Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer inspired by visits to the Lincoln Park Zoo

Some of the original manuscripts and notes for Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer are now in the (Bruce) Rauner Library at Dartmouth College.

BY PETER VON BUOL

Seventy-five years ago, the story of Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer was first published as a promotional book by the Chicago-based Montgomery Ward and Co. At that time, the company was one of the nation's most important retailers as it operated more than 500 stores and had a hugely-successful catalog business. In previous years, the retail giant had given away booklets created by others but for the 1939 Christmas shopping season, officials at the company decided to produce its own book and gave the assignment to advertising editor Robert May, a Dartmouth graduate.

Given the assignment while his first wife Evelyn was dying of cancer, it did not take May long to choose a hero for his story. He frequently visited the Lincoln Park Zoo with their young daughter Barbara, and reindeer were her favorite animals. Inspired by Barbara's choice, as well as the message of Hans Christian Andersen's story, "The Ugly Duckling" (and who has his own statue is Lincoln Park), May developed his story of Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer.

Upon completion of his tale, May was convinced his story about a misfit reindeer who becomes a hero would be a hit. Company executives, however, had expressed concerns about a story which featured a red-nosed hero. After all, red noses were often fodder for comics who linked them to overindulgence in alcohol. In a 1990 interview published in the Chicago Tribune, Barbara said her father simply believed in Rudolph and would not give up.

May convinced his friend, Denver Gillen, from the retail giant's art department, to visit the zoo to sketch reindeer and his sketches were pivotal. They captured exactly what May was looking for in Rudolph and it was these images that sold the concept to the corporate executives.

That first year, in 1939, Montgomery Ward's gave out more than two million copies of the free booklet and May himself became an instant celebrity. By 1947 (no books were printed during World War II), more than six million copies of the booklet had been given away. Shortly afterwards, as a token of appreciation by the company, May was given the copyright to the story. Shortly afterwards, May's brother-in-law, the songwriter Johnny Marks, wrote a song about the world's most famous reindeer of all and it was recorded by Gene Autry, the singing cowboy who had become nationally-famous on the WLS radio program, Barn Dance. Marks would revisit the story of Rudolph on numerous occasions. Marks wrote Run, Rudolph Run for Chuck Berry and also additional songs for the 1964 Rankin/Bass Rudolph television special that remains an annual Children's favorite.

The Christmas television special was produced in stop motion animation by Rankin/Bass Productions and is currently distributed by Dream Works Classics. It first aired Sunday, Dec. 6, 1964, on the NBC television network, and was sponsored by General Electric under the umbrella title of The General Electric Fantasy Hour.

And the winner is....

We had some great entries in the annual Inside Publications Holiday Art Contest this year, and it was hard to narrow it down.

The winning artwork belongs to Vicky Tan, a Junior at Lincoln Park High School. Her artwork won for its detail, contrast and overall composition. We are happy to have it grace our covers this year.

Eric Xue's comical artwork takes Second Place. His take on the Crown Fountain made us all laugh. Third Place goes to Jacob Chonk. This is a beautiful piece with some subtle holiday touches. We like the way they were integrated into his portrait of the Chicago Lighthouse.

Cassidy Keyes comes in Fourth Place with her creative imagining of Sue at the Field Museum....or is that the North Pole? The iconic portrait of the Willis Tower, decked out for the holidays, was drawn by Vlora Khaferi and comes in Fifth Place.

Congratulations to all of the artists. You're all winners!

Cash-strapped renters still yearn to be homeowners in the future

BY DON DeBAT

Cash-strapped apartment renters from coast to coast may be struggling financially, but most still see the American Dream of homeownership in their future, a new survey has found. Freddie Mac, the nation’s largest mortgage conduit, commissioned Harris Poll to survey more than 2,000 U.S. adults online to learn their perceptions about renting in the post-financial crisis marketplace. Apparently, the Great Recession did not tarnish renters’ dreams of homeownership. According to the survey, 91% of the respondents view homeownership with pride. “It’s no secret that for the last several years, consumers have felt more strapped financially, particularly renters,” said David Brickman, executive vice president of Freddie Mac Multifamily. “Many renters are not buying homes because of a perceived lack of ability to afford the down payment or mortgage and poor credit history. But there also is a segment of renters who simply do not want the responsibilities of owning a home,” Brickman said. Highlights of the Freddie Mac survey follow:

- The majority of renters say they tend to live paycheck to paycheck. Forty-five percent say they have just enough money to get by. Seventeen percent say they do not have enough money for basics, like food and housing until the next payday. In comparison, only 38% of homeowners indicate a similar financial hardship.
- Sixty-one percent of renters believe they will continue to rent in the next three years. While 39% of all renters say they expect to purchase a home in the next few years, the remainder plan to continue to rent. Those most likely to buy a home within three years range in age from 25 to 44.
- Younger adults are more inclined toward buying a home than older ones. For example, 47% of renters aged 25 to 34 and 58% of renters aged 35 to 44 responded that they will purchase a home within three years. Only 27% of people age 45 to 64 plan to buy a home in the next few years. In addition, if a renter hasn’t owned a home by age 45, then chances are they will continue to rent throughout their lifetime, the study found.

- Renters noted three favorable factors about renting. First, 78% of respondents agreed that renting provides freedom from home maintenance responsibilities. Second, 68% of respondents agreed that renting allows more flexibility over where residents live. Third, renting protects residents from suffering home-price declines (66% strongly or somewhat agreed).
- Renters surveyed said the top three favorable factors about homeownership are: It is something of which to be proud (91% strongly or somewhat agreed). Ninety percent of the respondents agreed that homeownership is an asset that can be passed on to their children. And, 89% of renters surveyed agreed owning allows more flexibility to design the interior of a residence the way you prefer.

Angry spirits go away...

“Forever Scarred & Invaded” premiered on TV Saturday on The Dead Files and showed an episode about a Chicago family’s attempts to use traditional religious methods to reclaim their home and restore peace to distressed residents experiencing terrifying, unexplained paranormal activity. Here’s hoping the only spirits visiting our readers homes this holiday season are friendly ones. Best wishes to all. Now I gotta get over to the local liquor store to find some friendly spirits of my own...

Chicago River handles traffic from O’Brien lock closure

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

The United States Coast Guard is impressed with how the Chicago River has handled an increase in barge traffic in recent weeks due to a scheduled closing of a lock on the Calumet River. The Thomas J. O’Brien Lock is the last stop before Lake Michigan for many barges. The lock has been in operation since 1960 and the United States Army Corps of Engineers calls it “an aging structure which is at an increasing risk of failure.”

The lock has been closed since November 3 for critical maintenance. That has sent barge traffic north to the Chicago River. The lock will reopen no earlier than December 20 but will be closed again from January 19 to March 6.

the Chicago lock and it seems as though everything has been working very well,” said Commander Ryan Manning, commanding officer of Marine Safety Unit Chicago. After meeting with the project manager for the lock maintenance on Tuesday, Manning says the upcoming opening may be delayed one or two days but the maintenance work being done now will last another 20 to 30 years. Michael Borgstrom, president of Chicago Harbor Safety Committee and Wendella Sightseeing Company, is impressed with what he has seen. Don Campbell, manager of Kindra Lake Towing, which moves barges along the Chicago River and throughout the Great Lakes, says a system of lining up barges to go through the river has been working. “When it was first was announced that they were closing, we thought the worst. It’s going to be terrible with all these barges up in the area. Luckily, it’s worked out well. A lot has to be said for all the coordination and cooperation with everyone involved.” Traffic on the river has slowed for the season and so the next scheduled closure of the lock in January is not expected to cause any issues.

“I think with the increased barge traffic coming through here and a lot of these guy who have never really been through the Chicago River, they’ve done very well,” says Borgstrom (right in photo)

“The tug and barge industry has really taken this issue and managed it without anybody else’s help and coordinated all these moves and the queuing here at

You’re a mean one—doggone it—Mr. Grinch

Neighbors say “We’ve been Meigs’d”

Heart of the ‘Hood

By Felicia Dechter

There’s a Grinch among us, folks. A dog hater of a Grinch -- alive and well and working for the Chicago Park District [C P D] . And he just banned dogs in the new $60 million Maggie Daley Park, a move that has neighbors and dogs, including mine, wishing him a not so Merry Christmas.

The new Maggie Daley Park is gorgeous. Located just east of Millennium Park, it’s like our own Disneyland -- on steroids, as one person put it. And its neighbors were recently caught off guard when it was announced, after four years of being told dogs would be allowed, that four-legged friends would not be welcome.

Sources say the Grinch is CPD Superintendent/CEO Michael Kelly. They say Kelly made the decision because Mayor Rahm Emanuel is running for re-election and doesn’t want any controversy. “Michael Kelly is not in jeopardy of losing his job,” said one very reliable source.

Kelly also has told nearby residents that they have all of Grant Park to walk their dogs. My source would like to see the Peanut Park spot used for pooches, it’s off the beaten path, isolated, and would be a good location for a dog-friendly area. It would also solve two problems: Getting rid of the homeless and having a place for Fido. “But getting it there, where everybody saves face, is not going to be easy,” the source said.

I asked the CPD what changed, because six public meetings were held where audience members asked and were reassured dogs would be allowed, on a leash of course, in the park.

“This project has been years in the making and the plan has evolved over time,” its assistant press secretary, Kiera Ellis, said. “The CPD determined that dogs would not be allowed in Maggie Daley Park because there are already two dog parks nearby at Lake Shore East Park and South Grant Park. This policy is also in alignment with the no dog policy of Millennium Park, a park of similar scope and size.”

I also asked why then, in Nov. 2012, did CPD spokeswoman Jessica Maxey-Faulkner say, in a published story, that dogs would be allowed. I asked Maxey-Faulkner when and why this changed and she pretty much repeated verbatim what Ellis already said. Maxey-Faulkner has been around a long time and she’s very good at stonewalling.

[Area residents report seeing Kelly, Ellis and Maxey-Faulkner sneaking around the neighborhood under the cover of darkness swiping Christmas gifts, pudding and roast beast too.]

On Dec. 9, the day the ban was announced, Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] wrote a letter to neighbors expressing his disappointment in the decision. “...I have asked the CPD Superintendent/CEO Michael Kelly spies over Maggie Daley Park to make sure no neighbors are walking their dogs there.

CPD to consider reversing their policy and allow leashed dogs to be permitted on the pedestrian paths in Maggie Daley Park and Peanut Park,” Ald. Reilly, an owner of two dogs, Max and Buster, said in the letter. “I have appealed directly to Michael Kelly to reconsider the prohibition of dogs in Maggie Daley and Peanut Park.”

Good luck with that Ald. Reilly. Clearly Kelly’s heart is two sizes too small.

Another owner of a dog named Max has an online petition circulating, asking the CPD to follow its code and allow dogs restrained on a six-foot lead to enter the park. As of Dec. 16, it had been up for less than a week and already had garnered more than 900 signatures.

“I’ve been a resident since 1974, have had three dogs, and always had access to the park,” said Walter Stunard. “I mean, what’s a park without dogs?”

Both Stunard and I realize no one likes stepping in dog poop and there would have to be a hefty fine for poop offenders. Also, dogs could be banned where there is ice skating and not enter into the Cancer Survivor’s Plaza, he said.

But Stunard relayed to me what one neighbor said and I totally agree: “We’ve been Meigs’d.” If you don’t get that, it means we’ve been blindsided, just like when Meigs Field was shut down in the middle of the night with no warning. “That it’s completely off limits doesn’t make sense and to cut us off is not practical,” Stunard said.

Agreeing is the community group New Eastside Association of Residents (NEAR), which was advised of the ban just days before the park’s Dec. 13 ice skating area opening and has also asked the CPD to reconsider. “This last minute change... was a surprise,” NEAR said on its Web site. “We are trying to learn what new reasoning may have prompted this abrupt change.”

“That would effectively make it impossible for New Eastside residents to walk their dogs (on a leash) from Upper Randolph to ANYWHERE IN GRANT PARK.”

I told my dog Brucie about this, and he has a real bone to pick with whoever made the decision. Brucie even naughtily whispered that he’d like to take a giant poop on that person’s lawn. “What will these haters come up with next?” asked Brucie. “And will this lead the way for other parks to say no to dogs?”

I told Brucie I had no answers

Brucie asked Santa to please put the CPD on the naughty list.

for him, just like the CPD and its Grinch had no real answers for me. Sing-along with my holiday message to our local Grinch, courtesy of the lyrics of the original song: “You’re a monster, Mr. Grinch.

Your heart’s an empty hole. Your brain is full of spiders, You’ve got garlic in your soul. Mr. Grinch.”

Pritzker power in East Rogers Park... Word on the street is that the nasty strip mall at Morse and Wayne was bought by Jennifer Pritzker, who already own the Mayne Stage, a theater on the block. Hopefully, she will NOT build a parking garage on the site, although I’m happy to see that eyesore mall go. Other gossip by local business owners report that Pritzker also bought JB Albertos Pizza, in the neighborhood for four decades, for $2 million. Now that’s a place I’d hate to see leave. Our eatery choices are already slim pickings and JB’s is a neighborhood legend.

County Board President calls for an end to automatic transfers of youth from Juvenile to Adult Court

Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle is calling for an end to the Illinois law that automatically transfers children charged with certain felony offenses from juvenile court into adult criminal court.

“This marks the beginning of Cook County’s participation in the White House-led “My Brother’s Keeper” initiative, which aims to address the persistent opportunity gaps faced by boys and young men of color and to ensure that all young people can reach their full potential,” said Preckwinkle.

The automatic transfer law was enacted by the Illinois General Assembly in 1982. Under the law, children, predominantly aged 15-17, but as young as 13 in some instances, must be prosecuted as adults if they are charged with certain crimes, including first degree murder, aggravated criminal sexual assault, and armed robbery committed with a firearm.

Illinois is one of only 14 states which do not require an initial hearing in juvenile court prior to a youth being transferred to criminal court. There is also no option in Illinois for judges to reverse the transfer based on circumstances, background or applicability of the charges.

“Prior to the passage of this law, judges decided whether a young person would answer certain serious charges as a child in need of intervention and rehabilitation or as an adult. That decision now rests solely with the prosecution, based on the charges brought,” said Preckwinkle.

A three-year study of the Cook County court system conducted by the Juvenile Justice Initiative found that 50% more children were transferred to adult courts after the passage of the automatic transfer law, and for less serious offenses. Prior to the 1982 law, 48% of all young people transferred to adult court were charged with murder. Since that time, only 13% of those transferred are charged with murder.

Ultimately, 54% of all young people who are automatically transferred are convicted of or plead guilty to lesser charges that would have remained in juvenile court if those were the original charges brought.

Youth who are automatically transferred make up a growing percentage of the young people held in Cook County’s Juvenile Temporary Detention Center (JTDC). The average daily population of automatic transferred young people in the JTDC increased from 72 in December of 2013 to 130 in October of 2014 and now comprises more than a third of the population.

“Automatic transfers eliminate judicial discretion and have a disproportionate impact on children of color,” Preckwinkle said. “On October 31, 2014, 86% of the automatic transfer youth in the JTDC were African-American, and 14% were Hispanic. Recidivism rates for young people who are prosecuted as adults are 34% higher than those with similar records who were prosecuted as juveniles. Every child in Illinois deserves a fair hearing in front of a judge to determine whether their case is more appropriately handled in juvenile or adult court.”

According to a 2007 survey by the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, children who are tried as adults are 34% more likely to commit crimes than children who were kept in the juvenile court system.

The My Brother’s Keeper initiative was created to address persistent opportunity gaps faced by boys and young men of color and ensure that all young people can reach their full potential. “The challenge is an effort to encourage communities to implement a coherent cradle-to-college and career strategy aimed at improving life outcomes for all young people to ensure that all youth can achieve their full potential regardless of who they are, where they come from, or the circumstances into which they are born,” said Preckwinkle.

“The Challenge is a call to action for leaders of communities across the Nation to build and execute comprehensive strategies that ensure all children enter school cognitively, physically, socially, and emotionally prepared; can read at grade level by third grade; graduate from high school; complete post-secondary education or training then employed; and that all youth are safe from violent crime.”

She was just three years old when she walked onto the S.S. Eastland and into Chicago history. She survived the ships’ capsizing on the Chicago River, between Clark and LaSalle streets, that claimed 844 lives and she went on to live another 99 years.

Marion A. Eichholz was the last known survivor of the 1915 Eastland disaster. She died on November 24 at age 102.

On July 24, 1915, Marion and her parents were on the upper deck of the Eastland when it listed, causing her to fall against a railing. Her mother, Anna, pulled her back and as passengers started to panic, Marion’s father, Fred, picked her up, stepped onto the railing and jumped into the river. Holding Marion in one arm, he swam to a nearby tugboat.

When the Eastland rolled over, her mother floated into the water and was rescued when someone threw her a rope.

After taking Marion to safety, her father went home to put on dry clothes, not certain if Anna had survived. While he was there, a car pulled up, bringing his wife home. Along with a woman walking into the bedroom and mom saying, ‘Hello, Marion,’ and she sounded happy to see me again.”

Ted Wachholz, executive director of the Eastland Disaster Historical Society, kept in touch with her family. “With Marion’s passing,” he says, “the last voice of Chicago’s greatest loss-of-life tragedy now belongs to history.”

Wachholz is currently discussing with the Chicago Dept. of Transportation a proposal that would make the Eastland disaster commemoration a part of the stretch of Riverwalk between Clark and LaSalle streets. The proposal is being developed with the help of three design companies, including Ross Barney Architects, which designed the last six blocks of the Riverwalk currently being constructed.

Since 2005, Chicago Jesuit Academy (CJA) has been educating young men with educational and economic needs, earning them a high school education at CJA's tuition-free middle school. The school is open to work with these students as they make their way through college prep high schools and colleges so that they can become strong leaders in their communities, their families and their neighborhoods. When the school was looking to fund a construction project that would allow CJA to serve twice as many students, they turned to Wintrust. CJA President Matthew Lynch says, "Kandace Lent and the team at Wintrust have always cared first and foremost about doing what would be best for our students...it has felt like the success of our students was always Wintrust's greatest concern." CJA has found a genuine partner. THAT'S CHICAGO JESUIT ACADEMY'S STORY.

Out-of-control holiday fun can result in jail time and call to bail bondsman

Expect police roadblocks on holidays

BY ERIC GRANOF

Everybody loves the holiday season, a time for being with family and friends, plenty of good food (including treats we avoid the rest of the year!), not to mention nearly non-stop shopping and those fantastic bargains.

Of course, New Year's Eve means the single greatest party night on the calendar. After a long, stressful year, it's the perfect opportunity to loosen up and go a little crazy. Most of the celebrating consists of silliness and frivolity, which while typically loud and raucous, is all in the spirit of simply having a good time.

Unfortunately, when alcohol gets added to the mix, all the fun can go out the window in a hurry. This is when otherwise benign partiers make the decision to drive while inebriated. What started off as a harmless get-together with friends can quickly degenerate into a crisis.

Indeed, holiday revelry can have disastrous consequences when police become involved. You can bet that the Chicago Police will be out looking for impaired drivers. They are fond of putting up roadblocks on main roads near entertainment districts to test everyone passing by.

Although arrests in general spike during the holidays, there are more DUI arrests on New Year's Eve than any other day of the year. Particularly at risk are young people who binge drink at a higher rate than the overall population.

Otherwise responsible individuals who become intoxicated can quickly lose the ability to make wise decisions. They can become risks to themselves and others when they choose to get behind the wheel of a car, confident that they have everything under control -- until they see the flashing red and blue lights in their rear-view mirror.

Unfortunately, getting arrested and going to jail for DUI can turn a fun evening into a life-changing catastrophe.

When this scenario occurs, a bail bond agent is the first person to whom individuals and their families usually turn. While the job of a bail agent is well-known -- they post a bond to get an individual out of jail -- few of us ever plan on needing their services. For this reason, it surprises many to learn the role they play in offering support and guidance during tumultuous times.

Family members typically panic when they receive that tearful middle-of-the-night phone call from their son, daughter, brother or sister informing them they've been incarcerated. Fortunately, experienced bail bond agents will be prepared for this emotional response and know how to calm families down, even as they are explaining their options. In fact, the best ones effectively take on the role of counselors, helping them through what is surely one of the most difficult and painful times of their lives.

Support can come in a variety of forms -- perhaps it's a personal story shared from their own lives or some gentle and heartfelt words of encouragement. No matter what, many bail bondsmen feel their personal involvement with clients is one of the most important aspects of their jobs.

Most bail agents realize how important it is for the people they've bailed out to comprehend the gravity of being arrested. Almost every individual understands they've committed a terrible lapse in judgment once they're sitting in a jail cell. A good number of those arrested for DUI may have underlying problems with alcohol and being taken into custody can represent a wake-up call for them. Some friends and family will seize this opportunity to carefully explain the consequences of their actions.

A person receiving a DUI may also lose their driver's license and find it difficult to rent an apartment or house, or may find their ability to find a job in the future severely impacted.

They may lose the right the right to vote and become ineligible for professional licenses (such as those for accounting, plumbing and electrical work or serving as an insurance agent). College students might be subject to the forfeiture of any scholarships they have been awarded.

The best bail agents know the influence they have on the individuals they have bailed out. Their frank conversations at these vulnerable moments can change their lives. Especially when dealing with young adults, they realize how critical it is for them to take the time to speak honestly and maybe even offer some "tough love," depending on the situation. This intervention can be the single most important factor in the stabilization of a life that may be heading in the wrong direction.

Whether it's a big New Year's Eve bash or just another Saturday night party, many intelligent, well-intentioned adults who are otherwise good, responsible citizens, can make poor decisions, especially when too much alcohol becomes a part of the equation. While no family member ever wants to need to call on a bail agent, it should be reassuring to know they can be counted on to offer a helping hand -- and perhaps offer some words of wisdom to a loved one who might be willing to listen.

Applications now open for high school teens seeking paid apprenticeships, internships this spring

After School Matters is now accepting applications for its Spring program cycle. Programs in the arts, communications, science, sports and technology will be offered beginning the week of Feb. 2, 2015, at Chicago public high schools, Chicago Park District, Chicago Public Library and community-based organization locations across the city.

In total, approximately 7,000 paid apprenticeship and internship opportunities in more than 300 programs will be available to Chicago high school teens this spring. Spring programs will meet approximately three days a week for three hours per day over the course of 10 weeks. This spring, participating teens will be eligible to earn a stipend of between $275 and $425 (depending on the program level), more than double the previous school year stipend amount. Interns can earn $8.25 per hour.

"We want to help Chicago youth reach their potential by providing a diverse range of programs that appeal to the various interests and passions of our teens," said Mary Ellen Caron, CEO of After School Matters. "Our program offerings cultivate a positive and educational opportunity for teens to grow and learn, all while having fun in a safe environment."

"These programs offer teens an opportunity to explore and develop their talents, while gaining critical skills for work, college and beyond. Multiple independent studies and recent data have confirmed that teens who participate in After School Matters programs have fewer course failures, improved attendance and higher high school graduation rates," she said.

Teens can search and apply for Spring programs online at www.afterschoolmatters.org. All After School Matters programs are free and open to Chicago teen residents who are at least 14 years of age (16 years of age for internships) and who are entering or currently enrolled in high school. Teens who have been in After School Matters for three or more sessions will be given priority consideration for internships. As part of the application process, teens interview with program instructors to discuss and present their skills and interests. Chicago teens are encouraged to apply early, as program opportunities fill up quickly. For more information call 312-742-4182 or email info@afterschoolmatters.org.
