novel out of it and he is working on a documentary. That's good. But he'll be sitting on pillows for a while.

It all sounds pretty precarious. But it's also a dramatic expression of human fortitude, raw courage, specifically what Hemingway sought to catalogue in his work. The extravagant expenditure of courage despite past failures and in spite of great flaws. An inability to quell personal demons, courage is the absorber and mender of all. It absolves human frailty and restores broken loves.

At least Hemingway believed it did. He may be right. Though shallow endeavors hardly redeem the tragedies of life.

Courage can unlock the dead ends and narrow alleys of our own making. And these extravagant expressions of machismo might actually have the capacity to deepen attempts at doing courageous acts. Stand nobly. Enough to make a difference. Be true. For Hemingway it sustains hope and galvanizes resolve.

As he might say, "That's grace under pressure."

You need not be "Miss" or "Mrs." She was a tireless worker for women's rights and an articulate public spokesperson for issues of civil liberty. She altered English discourse, creating a stunning cultural language shift. Bravo, Ms. Michaels.

An eerie peek into the afterlife

Local author pens ninth book

Heart of the 'Hood By Felicia Dechter

Strange. Scary. Thought-provoking. Haunting. Thrilling. Mind blowing. Freaky. These are all ways to describe Roscoe Village resident Marcus Sakey's latest novel, "Afterlife," which takes us into the world of the unknown -- the afterlife -- which hopefully is not as he has depicted it. For those of us picturing Saint Peter sweetly waiting at the Pearly Gates, Sakey gives a glimpse of another possibility and frankly, the mere thought of what he has written scared the bejesus out of me.

The book, which takes place in Chicago and was released this week, is what Sakey calls, "a mind-bending thriller that explores our most haunting and fundamental question: What if death is just the beginning?" It's a relentless manhunt through two worlds -- life and death -- and also includes a love story.

Sakey will discuss and sign copies of "Afterlife," at 7 p.m. Friday, at the Book Cellar, 4736 N. Lincoln Ave. His thrillers have been nominated for more than 15 awards, named New York Times' Editor's Picks, and sold more than a million copies.

To research his work, Sakey has rappelled with SWAT teams, pub-crawled with bank robbers, dissected a human brain, chased pirate treasure, and learned to pick a deadbolt. He was the host and writer of the acclaimed TV show "Hidden City," on the Travel Channel, for which he was routinely pepper-sprayed and attacked by dogs.

When he's not busy working on the Great American Novel, Sakey spends his free time reading, sailing, playing video games, cooking, and hanging out with his wife and five-year-old daughter, "making up a lot of songs about poop."

Q: How would you describe Afterlife?

A: "Afterlife," is a love story and a thriller, a relentless manhunt across this world and the ones that follow. As always, my goal is to write stories that keep people up too late, that make them miss their train—and that hopefully linger well after they've closed the book.

Q: What made you decide to write something like this? It's quite different than what I've read of yours in the past.

A: This idea has been kicking around in my head for almost a decade. It started with a dream. In it, I was dead, but still in Chicago. I could move around, interact with the world, but there were no people. Everyone else was gone. It was okay—I wasn't scared. It wasn't a nightmare.

Until I woke up next to my wife, with whom I been together for 20 years, and imagined being in the same city as her, the same building, the same room, and not being able to see her, speak to her, touch her. Then it became a nightmare.

Q: Are you a believer in the afterlife?

A: I guess I have to go with Shakespeare, and say, "There are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in your philosophies..." I've got no special knowledge, and I don't claim to in this book. This is most definitely a nondenominational novel—there is nothing playing to any particular faith, or lack thereof.

I was trying to explore an idea that interested me. We all assume that once we die, we'll get the answers. Either you'll meet your vision of the divine, be judged, and go on to an afterlife, or there will be nothing at all, which is also an answer.

Roscoe Village resident Marcus Sakey

What caught me was imagining what it would be like if you died, and found yourself in a familiar world that played by new rules—and yet still offered no answers. In other words, this isn't purgatory. People aren't here to pay for their sins or right wrongs. They don't actually even know why they're here. And yet they have to choose who they will be, how they will behave, what matters to them, all without answers.

Sort of like life.

Q: "Afterlife" is going to be made into a movie? Can you give me details?

A: The book was picked up several months in advance of publication by Ron Howard and Brian Grazer for Imagine Entertainment. Obviously, I'm over the moon about that—those guys are literally two of the best in the business, and they have a tremendous history of adapting complicated material into dynamic, successful films.

While we're still in the early stages, one thing I'm really excited about is that I will be writing the script. This novel was so personal, and had such a specific version, that when we took it out I asked if I could try my hand at penning the adaptation. Ron and Brian loved the idea. Now the trick is not to screw it up.

Q: Was it difficult or easy for you to write such a thought-provoking and scary book? Any nightmares?

A: Honestly, this one was tough. A monster. I rewrote the first 100 pages nine times. Nine.

Which, now that it's over, I see as a good thing. The special books are the ones that scare you every day when you sit down at the computer. That's when you know you're pouring all you've got into something.

It's not fun, but I think it makes for the best work.

Nightmares? Not really. More like a constant pressure and sense of self-loathing. Part of the process.

Q: How many of your books have or will be movies?

A: All nine have been optioned for film at one time or another.

My last three books formed the Brilliance trilogy, which has sold well over a million copies to date, and was optioned for film in a seven-figure deal with Will Smith attached. We were six weeks from shooting when things fell apart; the rights for the books have since reverted to us, and we're in process on putting together the right partnership now.

My novel "Good People," was made into a film with James Franco and Kate Hudson. I wasn't involved in that, and while everyone had good intentions, I didn't care for the finished project.

That's part of the reason I wanted to be

Over-taxed homeowners should appeal higher 2016 real estate bills

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

Tens of thousands of North Side homeowners have recently received the second installment of their 2016 property tax bills, and experts say Chicago taxpayers will be required to pay an average increase of 10%.

The owner of a single-family home with an average sale price of $224,500 should have received a 2016 property tax bill of $4,000—an increase of $363. The increase will be reflected on the second installment of Cook County property tax bills payable Aug. 1.

The city of Chicago increased its property tax levy by $109 million this year as part of a planned four-year tax hike which began with the 2015 bills, payable in 2016. In addition, the state legislature approved a $272 million Chicago Public Schools [CPS] levy increase to pay for teachers' pensions which took effect this year.

Last year, the 2015 Chicago real estate tax bills reflected a $318 million boost to pay the pensions for police officer and firefighters. Another $45 million went to pay for CPS' construction projects.

Experts say property owners should battle back by appealing their property's 2016 assessments.

"In 2016, tens of thousands of property owners had success in filing tax assessment appeals with both the Cook County Assessor and the Board of Review," said Michael Griffin, a Chicago real estate tax appeal attorney.

Cook County Assessor Joe Berrios urges all property owners to file assessment appeals. Residential appeals filed at the assessor's office with the help of an attorney has a 53.9% initial success rate in 2016, while those filed without aid of a lawyer had a 55.3% success rate, said Tom Shaer, Cook County Deputy Assessor.

A whopping 370,000 residential appeals were filed in 2015, triple the amount filed in 2003. More than 80% of those who appealed to the Cook County Assessor or the Cook County Board of Review successfully won reductions—and many posted reduction victories at both levels.

An informal survey by The Home Front column revealed the following 2016 assessment reductions won by property owners battling assessment increases on Chicago's North Side:

- Lincoln Park. The owner of a 6-flat brick apartment building was elated when she won a 12.9% assessment reduction to $105,887 from $121,637. The reduction produced a 5% reduction in taxes—about $1,100—on the second installment 2016 property tax bill.

- Old Town. The owner of a brick Victorian 3-flat in the Old Town Historic District was happy when he won an 8.4% assessment reduction to $108,185 from $118,119. The reduction meant that the owner's taxes only rose about $24 on the second installment of the 2016 property tax bill.

- North Park. The owner of a single-family frame home on the Northwest Side was pleased when his attorney notified him that the property won a 7.5% assessment reduction to $52,201 from $56,201. The reduction meant an acceptable $142 property tax hike on the second installment of the 2016 bill.

Griffin advises that every property owner who believes they are over-assessed should file an appeal especially if the homeowners believe their house is worth less now than several years ago.

"It is now easier to appeal since all the data about other homes in your neighborhood is online," Griffin said. "You do not have to go to the library to look up the information or ask your neighbors about their assessment."

Property owners do not even have to go to the county offices to research comparable properties or file an appeal since homeowners can easily file their appeal online at the assessor's or Board of Review web sites.

The assessor's office reassesses the value of each of the 1.8 million parcels of property in Cook County every three years. The reassessment is on a rotating basis among three regions of Cook County—north suburbs, south suburbs, and the city of Chicago. The city will be reassessed again in 2018.

For residential properties, the assessor has determined the assessment by comparing each property to similar properties in a given area.

What can a property owner do to control real estate assessment increases and tax hikes? First check how your property's assessed valuation compares with similar properties in your neighborhood.

Visit the assessor's website: www.cookcountyassessor.com/, or call 312-443-7550 to find comparable properties.

Also check to see if the assessor has listed all the exemptions for which you are eligible, such as the Homeowners Exemption, Senior Citizen Exemption, and Senior Assessment Freeze Exemption. These exemptions can save you hundreds of dollars in taxes.

Two important grounds for a reduction are finding a significant error in the description of your property, or lack of uniformity, which means your home's assessment is not in line with the assessed valuation of other similar homes in your neighborhood, Griffin said.

The assessor also grants reductions based on the evaluations approach. Homeowners may file an appeal and submit a recent closing statement for their home and/or purchase prices of homes similar to yours to show that the assessed value is greater than 10% of the purchase price.

If you feel you have grounds for a reduction, file an appeal with the Cook County Assessor. The appeals can be filed in person at the assessor's office or at the office's website.

If an initial appeal at the assessor's office does not lower the assessed value, there are two other appeal options: the Cook County Board of Review (312-603-5542), and the Property Tax Appeals Board (217-785-6076) in Springfield. Or, call Michael Griffin, a tax assessment lawyer, at 312-943-1789.

Pair of columns to be installed to mark entry to Ravenswood Corridor

BY PETER VON BUOL

A pair of decorative columns more than 18' tall will soon be installed on the north side of Irving Park Rd. and Ravenswood to mark the beginning of the historic Ravenswood Industrial Corridor.

Funded by a private initiative and the city of Chicago's Greater Ravenswood Special Service Area #31, the columns will mark entry into the neighborhood, which begins at Irving Park Rd. and ends at Bryn Mawr Ave. Designed by the Ravenswood-based industrial design firm of Beyond Design, the columns are meant to evoke the area's unique history of manufacturing and mixed-use.

"Our goal with the towers is to put a marker in the land [and] give Ravenswood a real presence, an identity," said Michael Prince, president and founder of Beyond Design, which since 1994 has been located at 4515 N. Ravenswood.

While still home to manufacturers and fabricators, today the Ravenswood Industrial Corridor also includes office space, studios, retailers and commercial enterprises, restaurants, breweries and residential lofts. Also based in the corridor are social service agencies and the Lillstreet Art Center.

For more than half a century, Ravenswood's manufacturers included J.C. Deagan, a well-known manufacturer of percussive musical instruments including glockenspiels and marimbas. The factory closed after the company was sold to the Slingerland Drum Company in the 1970s. Today, the clock tower of the company's former headquarters remains a neighborhood landmark. According to information posted on the website of the Ravenswood Lake View Historical Association, the Deagan Company was known around the world for its tubular chimes and orchestral instruments. Locally, Deagan chimes can be heard in churches such as the Ravenswood Presbyterian Church and the Wolford Memorial Tower in Lincoln Park, near Waveland Golf Course. Its orchestral instruments can be heard in the pipe organs of the Chicago Theater, the Granada Theater and the Uptown Theater.

"Our goal with the [18'-tall] towers is to put a marker in the land [and] give Ravenswood a real presence, an identity," said Michael Prince.

City looks to use property tax increases to fund pensions

BY JOHN REVAK
Cook County Record

Residents of Chicago and its suburbs have once again seen their property taxes rise.

For 2016 taxes, which will be paid this year, Chicagoans can expect their bills to rise by 10%, while people living in the North and South Suburbs can expect increases of 6.5 and 3.9%, respectively.

The increases are part of the 2016 budget that are being phased in over a four-year period. The revenue will be directed toward paying down money the city owes to police and firefighter pension funds.

The city was unable to keep up with obligations to pension funds partly because of the 2008 recession and is now left with little choice but to make up for years of short payments.

“The economic downturn did affect the pension fund,” said Molly Poppe, a spokesperson with the city’s Office of Budget and Management. “The city cannot go in and say your benefit is decreased by this amount.”

The four-year increase is set to expire in 2019. However, this is by no means the end of high property taxes for North Siders, as a period of ARC funding will follow on its heels.

ARC funding, or Actuarially Required Contributions, entails payments from the city to the pension funds while the city sets aside enough money to make future payments.

As opposed to predetermined fixed payments under the current four-year plan, payments will be determined year to year. The city’s current ARC plan runs through 2055, by which time it expects to have pensions 90% funded, according to the city’s annual financial analysis blog.

Whether or not these taxes will affect the real estate market in Chicago is hard to say, but the fact that values are increasing despite the tax increases is a positive sign.

“You have seen the values of property rebound after the recession,” Poppe said. “Property values have increased, and that is a sign of an improving economy.”

Long time Lakeview volunteer dies

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Services were held July 12 in Milwaukee for longtime Lake View Citizens Council and anti-crime activist Lorraine Hoffmann. She grew ill at her home July 4, never regained consciousness and died Tuesday, July 11. She was 74.

After more than 20 years in Lakeview, Hoffmann returned to Milwaukee in 1999 to take over the Harri Hoffmann shoe polish and leather goods business founded by her father in the late 1930s.

She also served on the boards of the Milwaukee Museum of Beer and Brewing, Goethe House, the Wisconsin Institute of Torah Studies, Orthodox Union of America, the Milwaukee School of Engineering and the Holocaust Education Resource Center.

Hoffmann also chaired Milwaukee’s Lake Park Synagogue.

Here in Chicago, Hoffmann spearheaded campaigns against problem bars in the “New Town” area and worked closely with the Town Hall Police District Steering Committee. No wild eyed radical, the grass roots community organization watched over the transformation of Lakeview, including the area around Wrigley Field

Among other things, recalled retired district commander Emil Geise, “Lorraine organized the district’s annual Christmas party where all children who attended received a gift. She also conceived “Operation Mitten,” a program where police officers gave gloves to needy children at schools and on the streets during the cold winter months. “She told us the mittens came from a “secret santa” in Wisconsin.”

She was twice elected president of the LVCC – first in 1975-76 and again in 1992-1994.

Before returning to Milwaukee to take over the family business, Hoffmann was an assistant vice president at Merrill Lynch.

New intercultural fest coming in October

Over 30 cultural centers and heritage museums will host programs across city

As a leading cultural stakeholder in a city marred with the label “most segregated city in America,” the Chicago Cultural Alliance (CCA) has taken a step towards encouraging locals to connect in a new and meaningful way – through cultural heritage.

This October the CCA will launch Inherit Chicago, the city’s first intercultural festival that brings together over 30 cultural centers and heritage museums in collaboration to produce programming in 20 neighborhoods.

Their goal is to have a wide, intergenerational cross-section of Chicagoans visit a neighborhood and experience a cultural exchange they had little knowledge of before. Inherit Chicago will offer a cultural journey through arts, conversation, and food in a month-long, multi-event festival happening in collaboration with 30 neighborhood based heritage museums and cultural centers.

The festival kicks off with “World Dumpling Fest” an opening celebration, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Oct. 7, at Millennium Park Chase South Promenade that features heritage-based performance artists and of course, dumplings. World Dumpling Fest will highlight chef-created dumplings from neighborhood-based ethnic restaurants.

[At the festival] “We want to put Chicagoans in the driver seat of experiencing all of the culture, food, performance, art that the neighborhoods have to offer,” said Emily Reusswig, Executive Director at the CCA. “When you experience culture, you not only gain an understanding of that community, but you gain a better understanding of yourself [and allows] Chicagoans to embrace our collective future.”

more shoes will fall.

WHEREAS: Gold Coast resident Tom Miner has played a key role bringing foreign investment to Chicago. On his recent 90th birthday he was saluted by the Chicago City Council for strengthening Chicago's global profile.

QUITE CONTRARY: Are some Lincoln Park ladies all hot and sweaty over a new local lawn and garden service that employs college graduate students who resemble bronze Greek gods? Apparently word has gotten out that garden services are available to the needs of the ladies especially after husbands head for the office. Workers, we are told, prefer cash. And lots of ice tea.

Gibson's Team salute birthday girl, their own Kathy O'Malley Piconne.

CAKES FOR ALL MY FRIENDS: Kathy O'Malley Piconne, beloved at her Gibson's post, received cheers in the kitchen from her crew at the steakhouse on her birthday last week.

GAUGUIN AT AIC: "Gauguin as Alchemist" now on exhibit through Sept. 10. An intense look at the artist Paul Gauguin, a stunning Post-Impressionist, who stretched the borders of art visually and culturally. One of the great exhibitions here in Chicago this Summer. Not to be missed.

PIMM'S POP: Check out Town & Country magazine, it's true, there is now a new popsicle on the market from Britain flavored with Pimm's, that intoxicating flavor blend of lemonade, cucumber, strawberries and mint. Yes, it does have alcohol, 4.9%. So cooling on a summer day.

ALL ABOARD: On a recent Saturday Metra train bound for Lake Forest, two well-dressed gents from the Gold Coast broke out the chilled Moet and Chandon on the journey, sharing it with those around them. Two bottles were consumed before pulling into the L.F. station. Just like the Orient Express.

WEDDING TALES: Chicago Blues vocalist Windy Lawlor is singing loud and happy after wedding chef Dave Augustine on the landscape of the Prairie under the blue skies in Normal, IL. And Chicago fitness maven Laura Meyer and Rob Newman gathered loved ones on the Prairie further south, in Sandwich, IL, where they were wed. Chicago attorneys Jacqueline Beth Carroll and Louis Bernstein exchanged vows recently at Spiaggia, and last month Chicago food critic Amanda Puck and architect Billy Rairigh said their "I Dos" in New York, so much in love.

OY! OY!: Who's the blonde heiress with a way for social networking and philanthropy who is seriously considering converting to Judaism? She says she has fallen in love with its faith and with its courage. Chicago's social types will be surprised. She lights up a room like a menorah when she enters. Mazel tov!

THE SHOW MUST... GO ON: Chicago labor attorney (you've seen him on WTTW talk shows) Tom Geoghegan (Harvard Law) is getting set to debut a new play called "Monticello." He has written a comedy of sorts about the time that Thomas Jefferson met Edgar Allen Poe (then a young student) for dinner. It's a work that lets Jefferson have his say. Much of it is about the politics of "resistance" (timely). It will be produced by Aurora Theater Works four times a week, Aug. 3 to Aug. 27 at the theater at 1625 W. Diversey, just next to St. Bonaventure Oratory. If you are disgruntled with the state of national affairs, you need to see this. Parking is free. Tickets $20.

GONE AND GONE: Chicago mixologist Brad Bolt (formerly of Del Toro) and his partners have announced that Bar De Ville, 1958 W. Huron, near Damen, will be serving its last cocktail on July 29, but say they will open up soon in a new location. The hipster bar is a West Town neighborhood legend. Is hipster life disappearing without anyone noticing?

WHO'S WHERE: Arron Miller and Rob Sabetto in Los Angeles at Outfest, viewing "The Death and Life of Marsha P. Johnson"... Jon Piechowski and Macarena Bellota soaking up history at Mount Vernon in the footsteps of the first president... Hector Gustavo Cardenas at the Standard Spa in Miami Beach... Pa- gy young men who cashed in at the bar at RL/ Ralph Lauren Bar and Grill when they began to flirt with a well-known Chicago attorney with a house on a posh street? His movie star looks have always made him a favorite, even through two divorces from ladies. A generous tipper, he is popular and has been known to have "dated" some of the local restaurants staffs. He left with a new friend on each arm announcing he had vintage Champagne at home. And nosey neighbors to annoy.

MADAME JUSTICE: Ruth Bader Ginsberg will be on the stage of the Auditorium Theater on Sept. 11 in a "One Woman Conversation" with Judge Claire Ann Williams. Make plans now.

SERIAL MASS: Tonight at 7 p.m., a reception at Uncharted Books, 2620 N. Milwaukee, for exhibition of archival prints by Charlie Newman of his epic poem "Serial Mass." Not to be missed. Newman will be reading his work and signing the illustrative art work from it.

GOLD HUGO: Cinema/Chicago will present Jane Fonda

involved this time around. It's easy to be the writer complaining on the sidelines—now that I'm in the game, I have to do better.

Q: What's next for you?

A: I'm working on the screenplay for "Afterlife." Meanwhile,

I'm developing my next book. It's another high-concept thriller. I love playing in this expanded canvas—straight crime fiction is great, and there are some terrific writers working in the field, but for me, it's been enormous fun to stretch the borders.

Police Beat....

Robberies, pepper-spraying reported in Boystown mayhem

At least two robberies and a pepper-spraying were reported along the Halsted St. Boystown bar strip early Saturday.

The first robbery was reported around 4:30 a.m. when six offenders stopped a man on the sidewalk near 730 W. Roscoe and forcibly searched him for valuables. They took his cellphone and wallet, then fled southbound on Halsted, the victim said.

He described the muggers only as a group of black men, one of whom wore a red shirt.

While police were driving that man around Boystown on a search for the robbers, they got flagged down by another robbery victim nearby.

Incredibly, as police were working with the two victims at Roscoe and Halsted, a man was pepper-sprayed by another man while cops looked on.

Only the pepper-spray offender was arrested.

Lincoln Park hoops star charged in North Side robbery spree

Chatham resident Bryce McGill, 18, graduated from Lincoln Park High School on June 11. A standout basketball player, his lawyer claims he earned a full ride to the Univ. of North Carolina starting this fall his lawyer said.

Only UNC spokesperson Kate Luck said Monday morning that, "We have no record of an applicant or enrollee by the name of Bryce McGill at UNC-Chapel Hill."

McGill is now accused of pulling off a series of robberies across Lakeview and Lincoln Park in July. Detectives are still looking to connect him to a sixth case, according to a source.

McGill was arrested outside of Wrigley Field early Friday, about 90 minutes after he and another man battered a 24-year-old woman and stole her phone in the 500 block of W. Oakdale, prosecutors said.

Officers saw McGill walking with two backpacks near the Addison Red Line CTA station around 1:20 a.m. and recognized him as a suspect in a previous robbery, according to a source.

Cops screeched through 90/9 at Addison and Wilton—slamming a parked car in the effort—and gave chase. McGill was tased and taken into custody near the Harry Carey statue at Wrigley Field's bleacher entrance.

Inside his backpacks, officers later found a phone belonging to the woman who had been mugged earlier that night as well as proceeds taken in other muggings, according to police.

Prosecutors charged McGill with five felony counts of robbery, one felony count of robbery while indicating the presence of a firearm and one count each of reckless conduct, resisting police, and theft of lost or mislaid property.

McGill's attorney told no-nonsense

Judge Peggy Chiampas about the UNC scholarship during a bond hearing. "Young man, that was gold in your hands," Chiampas said before setting bail at $150,000 and taking a break to clear her head.

She will no doubt be surprised to hear this may not be true.

McGill is accused of taking part in a rash of robberies across Southeast Lakeview and nearby Lincoln Park since July 5. Among the cases that investigators considered to be connected to the pattern are:

- 11:50 p.m. on Wednesday, July 5, near Clark and Arlington
- 1:05 a.m. on Thursday, July 6, in the 700 block of W. Briar
- 1:00 a.m. on Sunday, July 9, in the 600 block of W.t Deming
- 1:50 a.m. on Sunday, July 9, in the 500 block of W. Briar

One of the two offenders in each case was consistently described by victims as being about 6'2" tall and decked out in track suits. The second offender remains at large.

Victim refuses to press charges in alleged Pride Parade robbery

Several witnesses confirmed they saw him rob a man near the Belmont Red Line CTA. Cops chased him down. And the victim identified him too.

But there will be no robbery charges for the man who allegedly brandished a knife in an armed robbery around 3:30 p.m. June 25 while the Chicago Pride Parade was still marching two blocks away.

After receiving his stolen chains back from police, the 22-year-old victim told police that he no longer wanted to press charges against Germaine Hampton.

Officers had chased Hampton after several witnesses alerted them to the robbery. A sergeant eventually captured him in the 3100 block of N. Kenmore after deploying a Taser to bring the 23-year-old under control, a police report says.

A custodial search turned up a small blue baggie containing chunks of Xanax that Hampton claimed were prescribed for him.

Lacking a prescription, Hampton—who lists a home address in the 1100 block of W. Barry—was charged with possession of a controlled substance. But, of course, not robbery.

Police say he is an admitted Black P Stones gang member. He previously served time for burglary and aggravated unlawful use of a weapon, according to state records.

Catalytic converter thieves hitting North Side cars hard

Area North detectives are warning North Side residents about a rash of catalytic converter thefts over the past three weeks.

Striking mainly between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., the thieves have sawn converters off of at least 11 vehicles since June 30, the alert said. Cops offered no descriptions of the offenders.

Typically, thieves use a battery-operated saw to cut converters from the bottoms of targeted vehicles in quick, but noisy strikes.

Theft and resale of the pollution control devices—which contain precious metals—is an attractive career path for some Chicagoans. Replacement of the part will cost victims about $1,800. Thieves typically make about $150 per part.

Detectives listed the following dates, times, and locations of recent catalytic converter thefts:

- 3800 block of N. Bernard St. from 8 p.m. on July 11 to 7:30 a.m. on July 12.
- 5400 block of N. Bernard St. from 10 p.m. on July 11 to 4:20 p.m. on July 12.
- 5000 block of N. Drake Ave. on July 12, at 8 a.m.
- 3600 Block of W. Leland Avenue from 9 p.m. on July 11 to 1 p.m. on July 15.
- 4300 block of N. Winchester between June 30– July 1 from 12 p.m.-6:45 a.m.
- 1500 block of W. School between July 5-6 from 5:25 p.m.-7 a.m.
- 2600 block of N. Bosworth between July 5-6 from 5 p.m. -7 a.m.
- 1000 block of W. School on July 6 at 8 a.m.
- 4700 block of N. Malden between July 6-7, from 10 p.m. – 7:00 a.m.
- 3400 block of N. Claremont on July 8 at 4 a.m.
- 4100 block of N. Hermitage between July 6-7 from 12:15 a.m. – 7:00 a.m.
- 1700 block of W. School on July 9 at 5 a.m.
- 1600 block of W. Cornelia between July 8-9 from 11 p.m. – 7:00 a.m.
- 500 block W. Oakdale on Jul 10, 2017 from 12 a.m. – 1 p.m.
- 2300 block of W. Cornelia on July 10 at 1:30 p.m.

Anyone with information about the latest thefts is asked to call detectives at 312-744-8263.

POLICE BEAT from p. 8

In 2015, police caught five Traveling Vice Lord gang members after they bailed out of a crashed minivan that contained 24 stolen catalytic converters near Addison and Lincoln.

Infamously, prosecutors charged each of the men with one count of theft of lost or mislaid property.

Meet the only guy charged with possessing illegal fireworks in Chicago this year

Christian Sewell may be the unluckiest man in Chicago.

In a city so laden with the snaps, cracks and pops of pyrotechnics, that the police department blames fireworks for messing up its gun-fire-locating technology, 30-year-old Sewell of the South Deering neighborhood was the only person to be arrested for possessing fireworks in the entire city on the Independence Day weekend.

In fact, Sewell is the first person to be charged with possessing fireworks in Chicago since Nov. 3, 2016.

Around 9:30 p.m. on July 3, cops were called to the Dearborn Homes CHA facility at 2910 S. Dearborn where a security guard was detaining Sewell for allegedly selling fireworks on the premises.

Police inventoried a “black bag of miscellaneous fireworks” and prosecutors charged Sewell with one misdemeanor count of possession of fireworks.

He was released on a $1,500 bond and he must be wondering where the whole thing went wrong.

Grand Jury indicts union official for extorting cash payments

A high-ranking official in a Chicago-area labor union threatened a local business with economic loss if it didn't pay him quarterly cash payments, according to a federal indictment last week.

John T. Coli, Sr., used the threat of economic harm to extort quarterly payments of $25,000 from a local company, according to the indictment. The attempted extortion occurred from Oct. 2016 to April 2017, while Coli served as President of Teamsters Joint Council 25, a labor organization that represents more than 100,000 workers in the Chicago area and northwest Indiana.

The indictment charges Coli, 57, of Chicago, with one count of attempted extortion and five counts of demanding and accepting a prohibited payment as a union official. The indictment seeks forfeiture of Coli of at least $100,000.

According to the charges, Coli accepted a $25,000 cash payment on July 7, 2016; two cash payments totaling $25,000 on Oct. 4, 2016, and Nov. 29, 2016; and $25,000 cash payments on Dec. 22, 2016, and April 4, 2017. The indictment does not identify the individual who made the payments nor the company Coli allegedly extorted.

Woman who tossed newborn from 8th floor gets probation; State drops all murder charges

A woman accused of throwing her newborn baby from an 8th-floor apartment window in Uptown has been sentenced to four years probation.

Mubashra Uddin has been charged with four counts of murder for allegedly killing the baby girl moments after giving birth in her family's apartment.

But prosecutors agreed to drop three of those charges and then reduced the fourth murder count to involuntary manslaughter of a family member. Judge Carol M. Howard handed down a sentence of probation on July 6.

Uddin was 19 when she gave birth around 11:20 p.m. on Nov. 11, 2015, in a bedroom of an apartment she shared with her parents and sister. Police said they recovered scissors that Uddin used to cut the umbilical cord after giving birth in the same bed where her 11-year-old sister was sleeping.

Fearing that her strict parents were about to discover the pregnancy that she had kept secret from them, Uddin dropped the newborn headfirst out of her 8th-floor bedroom window in the 800 block of W. Eastwood.

The girl was discovered about 30 minutes later lying in some grass by a passer-by. One hour later, she succumbed to her injuries, which included skull fractures, a broken spine, multiple broken bones, and internal injuries, prosecutors said.

Friends rallied around Uddin for the moment of her arrest, blaming her actions on the young woman's upbringing in a strict Muslim family.

At Uddin's bail hearing, her boyfriend's mother told DNAInfo “No one is mad or upset [at Uddin] because we all know the household that she's coming from.”

“With all her family has put her through, I'm surprised she didn't jump out of the window herself,” the mother said to the Tribune.

Lakeview man charged with third rape

Already accused of two rapes, a Lakeview man is now charged with a third sexual assault. The good news, if there is any, is that a judge has finally decided that the guy shouldn't be on electronic monitoring anymore.

Robert W. Walters, 44, was arrested last week at his apartment in the 600 block of W. Diversey after investigators connected him to a rape that he allegedly committed last summer while he was already under investigation for two other sexual assaults.

Walters is now charged with one more count of criminal sexual assault and he's been ordered held without bail. He had been on electronic monitoring, even after being charged with his second sexual attack last winter.

The new charge came after

a 27-year-old woman identified Walters in a photo array as the man who brought her to his residence against her will and sexually assaulted her by force on July 16, 2016, prosecutors said.

At the time, Walters was already under investigation for two other rape allegations that police said were "of a similar nature."

One month after last July's attack, Walters was charged with raping an intoxicated 21-year-old woman that he picked up outside the old Castle Nightclub at 632 N.

Dearborn in 2013.

A DNA sample from that attack had finally been tested and pointed to Walters, prosecutors said.

The woman told police that Walters took her to his apartment on Diversey and sexually assaulted her as she drifted in and out of consciousness, according to charging papers.

Walters was initially held on $5 million bail, but Judge Carol M. Howard would later cut that to $200,000.

In Nov. 2016 Walters was charged with a second sexual assault that involved a 26-year-old woman that he met on OkCupid. Walters and the woman met in Wrigleyville around Christmastime 2014, according to prosecutors.

The woman later told police that she was uncomfortable with Walters' behavior during the date, but she agreed to get into his car on the premise of going to another bar. Instead, Walters drove her to his apartment building and pulled her into his unit where he forcibly raped her, prosecutors said.

More than a year later, testing finally confirmed that Walters' DNA was found on the victim, prosecutors said.

When Walters showed up in court for his second rape case, Judge Maria Kuriakos Ciesil set bail at just $75,000. Walters went free on electronic monitoring.

Child luring in Lincoln Park

Police are looking for a man who tried to lure a 13-year-old girl into his car near the DePaul Univ. campus in Lincoln Park July 12.

The girl was walking eastbound in the 1300 block of W. Fullerton when the man drove up in an older model gold or brown 2-door sedan around 7:10 p.m., police said.

He then attempted to lure the girl into his car, but she ignored him and notified police.

The suspect is a 22-30 year old Hispanic man with a muscular build and short black hair that is curly on top and close-cropped on the sides. He had sideburns and a short beard or goatee, police said. Tattoos were visible on his right shoulder and his right ear may be pierced.

If you have any information about the case, contact Area Central detectives at (312) 747-8380.

lic to view maps of the Mayor's proposal on the North Branch Manufacturing District. The Mayor's goal in hosting them in six locations at the same time was either for convenience sake or to divide and conquer. In fact, laughter broke out in the meeting when the DPD spokesmen said there was no urgency to seal the deal quickly.

"People shouldn't have to guess about these things," said Ald. Smith. We're talking about 750 acres, which is the most significant amount of land to become available in my 30 years here. I believe our constituents deserve better."

Erma Tranter, former director of the Friends of the Parks advocacy group agreed.

"This is a three-mile stretch along the river," Tranter said. "We won't have another opportunity like this for another hundred years. Developers aren't going to do that (put in a park). This is the city's responsibility."

"Small half-acre parks aren't going to serve the community's needs," she said.

Vice President of External Relations.

A recent survey by the Pew Research Center shows that a majority of adults in the U.S. [54%] have gone online to look for job opportunities, and 45% of adults have applied for a job online. In addition, among Americans who have looked for work in the last two years, 79% utilized online resources in their most recent job search and 34% say these online resources were the most important tool available to them. So most job-seeking youths today are more likely to turn to the Internet during an employment search than the generation prior who may have depended more on personal or professional networks.

Present at the forum were Fabian Elliott, CEO and Founder of Black Tech Mecca, a Chicago-based think tank whose goal is to make technology accessible in black communities; Alya Adamany Woods, ChicagoNEXT Executive Director; Danielle DuMerer, Acting Commissioner of the Chicago Dept. of Innovation and Technology, as well as members of ChicagoNext, CLARITY Partners, Comcast NBCUniversal, Ellis Consulting and Tristan & Cervantes were also in attendance.

Rollout of Xfinity Mobile service underway

Comcast announced that Xfinity Mobile, a new wireless service designed for the way people now use their phones, is beginning to roll out in Chicago area Xfinity Stores, including the three in the city – in Lakeview

Tranter added that the nearest park of any size is at the lakefront. "To be so short-sighted as not to see this as a miracle is astonishing."

When a handful of annoyed residents peppered the DPD staffers with questions about parks they said they were only taking questions about zoning. That parks were not the meeting's topic.

As for the zoning, some of it will change back to historical zoning classifications and all areas will be able to receive development bonuses to build to downtown zoning levels, or mixed use towers.

One speaker complained that the City was asking people to accept the deal on "faith" with no basic standards set. "The bottom line is 'trust me,' and that has never worked in the city and it doesn't work now."

Others complained that the city held simultaneous meetings on the future of the North Branch.

Monroe and Espinoza explained that meetings had to be held in every ward impacted by the project.

at 3128 N. Ashland Ave. and in Lincoln Park at 1255 W. North Ave and 901 W. Weed.

These are among the first Xfinity Stores in the Midwest to sell the service.

Each customer receives 100 MB of shared data across all lines on the account to get them started, and the freedom to choose from two straightforward data options: "Unlimited" at $45 per month per line on up to five lines with no usage limits; or "By the Gig" which offers $12 per GB of shared cellular data across all lines on an account each month.

"We're excited to be one of the first areas of the country to unveil Xfinity Mobile in our [retail stores]," said John Crowley, a senior vice president at Comcast. "Retail is a great way for us to demonstrate how [this service] integrates with our other Xfinity products. Our goal is to ensure [customers] leave knowing a lot more about our capabilities and the benefits of being [our] customer."

Available to all Xfinity Internet customers, the service is designed to save customers money with up to five lines included, unlimited nationwide talk and text, and no line access fees.

Using their app, customers can "switch and save" on their data plan – changing from "By the Gig" to "Unlimited" data options at any time during their billing cycle for no additional cost and then switching back to "By the Gig" at the beginning of the next billing cycle. In addition, families can mix-and-match on an account so that each individual has the data option that makes sense for them.
