This is the end for United Christian Church in Lincoln Park

Is there a prayer for the death of a church? They may need one now that a demolition permit is imminent for the United Christian Church property at 1055 W. Diversey Pkwy., as a new construction permit has been issued for the property.

On Sept. 4, the City of Chicago issued a permit to erect a five-story, 24-unit residential building on the site. The estimated cost of construction is $4.5 million.

Located just west of the intersection with N. Sheffield Ave. on the northern edge of Lincoln Park, the project will be replacing the existing church building.

The proposal is being led by developer Contemporary Concepts with Studio Dwell Architects working on its design.

Originally built in 1902, the two-story church spans across most of the roughly 10,000 square foot site.

large ornate stained glass windows on its front and above its entry doors and half-moon side windows. The building also has a small rear offshoot connecting to the existing alley, however the church will be relocating and vacating the space.

Because of this, Contemporary

Concepts plans on demolishing the structure and replacing it with the new five-story building. Occupying the majority of the site aside from a slim setback on its east side, the ground floor will include multiple units, an entry

Lane Tech edges TF South 21-20 in thriller

BY JACK LYDON

The plodding lackluster contest became an unlikely thriller with three quick touchdowns, a made two-pointer and a missed two-pointer all in the final three minutes of the game. The Lane Tech Champions (1-1, 0-0) traveled to Lansing, IL, to take on the Thornton Fractional South Red Wolves and survive a late comeback by the Red Wolves to win 21-20 on Sept. 6.

Until the final three minutes, this game was not football at its finest. Both teams were plagued by mis-queues, injuries and penalties, and the occasional dustup too. The ineptitude both squads displayed gave way to clutch plays at the end.

Down 14-6 late in the game, there was no quit in TF South. With three minutes left, Red Wolves' senior quarterback Nicholas Ford launched a deep ball up the far sideline. Sophomore wide receiver Amari Dukes caught it in stride for a 63-yard touchdown to bring the Wolves to within two points.

What looked like an eventual Lane win suddenly was one play away from a tie.

With the game on the line, Ford found his other wide receiver, David Nkwogo, at the back of the end zone for the two-point conversion to tie the game.

The Lane sideline was stunned. Perhaps the TF South sideline was a little stunned too but cheered and danced all the same.

With 2:35 left on the clock, Lane Tech fielded South's kick-off and returned it to their own 33-yard line with time to take the lead.

This is not the three yards and a cloud of dust Lane Tech Champions of recent years. On the very next play, senior quarterback Noah Mayra took the shotgun snap and quick rifled a strike down the middle to junior wide-out (and baseball player) Alex Lagges. Lagges shook a couple tackles and raced up the sideline for the go-ahead score. The PAT made it 21-14 Lane.

"This year we have some pretty good skill [players]. That was just a double post to the middle of the field and [Lagges] took it [67 yards] for a touchdown," Lane Tech head coach Dedrick DeWalt said.

"I had the post on that," Lagges said of his winning touchdown after the game. "I just trusted that my quarterback Noah [Mayra] was going to see it, read it. That's what he did. That's what we do. Great play call by my coach. He

Boxing coach to retire after 51 years at Hamlin Park

To celebrate Bill Heglin's 51-year career as a Boxing Coach, on Sept. 5, top officers of the Chicago Park District [CPD] gathered at Hamlin Park, 3035 N. Hoyle Ave., to present Coach Heglin with an honorary plaque and endearing reflections on his career.

The event was followed by 12 boxing matches, the first of four free, outdoor boxing events this month.

Coach Heglin has served as the Hamlin Park Boxing Coach since 1973. Within the walls of the Hamlin Park fieldhouse, he coached 1996 Olympian and former World Champion David Diaz, former Heavyweight Titleholder Fres Oquendo, and many others to multiple amateur and professional titles and careers. Coach Heglin is an inductee to the Illinois Boxing Hall of Fame and the Golden Gloves Hall of Fame for his work as a coach. His last day will be September 30, 2024.

"Chicago Park District staff members have the opportunity to change lives each day they arrive to work," said CPD CEO Rosa Escareño. "It's an honor to celebrate Coach Heglin's steadfast leadership and unwavering commitment to the personal and athletic development of his pupils during his tenure with the Chicago Park District."

The Celebration of Heglin's career included comments from former pupils and Angel Ocasio, Boxing Program and Event Coordinator. Escareño, and Heglin also spoke. Immediately following the ceremony, 24 boxers ages 8 to 25, participated in 12 bouts at the park's outdoor ring.

The CPD offers instruction at 22 boxing gyms at neighborhood parks citywide. Those of any skill level are encouraged to register for a fall boxing program to reap the benefits of sportsmanship, routine cardiovascular workouts, and expert instruction. Registration is available in person at parks with a boxing gym, and online.

My life with Skittles

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Some confectionary alternate universe has come over me. I just discovered a fabulous treat filled with great fruity flavor. I don't know where I've been, but I'd never heard of them before I bought a bag from a mom from Ecuador and her children selling candy to the tourists on Fulton St. in front of Duck Duck Goat.

There went my emergency cab cash after my little purchase. I stashed the packet of sweets in my blazer pocket. Hours later, while in the midst of a sugar craving, I went in search of them and broke open the bag.

My life with "Skittles" was born.

I poured the Skittles out on my computer desk, and noted they're not much bigger than some of the pills I take. But no Lisinopril or Warfarin packs such a flavorful punch.

This was no nostalgic flavor linking me back to childhood, it was all new. Were Skittles something out of reach for Baby Boomers like me?

This was not in our inventory back in 1959 when I sold candy for the missions in our third grade classroom, for Sister Francis Xavier Cabrini, at Visitation School. Skittles are pure post-Space age candy, now popping open all my taste buds. (Skittles were born in the UK in 1974, and didn't make their way across the pond until 1979.)

These tiny pellets, I thought, even made me see more clearly ... the miracle of vision. Better than my contact lenses.

But, alas, it was just one small packet. Those fruity nuggets didn't go very far. I will be adding these items to my shopping list ahead of the fresh orange juice and the skim milk.

Being Irish, I was obsessed with trying to discover the larger cosmic reasoning behind my purchase of these fruity pellets. What drove me to this candy? Was it just because I had loose cash in my pocket? Was it that I had skipped dessert following supper? Was it the emotional response to the adorable children peddling their sweet wares on heat-heavy Fulton St.?

Was it the hustle and bustle of Fulton St. itself, an urban landscape bumper to bumper with chic, high-end restaurants?

Or could it have been the few glasses of ice cold Spanish white wine that I had consumed with my dinner entrée of handmade noodles and goat shoulder, and steamed boa buns with BBQ smoked pork. I needed to sort things out, cogitate and finish off my Skittles.

In the end my discovery of Skittles revealed the symbolic coming together of all those possibilities. I was eating dinner in a very new environment for me on Fulton. Eating in a new exotic restaurant, elegant food of real excellence. Savoring the wine, happy to have a moment on the street that on a small scale might make this immigrant family feel more welcome in a huge city. There was a very pleasant dynamic unfolding. Cheerful people. Happy folk out on a late Sunday summer night.

The taste and flavor of Skittles will always remind me of that pleasant Chicago moment of joy. With special Chicago thanks to candyman Bill Wrigley.

Veteran prosecutor sues Kim Foxx, claiming she was demoted and fired for being 53 and White

BY CWBCHICAGO

A veteran Cook County prosecutor is suing Cook County State's Attorney Kim Foxx and the county itself, alleging that Foxx wrongly removed her as head of the Conviction Integrity Unit [CIU] and later fired her based on her race and age.

Nancy Adduci, who is White, claims she was wrongly replaced as head of the office's CIU by a young attorney with little experience and a "blatantly obvious conflict of interest" who is Black: Michelle Mbekeani.

Mbekeani's appointment raised eyebrows because she appeared to operate an outside organization that offered to, for a fee, connect inmates with attorneys interested in handling their innocence claims.

In late Dec. 2023, two months after being removed as head of the CIU, Adduci was ordered to come into the office while on vacation to be fired, according to the lawsuit. She was 53 years old and 22 months short of retirement eligibility.

Decades of experience

Adduci joined the office in 1996, rose to supervisory positions in its criminal division, and handled hundreds of cases, including capital cases, before Illinois eliminated the death penalty, the lawsuit states. She became supervisor of the CIU, which investigates wrongful conviction claims, in 2014, under Foxx's predecessor. According to the lawsuit, Foxx promoted Adduci to director of the unit in 2019.

Adduci "personally conducted scores of investigations resulting in post-conviction relief in over 200 criminal cases," the lawsuit states. In 2021, she received a fellowship with the American College of Trial Lawyers, an honor earned by only 1% of attorneys, the lawsuit stated.

Demoted

But, in Oct. 2023, she was called into a meeting with Foxx's two top assistants. They told her she would be removed as head of the CIU because, the lawsuit claims, Foxx "wanted someone in the position who was 'more representative of the community.'"

During the meeting, Foxx's top assistant allegedly told her that the decision "had nothing to do with" her job performance.

"Ms. Adduci was shocked that she was not sufficiently 'representative of the community,' after serving almost three decades in the [Cook County State's Attorney's Office], living in Cook County, getting married in Cook County, and sending her kids to public school in Cook County," the lawsuit states.

Around Thanksgiving last year, Foxx's top assistant revealed to Adduci that her replacement at CIU would be "a much younger black [assistant state's attorney] who had been serving as Foxx's policy advisor on matters of criminal justice reform and had no practical criminal experience," said the lawsuit.

Kim Foxx

Despite demoting her and cutting her pay, Foxx's top assistant asked Adduci to keep performing the same duties, effectively acting as the CIU's director, she alleges.

Adduci allegedly asked the office's human resources division about her rights and for help filing a discrimination complaint.

Fired

Adduci was on vacation on Dec. 27, 2023, when she was "summarily ordered" to appear at the state's attorney executive offices in the Loop the next day, according to the suit. Adduci allegedly reminded the office that she was on vacation and, in addition, was scheduled to attend her friend's funeral the next day.

"Ms. Adduci was told that her appearance was needed in person as soon as the funeral had concluded," the lawsuit states.

On Dec. 29, she went to the executive offices and was fired by Foxx's chief of staff, who, via video conference, "read a prepared script from the comfort of her own home," the lawsuit states. Adduci claims she didn't receive a reason for her dismissal.

The lawsuit accuses Foxx of discriminating against Adduci because of her age and race and retaliating against her for opposing those actions.

A separate lawsuit

Federal court records show that Adduci, the state's attorney's office, and others were named in a wrongful conviction lawsuit filed on Dec. 29, 2023, the same day Adduci states she was fired.

In that lawsuit, Carl Reed, who spent 19 years in prison before his conviction was vacated in May 2023, seeks compensation from the city of Chicago, Chicago police officers, the Cook County State's Attorney's Office, and Adduci.

In a lengthy filing, Reed's attorney claims Adduci, relying on information provided by Chicago cops, wrote "a purported 'confession' that... directly contradicted the physical evidence at the scene." It also states that Reed never learned to read and couldn't have read the confession.

Adduci's lawsuit indicates that she would have been the director of the CIU when the state's attorney's office agreed to vacate Reed's conviction.

Whether Reed's lawsuit had anything to do with Adduci's dismissal is unknown.

A spokesperson for the Cook County State's Attorney's Office said on Sept. 3 that they could not comment on pending litigation or personnel matters.

Mbekiani resigned from the state's attorney's office in June. Earlier in the year, Cook County Judge Michael McHale barred her from ever practicing in his courtroom after he concluded that she lied to him about whether she operated a business designed to link convicts to attorneys for a fee.

The Cook County Record was the first to report on Adduci's lawsuit.

Race to Wrigley is Saturday

Runners will race through the Lakeview neighborhood before entering Wrigley Field and will cross the finish line just steps away from the Wrigley Field Marquee. Runners will have a chance to run on the warning track on the field as a part of the race course.

Runners are also able to participate in the race virtually.

Runners can map out a 5K course of your own and complete the race. The registration fee for the in-person race is $50 and $30 for children ages 10 and under.

Proceeds from the race benefit Cubs Charities' mission to mobilize the power of sport to champion youth, families, and communities. Personal fundraising will also directly help children and adolescents in need of behavioral health care services at Advocate Children's Hospital.

New commission settlement creates big changes for real estate pros

The Home Front

by Don DeBat

Following court litigation, real estate brokers in Chicago and across the nation are scrambling to decipher a new playbook for earning brokerage commissions.

Resolving claims over broker commissions, the Chicago-based National Assn. of Realtors [NAR] has agreed to pay a fine of $418 million over four years and implement rules that ensure agents' commissions are negotiable. In the settlement, NAR did not admit wrongdoing.

The settlement ends litigation in Missouri that last year brought a staggering $1.8 billion verdict against NAR that could have been tripled under U.S. antitrust law.

Plaintiffs in the Missouri case alleged NAR's rules for placing homes on various multiple listing service [MLS] platforms, in effect fixed commissions at high rates, and discouraged sellers from seeking better terms.

Broker commissions are typically paid by home sellers. Commissions are often in the range of 5% to 6%. That's $20,000 or more on the sale of a $400,000 home. When a buyer is represented by their own real estate agent, the seller's agent usually agrees to split a portion of the commission with the buyer's agent.

Historically, compensation offers have been listed on the MLS, but the court settlement will forbid this practice, which Realtors have used since the 1920s, or earlier. For example, in 1923, the chairman of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards (NAR's precursor) Committee on Commissions claimed that the Chicago broker's association had used a commission schedule for more than 40 years.

Critics say individual sellers often feel powerless to negotiate a better deal for themselves because of the risk that offering lower commissions may cause brokers to steer buyers to other properties offering higher rates of compensation.

Considering NAR is the biggest Congressional lobbyist group in the U.S., the court action truly is a landmark.

Stephen Brobeck, senior fellow at the Consumer Federation of America, predicted that the NAR court action would eventually lower agent commissions and help align compensation with services rendered.

"Increasingly, compensation will reflect agent competence, experience, and the effect they make on a sale," said Brobeck, who noted that the impact of the court action may take years to be felt.

"This agent-commission change is long overdue," said Gold Coast buyer broker Sara E. Benson, CRB, ABR, president of Chicago-based Benson Stanley Realty. "I find the practice of a listing agent dictating the buyer agent's compensation disconcerting at best—and indefensible at worst."

In response to an invitation to participate in a Sept. 9 NAR Settlement Response Discussion, Benson, one of the first exclusive buyer brokers in Illinois, told the group, "I've been waiting 30 years for this change. As an exclusive buyer's broker these changes are thrilling. Finally, buyer agents will no longer be enslaved to the listing agent's 'offer of compensation.' Free at last! Free at last!"

For decades, listing agents have been incessantly "chiseling" the offer of buyer broker compensa-

Real Estate Brokerage Manager [CRB], the highest level of professional achievement in real estate brokerage?

No. 2: Ask if the broker is a designated Accredited Buyers Representative [ABR], a Graduate of the Realtor Institute, or a Certified Real Estate Specialist?

"Some successful realty agents boast about their top-ranked annual sales volume," Benson said. "However, these agents can be the most-risky for the consumer because they may often have the lowest ethical standards."

While the seller's agent may

Gold Coast buyer broker Sara E. Benson hopes now that the enacted NAR decision might just get rid of the morally questionable practice of "double dipping"—or practicing as a "dual agent"—the dirtiest little secret in the real estate industry.

tion. "Rarely, is the commission split 50/50 between brokers. In many parts of Wisconsin, buyer's agents frequently receive a mere 35% of the total commission—with the seller's agent taking the lion's share of the meat," Benson said. Many home sellers are completely unaware of the inequalities in brokerage compensation.

In Chicago, Benson noted that prior to the settlement, some listing agents were "offering" only 33%—or less—to buyer's agents and publishing that commission in the MLS.

For the buyer's agent to meddle with the commission structure would have generally been considered "contract interference" and prohibited by NAR.

"Under the NAR settlement, buyer agents finally will be empowered to set their own rates and get paid what they are worth," Benson said.

So, how does a home buyer find a good buyer's agent, who may be worth even more than their commission? First, check out the buyer-broker's education, usually outlined in the professional designations earned, along with years of service and experience.

No. 1: Is the broker a Certified photograph the property, list the home in the MLS, and host open houses, the buyer's agent is responsible for the lion's share of home-buying expenses, pre-buying research and field work, outlined below:

• Pre-buying activities. In addition to hours of consultation, buyer brokers secure pre-approval letters, conduct limitless property research and market analysis, and check real estate tax records.

Detective work in condominium buying often involves research on a building's finances and the risk of a potential special assessment, which could cost an unwary buyer $10,000 to $50,000—or more—in the first few years of ownership.

• Field work outside office. Once the property is targeted, the buyer broker schedules and sets up showings, and takes the buyer on what could be dozens of property showings.

• Property targeting. When a suitable property is targeted, the buyer broker develops negotiation strategies, sets up and attends inspections, and gathers repair estimates.

• Contract stage. The buyer broker also prepares the purchase contract, presents the offer, conducts negotiations, attends the final walk-throughs, and at post-closing, does buyer hand-holding, especially if there are additional questions or concerns.

"The sheer worth of a good buyer broker's networks is invaluable," Benson noted. "Agents often have private access to properties not even publicly listed. Despite all of this, the listing agent dictates their compensation? I applaud the decoupling of commissions."

A study commissioned by a major telephone carrier for 232 corporate relocations over the period of one year found exclusive buyer brokers secured homes at 91% of asking price, compared with a 96.5% price secured by traditional brokers.

"That's a full 5.5% percent spread—or a buyer savings of $22,000 on a $400,000 home," said Benson. She also noted that the fall-through rate of "For-Sale-By-Owner" contracts—without a professional broker's guidance—is a whopping 80%.

"For first-time buyers who think their real estate attorney will provide the services and expertise that an experienced buyer's agent can, they are mistaken," Benson said.

"Attorneys never even set foot on the property," Benson said. "They aren't familiar enough with the real estate landscape to provide a competitive market analysis because they don't have the data or the knowledge," she said.

"Attorneys aren't familiar with school districts and neighborhood boundaries. They often select title companies in which they have 'affiliated business arrangements' for their own profit."

Benson hopes now that the enacted NAR decision might just get rid of the morally questionable practice of "double dipping"—or practicing as a "dual agent"—the dirtiest little secret in the real estate industry.

A dual agent is a broker who "represents" both the buyer and the seller in the same transaction. However, a dual agent cannot fully represent either party. It is illegal not to disclose the dual-agency relationship. There is an inherent conflict of interest because the seller wants the highest price and the buyer wants the lowest price.

Dual agency benefits the real estate agent at a high cost to the consumer. Currently, dual agency is banned in eight states. It's the number one reason agents are sued.

"Savvy buyers who continue to seek professional, buyer-broker guidance will get the full and undivided representation which they pay for and deserve," Benson noted. "And, buyers should be prepared to sign an agreement to receive the full range of benefits an exclusive buyer broker can offer."

Change in law lets tax breaks automatically renew for homeowners with disabilities

BY MARIA PAPPAS

State lawmakers have made it easier for people with disabilities to continue receiving property tax relief on an annual basis.

Cook County homeowners who receive the Persons with Disabilities Exemption no longer have to reapply for the benefit every year. Lawmakers recently acted to allow the benefit to automatically renew annually, at least through 2027.

Exemptions are tax breaks that typically reduce a property's Equalized Assessed Valuation [EAV]. The Persons with Disabilities Exemption reduces a property's EAV by $2,000, thus reducing the tax bill.

Legislators directed that the exemption may be automatically renewed in Cook County and in any other county "where the county board has authorized such action by ordinance or resolution."

Without automatic renewal, people receiving the benefit may forget to reapply each year and miss having their tax bill reduced by potentially hundreds of dollars.

Without automatic renewal, people receiving the benefit may forget to reapply each year and miss having their tax bill reduced by potentially hundreds of dollars.

The following eligibility requirements must be met to receive the Persons with Disabilities Exemption:

- The home must be owned and occupied by a person with a disability who is responsible for paying property taxes on Jan. 1 of the year for which the application is made.
- The homeowner must submit proof of disability, such as Class 2 Illinois Person with a Disability Identification Card

• The property cannot receive this exemption in the same year it is receiving the Veterans with Disabilities Exemption for Specially Adapted Housing or the Veterans with Disabilities Exemption Federal law defines what qualifies as disabilities, and those definitions are used by the Social Security Admin. and others to assess eligibility for benefits.

Prior to the change in state law, homeowners receiving the Persons with Disabilities Exemption had to reapply for the benefit each year, except for one year during the pandemic when the benefit was automatically renewed for all recipients.

Previously, people receiving the benefit had to fill out and submit a form each year. They also had to submit proof of their disability on an annual basis. Automatic renewal will save people the hassle of filling out paperwork and reduce the number of people who miss out on the benefit because they forgot to reapply.

Other exemptions, including the Homeowner Exemption and the Senior Citizen Exemption, also automatically renew on an annual basis. However, people receiving the Senior Freeze Exemption, which is available for senior citizens with annual household income of $65,000 or less, must reapply every year to demonstrate they continue to meet income eligibility requirements.

My website, cookcountytreasurer.com, has more information about exemptions and can walk you through the application process.

Shots fired, two detained after rappers brawl in Old Town

Chicago police detained two people and recovered a firearm after shots were fired as a group of rappers were leaving the New City complex. Cops found a man with blood on his clothing and were told by witnesses that a rapper fled the scene after being shot in the leg, however, the possible victim has not been found.

According to preliminary information, 911 calls about a person shot sent police to the residential and commercial development at 1457 N. Halsted around 2:13 a.m. Sept. 7. Officers cleared the facility's parking structure after finding a shell casing in a vestibule, along with a bloody shoe and blood outside the vestibule door.

Witnesses reported that there had been an altercation between at least two rappers when someone began shooting.

A CPD spokesperson confirmed an "altercation" occurred between groups in a parking garage on the 1400 block of N. Halsted. They also confirmed that at least one person fired shots and, as of 7:30 a.m., no shooting victim had been located.

As police were investigating the scene, they stopped two men walking away from the area who they believed were suspicious, according to a source. The cops ended up finding a gun in their car, but we're told the men are not suspected of being involved in the shooting.

Sex offender gets 11 years for violently attacking two women on DePaul campus

The convicted sex offender accused of violently attacking two women on the DePaul Univ. campus in 2023 was given an 11-year sentence on Sept. 5. Frank Redd, a 28-year-old Wisconsin man convicted of sexual assault in 2016, tried to drag one victim into a DePaul restroom and choked the other until she felt she was going to die, prosecutors said.

Court records show he pleaded guilty to kidnapping and unlawful vehicular invasion after cutting a deal with prosecutors. Judge Shelley Sutker-Dermer sentenced him to 11 years for the vehicular invasion charge and a concurrent seven years for kidnapping.

The crime spree began on DePaul's Lincoln Park campus around 3:45 p.m. April 13, 2023, when a 28-year-old woman asked Redd for help finding a classroom in the Schmitt Academic Center, 2320 N. Kenmore.

Redd agreed to take her to the room, but the woman realized that he didn't know where he was going, so she thanked him and turned to walk away, prosecutors said. As the woman turned, Redd grabbed her from behind, covering her nose and mouth with one hand and wrapping his other arm around her chest so she could not escape, according to the allegations.

Claiming to have a knife and threatening to hurt the woman if she screamed, Redd allegedly dragged her toward a nearby restroom. The victim managed to grab a wall so Redd could not get her into the restroom, then dropped to the floor, breaking Redd's grip. Redd ran away as the woman screamed for help.

About 15 minutes later, a 22-year-old DePaul student struck another car as she tried to park in a school parking garage in the 2300 block of N. Sheffield. She stepped out to inspect the damage and encountered Redd, who offered to help her dislodge her car from the other vehicle, prosecutors claimed.

Redd allegedly climbed into the woman's car, put both hands around her neck, and squeezed until the woman became lightheaded and felt like she was losing consciousness. She later told investigators that she thought she was dying.

He eventually loosened his grip and ran away when she yelled for help, but officials said he left a bookbag in the woman's car containing his driver's license and other IDs.

Cops arrested Redd a short time later after another student reported that a man stole her bookbag from a DePaul building in the 2200 block of N. Sheffield. Witnesses to the theft directed the police toward Redd.

Redd is a registered sex offender in Wisconsin and Illinois, according to the states' online records.

Teen carjacked SUV in Uptown, took cops on a crosstown chase

A 17-year-old boy carjacked a driver at gunpoint on Sept. 5 and then led police on a cross-town chase that ended with his arrest, authorities say.

Just before 10:30 p.m., a 44-year-old man reported that his GMC Yukon was taken at gunpoint in the 4600 block of N. Broadway.

It didn't take long for Chicago police to locate the hijacked SUV by using the city's license plate reader network and one of CPD's helicopters. Illinois State Police troopers joined the party and helped arrest the teen after he struck a curb near the Stevenson Expressway and Damen.

He is charged with aggravated vehicular hijacking with a firearm, aggravated possession of a stolen motor vehicle, and three counts of aggravated fleeing.

Aldermen ask for help after rolling gun battle rattles North Side neighborhood

Two North Side aldermen are asking constituents to review their surveillance camera footage after a rolling shootout between the occupants of two cars roared through the Budlong Woods area of Lincoln Square on Sept. 5.

Several residents reported the shootout around 6 p.m., moments after it started near the intersection of Gregory St. and Virginia Ave. Witnesses said the occupants of a black sedan, possibly a Lexus, exchanged gunfire with someone in an SUV as the cars sped along the street.

Chicago cops responded quickly, finding shell casings stretched along a city block and some bullet-damaged cars. No injuries were reported.

Ald. Debra Silverstein [50th] and

Ald. Andre Vasquez [40th] sent separate emails to their constituents after the shootout, saying the gunmen fired at each other on the 5500 block of N. Virginia and the 5500 block of N. Washtenaw.

"The police are looking for surveillance footage and any eyewitness accounts," Silverstein wrote.

Vasquez said, "Witnesses reported a black sedan chasing a dark-colored SUV, with both vehicles firing shots at each other."

Both aldermen encouraged residents to check to see if their surveillance systems captured any useful footage and asked witnesses to step forward. The aldermen advised residents to share tips with Area Three detectives by calling 312-744-8261.

Man murdered in Rogers Park

A man was shot and killed in Rogers Park Sept. 5, marking the third shooting in the neighborhood last week.

The victim, 31, was in an alley behind the 2000 block of W. Howard when he suffered a gunshot wound to the back of his head around 5:45 p.m., officials said.

Witnesses told police they saw a man calmly walk out of the alley after the shooting. About 30 minutes after the murder, Evanston police spotted a man matching that individual's description, and Chicago police detained him for investigation.

Police records show that the victim has been arrested on and near the block where he was shot three times since 2017, twice on charges of manufacture-delivery of cannabis and once for allegedly possessing a firearm as a felon.

After enjoying a relatively quiet summer, with no shootings between June 26 and last week, Rogers Park has experienced a flurry of shootings since Sept. 2.

At 9:11 p.m. Sept. 3, a 51-year-old CTA employee was shot and seriously wounded outside the Howard station. On Monday, a 50-year-old victim was standing in the 6900 block of N. Glenwood when a man shot him in the shoulder and fled the scene, police said.

So far this year, 18 people have been shot in Rogers Park, six fatally. That's compared to 28 during the period last year and 23 in 2022.

Driver intentionally ran over bicyclist on Lakefront Trail

Prosecutors have charged a woman with intentionally striking a bicyclist with her car on the Lakefront Trail in Uptown and then fleeing the scene.

The cyclist was not seriously injured.

Lindsay Hughes, 28, intentionally drove her Nissan Rogue on the bike path in the 500 block of W. Montrose Dr., near Montrose Harbor, a little before 7 a.m. Aug. 29, a Chicago police report said.

She made "several attempts" to hit a 31-year-old man who was riding his bike on the path, according to the report. She ultimately succeeded by broadsiding his bike and knocking him to the ground, a CPD crash report showed.

Hughes got out of her car and moved toward the cyclist after striking him, the report said. Thinking she was going to attack him again, the victim deployed pepper spray to defend himself, according to the report.

Prosecutors said Hughes drove away from the scene, but police arrested her a short time later in the 4300 block of N. Marine Dr. The arresting officers reported that she said something to the effect of, "I ran him over," as they took her into custody.

The bicyclist, who suffered bruising and cuts on his left arm and right leg, was treated by paramedics at the scene. He declined further medical attention. His bike's handlebars and front tire were also damaged.

Prosecutors charged her with felony aggravated battery in a public place and misdemeanor counts of reckless driving and leaving the scene. They did not ask Judge David Kelly to detain Hughes, so he sent her home to await trial.

Seven years for displaying a handgun on the Red Line while on parole; he won't spend a single night in prison

Roderrick Sims

An eight-time convicted felon has been given a seven-year sentence for displaying a firearm on the Red Line in the Loop. But, because he earned so many credits while fighting the charges, he is not required to spend a single day in prison.

Sims, 33, was on parole for robbing a Michael Jackson impersonator at the Jackson Red Line CTA station when he was caught with a gun at the Roosevelt station in June 2022.

Around 6:40 on a Friday evening, police received calls about a robbery in progress on the 1100 block of S. State. At least two 911 callers said a man wearing all white clothing was robbing someone at gunpoint.

Police spotted Sims in the area wearing all-white clothing with a bag of marijuana dangling out of his back pocket, prosecutors said. Cops patted him down and allegedly found a loaded handgun bearing a defaced serial number stuffed in his underwear.

Officers never found the alleged robbery victim that people called about. However, surveillance cameras at the nearby Roosevelt CTA station allegedly captured video of Sims showing people a gun and then tucking the weapon into his waist.

On Aug. 29, Sims pleaded guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm while on parole, the second most serious charge he faced, according to court records. He was sentenced to seven years by Judge James Obbish.

Illinois Dept. of Corrections records show he was taken to Stateville Correctional Center on Aug. 30 and went home the same day. So, while he was given a seven-year sentence, he is getting out of prison just two years and three months after being charged. He'll be on supervised release for a year.

You may remember the time in 2019 when we told you about Sims' frequent arrests near downtown train stations. He racked up nine arrests that year and was on electronic monitoring for one of those cases when he and two other men attacked the Michael Jackson performer at, coincidentally, the Jackson Red Line CTA station on Nov. 29, 2019.

The victim saw Sims and a group of accomplices board his train car and follow him onto the Jackson platform. One of the accomplices slammed the victim down, causing his face to hit the platform. Sims stopped the man from getting up as the robbers emptied his pockets and took his suitcase and bags, according to a Chicago police report.

Police arrested Sims after releasing surveillance images of three offenders to the public. He pleaded guilty last in Aug. 2021 and was released in December of that year, according to IDOC records.

Replay of Lollapalooza, two migrants charged with robbing concertgoers at ARC Music Festival

Two Venezuelan migrants are charged with robbing ARC Music Festival attendees of gold chains over the weekend, allegations that are strikingly similar to charges filed against two other migrants after last month's Lollapalooza.

Jonas Alcala-Arteaga, 30, and Yunior Amaro-Blanco, 24, were arrested separately on Sept. 1 as the ARC festival was underway at Union Park, 1501 W. Randolph.

According to a Chicago police report, a 37-year-old Schaumburg man told police that someone stepped on his foot shortly after he entered the concert grounds around 6 p.m. When he confronted the other person, Alcala-Arteaga ripped off the man's gold chain and medallion and ran away, the report stated.

The alleged victim spotted Alcala-Arteaga again about 15 minutes later, but Alcala-Arteaga allegedly ran away again. When Alcala-Arteaga tried to run away from a third encounter with the man, he tripped and fell, allowing the victim to grab and detain him until security arrived, the report said.

Alcala-Arteaga, who listed the Standard Club shelter as his home address, is charged with robbery.

About an hour later, Amaro-Blanco allegedly grabbed a 25-year-old man and snatched two chains worth $6,000 from his neck. That victim quickly grabbed Amaro-Blanco and held him until ARC security arrived to turn him over to Chicago police, according to a separate CPD report, which said the second victim recovered one of his necklaces.

Amaro-Blanco is also charged with robbery.

Prosecutors did not ask Judge Deidre Dyer to detain either man, so she released them to await trial. However, court records show that Dyer issued a second order detaining Alcala-Arteaga for violating pretrial release in a pending stolen motor vehicle case.

Last month, prosecutors charged two migrants with robbing Lollapalooza concertgoers as the festival's crowds left Grant Park at night. The men, who were arrested hours

CPS lacks system-wide gun violence prevention program for students

Average age of Chicagoans witnessing gun violence is 14 years old

BY BOB ZULEY

After the recent fatal shooting of 13 year old Ashawn Davis in an Edgewater apartment in August, this newspaper asked Chicago Public Schools [CPS] to furnish information on ongoing CPS gun violence education in its elementary schools. Surprisingly, CPS fell short in that it lacks a system-wide policy on gun violence education.

We also twice asked CPS CEO Pedro Martinez and Swift Speciality School Principal Margaret Alhasoon to furnish statements on the death of young Davis. Both were also asked to describe the CPS gun violence prevention efforts. Both declined to comment.

According to a 2023 study from the Journal of the American Medical Assoc., half of Chicagoans will witness a shooting before they turn 40. And the average age of a Chicago resident witnessing firearm violence is 14 years.

At least 276 children aged 16 and younger have been shot in Chicago in the years of 2021-2022. Nearly eight people are shot each day in Chicago, and data analysis shows that in the last five years, more than 100 of them have been kids and teens within one-tenth of a mile of a school, according to a 2024 ABC7 (WLS) News report.

“From the deadly Senn High School shooting to the lunchtime attack on students on Wabash Ave. in Jan. 2024, CPD detectives are being faced with new questions about whether shooters carried newfangled firepower: if they had homemade guns, or were armed with illegally converted automatic weapons,” according to WLS.

From the outsized role CPS plays in the lives of their students – often surpassing the time of length of daily parental contact – we asked CPS to furnish the description of gun violence prevention programming in its 476 elementary schools. Surprisingly, CPS has no system-wide policy.

Instead, Evan F. Moore, press secretary for CPS since 2021, responded with a bureaucratic non-response, stating “[CPS] prioritizes the safety and security of our students and staff. The Board voted to approve the Whole School Safety Framework Policy during the June 2024 board meeting.”

“The goal of [the plan] is to provide schools with tools and curriculum for safety topics that are prioritized at the local school community level. The District looks forward to collaborating with students, teachers, and staff members to inform the path forward.”

Evan F. Moore

“Under the Whole Safety Plan, individual schools determine needed safety lessons, including gun safety. The policy will be phased in in a tiered approach that will be developed using input from community engagement, in partnership with the Whole School Safety Steering Committee.”

“The Office of Safety and Security will determine which schools are targeted for the first year after conducting a baseline assessment ensuring that decisions align with the District’s Equity Framework.”

Illinois law now suggests – not mandates – that school districts add gun safety storage into their home safety curriculum. So while they teach sex education and drivers education in schools, the state doesn’t mandate firearm violence safety programming.

Teaching firearm violence prevention in schools may be more difficult than it appears. A 2018 study from Rutgers Univ. School of Nursing suggests that children do not retain safety skills when encountering a firearm in a real-world scenario.

Wrightwood 659 to house new fall exhibit

This fall, Wrightwood 659 hosts "Four Nocturnes and Toxic Cloud" - two installations by distinguished artist and filmmaker John Akomfrah, whose work investigates memory, post-colonialism, temporality, and the experiences of migrant diasporas globally. The exhibit will run from Sept. 27 through to Feb. 15, 2025, at 659 W. Wrightwood.

Four Nocturnes is a three-screen video installation which explores the complex relationship between humanity's destruction of the natural world and its self-destruction. Using Africa's declining elephant populations as its narrative spine, Four Nocturnes is a meditation on mortality, loss, fragmented identity, mythology, and memory through poetic visuals that survey the landscape of African cultural heritage.

Rendezvous Arts bringing people together

Entering its fifth season, Rendezvous Arts offers a seven-concert series, repeating each event at distinct venues in Ravenswood, Lake Forest, and Dixon, IL. Their next event is this coming Saturday.

Interdisciplinary arts events thrive with varied takes on Chamber Music

BY JANE LAWICKI

While most artists still struggle post-pandemic, Rendezvous Arts now thrives by bringing people together with intimate music, visual artists, and interactive discussion.

Entering its fifth season, the group offers a seven-concert series, repeating each event at distinct venues in Ravenswood, Lake Forest, and Dixon. A sampling of their varied music and musicians can be heard Sept. 14-15 at the Ravenswood ArtsWalk, hosted by the Greater Ravenswood Chamber of Commerce.

Regular season concerts will be held at Artifact Events, 4325 N. Ravenswood Ave.

“It’s seven very different concerts per season,” explains Deb Stevenson, a professional oboist for 38 years and the group’s founder. “We focus on as many styles and time periods as possible.”

Stevenson adds that every concert includes visual artists. At the end of the event, a post-concert reception is held where musicians, artists, and audience members mingle.

“At a typical concert, the audience goes out the front door and musicians go out the back and never the two meet,” Stevenson says. “But our concerts are designed to be gratifying and educational.” Noting the intriguing details of a harpsichord, for example, she adds, “The more we teach people one-on-one, the more they are hungry to learn.”

Andersonville resident Beth Kljajic, a regular attendee, enjoys talking with the artists and the two-for-one season tickets. She recalls conversations with a dress maker from Amsterdam, some famous jazz musicians, and that Irish music is done in a different key than most western music.

“You meet and greet both the musicians and the artists,” Kljajic explains. “Some artists do artwork as they attend. You learn about music, bond with your neighbors, it’s almost like a salon.”

First violinist for the critically acclaimed Kontras Quartet, Eleanor Bartsch joined Rendezvous Arts’ 2022-23 season. The event included a painter who did beautiful artwork while the quartet performed.

“Being inspired by the music we were playing, [the painter showed] true interdisciplinary connections and collaborations - real artists in real time together, to beautiful effect,” says Bartsch.

Rendezvous Arts was founded in dire times for the arts and artists, just as the government-imposed pandemic lockdown silenced live music and many musicians lost work.

“Sadly, the Lake Forest Symphony fell on hard times financially and disbanded in March 2020,” Stevenson shared. “The morning COVID hit, 63 musicians just lost their jobs.”

As chair of the players at that time, Stevenson recalled a special event in Albuquerque that weaves together new and traditional classic music in an unconventional, intimate venue and encourages musicians and audience engagement.

“They filled 250 seats, 50 Sundays a year in a cool warehouse space,” Stevenson explains. “They have different music, musicians, and visual artists every week. Artists sketch during rehearsals and audience members can buy the sketches at the event.”

Recognizing the Symphony was not going to survive, Deb asked to keep the Chamber Series. Together, she and her colleagues formed a board, pulled resources, secured a small business loan and 501 c3 status and within six weeks, Rendezvous Arts was born.

Their first season was limited to 30 people at the Gorton Center in Lake Forest. In October, the group made the decision to go virtual and through professional audio producers developed their own Patreon channel which continues with events and musician and artist interviews.

Mosaic street artist, Jim Bachor, popularly known as Chicago’s “pothole” artist, has done an interview on Rendezvous Arts’ Patreon Channel as well as one of their live events. With his modern take on the ancient art form, he says it’s always interesting to interact with people and get people’s reaction to what he does.

“You’ll be successful if you’re passionate about what you do,” says Bachor. “These [musicians] are really passionate about what they do, it’s a passionate tribe. It’s really cool to interact with them, fun to sit back and watch it all come together.”

Rendezvous Arts is dedicated to reshaping artistic expression, cultivating community, nurturing talent, and spreading the joys of music and art throughout greater

Chicago. Offering disparate types of chamber music and visual artists, events appeal to jazz lovers, string quartet aficionados, brass addicts, guitar geeks, lovers of woodwinds, and more.

Visual artists range from professional hat makers to photographers, printmakers, and watercolorists. Rendezvous supports and employs Chicagoland’s finest musicians and visual artists.

“It’s not chamber music, it’s not classical chamber music, baroque music. It may be that, but it’s always beautiful,” says season ticket holder Besty Shepherd. Noting musicians can play guitar, strings, woodwinds and concerts are never repeated.

“It’s a real mix of people of all ages in the audience, the artists and musicians are multi-generational... It’s just a great way to spend a Sunday afternoon,” Shepherd says. “You can take anyone - you could take your Mom, your daughter. The first time I took my husband, he said, ‘They’re so good - top notch musicians.’”

Sit awhile

Hidden away in a secluded corner of Polk Park adjacent Navy Pier is a new public artwork dedicated to Lorraine Hansberry, the first black playwright to be produced on Broadway with her 1959 play, A Raisin in The Sun.

“Never be afraid to sit awhile and think” is the title of the artwork and also an iconic line from the play.

It is a gift from The Lillys, an organization dedicated to women in the theater. Lorraine is waiting for your visit. Photo by Jim Matusik

Sculpture exhibit to host open house Sept. 26

The Chicago Sculpture Exhibit [CSE] is hosting a public open house at Rockwell on the River, 3057 N. Rockwell, 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26.

CSE is an artists coalition that helps people connect with opportunities including calls for artists, jobs, grants, and art advising.

The Lincoln Park Community Art Initiative was founded by former Ald. Vi Daley in 2001, and eight public sculptures were prominently displayed throughout Lincoln Park. The program was transformed into the CSE where for the past 24 years, this program has pursued its mission to install large-scale sculptures in neighborhoods throughout the city. Next year they celebrate our 25th Anniversary of the CSE established the Richard Hunt Award, named in honor of Chicago native and world-renowned sculptor, Richard J. Hunt.

The award comes with financial support to an emerging or mid-career Chicagoland sculptors for a new artwork that will be sited at a prominent location in the city.

Through this award, CSE opens the door to artists who otherwise may not have the resources to produce large-scale public art. The award is part of CSE’s mission to encourage a broader range of artists to design and fabricate large-scale public sculpture.

The financial provision for the production of the work is $10,000, 80% provided for the planning and/or creation of the artist’s work and 20% dispersed upon installation.

The selected artist must transport their sculpture to and from the site, but CSE will assist with on-site installation and costs of physically mounting the work. The sculpture will remain on display for two years.

POLICE BEAT from p. 6

apart, are not accused of working together.

Edinson Yanez, 23, allegedly committed three robberies, including one that left the victim with broken ribs, after Lollapalooza ended Sunday night, August 4. Around 11 p.m., Yanez allegedly plowed an electric scooter into a 26-year-old suburban man and stole the victim's gold chain at 55 E. Jackson. Prosecutors said Yanez bit the man and beat him with the scooter, breaking two ribs.

While the police were speaking with the victim, they learned that other CPD officers had detained a suspect who allegedly robbed two other men in the 300 block of S. Dearborn, a police report said.

In that case, two men from suburban Atlanta, one 19 and the other 26, said Yanez grabbed one of them by the shirt and took his phone and necklace. Yanez tried, but failed, to take a chain from the second man, according to prosecutors. Cops tracked the phone's location to locate Yanez nearby.

All three victims identified him as the person responsible, according to the CPD report.

Judge Susana Ortiz detained Yanez as a safety risk, saying he was already on pretrial release for a domestic violence case. She pointed to the "severely injured" victim who was beaten with a scooter and the randomness of the attacks on concertgoers as reasons she decided to keep him in jail.

He is charged with armed robbery, robbery, attempted robbery, and aggravated battery causing great bodily harm.

Also charged in connection with a Lollapalooza robbery was 33-year-old Kent Minaya Munoz. Prosecutors said a 32-year-old man told police that he chased after someone who snatched his chain in the 300 block of S. Dearborn, but other people intervened and held him down so he could not continue the pursuit.

The victim described one of the people who held him down, and the police took him for a ride to see if they could spot the man, according to a CPD report. When they arrived at the corner of Plymouth and Van Buren, the victim spotted Munoz on the sidewalk wearing the clothes he had described, the report said.

He was charged with attempted robbery.

Burglars hit Lakeview Lululemon, Streetsville convenience store

Smash-and-grab burglars raided a Lululemon store in Lakeview on Sept. 5 and another burglary team tried to take an ATM from a Streetsville convenience store a short time later, according to reports from Chicago police officers.

The break-ins occurred in two CPD districts experiencing double-digit increases in burglaries this year.

In Lakeview, four people broke into Lululemon, 3556 N. Southport, by smashing through the front door around 3:28 a.m. They took merchandise and escaped in a silver Audi Q3 that has been playing cat and mouse with cops on the North Side this week, an officer said. The crew keeps chang-grams do not reduce the likelihood that children will handle guns when they are unsupervised, that boys are more likely than girls to ignore gun-safety rules and that few studies exist of gun-safety programs for children beyond the fourth grade.

Included in the findings from previous studies is that 85% of gun-owning parents did not practice safe gun storage and 72% plate readers.

Then, just after 4 a.m., a group of people tried to take the ATM from a convenience store in the 200 block of W. Grand. They didn't get the cash machine this time, but cops suspect they're the same crew that did get an ATM from a business in the Gold Coast earlier this week.

Burglary reports are up 5% city-wide in 2024, but the pace is much quicker in CPD's Near North 18th and Town Hall 19th Districts.

Break-ins are up 22% in Near North, bounded by the lake, the river, and Fullerton Ave. Town Hall, running between the lake and the river from Fullerton to Lawrence, is up 33%.

Burglaries are up sharply in Uptown and Lakeview. The increase is also fueled by a sharp rise in restaurant and bar break-ins.

These are glimpses into more than a dozen stories local residents contributed following a call to the community for submissions. Authors will share their personal narratives at the "Edgewater Stories" program on Saturday, Sept. 14. The free program will be held from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Edgewater Branch Library, 6000 N. In addition to garden-like modules, certain portions of the Wild Mile are submerged, and feature underwater habitat intended to mimic a natural river floor.

Take a walk on the wild side

Who wants to walk on water? That would be wild, no?

Well the Wild Mile on the East Bank of the Chicago River south of North Ave. may get a bit wilder with the addition of new walking spaces right on top of the river.

The floating riverfront park has just announced plans to expand as part of a multi-year project that will convert a full mile of riverfront into a walkable and biodiverse green space.

This second phase is expected to open to the public today and tomorrow.

(The first phase of The Wild Mile was completed in 2022 and sits behind the Lincoln Park REI store, 905 W. Eastman St.)

A group of volunteers with Urban Rivers, the nonprofit entity that works to transform city rivers into urban sanctuaries, have installed new floating walkways and garden beds and hauled in over 30,000 pounds of rock aggregate to bring to life the second phase of the Wild Mile.

The effort takes a wildlife-first approach to public green space. Combining ADA-accessible boardwalks with floating artificial habitats, the Wild Mile remains open to the public 24-7, and is used as a space for recreation, education, research, community gatherings, and more.

The habitats mimic a natural wetland ecosystem - one that might have been found in the Chicago area long before the city was developed. Today, the eco-park has made this stretch of the Chicago River a renewed home for beavers, herons, snapping turtles, bait fish and freshwater mussels, all who once lived on the river before industrialization took over.

The root system provides habitat for young fish and other small river species. It also serves as giant water filter, as wetland plants are known to sequester pollutants such as heavy metals.

In addition to garden-like modules, certain portions of the Wild Mile are submerged, and feature underwater habitat intended to mimic a natural river floor.

Urban Rivers runs restoration projects for endangered freshwater mussels, which are no longer able to survive in urban stretches of river due to the unfavorable conditions of the post-industrial river floor. These mussels play a crucial role in the local ecosystem, and filter up to 10 gallons of water per day.

The walking paths are on top of pontoon-based platforms built to last. Populated by wetland species native to Illinois, the gardens allow plant roots to grow through the physical framework, directly into the river.

Anchored to both the river floor and the seawall, the Wild Mile can move up and down as the water level changes. The Wild Mile has stayed put through dramatic flooding, even when the river has risen above the seawalls.

The Wild Mile has largely been funded through city grants, donations and partnerships with organizations like the Shedd Aquarium and, most recently, the Chicago Architecture Center.

Man shot during fight in Boystown

BY CWBCHICAGO

A man was shot during a fight in Boystown on Sept. 8, less than a block from where another man was stabbed during an altercation last weekend.

Police initially received 911 calls around 4:35 a.m. about a group of people fighting on the street in the 3700 block of N. Halsted. Within seconds, an officer in the area reported hearing gunshots, too.

Officers arrived to find a 23-year-old man with gunshot wounds near both of his ankles at 3701 N. Halsted. Chicago cops applied a tourniquet to help reduce blood loss while waiting for EMS to arrive and take him to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center. He was in good condition.

Police said he had been in a “verbal altercation” with someone who pulled out a gun and shot him.

CPD did not release a description of the shooter.

On Sept. 1, a 33-year-old man suffered multiple stab wounds after getting into a fight with another man in the 3600 block of N. Halsted. At about 3:50 a.m., a witness reported that one of the men was chasing the other, heading south on Halsted St.

Police found the victim on the ground, but the assailant was gone.

This morning’s shooting is the first in Boystown proper since a 27-year-old man was shot outside Roscoe’s Tavern, 3356 N. Halsted, on June 13, 2022. Two people were shot by a drive-by gunman in the 900 block of W. Grace, just over a block west of Sunday’s shooting, On Dec. 30, 2023.

lobby, a bike room with seven spaces, and a single vehicle parking space in place of the rear off-shoot on the alley.

Oddly, in a community that is already tight on parking, there will be just one off-street parking space, according to the permit.

saw the middle was open. We knew if we got the shot, we could make things happen.”

One play and the Champions had the lead back with 2:16 on clock, but still plenty of time left for South, but no time outs left for the Red Wolves. A couple plays for small gains took time off the clock. Then Red Wolves QB Ford scrambled and found senior wide receiver Tariq Meggs-Hood underneath the coverage who sprinted up the sideline to the Lane 45-yard line.

With time ticking down to 35 seconds, Ford dropped back and launched a perfect strike to senior RB/WR Christian Streeter at the goal line for another unlikely touch-down against a prevent two deep zone defense to make the score 21-20. This time the South faithful believed it and stadium erupted.

TF South head coach Bob Padjen, never hesitated. They were going for two, win or lose, the extra points try would decide the game.

With no time outs, the Red Wolves would need to run the play quickly. Padjen called a cut back run up the middle from an overloaded and decoy formation. But the quarterback audibled to a Philadelphia Eagles style “tush push” run up the middle from the three-yard line. Initially, it looked like it was working but the Champions defensive line stiffened and stopped the Wolves a half-yard shy of victory.

The Champions move into Chicago Public League [CPL] play. CPL has created a 16 team Red Division super-conference. Lane will not have to face Kenwood and Simeon this season but will have to face Morgan Park. The games against Whitney Young, Taft and Amundsen give the Champions a chance to prove undeniable mastery of the North Side. Stay tuned.
