Condo dwellers blame Groundswell coffee vendor for offensive fumes

BY ROBERT HADLEY
Cook County Record

A Lincoln Square area condo association is suing a neighboring coffee roasting business, alleging its offensive, noxious fumes are creating a public nuisance for the homeowners.

The 4839 N. Damen Condominium Assoc., Paul Borovay and Patti Carpenter filed a lawsuit Dec. 10 in Cook County Circuit Court against Groundswell LLC, 4839 N. Damen LLC and Armand & Sons LLC, alleging zoning violations.

According to the complaint, Groundswell uses an improperly vented roaster to manufacture its ground coffee, creating the offensive fumes. In addition, the suit says, the business is selling food and pastries in violation of both its business license and zoning laws.

The plaintiffs seeks to halt coffee roasting on the premises, plus compensatory and actual damages and litigation costs.

Annual Elvis Fest back at Mother’s on the eve of Elvis’ 81st birthday

For the last 16 years The Original Mother’s, 26 W. Division St., has celebrated the life of Elvis Presley on his birthday, January 8. This coming year the “Big Hunk O’Love” session known as Elvis Fest will take place on the eve of what would have been Elvis’ 81st birthday, Thursday, January 7.

Radio Hall of Famer Dick Biondi will once again host Elvis Fest as he broadcasts live from 8 p.m. to midnight from Mother’s. An endless supply of talented Elvis tribute artists from the Elvis Entertainers Network will take the stage to rock the songs which made Elvis “the King.”

Attendees may participate in the Elvis look-alike contest for a chance to win a trip for two to Las Vegas. The festivities will continue with more Elvis tribute artists performing as well as Elvis karaoke. A photo booth will provide Elvis-themed props for free photos throughout the night.

Elvis’ favorite snack, a buffet of peanut butter and banana sandwiches, will be served free all night. There is no charge to enter this “Heartbreak Hotel”, but a suggested $5 donation is requested to benefit Variety the Children’s Charity of Illinois.

City’s new Liquid Nicotine Product Tax effective Jan. 1

BY BEN DOVER

The city of Chicago has imposed a new Liquid Nicotine Product Tax on the retail sale of liquid nicotine products within the city limits.

The new tax is .55 cent per ml. and an additional .80 cents per unit, which would come out to an extra $17 dollars per 30 ml. bottle of liquid.

Today, Chicago smokers and vapers can shop at any vapor product retailers within the city that generally sell 30 ml. bottles of nicotine-containing fluid for between $12 and $22, plus local and state sales taxes. That ends on Friday.

That includes any e-cigarette containing liquid, or gel, or other solutions that contain nicotine, as well as any container of liquid nicotine intended to be utilized in an e-cigarette.

“Mayor Rahm Emanuel’s new vapor product tax is designed to protect the tens of millions of dollars Chicago collects every year from its cigarette tax. This tax is not about protecting health or youth; it’s about discouraging adult smokers from using these products to quit,” said Gregory Conley, President of the American Vaping Assoc. “Those pushing the tax, which is estimated to raise $1 million, swear that the revenue implications are not their primary concern. If a politician tells you a new tax isn’t about revenue, you can be sure that it is about revenue,” said Conley.

All retailers of liquid nicotine products must file a Floor Tax return on or before January 25, 2016. All wholesalers of liquid nicotine products must register with the Dept. of Finance to begin collecting the tax on January 1, 2016. Retailers or vapor users who may have questions about the new tax, or how to get registered for the tax, can call 312-747-4747.

In August, Dr. Kenneth Warner and Dr. Frank Chaloupka — two of the most respected and prominent economists in tobacco control for over 20 years — advocated in the New England Journal of Medicine for cigarettes to be taxed at a far higher rate than low-risk, smoke-free products like e-cigarettes.

“Failure to seriously entertain a differential taxation approach may contribute to the prolongation of the epidemic of disease and death caused by smoking,” wrote the authors.

No new state tax on advertising

Last Thursday, members of the No Ad Tax Coalition applauded the introduction of HR 889, a bipartisan piece of legislation sponsored by a majority of House members that opposes the imposition of any new taxes on advertising services as Illinois looks for additional revenue to solve the state’s budget woes.

The No Ad Tax Coalition is comprised of a diverse group of independent business owners, large and small, representing the backbone of Illinois’ economy.

The text of HR 889 is clear, “a tax on advertising goes against the pro-business, pro-jobs, pro-growth policies that should be under careful consideration as Illinois seeks to regain sound financial footing.”

Representative Dave McSweeney of Barrington, chief sponsor of the resolution said, “We have too many taxes as it is in Illinois, we certainly don’t need another one targeted at advertising. We should be focused on promoting and building our small businesses in Illinois, not putting more taxes onto them.”

“Small businesses rely on advertising to sell their products and services, and imposing a tax on advertising not only hurts those businesses, but also leads to higher costs passed onto consumers.”

Dennis DeRossett, Executive Director of the Illinois Press Association said, “We applaud and welcome the introduction of HR 889. While there is little agreement on much of anything these days in Springfield, it’s great to see that a majority of legislators, both Democrat and Republican, agree that a major hit to businesses through a tax on advertising would be devastating to businesses of all sizes and further erode Illinois’ economy.”

“Adding yet another tax to the long list of taxes in this state can only serve to hurt consumers,” said Mike Drews, president of the Illinois Association of REALTORS® [IAR]. “If IAR’s 43,000 members are hit with an advertising tax the costs to effectively market properties for our clients will be substantially increased. Our members would have no choice but to pass those costs along, further driving up housing costs and making the dream of owning a home less attainable.”

Dave Taylor, Chairman of the Illinois Automobile Dealers

Association indicated the average Illinois dealer spent $494,776 on advertising in 2014. “You can see the impact a 10% ad tax would have on our ad spending; this is an additional fee that would be hard to absorb and would have to be passed on to our customers. We would see the same results other states have experienced and dealers would have to reduce their advertising expenditures if this became effective.”

“I think this piece of legislation should be a signal to legislative leaders and the governor that this idea deserves to be taken off the table. There is simply no support for this kind of business killing tax, as a majority of House members from both sides of the aisle made that very clear.”

A few of my favorite things –and people

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

My favorite gifts this year were pretty simple: A “Letters To My Grandchild,” paper time capsule, where I write letters to my granddaughter for the future, was probably my sweetest, along with a special “History of Rock -- 1969,” a magazine-size, soft cover, very cool book I received that has a young Mick Jagger on the cover and tells the history of the births of bands such as the Rolling Stones, The Beatles, Led Zeppelin, etc.

Those were my most unique gifts, but then there's my other favorite thing that I now get every year from at least one family member: Gift certificates for 90-minute massages at the Rogers Park Center for Massage Therapy, 6934 N. Glenwood Ave., in East Rogers Park.

Karen Werner

It's there that I go when I'm stressed out and need to chill out or when I'm in pain. And I always leave feeling rejuvenated and like a new me, thanks to the healing hands of owner Karen Werner.

Werner has been at that location for 15 years and has been practicing massage for 24 years. Practice must make perfect, that's all I can say.

“I was looking for something to do as an entrepreneur, and took a 10-week intro course at the Chicago School of Massage, and found my calling,” she told me.

At holiday time, Werner runs a “Buy two massages, get the second one half off,” special, which is available through Jan. 7. Gift certificates may be used as gifts or for yourself, and can be purchased online at rogersparkmassage.com, bottom left, where it says Holiday Gift Certificate Special.

“January and February are a great time to get a massage,” said Werner. “I'll give you a relaxing therapeutic massage, complete with hot stones, to soothe your aches and pains, and ease those winter blues.”

Re-gift, recycle, reuse... Didn't like that ugly Christmas sweater from Grandma Betty or the chartreuse necktie from Uncle Irving? Good thing the 13th year of Leave it for Love, which was started by a former local woman named Jennifer Molski, is kicking off!

Through Leave it for Love, unwanted, misfit gifts are donated to the seniors at the Little Brothers Friends of the Elderly, 355 N. Ashland Ave., which is also now the drop off point for the city. Contact Little Brothers' Sherri Gorski 312-455-1000 for more information.

No Grinches here... Near North Sider Tim Egan and his sons made Christmas rounds at the New Roseland Community Hospital, where Egan is CEO, to thank all the employees working on Christmas and visit with the kids in the Adolescent Behavioral Health Unit. The hospital also welcomed 300 children from the Greater Roseland Community for its Toys for Kids event on Dec. 19. “It is part of our reaching out beyond the walls of the hospital,” said Egan, who also rounded up winter coats for 600 kids with the hospital's Operation Warm Roseland program in October.

Break a leg... to the quite a few locals that will be starring in the Oak Brook-based First Folio Theatre's upcoming show “Jeeves at Sea,” including Lakeview's Whitney Morse and Monica Szaflik; Rogers Park's Andrew Behling, Joe Foust and Philip Winston; and Uptown's Christian Gray.

So 2016 will be a little dimmer without the bright light of Near North Sider Coleen Blake. The city of Chicago and those who care about it lost a tremendous friend last month when Coleen passed away peacefully on Dec. 10 -- a day shy of her 61st birthday -- from complications of breast cancer.

Coleen was a community leader, a tireless activist who passionately fought for our city and our parks and our lakefront throughout the years as a founder of Protect Our Parks, a board member of the Lincoln Park Advisory Council, a member of the Washington Square Assoc., and while working with the Connors Park Neighborhood Coalition. She was such a stellar woman and community member and she will be missed by so many, including me.

Coleen had been sick throughout most of 2015 and had not been out throughout the year. She spent the last few months of her life at Warren Barr on the Gold Coast, according to her husband of nearly 25 years, John Rauch. John stayed there with her, along with their beloved yellow Labrador, Daisy.

At her request, Coleen's condition was kept pretty quiet. “Coleen was always very protective of her privacy and she was adamant that no one know what was happening,” John said in an email he sent out. “If this is the first you are learning of her illness, good. That would make her happy. I did my job.”

Coleen was someone I admired so much and she was such a healthy lifestyle person that I could not believe this sad news. As I told John, she was not only someone I really liked personally, but also, professionally, she was one of my very best sources and go-to people. I remember once telling Coleen -- an attorney -- that she was a better reporter than me after she sent me tons of important info regarding a story I was working on. She made my job easier whenever I worked with her.

I will miss her help, her brain, and her compassion for both dogs and people.

Our sincerest condolences go out to John, as well as to all of

Coleen Blake

Coleen's family, and her dear friend, George Blakemore. I'm so glad we all knew Coleen. What a great person. My heart is breaking.

“Please remember Coleen in happier times, with a smile on her face, outside on a long walk or bike ride by the lakefront,” said John. “Those memories would make her happy as well.”

At Coleen's request there was no funeral, however, there may be a memorial service at a later date. If anyone wants to remember Coleen, John asks that you please consider a contribution in her name to Canine Companions for Independence, Santa Rosa, California, or www.cci.org.

Wishing you all a very safe and happy New Year.

Letter to the Editor

Don't keep quiet,
let loved ones know
they're valued

The holiday season should remind people of the crucial significance of one's feeling valued and being valued. Feeling valued is the single most important wish that all people in the world share. In fact, there is probably no human characteristic more central to the success of a civilized society than for people to value one another.

It makes no difference what one's beliefs, choices, or life circumstances might be. The only thing that matters is human value; that is paramount. No explanations are necessary.

Our holiday season gives everyone, regardless of one's beliefs, choices, or life circumstances, a chance to demonstrate how much they value family, friends, and colleagues, and in turn feel valued by them. In the dozens of countries through which I have traveled, I have observed that what unifies us all is the wish to feel valued.

Challenges of enormous complexity face our beleaguered world. We can, if we learn to work together, manage them effectively. Hope will be the operative concept. As a psychologist for over 40 years, I can attest to the fact that when one can hope to find oneself valued and have a chance to show how one values another, we can work miracles together, in ensemble. People working in ensemble is key for all groups, whether in families, organizations, or nations of the world.

Hope accompanies the noble traditions of the season. It encourages people to have faith that we care about one another. There is no better time than this season to let people know that you value them and how you appreciate feeling valued by them. Doing so will provide the assurance that we need to help us survive, thrive, and perhaps even to prevail.

Existing home prices slowly digging out from depths of recession

BY DON DeBAT

As the clock ticks toward 2016, home resale prices in the Chicago area and across Illinois continue to dig out from the depths of the Great Recession, which began eight years ago.

Adjusted for inflation, existing home prices in Illinois have recovered to 91% of their November, 2008 level, and values in Chicago have rebounded 84%, according to economist Geoffrey J.D. Hewings at the Univ. of Illinois.

At the current rate of price growth, "complete recovery will take between 12 months and 18 months," Hewings predicted.

In Chicago, a total of 1,615 existing single-family homes and condominiums were sold in November, down 1.4% from the same month last year when 1,638 homes were sold, reported the Illinois Assoc. of Realtors (IAR).

However, the median price of homes and condos in Chicago was $235,000, up 2.2% over November of 2014 when the median price was $230,000, the IAR said. The median is a typical market price where half the homes sold for more and half sold for less.

"Median prices in the Chicago market posted a strong showing in November, boosted by a lower inventory of available properties," said Dan Wagner, president of the Chicago Assoc. of Realtors (CAR). "To see inventories drop more than 16% year-over-year in Chicago clearly signals that buyers want to start the new year in a new home."

In the nine-county Chicago-area, sales of single-family homes and condos totaled 6,836 units in November, a decrease of 3.9% from the 7,115 units in November of 2014. However, the median price in the nine-county area in November rose 7.9% to $196,000 from $181,690 in November a year ago, reported the IAR survey.

Lawrence Yun, chief economist for the National Assoc. of Realtors (NAR) said a drop off in existing home unit sales nationwide may be attributable to a new federal loan closing process called "Know Before You Owe."

Yun said the new integrated loan disclosure rules—also known as TRID—has lengthened closing times in up to 47% of the home-sale deals from coast-to-coast. TRID was created by the Consumer Protection Bureau to help prevent mortgage abuse.

"Buyers are having to move fast to get the home they want in this market," advised Mike Drews, president of the IAR. "Houses are selling at a brisk pace, even in the face of continued median-price increases."

In Illinois, the time it took to sell a home in November averaged 67 days, down from 74 days a year ago, the IAR reported. Available housing inventory remained tight with 63,023 homes listed for sale, an 11.7% decline from November of 2014 when there were 71,385 homes on the market.

"Median prices continued to increase even though sales declined on both a monthly and an annual basis," Hewings noted.

Ice skating, nature lessons available at Lincoln Park Zoo

Ice skating will be available every weekend Jan. 8-Feb. 28 at Lincoln Park Zoo, 2001 N. Clark St.

Guests are invited to whizz past the goats and cows at the rink, which is located within the Farm in the Zoo attraction.

Farm in the Zoo costs $5 per person, and skate rental is $5. The rink will be open 4-8 p.m. Fridays and noon to 8 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Snacks and winter warming drinks will be available for purchase.

A Learn, Explore and Play [LEAP] session will feature classes 9:30-10:30 a.m. Wednesdays Jan. 13-March 9 or Thursdays Jan. 14-March 10 at the zoo's Regenstein Center for African Apes and Regenstein Small Mammal-Reptile House. Students will connect with nature at the zoo's play space which was specifically designed to help early learners explore the natural world by meeting animals, building, drawing, climbing and making music. The program is for children ages 2-3, who must be accompanied by an adult. Cost is $126 per child or $108 for members.

Teens are invited for an interactive presentation about the life of chimpanzees "behind the scenes versus on screen" 5:30-9 p.m. Jan. 15, also at the Regenstein centers. Chimps at Dusk attendees will learn about Project ChimpCARE from Steve Ross, director of the

Some of the decline in unit sales also can be attributed to the significant drop in the sales of foreclosed properties in Illinois, he said.

In 2016, house hunters also will have to deal with rising mortgage rates, experts warn.

Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey reported that benchmark 30-year fixed home loans averaged 3.96% on December 24, down slightly from 3.97% a week earlier. A year ago at this time, the popular 30-year fixed-loan rate averaged 3.83%.

NAR economists expect the Federal Reserve's recent move to increase interest rates will push 30-year fixed mortgage rate average up to 4.5% by the end of 2016.

Chicago becoming a city of takeout people

Delivery prices expected to rise in 2016

BY KEVIN HARMON

Another example of Americans living in a society where immediate gratification has completely taken over our lives shows up in the way we have become less concerned with cooking food for ourselves and are now more obsessed with getting food delivered.

Food delivery has skyrocketed not only around the country, but more specifically in Chicago neighborhoods, where people have convinced themselves they don't have the time or patience to prepare meals at home. This whole concept of food delivery has changed the way we eat, looking more towards convenience and hopefully healthier eating.

According to a recent story in the Chicago Tribune, at last count at least a dozen companies are ready to deliver prepared foods to your front door, "and the market for restaurant delivery is set to expand significantly in 2016," the Tribune says. "It is being driven by greater availability and consumers' growing willingness to pay big money for convenience. But with demand rising, analysts say prices will increase as companies test exactly how much you'll fork over for a hot meal."

And the front lines in this battle for a fine, pricey, hot meal will be the Near North and North Sides.

"I admit that when I first started working for my employer, I didn't have the time to cook or eat healthy and I wasn't exercising as much as I did in the past and I gained a lot of weight," said Gina Suarez, a paralegal at a River North law firm who lives in Lincoln Park. "I was introduced to one of the food delivery companies by one of my co-workers and I figured I would try it out. Doing this, as I look back on it, has changed my relationship with food."

Suarez said she had enough to do in her hectic life without preparing to cook healthy meals. She said she's never been a big fan of going to grocery stores, often at busy times because of her job schedule, and carrying those bags for blocks since she doesn't have a car.

She started using Seattle Sutton's Healthy Eating, a company that was one of the pioneers for the food delivery movement, after finding that eating at food trucks was getting to be expensive.

"I would try to get healthy food at one of two food trucks that I knew about and it was good food, but I wasn't sure I was getting a balanced diet," she said. "With the food delivery system, I was getting deliveries twice a week and keeping with a reduced calorie program. Since I started using Seattle Sutton I've lost around 15 pounds."

Seattle Sutton's Healthy Eating has rotating meals plans and delivers 9, 12 or 21 meals over five weeks in 1,200 or 2,000 calorie-a-day traditional versions or a 1,500 calorie vegetarian option with deliveries coming twice a week. A typical 21-meal plan might cost between $136 and $156 for food and $114 delivery. Prices are subject to change.

Long gone are the days when all you could order as far as takeout goes was pizza or Chinese food. Our fast-paced society where electronic communication is quickly replacing the face to face variety, dictates why we are moving into a generation of food mania, more specifically, takeout mania. There are so many television shows devoted to food, same for magazines. We can get recipes, how-to videos and cooking classes can be taken online.

Enrollment at culinary schools has increased greatly over the last decade.

Despite all of this, people, particularly those younger, single folks living in urban areas are cooking less and ordering takeout more.

"The industry as a whole does $70 billion in takeout a year," said Abby Hunt, a GrubHub Spokeswoman. "We and mobile technology are just making it so simple and there is a huge demand for delivery, with convenience fueling the trend."

"I think when you are younger and single, you don't take the time to cook for yourself, and for me, I'm constantly eating out with my friends and only get little odds and ends stuff at the store," said Suarez' friend Camille Becker, another Lincoln Park resident who works as a manager for a Lakeview coffee shop. "I got tired of spending so much money on fast food and eating bar food that I thought that trying a delivery service might not only be healthier, but more economic in the long run."

Becker started using Instacart, where she can order groceries from local stores and a personal shopper fetches the items for her and delivers them to her apartment. Instacart has exploded all over the country in recent years and can also be found in such cities as Atlanta, Austin, Boston, Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C. and San Francisco. Delivery costs range from $4 to $13 right now, depending on whether orders are over or under $35 and delivered within an hour or two, with delivery during busier times costing more. Industry experts expect those prices to rise in 2016 as the services become more popular and perhaps offer different levels of service.

Instacart and Seattle Sutton's Healthy Eating are just two of many food delivery options that are out there. Uber now delivers food, under the name UberEats, as does DoorDash and ChowNow.

GrubHub, an online food-ordering and delivery service that's in 900-plus cities across the country, delivered more than 21 million orders from 35,000 restaurants to 5.6 million diners during the first quarter of this year.

"The industry as a whole does $70 billion in takeout a year," said Abby Hunt, a GrubHub Spokeswoman. "We and mobile technology are just making it so simple and there is a huge demand for delivery, with convenience fueling the trend."

Both Becker and Suarez said it's not only about convenience, but eating healthier and trying difference cuisines.

"And the food is really good," Becker said. "I have some friends who have gotten into cooking that say I'm lazy and wasting money. I don't think that it's something that I will do forever, but for now, it works for me."

Becker said her cholesterol numbers have improved. Suarez said her stamina is better and she can run in a 10-kilometer race much easier than she previously did in a 5K.

"Healthier diet, more water and less snacks," Suarez said.

Peapod and Plated are two other food delivery services that are in popular demand locally. Peapod browses "virtual aisles" of a local supermarket or works from a shopping list that the service remembers for you and orders groceries for either pickup or delivery. Plated has chefs creating nine weekly recipes based on your food preferences, from $12 per plate. Peapod charges $7-10 per delivery, depending on the order amount, although the order must be at least $60.

Law Enforcement says drunk driving fatalities remain consistent; police aim to save lives

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT), Illinois State Police (ISP) and 170 police and sheriff's departments kicked off an all-out effort to keep drunk drivers off Illinois roads this holiday season. The end-of-year campaign comes as new National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) statistics indicate that while Illinois drunk driving fatalities are not increasing, they are not declining, either.

"This most recent data clearly shows drunk driving is still very much a problem in Illinois and the nation," said IDOT Director of Traffic Safety, Jared Thornley. "This [year], don't put yourself or others at risk because, chances are, you'll be caught."

In 2011, NHTSA estimates there were 278 drunk driving fatalities (motor vehicle deaths involving at least one driver with a BAC of .08 or higher) in Illinois. But in 2012 and 2013, the number increased to 322, a 15% increase from 2011. There was a slight decrease in 2014, with 317 drunk driving fatalities in Illinois in 2014, according to NHTSA estimates. As recently as 2007, there were 439 drunk driving fatalities in Illinois.

Nationally, drunk driving fatalities decreased just one percent, from 10,076 in 2013 to 9,967 in 2014. The statistics for 2015 will be available in late 2016.

Gov. Bruce Rauner has asked motorists to do their part to make our roads safer by not driving under the influence. The holiday enforcement campaign features the familiar "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" and "Click It or Ticket" messages and will include stepped-up DUI and seat belt law enforcement efforts.

Through the first weekend of 2016, Illinois motorists will see this life-saving effort in their communities and throughout the state. Law enforcement will be increasing enforcement efforts, conducting roadside safety checks and safety belt enforcement zones.

"Driving under the influence remains a significant factor in fatal traffic crashes," said ISP Colonel Tad Williams. "[We] will be doing our part to help keep the roadways safe this holiday season by conducting extra patrols with an emphasis on removing impaired drivers. You can do your part by planning ahead to designate a driver or arrange for other responsible transportation methods. Voluntary compliance with safe driving laws is the goal for the ISP."

Data compiled by IDOT shows seven people died in six fatal crashes last year during the extended Christmas weekend. Two of those seven individuals lost their lives in crashes involving a driver who had been drinking. Some 594 people were injured in crashes during the same time frame in 2014.

An artist’s eye on fashion

‘Wow, somebody actually did it with their hand’

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY LILY SINGH
Medill News Service

Tucked behind a gray fedora, Rosemary Fanti’s eyes floated between her subjects and her canvas as she crafted her live fashion illustrations of customers in the fragrance department at Bloomingdale’s on Michigan Ave.

As Fanti illustrated, person after person stood by to admire her work. Shoppers who may have otherwise been in a rush paused to comment on the detailed artwork that took form right in front of their eyes.

This reporter watched her illustrate a customer in her favorite floor-length gown – a magical fantasy since the woman was wearing a skirt and blouse. I then overheard another conversation take place nearby. A daughter explained to her mom how Fanti could illustrate them in whatever outfits they pleased and even change their hair.

The beauty of fashion illustration, is that it beat Photoshop even before Photoshop was an option.

“All these illustrations that I did of these people, of these customers, it never existed before and it’s a really unique thing and hopefully they’ll treasure it, hopefully they’ll frame it, hopefully they’ll remember their experience at Bloomingdale’s or at Neiman’s or wherever I’m at,” Fanti said.

Fanti is a fashion illustrator based in Chicago, an artist whose journey into the fashion world began at a young age.

“As a child I was interested in fashion... and I loved to draw, even on the wall of my bedroom,” Fanti said. “My mother sent me to The School of the Art Institute on Saturdays and then in the summers.”

Rosemary Fanti illustrates a customer at a Bloomingdale’s fragrance event.

She earned her degree in fashion design from the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City and began working with designers to translate their ideas onto paper. After five years of freelancing in New York City, she moved back to her hometown.

“When I moved back to Chicago, since Chicago’s more of an advertising town than fashion, I found most of my work in advertising.”

But fashion illustration remained her first love.

“I was always fascinated with the illustrators from the 50’s and 40’s, you know, when it was at its height,” Fanti said.

Fashion illustrations filled top magazine covers during the early 1900’s. Conde Nast’s website notes that Vogue began replacing fashion illustrations with photo illustrations in 1932.

“Nowadays they don’t use illustration as much as they used to and that was only because printing photography – the process – wasn’t as good as it is now and that’s why they used so many illustrations in catalogs,” Fanti said.

In a day when people have cameras always handy, even in their cell phones, a photo doesn’t seem to have the same wow factor that it once did. And that’s a good thing for Fanti.

“So now it’s like the opposite, now it’s like ‘Wow an illustration, somebody actually did it with their hand,’” Fanti said. “So that seems to be a more personal thing in this era of impersonal things or digitally produced.”

Fanti has worked for a number of corporate clients, including Bloomingdale’s, Neiman Marcus, Macy’s and Saks Fifth Avenue.

“We are always looking to infuse creative and memorable moments into our customers shopping experience and Rosemary’s illustrations are the perfect way to do that,” said Alison Fichter, public relations and special events manager at Bloomingdale’s Chicago.

Working for major retailers has allowed Fanti to participate in various special events where the brand would like to enrich a customer’s experience.

“She has participated with us at a Chloe Drew handbag event where she sketched the client with the Chloe Drew handbag that they had selected,” said Tina Koegel, public relations manager at Neiman Marcus on Michigan Ave. “She has also participated with our shoe events where she will sketch a client holding one of their favorite pair of shoes and the clients absolutely love it.”

Customers at events like these are able to walk away with a piece of art to accompany their purchase.

As someone who has been a witness to fashion over the years, Fanti has seen a distinct change take place in the way people dress.

“It’s so individualized and I think back when I was little, when you went out, you had little gloves on and people dressed to go shopping or they dressed to go on an airline,” Fanti said. “And people had uniforms, and the stewardesses and the nurses back then were in a particular type of uniform.”

Today’s street fashion has a much more relaxed look and feel. A quick outfit for a shopping trip can be as simple as a tee paired with jeans and Converse shoes. But that may not always match the outfit someone might imagine themselves wearing.

“I notice when I illustrate live how many of these women wanted me to put them in something different. Maybe a really cool cocktail dress – they still like to dress up.”

“I think when you draw fashion it’s important to emphasize certain things – the eyes, the lips, you want to accentuate the positive,” Fanti said. “You want to accentuate it as though you’re drawing an idealized version of yourself – and if you want reality, you take a selfie.”

The models who work the runways in fashion shows are tall and lean so it only makes sense that fashion illustrations take on this same feel.

“Traditionally when you’re drawing a human, it’s about seven heads high. If you’re doing fashion, you want to do 10 heads high – elongated,” she said. “Fashion looks better elongated, exaggerated in that way.”

As an artist, Fanti has many tools at her disposal, with a preference for certain mediums depending on her end goal.

“I pretty much use these ink brushes and Prismacolor pencils and I use a makeup case to carry them all,” Fanti said. “I love working in pastels and watercolor, but it’s messy when I do live events.”

Fanti loves fashion and loves drawing people and she has found a career that allows her to live at the intersection of both. Watching her in her element and interacting with the people she illustrates, one thing is clear – she loves what she does.

When she illustrates live, Fanti creates more of an impression of the person and not an exact portrait. She really enjoys drawing women because of the beautiful gowns and intricate jewelry they wear.

“I think going back to when I was a little kid, loving fashion... this is like a dream job for me,” she said. “It’s like I can’t imagine doing anything else.”

New book offers daily practice for joy, purpose, peace in life

Before taking off on an airplane, the flight attendant will say, "Put your oxygen mask on before you help someone else," as a reminder that you will not be good to anyone else if you are unable to take care of yourself first.

In "Time for Me: Daily Practice for a Joyful, Peaceful, Purposeful Life," author Ruth Fishel acknowledges the letdown feeling people tend to get when they have high hopes for something and fail to understand or accept that change usually takes time.

The purpose of "Time for Me" is renewal and re-energizing one's self, in order to reach self-actualization and fulfillment.

Ned Bellamy, author of "Spiritual Values for Our Time," states that Fishel's advice "is illustrated and dramatized by hundreds of wonderful stories and quotes from the wisdom tradition, worth collecting and savoring in their own right."

"Time for Me" is designed for a person to go at their own pace, and take everything one week or longer at a time. The seeds of all human characteristics are within us — good and bad. The ones that grow are the ones we nurture, and that is why the wisdom in "Time for Me" is designed to be practiced every day.

The concept of "change your thoughts, change your life" is not new — in fact, it is a popular concept. More than 2,600 years ago, the Buddha discovered that thoughts create feelings. The bestselling author Thich Naht Hahn also teaches the need to change thinking in order to create a better life, and there are many, many others with the same advice.

This book demonstrates Fishel's unique approach to applying the above principle in order to create new thought patterns and automatic, positive responses. In "Time for Me," she explains that people have the ability to rewire and create new neural circuits in their brains, and the more they practice something new, the more they can form new neural pathways with each repetition. In time, these new pathways become deeper than the ones made by old habits, and they become automatic. Practicing thoughts like, "I am happy," or, "I am calm," make people more apt to return to those thought when they feel otherwise.

"Time for Me" is a personal practice book—not a workbook—laid out in a weekly format to be practiced daily. It features a very simple three-step method:

- Mindfulness: Only by being aware of our thoughts can we change them.

- Universal energy: call it God, spiritual energy, Higher Power, Buddha energy, Allah, whatever you choose to call a power greater than yourself that you feel connected to

- Power of our thoughts: Based on our new scientific understanding of neuroplasticity and neuro-pathways, we have the power to change our thoughts and thought patterns.

Fishel is an acclaimed author of inspirational books that have sold nearly 1 million copies, including "A Time for Joy," "Change Almost Anything in 21 Days," and "The Journey Within." As the cofounder and former director of Serenity Inc., she now teaches, writes and presents workshops and retreats throughout the country, helping people become whole and healthy using the tools of meditation, affirmations and visualizations.

"Ruth Fishel writes with clarity so that the principles she explains are easily understood," author Anda Peterson said. "Her concise and lively writing is positive and uplifting."

"Time for Me" is available wherever books are sold. To order directly from the publisher, call 800-441-5569.

New chiropractic clinic opens in Lakeview

The Joint Chiropractic is now open in Lakeview at 2904 N. Ashland Ave., in the Ashland Wellington Plaza shopping center.

The clinic officially opened Nov. 11.

The Joint prioritizes patient-friendly, affordable, quality chiropractic care. For example, appointments aren't necessary at the clinic, which offers extended hours, and insurance isn't needed, since membership plans and packages often make visits less costly than most co-pays.

"A recent Harvard health review confirmed that chiropractic care can be helpful for back pain, migraines and neck pain," chiropractor Troy Tann said. "When you face these common symptoms, relief is the only thing on your mind. And the last thing you want to stress over is dealing with insurance coverage and trying to get in for an appointment."

Tann is the chiropractic medical director responsible for the chiropractors for all Joint locations across Chicago.

Regular chiropractic adjustments can help treat and prevent aches and pains that result from the repetitive activities of everyday life. These symptoms include back pain, headaches and "text neck," all of which result from mobile device usage.

Regular chiropractic adjustments can help treat and prevent aches and pains that result from the repetitive activities of everyday life.

The Joint Chiropractic Lakeview location is open 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays. The new Lakeview neighborhood clinic is one of 11 Chicago-area locations opening in the next few months.

Seniors: Tips for staying active

BY DR. TROY TANN, DC

Today, seniors are more active than ever, which is great news for their spine health.

As we age, staying active is a key way to maintaining independence. Adopting a few, simple healthy habits can make a big difference in your lifestyle by improving circulation, digestion and mobility.

Here are some tips to help seniors maintain a healthy lifestyle:

1. Stay limber

Not only does it feel great, relaxed stretching keeps seniors limber – and most every senior can do it. Stretching can be done seated or standing near a wall for support. Slowly stretch from head to toe, gently flexing each muscle group. Breathe deeply with every stretch, and enjoy getting in-tune with your body.

2. Light exercise

Walking is nature's perfect activity to increase circulation and improve balance – and you can start at your own pace. Try a short walk a few times a week, and increase your distance and duration as you feel comfortable. Ask a friend to join you, and you both will benefit from a great walk, fresh air and sunshine.

3. Good nutrition and healthy weight

A well-balanced diet provides the fuel your body needs to help you maintain your weight and an active lifestyle. Drink plenty of water – at least 10 eight-ounce glasses per day. Caffeinated drinks and alcohol aren't substitutes for good old-fashioned water. So if you're drinking any of those beverages, remember the water replacement rule: two glasses of water for each of the other drinks consumed.

4. Chiropractic care

Many seniors benefit from regular chiropractic adjustments, noting increased mobility, improved balance and decreased risk of falls and other injuries. Chiropractic doctors are trained to treat seniors safely and effectively.

New year's resolutions: an ancient tradition we still haven't mastered

Ruth Nelson quips, "Resolutions are made to be broken!"

Kathleen Hotton says that the best resolution may be "Be Happy."

The practice of making New Year's resolutions dates as far back as 4,000 years ago when ancient Babylonians would promise to return borrowed objects and pay debts.

Today, resolutions focus more on personal-improvement goals, like the ever-popular promises to "lose weight" and "get organized."

"Most New Year's resolutions sound familiar, like 'I'm going to exercise more,'" says Clare resident Suzanne Turner.

"But change isn't easy and of course, by January 31, inspiration usually fizzles out. I used to make resolutions years ago, but I found I didn't keep them. And I know I'm not alone."

In fact, it's estimated that nearly half of the population is compelled to make New Year's resolutions, but one in three will ditch them in the first month and nearly all will eventually fail in their attempts at resolve. Nonetheless, people keep making them, and their sense of humor about them as well.

"Resolutions are made to be broken, so each year I do set up some goals," says Ruth Nelson, another Clare resident. "In 2016 I want to lose weight, which should easily be accomplished by eliminating cookies (after Christmas, of course). I want also want to eliminate my bouts with righteous indignation as well as my wallowing in self-pity. We'll see how that goes."

According to Psychology Today, "Making resolutions work involves changing behaviors—and in order to change a behavior, you have to change your thinking—or 're-wire' your brain." Change happens through a series of small steps, not as a result of making a big declaration like a New Year's resolution. People have a better chance of succeeding with their resolutions if they set priorities, create a plan to recognize and celebrate incremental achievements, and keep their enthusiasm levels high.

"I stick to one philosophy about New Year's resolutions," says another Clare resident, Camille Tracer. "If you don't make any, you don't have to feel guilty about not keeping them!"

A number of Clare residents agree that resolutions have no place in their New Year's traditions. "Resolutions?!?" said Christine Lyon when asked if she had any advice on the subject. "At this stage of life, you should know what you're doing." Another resident anonymously concurred, "Talking about resolutions reminds me of that Carole King song, It's Too Late, Baby."

And as a final word on the subject, resident Carol Feiser Laque said, "The best New Year's resolutions should be made sometime after you have been given the last rites."

Nonetheless, if you're still determined to tackle resolutions in 2016, here are ten recommendations for older adults to try. Success is possible if you stick with it.

1. Get tech savvy with a smart phone or social media. It's not too late to learn and embrace new technology.

2. Socialize more by joining a group, taking a class, or making a new friend...or re-establishing contact with an old friend or two.

3. Take time to share your stories with family through conversations, memoir, or even through an app like StoryCorps.

4. Volunteer your wisdom, time, and energy to a meaningful cause.

5. Be grateful and celebrate the positive events in daily life, including the little things that make you smile.

6. Get moving and take a walk every day, no matter what, inside or outside.

7. Take a balance class and eliminate hazards in your home that could cause falls.

8. Label names and places on family photos and put papers and documents in order.

9. Keep looking forward to new events and plan for travel – from day trips to longer adventures.

10. Or, you may want to take the straightforward advice of Clare resident Kathleen Hotton: Be Happy.

Senior LIVING

Elderly Chicagoans received holiday meals from Little Brothers – Friends of the Elderly on Christmas Day. Volunteers, like this group from St. Mark's Church, helped with deliveries.

Happier holiday for seniors in solitude

It was a Christmas Day celebration with a twist – partygoers were Chicagoans aged 70 and older.

Little Brothers – Friends of the Elderly hosted three Christmas dinners around the city for seniors living without the help of family and friends. It's a mission that alleviates isolation and loneliness among 1,200 Chicagoans each year.

"Spending Christmas Day alone can take the joy out of the holiday," says Simone Mitchell-Peterson, chief executive officer of Little Brothers. "Every day of the year, we make sure seniors feel cared for and remembered. During the holiday, we're especially aware of how important it is to care for our elderly."

With the help of nearly 200 volunteers, the organization hosted three dinner celebrations for hundreds of elders, one of which was for Spanish-speaking senior citizens. For homebound seniors and those living in nursing homes, a fleet of volunteers delivered meals as well as a holiday treat to their doors.

In addition to Christmas Day festivities, Little Brothers conducts an elder holiday gift drive that generates 1,000 presents each year. The gifts are delivered throughout December by volunteers.

"Elders are like family," Mitchell-Peterson said. "Many of them have been with our program for years. It's a joy to be able to provide a gift to each one of them. They truly appreciate the gesture, and we appreciate them."

Little Brothers – Friends of the Elderly provides friendship to seniors in Chicago who are 70 and older and aging without support from family or friends. All services and programs are free to seniors, regardless of income. The nonprofit organization has operated in Chicago since 1959 and serves approximately 1,200 seniors in the city.

Anti-aging resolutions for seniors this year

The New Year means new starts, and that typically involves making New Year's resolutions.

While the old, faithful standbys still exist, adults over the age of 65 can greatly benefit from making healthy resolutions – especially those that help prevent illness and injury.

Here are five New Year's resolutions that will keep you feeling young and vibrant:

Exercise or start a new physical activity

Exercise doesn't have to be exhausting, and it certainly doesn't have to feel like work. Older adults are increasingly looking to classes such as yoga and tai chi to not only increase physical health, but to meet people and widen their social circles. Other activities like local walking clubs can be found at many senior organizations and community centers.

Participate in cognitive health activities

Mental health is an important aspect of health that we tend to overlook as we extol the benefits of staying physically fit. Keep your mind engaged and stimulated through a language class, book club or by playing brain games and trivia on the computer.

Eat more fresh foods

Processed foods are easy to throw together for a meal, but they come with a host of health issues and concerns, and frankly, they're not worth the hassle. Make a promise to eat more fresh, healthy fruits and vegetables, and you'll see a noticeable difference in the way you look and feel – and it takes very little work on your end.

Make your home safer

According to the Centers for Disease Control, one in three adults over the age of 65 falls each year. Many of these falls are preventable, especially if home safety tips are implemented. Tips like moving cords out of walkways, having good lighting near beds and taping down edges of carpet and rugs can help tremendously to decrease the number and severity of falls for seniors.

Schedule regular checkups

Unfortunately, with age comes an increased risk of illness and other complications such as high blood pressure, osteoporosis and other medical conditions. Making sure that you schedule a regular annual checkup can help in early detection and prevention.

Not only will these New Year's resolutions improve your mental and physical health, they'll provide social opportunities and benefit your life in multiple ways. What are some of your goals and resolutions for the upcoming year?

A Little Mixed Up

Just a line to say
I'm living, that I'm not among the dead
Though I'm getting more forgetful,
and mixed up in my head;

I've got used to my arthritis,
To my dentures
I'm resigned.
I can manage my bifocals,
But, Oh God,
I miss my mind.

For sometimes
I don't remember,
At the bottom of the stairs
If I was going up
for something,
or if I just came down
from there.

And before the fridge
so often,
my poor mind is filled with doubt--
Have I put the food
away . . .
Or come to take some out?

There are times when it is dark
And my nightcap's
on my head
I don't know if I'm retiring, or just getting out of bed;

So if it's my turn
to write you,
There's no need in getting sore,
I may think that I have written
And I don't want to be a bore.

Please remember that
I love you,
And I wish that you
were here;
But now it's nearly
mail time,
So I must say goodbye,
my dear.

Now here I stand beside the mailbox,
With my face so very red,
Instead of mailing you
my letter,
I have opened it instead!

sidewalk and were not arrested.

Protesters returned Oct. 22, and again, 130 were arrested in the park at 1 a.m. on Oct. 23.

Following their arrest, lawyers for the protesters asked the Cook County Circuit Court to dismiss the charges. Among other arguments, they compared their protests to the November 2008 election night gathering in Grant Park to celebrate the election of President Barack Obama.

They noted that celebration went well into the night, with many revelers remaining in the park beyond 11 p.m.

Judge Donnelly agreed, dismissing the protesters’ charges, which he said had been based on an ordinance that was unconstitutional as it violated the protesters’ rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution’s First

The justices said the ordinance also does not unfairly target only demonstrators because it bars all from using the park at that time of night, whether they wish to make a political point or merely engage in recreational activity, such as picnicking, jogging or stargazing, among others.

and Fourteenth Amendments and associated sections of the state Constitution.

The city appealed the decision, however, saying the ordinance in no way impeded the ability of the Occupy protesters to state their message, or to gather, noting long established principles allowing governments to regulate the locations and times at which citizens and groups can speak, as well as their methods for doing so.

And since the ordinance did not explicitly target the Occupy protesters distinct from any other groups, the city argued that the ordinance ordering Grant Park to close at 11 p.m. is constitutional.

After taking up the matter for the second time, justices again backed the city, saying the time and place restrictions placed on the demonstrators by the ordinance were not unconstitutional, either on their face or as applied.

Particularly, the justices noted the ordinance’s purpose – to simultaneously preserve the park’s condition and promote public safety - falls within the scope of a compelling government interest. They said the ordinance also does not unfairly target only demonstrators because it bars all from using the park at that time of night, whether they wish to make a political point or merely engage in recreational activity, such as picnicking, jogging or stargazing, among others.

Further, they noted the city provides ample opportunities for protesters to take their demonstrations elsewhere, including city sidewalks and other public areas not managed by the Park District.

On the matter of comparing the Occupy protesters to those gathered in 2008 for the Obama Election Night victory rally, justices said the nature of the gatherings provides the difference in their treatment:

While the Obama gathering was a one-time historic event, the panel said the Occupy protesters “intended to remain in the park for an unspecified period of time indicating a 24-hour,uninterrupted presence for days,weeks or months without end. Surely this would adversely impact the maintenance and public safety responsibilities of the park district and would result in the total substitution of the purported goals of these defendants, regardless of the righteousness of their movement, with the needs of the public at large.”

The case was sent to the circuit court for further proceedings.

Second look at Chicago’s parks curfew shows ordinance still constitutional ‘Free assembly not without its limits’

JONATHAN BILYK
Cook County Record

After taking a second look, a state appeals panel has again upheld as constitutional a Chicago ordinance prohibiting anyone, even protesters, from remaining overnight in Grant Park without special permission.

On Dec. 22, a three-justice panel of the Illinois First District Appellate Court ruled the city of Chicago and Chicago Park District did not march on the First Amendment rights of Occupy Chicago protesters when police, claiming to enforce the parks ordinance, ordered protesters to leave Grant Park and arrested those who remained on a series of nights in October 2011.

“Defendants are not picnickers or stargazers or soccer players. They are members of a group assembled to make an important point,” the justices wrote. “Their assembly rights were apparently accommodated through the night of their arrest in Grant Park. The ordinance did not restrict their assembly, it restricted their stated purpose to ‘occupy’ and indefinitely remain in a public area to the detriment of the park district’s ability to perform its legitimate functions. Free assembly ... is not without its limits.”

The ruling comes almost a year to the day since the appellate panel first overturned a ruling by Cook County Judge Thomas More Donnelly, who had found the city’s ordinance barring use of the park between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. was an unconstitutional infringement on citizen’s First Amendment rights and particularly those of the Occupy protesters, who wished to use the park to assemble for their protests against what they believed to be injustices within the U.S. economic and political systems.

Following the appellate decision on Dec. 23, 2014, the Illinois Supreme Court had ordered the appellate court to vacate its decision, and reevaluate the case in light of the First Amendment concerns raised by the arrested protesters.

However, in its new decision, the appeals panel reached very similar conclusions to those that underlay its ruling a year earlier.

The case centered on the decision by the Chicago Police Dept. -- enforcing Park District ordinances governing operating hours at Grant Park -- to arrest more than 300 protesters, collectively, around 1 a.m. on both Oct. 15-16 and Oct. 22-23, 2011, when protesters associated with the Occupy movement refused to obey repeated police orders or heed multiple warnings to leave the park hours after it had closed.

In the late summer of 2011, protests sprang up in cities across the U.S. in support of a New York gathering identifying itself as Occupy Wall Street. The protesters made various demands, centered on addressing perceived income and wealth inequality in the U.S.

By October 2011, protests in Chicago had swelled to several thousand daily, with a sustained presence 24 hours a day on downtown city streets.

The groups’ primary tactic involved setting up semi-permanent encampments on city streets and public parks in urban centers, particularly near financial and business districts in large cities, purportedly to disrupt the daily lives of the elite so-called top “one percent” in America and draw attention to what they believe to be the problems at the heart of the country’s economic and political systems.

By October 2011, protests in Chicago had swelled to several thousand daily, with a sustained presence 24 hours a day on downtown city streets. On Oct. 15, protesters took their demonstration into Grant Park and indicated, via chant, they intended to “occupy” Grant Park.

In response, city police warned them the park, by ordinance, closes from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. each night, ostensibly to allow Chicago Park District workers to keep the park in good repair and to allow police to prevent the park from becoming a target for criminals.

While an estimated 3,000 protesters entered the park on Oct. 15, only about 173 remained to be arrested by police at 1 a.m. on Oct. 16. Many of the rest had relocated their demonstration across Michigan Ave. to a public
