Bored? Add “50 Shades,” Jenner, Williams

ANN
GERBER

THE LADIES WHO LUNCH are arguing over the erotic romance movie “50 Shades of Grey.” Dahlings, you must see it so you can join the conversation. Some find it sexy, some not so much, and a few, perennially bored socialites found star Jamie Dornan “too young.” Madonna asserted the story of the college student and the billionaire and his obsession with dominance, submission, sadomasochistic relationships was “not sexy.”
“THANK HEAVENS for the distraction,” laughed one wealthy matron. “If it were not for this bondage flick, and the sex change for Bruce Jenner, and Brian Williams’ bad war memory, we would have nothing to talk about! This is a boring winter. No hot divorces, except billionaire Ken and Anne Griffin, and that’s old news.”
“POOR BRUCE JENNER. Wasn’t he once America’s Olympic hero? He will be the punch line for comics till he dies. And handsome, perfect NBC news anchor Brian Williams may lay low for six months and lose $5 million in pay, but the words out of his mouth will never be trusted,” she concluded. “We cannot talk about the weather. Boston has that topic this winter. So we need Jenner’s journey to another gender. You heard the joke that as soon as he became a woman driver he had an accident?”

EVERYONE HAS AN OPINION about the Big Daddy of the Kartrashian clan, Bruce Jenner, and his multiple marriages and brood of children, his own and his step kids. Kim has only a big booty and a sex tape, but Bruce has lived several lives and is preparing for another. Bored?
Add Bruce and Brian and “50 Shades” to your conversation for added oomph...

New 2nd Ward and 43rd Ward both in for another election

Hopkins leads in 2nd Ward

BY STAFF

The 2nd Ward will go down to the General Consolidated Election April 7. In a race that featured no incumbent candidate, the race now will see Brian Hopkins face off against Alyx Pattison, both of them unknown entities in local politics. Hopkins took nearly 29.5% of the vote hill Pattison came in second with 24.33% of the vote.

In a ward so bizarrely drawn that only a Democrat Machine operative could understand it, the two candidates will have to hone their games to appeal to the staid blue bloods of the Gold Coast, busy downtown dwellers of Streeterville, wealthy Old Town and Lincoln Park elites and the Wicker Park hipsters to capture the seat.

Residents of the 2nd Ward offered perhaps the biggest electoral question on the North Side as six contenders fought for Ald. Robert Fioretti’s soon-to-be-vacated 2nd Ward seat after his own home was gerrymandered out of his own ward, leaving him homeless in City Council.

Ald. Fioretti lost in the mayoral race, gathering less than 7.5% of the votes against Mayor Rahm Emanuel who himself had a bad night as he was unable to close the sale on his race for a second term as mayor. He will now face Jesus “Chuy” Garcia on April 7.

2nd Ward vote totals:
Brian Hopkins 2,594
Bita Buenrostro 1,203
Cornell Wilson 752
Stephen Niketopoulous 1,084
Alyx S. Pattison 2,147
Stacey Pfingsten 1,043

Ald. Smith loses half of 43rd Ward to the competition, faces runoff

Ald. Michele Smith [43rd], the Lincoln Park alderman serving her first City Council term, will have to wait until spring to find out whether or not she’ll be keeping her job as more than half her ward voted for somebody other than her.

With 98% of the votes in, it seems Ald. Smith and challenger Caroline Vickrey will duke it out in a runoff on April 7. As of press time, Smith had 41.5% of the vote compared to Vickrey’s nearly 36%. Vickrey beat out two other contenders in the race, Jen Kramer and Jerry Quandt.

Vickrey, a former lawyer, has been actively involved in the community throughout the past two decades. She was an active voice

Man freed from prison claims Northwestern, others framed him for double murder to free another inmate

BY BETHANY KRAJELIS
AND MARK SCHIPPER

A man cleared of murder charges last year after spending more than a decade behind bars filed a federal lawsuit last week accusing Northwestern Univ. of turning a blind eye to the allegedly unethical and deceptive tactics being taught in a journalism class focused on investigating alleged wrongful convictions.

In his 50-page lawsuit seeking $40 million in damages, Alstory Simon claims “Northwestern’s conduct permitted a culture of lawlessness to thrive in” the class, but ignored it because the class led by former professor David Protess garnered the school national recognition, boosted the reputation of the Medill School of Journalism, attracted students and promoted fundraising activities.

Last November Inside Publications did extensive coverage after Illinois freed Simon from jail, examining the sad tale of unchecked political correctness and agenda-driven opportunism, biased media pressure and an unfortunate retreat by the State’s Attorney’s Office that resulted in this broad miscarriage of justice.

Simon’s suit names Northwestern and Protess as defendants, along with Paul J. Ciolino, an investigator who helped Protess teach students techniques and assist in the investigations, and Illinois attorney Jack P. Rimland, who Simon contends represented him in a way that furthered the class’s efforts.

Now a 64-year-old Ohio resident, Simon was arrested when he was 48 for the 1982 murders of Jerry Hillard and Marilyn Green that Anthony Porter had already been convicted of and was awaiting execution for at that time.

Protess’s class began looking into Porter’s conviction in 1998, when the suit alleges the students were told to investigate the case and

conviction after the prosecutor’s office said “we could reach no other conclusion but that the investigation of this case has been so deeply corroded and corrupted that we can no longer maintain the legitimacy of this conviction,” the suit states.*

“develop evidence of Porter’s innocence, rather than to search for the truth.”

During the investigation, Simon claims Protess’s team manufactured false witness statements and then used those, along with threats and other deceitful tactics, to coerce him into giving a false confession.

Simon’s suit states he confessed after being showed a videotape of a man who ended up being an actor claiming he saw Simon commit the murder. He alleges Protess’s team told him he could avoid the death penalty, as well as get a shortened sentence, a free lawyer and money from book and movie deals, by saying he shot the victims in self-defense.

Simon claims he provided the false confession, “believing he had no other viable option and acting under extreme duress and the influence of narcotics.”

“The horrific injustice that befell Simon occurred when defendants ... conspired to frame Simon for the murders in order to secure the release of the real killer, Anthony Porter,” the suit asserts, further accusing the defendants of getting Rimland to represent Simon so he could coerce him into pleading guilty.

While Porter was released and Simon was eventually convicted for the double murder, a situation that many credit for former Gov. George Ryan’s decision to declare a moratorium on the death penalty, Simon was freed in Oct. 2014 following a yearlong investigation by the Cook County State’s Attorney’s office.

Protess’s hope at the time - along with many of his supporters - was to have the death sentence from its books. The effort was more about politics than an effort to free a man they believed was innocent.

New book on political corruption finds Illinois and Chicago at the head of the line... into jail

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Chicago still “ain’t ready for reform” and not likely to be ready for it anytime soon, but former 44th Ward Ald. Dick Simpson has always been a long-range thinker.

In “Corruption: Illinois Patronage, Cronyism and Criminality,” (Univ. of Illinois Press, $19.95) Simpson and fellow Ravenswood resident Tom Gradel, a former journalist, political media consultant and aide to Gov. Dan Walker, revisit the history of political criminality from vote rigging in 1833 when Chicago was first incorporated through the arrest and imprisonment of Ravenswood’s own Gov. Rod Blagojevich.

As the military might suggest about pending war plans, Illinois is a target rich environment for such a book.

Drawing on research help from a number of UIC students, Gradel and Simpson, a UIC political science professor, spent seven years collecting facts and another two years writing the book.

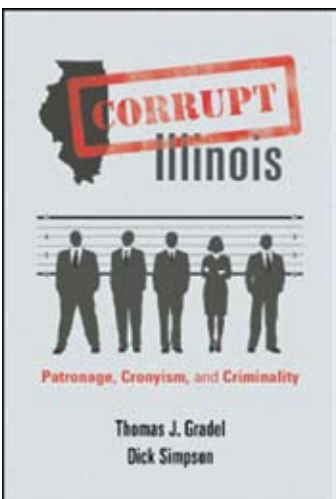

Bottom line? “Illinois is among the top three most corrupt states and Chicago is the most corrupt city in the nation,” Simpson says. “The truth is that the governor’s mansion, statehouse and the City Council chambers have a far worse crime rate than the worst ghetto in Chicago.”

Since 1973, 31 Chicago aldermen and four Illinois governors have gone to jail, he said.

Chicago takes top “honors” because even though there were other, earlier, machines here, Democrat machine politics was most finely honed during the Richard J. Daley years, said Gradel. “The Mob and City Hall indirectly helped each other. They had simi-

A shot of realness in local doc's new play on autism and addiction

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

They're also both brought to the forefront in a new play, "Picture Imperfect," which starts previews Saturday at The Athenaeum Theatre, 2936 N. Southport Ave.

"Picture Imperfect," is the tale of Mary, a single mother, and the struggles she faces and the decisions she's forced to make regarding her autistic son, as well as another son who's addicted to heroin. Mary seeks to re-create the "perfect family" she believes she once had, and the world premiere play is about hope and redemption, guilt and misperceptions, and is based on true-life incidents.

"It's a tragedy with a lot of hope," said the show's co-writer, River North resident Dr. Joel Cornfield, who by day has a private urology practice in Hinsdale.

Dr. Cornfield said his co-writer, Rick Zieman, had a plot sketched out for a play about autism. Because Dr. Cornfield has four sons, Zieman asked him to help with the voice of the play's older son, who is about 19 or 20.

"It evolved into co-writing," said Dr. Cornfield, who has helped set up sustainable urology programs in both Kenya and Ethiopia. "A happy accident."

And now, that "happy accident" has evolved into the doc's first effort at the bright lights of theater.

"Which makes it really exciting," he said. "It's always good to try to do new things."

He can also relate to the story, as the doctor has a nephew with Asperger's Syndrome, a form of autism affecting a person's ability to socialize/communicate effectively with others (Did you know one in 68 kids is now affected by autism?). Dr. Cornfield watched his sister fight her way through the system, and Mary, in the show, is forced to do the same thing with her autistic younger son, Cole.

"Anybody interested in a good yarn -- a good drama," should see the play, said Dr. Cornfield. "The portrayal of Cole is accurate, it paints him in a very sympathetic light, and discusses some issues of a child with Asperger's/autism and the difficulty the system has with dealing with the volume of cases."

The play also touches on heroin addiction, a significant subject that has had its relentless grip on both Chicagoans and suburbanites alike. Heroin is as popular as ever now and one of the least expensive drugs on the black market.

"It's very difficult for people who are touched by the addict not to blame themselves," said Dr. Cornfield. "But it's the individual's choice, not the parents' behavior."

Between heroin, and autism, the good doctor's play sounds like an Heroin addiction. Autism. Three words that one doesn't necessarily often find together, yet both are disorders on the rise among the families of today.

They're also both brought to the forefront in a new play, "Picture Imperfect," which starts previews Saturday at The Athenaeum Theatre, 2936 N. Southport Ave.

North Side residents can save on energy bills now by making common-sense changes in the home

As you brave the winter cold, you may be worried about your energy bills. The average household in Chicago spends more than $2,000 annually on gas and electricity, but there are opportunities to save.

With new smart meters being installed in your community, you can now take control of your energy use and potentially save money. To uncover these savings, local nonprofit Elevate Energy is helping homeowners in the area make smart choices about energy.

For example, many residents aren't aware of various pricing programs that leverage new smart meters to allow you to pay based on when you use your electricity. Shifting electricity usage to lower-priced hours can lower your electric bills. Elevate Energy advisors have more information on how these programs work as well as other ways you can take advantage of your new advanced meter.

Even bigger savings can be achieved by making home energy efficiency improvements, which can cut energy bills by an average of $400 per year. Most homes (even newer ones) are too cold in the winter and too warm in the summer. Unfortunately, many assume this is normal. But with basic improvements, every home can be cozier and more comfortable year-round. Elevate Energy advisors will connect you with utility rebates as well as a network of qualified contractors to help you make the best, most cost-effective improvements to your home.

Homes that make improvements and reduce their energy loss by 15% or more are eligible for an Illinois Home Performance with ENERGY STAR certificate. This certificate can help you sell your home faster or for more money.

To speak with someone who can advise you on the next steps for your home, contact Elizabeth Corrado at 773-671-0495 or elizabeth.corrado@elevateenergy.org, or call toll-free 844-922-1222.

Your brain and exercise: what’s the connection?

Illinois Science Council [ISC] continues their “Your Brain” series by hosting Dr. Art Kramer, one of the nations leading researchers on cognition and exercise, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the Notebaert Nature Museum, 2430 N. Cannon Dr. Registration is free.

Dr. Kramer, who leads the Lifelong Brain and Cognition Laboratory in the Beckman Institute at the Univ. of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, and his colleagues investigate various aspects of cognition across the lifespan. With a focus on neuroplasticity (brain changes), they use neuroimaging (MRI, electroencephalography), eye-tracking, and neuropsychological assessments to study such brain tasks as executive control, memory, and visual attention processes. They investigate how these brain functions develop and change with age, and how they can change with physical, cognitive, and nutritional interventions.

Dr. Kramer’s work studies the effects of aerobic exercise in both adults and children and the potential for cognitive enhancement through cognitive training.

He will examine if going for a run, yoga or other types of exercise helps your brain; if playing video games might actually be good for your mind and if there really is such a thing as “brain food” or is it all hype?

This program is free but registration is recommended as seating is limited.

Apartment renters now outnumber homeowners in Chicagoland

BY DON DeBAT

Homeownership once was called the American Dream, but Chicago’s downtown apartment building boom has created a spike in renters, putting owners in second place.

The Chicago area’s apartment renting population skyrocketed 12% between 2006 and 2013, reported a new study by New York University’s Furman Center and Capital One. And, today there are more renters in the Windy City than homeowners.

Appraisal Research Counselors Ltd. reported that 2,247 new downtown units were leased in 2014, compared with an average of about 1,100 units absorbed each year for the past three years.

“We are projecting that 2,400 new units will be rented per year downtown for the next two years,” said Ron DeVries, vice president of Appraisal Research. The Benchmark Report targeted the Loop, the New East Side, Gold Coast, South Streeterville, River North, River West, the West Loop and South Loop.

“There now are 16 high-rise buildings containing 5,936 units under construction downtown with deliveries scheduled for 2015 or 2016,” DeVries said. “We are projecting that construction will be started on another six buildings containing about 1,700 units in 2015, with deliveries scheduled for 2016.” If you are shopping for a new luxury apartment downtown in 2015, better bring a fat wallet. Appraisal Research is forecasting a 10.9% hike in luxury apartment rents in 2015, while tenants in the Class A market will pay 8.37% more. Rents in Class B buildings are expected to rise 5.75%.

Appraisal Research also noted that profit margins were at historic highs for downtown new-construction units. Apartment renting is becoming a high-tech business, with landlords in numerous buildings converting to revenue management software programs that continually adjust rents depending on demand for various unit types.

Despite the rent hikes, apartment occupancy downtown remains high. Luxury high-rises and Class A buildings are 93.6% leased. Class B occupancies are not far behind at 92.2%.

To compete with the prestigious newer high-rises, some older downtown properties are reportedly doing “off market” rental incentive specials, including gift cards, a waiver of administrative fees and reduced auto parking rates, DeVries said.

The Appraisal Research outlook noted that if the downtown employment market improves notably in 2015 “an upside potential exists for rents and overall apartment demand.”

Net rents in top luxury downtown high-rises are skyrocketing, with tenants paying an average of $3.32 per square foot, or $2,928 a month for the average 882-square-foot apartment, Appraisal Research reported.

In 2014, such luxury high-rises as One Eleven at 111 W. Wacker in the Loop, 850 N. Lake Shore Dr. in Streeterville, 73 E. Lake in the Loop, Catalyst at 123 N. Des Plaines in the West Loop and were added to the downtown market.

Net rents are $3.60 per square foot at the swank 504-unit One Eleven, or $3,240 a month for a typical 900-square-foot unit, the highest net-effective rent downtown. Rents ranged from $3.35 to $3.55 a square foot at Aqua in the New East Side, Optima Center in Streeterville, Walton on the Park in the Gold Coast and AMLI River North in River North, Appraisal Research reported.

However, new downtown apartments are getting some heavy competition from rental condominiums. In the fourth quarter of 2014, a total 1,107 condo units were rented.

Over the past 12 months, 6,245 condo units were leased downtown via Multiple Listing Services, compared with 5,781 units in the prior 12-month period—an eight percent increase.

A judge vacated Simon’s conviction after the prosecutor’s office said “we could reach no other conclusion but that the investigation of this case has been so deeply corroded and corrupted that we can no longer maintain the legitimacy of this conviction,” the suit states.

According to the State’s Attorney’s Office, the investigation conducted by Protess’s class “involved a series of alarming tactics that were not only coercive and absolutely unacceptable by law enforcement standards,” and may have constituted criminal behavior—obstruction of justice and witness intimidation—but were now barred by the statute of limitations.

Although Simon has been released and his conviction vacated, his suit stresses “he will never regain the decade and a half lost of his life” to incarceration, during which time he missed his mother’s funeral and was stripped of his personal relationships, goals and right to move about freely.

Simon’s suit makes several jabs at Protess’s investigative journalism class, including saying that “in reality, very little, if any, journalism was conducted.”

It also contends the students were used “as pawns to deflect public scrutiny from the blatantly illegal and unethical investigative techniques routinely employed by Northwestern’s employees and/or agents to generate statements from witnesses without regard to the truth or falsity of those statements.”

Indeed at the time the Chicago media gushed over the work of Protess and his students without ever really verifying their work, accepting it verbatim with little skepticism. The actions taken by several powerful institutions had in truth been cumulative in an atmosphere where Chicago’s most prominent media outlets chose to trumpet the students’ findings at the same time the Chicago Tribune published a series of high-profile investigative pieces that attempted to defame and discredit the public prosecutors’ offices.

Chicago Tribune columnist Eric Zorn in particular was taken in by the charade and cheered the students on as heroes. He repeatedly stated in print his bias in favor of Protess and his belief in Protess’s “good intentions.”

Zorn was identified by Michael Miner, the Chicago Reader’s media writer, of being the fountainhead of a “myth” metastasizing around Protess and his students. “A member of the legal team assembled in large part by Protess places the myth’s genesis four days earlier,” wrote Miner, “in the form of an Eric Zorn column that began, ‘Credit the Kids.’”

“Zorn went on, ‘They were a storybook team. Stephanie Goldstein, a future law student . . . was the brains . . . Stacey Delo, an aspiring documentary filmmaker . . . was the heart . . . And Laura Sullivan . . . was the guts; the tough-talking cynic who wouldn’t be intimidated by the underclass milieu in which the story was still hidden.’”

In subsequent columns written for the Tribune, at his blog “Change of Subject” and directly in an email exchanges with this newspaper, Zorn has continued to assert his affection for Protess’s advocacy work.

What Zorn and the bulk of the Chicago media failed to do at that time, and afterward, according to multiple expert sources from law enforcement, private practice and the media, was balance its coverage to demonstrate the strengths of the City’s original case against Porter, which had been overwhelming, against the students’ new revelations.

Significantly, the media did not verify the Innocence Project’s alleged facts, which in critical support-points eventually failed outright, and allowed the entire Porter/Simon case to collapse on top of itself, culminating with Simon’s release from prison.

“It’s undeniable in the Porter case,” said Jim Delorto, a former federal agent and private investigator who has contributed to the defense of public offices in lawsuits drawn against them.

“The group from Northwestern put this thing together and they were successful with the help of the media. If it wasn’t for the media, they never would have gotten off square one. The media promoted this case, front-page coverage everyday, which causes the political repercussions in the state’s attorney’s office.”

Delorto acknowledged that ultimately it was the state’s attorney’s fault for “rolling over” and settling the cases, as opposed to fighting the allegations in open court.

Simon’s suit focuses on the allegation that Northwestern permitted the alleged misconduct of the individual defendants because Protess, along with the school, had gained recognition for previous investigations that resulted in convictions being overturned, including those in the cases of David Dowaliby and the so-called Ford Heights Four.

Following those successes, which led to the publication of books and airing of television specials, Simon claims Northwestern allowed the journalism class to be “converted . . . into a vehicle to manufacture cases establishing innocence in order to exonerate allegedly wrongfully convicted individuals.”

Simon’s suit includes counts alleging malicious prosecution and intentional infliction of emotional distress against all the defendants and negligent supervision and retention claims against Northwestern.

Simon’s lawyers now hope to win $40 million from Northwestern in court for tolerating the conduct of the professor and his students.

Lawsuit by Lincoln Park pet store challenges city’s “puppy mill” ordinance

BY JONATHAN BILYK

Two Chicago pet shops, one located in Lincoln Park, and a Missouri-based animal- breeder have challenged a city of Chicago ordinance prohibiting the sale of pets from so-called “puppy mills,” saying the ordinance that is set to take effect in two weeks is unconstitutional and would effectively put them out of business.

Pocket Puppies Boutique Inc., 2479 N. Clark St., along with Park Pet Shop in Mt. Greenwood on the South Side and breeder Cedar Woods Farms, sued the city earlier this month, asking Chicago’s federal court to issue a preliminary injunction preventing the ban from taking effect to allow them to stay in business while the court considers constitutional questions they and others raised concerning ordinances in Cook County and other parts of the country.

Founded in 2006, Pocket Puppies is the first company in Chicago to provide true teacup, toy, and small breed puppies.

“Without question, this ordinance will put the pet shops—which have collectively been in business more than 65 years— out of business and cause financial ruin to them and their owners,” the Feb. 16 suit asserts.

The complaint targets an ordinance approved by the Chicago City Council about a year ago, designed to shut down sellers of dogs and other pets who acquire the animals from so-called “puppy mills” or large-scale breeding operations believed to produce animals amid inhumane, as well as often unhealthy and unsanitary conditions.

The ordinance would require retailers to only sell dogs, cats and rabbits obtained from animal shelters, local government pounds, kennels or “animal care facilities,” effectively prohibiting them from selling animals obtained from commercial breeders.

Breeders located within the city, however, would be allowed to continue selling animals directly under the ordinance.

The pet shops argue the ordinance would not allow them to obtain enough of the pure-bred animals they need to meet the demand of their customers, as the overwhelming majority of the animals they now sell come from out-of-state breeding operations, such as that run by fellow plaintiff, Cedar Woods Farm in Lebanon, MO.

The owners of Pocket Puppies say that as many as 98% of USDA licensed breeders are located outside in Illinois, most of which are in Missouri.

The pet shops claim they purchase their animals from responsible, ethical commercial breeders, not “puppy mills,” and contend that if the ordinance takes effect as written, it will put them out of business, leaving Chicago residents seeking pure-bred animals with nowhere to go except unethical breeders.

The suit is similar to litigation brought against Cook County last year by suburban pet shops and a Missouri animal breeders association over an ordinance similarly seeking to prohibit the sale of animals obtained from “puppy mills.”

In December, Cook County sought to dismiss the suit. However, a federal judge has slapped an injunction on the county, preventing the ordinance from taking effect while the litigation is pending over constitutional questions raised by pet store owners and breeders.

The pet shops and breeders allege the wording of the city’s “puppy mill” ordinance is too vague and essentially leaves city officials free to pick and choose who to prosecute. They also allege the ordinance violates the constitution’s Commerce Clause and Contracts Clause and illegally deals locally with an issue more properly addressed on a state or national level. They also think that the ordinance ultimately does little to actually address the problems its supporters claim it attacks.

Rep. Williams addresses state budget proposal

Last week Gov. Bruce Rauner addressed the Illinois General Assembly to present his proposal for the Illinois budget.

I appreciate and support the components of the proposal that increase funding for elementary and secondary education, as well as restore the Child Care Assistance Program. However, the Governor’s plan also includes severe budget cuts to health and human services, such as cuts to mental health, disability services and other areas which might “save” money in the very short term, but will cost us much more down the road both in human and financial terms.

This might improve the bottom line, but at what cost to our most vulnerable citizens?

The proposed cuts to higher education are extreme and will add significant financial hurdles for parents throughout Illinois trying to put their children through college. The proposed 31.5% across the board cut to Illinois public universities will lead to huge increases in tuition costs -- putting college out of reach for many Illinois students.

Likewise, the Governor’s proposals to cut mass transit are drastic and would decimate the already-underfunded public transit system in Chicago that so many of us rely on. His proposal slashes $121 million of the RTA budget, the majority of which goes to the CTA.

The fiscal challenges the state is facing are not new, and along with colleagues on both sides of the aisle, I continue to look for ways to cut spending in a responsible manner and streamline government services where possible. The Governor’s unwillingness to consider new revenue streams, however, is unlikely to put us on a path toward fiscal stability. We need to ensure our policies grow and maintain Illinois jobs and increase opportunities for economic development.

The Governor’s proposal is only the first step in what is sure to be a lengthy budget discussion. Please contact me directly if you have any specific questions or comments on the budget, or any other matter of concern to you or your family.

Ladies Who Lunch Pick Up the Check

By Ann Gerber

DAHLINGS, wearing red to remind pal Bunky Cushing they were grateful for his annual Valentine party, some of our town's high-profile charitables honored the Bunkmaster at a luncheon at the Tortoise Club.

IT WAS THE PLAN of Myra Reilly, president of the Service Club of Chicago, to reward the Ralph Lauren fashion expert and man-about-town with a luncheon because he had hosted the Valentine celebrations at the Ritz Carlton for many years. Bunky welcomed scores of socialites who wore red and made the event an important networking and fashion-fun afternoon. Thus was born the Bunky Cushing Fan Club.

BUT ON THIS DAY, Bunky was guest of honor and the Red Brigade made a strong statement of appreciation for Cushing's labors and friendship through the years. Color him pink with pleasure.

Chicago's new innovation incubator opens at Merchandise Mart, boosting healthcare innovation

BY JIN WU

Medill News Service

Gov. Bruce Rauner and Mayor Rahm Emanuel marked the official opening of Matter, Chicago's new entrepreneurship and innovation incubator in the Merchandise Mart for digital healthcare, medical devices, diagnostics and biopharma start-ups, to intended to 'get Illinois' healthcare technology booming.'

MATTER, the not-for-profit incubator, has already got its first groups of members; more than 100 healthcare entrepreneurs moved into the open space last week and dozens more will move in in a couple weeks, according to their CEO Steve Collens.

It was built for entrepreneurs in the fields of medical device, healthcare IT, medical diagnostics and biopharmaceuticals who are looking for flexible, affordable co-working space, mentoring and resources with which to grow their companies. Membership costs from $150 to $450 per month depending on the level of need.

The incubator was born under public and private collaboration which combined to raise $8 million. By creating personalized curriculums, workshops and inviting experts to be mentors, MATTER is trying to bridge healthcare and technology.

"Right now, there's just so much lag work involved with identifying someone who understands healthcare, and MATTER brings it all together," said Star Cunningham, the founder of 4D Healthware, a member of MATTER that focuses on increasing patient engagement and changing lifestyle through a web-based dashboard. "Now we have a home. As a healthcare start-up, I am surrounded by people who want to help us succeed and also understand the changes that need to be done in healthcare."

Dr. Dana Edelson is the founder of Quant

HC, one of the organizations first members. It develops an algorithm to send medical staff alerts about a patient's deteriorating condition by analyzing aggregated data. She said it was MATTER that made her business possible. "[They] provides us the access to mentors, colleagues, capital and also others in the curriculum," she said. "To be frank, I would be too terrified to start if I do it alone."

As part of Mayor Emanuel's ChicagoNEXT, MATTER got a one-time $4 million funding from the state of Illinois. They are now expected to boost the Illinois's economy and improve Illinois healthcare system by incubating healthcare start-ups.

"Innovation jobs have a ripple effect on the workforce by creating more jobs and growing the economy," said Gov. Rauner. "Nothing is more important than the economic future and prosperity to the state. Bringing healthcare and technology together, leveraging the resources, the knowledge, the relationship, and the expertise in healthcare, are especially important."

The city and state hope this will become a key contributor to the region's economy ecosystem. "By empowering entrepreneurs in the growing field of health innovation technology, MATTER will create new jobs, attract new companies, and make Chicago more economically competitive for years to come," said mayor Emanuel.

The digital healthcare industry experienced a sharp growth in 2014 and is expected to keep growing in the future, Collens said.

"[The digital healthcare growth] is a tsunami right now," said James L. Madara, M.D., CEO of the American Medical Assoc., which announced its partnership with MATTER last week. "We see the change from dominantly inpatient to dominantly outpatient in the last century, and over the quarters of century, it will change from dominantly outpatient to dominantly home. So physician's offices will be virtual and a lot of digital healthcare will come out. The problem is how do you organize that and make that efficient. We are working with digital community and thinking about that now.

According to a study from Accenture, Chicago is the number six tech destination in U.S., but Mayor Emanuel sets the goal high. "Six isn't good enough. Now we have MATTER, the foundation has been laid to boost Chicago's technology innovation further." The mayor hopes Chicago will become a "hub for digital manufacturing," and Gov. Rauner envisioned Chicago to be the "capital of America for healthcare innovation."

Although expecting to have more support from the government, Collens said this organization would have to rely on its own sustainable revenues starting from today which are mainly from membership fees and corporation partnerships.

Collens said the ample resources they have aggregated are helping struggling healthcare start-ups improve, expand, and succeed.

"We have office hours with investors, partners, people who are all involved in the ecosystem of healthcare. So they are really able to help you," Cunningham said. "If they don't know how to do it, chances are they know someone who know how to get you what you need."

MATTER will hold its first workshop for members in late February, Collens said.

MCA nears $64 goal for Vision Campaign

Last week the Museum of Contemporary Art Chicago [MCA], 220 E. Chicago, announced the launch of the Vision Campaign, the museum's capital campaign to raise $64 million, and that they have already raised $60 million in private donations toward the goal to date.

This campaign milestone was reached with a $10 million gift from billionaire Kenneth C. Griffin Charitable Fund.

The Kenneth C. Griffin Charitable Fund, which gave the gift to fund the MCA's new Griffin Galleries of Contemporary Art. Other major gifts to the campaign include two other $10 million donations-from Helen and Sam Zell, on behalf of the Zell Family Foundation to create the Zell Fund for Artistic Excellence; and from Stefan Edlis and Gael Neeson, whose gift funded the naming of the Edlis Neeson Theater in their honor-among many other donations.

"We find ourselves in a period of advancement and opportunity after marking major achievements in attendance and audience-building last year," said Madeleine Grynsztejn, museum director. "We are now moving from our original purpose to a more purposeful vision. The museum is equally committed to our diverse audiences and to presenting art that engages and inspires them. The campaign is about great art and ideas-that connect with the community and propel the MCA as a leader in the cultural economy."

Over the past few years of the campaign, the MCA has advanced its channels of access and interpretation to be a facilitator between artist and audience. There is a focus on the creative process-presenting artist-led programs as often as exhibitions in the gallery, community forums as often as expert lectures, and open rehearsals as often as finished performances. "The convergence of exhibitions, collection, performance, and educational programs is exemplified by recent offerings such as David Bowie Is, which drew record-breaking attendance and cultivated new audiences," said Grynsztejn.

"At the MCA, we are committed to both sustainability and growth," said King Harris, Chair of the MCA Board of Trustees. "Due to the phenomenal level of philanthropy and support shown by our Vision Donors, the museum today is on solid financial ground and can realize this ambitious vision."

Panel discusses Chicago’s water future

BY TARRAH GIBBONS

For many years since reversing the flow of the Chicago River, Chicago has had a particular affiliation with the water’s infrastructure.

The world is increasingly recognizing that our relationship with water is changing. Using science, technology, public policy, social networks, and investment, the planet can develop solutions that both improve quality of life and enhance economies across the globe. In the future, many people will depend on the reuse of water.

Last Thursday the Chicago Council on Science and Technology hosted a panel discussion about Chicago’s water. Title “Water: Chicago in the 21st Century and Beyond,” was hosted at Northwestern Univ.

The three panelists gathered to discuss the issues and common curiosity about water systems in the Chicago area.

They all agreed that the world needs to better recognize the role that water plays as an important role in energy, infrastructure, and climate change.

This year the Rockefeller Foundation named Chicago as one of its “100 Resilient Cities,” i.e., a global city facing resilience challenges and stresses that weaken the fabric of a city as it grows and changes.

Flooding was among the four stresses unique to Chicago’s geographic location. Furthermore, the so-called water-energy nexus, or the interdependent relationship between water needed to produce (thermoelectric) energy, and energy needed to extract, treat, and distribute water for human and industrial use, is an emerging area of focus at the national and regional level.

Debra Shore, Commissioner on the Board of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago, said the “citizens of Chicago have been dumping waste in Lake Michigan since the 1860s.” Indeed so have the residents of Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana.

The five Great Lakes contain about 90% of the U.S.’s fresh water supply. This is 20% of Earth’s entire fresh surface water supply.

For much of this nation’s history, water was jeopardized by waste being dumped into the fresh water. There had not been much in the way of waste-water treatment until the 1930s.

“Water systems have a function of reality of their own,” said Shore. The job of the district is to manage the water supply and keep the clean water separate from the waste water. Today, Chicago does that about as well as any place on earth.

Aaron Packman, Civil/Environmental Engineering professor said that Chicago is still facing many local and regional challenges.

“Anything we put into Lake Michigan will stay in there for as many as 700 years,” he said.

Packman describes Chicago as an “artificial environment” that has continuously changed over time and which has made it more complicated to remove waste out of the city.

Chicago was built over a swamp [and] the whole city was raised several feet to provide proper drainage.

“The water systems were built to get fresh water in, and waste water out,” said Packman.

Initially created and filled-in during the last ice age, Lake Michigan today is “fed” by streams and rivers. These bodies of water “drain more than 45,000 square miles of the four states.”

Citizens from all four states around Lake Michigan can drink the lake’s water because of these treatments systems.

“Climate is what we expect, and weather is what we get,” said Packman. “If it rains more, we should get more water.” But he then explained that timing is everything. The water levels of Lake Michigan are changing all the time. That’s the natural course of the Great Lakes. When the sun is shining, it is more likely to evaporate due to heat and wind. Packlar interests and stayed out of each other’s way,” he said. Others might suggest that there is little difference between the two local institutions.

It wasn’t so long ago, Simpson said, that city, state and county employees had a two percent “tax” on their salaries, that could be paid either by selling fundraising tickets to their political sponsor’s events or by simply writing a check.

In some offices, staffers literally passed a hat around for cash donations that were given to their political sponsors, particularly at Christmas time. Former Gov. George Ryan and Clerk of the Cook County Circuit Court Dorothy Brown both were castigated publicly for that annual tradition.

Although the Chicago democrat machine probably hasn’t existed since shortly after Richard J. Daley’s demise, “pinstripe patronage” – where wealthy business people doing business with the city get tapped for campaign contributions – is still alive and well today, Simpson said.

He figures that corruption still costs Illinois taxpayers an estimated $500 million a year or more.

Simpson said cities like Sydney, Australia, and Hong Kong have had worse corruption, but cleaned up their act and set examples Chicago could emulate.

“Allow aldermen and their staffs to be investigated by the city’s inspector general if accused of corruption. Don’t allow double-dipping on multiple government payrolls. And allow citizens to sue to recover damages if public officials steal public funds,” are some suggestions he said might help to stem the corruption.

Both Simpson and Gradel believe corruption can be virtually eliminated over time. But it’s not going to be easy, they added.

And the reform movement probably needs to begins in the schools, Simpson said. “You know, they don’t teach civics in the public schools anymore. Some of the privates and the parochial schools do,” but not the CPS.

And if they ever do restore civics, “it needs to be taught in a man explained that we need to be more careful with what we put in our river waters as it eventually ends up in the lake. “With water, we should use more care and think about its future.”

This year the Rockefeller Foundation named Chicago as one of its “100 Resilient Cities,” i.e., a global city facing resilience challenges and stresses that weaken the fabric of a city as it grows and changes.

Seth Snyder, a scientist with Argonne National Lab, opened up his discussion with the question “Where are we going?” He is the section leader of Process Technology Research in the Energy Systems Division at Argonne.

He gave a presentation about our water’s history. He discussed that our fresh water is three percent and our ocean’s salt water is 97% of the world’s water.

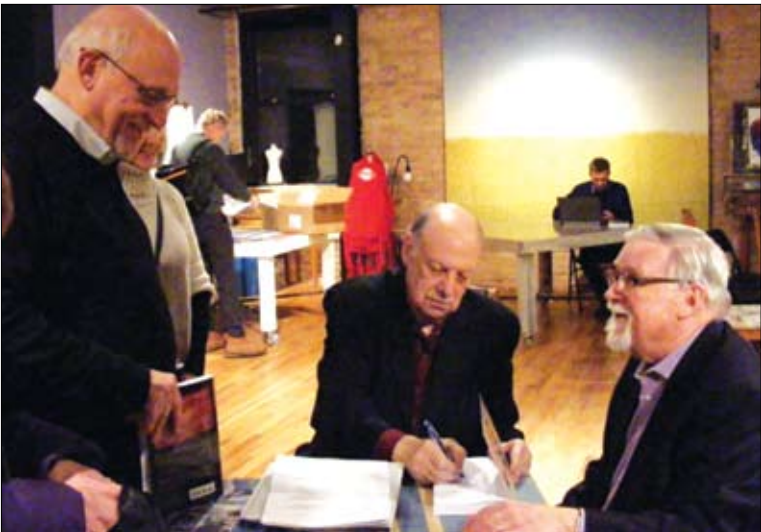

“Water is the new energy, this is something we are recognizing,” said Synder. “Water and energy are linked. This makes water our highest priority, we need in order to survive.”

Synder said we also need a reliable water supply because we’ll need to use it for energy. He thinks water is a critical barrier to sustainable energy in general, and bioenergy in specific.

“I am assembling a regional team to address the spectrum of water issues in fresh water systems including, water allocation, data, modeling, and analysis, sensors and detectors, treatment, reuse, efficiency, and tech-to-market,” he said.

He said reclaimed water is the largest untapped opportunity, one he sees growing from three percent of our usage to 25%.

Dick Simpson (center) autographs copies of “Corrupt Illinois: Patronage, Cronyism and Criminality” while co-author Tom Gradel chats with a customer during a book signing at the Lill St. Gallery at Montrose and Ravenswood. Simpson and Gradel have another book signing 7 p.m. March 18 at Book Cellar, 4736 N. Lincoln Ave.

In some offices, staffers literally passed a hat around for cash donations that were given to their political sponsors, particularly at Christmas time. Former Gov. George Ryan and Clerk of the Cook County Circuit Court Dorothy Brown both were castigated publicly for that annual tradition.

different way than when I was in school,” Gradel said. “They need to promote civic engagement. Get them involved in the political process – helping to get a candidate elected. What do you really know by learning who the 15th president was?”

Another step is to use public funding to help match small contributions, Simpson and Gradel agreed. “They do it in places like New York and Maine. We don’t. That’s one of the reasons so many people are locked out,” said Simpson. He conceded, however, that it would still be difficult keeping the “Super PAC” money out.

While time limits on campaigns “wasn’t one of the reforms we listed, it could also be done,” Simpson said.

Even seemingly-solidly entrenched incumbents have to worry about feeding their campaign coffers, said Simpson. “If you are a Congressman, you’ll spend about a quarter of your time raising money, not at work writing laws or fighting for your positions.”

That’s a big change since the early 1970s when Simpson won his first aldermanic campaign with only $25,000. “I won my second term with $35,000. And by the time I ran for Congress, I raised $250,000 in two separate campaigns. And that wasn’t enough.”

Even so, “if I had another $100,000 and 100 more volunteers I would have defeated Dan Rostenkowski,” he said.

“We hope the book’s content and message will alert voters to look closely at the candidates,” Simpson said. “What’s their ethical track record?” Are they part of a corrupt machine or political organization? Who gives them campaign money?”

The other states ahead of us on the corruption index, incidentally, are New York and California, based on the number of convictions, Simpson said.

“But Louisiana is also a legitimate competitor,” he added.

America's got murder

Crime and horror expo stalks Chicago Hotel

Letters, paintings, hobbycraft created primarily by America's serial killers

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY JIM MATUSIK

Penny the Python is resting comfortably on the back of six foot long Otis the Alligator. Otis has been soaking in a hotel bathtub all night and is perfectly content on his swath of hotel carpet. Across the aisle Kane Hodder who has seared his way into many nightmares as Jason in the "Friday The 13th" movie series gleefully signs autographs and poses for fan photo's.

Welcome to The Mad Mobster Expo that unleashed itself onto Chicago for three days earlier this month at the Hilton Chicago Hotel.

It was a monstrous convention, bringing a world- class genre of celebrities, vendors, and crime specialists together here for the first time and giving locals a chance to meet their favorite like minded madmen.

Joe Moe, one of the principal producers of the event explained, "Horror fans and true crime fans aren't that far removed from each other because many horror movies are based on the troubled and tragic real life events that have always fascinated us."

Besides being a die- hard horror fan, Moe is involved in many other projects. He is a film director, designer of "Dark Rides" for international theme parks and writer of the "Profiles in History" catalog, a world famous auction house in Los Angeles. "We have auctioned off everything from Ghandi's letters to Dorothy's ruby slippers to Captain America's motorcycle from Easy Rider," he says. "Each year for three months I have the most interesting collection in the world, and then its gone."

Besides vendors and actors, the expo has a heady list of panel discussions always going on. Ranging from JFK assassination conspiracy theories to serial killer culture with local award winning independent filmmaker John Borowski. His Historical Horror Trilogy, the most popular of which is about Chicago's own H.H. Holmes of "Devil in a White City" fame, focuses on late 19th century and early 20th century serial killers in real life re-enactments that have a highly realistic creep factor.

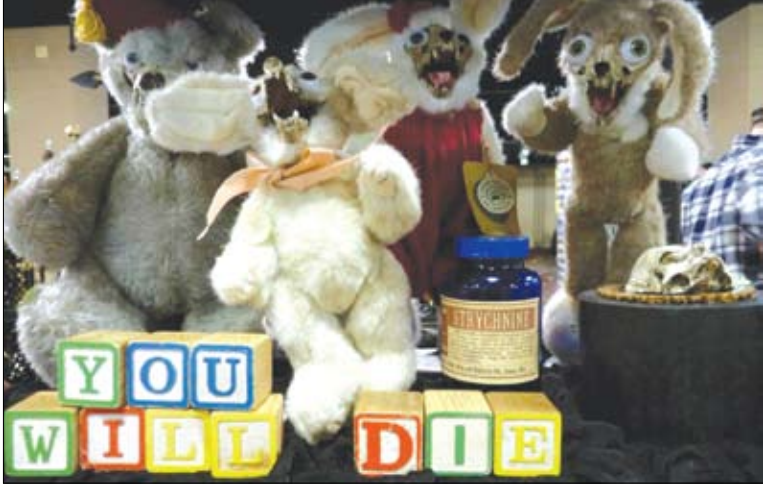

Other criminal greats in attendance, at least in letters and clothing fragments, were Bonnie and Clyde, who became the Robin Hoods of bank robbers here in the mid 1930s.

In 1934 Clyde Barrow wrote a humorous and charming letter to the Ford Motor Co., which was on display.

*Dear Sir,
While I still have got breath in my lungs, I will tell you what a dandy car you make. I have drove Ford exclusively when I could get away with one.
For sustained speed and freedom from trouble, the Ford has got every other car skinned, and even if my business hasn't been strictly legal, it don't hurt anything to tell* you what a fine car you've got in the V 8.

*Yours Truly,
Clyde Champion Barrow*

Keeping company with Bonnie & Clyde is the macabre collection of letters, paintings, and hobbycraft created primarily by American serial killers. The collector, William Harder, started out as a pen pal to many of these dark souls, and then began to visit them in prison to increase his collections. Despite frequent criticism from victim advocacy groups, you can still view the material at www.murderauction.com. Things like a macramé white tarantula with a black swastika created by Charles Manson are truly not for every taste.

Retired FBI special agent Virginia Curry was present for panel discussions and casual crime chats. In her 27 years as an undercover agent she specialized in Art Crimes, and many of her high profile cases have been chronicled in books such as "Chasing Aphrodite," and "Circle of Greed." She helped solve the theft of "Madonna's Marital Memento," a collaborative piece of artwork created by Andy Warhol and Keith Haring that Madonna received when she married Sean Penn. This led to the conviction of a museum director for the first time in U.S. History.

And Curry was also offering free fingerprinting for children!

This fascinating phantasmagoria of photo op pythons, gators and tarantulas, from Grim Reaper reptiles and playfully attractive zombies like Megan Amberly from BreathingcanvasFX.com made this expo one to remember. "We make a monster out of anyone who wants to be one," says Amberly.

"We aren't a carnival that flies into town to make a buck and then leaves" says Moe. We are more interested in bringing fandom together. Horror and crime have always related to the misfits, and this culture has forever fascinated outsiders. We are fans first, horror fans from way back, and we are here to stay."

Author offers ways to build a business, grow an audience

Michael McCallister, coauthor of "Build Your Author Platform: A Literary Agent's Guide to Growing Your Audience in 14 Steps," will provide technical marketing tips for writers during a program at 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 10, in room 4A of the Gratz Center, 126 E. Chestnut St.

Organizers say much of McCallister's advice can be adapted by writers who haven't published a book but who want to build their client base independently using social networking sites and blogs.

The evening will begin with a networking event at 5 p.m. Admission is free for Independent Writers of Chicago members; cost is $15 for others and $10 if pre-registered online.

Following the presentation, attendees are invited to a nearby restaurant to further discuss writing-related topics or to continue networking.

Discounted parking is available after 5 p.m. with validation at the garage at 900 N. Michigan Ave. For more information call 800-804-4962.

Luncheon honors women in the arts

Actor Laurie Metcalf will be the guest of honor at the 2014-2015 Steppenwolf Salutes Women in the Arts fundraising luncheon at noon Monday, March 9, at The Standard Club, 320 S. Plymouth Ct.

Metcalf — one of the Steppenwolf Theatre Company's original ensemble members — has been celebrated for her role as Jackie Harris on the sitcom "Roseanne," as well as for recent featured roles in "Desperate Housewives" and "The Big Bang Theory." She has won three Emmy Awards and two Obie Awards, and she has received Tony nominations for her work in theater.

The sixth annual luncheon will involve nearly 300 leaders from Chicago's business and civic communities who will honor Metcalf for her contribution to theater, film and television. The event will feature an in-depth conversation with Metcalf and Steppenwolf artistic director Martha Lavey.

Proceeds from the luncheon go toward Steppenwolf's professional development programs. Table sponsorships are available, along with a limited number of individual tickets, which start at $200. To purchase tickets or for more information contact Steppenwolf's special events department at 312-654-5632.

Area's first Robofest coming to Holy Trinity

The national competition teaches principles of science, technology

A national robotics tournament for middle and high school students will be held 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, March 14, at Holy Trinity High School, 1443 W.

Division St.

This will be the inaugural Robofest event in the Chicago area.

The festival features competitions and events with autonomous robots, encouraging students to have fun while learning principles of physical science, computer science, technology, engineering, math, and information and communication technologies.

Students design, construct and program the robots using a robotics kit of their choice.

Teams, comprised of up to five members, compete in the junior (grades four through eight) and senior (grades nine through 12) divisions. In the "game" portion of the competition, students will work to accomplish robotics missions using fully autonomous robots. The "exhibition" competition gives teams the freedom to show off any creative, computer-programmed, robotics-related research and design project.

Students or schools interested in participating in Robofest can register and learn more by calling Holy Trinity at 773-278-4212 ext 3008.

DON'T TRY TOO HARD: THE ART OF WU-WEI

Employing the ancient Chinese art of wu-wei is now being touted by modern science as a way to enrich life.

Wu-wei can be roughly translated as “no trying.” Practicing the ancient art can relieve stress, help cure insomnia, and make one more at ease in social situations.

BY EDWARD SLINGERLAND

In Trying Not to Try: The Ancient Chinese Art and Modern Science of Spontaneity (Crown Publishers, 2014), author Edward Slingerland introduces the basics of the Chinese art of wu-wei, an integral component of Taosim. Through tales filled with wit and clarity, Slingerland melds Eastern thought and modern scientific research to illuminate how to live happier, spontaneous and authentic lives. This excerpt provides examples of how elusive spontaneity and letting go are in modern society.

There is a wonderful game at my local science museum called Mindball. Two players sit at opposite ends of a long table. Each wears a headband equipped with electrodes, designed to pick up general patterns of electrical activity on the surface of the brain. Between the players is a metal ball. The goal is to mentally push this ball all the way to the other end of the table, and the player who does so first wins. The motive force—measured by each player’s electrodes, and conveyed to the ball by a magnet hidden under the table—is the combination of alpha and theta waves produced by the brain when it’s relaxed: the more alpha and theta waves you produce, the more force you mentally exert on the ball. Mindball is a contest of who can be the most calm. It’s fun to watch. The players visibly struggle to relax, closing their eyes, breathing deeply, adopting vaguely yogic postures. The panic they begin to feel as the ball approaches their end of the table is usually balanced out by the over-eagerness of their opponent, both players alternately losing their cool as the big metal ball rolls back and forth. You couldn’t wish for a better, more condensed illustration of how difficult it is to try not to try.

THE ART OF WU-WEI

In our culture, the benefit of not trying too hard—of “going with the flow” or “being in the zone”—has long been appreciated by artists. The jazz great Charlie Parker says, “Don’t play the saxophone. Let it play you.” This same openness is also crucial in acting and other performing arts, which rely on spontaneity and effortless responsiveness. A stand-up comedian who is not in the zone is not funny, and an actor who is not fully inhabiting his or her role comes across as fake. Explaining how to prepare for a role, actor Michael Caine cautions that simply memorizing the script and trying to act it out step by step never works; the only way to bring it off authentically is to not try to remember it. “You must be able to stand there not thinking of that line. You take it off the other actor’s face. He is presumably new-minting the dialogue as if he himself just thought of it by listening and watching, as if it were all new to him, too. Otherwise, for your next line, you’re not listening and not free to respond naturally, to act spontaneously.”

Getting the mind to shut off and allow the body to do its thing is a challenge. An even bigger problem—one we encounter much more often—is getting your mind to let go of itself. This is the central problem in Mindball, where you can win the game only by relaxing, which means that you can win only if you don’t try to win. In our everyday lives, this tension is perhaps most intensely distilled in the throes of insomnia. You have a big meeting tomorrow and need to be at the top of your game, so you go to bed early and try to relax into sleep, only to find yourself tortured by incessant thoughts, helpless in the grip of the restless monkey-brain. Counting sheep makes it worse, no position seems comfortable; you feel in your bones how tired you really are, but how do you make your brain shut off? RELAX! you think, but it’s no use.

Insomnia is a fairly simple case, but the problem also manifests itself in more complex—typically social—situations, where the impact is far greater. Consider dating. Anyone who has ever been single is familiar with the “never rains but it pours” phenomenon: you can sometimes go for long periods of being miserably alone, desperately trying to meet someone but having absolutely no luck. Then something happens, an encounter occurs, you go out, you have a great time, and suddenly it’s raining women or men. Attractive potential partners smile at you on the street and strike up conversations. The previously inaccessible beauty at the video store counter—who in the midst of your dry stretch would never even make eye contact with you—suddenly shows an interest in your predilection for Wim Wenders films, and the next thing you know you have plans for that Friday to watch Wings of Desire and eat takeout food. You sniff your clothes trying to detect any special pheromones you might be emitting, but if the phenomenon is biochemically based your senses are too dull to detect it. Bathing appears to have no negative effect.

Everyone enjoys these periods of deluge, but once you’re back in a dry spell the pattern seems wasteful and fundamentally unjust. There are too many potential dates when you can’t enjoy them all, and none when they are really needed. Serious reflection—and during a drought you have a lot of time to reflect—suggests a possible reason for the pattern: the best way to get a date seems to be to not want to get a date. The problem is that it’s hard to know what to do with this knowledge. How do you make yourself not want something that you actually do want?

SPONTANEITY: THE ELUSIVE EXPERIENCE

For the most part, we—and by “we” I mean pretty much anyone with access to this book, inhabitants of modern, industrialized societies around the world—are preoccupied with effort, the importance of working, striving and trying. Three-year-olds attend drill sessions to get an edge on admission to the best preschool and then grow into hypercompetitive high school students popping Ritalin to enhance their test results and keep up with a brutal schedule of after-school activities. Both our personal and our professional lives increasingly revolve around a relentless quest for greater efficiency and higher productivity, crowding out leisure time, vacation, and simple unstructured pleasures. The result is that people of all ages spend their days stum-

BABY BOOMER RETIREMENT SECRETS: WHAT WE DON'T WANT YOU TO KNOW

BShhh, don't let the cat out of the bag. We Baby Boomers have our retirement secrets and we're not telling anyone. Well, OK, maybe I'll list a few of them but don't pass it on and don't let them go public.

There's no government plot and you won't see us in this summer's blockbuster movies. But because we've grown up in times of great changes and advancements you must admit that we "weren't born yesterday." We've been flying under the radar and our masses have been quietly biding our time.

THE BABY BOOMER TIME IS HERE!

We're keeping up with the Internet, not just the Jones'

It used to be that we Baby Boomers had to have the same or better car than our neighbors, the fictitious "Jones'." Or we had to have a bigger house or our yards had to look better with more flowers and greener grass. Well now things have changed.

Now we are buying the latest gadgets, hosting hangouts, and developing our own websites and surfing the internet in ways that won't let our skinny white legs be an embarrassment. We don't even know where the Jones' are anymore because we aren't Facebook friends. And if they find us we just switch user names or avatars and dare them to follow our web crumbs.

Baby Boomers are getting very comfortable on the internet and we know that those seedy marketers from past days are searching for us, thinking they have the next great thing for us to buy. But, through trial and error, scam and guru, we are learning that folks online cannot always be trusted and we are learning to sit solidly on our affluent behinds.

WE AIN'T NO ARMCHAIR TRAVELERS

Baby Boomers are taking the travel industry by storm; or at least flying away from the storms if we live in tornado alley or earthquake city. You will find us on the sunny beaches of the Mediterranean, the slippery slopes of the Alps, or even the oldest castles of Europe.

Oh sure, we have our comfortable Lazy Boys and shaded patio tables at home but those are only to plot our next national or international excursions. We've gathered in retirement communities as well so that in our numbers we can find help, hope, and health. We have learned that the large family models that we grew up in can be extrapolated in our "mature" years to now include one another. We take care of each other and nothing flies faster on the internet than the troubles of a Boomer who needs help and puts a call out to other Boomers, who can "feel their pain."

ACTIVE LIFESTYLES

"Active" has taken on a whole new meaning since the kids left. If they are still living at home with us, great, someone to look after the place while we're following our new heart desires. Whether we're in the park doing yoga or on the golf course not caring about our handicaps, we're active... we're busy... we're laughing all the way to the "life of privilege bank."

Now that we are able to focus on ourselves we are taking better care of "our-selves." This was a long time coming; we've paid our dues, raised our kids, got the golden handshake from work (or will soon get) and now it's actually about us. Remember all those phrases we threw at you: "Suck it up princess... Grow up... You've got to be responsible... You have it so easy... Why, in my day..."

Our job is done and now we're getting active in our communities, our countries, and our world in ways that we couldn't do before. And to all of those kids who still live under our roof (and our rules) all I can say (still) is, "suck it up princess, your parents are free!"

WE'RE EATING OUR VEGETABLES

Remember all of those times at the dinner table when our kids didn't want to eat their vegetables? But we told them to because we knew that fruits and vegetables are good for them. Well, now we're taking our own advice and are eating better and properly. The meal sizes are smaller and the grocery bill is smaller, but our shopping is now focused on those foods that will help us eat and live better as well as prolong our later years.

Baby Boomers have spent much of their lives taking care of others while our bellies became tires and our eyes grew bags. But now, with both eating and exercising better, we are getting slim, tanned, and renewed. With these, who needs Viagra? There is a realization that our days aren't as many and the end, while not in sight, is certainly more of a reality with each passing cake. So we take care of ourselves to extend that time... too bad we were too busy to do it before, but such are a Boomers responsibilities.

NOT TAKING THE ECONOMIC BLAME

Here's my last secret about the Baby Boomer generation: the economy is not just our fault. Oh sure, as we retire and even have more health needs there will be an added strain on public purses... but there is one on our purse as well. We're a part of whatever economic downturn or poor government spending habits occur just as much as anyone else. We're not innocent bystanders but neither are we naive scapegoats.

Our taxes also built whatever country we live in and, because there are so many of us, we know that many things exist because of the money, time, and energy we invested in creating our communities. There wasn't a hue and outcry as we moved through our working lives and paid our fair share. But now that there are so many of us set to retire, if we haven't already, we are also a part of the solution and not the problem.

I am neither a tax expert nor a budget guru but I can tell you that Baby Boomers are getting tired of being blamed for financial woes we may find ourselves in. Our nature was never one to take and not give back or to not help when help was needed. We recognize our role and responsibility in society and, in these our final years, we will continue to contribute, help, donate, work part-time... whatever is needed so the world we helped create is left in good shape for our kids and grandchildren.

AND WHY ALL OF THIS, YOU ASK?

Because we are retiring, in higher and higher numbers and most of us have the opportunity to enjoy the fruit of our labors... and have the time and energy to act on them. I wanted to provide a few insights into the thinking of a Baby Boomer. Whether you want to market to us, cuddle up with us, humor us, or work with us, these points will help you to see inside the minds and lives of the largest generation on the planet.

We are the Baby Boomers and it's time the secrets of our retirement hopes and plans came out. Oh darn, I wasn't going public, was I? Please use this information against us and profit if you must, just remember that we want our allowance.

WU-WEI from p. 11

bling around tethered umbilically to their smartphones, immersed in an endless stream of competitive games, e-mails, texts, tweets, dings, pings, and pokes, getting up too early, staying up too late, in the end somehow falling into a fitful sleep illumined by the bright glow of tiny LCD screens.

Our excessive focus in the modern world on the power of conscious thought and the benefits of willpower and self-control causes us to overlook the pervasive importance of what might be called "body thinking": tacit, fast, and semiautomatic behavior that flows from the unconscious with little or no conscious interference. We too often devote ourselves to pushing harder or moving faster in areas of our life where effort and striving are, in fact, profoundly counterproductive. This is because the problem of choking or freezing up extends far beyond sports or artistic performance. A politician who is not truly relaxed and sincere while giving a speech will come off as stiff and uncharismatic—a problem that plagued U.S. presidential candidate Mitt Romney. In the same way, a real love of reading, a genuine commitment to learning, and a deep curiosity about the world cannot be forced. Like that most elusive of modern goals, happiness, spontaneity seems to be as tricky to capture and keep as the hot hand in basketball. Consciously try to grab it and it's gone.

IT'S MORE THAN JUST MUSIC, IT'S REHABILITATIVE THERAPY

A major boost for the cause of music therapy in the rehabilitation process has come in the wake of Congresswoman Gabby Gifford's seemingly miraculous rehabilitation from a brain injury. Music therapy helped her regain her ability to speak.

Locally, The Terraces at The Clare on Rush and Pearson Streets embraces the therapeutic value of music and is pleased to have Nikki Gamble, a music therapist, on staff. The Terraces at The Clare provides assisted living, memory support, rehabilitation, respite, and skilled nursing services and has earned a 5-star quality rating by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

Nikki's grandmother was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease while Nikki was a freshman in high school. During the subsequent years, Nikki said, "I saw each stage of the disease. During the last few years, I'd go visit my grandmother and although she had lost her ability to speak, she would respond to music. In fact, she could still sing some hymns, and then, for just a little while, we had my grandma back."

Nikki Gamble, music therapist at The Clare

A talented musician who sings and plays guitar, ukulele, piano and clarinet, Nikki said that she always knew she wanted to pursue a career that somehow included music. Seeing the impact that music had on her grandmother helped her decide to earn her degree in music therapy.

Nikki's official title at The Terraces at The Clare is life enrichment manager. In that position, she coordinates various programs and activities for the residents there. With her background in music therapy, "I try to integrate music into much of what I do. I know the positive effects music can have on everyone, even if it's just background music for a tea party or the topic of a discussion. Music is always a nice addition to whatever else it is we're doing."

Nikki leads a weekly group called Music and Memories, which she said "uses music and a weekly theme to promote movement, discussion, reminiscence, sensory stimulation, and much, much more."

Additionally, she frequently takes her guitar with her when she visits residents. "Some people will sing along with me. These are often people who don't typically respond to other things. They'll even often make eye contact with me or answer 'yes' or 'no' questions while I'm providing music. I have a lot of positive interactions with music that I might not get just visiting or talking with someone. It's a personal connection," she said.

Nikki also makes sure to regularly schedule musical events for the residents. "We have evenings of entertainment during which we bring in outside entertainers. These are always popular events," she said.

Nikki said that it's very forward thinking of The Terraces at The Clare to employ a music therapist on staff. While the benefits of music are documented and well accepted, Nikki said that music therapy is still a growing field.

"People are hearing about music therapy and learning about its positive impact," she said. "There are important connections in the brain between music and speech. Sometimes you can sing before you can talk. Music therapy is becoming much more part of the news now. Here at The Terraces, it's part of every day," she said.

The Clare at Rush and Pearson is a Life Care retirement community in the heart of Chicago's Gold Coast with incomparable lifestyle, amenities and the financial stability only a debt-free community can offer. The Terraces at The Clare, which partners with Northwestern Memorial Hospital, provides assisted living, memory support, rehabilitation and skilled nursing. The Terraces has earned the 5-star quality rating by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. The Clare is owned by Chicago Senior Care and managed by Life Care Services. UPCOMING PROGRAMS EXPLORE SENIOR SERVICES

"ANSWERS TO AGING" AT CENTER FOR LIFE & LEARNING

On Tuesday, April 14, an "Answers to Aging" panel program by senior services professionals will provide information on planning for the aging process. Topics covered will include:

- Legal documents needed to maintain control of health decisions
- Signs to look for when an in-home care giver might be needed
- What types of senior living options are available in the area
- How to structure investments to account for the costs involved
- What is covered by Medicare and what other options are available.

This lively interactive program offers essential information plus plenty of time for Q&A.

Plan to attend "Answers to Aging," Tuesday, April 14, from 11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m., at Fourth Presbyterian Church, Center for Life and Learning, 126 E. Chestnut St. RSVP to Susan Quaintance, program coordinator for the Center for Life and Learning, at 312-981-3386.

CHICAGO SENIOR SERVICES NETWORK HOSTS

"MEET THE EXPERTS" INFORMATION EVENT AT THE CLARE

Chicago Senior Services Network (CSSN) is comprised of professionals in the senior healthcare and related services areas who share resources and new ideas. CSSN assists individuals and families with navigating the changes that are common to growing older. While CSSN members are very experienced in planning for normal aging, they are also the "go-to" people when assistance is needed for families who are facing challenging situations.

Please join CSSN for an informal event to pick the brains of experts in the field of aging. Come enjoy the view from the 53rd floor of The Clare and learn about options for you and your family.

The event will be held April 29, from 5:30 p.m. - 7:30 p.m., at The Clare, 55 E. Pearson Street. Complimentary valet parking is available.

Space is limited. To RSVP, call Karen Hytrek at Chicago Senior Services Network at 773-262-0734.

NEW! MEMOIRS & MORE OFFERS HELP CAPTURING THE MEMORIES OF A LIFETIME

Long-time multi-award-winning freelance writer Catherine A. Rategan has now refocused from the business world to the world of memoirs. As of January 1 she's available to help those who want to capture their memories but aren't sure how to get started.

"I'm eager to help individuals tell their story," says Rategan. "I'm moving beyond a 35-year career in the business world and am now eager to work one-on-one in the garden of memoirs." She promises that—from a few pages, to a chapter, to a book, even a PowerPoint or a video or film script—she can help capture personal memories so they can live on for generations.

Rategan listens carefully and works closely with her memoir clients to answer a few carefully chosen questions, guiding them through the process of saving and polishing their words. The result can be a family heirloom, rich in value and cherished for generations to come.

POST-50 BODY IMAGE REALITY CHECK

If we are to be brutally honest, few of us get to this place without having some bit of trepidation about how we look, or how our bodies feel and perform. Even the most fit 50-plus woman or man you see is experiencing the relentless effects of aging. It's inevitable. Whether it's cellulite, wrinkles, or your breasts entering a new ZIP Code, it's life and a natural progression.

Let's be honest... Those 50, 60 and 70-year-old women we see in magazines who are stunning and look like their high school yearbook photo probably have the means and opportunity to spend most all their time and attention on their bodies; have enough money to hire a personal trainer or get it nipped, tucked or rolled out whenever necessary, and maintain the desire and drive to do so.

Yes, Christie Brinkley is absolutely beautiful, but don't fool yourself for a minute thinking it doesn't take almost every minute of every day of her life to stay that way along with a budget that most of us can't even grasp. So how to maintain a positive and healthy post-50 body image among all the phony baloney?

First, be healthy! Smoking is the kiss of death for youthful skin. Sitting behind a desk too much can be the harbinger of a sedentary lifestyle that leads to listlessness and weight gain. Keep moving... and think about some strength training. It's the perfect exercise for the post-50 body and mind!

Embrace your strengths. Instead of focusing just on how your body looks, focus on what your body can do! Women like Susan Sarandon who are not the stick-thin model type, but are considered to be attractive, healthy and, yes, sexy. Are you "the girl with the hair"? Athletic in build? Got the legs of a 30-year old? Able to swim like a fish or hit the speed bag like a pro? Work it.

Leverage your intellect. You're a brilliant human being with a wealth of unique experiences that are truly priceless. Tap that.

Get outside of yourself... remember, your body includes your mind, heart and soul. Keep your eyes open in your community. There's likely someone whose confidence is waning because things aren't working out. Volunteer, be a role model, share your experience with others.

Our bodies age. It's that simple. It doesn't mean you have to roll over and "let yourself go." If you want to get work done, by all means do it! But don't agonize over the fact that you've made it this far. Every single wrinkle, every little change that we think of as imperfections are all proof of life. Enjoy what you have... the beauty is already there.

2015 PERCY GRAINGER WIND BAND FESTIVAL

Music Celebrations International has announce the 6th annual Percy Grainger Wind Band Festival, commemorating the compositions of Percy Aldridge Grainger – one of the most influential composers of wind ensemble music in history. The event will take place on March 7 in one of the world's premier concert halls, Orchestra Hall at Symphony Center, home of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The festival features elite high school and college ensembles from across the U.S. and Canada. Dennis M. Layendecker, former Commander and Music Director of The U.S. Air Force Band, and current Director of the George Mason Univ. School of Music, will conduct the event.

Australian-born Grainger (1882-1961), who left his home country and spent much of his life in both England the U.S., played a prominent role in the revival of British folk songs in the early 20th century. His wind ensemble masterpiece, Lincolnshire Posy (1937) features material from six different folk songs, and is a prime example of this type of revival.

Tickets are required for both events, and may be ordered free of charge at www.grainger-bandfestival.org. Reserved seating is available for groups of 20 or more. for more information call Music Celebrations International at 800-395-2036.

OLDER ADULTS NOW PLAN FOR ROBUST LATER LIVES

As adults enter their 50s, they face the realization that they probably have 30 or more years of life ahead of them and it is time to think about how they want to spend this next stage of their lives. For some, this has meant starting their own business.

For the past eight years, people aged 50-65 have been the fastest-growing group of new business owners in the U.S. – a trend mirrored in Canada and the U.K. In 2014, more than 25% of all new businesses were managed by someone over 50.

Now Lincoln Park Village has teamed up with Jeff Williams, an expert on starting a business after 50 to present "I'm Over 50": Is Being My Own Boss Right for Me?" 5:30 p.m. Thursday, March 12, at the Church of the Three Crosses, 333. W. Wisconsin St.

The event is sponsored by Lincoln Park Village, an innovative, not-for profit membership organization that creates new ways for older adults to thrive, to contribute and make the most out of life after 50. This event is the second in the Village's new series of planning presentations and workshops designed for older adults as they begin to compose a later life.

Jeff Williams is CEO of Arlington Heights-based Bizstarters.com and has 26 years experience in starting businesses from scratch.

To register for the event online, visit www.lincolnparkvillage.org/event/im-over-50-is-being-my-own-boss-right-for-me/ or call 773-248-8700. The event is free for Village members and $10 for guests.

15TH ANNUAL SENIOR HEALTH FAIR - SAVE THE DATE

Ald. Harry Osterman's [48th] 15th annual Senior Health Fair will be held Monday, March 16, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Broadway Armory, 5917 N. Broadway (at Thorndale).

The free fair will feature a variety of providers of services to older adults and will provide useful information on medical resources, housing, social services and benefits. Guests can get free health testing done for blood pressure and blood sugar. Entertainment, gift bags and refreshments will be available.

For more information, contact Ginger@48thward.org.

0187; 07-10-101-017 VOL. 0187; 07-10-101-018 VOL. 0187. The real estate is improved with a condominium. The judgment amount was $255,911.82.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOMEOWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on January 6, 2015, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on April 10, 2015, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive - 24th Floor, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate: LOT 6 (EXCEPT THE NORTH 20 FEET THEREOF) AND LOT 7 IN BLOCK 7 IN W.F. KAISER AND COMPANY'S FAIRLAND SUBDIVISION OF THE EAST HALF OF THE NORTH-EAST QUARTER OF THE SOUTHWEST QUARTER AND OF THE NORTHWEST QUARTER OF THE SOUTHEAST QUARTER OF SECTION 29, TOWNSHIP 37 NORTH, RANGE 14, EAST OF THE THIRD PRINCIPAL MERIDIAN, IN COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Commonly known as 12420 S. ELIZABETH STREET, Calumet Park, IL 60627
Property Index No. 25-29-311-045-0000 VOL. 0036. The real estate is improved with a single family residence. The judgment amount was $156,367.66.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOME-OWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on September 17, 2014, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on March 30, 2015, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive - 24th Floor, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate: LOTS 87, 88 AND 89 (EXCEPT THE EAST 20 FEET THEREOF) IN BLOCK 16 IN JOHN F. EBERHART'S SUBDIVISION OF THE NORTHEAST 1/4 OF SECTION 23, TOWNSHIP 38 NORTH, RANGE 13, EAST OF THE THIRD PRINCIPAL MERIDIAN, IN COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Commonly known as 3222 W. MARQUETTE RD., Chicago, IL 60629

Property Index No. 19-23-231-053-0000 VOL. 0401. The real estate is improved with a single family residence. The judgment amount was $369,095.17.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOMEOWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

SKYLINE

Residents of the 2nd Ward offered perhaps the biggest electoral questions on the North Side as six contenders fought for Ald. Robert Fioretti's soon-to-be-vacated 2nd Ward seat after his own home was gerrymandered out of his own ward, leaving him homeless in City Council.

against Ald. Smith's ham-handed handling of the Lincoln Elementary middle school expansion and Children's Memorial Hosp. site redevelopment.

Ald. Smith, who recently took a lot of heat for the fact she has a very lucrative side job with an arts foundation, currently sits on six City Council Committees: Workforce Development and Audit; Transportation and Public Way; Special Events, Cultural Affairs, and Recreation; Human Relations; Committees, Rules, and Ethics; and Economic, Capital, and Technology Development.
