DePaul Prep's Nick Martinez runs for first down in Rams' win over Geneseo.

DePaul Prep dominates Geneseo 38-13

BY JACK LYDON

The DePaul Prep Rams dominated the Geneseo Maple Leafs 38-13 Nov. 9 in the IHSA 3A second round playoff game. The Rams' offense scored on all five of their first half possession with four touchdowns and a field goal.

No one knew what to expect in this game. Geneseo (6-5), a team from western Illinois by the Quad Cities, in the Western Big 6 Conference and runs an old school double wing "three yards and a cloud of dust" type offense that gives teams trouble who don't regularly see it. The double wing expects to run the ball and control the clock. Geneseo did neither.

After the Rams took the opening kick off down the field for an early score, a three-yard touchdown run by Rams' senior running back Nick Martinez, Geneseo answered. On a classic quarterback option, Maple Leafs' junior tail back Kye Weinzert took the pitch and raced up the Rams' sideline 75 yards to Rams 12 yard-line.

On the next play, Geneseo junior quarterback Braxton McAvoy threw for a 12-yard touchdown on a pass to the middle of the end-zone. Not exactly three yards and a cloud of dust.

But Fernando "Juju" Rodriguez and the powerful Rams offense were too much for Geneseo. The one-two punch of Rodriguez's passing and the gashing runs of Martinez had the Rams scoring every time they had the ball in the first half: four touchdowns and a field goal. A double-wing offense simply can't overcome that.

It wasn't just the conservative offense that doomed Geneseo. The Rams' defense had something to do with it.

The Rams forced six turnovers and allowed probably not that many first downs. The Rams recovered four Geneseo fumbles and intercepted two passes.

It was the Rams that ran the ball. Senior running back Martinez returned to the Rams back-

Lincoln Square votes 'yes' for hooch at Small Cheval

BY PETER VON BUOL

Voters of the 47th Ward's Ninth Precinct voted 295 to 51 on Election Day to overturn a decades-old prohibition against serving alcohol within an area which includes a soon-to-open Small Cheval restaurant at 2156 W. Montrose Ave.

The reversal will now allow the city of Chicago to award the restaurant a liquor license.

The Small Cheval chain has become a local favorite for its upscale griddled cheeseburgers and fried-chicken. Small Cheval's parent, Hogsalt, operates numerous nostalgic restaurant concepts throughout the city, including Small Cheval's parent, Au Cheval, 800 W. Randolph St., and Bavette's Bar and Boeuf steakhouse, 218 W. Kinzie St. The corporation was founded by Brendan Sodikoff, a former Restoration Hardware executive. Small Cheval currently operates eight locations throughout Chicago and Rosemont.

The Lincoln Square location had most recently been a campus of the Chicago Waldorf School. Earlier, the location has been home to three restaurants, Cafe Berlin, Aloha Cafe and Los Farallones, all of which had served alcohol.

Despite what has been reported in some local media outlets, the northeast corner of Leavitt St.,

Three years for man who attacked people with a baseball bat in Lincoln Park

BY CWBCHICAGO

A man pleaded guilty this week to randomly attacking three people with a baseball bat in Lincoln Park last year.

Julius Wilkerson, 21, entered guilty pleas to three counts of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon. Judge Ursula Walowski sentenced him to three years.

Officers responded to calls of a man attacking people with an orange baseball bat at Oz Park, 2021 N. Burling, around 5:25 p.m. Oct. 18, 2023. They found a girl and a boy, both 17, who said a man they

From the early days in the 1970s, he was involved in everything—running Chicago's first Gay Community Center, creating the Gay Activist Coalition at Harold Washington College, and speaking openly about LGBTQ+ issues long before it was common. He didn't just organize; he built connections, educated, and inspired others to feel proud of who they are.

Mayor "School Board" Johnson politicized issues Chicken-Little style

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Just when you thought it was safe to come out from under your bed, another deputy of Mayor "School Board" Johnson joins the race of the chickens with their heads chopped off.

What a strange barnyard polka that dance turns out to be.

This time it's the Rev. Mitchell Johnson leading that little cotillion. He was elevated to the top of the Chicago School Board "pyramid" by the mayor. And he enjoyed the potent power and the sideshow pre-election drama for seven whole days.

That's how long it took for his glib past and righteous intolerance to take hold, tripping up what was supposed to be a historic and divine leadership with enough mayoral political bonding to create a new kingdom of school board bliss and rubber-stamping.

They must have been delirious at the Chicago Teachers Union [CTU]. The mayor, however, has really telescoped the grandeur of Chicago Public Schools big enough for the whole nation to see. It's a wheel spinning enterprise.

But that was all before the sky began to fall, Chicken-Little style.

Once again a mayoral deputy was discovered to have made anti-kosher remarks. Where is treasured Molly Goldberg when you need her?

We have to ask, why all this anti-Semitic rhetoric? And where is the Reverend dispensing this disparaging lingo, aside from social media?

How can humans still be littering their speech and conversations with this bitter and broken vocabulary in 2024? The Reverend barely had time to sharpen pencils or convene one School Board meeting. Once it was acknowledged that he also had some heavy duty misogynous philosophy to impart, the weirdness and creepy cats were all out of the bag.

We passed the point of no return when we learned that another dimension of the Reverend's wisdom centered on his 9/11 conspiracy theories and the horrors of America under attack on that September morn. If you dig far enough you'll be in the anti-COVID hysteria of Bobby Kennedy Jr.

What a kettle of rancid fish Mayor Johnson's appointment of Rev. Johnson proved to be. At this rate the media posts placed by the mayor's deputies turned to snake venom in providing any type of meaningful contribution to a healthy Chicago.

But what was really historic was the mayor's unrelenting, over-simplified system of excuses in support for his deputies. His ridiculous strategy of standing by his people was desperate and ludicrous. That's what it was for his standing by Ronnie Reese, his former Director of Communications, following Reese's foul treatment and bullying of his colleagues and co-workers. And it's his continued embrace of the anti-Semite meanderings of Kennedy Bartley, his current Deputy for External Affairs and Intergovernmental Affairs, that makes for my current head scratching.

But it only took seven days of dysfunctional political evaporation for the Reverend to find himself alone in his sinking lifeboat before he officially resigned. It only took 24 hours for the mayor to acknowledge what everyone else knew. "Rev. Mitchell Johnson's statements were not only hurtful but deeply disturbing. I want to be clear: antisemitic, misogynistic, and conspiratorial statements are unacceptable," said the mayor finally.

The mayor's request for the Reverend's resignation came after Gov. JB Pritzker, and 40 members of the Chicago City Council asked him to do so.

Much criticism has been raised regarding the quality and stability of the vetting process, itself, in finding suitable candidates for the office of School Board President.

Even the CTU, which still lists the mayor as a working member of the organization, acknowledged the critical need to gather all the facts on a candidate to make a reasoned judgment.

The mayor was cautioned of the futility of reserving the appointment of a president without an adequate and reasoned shared responsibility in selecting a candidate. Too much seems to have been disregarded or simply glazed-over in the appointment by the Mayor alone.

Even the Mayor's office finally admitted he did not know all the facts due to a disconnect in the vetting process.

"We learned this past week that the mayor cannot be left alone to decide who's going to be the president of the school board, it's a $9.9 billion budget, there needs to be a team effort in appointing this person," said CPS parent Sherri Hoke.

The strange and dysfunctional organization revolving around the critical issue of Chicago public education has its home nowhere but the Mayor's office. A sad location, indeed, in the saga of a once strong and credible system of education. The schools have been a politicized issue from the beginning of Mayor Johnson's earliest conniving and deal-making with the CTU.

They have been his financial army of minions dedicated to their own power grab... His foot soldiers and patronage army with zero skills for creating good press.

But the schools should not be an isolated gang of political elitists engaged in a losing battle of wits between an isolated unpopular Mayor in over his head in an office he has little successful leverage in.

The students of Chicago deserve better than this shameful expression of rootless political ambition. And the continued anti-Semitic tirades of lackluster political incompetents surrounding the mayor will only expand his nightmares and the scrutiny of federal investigators who must ask both embarrassing and dangerous questions in 2024.

It's hard to coax the fearful and the frightened out from under the hidden safety of that space under our beds. We need a reason to make us strong.

LABOR UNREST: The Lord Mayor of Cork, Ireland, Chicago-born Dan Boyle, will visit Chicago this weekend. The Lord Mayor, who moved back to Ireland when he was eight years old, will be in town to visit the site of a proposed statue of 19th century Irish-born labor leader Mother Jones. A woman who certainly deserves a Chicago statue.

But the statue's future site at Chicago's Historic Water Tower is controversial. The government of the Republic of Ireland has been a strong financial supporter of the statue's campaign, providing the initial starter grant. But the sacred historic landmark status of the Water Tower has always been the unique memorial of the 1871 Great Chicago Fire itself.

It appears some strange shenanigans by the Irish government and local labor unions have orchestrated another mayoral blunder by Mayor Brandon Johnson.

But the statue's future site near Chicago's Historic Water Tower crosses the line.

Chicago's mayor has little respect or sentiment for Chicago history and heroes. The statue, it appears, rides rough-shod over the memorial garden already in place in memory of Chicago's late Mayor Jane Burke Byrne.

Chicago's first woman mayor deserves the low key garden that blends in with the site surround-

Special meeting to consider property tax increase

A vote on Mayor Brandon Johnson's giant property tax increase will be held 9 a.m., Wednesday, Nov. 13, in City Hall.

The proposal has faced stiff criticism from critics in all corners of the city, and short of the Chicago Teachers Union [CTU], there are few supporters for the proposal.

That lack of support includes the City Council where 29 Aldermen have called for a vote on the proposed tax increase. The special City Council meeting will be live-streamed on the City Clerk's Website [https://www.chicityclerk.com/] at the start of the meeting.

Chicago is facing a significant budget shortfall for 2025, with a projected gap of $982.4 million. The Mayor's office is also still trying to figure out how to close the $222.9 million shortfall for this year's budget.

Baseline projections estimate the city's budget deficit will grow to $1.12 billion in 2026 and $1.32 billion in 2027, but those shortfalls could be as large as $1.58 billion and $1.93 billion. Chicago is projecting its 27th consecutive budget shortfall in upcoming years.

The budget pressures come as a historic round of federal government cash giveaways comes to a close. The federal government spent over $800 billion to help states navigate the pandemic and government-imposed economic shutdown.

All that federal cash flooding into every city and state made a tax cut, and also increased employee pay for public employees. Now the implication of the end of that spending is really decimating budgets across the nation.

The situation in Chicago and Illinois is particularly dire due to our massive unfunded debt. The lion's share of Chicago's burden is its pension debt, totaling $34 billion, with another $2 billion for retiree health benefits.

The current budget crisis is playing out as the city faces one of the highest unemployment rates in the nation, and its population is the lowest it's been since 1920.

Chicago Public Schools is also facing a major budget deficit of $500 million, which does not include added costs from a new contract Johnson is negotiating with his coworkers at the CTU. The CTU wants at least $10 billion in new contract demands.

City budget notes

Special meeting unprecedented, shows the severity of budget issues

BY SCOTT WAGUESPACK [32ND]

Most of Chicago will find it difficult to support a property tax hike coupled with the new reassessments unless they see a more fiscally responsible city government.

Mayor Brandon Johnson told us in his budget speech that our residents and businesses need to lean in and sacrifice more- hitting homeowners with a tax increase and threatening to further cut public safety budgets if we don't accept it.

Over the past year, as Mayor Johnson's expenses were running out of control, he was not working collectively with the state, but continued blaming them for the budget distress.

Over the course of a year, the City Council subcommittee on Finance came up with no viable ideas. At the same time, the mayor was on a mission to make sure the Bears and the White Sox were the priority of the city's taxpayers, making promises on behalf of taxpayers that we could never afford.

As we've seen over the past week, there have not been serious cuts to budgets but more shifting of funds from one account to another to make it look like cuts. Many of us have rejected this outright property tax increase without seeing substantial work done to lower the burden on taxpayers.

Our ideas on revenue (that are on par with other cities), cuts and savings ideas have all been offered up, revenue ideas at the state have been offered up, but this budget rejects those ideas and is based on the Mayor and his priorities.

One good thing that was not scrapped was the advanced pension payment created a few years ago to pay future pension contributions in advance to address the city's underfunded pension plans. The policy was implemented in 2023 by Mayor Lori Lightfoot and is now being continued.

The plan was designed to improve our credit rating and save the city money on interest costs. This will also reduce pension contributions by about $3 billion over 30 years and reduce the liability burden for future taxpayers. The first advance payment was $242 million, with a sliding scale. It is intended to bridge the pension funding gap until the city receives casino revenues to support pension payments.

The pension plan funds are simply not something that can be ignored and there is not a way to change the pension system without changing the state constitution. The city has some of the worst pension funded ratios in the country and our two biggest drivers of the annual budget and our credit rating are debt and pension liability.

Other questions about the overall budget include concerns about the City's interest income which was so wildly out of proportion to prior years. Going back to 2010 it averaged around $4 million a year. That it's set at $95 million this year seemed implausible. Interest income comes from revenue earned as the City invests its idle funds in various investment vehicles. We should receive the detailed documentation of that soon.

What are the City's estimated settlement costs for 2025?

This year the amount is slated for $51 million, including police settlements, but we know we have a possible $121 million in parking meter payments for losses in ar-

The Home Front

by Don DeBat

With Thanksgiving Day only two weeks away, it looks like holiday home-buying at an affordable interest rate is beginning to look like leftover microwave turkey.

On Nov. 7, Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey reported that benchmark 30-year fixed home loans averaged 6.79%, up from 6.72% a week earlier.

The average was a more affordable 6.08% on Sept. 26, following the Federal Reserve Board's [Fed] cut on its federal-funds rate by a half of one percentage point. A year ago, the 30-year fixed mortgage average was a lofty 7.5%.

On Nov. 7, the Fed's Open Market Committee lowered the federal funds rate a quarter of one percentage point to a target range of 4.5% to 4.75%, as widely expected.

What is surprising to this writer, who has covered mortgage-market trends since 1968, is why are home-loan rates rising when the Fed is working to bring them down?

Apparently, the disparity between the Fed's actions and the rates consumers are actually paying for loans is controlled by the Wall Street bond market.

Over the past six weeks, bond investors have relentlessly bid up yields on 10-year and 30-year U.S. Treasury bonds, which are closely correlated to mortgage and auto-loan rates. The key 10-year Treasury-bond rate was 3.7% on Sept. 22. On Nov. 7, ahead of the Fed meeting, it was 4.4%.

"Mortgage rates continued to inch up last week, reaching 6.79%," noted Sam Khater, Freddie Mac's chief economist. "It is clear that home-purchase demand is very sensitive to mortgage rates in the current market environment. As soon as rates began to rise in early October, home-purchase applications fell and over the last month have declined 10%."

On Nov. 7, the Freddie Mac survey also reported that 15-year fixed mortgage rates averaged 6%, up from 5.99% a week earlier. A year ago, 15-year loans averaged 6.81%.

The survey is focused on conventional, conforming, fully amortizing home-purchase loans for borrowers who put 20% down and have excellent credit.

Economic analysts say the Fed's ultra-cautious approach could mean federal fiscal policy is not meshing well with the nation's investor fiscal policy.

In the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, the federal government's deficit is $1.8 trillion, and 27% of that was put on our national credit card.

This is where the "American Dream" of affordable homeownership and the Presidential election results intersect. Some economists say President-elect Donald Trump's economic agenda, which is focused on tariffs, tax cuts for corporations, eliminating taxes on overtime pay, tips, and Social Security benefits, likely would drive the federal deficit higher, and eventually push home-loan interest rates even higher.

"We continue to be confident that with an appropriate recalibration of our policy stance, strength in the economy and the labor market can be maintained with inflation moving down to 2%," Fed Chair Jerome Powell said.

The committee "will continue to monitor the implications of incoming information for the economic outlook" and "would be prepared to adjust the stance of monetary policy as appropriate,"

Powell said.

The Fed said it is planning another quarter-point federal-funds rate cut in December, followed by additional cuts of up to 100 basis points throughout 2025.

"In the near term, the election will have no effect upon our policy decisions," Powell said. "We don't know what the timing and substance of any policy changes will be."

Looking into his crystal ball for the direction of interest rates in 2025, Powell said: "We do not know what the effects (of Trump policies) on the economy would be specifically, or whether and to what extent those policies would matter for the achievement of our goals of maximum employment and price stability."

At his Nov. 7 press conference, Powell told reporters that he didn't believe the president had the authority to fire him, and he would not leave his job if Trump asked.

bitration and other high priced settlements on the way.

Is there still an open option for using refi funds to close a budget gap?

During the refinancing of bonds issue, there was great concern about the city's desire to use those refi funds for operating expenses. After a concerted effort to get that irresponsible option removed from the ordinance, the bonds passed.

I voted no because I believe the structure of the bond deal still allows for the Mayor to wrongly use the funds for operating expenses and plug budget holes while driving up costs for the City.

This deal is also not what it was sold as. Initially, the mayor's CFO said there wasn't going to be a refinancing, as there wasn't enough to make an impact. But they went ahead and did the bond deal anyway. They claimed there would be a $90 million windfall. The markets weren't favorable over the past few weeks yet the CFO came back and said the windfall would increase to $110 million.

Last week, Municipal bonds plummeted on Wednesday after voters elected Donald Trump as US president. The move followed a rout in US Treasuries, which sold off over concerns that Trump's policies will widen an already bloated budget deficit and cause inflation to surge, further skewing the refi promises.

What we will watch for this week is to see how many more departments will shift corporate fund staff and programs to bond funding or grants.

A major concern is the potential for cuts to grants in the new Trump Administration that the Johnson Administration says just won't happen.

We also have to scrutinize and determine if all of the shifts to other bond funds are fiscally permissible per government financing rules.

These are among dozens of questions that have been asked of the administration, many without available answers.

We have until Dec. 31 to pass a municipal budget. There is no such thing as continuing resolutions like they have in Congress. Failure to pass a budget does not include any penalty under written state law, but has serious consequences like lawsuits for failing to pay debts, defaults, and even more credit rating damage.

meetings live-streamed (and recorded) on the City Clerk website. Many aldermen have called for a special meeting this Wednesday to vote down the Mayor's budget, demanding he starts over.

Many Aldermen hope that the Mayor and his staff take this seriously and come back with a right sized budget based on reality. This call for a special meeting is an unprecedented step but shows the severity of the budget issues.

Cops hunt robber targeting businesses on Far North Side

Police have linked five recent business robberies on the Far North Side to a single man who may be armed.

In a community alert, Area Three detectives said the robber enters businesses, usually in the evening, and implies that he is holding a weapon under his jacket.

"Give me money," he orders, before taking cash from the victims.

The alert said the man robbed businesses in the 6300 block of N. Clark at 4:27 a.m. Oct. 8; the 4800 block of N. Ashland at 11 p.m. Oct. 8; the 2100 block of W. Devon at 7:27 p.m. Oct. 18, and on the 1900 block of W. Peterson at 7:06 p.m. Oct. 2 and 9:12 p.m. on Oct. 16.

Investigators can be reached at 312-744-8263 regarding crime pattern #P24-3-060.

Woman charged with CTA robbery

Celeste Pope, 18, of the 5900 block of S. Elizabeth, was charged with two felony counts - Robbery.

She was arrested on Nov. 5, in the 1700 block of S. State St., after she was identified as one of the offenders who, on July 19, took personal property from a 22-year-old male while riding a Red Line train in the 1300 block of W. Montrose.

Celeste Pope

She is also charged in connection to the Oct. 30, robbery of a 28-year-old female on an Orange Line train. The offender was placed into custody and charged accordingly.

Two men went on nighttime robbery spree, one was wearing an ankle monitor

Two men, including one who was supposed to be home on electronic monitoring, went on a crosstown robbery spree, mugging victims from 79th St. to Lakeview and Uptown before finally being arrested at the Addison Red Line CTA station, officials said.

Bryant Robinson and Jerome Jackson, both 20, are each charged with four counts of robbery and one count of aggravated battery in a public place.

Prosecutors said Robinson, Jackson, and at least two others started their two-hour crime spree around 10 p.m. Nov. 1 at the 79th St. Red Line station, getting away with the victim's Beats headphones.

After taking the Red Line north, the group allegedly mugged a 57-year-old man in the 4200 block of N. Clarendon. He told police that four men surrounded him as he walked, and Robinson rifled through his pockets for valuables. Robinson took the man's cash out of his wallet, tossed the billfold to the ground, and fled, a Chicago police report said.

The group also mugged a 26-year-old woman in the 3200 block of N. Pine Grove. When her boyfriend tried to intervene, Robinson raised his shirt to display an apparent firearm in his waistband, according to the report.

In the 600 block of W. Waveland, the crew grabbed a man by the throat, dragged him between planters and parked cars, and forced him to his knees as they robbed him, officials said.

A Chicago police surveillance camera operator spotted four people who matched the suspects' descriptions entering the Addison Red Line CTA station a short time later. Cops moved in and arrested them. Officers allegedly recovered a pistol-shaped Tazer from the crew.

Prosecutors asked Judge David Kelly to detain both men, but the judge only agreed to keep Robinson in custody pending trial.

According to court records, Robinson has been arrested two other times in recent weeks.

On Sept. 23, police responded to the 35th St. Red Line CTA station after a group of men robbed an 18-year-old man, taking his phone and book bag on the platform. CPD officers trailed the suspects to the 79th St. Red Line station and detained Robinson, according to an arrest report.

The victim could not identify Robinson as one of the robbers, so Robinson was never charged with the crime, the report said. However, police charged Robinson with reckless conduct and theft of services for allegedly jumping a CTA turnstile and chasing and throwing punches at the robbery victim.

He was cited and released from the police station.

A month later, on Oct. 22, police arrested Robinson on charges of assault and obstruction of identification in the 5100 block of N. Long. Judge Susana Ortiz put him on court-operated electronic monitoring with a nighttime curfew, according to records.

Two men shot by a concealed carry holder in Loop also getting sent to prison

Two men who were shot by a concealed carry holder who thought they were trying to steal his car in the Loop received prison sentences Nov. 7 to go along with their gunshot wounds.

One overnight in Dec. 2022, the concealed carry holder started his 2020 black Dodge Charger with the fob as he walked toward the vehicle outside the Cambria Hotel, 32 W. Randolph. But when he got outside, he saw a red Jeep near his vehicle and someone entering his car. Then, someone in the Jeep began shooting at him, and he returned fire, prosecutors said at the time.

The Jeep nearly struck the concealed carry holder as it sped from the scene, and he fired three more rounds. At the same time, the victim saw another man get out of his Dodge Charger, drop a small computer used to steal cars, and then run away, officials said.

Shortly after the gunfire, surveillance cameras at Northwestern Memorial Hospital allegedly recorded Deangelo Webb tossing two items from the red Jeep as he arrived at the hospital emergency entrance. Webb had a gunshot wound to his knee, and the two items he threw were loaded ammunition magazines, prosecutors claimed.

Meanwhile, CPD and CTA surveillance cameras recorded Sebon Grisby "running, limping, and grabbing his rear end" as he fled from the shooting scene, prosecutor Sarah Dale-Schmidt said.

He entered a Red Line CTA station before returning to street level and proceeding to Wabash Ave., where he ran up to a car and informed two women that he had been shot.

Grisby "lowered his pants and showed the women his rear end, and one of the women recorded this interaction on her cellphone," Dale-Schmidt said. But Grisby left before the fire department arrived.

He later arrived at Lurie Children's Hospital, where staff members transferred him to Northwestern.

On Nov. 7, Webb, 28, pleaded guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm, and Grigsby, 26, pleaded guilty to burglary, according to court records. Judge James Obbish sentenced both men to four years.

Their sentences will be reduced to two years for good behavior and reduced further by 698 credit days earned while awaiting trial. Both men should be paroled in about a month.

Migrant arrested 13 times in a year is now charged with Streeterville robbery

A collection of Santiago Josue Baragas Rodriguez's mugshots.

A Venezuelan migrant has been detained as a safety threat, his 13th arrest in a year, after he allegedly tried to rob a woman of her bike in Streeterville.

A 43-year-old woman intervened when she saw Santiago Josue Baragas Rodriguez, 19, using a rock to try to break the lock of her electric bike in the 400 block of N. City Front Place, a Chicago police report said. When she tried to take her bike back, Rodriguez swung the rock, slapped, and struggled with her, according to the report.

Police said a witness jumped in to disarm and detain Rodriguez until officers arrived.

Judge Caroline Glennon-Goodman granted the state's detention petition, noting that Rodriguez already has three misdemeanor cases pending and he's been arrested in Chicago 11 times this year. Yet, the judge wrote, he "continues to commit crimes against citizens in Chicago." The three pending cases all involve shoplifting allegations.

In fact, Cook County court records show Rodriguez has been arrested 13 times since Nov. 1, 2023. Prosecutors dropped most of the cases even though Rodriguez failed to appear in court.

On May 20, a Macy's employee accused him of shoplifting at the 111 N. State store. He was on pretrial release at the time for allegedly shoplifting from Nordstrom Rack, 101 E. Chicago, on May 3. Both cases were dropped.

He was arrested for trespassing on April 4 for allegedly refusing to leave the Northwestern Memorial Hospital parking garage. Prosecutors dropped the case on June 11.

He experienced better luck when he failed to appear in court three previous times, according to court records:

Rodriguez didn't show up on May 16 for a case that accused him of assault and criminal trespassing in the Loop. Prosecutors dropped the charges in his absence because the alleged victim didn't show up either.

He didn't show up on March 7 for a case involving allegations that he shoplifted from Home Depot, 4555 S. Western Avenue. Prosecutors dropped that case, too.

He didn't show up on Dec. 12, 2023, for a shoplifting case in which he was accused of stealing two pairs of shoes from Nordstrom Rack, 24 N. State. Once again, prosecutors dropped the charge because the store did not send a representative to court.

Two suspects sought in DePaul Univ. hate crime attack

Investigators are looking for two men in connection with the hate crime attack of two Jewish students on DePaul University's Lincoln Park campus on Nov. 6.

DePaul President Robert Manuel told the school community in a letter that the students were "visibly showing their support for Israel" when they were attacked outside the school's Student Center around 3:20 p.m.

Detectives are trying to identify two men in connection with the incident, saying it is considered a battery and hate crime.

At least one of the men verbally engaged the victims in the 2300 block of N. Sheffield and made anti-Semitic remarks before repeatedly striking them, officials said.

CPD's bulletin said both suspects are about 20 years old. One, who wore a black balaclava over his face, is 5'-10" to 6 feet tall and 150 to 170 lbs. The other has a full beard with shaved sides. He's 5'-8" to 5'-11" tall and also 150 to 170 lbs.

Area Three detectives are handling the investigation. You can reach them at 312-744-8261, referencing case #JH497856.

"We will do all we can do to hold those responsible accountable for this outrageous incident," Manuel said in his community letter.

Man surrenders in double murder at Navy Pier

On Nov. 9, Chicago Police charged Raylon East, 36, of the 2300 block of

Raylon East

E. 70th St., with two counts of First Degree Murder, naming him as the man they say killed two of his former co-workers at Navy Pier on Nov. 5.

The suspect turned himself in within three hours of the incident.

A CPD spokesperson confirmed that a "person of interest" was in custody in the case, and the investigation is ongoing.

East turned himself in at the Grand Crossing 3rd District police station, 7040 S. Cottage Grove, at 3:15 p.m.

Two men, ages 47 and 51, were fatally shot at a loading dock area on the pier at 1:17 p.m. Nov. 5, officials said. Police searched the pier and its parking garages, but detectives say East escaped the area via CTA.

East is believed to be a recently terminated employee of a food service operation on the pier.

Video footage showed that he walked off the pier around 1:25 p.m. and was last seen heading west on Illinois St. at McClurg Ct. before catching the CTA. Court records show he was convicted of armed robbery in 2008 and had a gun charge dropped in 2017.

A CPD spokesperson said the investigation is "ongoing."

Eighteen-time convicted felon gets six-years for stealing rare baseball cards

BY CWBCHICAGO

A 17-time felon added an 18th conviction to his résumé Nov. 4 when he pleaded guilty to stealing baseball cards worth tens of thousands of dollars. Scott Meherg, 44, pleaded guilty to felony theft in exchange for a six-year sentence from Judge Mary Margaret Brosnahan.

In the early morning darkness of May 31, 2022, a burglar removed bricks and security bars from a window and entered Elite Sports Cards & Comics, 2028 W. Montrose. He gathered 32 high-value cards, then fled, officials said.

Owner Ronnie Holloway discovered the burglary when he arrived around 9:30 that morning. He pulled up the store's surveillance video, which showed a man wearing long sleeves, gloves, and a mask clearing out display cases and shelves.

One of the stolen collector cards, Scott Meherg, and a security image of the burglar.

He recognized the figure as a man who had visited the store about five times in the weeks leading up to the theft. The man wore a hoodie and a baseball cap and talked for about 15 minutes before leaving each time.

Prosecutors claimed Meherg sold some of the stolen cards for a fraction of their actual value, with the first transactions taking place before the break-in was discovered.

Just two hours after the crime, someone contacted a collector about selling high-value cards and they met at a Dunkin' Donuts that morning to make a deal, prosecutors said. The buyer allegedly gave Meherg $11,500 in cash and a collectible card worth $7,000 for 10 cards stolen from Elite hours before.

Days later, the buyer saw media coverage of the break-in and contacted Elite to report that he had already resold five of the store's cards but still had five others he purchased during the transaction.

He turned the remaining items over to police: two Mickey Mantle cards and one each of Babe Ruth, Yogi Berra, and Jim Brown, according to court records.

Police license plate readers and other evidence led investigators to Meherg. Elite's owner also confirmed that Meherg was the man who had visited the store several times before the burglary.

During an interview with police, Meherg admitted to selling the cards to the man at Dunkin', but he denied breaking into the store. Prosecutors said his 17 previous felony convictions include burglaries, forgery, theft, and ID theft.

Meherg's six-year sentence will be reduced to three for good behavior. It will be reduced by an additional 516 days for time he spent in jail and on an ankle monitor as well as credit for participating in jailhouse programming.

Federal judge strikes down Illinois assault weapons ban

BY PETE HANCOCK
Capitol News

A federal judge in East St. Louis on Nov. 8 struck down Illinois' assault weapons ban on the grounds that it violates the Second and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution and issued an order barring the state from enforcing it.

That order, however, was stayed for 30 days, giving the state time to file an appeal before it takes effect.

In a 168-page opinion released Friday afternoon, Judge Stephen McGlynn sided with plaintiffs in the case who argued the assault-style weapons banned under the law are commonly used for legal purposes such as self-defense.

"What is particularly disturbing is that the prohibition of weapons that are commonly owned and used by citizens are now banned, depriving citizens of a principal means to defend themselves and their property in situations where a handgun or shotgun alone would not be the citizen's preferred arm," Judge McGlynn wrote.

In March, before the case went to trial, McGlynn issued a preliminary injunction blocking enforcement of the law, saying the plaintiffs challenging the law were likely to prevail on the merits of the case.

But the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that decision, and in July the U.S. Supreme declined to review it – along with several other cases challenging the law – and remanded all the cases back to district courts for full proceedings.

The case before McGlynn was the subject of a week-long trial in September. Two other cases, each with multiple sets of plaintiffs, are pending before district court judges in the Northern District of Illinois in Chicago.

THE HISTORY OF TRIBUNE TOWER WITH CHUCK BETZOLD

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13 AT 7 P.M.

Tribune Tower, once home to the Chicago Tribune, opened to the public on July 6, 1925. From that point on, the Tower has anchored the south end of Chicago's Magnificent Mile for nearly 100 years. It remains one of the most iconic buildings amidst our ever changing Chicago skyline.

Join Chuck Betzold, for some behind the scenes stories of Tribune Tower and the Chicago Tribune. From the old freight tunnel portals in the bowels of the building, to the secret saferooms of the publisher's offices on the 24th floor, to dropping baseballs off the 36th floor roof, to the elaborate Tribune Tower atomic bomb shelter plans.

ing the historic Water Tower. With familiar Irish blarney and bluster the Irish have blundered into the quiet honor of the site. They just say it's the site they were given. But all of this, of course, has its origins in the dysfunctional and crippled regime of Mayor Johnson. He's only too eager to fragment issues by his lack of knowledge and honor in caring for Chicago's history and traditions already in place.

Too bad the Irish government couldn't keep their two cents out of yet another Chicago mayoral blunder. The Lord Mayor should be careful where he steps.

Hayt School teacher piqued student band interest, seeks community support

BY BOB ZULEY

Edgewater's Stephen K. Hayt Elementary School teacher Sarah Latimer asked if students were interested in a school band. Last year, 17 students finished the school year with Latimer and this year, 33 signed up.

Now, facing lean financing from school sources, she is seeking $10,000 from the community to support a new student concert band program.

"My school has been very supportive of this [program], and I have gotten money from the school to do this, but at the same time, at the district level, there's not a lot of schools that have band programs — especially elementary K-8 schools — just because there's not funding for it," Latimer told Block Club Chicago.

This is only the second year of the new band program for students located at Hayt School, 1518 W. Granville Ave., and Latimer, a third year teacher, is eager to keep the students' interest in the concert band program piqued.

Latimer established a GoFundMe page with the initial goal of raising $5,000 to support the concert band mission but has now raised the goal to $10,000 after seeing support.

Already, over $6,000 has been raised and added earnings will support future students interested in band activities.

Latimer said this on the GoFundMe page site: "Thank you all so much for your donations and those who are donating instruments. Your support will impact Hayt students who are eager to learn and ensure they get the quality instruments and materials they deserve. Due to the rapid growth, I am raising the goal to $10,000. Thank you again for your support."

Community members interested in donating instruments or accessories may contact Latimer directly at slatimer4@cps.edu or the GoFundMe site. Latimer told this newspaper, "I appreciate support and willingness to help spread the word."

Stephen K. Hayt was born in 1880 in Santa Fe, in the Territory of New Mexico. In 1888, the Hayt's moved to the North Side. As a young 24-year old Lieutenant, Hayt was killed in the Philippines while in service to the U.S. Army. Very probably, he was the youngest person for whom a Chicago public school was ever named, according to the Edgewater Historical Society.

Double-dipping

As a Chicago Police Officer, I was allowed to work for a school, part-time, but only while on my vacation or regular day off from CPD. It wouldn't have occurred to me to try anything else.

That Mayor Brandon Johnson can hold the high spot in town, plus still be "listed as an employee of the Chicago Teachers Union and also the Chicago Public Schools...[as is] Deputy Mayor for Education Jennifer Johnson" is astounding [Nov.6]. How is she "currently on leave from her city position" and still Deputy Mayor?

"Because they continue to be union employees, they are still accruing seniority within the CPS system." So they are getting a benefit just as if they were one of the hardworking teachers and staff showing up to the halls and classrooms every day — without putting in a minute's work in any school?

Are the Mayor and Deputy Mayor spots just placeholders? If they don't get elected again they get to land on their feet in CPS/CTU without having to re-apply? Regular Joes and Jos don't get that kind of consideration, so let's call it what it is — clout!

In my day we termed it something else too: "double-dipping." It wasn't right for cops then, it shouldn't be tolerated of the mayor and his people now.

Follow the law

Your paper is usually quick to call out people who endanger their fellow citizens, which is why I was surprised to see the recent article dismiss the city's ticketing program for illegally parked drivers as a "more efficient way of collecting cash from drivers" (Oct. 30). Scofflaw drivers who park in bike lanes, bus lanes, and loading zones aren't just impeding the flow of people and goods in our downtown; they're also endangering their neighbors and visitors to our great city.

Just like with speed and red-light cameras, there's an easy way to avoid these automated parking tickets: simply follow the law.

Mayor gets ready to reward North Side voters

It is the time of year for Mayor Johnson to put on his "big boy pants" and set the City budget.

Expenses are up, while spending by consumers (which fuels sales tax revenues) is down.

There are only two options, raise property taxes or cut spending.

Springfield has no money, and we certainly cannot ask Washington, D.C. for any more bailouts.

The Mayor will probably play the race card, but that won't work. It never works.

Since Mayor Johnson comes from the public sector freeloader class, I doubt he will cut spending.

The Mayor hired an extra 800 city workers even after he instituted a hiring freeze.

There was also enough money to spend on migrants, bike lanes and workers' salaries.

So Brandon will raise property taxes. Big time.

Oh, I'm sure some aldermen will try to put on a good show to eliminate the property tax increase. But gosh darn it, they will fail on a parliamentary maneuver. Like they always do.

They'll all still get their pay raises. And so will their chiefs of staffs, ward superintendents, secretaries, drivers, coat holders, door openers, dog walkers and the latte and scone fetchers.

The City will raise our property taxes. And the School Finance Authority will raise our property taxes. And the Chicago Park District will raise our property taxes. So will the Chicago Public Library. And Cook County is reassessing our property values higher this year.

Property taxes will skyrocket. Monthly mortgages will go up. Rents will rise. All because we can't cut spending.

So the North Side will pay big time.

But this is what the 40th, 44th, 46th, 47th, 48th and 49th Wards voted for. Mayor Johnson won all those North Side wards. And now we must pay for those votes.

Turkey Trot Nov. 16 at Horner Park

The Chicago Park District is hosting several races at neighborhood parks throughout November, including Turkey Trots. Horner Park, 2741 W. Montrose Ave., will host the largest free Turkey Trot in Chicago starting 9 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 16.

Each registrant will receive a neck gaiter, that comfortably protects from harsh sunlight, wind, and other elements runners encounter on a trail. This year, a DJ will provide entertainment for participants, including athletes from Girls on the Run. Last year, the Horner Park Turkey Trot saw over 550 participants cross the finish line.

Registration closes on Nov. 15, at 2 p.m. or until the number of registrants reaches 1300. To register for the race, visit <https://www.chicagoparkdistrict.com/events/go-run-chicago>.

DePaul receives $2.6M donation to create new business tech institute

Last week DePaul Univ. announced they had received a $2.6 million gift from Dr. Curtis and Gina Crawford which is intended to accelerate high-tech training for students. The goal will be to form an academic hub focused on leadership in business technology.

The new center will be called the Dr. Curtis J. and Mrs. Gina Crawford Institute for Business Technology Leadership, which the university says will provide students with 'intensive and intentional career-based leadership education' at the intersection of technology and business.

As technological advances revolutionize all sectors of business and industry, DePaul hopes to position the North Side school at the forefront of leadership in business technology. It will provide students with intensive and intentional career-based leadership education through training, mentoring and direct work experiences that promote social mobility and ethical leadership.

Housed at the university's College of Business, the institute facilitates interdisciplinary collaboration between the college and DePaul's College of Computing and Digital Media.

The Crawfords' gift also establishes the Crawford Scholars Endowment, which provides recognition and financial assistance to high-achieving undergraduate students at the two colleges who are interested in business technology leadership careers and participate in the co-curricular programs offered by the institute.

The institute will also provide faculty with research grants for work that examines career development. Faculty will also benefit from professional development and collaborative research opportunities, supporting their work to mentor and inspire students.

Curtis Crawford earned his MBA in 1978 at DePaul prior to his long career in the business technology field. He is the founder, president and CEO of XCEO, Inc., a consulting firm specializing in personal leadership development and corporate governance products, services, and support. He has also served as a former CEO of several large semiconductor technology companies, and start-up companies, with executive experience leading venture backed, private equity, and publicly traded companies.

Gay Crusader, and he spoke passionately at schools, churches, and community groups, helping bridge understanding and acceptance. He even worked closely with city leaders, serving on Chicago's first Committee on Gay/Lesbian Issues under Mayor Harold Washington—a huge step forward for the city at the time.

Rich's partner, Tim Frye, and so many friends and community members joined together at the dedication to honor a life that was truly transformative. Seeing "Rich Pfeiffer Parade Way" in the heart of Lakeview East is a powerful reminder of his impact and the love he poured into this community.

The Lakeview East Chamber of Commerce is honored to support this tribute. Pfeiffer's spirit will always be part of our neighborhood, inspiring us to keep building a community that reflects the pride, inclusivity, and love he fought for.

down while trying to run away from him, according to the allegations.

They said the boy was hit in the back, shoulder, arm, and hand.

Wilkerson ran away but stopped briefly to hit a 70-year-old man in the back of the head with the bat, according to the allegations. Cops caught him nearby. They said he had a knife with a 12-inch blade in his possession.

Passersby tended to at least one of the victims until paramedics arrived. The police spokesperson said all three victims were taken to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center with cuts and bruises.

Court records show Wilkerson underwent several behavioral health exams and was recently found fit to face the charges. His three-year sentence will be cut in half for good behavior. The remaining time will be reduced by 384 days he spent in custody since being arrested.

Lincoln, and Montrose avenues has not been "dry" due to a zoning decision from 1907 but had been voted "dry" less than 30 years ago to help the neighborhood get rid of what had been deemed a problem establishment.

Former 47th Ward alderman Eugene Schuler, who served as alderman from 1975 to 2011, said the precinct was voted "dry" after there had been many complaints about what had been happening at that location.

"We had a lot of neighborhood complaints about gang activity at that location. I held numerous community meetings about it. I also met with individual neighbors who had told me they very concerned," said Schuler, who was supportive of overturning the ban.

"The environment has completely changed. Lincoln Square is no longer facing the same threat of gang activity as it had in the past," he said.

"For Small Cheval to be able to sell beer with a burger is totally a good thing. The neighborhood has progressed in such a way that it should be lifted. I am a patron of [nearby XOchimilco] Mexican restaurant that will also [benefit from lifting the prohibition]," said Schuler.

field after aggravating a hamstring injury in the final regular season game against Benet, and sitting out the first playoff game against Dyett.

"We held [Martinez] out last week on purpose. We wanted him to get healthy. He felt good all week long. He was back. With him and Juju [Rodriguez] in that backfield, they get it humming," said DePaul Prep head coach Mike Passarella.

They did indeed. Martinez's runs kept Geneseo off balance and opened up the passing lanes for Rodriguez who threw for two touchdowns and ran for another.

"Missing a few games really affected me. I still had to stay disciplined to make sure I had a good recovery. My plan was to come back for this game and dominate," said Martinez.

The Rams will face St. Laurence (7-3) in the 4A quarterfinal game at DePaul Prep Stadium 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26. St. Laurence defeated Wheaton Academy (9-1) in something of an upset with the Vikings being the 12th seed defeating the #4 seed, Wheaton Academy 26-14.

St. Laurence is out of the Chicago Catholic League/East Suburban Catholic League White Division. The White Division is stacked with two other top teams Fenwick and Montini. Fenwick upset Brother Rice last week but lost to Downers Grove North in a close game 13-10. Montini, a 3A team, defeated #1 seed Byron and is a favorite to win 3A.

St. Laurence and DePaul Prep did not play this year. Their common opponents included only St. Patrick and Carmel. Both St. Laurence and DePaul Prep won those games.

It's hard to say who will be a favorite in the DePaul Prep v. St. Laurence game. The Rams come in with the higher #9 seed to the Vikings #16 seed. But that doesn't much matter as it does not take strength of schedule into account. The CCL/ESCC White would be considered a higher division in the conference but not by much. But the Rams are 4-1 at home this year losing only to Loyola at home.
