The historic Colvin House at 5940 N. Sheridan was built in 1909 and published in Architectural Record in 1916. Chicago Landmarks said it is one of the most distinguished houses to survive along Sheridan Road and epitomizes the distinctive architectural style of its designer, George W. Maher, who began his career working for Frank Lloyd Wright.

Potential buyer of Sheridan Rd. landmark intends creative use for space, seeks commercial zoning

The shuttered Colvin House at 5940 N. Sheridan will have a new lease on life as plans call for a shared work/event space to move into the 106-year-old mansion by fall of 2016. The house has been vacant for approximately three years.

At a Nov. 2 community meeting sponsored by 48th Ward Alderman Harry Osterman at the Emanuel Congregation, Angela Valavanis, owner of Creative Coworking in Evanston, told more than 50 area residents of her plans to purchase the mansion as a second location for her business. There is a zoning contingency in the contract.

Valavanis described her business as a space used by many people in many different ways. “We have entrepreneurs and remote workers using the space as a workplace full-time, part-time or just occasionally — as the alternative to working from home or a coffee shop. This will be a new version of what I’m currently doing in my Evanston office.” Her Evanston office has been open four and a half years and has more than 150 monthly customers.

Osterman said he doesn’t encourage commercial business on Sheridan Road, but did say, “This will be a positive step for the building in retaining its landmark status.” The house received Chicago Landmark status in October 1994. As a result of its landmark status, the building’s exterior is protected from any significant changes.

Valavanis said the proposed use of the space allows for the community to have regular access to this historical landmark, either as monthly users or occasional visitors. She said, “As an architect’s daughter with an affinity for historical buildings, I know I personally will care for this building in a way that not every buyer would.

“Our business model is based on a space that feels like a home away from home, so we are thrilled by the possibility of having such a magnificent home to use,” Valavanis said. “Renovation will maintain the residential nature of the building, so it can convert to residential at some point, if ownership changes. We will protect the look of the elegant exterior and the gorgeous interior, while working to repair the damage that has occurred through the years of neglect.”

If the zoning change is approved, the mansion’s first floor space will include a lounge area, meeting room and workspace. The second floor will contain a workspace, phone rooms, private offices and a meeting room. The home’s third floor would include a workspace, private offices and a meeting room. The basement would have meeting rooms, art studios and business event space. A local art gallery would be featured throughout the house.

A brief Q/A session followed the meeting. When Osterman’s

Honoring our veterans

On Veterans Day we honor those who served. Below are memories submitted by our readers of members of the armed services.

A prayer for veterans

Lord, we ask for blessings on all those who have served their country in the armed forces.

We ask for healing for the veterans who have been wounded, in body and soul, in conflicts around the globe.

We pray especially for the men and women, in the thousands, coming home with injured bodies and traumatized spirits.

Bring solace to them, O Lord; may we pray for them when they cannot pray.

We ask for an end to wars and the dawning of a new era of peace, as a way to honor the sacrifices of all the veterans of past wars.

Have mercy on all our veterans from World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Iraq and Afghanistan.

Bring peace to their hearts and peace to the regions they fought in. Bless all the men and women who have served in non-combatative posts; may their calling to service continue in their lives in many positive ways.

Give us, Lord, the vision to see a world which, grown weary with fighting, moves to affirming the life of every human being and moves beyond war. Hear our prayer, O Prince of Peace, hear our prayer. Amen.

Let us all honor our veterans on Veterans Day and always ...

Anthony Joseph Zagar served in one of the original US Navy Seals units during WWII. As described in Tom Hawkins The History and Heritage of the U.S. Navy Seals, there were scouts and raiders given special assignments with the U.S. Naval Group in China with Captain Miles, General Tai Li and Chiang Kai-shek. One hundred twenty officers and 900 men trained at ATB Fort Pierce in Florida formed the Sino-American Cooperative Organizations (SACO) also known as the Rice Paddy Navy, training, equipping and operating guerilla forces against Japanese occupations forces.

The gangs’ all here

BY FELICIA DECHTER

Regular readers of this column know that I live in East Rogers Park and so does my immediate family -- my three grown kids, my three granddaughters, and my brother.

I’ve always felt that this was a wonderful lakefront community, a great place where I raised my children, and where they are raising their children. Lately though, I’ve been fearing for all of our safety, because since Oct. 13, 10 people have been shot in six separate incidents in my neighborhood, close to my house, and close to where my kids and their babies live. And in August, a 31-year-old man was found dead from a gunshot wound, right on my block.

It’s making me nervous. So I emailed Ald. Joe Moore (49th) early one morning last week to ask him what, if anything, was being done about all the violence. He never responded to me personally, but later that day Ald. Moore sent a blanket email out to constituents, and in it, he answered all the questions I had asked.

Unpopular with the alderman

Ald. Moore doesn’t like me much, even though I’ve been his constituent for his entire aldermanic career. But last summer I wrote about the discrepancies among two lakefront parks, Howard St. Beach -- where less fortunate kids play and where equipment is dangerous

Zagar wore a patch inside his leather flight jacket in four languages that read, “To great China’s soldiers and friends. We come to help you fight Japan. Please help us together and report to the National Union Army. US Navy thanks you very much and rewards you. US Air Force will make the trip safer.”

Zagar told me that the Japanese put a million dollar bounty on their heads and on one occasion an infiltrator threw a bullet clip into a campfire. Luckily the Americans all hit the deck and the traitor killed himself. Rickover Naval Academy has a few plaques about Zagar’s service in their trophy case.

There are many ways to recognize and remember veterans. Today, we remember all those who have served. But for some, the remembrances are continuing.

The Big Red One Museum at Cantigny is such a place. In Wheaton, on the 500 acre estate of Lt. Colonel Robert R. McCormick, the First Division Museum was started by the one time publisher of the Chicago Tribune as a tribute to the battle in France in World War I where he fought with the American Expeditionary Forces as a soldier in the 1st Infantry Division, so named because it was the first permanent division in the regular army. The park is open until sunset, year round.

I’d like to recognize Hank Graham who once owned the Small Fry Shop in Lincoln Square until he retired. He was active in the Lincoln Square Chamber and organized the annual Tennis Tournament that was a big success for 20 years. The Colonel was a World War II veteran, participating in a number of campaigns and was awarded the Bronze Star and the Silver Star for his actions.

Bruno Zagajewski received the Bronze Star 55 years eight months and one week after he was honorably discharged from the US Army. Bruno first served in the Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corp in the mid-1930s before entering the 14th Infantry in 1942. He served in the Panama Canal when the 14th “Jungleers” were merged into General Wymans 71st Division and took commandeered Hollywood cruise ships to France in June, 1943.

Shortly before D-Day Zagajewski met both generals Eisenhower and Patton.

Some of the men had lined the outside of their tanks with sandbags for added protection. Patton came along and told them to “get those sandbags off of there. They were slowing the tanks down.” Patton said, “I got the gust, these men got the blood to spill.” Bruno noted, “That Patton was a sharp dresser, pretty fancy uniform.” When Eisenhower stopped at a post war 71st Austrian encampment “We just watched and kept and not for babies -- and Hartigan Beach, which is located at the end of Albion Ave. and its million dollar homes and is chock-full of baby swings and play stuff for tiny tots.

Although I was incorrect and Ald. Moore was correct when he said that the lame Howard playground cost more to build than the very cool Hartigan playground, I could never get an itemized contract from the Chicago Park District (CPD) to compare equipment versus labor costs, which is more than likely where the price difference lies. There's no way the equipment at Howard -- which I still stand by as being dangerous and not made for small children -- cost as much as Hartigan.

But wait, there's more as to why the alderman is so angry at me. In that column also, I stated that I wanted to see if any of Ald. Moore's contributors had gotten the contracts for the ward's new parks. On July 1, shortly after the column ran, I received a scathing email from Ald. Moore that, among other things, said, "Finally, you gratuitously suggest that somehow the choice of playgrounds was influenced by 'hefty Moore campaign contributors.' Really? What evidence do you have for that defamatory statement. If you had bothered to ask, I would have been more than willing to inform you that I play no role whatsoever in selecting the contractors for the playground projects and I have never received a campaign contribution from the contractors on the playground projects."

Funny, but two weeks later, after I'm sure he heard I'd been snooping around, I received a very different email from him. It stated the opposite of what he'd told me two weeks earlier! "In the spirit of full disclosure, the contractor, FH Paschen, has been a campaign contributor of mine in the past, though they haven't donated to me lately," he said. "As you may know, they are one of the largest construction contractors in the city and donate to a lot of elected officials and candidates for office.

When I wrote my previous email to you, I was not aware the Park District had awarded them the contract and actually I was quite surprised when I received the information."

Surprised? I don't think so. Turns out FH Paschen didn't just get those two contracts for Howard and Hartigan -- the company received the contracts for all five of the new playgrounds in the ward, totaling $981,291! And just an FYI, Paschen was a Moore contributor in 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2012, and 2013.

I also checked to see if Paschen regularly contributed to other elected officials in nearby North Side wards, as Ald. Moore suggested. There was nothing in 50, 48, 47, 46, 45, 43, or 42. In 2008 however, there was a small donation to Ward 44.

And as far as being surprised, Ald. Moore held a community meeting to vote on designs for the new parks and those votes were counted by his legislative aide, Bob Fuller, who wrote me this: "Following ample time for attendees to vote - about an hour- the tickets were tallied in each bag for each playground."

So how could Ald. Moore not have known Paschen got all the contracts? And although he denied involvement, when the alderman held that community meeting where people -- without showing any proof of ward residency -- could vote on the designs, he got himself involved in the process, which I was completely stonewalled about when I sent

Industrial Arts and Design Center offers space, direction for creative process

The Chicago Industrial Arts and Design Center, a multi-disciplinary industrial arts center, opened in May of this year at 6433 N. Ravenswood.

STORY AND PHOTOS BY BOB KITSOS

A haven for artisans and do-it-yourselfers opened this past spring at the Chicago Industrial Arts and Design Center (CIADC), 6433 N. Ravenswood.

Tucked away in a quiet corner of Rogers Park near the intersection of Devon and Ravenswood, the center is a not-for-profit charitable organization. Its mission is to provide continuing education, working access and community for 3-D object makers with materials and processes requiring industrial workspace, specialized skill sets and shop equipment.

The center is labeled as a multi-disciplinary industrial arts resource center featuring dedicated departments in fabricated metalworking and forging, woodworking, casting and integrated technology and design.

In addition to do-it-yourselfers, programming is designed for craftspeople, artists and innovators of all skill levels and interests. CIADC offers the shared space, tools and community of a maker-space with the structure of a continuing education center.

Classes and workshops are offered on a quarterly basis in all four departments. For those comfortable with using tools, materials and processes are provided. Open studio time is available through membership.

Long-time Rogers Park resident, Matt Runfola, is the founder and president of the organization. He said, "This integrated approach is not available to the general public elsewhere in Chicagoland." He is aware of only four other places offering similar programs throughout the country. The 44-year-old Runfola previously headed the Evanston Arts Center's metalworking program for the last 13 years and has a mechanical engineering degree.

"People are using our workshops for their business," Runfola said. "We have a good retention rate of regular customers, and we're trying to be a balanced mix of classes and walk-ins."

More than 80 people are currently using the facility. The center is accessible by car, bike and public transit and has dedicated parking. More information is available at info@ciadc.org

Before opening its doors, all the heating, plumbing and electrical components in the building had to be replaced. The renovation took nine months. CIADC's 10,500 square feet of industrial space includes three stories of poured concrete with a freight elevator and a plethora of windows that provide an abundance of natural light. Housing four in-depth studio departments under one roof allows for easy cross-medium, cross-process and cross-department approach to the creative process.

The building's first floor (rear entrance) is the center's reception area and technology department. The second floor features the wood shop and the bottom floor, which is located in a connected, adjacent building, houses the metalworking department. The Chicago Industrial Arts and Design Center also sells materials and supplies.

Runfola praised the work of the Rogers Park Business Alliance with this project. The building had been the original headquarters of Chicago Radio Laboratory, a company that began in 1921 and later changed its name to Zenith Radio Co. after it moved out. A machine shop that occupied the location for some 40 years was the building's previous tenant.

Nation’s politicians wheel and deal in D.C. as usual

BY DON DeBAT

WASHINGTON — Every U.S. citizen should find time to take a trip to Washington, D.C., and witness our federal government in action.

While most Americans travel to this beautiful city as tourists to visit historical buildings, monuments and the emotionally powerful Vietnam and the World War II Memorials, there’s much more going on inside the Beltway.

At virtually every hotel bar and restaurant, men and women dressed in expensive business suits are doing deals and angling for an inside position to benefit unnamed clients.

They make deep eye contact, lean in and use hand gestures and speak in a whisper.

Most professional lobbyists and political dealmakers cover their mouths like a Major League baseball relief pitcher talking over the next hitter with the pitching coach.

We can go to the polls and elect our favorite candidates who will promise to do their best for us on Capitol Hill. But, this really is how the laws of the land are crafted—over lunch, cocktails and dinner or in private meeting rooms. The cigar smoke is reserved for outdoor cafes.

Despite all the political rhetoric, things haven’t changed much since this writer’s first trip to Capitol Hill in 1980 with a national group of 2,000 home builders. They came to meet with President Jimmy Carter and protest that 18% mortgage rates and 21% construction loans were killing new home-construction from coast to coast.

Fifty Chicago-area builders—led by Bruno Pasquinnelli, president of the Home Builders Assoc. of Greater Chicago—also met privately with U.S. Senators Charles Percy (R-Illinois) and Adlai Stevenson, Jr. (D-Illinois) to lobby for economic relief for the building business and lower home-loan interest rates for consumers.

Although 95% of the nation’s families were shut out of the housing market by record-high rates, Sen. Stevenson seemed shocked. He told the builders he “had no idea” that they were paying 21% for construction money. The Chicago builders rolled their eyes and collectively groaned.

After the Great Recession of 2008, when the entire for-sale housing industry tanked and Congress was forced to pass a $700-billion bailout of the banking industry, most veteran home builders would say the 1980 crisis was like a kindergarten class.

Long after the bailout, former U.S. Secy.

The Home Front

Of Labor Robert Reich noted that beleaguered homeowners and debt-weary college graduates still “don’t have any bargaining leverage with creditors—and that’s exactly what the financial industry wants.”

Fast forward to 2015, and Congress is facing yet another financial crisis. Newly elected U.S. House speaker Paul Ryan (R-Wisconsin) is wrestling with a range of issues from Congressional gridlock to a steadily growing fiscal crisis.

Today, political experts say Washington has saddled U.S. taxpayers with trillions of dollars in future obligations, which grow every day. Outside of massive federal default, future options include huge cuts in Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid benefits, or a giant increase in taxes.

“Let’s be frank. The House is broken,” Ryan said. “It’s time for us to turn the page on the last few years and get to work on a bold agenda we can take to the American people.”

Over the past two years, Illinois Congress members alone took 70 foreign trips to 44 countries at a cost of more than a half-million dollars, reported a recent Chicago Tribune analysis.

Maybe now it is time for Congress to bail on those international junkets and buckle up for work.

While the average American struggles to pay his mortgage, save cash to send children to college, or hunts for a better paying job everyone who works on the Potomac seems in a state of euphoria. In Washington, D.C., the measure of happiness usually is being elected or serving for an elected politician who is “in for two or four years,” or even better, “in for six.”

Letter to the Editor

Think again on casino site

Don DeBat advocates that the State of Illinois/Thompson Center be the site of a new casino (Skyline Oct.21-27) but there’s one very good reason why it should not go there. It’s the location of the Clark/Lake el station, the hub of CTA rail traffic in the Loop.

Some desperate souls who’ve lost it all may attempt suicide by throwing themselves on the tracks. Regardless of the outcome this would lead to transit delays and gridlock.

Furthermore, casinos attract crime and riders will be subjected to (aggressive) panhandling, robberies and assaults, both on the el platform and systemwide. If there is ever to be a Chicago casino, it must not be placed in the Loop.

Aldermen to limit food cart operations in 42nd, 44th Wards

BY DOMINIQUE JACKSON
Columbia Chronicle

Coming on the heels of the City Council’s legalization of food carts on Sept.24, aldermen Brendan Reilly (42nd) and Tom Tunney (44th) have succeeded in implementing restrictions on where food cart vendors can operate. According to Hilary Gowins, managing editor for the Illinois Policy Institute, Tunney and Reilly cite public safety as a reason to restrict food cart operations in their wards.

Hours after the City Council’s Sept. 24 action, Reilly and Tunney introduced opt-out amendments to the ordinance that would allow them to ban food carts in high traffic areas of their wards.

The City Council license committee approved the ordinances on Oct. 27, according to a Chicago Sun-Times article appearing the same day.

“It’s really unfortunate that so soon after giving people the freedom to operate their businesses, the aldermen already want to take back what they are able to do,” Gowins said.

Both Reilly and Tunney were unavailable for comment, as of press time. There are 1,500 food cart vendors in Chicago, and starting Nov. 13, food cart owners can apply for licenses, according to Gowins.

Chicago is home to 16,000 food establishments like restaurants, grocery stores, bakeries, wholesalers, lunchrooms, mobile food vendors and more. The city’s main concerns are food safety and sanitation. Their goal is to prevent the spread of food-borne disease. They do this by inspecting food businesses, responding to complaints and food recalls and also offering education to food service managers.

Out of the 50 largest cities in the nation, Chicago was one of two that refused to license food carts, according to Stacy Massey, community relations manager for the Institute for Justice Clinic on Entrepreneurship. Before legalization, food cart vendors would have to worry about being ticketed and fined by the police, according to Massey.

Gowins said it is too early to determine the impact of legalizing food carts, but research released by Illinois Policy Institute suggests it is promising because of the jobs it will create.

The report was released by Michael Lucci and Gowins Aug. 21, outlining the benefits of allowing food carts to operate in the city, suggesting they could create 6,000 new jobs. It also said more than 1,500 food cart vendors in Chicago serve around 50,000 meals a day to consumers.

“We have every reason to believe that the industry is going to boom here in Chicago,” Gowins said.

Teresa Vergra-Miranda, a Brighton Park resident, said she eats at food carts offering Mexican street food about twice a week.

“My parents are from Mexico, and we eat at [food carts] after church because it reminds them of Mexico—it reminds us of home,” Vergra-Miranda said.

Vergra-Miranda also said she thinks obstruction of streets by food carts will not be a public safety concern.

“There is enough sidewalk for everyone,” Vergra-Miranda said.

Chassity Santiago, a server at Salt & Pepper Diner in Wrigleyville, said she does not think food carts threaten her restaurant’s business because there are already many other choices in the area.

“The food in this neighborhood [Wrigleyville] is so diverse... I don’t think it would have much of an impact,” Santiago said.

Santiago said she agrees food carts should be restricted from certain locations on crowded game days in Wrigleyville to avoid worsening traffic.

“The ordinance puts food carts and brick-and-mortar restaurants on an even playing field,” Gowins said. “There is plenty of business for both to survive and thrive.”

Barracks Bombings occurred during the Lebanese Civil War when two truck bombs struck separate buildings housing U.S. and French military forces. Roenigk was not ashore at the time of the bombing.

Leon Szkotak said the proudest day of his life was when the US Army liberated him from enforced farm labor in Austria. You see when the Germans came to his town in little Poland province, Malopolska, they shot everyone over 21. They put the teenagers into cattle cars and shipped them off. He went to Nederkupfel near Linz, Austria, where he worked for years.

“The Americans came with chocolate, cigarettes and cognac. We just celebrated that we were alive.” His wife Wladyslawa related that in Bavaria where she also worked on a farm in servitude, the SS would hang a farmer if they did not produce one liter of cow milk a day. Some days they would just add water to the milk to make up a liter. The German Russian front went through Poland four times. All of these folks were lucky because they were survivors.

Private Milton Olive gave his all and the Medal of Honor recipient is remembered in Olive Park by Navy Pier. Medic Norman Heft gave his all and is remembered on the plaque along our River Walk downtown along with the names of the other Chicagoans who gave their all in Vietnam.

Lt. Chris Morgan was a fighter pilot who, on his first combat mission on October 16, 1943, was forced to ditch his fighter plane in enemy-occupied Burma (now Myanmar). Captivity under the Japanese was brutal resulting in as high as a 40% death rate for allied prisoners.

Yet through an indomitable will to live, Morgan endured beatings, starvation and jungle disease to return home in 1945. However, recovery was challenging for Chris. Yet, through determined support, he experienced healing and after the Vietnam War, used his understanding of war to become a recognized champion for returning POW and veterans rights.

The Lane Tech High School class of 1962 had a number of veterans who enlisted or got the famous “Greetings” letter from the President.

Richard Mies was a wrestling champion for Lane at the 95 lbs. level and continued wrestling when he became A Midshipman at Annapolis. Because of his size and ability, he was a perfect candidate for the Navy Submarine Corp. Over the years, he rose thru the ranks, was the commander of a nuclear submarine and eventually, Richard was head of STRATCOM on 9/11 when terrorists struck the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

Because of the uncertainty, President Bush flew to the Strategic Command center near Bellevue, Neb. and was escorted by Admiral Mies to a deep below ground command center until such time as they determined the President could fly back to Washington.

Before that fateful day was over, Admiral Mies had started, and then abruptly halted, a nuclear warfare exercise that was an annual training exercise for STRATCOM before he found himself providing a safe haven for the President. Rich retired as a four star Admiral and still keeps in touch with his classmates and attended the 50th reunion of his Lane graduating class.

Frank Omilian served in the post War occupation of Japan, spending two years there overseeing the reconstruction and the democratization of this Asian country. He was amazed at the rail system and the small size of this dominant Asian economy.

His story was of a visit by a US Navy Wave who became my mother. He came to visit her in San Diego. She was dressed in her sharp Navy uniform and he in his army one. His mates were giving him the time of his life, not believing my beautiful blond mother was his aunt.

Norman Heft was from the South Side of Chicago. He enlisted in the Army and received medical training at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, Texas, and became a medic.

In the early morning darkness of 23 August 1966, the quiet was pierced by a loud explosion. A 105 mm artillery round landed within the night time perimeter of his 1st Infantry Division company and took Norman from us.

It was "friendly fire" but there is nothing friendly about a 105.

Norman was a very soft spoken person but had a great impact on all who knew him. He and many other Chicagoans are listed on a remembrance plaque on the Riverwalk in downtown Chicago. He and many more are listed on www.virtualwall.org.

Martin S. Bader was in the National Guard and enlisted in the Army Air Corps before the start of WWII. He was stationed at what was then the newly established Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, TX, where he served as an Airplane Mechanic Instructor.

Martin recently passed away at the age of 95 and was always a devoted veteran. Among the highlights of his life were that when he was 80 years old, he was invited back to his Air Force base to give a speech to the Sheppard Air Force graduates, where he reminisced of his days when the base was brand new at the start of the war, and consisted only of huts with no screens (and certainly no air-conditioning in those days).

The hangar where he assembled WWII bombers is still there today, and, among other remembrances including the victory garden he and his wife had at the time, brought back many nostalgic memories to him, which the young graduates were enthralled to hear about.

Another major highlight when he was 90 years old, Martin participated in an Honor Flight for WWII veterans taking him

GANGS ALL HERE from p. 3
Freedom of Information requests to the CPD to find out exactly how that worked.

And now, beachfront condos are possibly being built near Howard, with prices up to $600K on Eastlake Terrace? Well, I hope they're not expecting families to pay that much money and be moving in, for two reasons: 1) People are getting shot in that area regularly lately; 2) There is not a playground even remotely close for buyers to take their small tots to play safely (I still say there's nothing really safe for kids under five at Howard St. Beach. Meetings start this week for Ald. Moore's Participatory Budgeting and I sure hope some baby swings are on the agenda for its playground).

Back to the future
But enough about the playgrounds and my little tiff with Ald. Moore. Back to people being shot and the alderman's email, which said that the most recent shooting (there may be more by the time you read this), of a 27-year-old "documented gang member" standing in the alley in the 1500 block of W. Jonquil on Nov. 3, "was the latest in a recent uptick of gang-related shooting incidents in Rogers Park."

Besides that one, three people were wounded in a shooting Oct. 29 in the 1500 block of West Morse -- four blocks from my house -- and a man was shot Oct. 23 while at the Shell gas station at Sheridan and Touhy, also about four blocks from my house. Police believe the three incidents are related to an ongoing dispute between rival factions of the same gang, Ald. Moore said.

And police think an internal dispute in another gang is responsible for three other shootings, Ald. Moore said, including an Oct. 13 incident where three men were shot in the 2000 block of W. Howard; an Oct. 21 incident in which a man was shot in the 1900 block of N. Birchwood; and an Oct. 27 shooting with a man being shot in the 6700 block of N. Ridge. According to police, the victims in each incident are affiliated with the same street gang.

Ald. Moore said he is in regular contact with 24th District Commander Roberto Nieves, who keeps him updated on the policing strategies he's initiating in response to the shootings. The commander has received and deployed additional police resources in areas where he believes possible retaliatory shootings may occur, Ald. Moore said.
The alderman also said he's arranged for city Bureau of Forestry crews to trim trees around police cameras so they have a clear view. Ald. Moore and Cmdr. Nieves are working with building owners to install cameras and additional lighting in some of the troubled areas, Ald. Moore said.

Apparently the commander is hard at work on this. He's continuing his "custom notification" initiative, meeting with suspected gang members and their family members at their homes, Ald. Moore said. The commander and a social service provider together review the gang member's criminal record, warn him that he faces additional severe penalties if he continues his criminal lifestyle and offers to make available socials service resources, such as job training and GED courses, "if the gang member makes a commitment to refrain from criminal activity and instead choose a positive path with his life," Ald. Moore's email states.
He also said that until the recent uptick in violence, shooting incidents in Rogers Park had been down this year as compared to the same period last year. The neighborhood has experienced roughly the same number of shootings so far this year as compared to last year (28 this year vs. 27 last year), said Ald. Moore, who is urging people to attend CAPS meetings. (DNAinfo says differently, that the latest victim brings the total number of shooting victims to 39 this year in 28 incidents -- which is one more victim than 2014's final count of 38).
No matter what the numbers are they're too high, and they're scaring people away from East Rogers Park.

from Chicago to Washington, DC to see the WWII Memorial. It was a trip he cherished until the day he died. He carried his loyalty to his country throughout his entire life, and during his retirement he and his wife of 72 years, Irene Bader, volunteered over 5,000 hours at the Bay Pines VA hospital in Tampa, FL.

I would like to Honor two Veterans. The first being Mario Castillo, age 89, who is a Purple Heart Veteran, for saving the lives of his troop in France during WWI.

More recently, Casey Loop, who was deeply impacted by 911 when he was a college student and when he completed his studies at UC – Santa Cruz in 2003 he enlisted in the Army as a non-commissioned officer in Vilseck Germany from 2005 to 2009. He worked as a DataBase Analyst Supervisor and deployed to Iraqi in 2007 returning a year later. Today Casey lives here in the Gold Coast.

James Patrick Flynn was a Sailor on the USS Mississippi stationed in Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. While he survived the attack, the memories of it, and caring for the dead and wounded immediately after the attack haunted him for the rest of his life. As he neared death in 1993 he would frequently sit up erect in his nursing home bed to look out the window to see if the Japanese bombers were approaching.

Clarence C. Haehlen needs to be recognized. Today he rests in Rosehill Cemetery. All I know about his service is what was on the original bronze marker supplied by the VA. More complete records held by the government were probably destroyed by fire decades ago. He didn't get any special awards. But since "An army marches on its stomach" his own service including Supply Train in WWI is not to be dismissed.

Captain Charlie Plumb was shot down over Hanoi, North Vietnam on May 19 1967, beginning nearly six years of grueling captivity in the infamous "Hanoi Hilton" prison system. A documentary was filmed over two weeks of travel from Hanoi to the western edge of southern Vietnam near Cambodia. Charlie met former enemies, the former commandant of Hoa Lo prison and also visited Gia Lam airport where he had last left the country on February 19, 1973 during "Operation Homecoming."

Nick Phillippidis served in the Greek Resistance during World War II and suffered all manner of injury, hunger and fear while executing rear actions in attempting to slow the German advances in Greece.

The aspiring doctor became a newspaper man and solemnly carried the physical and emotional scars of those days throughout his life. He left Greece after the war and moved to Chicago to raise his family.

My brother Christopher Beavers was killed in a fire in Vietnam when he was only 20. He would have come home when he was 21. He is remembered today on the Vietnam War Wall. I was 26 when this occurred. My parents never, ever recovered from his death.

I know my brother made the ultimate sacrifice in Vietnam honor him as a veteran of the Vietnam War.

Man charged in Lincoln Park bank robbery

A 60-year-old Uptown man is charged with the September 26 robbery of a Lincoln Park Citibank branch, 2555 N. Clark St., federal court records show.

One count of bank robbery by force or violence has been filed against Maurice Hudson whose most recent address is in the 4500 block of N. Hazel St.

At the time of the hold-up, witnesses said an apparently “diminished” offender implied that he had a weapon as he presented a note to the bank teller. He fled with an undetermined amount of cash in an envelope, police said.

Career criminal accused of Lakeview auto break-ins

Jerry Cotton

A career criminal faces burglary and theft charges for allegedly breaking into cars and garages in a Lakeview alley and tossing the proceeds into a city garbage can that he dragged along behind him.

A witness reported seeing Jerry Cotton, 53, committing break-ins in an alley between the 1300 blocks of Belmont and Melrose avenues around 9 p.m. November 4.

Police said they identified property stolen from several victims in Cotton’s garbage can.

Cotton, of the Washington Heights neighborhood, has been sentenced to a total of more than 60 years in prison since 1982, including four years for four shoplifting convictions; 42 years for six separate burglary convictions; and 17 years for two different robberies, state records show.

Boyfriend, girlfriend have cars stolen

Motor vehicle theft reports, which are up 20% over last year in Lakeview, have risen a bit more since a resident and his girlfriend had their cars stolen simultaneously by a group of men.

One of the cars was quickly ditched in a West Lakeview yard. The other vehicle remains missing as of this report.

Police were called to 1300 block of Belmont Ave. around 8:45 p.m. November 3 after a witness reported a man on foot chasing a black Audi down a nearby alley.

The Audi crashed into something as it fled, then turned south on Southport, one caller said.

When police arrived, they found the owner of the Audi who reported that it had been stolen and his girlfriend’s white four-door Volkswagen had been stolen, too.

About 30 minutes later, the woman’s

Volkswagen was in the 1700 block of W. School St., abandoned in a backyard. The driver of the Volkswagen reportedly jumped into a waiting commercial truck.

No one is in custody and the Audi remains missing.

Robbed Of Mink Coat

Police said a woman reported being robbed at gunpoint of her mink coat by two men in Lakeview East around 11:15 p.m. November 4. No one was injured and no one is in custody.

The victim was near Broadway and Buckingham when two men approached her and one produced a black semi-automatic handgun. Both men fled southbound on Broadway with the woman’s fur, according to the police report.

One offender is described as a Hispanic man, about 5’-7” tall, with slicked-back hair. He has a large scar on the left side of his face. The victim was unable to provide a description of the second offender other than to say that he too was Hispanic.

Former Religious Services Worker at Federal jail pleads guilty

A former religious services assistant at the downtown Metropolitan Correctional Center pleaded guilty Monday to providing sensitive information to inmates about fellow prisoners in the federal corrections system.

Tommy Haire, 34, performed unauthorized searches on the MCC’s internal computer system to obtain personal information about several prisoners being housed elsewhere, and then relayed that information to inmates in the MCC, says the FBI. The searches revealed various data, including the outside inmates’ psychological information, their status as sex offenders, their location within the prison system, and other personal identifying items.

Haire admitted that such information would be valuable to the MCC inmates as a means of extorting the other prisoners or for committing identity and tax fraud against them.

Haire plead guilty to one misdemeanor count of conversion of government property. The charge carries a maximum sentence of one year in prison and a maximum fine of $100,000. A sentencing hearing is scheduled for February 2, 2016.

Haire also used his position to provide perks to MCC inmates. According to the FBI, Haire allowed the inmates to use his computer to surf the Internet, and to use his cellular phone to place calls outside of the jail. He also mailed letters on behalf of inmates, in violation of the MCC’s rules on screening prisoners’ correspondence.

Businessman indicted for failing to report $3M in income from downtown real estate deal

A Kenilworth businessman was indicted last week on charges he evaded federal income taxes by concealing $3 million he earned in connection with a high-rise real estate deal in downtown Chicago.

Salvatore Galioto, 54, earned $3 million in personal income as part of the acquisition of nine floors in a high-rise building at 55 E. Washington St. in Chicago in 2007, according to the FBI. The seller, Pittsfield Development LLC, paid the money as a consulting fee for closing the deal. Instead of reporting the money on his personal income taxes, Galioto caused false partnership tax returns to be prepared and filed, misstating that the $3 million was earned in 2008 by his company, 55 E. Washington Development LLC, according to the indictment.

Galioto has been charged with one count of corrupt interference with the administration of Internal Revenue Service laws, and three counts of willfully making false and fraudulent statements to the IRS.

Galioto, also known as “Sam Galioto” and “Sammy Galioto,” entered into a consulting agreement with Pittsfield on or about March 28, 2007. The agreement called for Pittsfield to pay $3 million to Galioto when the sale was completed. On or about Dec. 28, 2007, Galioto’s company purchased floors 13-21 from Pittsfield for $22,652,876.82, the indictment states.

Galioto concealed receipt of Pittsfield’s payment by having it paid to his relative as a nominee. The relative is identified in the indictment only as “Individual C.” On or about Dec. 31, 2007, Pittsfield sent a portion of Galioto’s consulting fee to Individual C in the form of a check for $962,121.75. Shortly thereafter, Galioto caused Individual C to sign and endorse the check over to Galioto, who took possession of it, endorsed it, and deposited it for his own use, according to the FBI. Galioto failed to report that money in his individual federal income tax returns for the years 2007 and 2008, the indictment alleges. Each count of making false and fraudulent statements to the IRS is punishable by up to three years in prison and a fine of $100,000.
