St. Patrick emerges with 31-28 win over DePaul Prep

BY JACK LYDON

"We believe in our offensive line. We believe in our run game. That's the identity of our team. If we need to pass with the quarterback [we] can pass, but we love running," St. Patrick Shamrocks first year coach and former NFL player Tom Zbikowski said.

That belief and that running game carried the Shamrocks to a 31-28 homecoming victory at Triton College Friday evening over conference rival and the defending IHSAA 4A state football champion DePaul Prep Rams.

The environment at Triton stadium was electric. The overflowing student section was loud. These two largely evenly-matched teams battled back and forth, driven by big plays and untimely penalties. The Rams jumped out to an early lead on an 81-yard catch and run by sophomore running back Tyson Hooks.

Conservancy doubles down on long-time support of historic Lincoln statue

Over the past 18 months, the Lincoln Park Conservancy, Gold Coast Neighbors Assoc., and Chicago Park District have worked with the local community to develop a framework plan for the renewal of South Lincoln Park – the area bounded by LaSalle to the north, Inner Lake Shore Dr. to the east, North Ave. to the south, and Clark St. to the west.

Last week the Conservancy announced plans to double down on their long-time care and support of the Standing Lincoln, Augustus Saint-Gaudens' sculpture of the Great Emancipator located at 2045 N. Lincoln Park West in South Lincoln Park.

With the plan for South Lincoln Park completed, backers now turn to implementation of the first phase, the hardscape and drainage improvements, in 2026. While many in the community support realizing the full scope of this plan, one component has been the focus of the Conservancy's attention as they approach the 250th anniversary of the founding of the United States.

As one of its earliest initiatives, the Lincoln Park Conservancy adopted Abraham Lincoln: The Man, its exedra, and the surrounding area for restoration in the late 1980s.

Broadway Community Forum at St. Ita brings out the haters

Experts present information blindly rejected by upzoning proponents

BY BOB ZULEY

It was really a saddening event. Community organizers Edge-water Residents For Responsible Development [ERRD] gathered together a team of local experts to present the factual downside of the City's plan to upzone a 2.6-mile stretch of the Broadway corridor in Uptown and Edgewater.

The community forum took place before a standing-room-only crowd estimated at about 300 people in the basement assembly hall of St. Ita Catholic Church, 5500 N. Broadway. They were instead met by sophomoric heckling, vitriolic hatred, agism, and verbal personal threats requiring on-site security to intervene and deescalate the young zealots that had infiltrated the audience.

Thankfully the organizers of the event had the foresight to have security on-hand. Increasingly common are these public displays of hatred displayed in public forums where people can spew venom with little consequence. And violence is oft a very real result of such vitriol.

This newspaper counted 17 troublemakers in the crowd of 300, who on multiple occasions tried to shout down speakers and ridicule other attendees.

Meanwhile, Ald. Leni Manaa-Hoppenworth [48th] gathered with her housing/transportation advocates at Burke's Public House, 5401 N. Broadway.

ERRD organizer Pat Sharkey began by explaining that their compromise 'Win-Win Roadmap for Broadway' proposal met 75% of the city's demands. However, they retained the right to maintain community and aldermanic input on potential developments in the Broadway corridor and cross-streets and not just acquiesce to the developers demands.

"The City has sidestepped the standard, community-centered planning process in Edgewater. The DPD [Chicago Dept. of Planning and Development] failed to conduct a Comprehensive Corridor Plan for the proposed upzoning of Broadway – something that's normally expected for zoning changes of this scale," per a ERRD handout available online.

ERRD presenter Jack Markowski, a former Commissioner of the Chicago Dept. of Housing, explained that ERRD planning is following up on 20 years of community planning accomplished by

Forty-five years for man who slashed DePaul grad's throat on Lincoln Park campus

BY CWBCHICAGO

The man accused of slashing the throat of a DePaul Univ. alum near the school's Lincoln Park campus six years ago and carjacking a woman in the neighborhood days earlier is heading back to prison for a long time.

On Sept. 19, Judge Steven Watkins handed 38-year-old Adam Bramwell a 45-year prison sentence, according to court records.

Bramwell was a four-time convicted felon who went AWOL after being paroled in a gun case four months before the crime spree. He was still considered a parole "absconder" when, on July 13, 2019, Bramwell followed a 56-year-old woman into her garage in the 1800 block of N. Fremont St.

Wielding a knife, he forced her to close the garage door and hand over money and other items, prosecutors said. They said the woman tried to escape, but he caught her, tore her clothing, threw her to the ground, and choked her before stealing her Honda Fit.

Five days later, at 3:30 a.m. on July 18, a passerby found a recent DePaul Univ. graduate unresponsive and bleeding from her neck in the 2300 block of N. Halsted.

Prosecutors said Bramwell had parked a stolen SUV nearby and waited for the 22-year-old to walk past him. As she did, he dragged her into an alley, held a knife to her throat, and tried to shove her into the stolen car, officials claimed.

Like the earlier victim, she fought back. But Bramwell slashed her repeatedly. Prosecutors said he also tore out chunks of her hair before trying to run her over with the vehicle.

The passerby found the victim about 50 feet from where the attack occurred. Prosecutors said she lay there about 15 minutes before being found. Officials said the woman lost nearly half of her blood. She was hospitalized for a month, suffered two strokes along the way, and underwent multiple surgeries.

While Chicago police speculated at the time that the incident may have been sexually motivated, the woman was not sexually assaulted, and Bramwell was never charged with sex crimes in the case.

Shortly after the attack, police found the SUV and the hijacked Honda Fit burned out elsewhere in the city.

Authorities also linked Bramwell to another attempted carjacking of a woman on July 8, 2019. That victim managed to lock her

For Bears, Arlington Heights is the only option

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

The seasons have changed in Chicago, with climate conditions more like Autumn than Summer, and the goings on around town reflect a change in socio-economic conditions. Cooler conditions might be falling across Chicago politically and culturally as well. It's more than just coffee and hot cocoa weather.

Some of the observable changes reflect happenings that affect political fortunes, as well as the City's turbulent crime spike, and the continued disintegration of orderly life in the Mayor's Office.

However, it is the fresh football season at Soldier Field that looms largest of all in the City's rear view mirror.

Here are just some examples of what's unfolding around town that needs to be watched:

- Chief Judge Timothy Evans, former Alderman of the 4th Ward, is out as Cook County Chief Judge after 24 years, and eight elections. He's been overseeing about 400 judges whom he assigned throughout the court's 10 divisions and six geographic districts. Cook County is Illinois' largest judicial district. Judge Charles Beach, is the newly elected Cook County Circuit Chief Judge. He received about 57% of the votes cast by circuit judges. One wonders if there is a federal investigation underway.

- Dominick Maniscalco, Chicago Housing Authority HR director, departs in the latest leadership exit there. It's the ninth senior leader to exit the agency in the last year, as it still looks to fill the CEO role. Isn't that what slippery former-Ald. Walter Burnett is for?

- Downtown Ald. Brendan Riley [42nd], announced he wants to run against former Hyde Park Alderman Tony Preckwinkle, once the five-time alderman of the 5th Ward, and currently the four-time Cook County Board president. That promises to be a pre-historic battle.

- The early morning robbery Sept. 11, a truly shocking attempt by six men at Louis Vuitton on Boul. Mich, in a $700K smash and grab. It ended when at 3:30 a.m. the suspects' truck was involved in a deadly traffic accident at Michigan and Ohio streets. All six were taken to the hospital in serious to critical condition, while Gov. JB Pritzker poses for pics with one of the perps. The new normal?

- Flat broke and busted, we'll have billion dollar budget deficits for as far as we can see into the future.

- But perhaps the most personally emotional climatic change appears along the south lakefront, Soldier Field. The Chicago Bears will be leaving the City for good. Abandoning Soldier Field and heading Northwest to their Arlington Heights property. Negotiations to keep Chicago's team here on the lakefront have failed.

Worse than the mayhem and exile plaguing the House of Windsor these days. Looks like there's no way out.

All of this was announced in a letter sent to Bears' fans by Bears' CEO Kevin Warren as the new season began, in the 106th season of Chicago Bears football, supposedly after all the options have been "examined."

So who's going to pay off that $535 million mortgage?

Warren confirms "the team's commitment to building a new stadium and mixed-use development in Arlington Heights." Warren stresses that this is "not a move but an expansion, allowing the team to build a stadium capable of hosting major events and a connected community space, with development to begin after securing a state bill for property tax certainty and infrastructure contributions."

The Chicago Bears will be leaving the city for good, abandoning stoic Soldier Field and heading Northwest to their Arlington Heights property.

Image courtesy Patrick Gorski-Imagn

All of it outside the reach of Chicago's City and Park District leadership.

Warren doesn't mince words. "Building a new stadium, our future home in Arlington Heights, ... will require zero state money for construction."

Too bad about all that borrowed debt they're leaving behind. The old 'this is all on me, not you,' told to the ex after you dump your date and head out the door.

They are adamant that they get things moving to ensure they can host the Super Bowl in 2031.

For many Chicagoans this is still George Halas' team. Warren reminds fans that Halas' progeny, the McCaskey family, "has been clear: build a world-class stadium that requires zero money from the State of Illinois for its construction."

He goes on to describe an expanding partnership among "political, labor, business, and community leaders across Illinois to develop a plan for property tax certainty and a fair contribution toward essential infrastructure that will benefit the entire community."

For them Arlington Heights is the only place that makes such options available. The only such site in Cook County.

Addressing the geography of the move he adds, "Moving outside of the city of Chicago is not a decision we reached easily. This project does not represent us leaving, it represents us expanding. The Bears draw fans from all over Illinois, and over 50% of our season-ticket holders live within 25 miles of the Arlington Heights site."

Perhaps the bigger 50% problem was the money the City and Park Dist. were taking off the gross?

Warren seems to have connected on the long bomb. After all, there's always Metra Trains. And the joy of riding on Chicago's expressways connecting us to suburban idylls.

I cannot help but look at the spirit, as well as the concrete soothing sports parlance, of the letter's tone. Its correctness. Its trust and belief in the ability to make successful partnerships happen. Even in far-off Arlington Heights.

I also cannot imagine what Mayor Richard J. Daley would be saying and arranging to alter this sports climate change. He knew exactly how successful partnerships were formed, "by his command." Daley was capable of moving mountains, and Presidents, and unions, and sports team owners on command. Soothing the wearied. Encouraging the faint of heart and bolstering the fearful in the awkwardness of negotiation. Doing business that works, and most of all his personal courage and belief in Chicago's capacity to achieve and succeed. It was always without hesitation or faint heart. He certainly wouldn't watch as the Bears exit Chicago and embrace the suburban foibles and missteps of small imaginations.

The Bears would now be embracing their wildest dreams were Richard J. Daley was still among us. And just think, on his lunch break he would have resolved the changes in the Circuit Court, the County Board, the Chicago Housing Authority, the budget, the crime on Boul Mich and the idiocy unfolding on City Hall's 5th floor and in the stands at Soldier Field.

Yes, there is a chill in the air.

Police union boss calls mayor 'piece of garbage' for saying law enforcement a 'sickness' to be 'eradicated'

BY CWBCHICAGO

The head of the union representing Chicago's front line police officers is blasting Mayor Brandon Johnson for calling law enforcement a "sickness" that he plans to "eradicate." Also speaking out about the mayor's comments, albeit in a more measured tone, is Cook County State's Attorney Eileen O'Neill Burke.

On Sept. 17, CWBChicago first reported that Johnson erupted at a press conference, calling "jails and incarceration and law enforcement" a sickness that "has not led to safe communities," and vowing to "eradicate" it.

Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 7 President John Catanzara released a spicy YouTube video of his own on Sept. 19, a video he recorded while standing in front of the mayor's home, which is protected 24/7 by multiple CPD units.

"Three squad cars blocking it, patrolling it, protecting it for him and his family," Catanzara said. "Yet, he calls law enforcement a sickness. What a hypocrite. Piece of garbage."

Catanzara told viewers that Johnson's words were no mistake.

"He has always hated us. He still hates us. He just can't say what he wants to publicly. But two days ago, the truth came out a little bit because he lost control. And believe him when he says it, that he believes we are a sickness. That's just who he is."

The mayor's critics have long accused him of hostility toward police, pointing to his past work with the Chicago Teachers Union. Catanzara went down that road, too.

"The reality is if Brandon Johnson was not mayor of the city of Chicago and still working for CTU, he'd be picketing, protesting, and demanding defunding of the police department every single chance he got. Period," said the union chief.

He also said Chicago's improving crime numbers have nothing to do with the mayor.

Chicago Mayor Brandon Johnson and FOP Lodge #7 President John Catanzara.

"Shame on Mayor Johnson for thinking he has anything to do with it," he scolded. "The men and women of this police department have everything to do with it. They have always had everything to do with it. Period. Full stop."

"The major difference in the decline numbers is attributed to a new Cook County state's attorney who believes in law and order and accountability, prior to her predecessor's ridiculous 'let everybody free' and feel more sympathy for the offenders than for the victims and their families."

Catanzara also credited O'Neill Burke, who took office in December, for making a real impact.

"The major difference in the decline numbers is attributed to a new Cook County state's attorney who believes in law and order and accountability, prior to her predecessor's ridiculous 'let everybody free' and feel more sympathy for the offenders than for the victims and their families."

Reports from April 2025 indicated the Cook County Jail population was on the rise and had surpassed 5,600 inmates, following a period of lower numbers in 2023 and 2024. For decades prior to the 2020 Antifa and BLM riots and looting, the jail historically housed between 8,000 and 10,000 people but saw a substantial decline over the five years when Cook County leadership stopped enforcing, and prosecuting existing laws.

O'Neill Burke, for her part, said last week that partnerships with law enforcement are essential and distanced herself from the mayor's harsh language.

Speaking with a local news outlet about a different topic, the county's top prosecutor called Johnson's statement "disappointing and disheartening."

"We are part of law enforcement," she said of her office. "I have 1,300 people who work in this office, who are dedicated public servants, who get up every single day to make sure that they keep women safe from domestic violence, to make sure that we are doing our jobs in protecting children from being sex trafficked, to make sure that we are prosecuting murder cases. What we do every day does not call for our eradication."

Transportation Secretary presses CTA over crime problem, threatens federal support

Put transit worker, rider safety first

On Sept. 19, U.S. Transportation Secretary Sean P. Duffy called for immediate action and accountability from Chicago for their failure to keep riders and transit workers safe, and appears ready to tie federal financial support to improved security.

The Chicago Transit Authority [CTA] has come under federal scrutiny for its incidence of crime after an attack where a 27-year veteran of the CTA was punched and thrown onto the Blue Line tracks at the Grand station, after leaving his customer service booth.

The attacker, 23-year-old Amir Cordova, was later arrested and charged with aggravated battery after being identified via surveillance footage.

Chicago is third largest public transportation systems in the country in terms of ridership. Under the Illinois cashless bail system, deranged, violent criminals are now repeatedly terrorizing public transportation spaces, making citizens fearful of using public transportation. The most common crime was battery. Second was deceptive practices, such as bait-and-switch schemes or counterfeiting.

The CTA Green and Red Lines had the highest rates of crime per rider, with the most dangerous CTA stop - the Green Line's 63rd/Ashland stop - experiencing seven crimes per 100,000 riders, compared to 1.3 systemwide.

"While local leaders seem intent on putting the needs of criminals first, we're not waiting for the next Iryna," said Duffy referring to the Aug. 22 murder of Iryna Zarutka. He put Chicago on notice to "take actions that enhance safety and reduce the crime affecting their riders and transit workers - or risk federal support. American families deserve a safe and clean transportation system."

Research shows that the presence of police on public transportation deter, prevent or uncover more serious crimes through routine arrests, citations and stops for non-violent offenses such as fare evasion.

"Our focus is on a safe, clean transit experience for everyone using public transportation -- whether you're a worker helping people get where they need to go, a commuter relying on transit to get to work, or a parent helping your children get to and from school or other important appointments. We're making transit safe again," said Federal Transit Administrator Marc Molinaro.

In a letter to Acting CTA President Nora Leerhsen, Duffy notes their responsibility to put protections in place to keep transit workers and riders safe and secure. He has requested that the CTA submit written reports within 14 days, that identify what actions have been taken and are being taken by the transit agency to deter crime, stop fare evasion, and provide a clean environment for passengers riding its transit system, and in turn, return public confidence in CTA's transit system.

The CTA must also summarize all sources of funds for fiscal year 2025 and 2026 relating to security, safety, and any funds from Federal agencies, including any Dept. of Homeland Security funds.

Duffy is also pressing the public transportation systems in Washington D.C., New York City, Boston and Los Angeles

Lawsuit claims Cubs use facial recognition on fans without consent

BY CWBCHICAGO

Two fans have filed nearly identical federal lawsuits accusing the Chicago Cubs and their security contractors of secretly collecting facial recognition data from visitors at Wrigley Field without consent. The cases are expected to be consolidated.

In complaints filed days apart in Chicago, plaintiffs Gabriel Berta and Jill Lichte allege that the Cubs, Rosemont-based Blue Star Security, and Blue Star's parent company, Connecticut-based Protos Security, violated Illinois' Biometric Information Privacy Act [BIPA]. Both suits claim the organizations installed a sweeping surveillance network at Wrigley Field that generates and stores "faceprints" of fans and employees without disclosing the practice or obtaining the written consent that Illinois law requires.

According to the filings, the Cubs' security infrastructure includes Genetec's Security Center platform and SAFR facial recognition software, along with Tascant InSight Face scanners used for employee entry. The plaintiffs say this system captures detailed measurements of facial geometry that are stored in electronic databases.

Berta alleges his data was taken during a July 4, game, while Lichte says the same happened to her during games on May 25 and Aug. 17.

The lawsuits cite Blue Star's own public claims that it uses biometric scanners and facial recognition tools for "crowd control" and access restrictions at Wrigley Field. They also note that Major League Baseball's privacy policy references biometric collection but is not shared with fans at the ballpark.

Neither the Cubs nor their contractors provided game attendees with notice, written consent opportunities, or policies for how long biometric data would be stored or when it would be destroyed, the suits say.

Both cases seek to represent all fans whose biometric data was captured at Cubs games, with statutory damages of up to $5,000 per violation. If certified, the class could encompass thousands of fans and potentially expose the Cubs and their security vendors to millions of dollars in liability.

as part of an efforts by the federal government to demand transit systems address safety and fare evasion and to focus on reducing crime.

Home buyers could see 5.75% mortgage rates by Christmas fixed-rate mortgage average was 6.09%.

If mortgage rates drop by year's end to about 5.75% from the current 6.26%, the buyer of a $500,000 home in Chicago could save dollars.

Based on a $400,000 loan and 20% down payment of $100,000, the borrower's monthly principal and interest payment would be $2,334.29 at 5.75%. Today, at 6.26% the monthly payment would be $2,465.47. That's a monthly savings of $131.18, or nearly $1,600 a year.

If 30-year mortgage rates fell to 5%—a traditional housing market "sweet spot," the monthly payment on that $400,000 loan would decline to $2,147.29, a monthly savings of $318.18, or $3,816.54 per year.

Of course, property taxes, insurance, utilities and maintenance would have to be added to the monthly "nut" for the complete cost of homeownership.

"The mortgage-rate decrease is prompting many homeowners to refinance," noted Sam Khater,

Freddie Mac's chief economist. "In fact, the share of mortgage applications that were refinances reached nearly 60%, the highest since January 2022."

The survey found that the 15-year fixed loan average declined to 5.41%, down from 5.50% a week earlier.

The Freddie Mac survey is focused on conventional, conforming, fully amortizing home-purchase loans for borrowers who place a 20% down payment and have excellent credit.

The Fed's dream of reducing the nation's inflation rate to 2% never materialized because the labor market slowed. Inflation rose to 2.9% in July. The nation added 911,000 jobs in 2024 and the first few months of 2025.

However, between June through August this year, only 29,000 workers were hired. Analysts say President Donald Trump's international push to collect hefty tariffs likely torpedoed U.S. job formations. Time will tell.

Mortgage-rate history

Thirty-year fixed-mortgage interest rates have been on a roller-coaster ride the past few years. They ended 2020 at a rock-bottom 2.65%—the lowest level in the Freddie Mac survey history, which began in 1971. Home-loan rates set new record lows an amazing 16 times in 2020, and tens of thousands of homeowners refinanced.

Archives of the Federal Housing Finance Board show long-term mortgage rates in the 1960s were not much higher than the Great Depression, when lenders were charging 5% on five-year balloon loans.

Six decades ago, between 1963 and 1965, borrowers could obtain a mortgage at 5.81% to 5.94%. Between 1971 and 1977, the now-defunct Illinois Usury Law held rates in the 7.6%-to-9% range.

In the early 1980s, runaway inflation caused home-loan rates to skyrocket into the stratosphere.

According to Freddie Mac, benchmark 30-year mortgage rates peaked at a jaw-dropping 18.45% in October of 1981. Rates finally fell below 10% in April of 1986, and then bounced in the 9%-to-10% range during the balance of the 1980s.

Twenty-five years ago—in August 2000—when some of today's Millennial borrowers were still in diapers, lenders were quoting 8.04%.

Between 2002 and 2011, rates floated in the 4%-to-6% range. They inched down into the 3%-to-4% range until 2020, when they plummeted into the rock-bottom 2% bracket.

Rates hit 5% again in April 2022, then skyrocketed to 7.08% in Oct. 2022. They peaked at 7.79% in Oct. 2023, as the U.S. inflation rate grew to levels not seen since the late 1970s and early 1980s. Since then, rates have bounced in the low-7% and mid-to-upper 6% bracket.

Jerome Powell

Chicago home buyers could be handed a gift-wrapped present of a 5.75% mortgage rate for Christmas.

That's the crystal-ball gazing prediction from economists after the quarter-point interest rate reduction was voted by the Federal Reserve Board (Fed) on Sept. 17.

The move, which lowered the Fed's short-term cost of funds rate to about 4.1% from 4.6%, is the first interest cut since Dec. 2024. After the Fed's action, the federal funds rate now sits at a range of 4% to 4.5%, the lowest since Nov. 2022.

Fed officials, led by Chairman Jerome Powell, signaled they expect to reduce key rates twice more this year through two quarter-point reductions by year-end, dropping the federal-funds rate to a range of 3.5% to 3.75%. However, only one Fed rate reduction is forecast in 2026.

Economists are forecasting a 3.6% federal-funds rate by the end of 2025, 3.4% by the end of 2026, and 3.1% by the end of 2027. So, it is possible that home buyers could see 4% mortgage rates again in the next two years.

Analysts said lower interest rates will likely reduce borrowing costs for home mortgages, auto loans, credit-card interest and business loans—and boost growth and hiring in the nation's currently soft labor market.

On Sept. 18, a day after the Fed's rate cut, Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey reported that lenders nationwide were quoting an average of 6.26% on benchmark 30-year fixed loans, down from 6.35% a week earlier. A year ago, the 30-year

Redeveloping existing housing aggravates homelessness

BY JANE LAWICKI

While U.S. border closings have dramatically curbed illegal immigration, homelessness in Chicago continues at one of the highest points in two decades, according to the City's 2025 Annual Report on Homelessness.

Temporary reductions of people experiencing homelessness from 2024 to 2025 – where Chicago's Point-in-Time [PIT] Count, held each January, shows a 60% drop from 18,835 in 2024 to 7,452 in 2025 – belies growing problems related to higher taxes, increased rents, and gaps in affordable housing.

In 2019, the City identified 5,390 people as unhoused.

Post-pandemic housing and economic situations locally have strained low-income households and made it harder for people to remain in, or get housed. According to the Dept. of Family and Support Services, the PIT overview shows that on an average day in 2024, for every six people housed through existing resources, 40 people were new to experiencing homelessness.

"The issue is incredibly complex, and we live in a time when people often seek simple answers to complicated problems," explained retired Uptown Ald. James Cappleman, [46th] who served from 2011-2023. An advocate for the homeless, Cappleman introduced a City ordinance in May 2023, unanimously approved, that requires certain steps when closing an encampment, as well as the City's annual homelessness report.

The 2025 report notes recent successes, such as by Dec. 30, 2024, 222 households experiencing unsheltered homelessness had moved into housing, and 111 additional households were in progress to do so. The introduction of the One System Initiative – which merged programs for new arrivals and existing homeless as of Jan. 1, 2025 – also brought 3,800 new long-term beds into the shelter system.

"The housing that many people with little to no income rely on is rental units that take the Chicago Low Income Housing Trust Fund [CLIHTF], which is primarily financed by [new, market-rate] developers who pay an in-lieu fee rather than provide on-site affordable housing," retired Uptown Ald. James Cappleman explained.

However, the overwhelming majority of homeless people are extremely low-income, meaning they earn less than 30% of the area median income, approximately $25,000 for an individual. They – and the organizations established to help them – face new and ongoing challenges.

Uncertainties around federal funding or policy changes from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development loom large. And, according to the National Low Income Housing Coalition, Chicago experiences a gap of 126,000 affordable housing units. Resources and process to build affordable housing take 36 months on average. According to Cappleman, building affordable housing frequently costs two to three times more than market-rate housing to construct, a problem all over the country.

Building affordable housing costs significantly more than market-rate housing due to complex regulations, a fractured group of funders (called a "capital stack") with specific fee requirements, rigorous and costly sustainability and design standards, higher land and labor costs, and lengthy, uncertain approval processes that add to soft costs like legal and architectural fees. These combined factors—often driven by political policy—create a substantial cost gap, making projects reliant on government taxpayer funds to become feasible.

"The housing that many people with little to no income rely on is rental units that take the Chicago Low Income Housing Trust Fund [CLIHTF], which is primarily financed by [new, market-rate] developers who pay an in-lieu fee rather than provide on-site affordable housing," Cappleman explained.

Those fees are then folded into new market rate housing projects and passed onto the home buyers, as a pass-through tax on new home buyers.

"The reason that's often preferred is because on-site affordable housing must average around 60% of the Chicago Area Median Income [AMI], and most [homeless] people can't afford that. However, they can afford units with CLIHTF subsidies because they pay only 1/3 of their income to live in a unit, and these funds make up the other portion. In addition, close to a third of the renters of these units have zero income."

"The problem is that there is now less [new, market-rate] development, so the City is running low on the CLIHTF," Cappleman added.

"Here's what's often overlooked: since the 2008 mortgage crisis, it has become significantly more difficult for developers to secure loans, due to stricter federal lending requirements. When new market-rate developments aren't built, developers instead turn to purchasing naturally occurring affordable housing [NOAH]—privately owned units rented at or below 60% AMI—and convert them into high-end units. They're not doing this out of preference, but because lenders demand higher returns to justify the investment. Ironically, the fastest way to gentrify a neighborhood is to halt market-rate development—because that's when NOAH stock starts disappearing."

Grubhub to pay $7M to restaurants over improper platforming

BY SCOTT HOLLAND
Cook County Record

Grubhub has agreed to pay $7.1 million to restaurants behind a class action alleging the food delivery service falsely promoted partnerships with thousands of businesses.

Restaurants could get between $80 and $600 each from the deal, while plaintiffs' lawyers who filed the class action are seeking $2.3 million for themselves.

In an Aug. 26 filing, the business plaintiffs requested preliminary approval of an agreement they said will end nearly five years of litigation over what they call "Grubhub's decision to place thousands of restaurants on its platform without a contract in place," an action the restaurant proprietors claim "confused consumers into believing that the non-contracted restaurants were affiliated with Grubhub and endorsed its delivery services."

Grubhub denied any wrongdoing or liability and refuted the allegations that any business suffered damage through the claimed conduct. But the restaurants insisted Grubhub employed a strategy of listing scores of noncontracted restaurants on its service to show investors it was keeping up with competitors like DoorDash and Uber Eats. Because there was no partnership, the businesses claim, Grubhub users encountered outdated menus, canceled orders and delayed deliveries while the restaurants suffered reputational hits, lost direct control over dining experiences and their own online presences, and endured reduced demand.

The restaurants alleged Grubhub executives told investors the poor outcomes were intended to entice restaurants to engage in formal contracts in hope of improved business.

The benefit to Grubhub would be keeping about 30% from each order.

Through a deal reached in connection with federal Magistrate Judge Gabriel Fuentes, Grubhub will pay more than $7.15 million. Class members who submit valid claim forms can get $50 each and a prorated amount based on the amount of time any restaurant without a contract was nonetheless listed on the Grubhub platform. The median total payout is pegged at $685 with a 1% claims rate and $80 at a 10% claims rate. Restaurants can submit claims from Nov. 3, through March 4, 2026.

Attorneys representing the restaurants will move to be paid up to a third of the overall settlement pool, a sum exceeding $2.3 million, and be compensated for litigation expenses up to $150,000. Grubhub has retained the right to oppose the attorneys' application for that compensation. The motion calls for appointing attorney Rosemary Rivas, of Oakland, law firm Gibbs Mura; and attorney Elizabeth Fegan, of Fegan Scott, with offices in Chicago and New York, to serve as class counsel.

In addition to the payout, Grubhub acknowledged it must comply with a 2024 permanent injunction from a Chicago federal judge stemming from the Federal Trade Commission's settlement of its own litigation. According to the plaintiffs, who said the FTC's terms are similar to the relief they'd sought, the federal "injunction permanently prohibits Grubhub from advertising, marketing, displaying landing pages, listing menus or other content (such as open or closed status) or offering for sale or selling on Grubhub any perishable good or any good or service, from any restaurant of any kind that does not have an agreement with Grubhub to sell or offer to sell its goods or services on Grubhub."

Nine named corporate plaintiffs are seeking service awards of $20,000 each: Lynn Scott, The Farmer's Wife, Thuan Luu, Old Crown, 132 Degrees, MDR, Momobbq, Tasty and Iowa City Coffee Company. Each said they spent more than 200 hours on the lawsuit. Another corporate plain-

Nabil "Captain Bill" Adzal

$10K reward offered for info about the murder of 'Captain Bill' at DuSable Harbor

Cook County Crime Stoppers is offering up to $10,000 to help solve the murder of a well-known boat captain at DuSable Harbor late last month.

Nabil "Captain Bill" Adzal, 63, of Plainfield, was pulled from Lake Michigan in the early morning hours of Aug. 30 after multiple people called 911 to report a man had fallen off the harbor's "C" Dock, according to dispatch records.

Responders arrived just after 3 a.m. and Chicago Fire Dept. divers found him about 15 minutes later. He was rushed to Northwestern Memorial Hospital, where doctors pronounced him dead.

The next day, the Cook County Medical Examiner's Office ruled his death a homicide caused by drowning. That determination shifted the case to a criminal investigation.

Adzal, who was widely known in Chicago's boating community as "Captain Bill," was seen on surveillance video interacting with a small group of men shortly before he ended up in the water, according to reports.

Crime Stoppers is now offering up to $10,000 for information that leads to an arrest or indictment in the case. Tips can be submitted anonymously by calling 1-800-535-STOP or emailing TIPS@cookcountycrimestoppers.org. Anonymous tipsters will be given a code number to claim the reward if their information proves valuable.

Man caught with counterfeit postal keys, stolen credit cards, and meth — just like in July Mugshots of Andrew Trotter.

A Chicago man charged in July with having a counterfeit U.S. Postal Service master key, stolen mail, credit cards, and drugs in Logan Square skipped court, went missing for two months, and got arrested again last week in Logan Square with pretty much all of the same stuff, prosecutors say. But there is one difference between July and now: this time, Andrew Trotter had the word "Trust" etched across his forehead.

Trotter, 45, was arrested Sept. 15 in the 2400 block of N. Lawndale during a joint operation between the U.S. Postal Inspection Service and Chicago police. Officials said he was carrying two counterfeit postal keys, suspected methamphetamine, several stolen debit and credit cards, and a stolen passport.

Those master keys, also called "arrow keys," can unlock banks of residential mailboxes and postal service collection boxes across the city.

Monday's arrest was probably a bit of déjà vu for all of the involved parties.

Back on July 3, prosecutors alleged police caught Trotter in Logan Square as he carried, well, a counterfeit USPS master key, mail stolen from multiple people, more than 30 credit and debit cards, fraudulent IDs, burglary tools, and $2,600 worth of suspected meth.

Investigators at the time also reported recovering a handbag with screwdrivers and Allen wrenches, which they described as common burglary tools, along with U-Haul keys, IDs, and even a CTA employee badge that did not belong to him. Despite that haul, Trotter went home to await trial because the charges were not considered detainable offenses under the SAFE-T Act.

Now, he's back.

On Tuesday, Judge Luciano Panici Jr. ordered Trotter detained for violating the conditions of pretrial release in the July case.

Prosecutors have also slapped him with new charges stemming from items allegedly found when cops arrested him Monday: possession of methamphetamine, burglary, felony possession of burglary tools, misdemeanor attempted possession of burglary tools, misdemeanor theft, and misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia. Officials said additional charges may be filed as their investigation continues.

In a press release, postal inspectors said Trotter is suspected of being behind multiple mail thefts on the city's Northwest Side earlier this year.

Mail theft has become increasingly prevalent in recent years due to a combination of systemic vulnerabilities, low enforcement risk, and high financial reward.

One of the biggest drivers is the black-market circulation of counterfeit or stolen USPS master keys, commonly known as arrow keys. These keys can unlock entire banks of mailboxes in apartment buildings, commercial complexes, and even street-side collection boxes. Once a thief has one, they can hit dozens of addresses at once, often without forcing entry.

Mail is an easy source of sensitive personal and financial information. Thieves look for bank documents, credit cards, government IDs, tax and insurance records, and checks that they can alter for larger sums.

Some mail thieves operate as front-line personnel in much larger, sophisticated operations that launder money, steal identities, and sell personal information on the dark web.

While mail theft is technically a federal crime, prosecutions are almost always handled at the state level.

Probation for man who shoved paralyzed man in wheelchair into River North street

Security video footage of man shoving a partially paralyzed man into the street (Inset) Mugshot of Tristan Block.

A River North man who shoved a partially paralyzed man into the street during a bizarre downtown confrontation over a dog has avoided prison time by entering a guilty plea.

Court records show that 27-year-old Tristan Block pleaded guilty Sept. 17 to aggravated battery causing great bodily harm. Cook County Judge Aleksandra Gillespie sentenced him to 30 months of probation and ordered him to complete 40 hours of community service. As conditions of probation, Block must provide a DNA sample to a law enforcement database, submit to random drug testing, and remain in Illinois unless granted court permission to travel, records show.

The charge stemmed from an incident on July 22, 2023, at the intersection of Ontario and Wells. Prosecutors said Block was seen chasing a golden retriever that had run into traffic and a passerby stopped to help. But after the dog was safely back in Block's arms, the two men argued over whether Block was actually the dog's owner, prosecutors claimed.

The quarrel escalated. Prosecutors said Block punched the man who helped him catch the dog and then hurled a leash at a woman who had briefly lent it to him. A 26-year-old man using a wheelchair came out of a nearby restaurant to check on the commotion but was not involved in the dispute, prosecutors said. That was about to change.

According to prosecutors, Block shoved the man in the chest, sending his wheelchair off the curb and tipping it backward. Officials said the victim's head struck the pavement, leaving him bleeding and concussed. He sought treatment at a hospital and later reported that one of his hands, which already had limited mobility, went completely numb after the fall.

The entire incident was recorded by a city surveillance camera. At the time of his initial court hearing, Block's attorney, Hal Garfinkel, described the allegations as "troubling" and suggested that alcohol may have impaired his client's judgment. He also noted that Block had never been arrested before.

One dead in wrong-way crash on Lake Shore Dr.

A man was killed Sept. 16 after a wrong-way, head-on crash on Lake Shore Dr., Chicago police said.

The crash occurred at about 8:33 p.m. in the 4500-block of N. Lake Shore Dr. Police said a 53-year-old man driving a gray vehicle was traveling northbound when they entered the southbound lane and struck a black SUV.

The man driving the gray vehicle was transported to Illinois Masonic Medical Center, where he was later pronounced dead.

A 68-year-old man who was in the black SUV was transported to Illinois Masonic Medical Center in good condition.

SW Side man tried to leap over bench, threatened to kill city judge

A 30-year-old man from the Southwest Side is accused of taking courtroom drama to a whole new level by trying to leap over a judge's bench during an administrative hearing at the Chicago Central Hearing Facility, 400 W. Superior, storming out, and then calling 911 multiple times to say he was going to kill the judge.

Prosecutors say King Thomas of the 3800 block of W. 84th Place made his move on May 21 inside Courtroom 115 at the Chicago Central Hearing Facility, where the city handles Water Management cases and other bureaucratic battles.

During his hearing, prosecutors said in a complaint, Thomas "became angry and attempted to jump over [the judge's] bench."

After storming out of the building, Thomas allegedly picked up his phone and repeatedly dialed 911 to announce his plans to kill the 58-year-old judge.

A police report quotes him as saying he was going to do it because the judge didn't give him "a fair trial." Investigators quickly traced the calls back to Thomas' own phone, which he had conveniently listed in his court paperwork.

Chicago police say they recently received another call that Thomas had returned to the administrative hearings building. They found him in the area and took him into custody.

Cook County Associate Judge Ankur Srivastava ordered Thomas detained after noting that he is a multi-ple-time convicted felon with prior convictions for robbery, battery, and weapons violations.

At his second hearing this week, a courtroom observer, who didn't even know the details of Thomas' case, noted that both the judge and the county sheriffs were "being unusually cautious."

Thomas is charged with threatening a public official.

Man charged with attempted murder, shoved man onto tracks on CTA platform

On Sept. 16, David Norris, 42, was arrested and charged with felony counts of Attempt Murder First Degree, Aggravated Battery/Public Place and Aggravated Battery/Transit Employee.

David Norris

Norris was arrested at 4:50 p.m., in the 0-100 block of N. State St. He was identified as the offender who, earlier that day, while on a CTA platform pushed a 51-year-old male victim, causing him to fall onto the train tracks in the 100 block of N. Dearborn St. The offender was placed into custody and subsequently charged accordingly.

ATM skimming scheme fraudster gets sent to federal prison

Prosecutors said this ATM image shows Florin Tarta installing a skimming device at a Bank of America location in the Gold Coast. He is accompanied by Radu Farcas.

A Romanian man has been sentenced to six years and nine months in federal prison after jurors found him guilty of running a high-tech card-skimming operation that hit Bank of America ATMs in Chicago and New Jersey, stealing more than $177,000 from unsuspecting customers.

Federal prosecutors said Florin Nicolae Tarta, 40, traveled from Romania to the U.S. in 2023 and quickly linked up with fellow Romanians to carry out the fraud. Using specially built equipment, the group installed razor-thin metallic "skimmer" plates inside ATM card slots and concealed pinhole cameras above keypads to capture customer PINs. Several days later, the devices were removed, and stolen data was downloaded. Tarta and his crew re-encoded the information onto the magnetic strips of gift cards and scrawled victims' PINs on the back. The counterfeit cards gave them access to cash from real accounts at Bank of America branches across Illinois and New Jersey.

Federal authorities said that on Aug. 18, 2023, Tarta and co-defendant Radu Farcas were caught on surveillance video installing a skimmer at a Bank of America branch at 1167 N. State St. Days later, they allegedly used the stolen credentials to withdraw thousands of dollars. Similar setups appeared in Woodridge, Irving Park, and downtown Chicago in the fall of 2023, followed by cities in New Jersey.

The operation unraveled in March 2024 when detectives in Westfield, NJ, discovered a hidden camera at a drive-up Bank of America ATM. A bank technician dismantled the machine and Tarta's fingerprint was allegedly found on the device.

Late that night, Tarta returned to the ATM in the same clothes he had worn when installing the device. Cops who had staked out the ATM moved in. Prosecutors said he resisted arrest and dropped a wad of $100 bills totaling more than $5,000. Officers found Farcas waiting in a nearby car.

A federal jury in Chicago convicted Tarta earlier this year of bank fraud, access device fraud, and aggravated identity theft. Prosecutors said he compounded his crimes by lying under oath, claiming the camera he installed at an ATM was simply meant to "record his private life" and that he was testing "diamond sales advertising" materials.

Jurors rejected those explanations after seeing surveillance video and hearing testimony from Farcas, who admitted his role in the scheme and described how the crew split proceeds equally, according to prosecutors.

U.S. District Judge LaShonda A. Hunt handed down the 81-month sentence and ordered restitution of $177,280. Prosecutors said Farcas, 42, of London, pleaded guilty and received a 30-month sentence. Two additional accomplices were scooped up in the probe.

Ghost gun ties man to murder in Noble Square church parking lot

A 23-year-old man who listed his job as "security officer" is now charged with first-degree murder in a killing that unfolded in a church parking lot in Noble Square this summer.

Prosecutors say surveillance video and ballistics evidence tie Antwan McLaurin to the fatal shooting of 24-year-old Jimvonta Blossom on Aug. 2, just steps from McLaurin's home.

According to Assistant State's Attorney Jennifer Karr, video showed McLaurin leaving his residence around 11 p.m. and joining a nearby gathering where Blossom was present.

About 40 minutes later, Blossom got into a fight with a 50-year-old man, and the two struggled to control Blossom's .40-caliber handgun, Karr said. The weapon discharged, hitting the older man in the thigh.

As 911 calls flooded in, video captured Blossom walking toward the parking lot of Holy Trinity Polish Catholic Church, 1118 N. Noble and driving out of his parking spot.

Seconds later, McLaurin was seen entering the same lot with a gun as another vehicle blocked Blossom's vehicle in, Karr said. At that moment, McLaurin ran up to Blossom's car, aimed at the driver's side window, and fired a single shot before fleeing, according to Karr.

Blossom was struck in the head and died. His gun, jammed, was recovered from his waistband at Stroger Hospital.

Other footage allegedly showed McLaurin returning to his home minutes later.

After police recently arrested McLaurin, they executed a search warrant at his home and found a 9mm ghost gun in his bedroom along with clothing resembling what he wore the night of the killing, Karr said. Ballistics testing allegedly matched a casing recovered at the scene to that weapon. Judge Shauna Boliker ordered McLaurin detained pending trial.

Lincoln Park arrest exposes law that lets sex offenders become massage therapists

BY CWBCHICAGO

Did you know some registered sex offenders can become licensed massage therapists in Illinois? We didn't either, until a recent arrest in Lincoln Park sent us digging. And what we found is one of those "wait, how is this even possible?" stories that state lawmakers apparently don't want to talk about.

It all started late last month when prosecutors charged 40-year-old Nicholas Brown, a licensed massage therapist at Equinox Lincoln Common, 2355 N. Lincoln Ave., in Lincoln Park, with sexually abusing a male client during a massage.

Assistant State's Attorney Mike Pekara told Judge Luciano Panici, Jr., that Brown encouraged the client to get naked, then launched into a bizarre monologue about his "sexual preferences," saying he was divorced, polyamorous, went to sex clubs, and "would get aroused while taking 'shrooms.'" Pekara said Brown then escalated to unwanted touching, starting with "tickling the victim's upper thigh and buttocks" and continuing from there.

Pekara told the judge that Brown was convicted of criminal sexual assault in Wisconsin at age 15. Even though the case was later expunged, Pekara said, "The state police made clear to the defendant that although it was expunged, it wasn't vacated or set aside, so he does still have to register as a sex offender."

Panici granted the state's detention petition, citing Brown's status as a registered sex offender as one of the reasons for his decision. Brown has been in the Cook County jail ever since.

That's disturbing enough. But when we looked into Brown's background, we found something more.

Not only did Brown receive his state massage therapist license in Jan. 2015 while being a sex offender, but he was even convicted in Cook County of failing to register after getting the license. Years later, state regulators reprimanded him for not disclosing the Wisconsin case when he applied for his therapist's license. But Brown remained licensed, ultimately landing at Equinox last year.

It turns out that Illinois law says state regulators "cannot normally consider juvenile offenses or expunged convictions when making licensure determinations," according to a spokesperson for the Illinois Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation.

And that's how someone who had to register as a sex offender ended up licensed to touch people for a living.

But there's more. While Pekara told the court during Brown's detention hearing that Brown still had to register,

Days before fatal Mag Mile crash-and-grab, accused man posed with governor at 'peacekeeper' event — while wanted in four states

BY CWBCHICAGO

Less than a week before a crash-and-grab burglary crew killed an innocent man on the Magnificent Mile Sept. 11, one of the men now charged with that murder donned a "peacekeeper" uniform and posed for a one-on-one picture with Illinois Gov. JB Pritzker.

While that's troubling, some law enforcement experts are more concerned that the accused man was able to stand directly next to the state's most powerful executive despite having outstanding warrants in four states.

CWBChicago first reported on 35-year-old Kellen McMiller's role as a "peacekeeper" Sept. 13. Now, we have more detail, including a picture of McMiller posing with Pritzker—a photo that has apparently been scrubbed from the state's online press release about the West Side event.

Father-to-be killed

Just before 5 a.m. Sept. 11, a group of burglars backed a pickup truck into a display window at the Louis Vuitton store at 919 N. Michigan Ave. Video shows several men running through the shattered storefront and returning with trash bags filled with merchandise. Prosecutors said goods worth nearly $700,000 were stolen.

Chicago police arrived as the crew was loading into getaway cars. One of those vehicles, a black Kia, sped down Michigan Ave. at 77 mph, running red lights until slamming into a Honda CR-V at Ohio St., prosecutors claim. The driver of the Honda, 40-year-old Mark Arceta of Skokie, had a green light and was heading to his final shift at Northwestern Univ. before starting paternity leave. He was killed in the crash, and his wife gave birth to their son soon after.

Prosecutors said McMiller was one of five burglars in the Kia. He remained hospitalized yesterday for injuries from the crash.

Just six days earlier, McMiller and Pritzker posed side-by-side for a picture as the governor met with "peacekeepers" in Englewood. In a press release issued later that day, the governor's office called the group "'trusted messengers' in the community."

"It's folks like these that we need more of doing the hard work of community violence prevention," Pritzker said on Facebook, "not troops on the ground to undermine efforts fighting crime."

That press release also included a photo of McMiller posing with Pritzker, but it was quickly removed after officials learned that he was being charged in connection with Arceta's death. Despite its removal, the image remained accessible on Google until earlier this week.

Former Riverside Police Chief Tom Weitzel is skeptical about the effectiveness of "peacekeeping" programs and called the governor's advance team "incompetent" for allowing Pritzker to pose at an anti-violence event with a man wanted in four states.

"Over the years, they have allocated millions of dollars to the peacekeepers program, yet there are no positive outcomes to demonstrate from a data perspective," Weitzel said Sept. 17. "It appears to be another feel-good program, with many participants having prior convictions for violent felonies."

Ten-day festival features artists from 15 countries

The city last week announced the music lineup for the 2025 World Music Festival Chicago, taking place Friday, Sept. 26 through Saturday, Oct. 5. The festival recognizes the contributions and artistry of musicians from around the world, hailing from 15 countries and regions.

From the Chicago Cultural Center to Navy Pier, the 25th World Music Festival Chicago will take place in 12 citywide venues, including a sunset to sunrise Ragamala event. Throughout the 10-day festival, musical genres from geographical regions including Colombia, Vietnam, Egypt, Bosnia and more will be presented for free to the public.

As a kickoff to the festival, the country's largest all-night presentation of live Indian classical music, Ragamala returns for its 13th year at the Chicago Cultural Center, 78 E. Washington St., Preston Bradley Hall. Ragamala gives guests the opportunity to hear the ragas (traditional scales or modes) during the early morning and late-night hours as the instruments were meant to be played.

The Ragamala celebration takes place throughout the Chicago Cultural Center from Friday, Sept. 26 at 6 p.m. through Saturday, Sept. 27 at 8 a.m.

A Global Peace Party at Navy Pier celebrates global peace with performances from 2 to 8 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 5, closing out the festival.

"Chicago has always created and celebrated diverse and inspiring music," said Cmsr. Clinée Hedspeth of the Chicago Dept. of Special Events. "Through music, we will continue to unite Chicagoans and visitors from all around the world. This festival grants us the opportunity to introduce audiences to new cultures and demonstrate music's influence on humanity."

Full schedule canoe found at WorldMusicFestivalChicago.org.

Twin houses designed by Walter Burley Griffin at 5917 and 5921 N. Magnolia are examples of Prairie School architecture. The Emil Bach House at 7415 N. Prairie School architecture program at Edgewater Library Sept. 27

If you walked past the twin houses at 5917 and 5921 N. Magnolia, you're familiar with Walter Burley Griffin's work. The two Prairie School wood and stucco houses, which were built in 1908, are on the National Register of Historic Places and are designated as a Chicago landmark.

A historical presentation, "The Prairie School: From Edgewater to India, By Way of Australia," will be presented on Saturday, Sept. 27, from 2 to 3 p.m. at the Edgewater Branch library, 6000 N. Broadway.

The program will highlight the lives and architecture of Walter Burley Griffin and his wife, Marion Mahoney Griffin. The couple worked with Frank Lloyd Wright and were influenced by Louis Sullivan. Even before winning the international competition to design Canberra, the capital city of Australia, the pair was uniquely influential to the architecture of the early 1900s.

The free program is a partnership with the library and Friends of the Edgewater Library. The presenter, Douglas Snider, AIA, an architect and Griffin enthusiast, will include an overview of the Griffin's work and highlight their lasting legacies in the world of design.

Bach is back at St. Vincent de Paul Church

Chicago's Bach in the City [BIC], led by music director Richard Webster, has announced its 2025-2026 debut concert season, comprising three Baroque music programs featuring period instruments. BIC opens its season with a concert 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 3, at St. Vincent de Paul Church, 1010 W. Webster Ave.

The primary purpose of BIC is to present the choral, orchestral, and chamber music of Johann Sebastian Bach and other composers whose music would come to life in the splendid acoustic and visual setting of the historic Lincoln Park church.

What makes these shows unusual is that the musicians are fully committed to period instruments. It is a "180-degree turn" from the mainly modern-instrument approach of the organization's predecessor, says Webster. "We decided to make a fresh start and leap into the vanguard of Baroque performance."

The season opens with "Music in Heaven's Castle," a reference to Germany's Himmelsburg castle church, where J.S. Bach premiered an innovative sacred cantata. In addition to music by Bach, the program includes works by Georg Philipp Telemann and Georg Muffat.

A January 11 chamber concert, "Bach's Musical World," brings two of Telemann's "Paris Quartets" for flute and strings, plus trios by Bach, Dieterich Buxtehude, and George Frideric Handel.

The finale and showpiece of Bach in the City's first full season will be the March 20 Chicago premiere of the critically acclaimed, recently reconstructed version of J. S. Bach's lost St. Mark Passion, BWV 247, by British musicologist Malcolm Bruno, with Webster composing the speech-like recitatives and crowd ("turba") chorus parts.

"To the best of our knowledge, this will be the first time any version of the St. Mark Passion has been presented in Chicago," said Webster.

BIC also announced that Jason J. Moy has been appointed to the new post of associate music director. Moy is professor at DePaul University's School of Music and leader of several early music ensembles. Moy's stamp, Webster says, includes the organization's commitment to period instruments and to offering opportunities for talented, rising young artists to be seen and heard.

BIC's programming takes advantage of the spaciousness, resonant acoustics, and visual aesthetics of St. Vincent de Paul Church, the organization's home venue. The historic, Romanesque Revival-style church's layout, almost as wide as it is long, brings audience members closer to the performers for a more intimate experience.

Listeners will hear J. S. Bach's music in the context of works by some of his contemporaries and one of his greatest influences at "Bach's Musical World," a chamber concert 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 11, 2026 at Allen Recital Hall in DePaul University's Holtschneider Performance Center, 2330 N. Halsted St.

For the season finale, BIC will present what it believes will be the first Chicago performance of any version of J. S. Bach's St. Mark Passion. The concert will take place at 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 20, 2026 at St. Vincent de Paul Church.

Listeners will listen to the local premiere of Malcolm Bruno's new reconstruction of Bach's lost masterpiece from 1731, of which the libretto survives but not Bach's original score. Bruno's reconstruction comprises music that Bach likely recycled for use in his St. Mark Passion. Bruno's reconstruction received its New York premiere in April.

Single tickets range from $10 to $45. Discounted multi-concert ticket bundles also are available. For more information visit www.bachinthecity.org or call 312-273-9834.

GRUBHUB from p. 5

tiff, The Tin Pig, will seek $7,000 for 70 hours since filing a complaint in late 2023.

"There are many questions of law and fact that are common to the proposed settlement Class," according to the motion for approval. "These include whether defendant's inclusion of unaffiliated restaurants on its platform was likely to cause consumer confusion as to the restaurant's affiliation with Grubhub; whether and how much they profited from including unaffiliated restaurants on its website and mobile apps without a contract in place; whether Grubhub engaged in false advertising by including unaffiliated restaurants on its website and mobile apps without a contract in place; whether Grubhub engaged in false advertising by stating that deliveries from non-partnered restaurants are available on Grubhub; whether Grubhub's actions violated the Lanham Act; and the nature of the relief, including damages and equitable relief, to which plaintiffs and the settlement class members are entitled."

for their thoughts. They did not respond.

We also asked former Chicago mayoral candidate Rep. Kam Buckner [26th] and Sen. Robert Peters [13th], one of the champions of the state's criminal justice "reform" efforts, for their thoughts. They did not respond, either.

So, here's where Illinois stands right now: A sex offender who committed the sex crime as a juvenile can get a massage therapist license. Employers can't legally reject them just because they're a sex offender. And lawmakers are silent about whether any of that should change.

'PEACEKEEPER' from p. 7

ments would significantly impact crime reduction, of that I am certain," the retired chief added.

Told that Pritzker posed for a picture with McMiller, Weitzel replied, "The governor's advanced team is incompetent."

"I know that some people approach politicians and ask to take a picture, but if the photo is posed, it reveals an absolute lack of due diligence on the part of the governor's team, in my opinion."

When CPD announced charges last weekend against McMiller—mistakenly identifying him as "Keller McMillan"—and six other men in connection with the fatal crash-and-grab, the department said he had four outstanding warrants. According to Cook County Circuit Court records, three of those were from out of state: one each in Florida, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

Exactly what McMiller is wanted for in those states was not immediately clear. However, a 2021 NBC Miami news story shows he and a female companion were tased by police and arrested in a caught-on-camera altercation while visiting South Beach.

The Miami Herald Newspaper said McMiller was accused of throwing a bottle of Hennessy at an officer's squad car before getting into a confrontation with a cop that ended with McMiller being sent to the ground by a taser discharge. He was charged with battery of an officer, resisting an officer with violence, and carrying an open container of alcohol, the outlet reported.

Locally, McMiller is charged with murder during the commission of a forcible felony, burglary, and felony theft in connection with the crash-and-grab and death of Arceta.

LAW from p. 7

we have secured a 2019 letter from the Illinois State Police to Brown that said, because he had the juvenile matter expunged in 2018, he no longer had to register. When we pressed the State's Attorney's Office about whether Brown is actually required to register, they directed us to ISP. When we asked ISP, they wouldn't answer because it's a juvenile case.

On Sept. 2, a couple of days after Brown was detained, IDFPR slapped a chaperone requirement on Brown's license, meaning he couldn't see clients unless someone else was in the room. Then, a week later, IDFPR suspended his license altogether, saying Brown failed to comply with the chaperone order—even though Brown has been in jail since the end of August.

This raises another concern: employment law. If a licensed massage therapist who is also a registered sex offender applies for a massage job, an employer who flat-out rejects them for their criminal record could be breaking state law.

This raises another concern: employment law. If a licensed massage therapist who is also a registered sex offender applies for a massage job, an employer who flat-out rejects them for their criminal record could be breaking state law.

"If the state gave him a license, who am I to say his background is disqualifying?" said the manager of a Lakeview health club not connected to Brown's case. Instead, the manager said, they'd come up with "another excuse" not to hire a sex offender as an applicant.

So we asked lawmakers—the ones who represent Lincoln Park and some who've been leading the state's criminal justice "reform" movement—if they think the law should change so sex offenders can't become massage therapists. We also wondered if they thought employers should be able to deny a sensitive job like massage therapist based on an applicant's status as a sex offender.

Sen. Sara Feigenholtz [6th] and Rep. Margaret Croke [12th] represent the neighborhood around the Lincoln Park Equinox location. We told them about this case and asked previous aldermen Mary Ann Smith and Harry Osterman. It is the Mayor, DPD, and Ald. Manaa-Hoppenworth that are upending policy-making by making this a developer-driven process.

Markowski explained that the enviable goal of achieving affordable housing is unrealistic under present economic and political conditions. New Broadway affordable units built by the private market will likely be limited to studio and 1-bedroom units, not 2-bedroom or larger units required for families.

The newly approved Bickerdike affordable housing building set for 5833 N. Broadway was only accomplished because of governmental subsidies from the city and state.

Its 90-units in the 11-story building will be 100% affordable. However it cost $73,000,000 to build or $800,000-plus per unit. Claiming that a unit costing $800,000 to build is 'affordable' is ridiculous. It was financed by a $3.3 million bank loan – 5% of total cost and $70 million in city and state taxpayer subsidies. It also received bargain-rate land costs on the former city-owned 48th Ward Streets and Sanitation site.

Similar sweetheart building deals will not be duplicated by private developers.

People seeking "affordable" sites will be eligible with income up to the 60% of the Area Median Income [AMI]. Maximum incomes are 1 person $50,400; 2 person $57,600; 3 person, $64,800, and up to $77,700 for 5 people.

able housing sites, studio rent will be approx. $1,224, 1BR at $1,301, 2BR at $1,557, and 3BR at $1,794.

Mindy Turbov, a former Deputy Commissioner at the Chicago Dept. of Housing and Director of HUD's Choice Neighborhood Program delved into the effect upzoning will have on the rental market.

Developers will likely build 2-3 bedroom units to maximize profits. An increase in higher rents in new buildings will drive up rental prices in existing units. In the last 15 years, Uptown rents have more than doubled concurrently with 2,000 new units under the same upzoning now proposed for Edgewater.

Upzoning will drive up property taxes which will be passed on to tenants. Homeowners will see tax increases, as will small businesses who will see major increases following property acquisitions.

One major effect of upzoning will be the loss of small buildings with small businesses and naturally-occurring affordable housing on upper floors. New developments will have higher rental rates leading to vacant storefronts or national chains, medical offices, or other professional services.

To date, we've yet to see the DPD come close to assembling a panel of equivalent experts to factually present the upside of upzoning – just a pipedream of new mid-rise buildings, significantly higher density, 'affordable' rents, and rainbow-colored unicorns frolicking on Broadway. In fact, even getting DPD to convene informative presentations on their Broadway Upzoning Framework appears to be beyond their capabilities.

Mayor Brandon Johnson supports the upzoning plan as he sees it as a remedy to balance the books in his cash-strapped city. Yet Johnson fled an Andersonville event in June when Tribune reporter Jake Sheridan posed a question on the Broadway upzoning framework.

And Ald. Manaa-Hoppenworth appears hapless as she has cut dialogue with ERRD and sided with Mayor Johnson and DPD on destroying Broadway as it is today. She has reversed by fiat the time-tested work accomplished by then-Aldermen Mary Ann Smith and Harry Osterman in preserving the unique characteristics of Broadway and Edgewater.

Rookie Ald. Manaa-Hoppenworth may not understand that compromise in political leadership is a complex process of mutual concession that builds trust, and that collaboration is necessary for effective governance. Cutting off dialogue with community representatives who represent a large swath of her ward is also bad for retention. Those who present a rational alternative shouldn't be shunned.

The proponents of City Hall's framework to upzone the Broadway Corridor have resorted to deliberately spreading disinformation about ERRD's commitment to affordable housing and diversity in the community. This newspaper has declined to reprint the vacuous claims made in those fliers.

Between Devon and Foster avenues, Broadway would be upzoned to B3-5. However, the west side of Broadway between Balmoral and Foster avenues would be upzoned to B3-3. The Zoning Committee is now expected to take up the matter at its Oct. 14 meeting. For more information on the ERRD 'Win-Win Roadmap for Broadway in Edgewater,' visit saveedgewater.com.

the next possession with at 6-yard touchdown run by Shamrocks' senior running back Anthony Catron.

Midway through the third quarter, the game stopped after St. Patrick lined up for a game-tying extra point. A Rams' defensive lineman was carted off the field after the long 40-minute delay.

Late in the fourth quarter, one could feel the momentum change. The Shamrocks' run game took charge after punishing the Rams all night long.

With 2:47 remaining and the score 28-24, despite being stopped by the Rams on the previous drive, St. Patrick's ground game offense moved that ball down to the 6-yard line. With 44 seconds remaining, Shamrock's junior running back Jayden Miranda smashed his way up the middle for the winning touchdown.

"I don't think I could put it into words. How far they've come in one year, just from the wintertime," Zbikowski said of his team after the game.

"The resiliency that they have and what they're willing to go through to win. I'm almost speechless."

The Shamrocks are 3-1 on the young season and 1-0 in the Chicago Catholic League/East Suburban Catholic Conference's Purple Division. The future looks bright for Zbikowski and his Shamrocks.

"One game at a time. It's a good start," Zbikowski added. "We've got to keep rolling. We got to keep getting better. We've got a long road to go."

Some readers may remember Zbikowski from his days as a star linebacker for the Univ. of Notre Dame in the 2000s. He also had five seasons in the NFL with the Baltimore Ravens, Indianapolis Colts and Chicago Bears.

Now, Zbikowski has bought into St. Pat's and St. Pat's has bought into Zbikowski.

"It's a great school. It's a special place, the alumni, the people that go here. The people I was on the fire department with that went to St. Pat's. It's a certain kind of persons. It's hard to explain it. They believe in themselves and they believe in the school."

DePaul Prep's coach Mike Passarella was not as exuberant as Zbikowski after the game for obvious reasons.

"Struggling right now; struggling in the finish," said Passarella.

"Fourth quarter was kind of the entire game. Not being able to put the ball in the end zone. Not being able to tackle and stop drives. I think this just shows our youthfulness right now."

The Rams are coming off a state championship in the 4A class last year. Last year's talented senior class were with Passarella all four years and put together a dream season after rallying from losing records before Passarella took over.

"You can tell we have moments, but we can't finish right now. And that's a problem. When you have a lead then a couple of missed field goals, left six points and everything else. You have to finish the game. We just weren't able [to do it] offensively with the same stuff, and then it gives them the momentum. They score. A couple silly penalties. It's a lack of composure which shows our maturity, and lack of the mental state, and where things are at," Passarella added.

doors in time to foil the attack.

CPD quickly released surveillance video of the attacker and identified Bramwell as their prime suspect. U.S. Marshals took Bramwell into custody about three weeks later after receiving a tip that he was riding a passenger bus north of Houston.

Now, all of those cases have been resolved with a set of plea agreements.

On July 18, the sixth anniversary of the DePaul attack, Bramwell pleaded guilty to attempted murder, attempted aggravated kidnapping with bodily harm, and multiple counts of aggravated battery. Judge Steven Watkins sentenced him Sept. 19 to 25 years for the attempted murder with 20 consecutive years for the kidnapping charge. Watkins handed down a 10-year concurrent sentence for the battery charges.

Watkins also sentenced him to seven years for arson on Sept. 19. In April, the judge handed him 12 years for aggravated vehicular hijacking and kidnapping for the Fremont St. attack. Those sentences will be served concurrently.

In addition to the gun case Bramwell was on parole for at the time of the crime spree, he received three concurrent prison terms in 2012: six years for residential burglary, six years for robbery, and three years for domestic battery causing bodily harm.

his will to create the statue, which was to be located in Mr. Lincoln's namesake Lincoln Park. The statue was dedicated on Oct. 22, 1887.

On the day after the dedication of the Standing Lincoln, The Chicago Daily Tribune describes the scene: "Since the night of the great fire Lincoln Park has never contained within the same area so many human beings as thronged its plains, clustered under its trees, and in every variety of vehicle crowded its roadways yesterday afternoon."

Now, through private donor support and in partnership with the Chicago Park District, the monument was carefully inspected, cleaned, restored, and tuck-pointed. The Conservancy also raised funds to create the formal gardens that lead from North Ave. to the base of the statue.

As the 250th anniversary of the founding of the United States (America250) approaches, the Conservancy has chosen to renew its commitment to this historic national treasure. Plans include critical repair and restoration of the statue and exedra, enhanced educational programming, and improved security measures to ensure its preservation for future generations.

In the coming months, the Conservancy plans to announce more details about their effort to restore and protect this world-renowned work of art.

Organizers and supporters see this as more than a restoration project— but as also an investment in heritage, civic identity, and the values for which Lincoln stood. The proposed improvements of the entire portion of South Lincoln Park hope to help make this historic section of Lincoln Park a cohesive, attractive, and sustainable place for visitors of all ages and abilities to enjoy.
