Mayor goes on charm campaign selling next budget

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Some 319 deskbound patrolmen will soon be hitting the streets as part of a cost savings measure included in Mayor Rahm Emanuel's proposed upcoming city budget.

But that won't mean North Side districts will be losing those officers to higher-crime areas on the South or West sides, said Chicago's budget director Alex Holt and Carole Brown, the city's chief financial officer during a conference call last week with a group of local news reporters.

"After a period of retraining, (most of) those officers will be returned to the districts from whence they came, with maybe a portion being sent to tactical teams," Brown said, adding that less-costly civilians will be hired for the office jobs.

"These were all positions where someone needed to do the jobs, which don't require a gun or a badge. You don't need a gun or badge to respond to FOIA (Freedom of Information Act) request," Brown said.

Brown and Holt, however, said they couldn't say whether there would be other transfers from the North Side to more crime-ridden areas on the other side of town. "That would be up to (Supt. Garry McCarthy). That would be a little outside our wheelhouse," she added.

The Townhall 19th District on Addison St. has seen a dramatic drop in staffing since it was combined with the old 23rd District once located at Belmont and Western. Covering parts of Lincoln Park, Uptown, Lakeview, North Center and Lincoln Square, aldermen located in those service areas have been asking McCarty and the mayor for nearly two years -- with no success -- to have staffing levels boosted to meet the rash of quality of life crimes that are now plaguing the North Side.

But the effort has been falling on deaf ears. Mayor Emanuel's own security detail ironically draws police out of the Townhall district exacerbating the police shortages his neighbors suffer through every day.

These and other measures, Holt

Ald. Osterman to host town hall meetings

Alderman 'very concerned' about mayor's budget proposal

Ald. Harry Osterman [48th] will host a series of town hall meetings in October.

The first is at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8, at Unity Lutheran Church, 1212 W. Balmoral Ave., followed by a session at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13, at Senn High School, 5900 N. Glenwood Ave., at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 14, at the Somerset Place Apartments, 5009 N. Sheridan Rd., and at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 15, at Emanuel Congregation, 5959 N. Sheridan Rd.

Osterman will begin all of the meetings with a "state of the ward" presentation, after which he will respond to questions on any subject, including the 2016 budget proposed Sept. 22 by Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel.

In the budget proposal, Osterman says, Emanuel looks to address police and fire pension obligations with a property tax increase of $543 million over four years combined with new fees on garbage collection, e-cigarettes, ride-sharing services and taxis.

"I'm very concerned about the magnitude of the proposed property tax and the effect it would have on renters, homeowners and small businesses in our community," Osterman said in a newsletter to his ward. "My city council colleagues and I will be spending the next month going through the budget process, and we will be working together to look for alternative ways to increase revenue to fund city government and provide important city services."

Osterman said the mayor also is looking to increase savings by eliminating 150 vacant positions, moving to a grid sweeping system and enacting tax increment financing reform, among several other proposals.

At the same time, Osterman continued, the mayor is calling for some new investments, including continued expansion of after-school programming and reassignment of more than 300 police officers currently performing desk jobs back to street patrol duty.

"I welcome your ideas and feedback," he wrote.

For more information call Osterman's office at 773-784-5277.

Speeding in Illinois

Land of Lincoln second strictest state for speeding and reckless driving

BY KEVIN HARMON

Considering all the laws that have come into effect in this state in recent years – the ban on texting and driving, no hand held phone usage while driving, the increase in the speed limit and the emphasis on making this a more bike-friendly place, it should come as no surprise that the Land of Lincoln is the second strictest state when it comes to speeding and reckless driving. If you drive down any of the busy thru streets in the areas on the North Side, you know that speeding is a problem despite all the congestion.

According to WalletHub, a personal finance website than conducted a 2015 analysis of the nation's strictest and most lenient states on speeding and reckless driving, Illinois is cracking down on offenders. WalletHub analyzed penalties for speeding and reckless driving in each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia across 12

The potential penalty for any Class B misdemeanor is 180 days in the county jail and a $1,500 fine.

key metrics, among them ranges from what speeds are automatically considered reckless driving, to how many speeding tickets it takes to earn an automatic license suspension. WalletHub has other rankings including the best and worst cities to be a driver, the strictest and most lenient states on those getting driving under the influence tickets and the best and worst states for teen drivers

With one being the strictest and 25 equaling average, Illinois ranks high in several speeding

Former owner of Edgewater Medical Center pleads guilty

The former owner of Edgewater Medical Center, 5700 N. Ashland, pleaded guilty last week to a federal perjury charge stemming from his efforts to thwart attempts by the U.S. and a creditor to collect more than $188 million in civil judgments.

Peter G. Rogan admitted that he lied in a federal affidavit when he denied controlling millions of dollars in a trust account in the Bahamas, according to a written plea agreement. Rogan acknowledged that he had control over the money and its distribution to beneficiaries, and that he had established the trust to protect his assets from judgment creditors.

Rogan also admitted that he willfully violated several court orders in a bank creditor lawsuit, when he made – and caused his legal counsel to make – false representations to the Court about his control over the offshore trust.

His false statements in the affidavit and his willful disobedience of Court orders were intended to prevent the U.S. government and the bank creditor from collecting more than $188 million in combined civil judgments arising from fraud during Rogan's tenure as CEO of the now-shuttered hospital, according to the plea agreement.

Rogan, 69, formerly of Valparaiso, IN, pleaded guilty to one count of perjury. Under the terms of the plea agreement, Rogan faces a sentence of 12 to 21 months in prison. U.S. District Judge Harry D. Leinenweber scheduled a sentencing hearing for Oct. 14.

Rogan once owned Edgewater Medical Center and later sold it, but he continued to manage the facility through various companies he owned. The hospital closed in 2001 amidst a federal criminal investigation that resulted in the healthcare fraud convictions of a Rogan-owned management company, a hospital administrator and several doctors, the latter of whom performed medically unnecessary surgical procedures and treatments on unsuspecting patients, two of which resulted in deaths.

State to suspend mailing vehicle registration renewal reminders over budget stalemate

Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White announced Monday that his office will suspend mailing out vehicle registration renewal reminder notices to the public due to the lack of a state budget.

White noted that by suspending this service, which will save approximately $450,000 per month, his office will be able to prolong the ability to mail vehicle registration renewal stickers, titles and license plates to vehicle owners for a few months longer before the postage account is depleted.

“The lack of a Fiscal Year 2016 budget is adversely impacting the Secretary of State’s office, and threatens to jeopardize the services we provide to the public,” said White. “Without a state budget in place, we are doing what we can to manage so that we may serve the people of Illinois for as long as possible. As a result, difficult decisions like suspending renewal reminder notice mailings are decisions we are being forced to make.”

White also noted if the office’s postage account runs out before January, he will be unable to mail the annual license to auto dealers, which they need to operate in Illinois legally, as well as critical incorporation paperwork needed for businesses in Illinois.

Vehicle owners are encouraged to be mindful of their vehicle registration status to ensure they renew in a timely manner and avoid driving on expired vehicle stickers. To sign up for electronic notification Illinois residents can visit www.cyberdriveillinois.com.

Judge: ‘Chicago’s differing regulations of Uber vs taxis may violate equal protection’

BY JONATHAN BILYK
Cook County Record

Cab drivers in the city of Chicago have long claimed City Hall’s treatment of ride-sharing services like Uber and Lyft, compared to how it treats the city’s taxi drivers, is unfair.

Now, Chicago’s cabbies will have the chance to press that claim in court, after a federal judge said a lawsuit brought by taxi drivers asserting the city has more harshly regulated taxi drivers, while letting ride-sharing service providers off easy, potentially violating constitutional guarantees of equal protection under the law, may have some gas left in the tank.

On Sept. 22, U.S. District Judge Sharon Johnson Coleman rejected the city of Chicago’s motion to dismiss the entirety of a lawsuit brought by the Illinois Transportation Trade Assoc. – a political advocacy group representing Chicago’s taxi drivers – and a number of holders of Chicago taxi medallions.

The lawsuit centers on an ordinance adopted by the city in 2014 to regulate the ride-sharing services, legally known as “transportation network providers [TNP].” Taxi drivers said the ordinance subjects the TNP drivers and the companies with which they are affiliated to a much lesser standard than the city applies to taxi drivers.

The taxi drivers note the city requires them to each purchase and maintain a taxi license, known as a medallion. Because the city limits the number of medallions available, the medallions can often take on inflated values. The court documents note the medallions recently have sold at auction for at least $360,000 or more.

Taxi drivers must also pay the city $1,200 annually, and taxi affiliations must pay $500 each year, plus $15 for each affiliated medallion.

Taxi drivers must carry city-mandated minimum insurance and taxi drivers must also undergo required background checks and drug screenings administered by the city, and submit their vehicles to city inspections, among other “onerous” requirements.

Further, the city sets the maximum meter rates taxi drivers can charge.

By contrast, the TNPs need only pay the city $10,000 annually, no matter how many vehicles it puts on city streets; are required to carry less insurance; and are not subject to city-administered background checks, drug screenings or vehicle inspections, among other differences.

In the lawsuit filed in Feb. 2014, the taxi drivers asserted the differences in the city’s regulations, which they allege make it easier to operate a TNP than a cab service, drive down the value of their medallions, amounting to an unconstitutional taking of the taxi drivers’ property and a breach of contract, as well as an equal protection violation.

Coleman dismissed the cab drivers’ takings and breach of contract claims, agreeing with the city’s assertions the city’s ordinance governing taxis did not create a guaranteed value for the medallions, nor a guarantee the taxi drivers would not ever face competition from other transportation services, like Uber and Lyft.

However, Coleman said the taxi drivers have a much clearer legal road ahead when pressing their allegations the dueling ordinances create an environment in which the city, without legal justification, regulates the TNPs differently from cab services.

“The City regulates taxis and (ride-sharing services) differently in the following areas, among others: background checks, drug tests, vehicle age, maintenance and inspection, insurance, annual fees, and unregulated fares,” Coleman said. “In all these areas the requirements for taxis are far more onerous than for TNPs.”

While taxi drivers would still need to prove their case in later proceedings, Coleman said, for now, the city has not demonstrated any “material differences justifying disparate treatment of taxis and TNPs,” as “each provides for-hire transportation within the city of Chicago, rides can be pre-arranged for a set time, hailed, or virtually-hailed through an app, consumers are contractually bound to pay for the services and may do so by credit card.”

“This Court fails to see how any of the purported differences relate to the stated rationale such that it justifies maintaining substantially heavier burdens on taxis for training, qualifications, drug testing, vehicle condition, insurance, and fees,” Coleman wrote in her opinion. “Both the purported differences between taxis and TNPs and their relationship to the stated rational appear utterly arbitrary to this Court.”

And Honey, they'll miss you

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

They nicknamed her “Honey,” because she was so sweet and nurturing.

“She was still ‘Aunt Honey’ to her many nieces and nephews,” said her daughter, Darlene Huston. “She was a nurturing type of woman.

“My mother never said no to a request,” said Darlene. “She’d find a way to help you out, even if it was a tough request for help. She wasn’t the type to sit and do nothing.”

“She didn’t like being idle,” added Darlene. “She always had projects going on around the house.”

Besides being the family’s rock and one very busy bee, Honey, whose real name was Hobie Speights Huston, was also as warm, sunny, bright and beautiful as the September day on which she peacefully died at age 83. Darlene, who is also a former co-worker of mine from the Lerner Newspapers, said that her mother was simply “the best.”

“She made me dresses, pant suits for school, helped out with the PTA, made curtains for my fifth grade teacher; showed up for a talent school high school talent show—where a classmate streaked; made my bridesmaids dresses, her dress for my wedding,” recalled Darlene.

“When I was seven, I came home from church and asked if I could get a piano,” Darlene reminisced. “She said yes and said I’d have to take lessons. She also told me that I would enjoy having taken piano lessons when I got old. She said I could entertain myself by playing the piano as an old person.

“She did all she could for my brother, Milton, and me—and that was a lot,” said Darlene. “She never complained about not having time for herself.”

Born on May 21, 1932, in the tiny town of Panola (a name derived from the Native American word for cotton), Alabama, Hobie Speights Huston was the youngest of five children born to Chester and Annie (Chapman) Speights. Her family was filled with sharecroppers, and after a hard day’s work in the fields, they’d come home and let loose with some good laughs by turning on the radio in their “little shack with a peach tree in front,” and listen to Minnie Pearl crack jokes on the Grand Ole Opry.

Hobie graduated from Panola’s North Sumter High School in 1951, where she was a proud member of the Girls Basketball team. After receiving her diploma, she soon moved to Chicago to find work.

Here, she reconnected with and married Earlie H. Huston, whom she had met when they were both 15-year-olds in Panola. Earlie was a hard worker, and got himself jobs at R. Lavin & Son metals and the Williamson Candy Co., which made the candy bar, Oh Henry! After Hobie and Earlie --who died in 2012 -- got hitched, they took in other relatives from Tennessee and Alabama, so that they could get jobs and have better lives. Earlie’s middle sister, Arelia, and Hobie’s’s niece, Bessie, arrived one week after each other in the late 1950s.

“Aunt Arelia said that my mother made sure that they had everything they needed—including inviting them to the nearby church that she attended,’ said Darlene. “My cousin Bessie is still a member of that church.”

Hobie’s faith in God meant everything to her. Her favorite hymn was “Near the Cross,” and after visiting a number of churches, she joined the First Grace Missionary Baptist Church in West Garfield Park in the early 1960s. Her abiding faith lasted throughout the end of her life, so much so, in fact, that her name is on the corner stone of the church due to her faithful service as its finance clerk, which she was for 30 years until she could no longer do it. Hobie also served on the church Missionary Board, and in later years, she sat on the Church’s Mother’s Board.

She always said: “Whatever you do, do your best,” said Darlene.

And it seems Hobie practiced what she preached. She excelled at sewing, and made women’s suits and dresses, including a niece’s prom dress, on a Kenmore sewing machine. She learned to drive, after Earlie bought her a spiffy 1970 red Chevy Impala. She cooked up a storm, and anything with sweet potatoes was her favorite. And she kept her family safe and sound as they watched in horror from their Lawndale home as rioting and fires raged through their then neighborhood, the city’s West Side, after the 1968 assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

But Hobie doing her best didn’t stop there. She learned to solder, and landed a job at the old Western Electric Works facility in Cicero, assembling phones. Sometime after that, she took a gig at the Helene Curtis factory at North Ave. and Kostner.

She continued to work until she was in her 70s before retiring, Darlene said. And in Sept., 2014, when Hobie moved from her daughter’s home in Lincoln Park to the Lake View Nursing and Rehab Center, her warmth, quiet demeanor and quick wit led to her getting to know a whole new group of people.

“She soon made friends,” said Darlene. “In fact they all loved her for her sense of humor, which became more prominent as she aged. She was funny, but over the past few years, she seemed to find the ‘funny’ insight in many situations. When I’d visit my mother at the nursing home, the residents all knew that I was her daughter and told me where to find her.”

At Hobie’s funeral last week, her 20-something grandson, Terrence George, lovingly spoke about his grandmother, who, besides teaching him many other things, gave him a few tips about basketball. His words to her were beautifully put.

“No one could have asked for a better grandmother,” said Terrence. “...From picking me up from school, to being my reliable peppermint supplier when I was a kid, you were always someone I could count on.”

“Though you loomed large in my life, my most important memories are of the little things,” said Terrence. “I miss listening to your prayers. I miss us playing basketball in the backyard. I even miss the corn pone you

Remembering Dorothy

Hero who broke glass ceilings was an exceptional woman

BY DICK SIMPSON

Dorothy Storck was a hero who broke glass ceilings. A Pulitzer Prize winning columnist who died this summer of myeloma, she lived on the North Side and around the world.

For more than four decades she wrote about emotional truth and meaning for her readers.

She started at the old Chicago American and continued at Chicago Today before it was absorbed into the Chicago Tribune. But she had a full life even then. She graduated from Barnard College, an all-women's school, in 1951 before joining the U.S. Marine Corps. She switched from Marines to Air Force rising to the rank of major when there were few women officers.

Dorothy was a squadron commander of 400 women at Olmsted Air Force base when she was transferred to Alaska as punishment for providing information on birth control because too many women in her command were becoming pregnant. That didn't sit well with the Catholic Chaplain or the Air Force. From Alaska she became a public relations officer first in London and then in Chicago. She left the armed forces to become a journalist for $95 a week in protest to the military's lies about the Vietnam War. Yet, she was buried with full military honors at West Point on September 25.

Dorothy was a walking history of the 20th and 21st centuries, writing the stories now in our history books. She covered the 1968 and 1972 presidential campaigns, the trial of Sirhan Sirhan who assassinated Robert Kennedy, the Detroit riots, Americans in Mexican jails, the space voyages of Apollo 10, 11, and 13 and the anniversary of the Apollo missions 40 years later. She trained to be the first journalist in space before the failure of the Challenger Space Shuttle in 1986 ended the program.

She was friends with famous people like Mike Royko who told her that she was the only columnist who threatened his preeminent position as the best columnist in Chicago. She was once engaged to Milton Berle, the comedian.

She left Chicago and joined The Philadelphia Inquirer in 1974. By the time she left there in 1987, her column was syndicated to 250 newspapers. She moved to London and filed dispatches from England for the Knight Ridder News Service.

I remember her because she was my fiancé and the times we shared but why should others remember her? Because as the Inquirer wrote, "She's good at expressing our shared feelings about the burdens that life lays on us. The burdens of caring for the old. The worry of being poor and the nagging fear of growing ever poorer... She touches on everything that makes up the crazy quilt patterns of life."

She wrote of the death of her father, "I begin to understand at last the ritual of the wake, which I once dismissed as barbaric. It forces a final public farewell. The private farewells come in secret moments of sudden unexpected tears... Mourning rituals provide a corridor for passage and a soft warning for those who approach too soon that we are not yet ready to relinquish sadness."

When Dorothy returned to Chicago in 1991 she wrote that the city "seemed to have burst out of its old workman's coveralls into some kind of Green Giant garb... You got the feeling flying in, seeing that soaring rim [of highrises] with the flat bungalow neighborhoods stretching to the west that one day Chicago might just capsize like a ship leaning too far port. Walking up Michigan Ave. now, I feel a sense of lushness and bustle, of wildness... This is a town of low-down blues rising up from cellars and street corners."

Dorothy came back to Chicago because she had friends here. She embarked on travel writing for the Sun-Times. In "Sail Away" she wrote, "Let them whinge who will, when those sails billow up in starlit sky, when the wind is in your face and sea salt is on your tongue... As twilight falls on Grace Kelly's palace and the lights flicker on the chateaux in the hills, I am content to sit still on my tall ship. Tomorrow is Cannes and the end of the voyage. It has been a good one."

May our journey go as well.

known for his positive outlook and gentle demeanor. Never one to shine a light on himself, he took on hundreds of local charity cases, many of whom were poor and needy students of area schools as well as youth visitors to Chicago.

He belonged to the Lakeview Kiwanis club and selflessly volunteered for many charity causes. Thanks for your service Doc.

Ridge property to become park land

The City of Chicago has acquired the building adjacent to the former Ridge Firehouse, 5720 N. Ridge Ave., - the future home of Chicago Filmmakers - as part of their ongoing improvements along Ridge. The building will be razed and the property converted to passive park land next to the firehouse.

The distinctive Firehouse that sat vacant since 2008 at 5714 N. Ridge Ave. is a Chicago Landmark built in 1928. The landmark firehouse was built during an important period of growth for Chicago that resulted in the construction of some of the City's most ornate firehouses. It is trimmed in terra cotta and ornamented with Classical-style details. Chicago Filmmakers plans to restore these significant details, convert the truck bay into a theatre and reorganize the second floor into offices and classrooms.

It was sold to Andersonville nonprofit Chicago Filmmakers under a city plan to find creative re-uses for significant, yet obsolete, city properties.

The city sold the firehouse to the Chicago Filmmakers for $36,000, just 10% of its market value. Chicago Filmmakers, which offers independent movie screenings, hosts film festivals and teaches film classes, is expected to spend $600,000 renovating the old firehouse.

When construction is finished, Chicago Filmmakers will have spacious screening and studio space, bright new classrooms and offices, and will offer new programming.

Chicago Filmmakers was founded in 1973 and for the past 19 years has leased the second floor of 5243 N. Clark St.

Public invited to give input on city’s rivers

Chicagoans are invited to attend four public open houses intended to help shape the future of the city’s three rivers.

Participants will provide input to Great Rivers Chicago [GRC], a group led by the City of Chicago and Metropolitan Planning Council [MPC] in partnership with Friends of the Chicago River.

Working with the public, GRC is developing a coordinated, long-term vision and action agenda for the rivers and riverfronts within the city’s limits—the Calumet, Chicago and Des Plaines.

Each of the fall open houses will focus on a particular reach of the rivers system—far north, near north, far south and near south.

Residents are encouraged to discuss issues and provide ideas for each stretch of water. The meetings will feature a number of ways for people to learn more and get involved, including presentations, discussions, text polling and interactive mapping.

GRC surveyed Chicagoans between March and June to gain a preliminary understanding of people’s interest in and connection to the city’s rivers, and to identify residents’ hopes for the future of the rivers.

Of the 3,749 people who took the survey, half live within a mile of one of Chicago’s rivers, and 62% work in that same geographical area. About 52% interact daily or weekly with one of Chicago’s rivers. Depending on which part of the rivers system respondents were referring to, 73-91% said they would like better access to the river.

The upcoming meetings are 6:30-8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1, at the Horner Park Field House, 2741 W. Montrose Ave., to discuss the Far North Side rivers system; 6:30-8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8, at the Rowan Park Field House, 11546 S. Ave. L, to discuss the Far South Side rivers system; 6:30-8 p.m. Wednesday Oct. 28, at Ping Tom Park Field House, 1700 S. Wentworth Ave., to discuss the Near South Side rivers system; and 6:30-8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 4, at the REI Community Room, 1466 N. Halsted St., to discuss the Near North Side rivers system. For more information call Mandy Burrell Booth with the MPC at 773-640-1206.

and Brown said, are part of Mayor Emanuel’s overall effort to close the budget deficit caused in large part by the city’s pension crisis and the fiscal mismanagement that has plagued the city, Cook County and State of Illinois for decades.

Those other measures include over $550 in property tax increases which will fall hard on the North Side where property values are some of the highest in the region. Indeed the mayor has spoken openly of his desire to target those communities whose residents have the ability to pay the most such as the Loop, Gold Coast, Near North Side and Lincoln Park.

“We have been working to put something in place that not only provides pension protection for police and firefighters, but is sustainable for our taxpayers,” Holt said.

“The end result is a ramp-up plan over the next five years starting with a 2015 pension payment of $328 million, $318 of which will go on the property tax levy. For 2016, an additional $109 million would be added to that. Another $53 million would be added in 2017 with another $63 million in 2018 so we don’t have to go back and deal with this again in four years,” Holt said.

Of course that does not include a $500 million hole in this year’s Chicago Public School budget. CPS officials are hoping for a state bailout coming from Springfield this year... a dream that grows more distant every day there is no budget agreement. The city and CPS have not said what their second option might be if they’re not bailed out by the state.

North Siders are quickly coming to understand that life in the city is about to get dramatically more expensive due to the general malfeasance and financial mismanagement by City Hall over the last three decades.

Certainly teacher layoffs, perhaps more school closings and another round of tax increases.

Another, more controversial source of new revenue, Holt added, is the proposed $9.50 monthly garbage collection fee that would be charged to Chicago households who get garbage pickup. The city now charges a garbage collection fee only on buildings with five or more residential units, she said. This fee would be in addition to the property tax line item on everyone’s property tax bill for Streets and Sanitation.

“We think this is reasonable. Garbage collection costs the city

$34 per household (a month), Holt said. She added that low income seniors, 65 or older, earning less than $55,000 annually would pay only $4.75.

“We know people don’t like change. People are used to the city picking up the garbage for free. We think that’s where a lot of the criticism is coming from, but we’re trying to roll this out in a way that’s fair, but helps the city work through this financial situation,” Holt said.

Also under consideration are a surcharge on ride-share companies like Uber, who would be allowed to service Midway and O’Hare airports as well as Navy Pier and McCormick Place, Holt added. Regular taxi drivers would in turn be allowed to hike their fares by 14%, she said.

The City Council is currently debating the proposed budget and tax increases. Those North Side aldermen who do vote for the mayor’s budget will have a lot of explaining to do come next election. North Siders are quickly coming to understand that life in the city is about to get dramatically more expensive due to the general malfeasance and financial mismanagement by City Hall over the last three decades.

Harvest Dinner and Barn Dance to benefit Rogers Park food co-op

BY EATON WELL

A Harvest Dinner and Barn Dance to benefit the Rogers Park Food Co-op will be held 5:30 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10, at the Heartland Cafe, 7000 N. Glenwood Ave., in Rogers Park neighborhood. At 7 p.m. the party moves to the Red Line Tap, 7006 N. Glenwood Ave., for the dance featuring music by Spitzer Space Telescope & Mareva and dance calling by Jo Mortland.

Half the ticket proceeds from the event will be donated to the Rogers Park Food Co-op.

Celebrating the bounty of the harvest with local, organic food from Earth First Farms and other local farms, Heartland Cafe will serve a full dinner to its guests on their open-air patio. This family-friendly event will also include face painting and pumpkin carving.

Following the dinner, dance music will be played by Chicago balladeer and fiddler, Spitzer Space Telescope, with guitarist Mareva Lindo. A few dances in the night will also feature a guest fiddle player. Mortland, one of Chicago's favorite callers for traditional American folk dance, who will call contra and square dances to complete the celebration.

Tickets for the event are $25 for both the dinner and the dance or $10 for only the dance. Tickets may be purchased by calling 773-465-8005.

The Rogers Park Food Co-op is in its third year of organization and is currently campaigning to sign up its first 300 members. It will be a member-owned cooperative grocery store in Rogers Park, offering access to healthy, locally grown, sustainable, and artisanal foods. It will also offer food education programs, serve as a gathering place for the community, and foster strong ties among the many diverse cultures of Rogers Park.

Midwest's largest map fair Oct. 23

Harlan J. Berk, Ltd. will host the 3rd annual Chicago International Map Fair Oct. 23 - 25, at the Loyola University Museum of Art (LUMA) 820 N. Michigan Ave.

Thousands of people are expected to attend to browse and/or purchase antique maps, globes, atlases, books and prints offered by approximately 25 dealers from across the U.S. and Europe. Items include rare, authentic world maps dating from the 15th to 20th centuries; maps of continents including Asia and Africa; historical maps of Illinois, and other states; a large 1861 wall map of Cook County and other rare and distinctive map-related items.

In addition, the fair will feature a four-part educational series with lectures by various antiquarian scholars from Chicago and around the world. On Saturday, Oct. 24, the Newberry Library will offer two tours of their historic building and world renowned antique map collection. Space is limited as each tour will consist of no more than 15 people, so advanced ticket purchase is suggested.

The fair kicks off with a Friday evening cocktail party and preview night featuring an open bar and hors d'oeuvres in the LUMA gallery of Lewis Tower, a historic 1926 Gothic Revival building. All guests will have early access to the fair and will have an opportunity to meet the dealers, view, and purchase some quality antique maps, atlases, prints, and globes before the weekend crowds arrive the next day.

"People love maps. Our attendees, who come from all over the world, are collectors and history buffs; some are interested in geography or cartography and many are there to just appreciate the artistry involved or want a unique piece to decorate their homes," says Sammy Berk, fair founder.

The preview party tickets are $40. For more information call 312-609-0016. The fair also offers appraisals of single items or collections.

Ordinance would offer all-zone parking pass to Realtors

Suburban Realtors would pay $800 extra for special residential zone parking privileges

Chicago City Clerk Susana A. Mendoza introduced legislation in the Chicago City Council last week to create a new Residential Permit Parking pass giving Realtors the ability to park in any residential parking zone during a typical work day.

The all-zone parking privilege has a high price at $500-800 and will only be available to licensed real estate professionals. Unlike other passes, it will be sold at City Clerk locations to eligible Realtors regardless of whether or not they live in the City of Chicago. For $500.00, Chicago Realtors will be permitted to park in any neighborhood between the hours of 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. without worry of being ticketed for a residential zone violation. Realtors from outside the City would pay $800 per year.

The initiative is a way to add money to a city budget without taxing residents.

"Too often we look at raising fees as an easy revenue solution. Residents are already paying a lot out of pocket and this initiative matches people who can afford to pay a high fee with a new product that will serve them well. We're generating sustainable new revenue [source]," she said.

Realtors who buy in to the program would be restricted from parking near sports stadiums during games or other special events. Those caught violating the rules would be removed from the program after two offenses. If approved by City Council, the proposal would move forward as a two-year pilot. All applicants will also be required to demonstrate that they have no debts due to the City of Chicago.

The legislation was crafted with input from the Chicago Assoc. of Realtors, which has over 13,500 members in the City of Chicago. Thousands of additional suburban professionals work in the Chicago real estate industry as well.

"The Realtor Vehicle Sticker is something our members have been seeking for years and I expect to see many step forward to take advantage of a product tailored to them. Realtors are ambassadors for the City they sell in. When you are working with a client and they see a ticket on your vehicle, that's not a good look for a Realtor," he said.

and reckless driving WalletHub categories as it relates to driving penalties.

A recent change in the law makes speeding just 26 MPH over the limit a crime. Under Section 11-601.5(a) of the Vehicle Code, speeding 26-34 MPH over the posted limit is a Class B misdemeanor offense. The potential penalty for any Class B misdemeanor is 180 days in the county jail and a $1,500 fine. Under that law the driver is not eligible for supervision. The court is required to impose a permanent conviction, which can in some instances result in a suspended driver's license.

Yes speeding tickets are expensive, but the insurance increases that drivers face after receiving a ticket often have an even greater impact on their pocketbooks than the ticket itself. In Illinois, driving 15 miles per hour over the speed limit will result in a $120 fine. After receiving a speeding ticket, the average Illinois driver will then - on average - face a $124.80 increase in their annual car insurance rate. Insurance hikes last for five years in Illinois, so drivers can expect to pay $624 more for insurance if they've been caught speeding.

This comes as no surprise to Lakeview resident and regular Lake Shore Dr. motorist Carrie Jenkins, who said she thinks folks have gotten so complacent with driving that speeding has become the norm rather than the exception.

"We live in this fast-paced society where everyone is in a hurry and although I think this study looks at Illinois as a whole, it probably mostly focuses on the

the second offense and 11th in the nation for the average increase in cost of insurance after one speeding ticket.

"I'm a bit surprised by Illinois being 11th in that category because it's tough on you if you live in the city as far as insurance rates going up after getting a speeding ticket," said Allstate Insurance representative Lori Cunningham, a Lincoln Park resident. "A lot of what is in the WalletHub report makes sense knowing how strict this state is on people who violate driving laws. But what surprises me is all the attention that is paid to such things, like the dangers of speeding and reckless driving as far as television ads and posters and billboards all over the highways and expressways, people still are not as careful as they need to be."

Jenkins said she's known two people who have done jail time because of numerous reckless driving convictions related to drinking and distracted driving.

"One of my friends works as a bartender and she would drive fast on the expressway late at night coming from work and you would think the first time she got caught, that would have taught her a lesson, but it didn't," she said. "And the other friend is either talking on her phone, texting someone or putting on makeup or something while she is driving. I think the fact that they moved here from other states, ones that weren't as strict on driving scofflaws as they are here in Illinois might have given them a false sense of security."

Posted limits on most Chicago-area interstates are 55 MPH, but data suggest the real speed limit — the point at which most drivers will get a ticket — is closer to 80 MPH.

metropolitan areas like Chicago," she said. "And I think that it is worse during the warm weather months."

Indeed we've all experienced the fright of having a motorcycle or 10 pass by your car on summer nights on Lake Shore Dr. at speeds double the posted limit or more.

Posted limits on most Chicago-area interstates are 55 MPH, but data suggest the real speed limit — the point at which most drivers will get a ticket — is closer to 80 MPH. State law mandates that Illinois State troopers must write a ticket to a motorist caught going 10 mph over the posted speed limit.

Illinois ranks first when it comes to speeding automatically being considered reckless driving and in the maximum fine for the second reckless driving offense. It ranks fourth in the WalletHub poll when it comes to how much speeding ticket points count towards having your driver's license suspended, sixth when it comes to minimum jail time for the first reckless driving offense, eighth for minimum jail time for

Laugh away stress, pain

Although the phrase “laughter is the best medicine” has been around for a while, new research is giving more credence to the concept.

A good chortle or guffaw can reduce stress and pain, among other health benefits. You can even sign up for laughter therapy and be part of a new movement to formally introduce laughter to others.

“Laughter has really changed my life,” Brigitte of Denmark wrote on the Laughter Yoga website, laughteryoga.org. “I feel happier and more focused about things that make me happy. It has changed me from being a serious person to a much lighter person. I also use laughter as my personal stress management therapy to keep my stress levels low, as I have a very stressful job.”

Laughter classes and workshops might appear ridiculous. After all, we all know how to laugh, right? Yet, in a high-stress and fast-paced world, many people don’t seem to have the time or focus to let loose a giggle.

Recent research has found that the effects of a good chortle can reduce stress and pain, boost the immune system, provide social connections and make people happier. It’s part of a new movement to formally introduce laughter into people’s lives, including at senior living facilities.

It started with Laughter Yoga and its clubs. Now there’s even a Laughter Wellness Institute and Laughter Online University to help tickle your funny bone.

Health benefits

While it may be hard to imagine that laughter can have health benefits, a good guffaw changes us physiologically. We stretch muscles throughout our body, our pulse and blood pressure go up, and we breathe faster, sending more oxygen to our tissues. A good laugh shouldn’t leave you in stitches but instead should help you feel relaxed through your whole body.

Although research has found health benefits related to laughing, scientists aren’t sure if the positives come from the physical act of chuckling, or whether people who laugh tend to have a better attitude or enjoy the company of others (we’re more likely to laugh in a group than by ourselves). Both traits have been shown to increase longevity.

Though the bulk of research has been subjective rather than evidence-based, and experts have yet to do definitive research, studies have shown that laughter can:

Improve your immune system

Laughter can turn negative thoughts, which cause stress, into positive ones, thereby decreasing stress hormones. Because increased stress is associated with decreased immune system reaction, some studies have shown that the ability to use humor may raise the level of infection-fighting antibodies in the body and boost the levels of immune cells.

Stimulate organs

Laughter increases your oxygen intake; stimulates your heart, lungs and muscles; and triggers the release of endorphins, the body’s natural feel-good chemicals. It improves the function of blood vessels and increases blood flow in the heart, which can help protect against a heart attack and other cardiovascular problems.

Relax the whole body

A good, hearty laugh relieves physical tension and stress, leaving your muscles relaxed for up to 45 minutes afterwards. It also can improve sleep.

Relieve pain

Laughter may ease pain by causing the body to produce its own natural painkillers. It also may break the pain-spasm cycle common to some muscle disorders.

Improve your mood

Laughter can help lessen depression and anxiety and make you feel happier, if only temporarily. A happier state of mind makes it easier to cope with difficult situations and helps you connect with other people.

One of the main forms of laughter therapy is laughter yoga. Started in 1995 by an Indian physician, Madan Kataria, who wrote the book “Laugh For No Reason,” the program has led to the creation of thousands of laughter clubs in more than 72 countries. The practice now is practiced in companies, senior living facilities, schools, colleges, fitness centers, community centers, prisons, hospitals, cancer self-help groups and homes for the physically and mentally challenged, according to the Laughter Yoga website.

Laughter yoga is different from “spontaneous” giggling that comes from watching a funny movie, hearing a good joke or seeing your cat accidentally roll off the table. Instead, the technique relies on exercises that stimulate laughing and use yoga breathing (deep and from the diaphragm). This “voluntary” chuckling has the same benefits as true laughing, especially since fake snickering often turns into the real stuff.

Laughter yoga is done in groups, with lots of eye contact and playfulness. The practice can even provide benefits for the humor-handicapped —people who are introverted or who have no sense of humor. Laughter yoga’s exercises involve movement, such as arm waving, which adheres to the yoga philosophy of a strong connection between body and mind.

“If one changes the quality of thoughts, one can feel a change in body behavior,” the Laughter Yoga website states. “Conversely, if one can bring a change in body behavior, one can experience the change in mental state.”

One exercise is “Lion Laughter,” derived from a yoga posture. You stick out your tongue while keeping your mouth open. With eyes wide, you stretch your hands like the paws of a lion and roar, followed by laughing from the belly.

Another exercise is “Cell Phone Laughter.” Participants hold imaginary mobile phones and try to laugh, while making different gestures and moving around in the group to meet different people and laugh.

To find a laughter yoga group near you, visit the Laughter Yoga website.

Laughter wellness

A similar concept, laughter wellness, is a health program that uses therapeutic laughter and associated techniques to enhance health and well-being. To achieve benefits and a few giggles, the program uses three primary tools: low-impact aerobic exercise that works the mind and emotions,

Get up, get out

Senior citizens can take advantage of warm weather

BY RUTH FOLGER WEISS

The end of summer is drawing near, so now is the time to get outside and soak up every last ray of sunshine.

Who wants to sit cooped up inside all day when the weather outside is gorgeous? Take advantage of the warm temperatures now by getting outside and participating in a fun outdoor activity – or by bringing one of your favorite indoor activities out into the fresh air.

Here are some outdoor activities for the elderly who are still young at heart.

Get out and garden

Put your green thumb to use and do some gardening. Whether you’re planting your favorite flowers or vegetables, it’s a great activity to get you moving – and you get a beautiful and tasteful result.

Stretch it out

Grab a yoga mat and get some exercise with outdoor yoga. There are special programs designed specifically for senior citizens, and yoga is a great way to relax, stretch and meditate. Yoga is a simple way to get moving and give your body and mind some extra love.

Enjoy classic games

Find a table or grab a blanket and play cards, checkers or a board game with friends or family. Bring out your competitive side and round up a friendly game of shuffleboard. Pick a partner to play with, or cheer on your friends. Make a tournament out of it to really up the ante and try to become the shuffleboard champion. Gather your friends or family members and create a scavenger hunt for everyone. Come up with a fun theme, split into teams and keep it around the property or throughout your senior living facility.

Take a walk around the block

A nice stroll can lift moods and reenergize spirits. Take in the scenery and travel down a path you haven’t been down before. Maybe you’ll discover something new while getting your heart rate pumping.

Soak up the sun

Find different ways to spend more time outside. Listen to live music if there is a band playing nearby. Some parks feature outdoor concert series in the summertime, so be sure to check if there any happening locally. Lay out a blanket in an open area, pack a few sandwiches and snacks and have a picnic. Enjoy an al fresco dining experience with friends or family in a nostalgic way.

Get inspired by nature

Bring out your inner artist and paint a canvas outdoors. Paint the scenery, or see if a class is offered where you could follow a template or copy an image. Crafting is also another option for the outdoors. Paint beautiful scenery or draw your own creation. Use of color has been linked to improvements for those suffering from dementia, so don’t hold back on the bright paints and markers.

As long as the sun is shining, the opportunities for outdoor activities are endless. The activity may need to be determined by your health or mobility, but there are plenty of options for every one. Not only are there physical benefits of being outside, but there are mental ones as well.

Remember to always stay hydrated while participating in any outdoor activity, and if the temperatures are too hot, it may be best to stay inside. While the weather’s still nice, though, get up, get out and get moving!

Finding meaning, joy in aging

A key ingredient in the recipe for healthy aging over 50 is the continuing ability to find meaning and joy in life.

As you age, your life will change and you will gradually lose things that previously occupied your time and gave your life purpose. For example, your job may change, you may eventually retire from your career, your children may leave home, or other friends and family may move far away. But this is not a time to stop moving forward. Later life can be a time of exciting new adventures if you let it.

Staying healthy as a senior citizen may mean finding new activities that you enjoy. Everyone has different ways of experiencing meaning and joy, and the activities you enjoy may change over time. If your career slows down or you retire, or if your children leave home, you may find you have more time to enjoy activities outside of work and immediate family. Either way, taking time to nourish your spirit is never wasted.

If you’re not sure where to get started, try some of the following suggestions:

- Pick up a long-neglected hobby, or try a new hobby
- Play with your grandkids, nieces, nephews, or a favorite pet
- Learn something new (an instrument, a foreign language, a new game)
- Get involved in your community (volunteer or attend a local event)
- Take a class or join a club
- Travel somewhere new or go on a weekend trip to a place you’ve never visited
- Spend time in nature (take a scenic hike, go fishing or camping, enjoy a ski trip)
- Enjoy the arts (visit a museum, go to a concert or a play)
- Write your memoirs or a play about your life experiences

The possibilities are endless. The important thing is to find activities that are both meaningful and enjoyable for you.

Health through humor

Laughter is strong medicine for both the body and the mind. It helps you stay balanced, energetic, joyful and healthy at any age. A sense of humor helps you get through tough times, look outside yourself, laugh at the absurdities of life, and transcend difficulties.

Clare resident profile

Betty Bergstrom, a pioneer in producing, politics and philanthropy

Bergstrom (center) meets friends in front of The Clare at Rush & Pearson Streets.

Betty Bergstrom has always been ahead of her time as a woman breaking into traditionally male-dominated fields.

Born and raised in Chicago's west side Austin neighborhood, Betty was fearless from a young age. Her first "first" was being the first woman to graduate from Northwestern University in radio and television production in 1952. At a time when women chose careers in front of the camera or microphone, Betty boldly joined the "man's club" choosing to go behind-the-scenes.

"Women were given very little to do in production, menial jobs. You really had to prove yourself. You had to be twice as good as a woman to survive." Her first job was producing for WLS radio (where ironically, she also found success as an on-air talent, "Aunt Betty the Storyteller") and then went on to NBC television. Later, she found great success producing commercials and films for an advertising agency.

Betty's love of politics and passion for activism was put to work when she was elected to be a Delegate to the 1970 State of Illinois Constitutional Convention. One of just five female delegates, she worked diligently for more than a year to help write and pass a new constitution, one that was desperately needed as it hadn't been updated in over 100 years. "The constitution was so outdated. There was a provision that determined population by head of cattle! That was fine in the 1870s, but obviously no longer relevant in the 1970s."

She so impressed then Governor Richard Ogilvie that he appointed her to the first State Board of Education and later as Chair of the State of Illinois Historical Library Board.

A major turn in her career came in 1976 when she joined the Chicago Botanic Garden. "At the time the area was nothing more than a marshy, muddy wasteland," says Bergstrom.

This was her first fundraising position and she needed to convince donors of their vision to turn this abandoned site into a beautiful garden. "I heard about a woman who was active in the Garden Club," Bergstrom continues, "and invited her out to see the land. I bought two pair of rubber boots so we could walk around. I described in detail how beautiful the gardens and prairie would be and nearly had her convinced until we returned to her car which we found sunk up to the hood in the mud!"

After quite an ordeal, they were able to get the car out, but it was destroyed, and the woman had to buy a new car. Much to Betty's surprise, however, four days later an envelope was delivered that contained a six-figure check and a note that read, "Anyone who can look at that mess and create the visual pictures you did and inspire me the way you did deserves my support."

And from there, Betty's fundraising career was born.

She went on to raise a whopping $85 million and played a pivotal role in the Chicago Botanic Garden becoming one of the greatest living museums in the world. This success led her to do the same for other botanic gardens across the country.

Betty went on to form her own consulting firm, Bergstrom Associates, in 1990, which specialized in helping nonprofits with strategic planning, board development and, of course, fundraising.

Clare Chef to Appear on Fox 32 News

On Wednesday, in recognition of National Dessert Day, Chef Hagop Hagopian of The Clare will be a guest on Fox 32 News, preparing his much raved-about raspberry tart and sharing his recipe as well. He will also decorate the set with his famous chocolate sculptures. His segment will go live at 12:45pm.

tegitic planning, board development and, of course, fundraising.

Betty was selected as the Outstanding Fund Raising Executive of the Year in 1987 in Illinois and repeated that honor in 1997 in Arizona. Another first: Betty is the only person to receive this honor twice.

In the early '90's Betty and her husband started spending the winter months in Arizona, and Betty repeated her success in her new, part-time home state. She became the first Executive Director of the Arizona Foundation for Women and was the founder and first president of the Arizona Woman's Council. In 2001, Betty was elected Chair and President of the National Board of Directors of the National Woman's History Museum.

And if you're not exhausted by now reading all of Betty's achievements, she accomplished all this while raising 5 children. And she has yet to slow down. She continues an active volunteer schedule, is a member of the Association of Fundraising Professionals and serves on the Board of Directors of Chicago Lights, a community outreach organization serving the underprivileged.

Betty moved into The Clare in January of 2010 being the fourth resident to inhabit the beautiful high-rise retirement community located in the heart of Chicago's Magnificent Mile. When asked what she loves most about The Clare, her answer was simple, "The community." She has grown to love the fascinating group of people from all types of backgrounds and from all parts of the United States that inhabit The Clare. "We're a dynamic group!"

When asked for a final piece of advice to inspire others to accomplish what she has accomplished, Betty harkens back to that day she gave the tour of the Chicago Botanic Gardens. The dream she conveyed sparked a passion in one person was passed it on to many others, and now there are over 300 acres of beautiful gardens as a result.

"That's what we must do each day – take that spark and convey inspiration."

What inspires The Clare to constantly improve?

Senior LIVING

Coping with change

As we grow older, we experience an increasing number of major life changes, including career shifts and retirement, children leaving home, the loss of loved ones, and physical changes.

How we handle and grow from these changes is the key to staying healthy. Healthy aging means continually reinventing yourself as you pass through landmark ages. It means finding new things you enjoy, learning to adapt to change, staying physically and socially active, and feeling connected to your community and loved ones.

Focus on gratitude

The longer you live, the more you lose. But as you lose people and things, life becomes even more precious. When you stop taking things for granted, you appreciate and enjoy what you have even more.

Acknowledge and express feelings

You may have a hard time showing emotions, perhaps feeling that such a display is inappropriate and weak. But burying your feelings can lead to anger, resentment, and depression. Don't deny what you're going through. Find healthy ways to process your feelings, perhaps by talking with a close friend or writing in a journal.

Accept what you can't change

Many things in life are beyond our control. Rather than stressing out over them, focus on the things you can control, such as the way you choose to react to problems. Face your limitations with dignity and a healthy dose of humor.

Look for the silver lining

As the saying goes, "What doesn't kill us makes us stronger." Try to look at major challenges as opportunities for personal growth. If your own poor choices contributed to a stressful situation, reflect on them and learn from your mistakes.

Take daily action to deal with challenges

When a challenge seems too big to handle, sweeping it under the carpet often appears the easiest option. But ignoring the problem doesn't make it go away – rather, it allows both the problem and your anxiety to build. Instead, take things one small step at a time. Even a small step can go a long way to boosting your confidence and reminding you that you are not powerless.

Staying connected

One of the greatest challenges of aging is how your support network changes. Staying connected isn't always easy as you grow older — even for those who have always had an active social life. Career changes, retirement, illness, death and moves out of the local area can take away close friends and family members. And the older you get, the more people you inevitably lose. And in later life, getting around may become difficult for either you or members of your social network.

It's important to find ways to reach out and connect to others, regardless of whether or not you live with a spouse or partner. Having an array of people you can turn to for company and support as you age is a buffer against loneliness, depression, disability, hardship and loss.

The good news is that there are lots of ways to be with other people. It doesn't matter what you do, so long as you get out of the house (if possible) and socialize

Connect with friends and family

Spend time with people you enjoy and who make you feel upbeat. It may be a neighbor who you like to exercise with, a lunch date with an old friend, or shopping with your children. Even if you are not close by, call or email frequently to keep relationships fresh.

Make new friends

As you lose people in your circle, it is vital to make new connections so your circle doesn't dwindle. Make it a point to befriend people who are younger than you. Younger friends can reenergize you and help you see life from a fresh perspective.

Spend time with others

Whatever your living or work situation, you shouldn't be alone day after day. Phone or email contact is not a replacement for spending time with other people. Regular face-to-face contact helps you ward off depression and stay positive.

Volunteer

Giving back to the community is a wonderful way to strengthen social bonds and meet other people, and the meaning and purpose you find in helping others will enrich and expand your life. Volunteering is a natural way to meet people interested in similar activities or who share similar values. Even if your mobility becomes limited, you can get involved by volunteering on the phone.

Support groups

If you or a loved one is coping with a serious illness or recent loss, it can be very helpful to participate in a support group with others undergoing the same challenges.

neuroplasticity that restructures brain neurons to be more positive and creative, and a safe space for people to connect.

Beneficial for seniors

Laughter therapy is well-suited for older adults. Laughter exercises are low-impact, requiring you to simply open your mouth, move your arms, and possibly move your legs. For patients with Alzheimer's or dementia who no longer comprehend humor or have become nonverbal, laughter yoga can relieve stress and provide emotional benefits from interacting with others.

In terms of psychological benefits, a 2011 study published in the International Journal of Geriatric Psychology found that laughter yoga classes were at least as effective as exercise classes in relieving depression among elderly women. And laughter yoga significantly decreased depression compared to a control group that didn't exercise or participate in laughter yoga.

Another study reported in August 2014 in the Journal of American Medical Directors Association examined the effects of nine to 12 weekly humor therapy sessions in 35 nursing homes. The conclusion: "We confirmed that humor therapy decreases agitation and also showed that it increases happiness."

Aging myths debunked

Unfortunately, for many people, aging brings with it anxiety and fear.

However, many of these fears stem from myths about aging that are exaggerated by the media or simply untrue. The truth is that you are stronger and more resilient than you may think.

As you age beyond 50, there will be periods of both joy and stress. It's important to build your resilience and find healthy ways to cope with challenges. This ability will help you make the most of the good times and keep your perspective when times are tough.

Myth: Aging means declining health and/or disability.

Fact: There are some diseases that become more common as we age. However, getting older does not automatically mean poor health, or that you will be confined to a walker or wheelchair. Plenty of older adults enjoy vigorous health – often better health than many younger people. Preventive measures like healthy eating, exercising, and managing stress can help reduce the risk of chronic disease or injuries later in life.

Myth: Memory loss is an inevitable part of aging.

Fact: As you age, you may eventually notice you don't remember things as easily as in the past, or memories may start to take a little longer to retrieve. However, significant memory loss is not an inevitable result of aging. Brain training and new learning can occur at any age, and there are many things you can do to keep your memory sharp. The sooner you start, the sooner you'll reap the benefits.

Myth: You can't teach an old dog new tricks.

Fact: One of the more damaging myths of aging is that after a certain age, you just won't be able to try anything new or contribute things anymore. The opposite is true. Middle-aged and older adults are just as capable of learning new things and thriving in new environments, plus they have the wisdom that comes with life experience. If you believe in and have confidence in yourself, you are setting up a positive environment for change no matter what your age.

Local senior services combine

Two local senior services groups have brought their home care programs together as one.

Organizers say the alignment of Methodist Senior Home Care [MSHC] and Services for Adults Staying in Their Homes [SASI] represents both groups' desire to continue to provide excellent, personalized and affordable home care for older adults.

Founded in 1975 in Evanston, SASI has been providing high-quality care for seniors and other adults who – due to aging, illness or injury – need assistance to be safe and comfortable at home.

MSHC is a division of Chicagoland Methodist Senior Services [CMSS], the most extensive network of senior services on Chicago's north side offering services ranging from supportive living to skilled nursing. The organization shares SASI's commitment to helping older adults age with comfort, dignity and respect.

"The alignment ... will allow us to expand our reach and help even more Chicago-area older adults to stay in their homes," SASI executive director Jeanie Ramsey said. "CMSS and SASI share a similar mission to help older adults thrive as they age, and I am confident that this relationship will help us expand that mission to impact even more people."

The combining groups will continue to operate as SASI. The newly joined organization will continue to serve existing home-care clients while positioning itself to expand its reach.

"This alignment will ... allow us to continue to offer high-quality home care to older adults who want to stay in their homes (and) help us keep fees low for both the older adults who need our services and their families," CMSS president Bill Lowe said. "SASI has an impeccable reputation in the home-care industry, and there is no better organization with whom we could partner."

For more information call SASI at 847-864-7274 or CMSS at 773-769-5500.

Are you thinking too much to be happy?

Baby boomers have a lot on our minds.

We worry about our kids, so far away and yet so close to our hearts. We obsess about whether we have saved enough for retirement. We wonder whether we will be able to stay healthy and fit in the coming decades.

We worry about... well, pretty much everything actually. And that's the problem.

While most of us are worried about the future, far too few of us are actually doing something about it. Unfortunately, as Mary Schmich told the graduating class of 1999, "Worrying is as effective as trying to solve an algebra equation by chewing bubble gum."

So, what's the solution? If worrying won't solve our problems, what will?

Start by realizing that happiness is a verb

Have you ever noticed that the happiest people tend to be the ones that are most active? That's not a coincidence. These people aren't active because they are happy. They are happy because they are active.

The first step to finding lasting happiness is admitting to yourself that you are the one who is in control of your destiny. Happiness is not going to come to you. You cannot will your problems away. You have to take action.

Learn the art of turning your big worries into small actions

One of the most important skills to teach yourself, if you want to find lasting happiness, is how to turn your worries into actions.

Most of us look for complex solutions to our biggest problems. Unfortunately, on a practical level, problems are almost never solved this way. There is seldom a "silver bullet" that will cure your financial problems, give you a rich and fulfilling social life or get you in the best shape of your life.

The alternative is to think big but act small. For example, let's say that you are worried about your weight. If you are like most people, your thoughts will probably bounce between regret ("How did I let this happen?"), self-pity ("I hate how I look") and big solutions ("I need to join a gym").

What's the alternative? Think big and act small. The moment that you start worrying about your weight, do something about it. If it's convenient, get up and stretch. If not, schedule time for a 20-minute walk later in the day. Do one minute of chair yoga. Do five sit-ups. Just do something.

What about big changes?

To be clear, I'm not saying that making big changes in your life isn't important. If you want to get in the best shape of your life, joining a gym or taking up a sport is a fantastic idea. I'm simply saying that small, positive actions are more likely to drive you to make big changes in your life than worries are.

Learning to turn your worries into small, positive actions is the first step. Then, as you gain confidence, you will naturally gravitate towards larger lifestyle changes. So, by all means, fantasize about weightlifting four times a week, but start by taking a relaxing walk around your neighborhood.

Social Security administrator sentenced to 21 months for cashing dead mother’s checks

A former employee of the Social Security Administration [SSA] has been sentenced to 21 months in federal prison for cashing her deceased mother’s Social Security checks for nearly 30 years after her death.

Georgia Thompson, 68, of Chicago, received $419,644 in fraudulent benefits from 1986 to 2014. Thompson’s mother died on Aug. 3, 1986, but Thompson failed to notify the SSA, even though Thompson herself was employed by the agency.

Last Monday, a U.S. District Judge imposed a sentence of 21 months in federal prison. Thompson was also ordered to pay $419,644 in restitution.

For the first 21 years after the death of Thompson’s mother, the U.S. Treasury mailed checks to a post office box in Chicago that was controlled by Thompson. Thompson converted the funds to her own use by forging her mother’s signature on the checks.

In approximately October 2007, Thompson used her deceased mother’s personal identifying information to instruct the SSA to directly deposit the funds into a bank account controlled by Thompson. The U.S. Treasury complied with the instruction and continued to pay benefits.

The fraud was discovered in 2014 after noticing that Thompson’s deceased mother had not used her Medicare benefits in several years.

Bounced barroom patron sues Fiesta Cantina after brawl

A Chicago woman is suing a Wrigleyville neighborhood tavern over battery charges following a 2014 scuffle.

Jessica Aguilera brought a lawsuit against Zitro Enterprise Corp., doing business as Fiesta Cantina, 3407 N. Clark St., on Sept. 17 in Cook County Circuit Court, alleging that she was injured in October 2014 due to the defendant’s negligence regarding an altercation at the tavern.

The suit claims that when a conflict arose among several patrons 1 a.m. Oct. 19, 2014, and Aguilera was one of several patrons pushed toward the doors to exit the bar, she was thrown into a glass door by a Fiesta Cantina employee.

Aguilera claims that the employee then picked her up and placed her outside of the establishment. According to the complaint, the plaintiff did not consent to the action, and the bouncer willfully and intentionally harmed her person.

The suit states that Aguilera was transported to a hospital emergency room for head injuries. Claiming mental anguish, physical pain, and medical expenses, the plaintiff charges the tavern with harming her knowingly and with malicious intent.

Police called to gun scene find guys smoking weed

Two minors and three adults were arrested Sept. 23 inside Warren Park after police officers responding to a man with a gun call surprised them in the act of smoking marijuana.

Officers investigating a 4 p.m. emergency call claiming a man with a handgun was in the park at 6601 N. Western Ave. saw the group gathered around a bench smoking from a pipe, according to police. As officers approached, one of the men attempted to ditch the pipe and a bag of drugs in the bushes, both of which police recovered, according to the report.

Two 16-year-olds, two 20-year-olds and a 27-year-old were taken into custody inside the park, police said. One of the men was carrying 12 bags of pot packaged for sale, while each of the men had either an individual bag of pot, a glass or metal pipe, or both in their pockets.

Man robbed at gunpoint off Clark St. in Rogers Park

A 40-year-old Evanston man was robbed at gunpoint near the Mobil Gas station off Clark St. at Touhy Ave. in Rogers Park.

Officers responding to a Sept. 23, 4:30 a.m. armed robbery call found the victim back at the Mobil station. He said he was walking east on the north side of Touhy when he noticed three men following him at the same pace on the south side of the street, according to police.

The victim told police he had slowed down considerably to let them get ahead when one of the men crossed the street, stepped in front of him and said, “What’s up bro?” while pulling a handgun and threatening to hurt him if he wouldn’t empty his pockets.

The victim threw down his backpack and handed over an i-Phone and wallet with $175 cash. The phone retailed for about $600 when he purchased it. “That’s all I have, take it,” said the victim before the gunman shoved him in the chest into a parked car.

His attackers ran back west toward Clark St. where a witness told officers they’d entered a group home in the 1700 block of Touhy. Officers stopped at the building but the resident in charge said everyone was inside and had been accounted for. Police toured the area but did not make any arrests.

Police arrest pair selling “loosie” cigarettes and smoking weed

Officers charged two men Sept. 20 with drug possession after they were found smoking marijuana and selling “loosie” cigarettes during a patrol of a gang and drug hotspot at the northern end of Rogers Park.

The 55-year-old and 35-year-old men were arrested about 11:35 a.m. on a sidewalk in the 7500 block of N. Paulina St., police said. Officers stopped after seeing a hand-to-hand exchange between the men and saw the younger man toss a bag into the bushes as they approached. That bag contained several grams of marijuana, police said.

The older man told police he was selling loose cigarettes before he handed them eight packs of Newport cigarettes with St. Louis, Missouri, seals on the boxes.

At the 24th District the younger man told officers he was having pain and needed kidney dialysis. When an ambulance arrived to take him to the hospital he told paramedics he did not have kidney problems and did not need dialysis, according to police.

Gas station on Peterson Ave. robbed at gunpoint

The Citgo gas station on Peterson Ave. at Wolcott was robbed at gunpoint early the morning of Sept. 19.

The station attendant told officers a man approached the window about 5:35 a.m. and demanded cigarettes and all of the money in the register. He then pulled up his shirt to reveal the butt end of a black handgun, according to police.

The attendant gave the robber eight packs of Newport cigarettes and $200 cash. He escaped on foot headed north on Wolcott Ave. No arrests have been made.

Police pulled Ahsan from the river adjacent to 400 N. Orleans St. and took him to North Western Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 5:17 a.m.

Islamic center in Chicago.

The 56-year-old West Town resident made his report at the 24th District station in Rogers Park. In it he said a $1,500 device was purchased back in early July from “My Pilot Store” on his credit card without authorization and sent Mahdavia Islamic Center at 7419 N. Western Ave.

The man told police he had contacted the FBI and “alerted other authorities” about the incident.

Loyola calls police about bomb scare

Loyola Univ. on Sept. 22 called police to investigate a bomb threat made to the dean’s office at the school’s Rogers Park campus.

Officers met with Loyola officials about 3:35 p.m. who told them a voice mail had been left threatening to blow up the dean’s office. The voice on the recording was that of a woman, according to Loyola officials, and stated, “Thursday at 5:00 you will die at 301.”

The number was referencing the office of the dean and that of the office of student conduct and conflict resolution at 6511 N. Sheridan Rd. Both offices had been cited on signs across campus advising students with issues to call that number in order to seek resolution, Loyola officials said.

Other pieces of the recording stated, “Warning. Warning. Warning,” and “Have a nice die.” There was more to the message but the recording was difficult to understand, police and officials said.

Man walking home from club says he was robbed in Lincoln Square

A 49-year-old had a gun put to his head Sept. 6 in Lincoln Square before he was forced into an alley and robbed.

The victim told police he had reached the 4800 block of N. Lincoln Ave. about 4:40 a.m. on a walk home from the club when four men confronted him. One of the men put a handgun to the back of his head and forced him to step into a nearby alley.

In the alley the gunman forced him to remove his Air Jordan high tops and then took $75 cash from his wallet, police said. The men ran back east to Western Ave. before heading north. No arrests were made.

Man robbed near Budlong Woods, attacker took swing at his head

A South Side man was robbed by a man wielding a metal rod early the morning of Sept. 7 near Budlong Woods.

The 33-year-old victim told police he was walking to his vehicle about 4 a.m. in the 5500 block of N. Rockwell St. when a man began cursing at him. When he turned to face the voice, the attacker lifted a metal rod with one hand, grabbed the victim by the hair with the other, and said, “I could kill you, all it would take is one shot,” according to police.

The attacker grabbed the man’s bag and took a swing at his head with the rod before running, police said. No arrests were made that morning.

companies. In the course of their respective proceedings against Rogan, the U.S. and Dexia discovered that Rogan’s Bahamian trust account was being used to hold millions of dollars in secret offshore assets. Rogan had created the trust with the help of Fred M. Cuppy, an Indiana attorney, as well as another attorney described in the indictment and plea agreement as “Florida Lawyer.” Cuppy, formerly of Valparaiso, IN, and now of Fort Lauderdale, FL, pleaded guilty to a perjury charge before Judge Leinenweber. He was sentenced in 2013 to one year and a day in prison.

The various leans and judgements against the property are the primary reason that the property remained abandoned for years. Indeed neighbors frequently complained about vagrancy and trespassing on the site.

Two teens were injured while playing on the roof of the hospital in 2011 when an electrical transformer reportedly blew.

Last year it was also revealed that many of the hospitals personal health records on their patients were still on site, unguarded and available to anyone who could gain access to the property. They had not been removed, shredded or destroyed. Under the current law, Edgewater Medical Center could have destroyed the medical records in 2011 but Rogan had fled the country by then and there was no controlling authority to manage the task.

Women invited to tell stories through mime

Mime artist and performer Laurie Willets is offering a humanities project of progressive workshops for women this fall.

The free “Storytelling Through Movement – for Women” sessions are 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday through Dec. 5 at the auditorium studio of the Indian Boundary Cultural Center & Park, 2500 W. Lunt Ave. During each lesson, Willets – a founder and artistic director at T. Daniel Productions – will teach her students to write their own stories while helping them understand and reflect upon the most expressive choreography possible to tell the tale.

“Through the basic techniques of modern mime that I will teach, you will learn how to express emotions and ideas in your story through chosen movement and create your story through physical phrasing of movement,” Willets said. “I will support you in class by guiding you on how to write concisely and mold your story into your performance piece – one that tells your story.”

The project will end with a public performance 3-5 p.m. Dec. 12, followed by a reception.

Willets said the women will decide whether to perform their mime pieces in class only, or for the community.

“Either way, each woman in my project gains, through her story, a ‘voice,’” Willets said.

Willets said participants Saturday will choose their stories and learn the basic mime techniques.

“I am welcoming all women from our very diverse cultures to share who they are, what their culture is ... why stories from us all are so vital and why we must support each other,” Willets said. “Together as women we can make our life and our community stronger.”

For more information call T. Daniel Productions at 773-743-0277 or 312-636-8252.
