North Side pols at the forefront to legalize, tax marijuana

Two bills would increase state revenue and allow for home grown

STORY BY BOB KITSOS

Legislation to change some of the state's rigid marijuana regulations, and help salvage Illinois's struggling medical marijuana industry by allowing recreational drug use, was introduced late last month on two fronts.

State Rep. Kelly Cassidy (14th) filed an amendment to House Bill 2353 that would legalize people 21 and older to buy and consume cannabis. Under the legislation, it would then be taxed and regulated like alcohol.

The bill allows for the purchase of marijuana from a licensed retail facility. Becoming one of those retail facilities, or a growing/cultivation facility, will require a rigorous licensing process to be determined by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health. This mirrors the current framework for medical marijuana, which businesses have had no problem operating within.

The bill stipulates that Illinois residents over 21 will be able to grow up to five plants on their private property, but they have to do so away from public view and with safety precautions to prevent anyone under 21 from accessing the plants. Also, they would be prohibited from selling anything they grow. It would be for private consumption (or free transfer to other adults) only, much like home-brewed beer, according to Rep. Cassidy.

Senator Heather Steans [7th] submitted a bill to legalize possession of up to 28 grams of marijuana for Illinois residents and 14 grams for non-residents. "We decided to limit marijuana possession in Senate Bill 316 to 28 grams because it is approximately the same amount that other states that have legalized recreational marijuana allow. Only Washington, D.C., allows residents to possess more than an ounce of marijuana," said Sen. Steans.

For several years Sen. Steans has been working to correct past drug policies in Illinois that she feels did not make the state safer. "Last year we took the first step by decriminalizing small amounts of marijuana, opting to fine rather than jail individuals carrying 10 grams or less of marijuana," she said. "With this legislation in place, I would say that this is primarily a revenue and health issue."

Sen. Steans cited the state's dire fiscal crisis and Gov. Bruce Rauner's $5 billion budget gap and the need to look at all revenue sources and state spending. "Not only would regulating and taxing marijuana create a new revenue source for the state without taxing residents, but legalizing recreational marijuana also has broad citizen support. A recent poll shows that 66% of Illinoisans support the idea."

"We have wasted an obscene amount of taxpayer dollars investigating, prosecuting, and incarcerating Illinoisans for minor marijuana offenses. This bill would be a win on both ends; we would save law enforcement money while also bringing in a massive new revenue stream."

Positive feedback

Both Steans and Cassidy said the feeling in Springfield is generally positive for these proposals. New revenue, booming job growth and

Shutting down Grant Park softball may be CPD and Mayor's political mistake

Decades of neglect: Park issues not new, annual damage from Lollapalooza makes it worse

BY DON DEBAT
The Home Front

After the Lollapalooza concert and the celebration for the Chicago Cubs World Series victory party left Grant Park muddy mess, Mayor Rahm Emanuel and the Chicago Park Dist. [CPD] have declared Lower Hutchinson Field a disaster area.

Indeed fences that have circled the fields since last Summer may stay up until Lollapalooza crowds returns again this Summer to wreck the fields again.

As a result, the venerable 16-inch Chicago-style softball leagues that have competed for decades in Grant Park have been banished for the 2017 season. Some of Grant Park's games are being squeezed into the four Upper Hutchinson diamonds at Columbus and Balbo, and other will be scheduled as doubleheaders at other city parks scattered along the lakefront at Waveland and other fields which already have a full schedule of games.

This blaspheme of Chicago's Game—16-inch slow pitch softball—apparently happened because the CPD is broke and cannot in a timely manner fund repairs to the swamp-like Lower Hutchinson Field, fondly known as "The Valley."

Softball players also are asking what happened to the $155 million that Lollapalooza organizers paid to the CPD? The Cubs paid for some repairs at Grant Park, but November was too late in the season for new grass to be planted.

For 16-inch softball lovers in Chicago, the shutdown of Grant Park softball could be compared with closing the Washington, D.C. Mall—that amazing open, pond-filled and forever green public space between The Capitol Building, Washington Monument and the Abe Lincoln Memorial in the nation's capital—and transforming it into a drag-racing venue for one of President Donald Trump's post-election rallies.

When you consider that tens of thousands of Chicagoans play softball, closing Grant Park—one of the city's biggest venues for classic 16-inch Chicago-style softball for the 2017 season, is a shocker. The move comes on the heels of removing the historic Lake Shore Park Saloon Softball League on Chicago and Michigan avenues in Streeterville. Political

Washington-Wabash CTA project re-opening of section of Wabash

The new station will replace two stations that date to 1896: the station at Randolph and Wabash, and the station at Madison and Wabash that was demolished before work started on the new station.

Image courtesy of Chicago Transit Authority

The Washington-Wabash CTA Station project has reached a milestone with the re-opening of Wabash Ave., which had been closed to traffic from Washington to Madison streets to allow for construction staging.

The new station will replace two stations that date to 1896: the station at Randolph and Wabash, and the station at Madison and Wabash that was demolished before work started on the new station.

The new Washington-Wabash Elevated CTA Station, scheduled to open in early summer, serve the Brown, Green, Orange, Pink and Purple lines that travel on the Loop elevated tracks. It will be the first station on the east side of the Loop to be fully ADA accessible, equipped with elevators to the mezzanine and station levels.

The new $75 million station is fully federally funded through Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality (CMAQ) funds.

The undulating wave form of the station canopies weaves through the historic Wabash Avenue corridor as a counterpoint to the city grid. The faceted skeletal steel and glass structure is supposed to create a dynamic play of light reminiscent of diamond facets and the historic Jeweler's Row.

Materials have been chosen to allow visibility, reinforce the feeling of openness and to allow a visual connection to the historical corridor. The vibrant new facility will enhance passenger convenience, improve train speeds, decrease operating costs and provide accessibility for all riders.

In addition, the construction canopies and barriers were designed to be well-lit and spacious to encourage foot traffic, and ample wayfinding signage was installed around the neighborhood.

Sister Parish, stylish comfort unrestrained for nation's creme de la creme

sedentary style of life.

It's worth it.

Why? Well, fresh air for one, air that is scented heavily with the natural aroma and emollients of pine. And wild flowers everywhere rolling in abundance. Few roads. No traffic. Panoramic views of the surrounding Penobscot Bay. Four dollar whole lobsters just pulled from their pots. Fish just caught in the nets. Blueberries just picked by hand.

So you see people "on island" from several presidential cabinets of the past at church or the grocery or the ice cream shop. A host of Washington personalities. Philadelphia society folk. New Yorkers. Euro-royals and understated writers, painters, the tennis-obsessed, antique-dealing ice-cream aficionados, cocktails-shaking, trust fund poets and well-read dinner guests. When you live on an island with no restaurants, that last category is very important.

So it was nice to discover that the island was also home for many decades to the nation's most inventive and sophisticated interior designer, the influential Sister Parish. Mrs. Henry Parish II, as her business cards read.

A brahman woman of simplicity and vast traditional natural tastes. She not only lived on the island (all through World War II in fact), but she is buried there in the small and charming cemetery of the Episcopal Church.

Her two daughters, known to all as D.B. and Apple, are still residents of the island. You bump into them all over town. Their attendance at local events always added a special patina of historical elegance to the endeavors. No one in America did more to create a low-key style reflecting our "e pluribus unum" passion for elegance and simple beauty than Sister Parish ("Sister" being a nickname from nursery days. Real name: Dorothy).

Color and texture were raised to new levels of national awareness by Sister Parish's career that began in hunt country New Jersey in the 1930s. She had the gift and the intelligence to make the chic and refined tastes of the American gentry an expansive artistic genre, even at the start of the Depression. Her tastes translated into comfortable environments for the most noble and aristocratic Yankees.

Sister pursued themes of understated refinement that captivated the Astors, the Rockefellers, the Paleys the Whitneys, the Gettys and the rest of the nation's creme de la creme. No wonder that she was on the top of Jackie Kennedy's list when she and the president moved into the White House in 1961. No wonder Jackie and Sister clashed. No wonder they caused and endured such artistic drama renovating the presidential home at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

Sister Parish was a force unto herself. Pure American style without ever being self-conscious of it. New York based, she created an American domestic fashion as beguiling as her fabled use of mattress ticking, itself.

She was the boss. Her limitless ability to create an environment of superior harmonies and contrasts was never up for any judgments or second guessing. She was beyond expensive, it was said. Massive costs and expenditures. But it all paid off. She introduced America to a style of self-expression that was natural and traditional.

Sister used an eclectic ordering of space with what was so simple and expressive of Yankee life such as needlepoint pillows, chintz, hooked rugs, botanical prints, painted lampshades, quilts, painted furniture, wicker and painted floors. She loved chocolate brown and pink used together. Long before Ralph Lauren transformed American tastes, or Martha Stewart was telling America how to live, Sister Parish was doing it for her upper crust pals. She was inventing, but in a more reminding sort of way. For her, the revisiting of American country tastes was liked the Picasso Sculpture after it was unveiled. WFMT played a recording of the show that day from 1967. I howled. Hard to believe that "Tete du Femme," or "Head of a Woman," has been in what is now Daley Plaza for half a century. Author Patricia Stratton has just written an absorbing book on the story of Picasso's gift to Chicago, a city he never visited but knew by reputation.

Through her research she takes us into the curious world of Parisian art and Chicago politics that found a place for one of the most remarkable pieces of Picasso's sculptures. The sculpture's arrival opened a door to a new era of Chicago art, modern, exciting and complex.

Mayor Rahm Emanuel has declared 2017 "The Year of Public Arts." It's coming at a good time, when the arts in America are under siege by Philistine forces around the nation. Hopefully we can explore, in the months ahead, the most amazing urban public sculpture in America, right here in Chicago. The book will be available soon at Barnes and Noble and Museum bookshops. Suitable August bash is planned for the plaza.

DOUBLE DOOR: Roving hipster Marisa Klug-Morataya reports the appreciation party for the now shuttered landmark Chi-the secret of her success.

You feel that perception of tradition around the island and a thousand towns and villages of Coastal New England. I always felt it with quiet visits to Sister Parish's grave out on my walks as the sun rose. I am so glad she is in the churchyard, after all Sister Parish was just teaching us all how to be chic Episcopalians with a touch of New England Congregationalist skepticism thrown in for good measure. She lifted the brand names off things and released their true beauty and functionality to the world. We are still refreshed by her unstudied ways and the resulting stylish comfort unrestrained.

REST EASY: The death last week of Chicago bartender/restaurantier Donnie Kruse, whose Stanley's Kitchen and Tap is an Armitage Ave. corridor landmark and watering hole, has deeply saddened many in and out of the industry. He was a hard-working, singular Chicagoan. Peace Forever, Dear Donnie.

GREAT BOOKS/GREAT FRIENDS: This column mourns the passing of Max Weismann, philosopher, thinker, gentle soul and passionate friend of Professor Mortimer Adler. Together they were a team of remarkable intellectuals who pioneered the Center for the Study of Great Ideas. The center was Adler's true posterity. And Adler was Weismann's. Since Adler's death in 2001, the dream of an intellectually revitalized nation through the development of human intellectual ability fell to Weismann. He and Adler were the heart of many absorbing conferences from Aspen to Wye, Maryland, Chicago and across America during their lifetime. Mr. Weismann served as Chairman of the Great Books Academy until the time of his death. He is survived by his wife of 48 years, Elaine Weismann, Managing Director of the Institute.

analysts say these decisions could be considered a classic faux pas that could help Mayor Emanuel lose his next election.

While the popularity of the game may have slipped a bit in the late 1980s and early 1990s, the sport of 16-inch softball experienced resurgence in 1999, when Chicago Public Schools adopted the game as a high-school sport.

Today, there are an estimated 200,000 people playing the game nearly every day on about 10,000 Chicago-area teams, ranging from Sunday pickup games and co-ed leagues to public high-school and church league teams, to "B" saloon leagues and the A softball leagues at Hamlin Park on Chicago's Northwest Side, to nearly professional teams with the Mount Prospect and Forest Park AA leagues in the suburbs.

The problems with the fields in Grant Park are not new and neither is the now-annual damage caused by Lollapalooza. Drainage in The Valley has been an issue for decades, going back to an era when the CPD did still have money to work with.

With Grant Park's fields left fallow in 2017, a politically-correct alternative would be to take this opportunity to redesign Grant Park's softball fields to measure up to some of the modern, well-planned facilities such as those now being utilized at Robert E. James Park in Evanston. Improvements could be paid for in part by Mayor Emanuel's $26-million "Save Chicago's Treasures" initiative with money coming from the Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources' grant funding and the Park District's capital funds.

An informal poll of Chicago softball historians, experts and players humbly makes the following design and construction suggestions:

- Infrastructure improvements. For decades, the Grant Park Valley has suffered from such poor rain water drainage that hundreds of games had to be moved from the mud-filled diamonds to the grass. Therefore, a new drainage system must be installed. We built the Water Reclamation Districts Deep Tunnel and reverse the Chicago River, so we know well how to move water.

- Diamond redesign. Instead of the archaic field layout at Grant Park, which lines eight diamonds around the perimeter of Lower Hutchinson Field, the CPD should draft plans for the popular "pin-wheel" design, which creates clusters of four softball diamonds together. Infields would feature high-tech drain tile, and virtually water proof sand-clay "kitty-litter" infield surface.

From an aerial view, the modern pin-wheel design resembles a four-leaf clover with space for landscaped walkways in between. For Grant Park, there likely would be space for three of the pin-wheel diamond clusters for a total of up to 12 softball fields.

Another benefit of the new design would be outfielder injury reduction because the left fielder from one diamond wouldn't be playing back-to-back with the right fielder from another team on an adjoining field.

- Tournament facilities. For tournament softball, including the resurrection of the Mike Royko 16-inch Classic, fencing would be installed in the outfield, and room for three beer vending stations at the center of each pin-wheel. Thousands of spectators would bring folding chairs and view games from the grassy knolls around the edges of The Valley.

- Multi-purpose event flexibility. Each cluster of four diamonds would have removable light-weight and rust proof aluminum backstops and players' benches. The backstops and benches fit into pre-installed, in-ground collars and would be easily removable to provide open space for concerts and the next Cubs World Series celebration.

To save millions of dollars in annual landscape restoration fees and prevent future damage to The Valley celebration and event

Chicago's game

Historians say the Chicago game of softball was born as an indoor sport in 1887 at the Farragut Boat Club at 31st Street and Lake Park Ave. on Chicago's South Side. About 20 club members were gathered in the gymnasium of the clubhouse on Thanksgiving Day to follow via telegram the progress of the annual Harvard-Yale football game.

One of the young members picked up a stray boxing glove, and tossed to another member who batted the glove back. George Hancock, an inspired spectator, drew a baseball diamond on the gym floor, tied up the laces around the boxing glove to form a sphere and the players swatted it with a broomstick.

He outlined a rough set of rules, and for the remainder of the evening the members played "Indoor Baseball." The game caught on and by the end of the winter the Farragut team was playing indoor baseball with other clubs.

fields, the budget should include installation of Astro Turf instead of natural grass. During events, tarps should be provided and be anchored down to cover the infield surfaces.

- Columbus Dr. parking. Another design innovation should be the creation of vertical metered automobile parking for softball players and tournament spectators

Softball legend Mike Royko, the famed columnist of the Chicago Daily News, donned the jersey of the 16-inch softball world champion Strikers when pitching for the team in the 1970s.

along both sides of Columbus Dr. from Balbo to Roosevelt Rd. Columbus is such a wide boulevard that if cars were to park front-end-first toward the curb, there would be space for hundreds of vehicles. At a meter fee of $5 an hour week-nights from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m., plus day-long tournaments on weekends, cash would flow into city coffers.

- Monument in mothballs. A crowning touch to the redesign and restoration of Grant Park would be rededication and installation of the stone and brass Farragut Boathouse monument that commemorates the birth of the game of softball in Chicago. Several years ago, the monument was placed "in fine art storage with the City of Chicago's Public Art Program," according to the Dept. of Cultural Affairs.

Royko & Grant Park

This restored downtown Chicago softball mecca should be renamed "Mike Royko Field," after the famed newspaper columnist and promoter of 16-inch softball. Why name The Valley after Mike Royko?

In the 1970s, the game of softball was reviving and Grant Park, dubbed "the hub of Midwest softball" with 31 Industrial Men's Leagues fielding 352 teams and 38 Powder-Puff teams in five industrial women's leagues playing on 20 diamonds.

Royko arrived at Grant Park after pitching and managing the Chicago Daily News team to Media League Championships in 1973 and 1974. The Daily News moved up to the tough Grant Park Industrial League to take on some AA-ringer-loaded squads from Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, Continental Bank, IBM, Illinois Bell, Hilton Hotels, and the

A no-gloves game

In the spring of 1977, Royko learned that Grant Park softball director Buddy Haines was about to allow the use of gloves in league play. Royko, a saloon player and a traditionalist who grew up on the roster of his father's Blue Sky Lounge team, saw gloves as a threat and a menace to traditional Chicago-style softball.

He filed a lawsuit in Cook County Circuit Court that argued it was against the traditions of the Windy City game to allow gloves. The judge, an elderly Jewish man who grew up on the West Side playing softball, ruled in Royko's favor. "Gloves in a 16-inch softball game—that's not Chicago-style," the judge said.

new businesses development are all things Republicans and Democrats agree the state badly needs. Sen. Steans said, "My colleagues in the Senate seem excited to consider this proposal and curious to learn more about how legalizing recreational marijuana could affect Illinois."

"The governor speaks constantly about the need to bring new jobs and businesses to Illinois," said Rep. Cassidy. "This legislation would accomplish that almost overnight, while also providing a significant new revenue stream without increasing taxes. We hope to demonstrate to the governor that this piece of legislation is something he can and should get behind."

Projections to the proposed amendment to HB 2353 would bring in between $350 million to $700 million per year in revenue and excise taxes alone, Rep. Cassidy estimated.

As of now, there are 47 licensed cannabis dispensaries in Illinois, with eight of them in Chicago.

"That doesn't count the huge boosts to job growth, tourism and savings for law enforcement," she added. "That's money for our schools, anti-violence programs and social services. If we choose to leave that money on the table, it will have to come from other taxes."

Besides positive downstate feedback, they have received overwhelming support from their constituents. "We have been flooded with calls and messages from folks around the state thanking us for introducing it and asking how they can help," Rep. Cassidy said. A new survey from SIU's Institute of Public Policy shows 66% of Illinois residents and majorities of both parties support legalization.

Importance of this legislation

"As with alcohol, prohibition of marijuana has been an absolute failure. It is easily accessible across the state, but untaxed and unregulated," Cassidy said. "Given the comparison of health outcomes between marijuana and legal products like alcohol and tobacco, there's no good reason to keep wasting money prosecuting distributors of marijuana instead of taxing and regulating it in the same way other states have done with great success." In Colorado, an estimated 18,000 new full-time jobs were added to the economy in 2015 serving the recreational pot industry.

In addition to generating hundreds of millions of dollars for the state, there appears to be health benefits as well. "Researchers are increasingly finding that marijuana can be effective treatment for a variety of illnesses, including chronic pain and some psychiatric disorders," Sen. Steans said. "Currently, our medical marijuana program in Illinois is restrictive, with only a handful of maladies qualifying. By legalizing recreational marijuana, more individuals will have access to an additional treatment option."

And the struggling marijuana industry in Illinois clearly needs help. The budding medical marijuana industry in Illinois has gotten off to a slow and unprofitable start in Illinois.

Enacted in Illinois in 2013, the pilot program in place now allows persons who are diagnosed with a debilitating medical condition to obtain access to cannabis only for medical uses. The qualifying patient must obtain a written certification from a physician specifying their debilitating condition and register with the Illinois Dept.

of Public Health [IDPH].

Early studies pointed to a need to have some 75-80,000 patients for the industry to generally break even in Illinois. Unfortunately, according to state numbers, as of last June only 7,000 patients were registered with Illinois' medical cannabis program while approximately 9,200 patients had submitted a completed application to the IDPH.

More work ahead

There's still plenty of heavy lifting ahead before a vote on the two bills is taken. Sen. Steans will hold a joint subject matter hearing with the Illinois House to present research about the benefits and potential issues of legalizing recreational marijuana and hear from stakeholders on April 19 in Chicago. Future hearings will be held after that.

"It is important that we hold public hearings on this legislation, gather and review all available research and educate legislators and agencies about this legislation," she said. "All of those steps take time. In addition, when dealing with legislation of this magnitude we need to build support to pass it."

She said she's excited to bring this issue before her colleagues in the Senate and looks forward to a robust conversation about how we can open up new economic markets in Illinois by legalizing recreational marijuana.

Rep. Cassidy said, "There have been concerns mentioned about public safety if the sale of recreational marijuana is approved. However, no one disputes the fact that marijuana already is widely accessible throughout Illinois, and there is little evidence to support the idea that legalizing will result in an increased threat to public safety."

Still the truth is that the THC in marijuana stays in the users system much longer than alcohol does, so any user who may be tested while at work or operating a vehicle could test positive for weeks after using.

"Subjecting marijuana to quality control regulations and eliminating a thriving black market would be a net benefit to public safety," said Rep. Cassidy. It's not clear at this point, when either bill would be put to a vote. One media report said it could be as late as 2018.

Skilled care nursing: A ‘calling’ that aligns compassion, medicine and teaching

BY LYNNE KORNECKI

Sometimes a person’s career buds in childhood when a dream, along with a vision for one’s life, starts taking root.

Such is the case with Tami Heidental, director of nursing at Continental Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, 5336 N. Western Ave.

“I started in healthcare as a 13-year-old teen volunteer,” Heidental recalled. “I was a candy striper at the hospital near my house—just loved it and never left.”

With more than 35 years of healthcare experience under her belt, Heidental has embraced working in many specialties, from medical-surgical and oncology, to pediatrics and telemetry units. Now working in long-term care, and with a key leadership role, she embraces education, not only for herself as she contemplates earning a master’s degree, but also for her staff and their professional growth.

“Tami is the reason I’m here,” assistant nursing director Claudette Liban said. “I like working with good leadership, and I see that in Tami. She teaches us to think globally and to consider all the many ways we can take care of a patient—not just with medication—but to embrace other modalities in treating a condition. She knows how to point us in the right direction and expands our professional horizons. She’s an amazing mentor.”

In fact, this team’s dedication to education extends to the general public as well.

“Many families and patients alike are confused by how complicated the healthcare system is today,” Heidental explained. “The terminology that accompanies acute and sub-acute care, not to mention the constraints placed on that care by payer systems that include Medicare or Medicaid plus supplemental insurance policies—it’s challenging. So families are not only trying to navigate what’s happening to their loved one, but also the complexities and constraints of the system. It causes a lot of stress for them.”

She also brings her dog to work regularly to visit with those patients who enjoy pets.

Plan ahead

Because an older person’s health status and independence can change radically after a fall or health crisis, Heidental urges people to think ahead and express their desires to loved ones. This planning avoids emergency decision-making by families that could lead to something the patient would never want.

“You know, it’s really not being morbid to prepare in advance,” Heidental said. “This is the only way to assure your wishes will be followed. Choose a person who knows you well—a relative or friend—and tell them your wishes in the event something happens. This information makes it so much easier for not only the medical community, but also for families so no one’s guessing.”

Advance medical directives

Heidental advises knowing what the appropriate forms are and completing them correctly—and to be sure to tell family members where they’re stored.

Important documents include:

Living will—specifies what types of medical treatment are desired. It can be very specific or more broadly stated in nature.

Healthcare proxy—a legal document designating another person to make healthcare decisions in case one becomes unable to do so for oneself.

Powers of attorney—legal documents that appoint designated individuals to address financial obligations or make healthcare decisions when one is incapacitated. These designations terminate upon the death of the individual.

The power of attorney for healthcare makes care and treatment decisions based on what they know the patient wants per previous discussions.

The power of attorney for finances and property is allowed to write checks for items like utility bills or phone bills, as well as to meet other financial obligations while the patient is rendered unable to do so.

“When it comes to selecting individuals for their powers of attorney in healthcare and finance, I always recommend it to be two separate people, and not one person handling it all,” Heidental advised. “These are difficult, time-consuming, decision-making roles that are often easier on families when split between two capable individuals that the patient has previously appointed.”

Lightening the load

Long-term nursing isn’t just legal forms and patient education, it is also very rewarding. Heidental looks for opportunities to encourage community engagement, such as inviting scout troops or children’s choirs to the building. She also brings her dog to work regularly to visit with those patients who enjoy pets.

“In the long-term care setting, we have an opportunity to really get to know our patients and their families,” Heidental said. “That’s because they’re here longer than they were in the hospital. During a six-week rehabilitative stay, or if they’re living in custodial care, we become like family to each other. In a day and age where families are scattered across the country, that all-important bond patients have with caregivers can make a real difference—not just in their healing, but in their lives.”

Politics of Medicare, Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act

This month's Skyline Village Chicago's Friday Forum featured Skyline's president, Phyllis Mitzen, speaking about "The Politics of Medicare, Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act (ACA)."

She focused on recent attempts to repeal the ACA and replace it with the American Health Care Act (AHCA).

What is at risk and why should older adults care since we have Medicare?

Mitzen pointed out that the goal of the AHCA was to save money, not to provide health care insurance. Lawmakers label Medicare and Social Security as "entitlements," putting them at risk of being cut.

Mitzen argues, instead, that those programs constitute social insurance and need to be protected since we pay into them throughout our working life.

The AHCA would have repealed the Medicare tax surcharge on wealthy individuals. This surtax was included in the ACA to add years of solvency to the Medicare health insurance trust fund. Repealing the tax would put the Medicare trust funds into "crisis mode."

Republicans also called for converting Medicare to a private insurance plan that would provide government vouchers for people to use to pay for insurance. The concern for individuals on Medicare is that the values of the vouchers would grow more slowly than the actual cost of health care, increasing out-of-pocket costs. Even if they grandfather people age 55 and above into the traditional plan, people could opt into the new voucher plan which actuarially separates the young from the old, thus raising costs of Medicare premiums and deductibles. Any fix to this would require greater federal support, unlikely in today's environment.

She explored recommendations to raise the eligibility age for Medicare from 65 to 67. This is problematic as it would eliminate younger, healthier people from the risk pool and put people in that age bracket at risk for being unable to purchase affordable insurance.

Mitzen pointed out that repeal of the ACA would not affect Medicare recipients' access to prescription drug coverage under Part D. Currently 139 million Medicare recipients receive this drug coverage. She cautioned that threats to voucher Medicare could threaten access to drug coverage.

Medicaid is another program in the cross hairs of budget cuts. This program is a federal state partnership that enables states to provide a safety net of health care for people who are impoverished, including older adults who can't afford to pay the premiums and co-pays required under Medicare. In Illinois, one in five Medicare recipients also receives help from Medicaid. Medicaid provides benefits that are not covered by Medicare, such as nursing home care and home and community-based long-term care that would otherwise be unaffordable for seniors with low incomes. Under current law, the federal government matches each state's Medicaid funding at a rate determined by a formula set in statute. Federal spending increases in response to the rise in the cost of providing care to enrollees, with no limit on total federal contributions.

House Speaker Paul Ryan and Secretary of Health and Human Services Tom Price have advocated to give each state a "block grant" based on a specified growth rate, irrespective of the actual rise in Medicaid spending in a state. These limits on federal spending could put pressure on states to limit Medicaid spending. Reduced Medicaid funding puts pressure on states, including Illinois, to reduce services to the most vulnerable older adults. Many of these people currently live in nursing homes or receive home care services that enable them to live in the community.

Mitzen pointed out that the ACA, in addition to expanding the numbers of people who are covered under insurance, includes incentives to improve public health, including for older adults. The Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation funds innovations such as medical homes and accountable care organizations. The Prevention and Public Health Fund provides $1 billion to states for public health and prevention initiatives such as chronic disease self management and fall prevention programs, both of which are important to older adults.

Finally, she pointed out that both Ryan and Price have publically advocated or legislated against social service block grants to states. This puts at risk federal funding in Illinois that pays for Adult Protective Services programs that investigate cases of elder abuse and neglect.

Mitzen urged her audience to stay informed about proposed changes and recommended some reliable sources: the National Council on Aging Straight Talk Blog (ncoa.org/blog-tag/straight-talk), the AARP Public Policy Institute (aarp.org/ppi/) and the Kaiser Family Foundation (kff.org).

Each month Skyline Friday Forums present an outstanding speaker to discuss topics that are both interesting and challenging for older adults. The group believes that sharing ideas over a meal is a good way for Skyline members and their guests to expand their horizons, and to meet and make new friends.

Events are at Ditkas, 100 E. Chestnut St.

Edgewater Village seeks input for community needs survey

BY JOANNE KITSOS

Edgewater Village, a recently formed network of older adults is conducting a survey to determine what individuals who are at least 55 years old and live on the Far North Side want and need to be able to "age in community." Survey results will help the Village assess the community's needs and serve as the foundation for its strategic direction and program planning.

The grassroots, volunteer organization is based in the Edgewater Satellite Senior Center at the Broadway Armory, 5917 N. Broadway, and will serve Edgewater and other North Side communities.

"We're neighbors helping neighbors," said Ginger Williams, a member of the organization's Steering Committee. "Edgewater Village will serve as a free resource to connect individuals with neighborhood services, social and cultural events and volunteer opportunities."

The survey is available in the March 24 issue of Ald. Harry Osterman's newsletter located on the website, 48thward.org. Paper copies of the survey are available at the alderman's office, 5533 N. Broadway, and at the front desk of the Broadway Armory. Completed surveys may be returned to those two locations; the deadline is April 14.

The Village concept began in 2001 when a group of seniors in the Beacon Hill neighborhood of Boston developed a network of support services to help older residents remain in their homes. This effort grew into the village program to support the idea of "aging in place" and, although the model is different in various communities, the concept has spread across the country.

For more information about Edgewater Village, email edgewatertervillagechicago@gmail.com.

CHEERIOS By Billy Collins

One bright morning in a restaurant in Chicago as I waited for my eggs and toast, I opened the Tribune only to discover that I was the same age as Cheerios.

Indeed, I was a few months older than Cheerios for today, the newspaper announced, was the seventieth birthday of Cheerios whereas mine had occurred earlier in the year.

Already I could hear them whispering behind my stooped and threadbare back, Why that dude's older than Cheerios the way they used to say

Why that's as old as the hills, only the hills are much older than Cheerios or any American breakfast cereal, and more noble and enduring are the hills, I surmised as a bar of sunlight illuminated my orange juice.

Clare resident profile: Bert Cohn, reflections on photography

Bert Cohn

Since Bert Cohn retired from his noted career as a fire protection and safety engineer, he has shifted his focus back to an old hobby he had as a boy: photography.

A resident of The Clare, the high-rise retirement community on Chicago's Near North Side, Cohn is known for his compelling, colorful photographs and has exhibited his work as a featured "Artist of the Month" at The Clare.

His love of photography has poignant roots dating back to when he was a young boy.

"I was given a camera when I was 8 years old," he recalls.

He proudly shares one of the first photos he ever took – and one of the few that he still has in his possession after all these years.

It's a beautiful, simple portrait of his mother.

"It was a brisk fall day in 1938 in Stralsund, Germany, where I was born," Bert says.

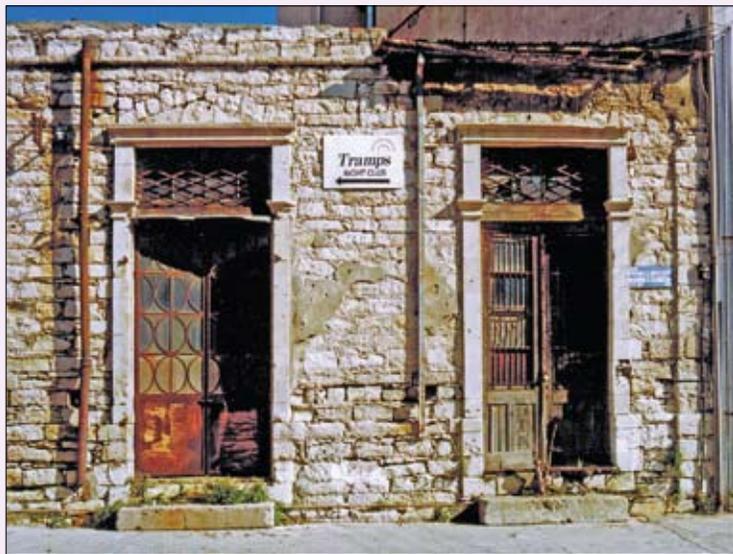

He was very young and did not fully comprehend what was happening in Germany at the time.

A few months later his parents would be putting him and his brother on a train to France to live in children's homes. The Nazi regime did not allow his parents to leave Germany with them. The last time Bert and his brother saw their mother and father was that day at the train station. As they boarded the train with many other young children, his last memory was of his parents saying, "Hope to see you soon."

Bert pauses to take in the memory and forlornly says, "And that was it."

During that time, he was able to receive some correspondence via a family friend in Spain who managed to safely deliver an occasional letter from his parents. Bert and his brother made their way to the United States and eventually settled in Aurora, Illinois, with relatives.

In 1943, the International Red Cross notified the brothers that their parents were killed at Auschwitz.

Cyprus

Cohn's mother, 1938

Bert never let go of that photograph of his mother, the one surviving memory that has become the inspiration for all he does. Perhaps this is why his photography means so much to him and why he dedicated his professional career to keeping people safe.

In fact, Bert had a long and celebrated career making the world a safer place. For more than 50 years he was a consulting engineer specializing in fire protection, safety, and security. Bert received a scholarship to the Illinois Institute of Technology to study fire protection and safety engineering. After college, he entered the Army where he was stationed in Japan as a fire protection engineer. He eventually found his way back to the Chicago area where he continued his dream job with the renowned consulting engineering firm, Gage-Babcock & Associates. He held many positions at the firm where he worked for more than 30 years, culminating in taking on the role of president and principal consulting engineer.

One of Bert's specialties became bringing old buildings up to code to meet modern safety standards. One job he is particularly proud of is his work in Printers' Row.

"The buildings were factories for printing," Bert explains. "Architects wanted to convert them to condos. There was no provision in the building code to do that. I worked with architects and the city to allow them to become residential occupancies and still be safe."

Now retired, Bert moved to The Clare in 2015. When asked if he checked out the building before he moved in to make sure it was "up to code" with all the modern safety features, Bert says, "No." Then he smiles and adds, "I did that after I moved in." And he confirms what he already expected: "This building conforms to current standards and meets all current requirements for high-rise safety including sprinklers, smoke alarms, stand-by power and many other requirements. It's top notch!"

Though Bert likes sharing stories from his illustrious career, what he really prefers to discuss is his photography. He was an amateur photographer most of his life, but it always took a back seat to his career and raising a family.

Now that he's retired, Bert has time to focus on honing his skills behind the camera. He has joined the local artists' guild, entered several juried photography shows, and created a website, bertscapes.com, that showcases his talent and the many photos he's taken on his travels around the globe.

"My photographs reflect the world as I see it," Bert says, "focusing on interesting perspectives and unusual compositions."

He's even created a line of greeting cards, which are sold in several retail outlets, that feature his photography.

And he's not finished yet. Even at 86, Bert prefers to look to the future, always searching for his next challenge.

You can't predict the future.
But you can plan for it.

Bill would delete 'proper purpose' requirement to see condo records

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

Requiring unit owners to have "proper purpose" for seeing records of their condominium association may have been needed to protect privacy but, says a supporter of a bill in the Illinois House of Representatives, it has evolved and now "individuals who own the information cannot obtain it."

Introduced on Feb. 8 by Rep. Laura Fine [17th], HB2627 was among 10 condo-related bills discussed last month at a hearing in Springfield.

The bill would delete language from the Illinois Condominium

Property Act that puts the burden of proof on the unit owner to establish that his or her records request is based on a proper purpose. Of nine categories of documents kept by a condo association, five are freely available to unit owners but four categories, including such documents as contracts, leases, and the names and addresses of unit owners, require a proper purpose for seeing.

Chicago lawyer Jacob Meister, whose clients include 35 condo associations, says the requirement is a source of conflict and litigation.

"The requirement of the proper purpose... is really a game of 'hide the ball' because the burden is put on the unit owner currently to articulate exactly what that proper purpose is," said Meister. "When these records are things that should be available under all standards to all unit owners for their reference and information. The 'proper purpose' standard is often used to just quash dissent, to decrease participation, make for insular decision making, and really used, I've seen, in a very abusive manner."

Meister told of unit owners who needed contact information to raise support for overturning a board decision. They had 14 days to petition the board to hold a special meeting but since the condo association was allowed 30 days to decide if the request was proper, the petition arrived too late.

Instead of 30 business days, Meister proposes a 10-day limit that could be extended to 30 days if the condo association has a good reason.

"Sunlight is the best disinfectant. It's the way that we in a democratic society share information and work through problems. In an association, which is a community, members need to be empowered, they need to know what is going on. And unfortunately, the statute as it currently reads puts the burden of proof on the property owner to show a proper purpose."

Julie Cramer, president of a suburban condo association, says the "proper purpose" requirement may have initially been needed to guard against commercial use of unit owner contact information but it is now abused.

"The provision has become a useful stall tactic for boards and management companies which fight transparency," says Cramer. "Requests are routinely denied based on lack of proper purpose."

But "proper purpose" does serve a purpose, says Kristofer Kasten, a unit owner, condo board member, and lawyer with Michael C. Kim & Associates of Chicago. He told lawmakers the requirement protects unit owner information.

"Our concern is that if you get rid of the 'proper purpose' requirement completely, then that allows unit owners to get unit owner information that they can use for personal commercial gain for purposes that are not related to the condominium," said Kasten whose firm represents Community Associations Institute, a trade association and special interest group that primarily represents attorneys and property management companies servicing homeowner associations.

Kasten would like to see the requirement kept for documents that contain personal information such as names and addresses of unit owners.

"Unit owners don't expect their personal information to just be distributed willy-nilly for whatever purpose whatsoever and that's why the 'proper purpose' is useful."

Chicago music venue, Double Door, last week at Liar's Club received the receiving line of love.

OLE...OLE: Who are the parking attendant and foxy building tenant who apparently fell sound asleep after an in-the-car 'workout' in the building garage? How nice an early rising tenant going out for a 5 a.m. jog was able to rouse them from slumber. That's what good neighbors do.

M'LORD: Who is the recent airline passenger to O'Hare from Heathrow who attempted a "Mile High" assignation in the quietude of British Air 1st Class? It seems the lawyer introduced himself repeatedly to a very handsome former Etonian traveling alone. The British subject, it is said, was making good progress until the 1st Class steward remarked: "You know Sir, he'd be hard to explain to your wife." So everyone returned to their seats after the Reverend Dinsdale spoke.

PINK LADIES: What well-known hair salon has recently urged dueling employee combatants to make peace or move on? The two have parted romantically and have become like Joan Crawford and Bette Davis filming their Baby Jane. Dirty tricks were making salon life dangerous. Now, the law has been laid down. And some well-known Chicago women of the law have encouraged everyone to shake hands. Hopefully, peace has been restored.

I DON'T DO WINDOWS: What Gold Coast renaissance man has dinner once a week with his former cleaning lady to catch up on what's going on back home since his Mrs. threw him out of their very comfortable digs? Seems like no one can soothe him more than the wise lady from Columbia, his sharpest ex-employee.

HOME OF THE ARTS: Inner Town Pub at the corner of Thomas and Winchester streets is a neighborhood landmark. For the past 15 years the pub has also been my neighbor across the street. Owner Mike Gormley was a crotchety, curmudgeon (not) of a weathered Chicagoan. He had to be. When he first opened some 30 years ago, this neighborhood was ground zero for gangs and mayhem. And in the middle of it, Mike created a nest for low income teachers, hipsters, painters, sculptors and students. I got to know him well over the years. He was a charmer and loved my former City Hall connections. I often brought car loads of friends into Inner Town returning from black tie dinners.

I know he liked the mixture of people it created. It was like Paris in the 1920s. Last week the Tribune's Michael Nagrant wrote a touching piece and showed that he really "got" the Inner Town Pub. He said what he loved about it was that while many bars and saloons wouldn't let you in the front door for $5, Inner Town boasted the $5 "Chicago Handshake," a pint of Old Style and a shot of Malort. He saw the magic. My friend Mike died this past year. His nephew, Denis Fogarty is overseeing operations now and relies heavily on the great staff of Inner Town. Mike loved to tell me stories about the young artists he hired years ago and who still returned to visit when they came to Chicago. Anyway, stop by the Inner Town Pub, Home of the Arts. You can shoot some pool and see the giant size Elvis. And my portrait of Mike - still behind the bar.

WHO'S WHERE: Jackie Grimshaw in New York walking the High Line... former NFL Safety Myron Rolle, who walked away from football in 2009, is off to Harvard for a neuro-surgery residency... Sean Eshaghy at RL/ Ralph Lauren Bar & Grill with Shelly Perkowski... author Sherrill Bodine walking in the bamboo forests above Kyoto... Edmund Lester keeping an eye on the Pelicans in Boca Gardens, FL... the Today Show's Mr. Manners, Tom Farley, doing the double doggy birthdays at Central Park West... Suzann and John Gorham entertaining visiting friends while in Phoenix... Sherren Leigh reporting the good news that the cherry blossoms in Washington DC are now in full bloom... Hector Gustavo Cardenas at the Delano Beach Club in Miami, FL with Trudy Cormack chilling the Rose wine. Michelle Krage, President of Star Events, was honored with the President's Award from Face the Future Foundation President Rob Grant, Senior VP at Aon.

HOLDEN CAULFIELD REVISITED:

It's said that dad is always in New York now, aided by his young assistant. Mom is in Palm Beach all winter, where she has a handy 19-year-old pool boy. And two college sibs are abroad in Europe this year for study. So when school resumed after the holidays the prep school junior just came home and set up house with their very stable, long-time family housekeeper. He has a quiet life. A Mini Cooper. Plenty of Marlboros. And no screaming parents to get in the way. Maybe there is such a thing as cosmic justice.

"The problem with doing nothing is that you never know when you're finished."

CPD asks residents to share thoughts, launches online portal

The Chicago Police Dept. [CPD] and members of the Community Policing Advisory Panel announced opportunities for residents of Chicago to engage and share ideas on the future of CPD's community policing efforts in the hope to build trust between the CPD and local residents.

The Panel will be hosting three Town Hall listening sessions and has also launched a new online portal in order to receive the direct input from residents as the CPD continues to repair its relationship with residents. Residents are asked to share their comments on community policing at www.chicagopolice.org.

On the North Side, a Town Hall meeting will be held 6:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 25, at Sullivan High School, 6631 N Bosworth Ave.

The Panel is chaired by CPD Chief of Patrol Fred Waller and consists of national experts in the field, members of CPD Command Staff and Chicago community leaders. This strategic planning group was appointed in the fall to provide a comprehensive and thoughtful report proposing ways the city can engage and collaborate with communities to fight crime and restore trust.

Comments collected through the Town Hall session and online portal will be used by the Panel to inform recommendations for the CPD to try and rebuild trust and keep the city safe.

Last week, Police Supt. Johnson released the CPD's Next Steps for Reform, emphasizing a commitment to strengthen community policing, officer training, manpower, supervision, and public accountability. The CPD hopes to engage in a process to continue to support officers in maintaining the highest professional standards while they fight crime and gun violence.

Upon the conclusion of the comment period, the Panel will review all comments received and incorporate them as appropriate into its development of a new community policing strategy for CPD.

Police Beat....

Police warn of brazen sexual assault in Albany Park

A 26-year-old woman was thrown to the ground, sexually assaulted, and robbed by three men in Albany Park on Saturday, according to a community alert issued by Chicago police.

The victim was walking in the 4600 block of N. Monticello when the men approached her from behind around 12:10 a.m.

Two of the men held her down while the third man sexually assaulted her, police said.

All three attackers then took the woman's valuables and fled northbound toward Lawrence Ave.

Police issued the following offender descriptions:

- Male, black, 26- to 30-years-old, about 6' tall and 200 lbs. Wore a black hoodie and black jeans. Tattoo by his right eye (possibly a dagger).

- Male, black, 30- to 40-years-old, 6'-2" tall, 170 to 200 lbs. Wore a black hooded sweatshirt and black sweatpants.

- Male, black, 26- to 30-years-old, about 6'-2" tall, 170 to 200 lbs. Wore a black hooded sweatshirt and black pants.

Anyone with information about the attack is asked to call Area North detectives at 312-744-8200.

Probation for robbing Lakeview women

Participation in two armed robberies of women in Lakeview has earned Jwan Farley, 20, a cakewalk sentence: Two years probation and curfew from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m.

Police were assisted in their investigation of the two robberies by a photograph of the offenders' license plate that was taken by a witness to one of the hold-ups.

One victim told police that several men cornered her near the 1200 block of W. Waveland around 2:50 a.m. and then began to chase after her. The woman said the men threatened to kill her if she did not stop running.

At around the same time, another woman reported being robbed near Fremont and Grace.

The second victim's friend snapped a photo of the getaway car and police were able to forward the license plate information to other officers who soon found it on Lake Shore Dr.

Police pulled the vehicle over just south of North Ave. around 3:10 a.m. and all three occupants were identified by the robbery victims. Police found proceeds from the robberies inside the vehicle.

Joseph Lewis, 20, of Morgan Park and Donzell Lloyd, 19, of Calumet Heights are also charged with robbing the women. Their cases are still moving through court.

Probation for River North robbery

Two men accused of trying to rob three Uptown roommates in River North on Oct. 17, 2016, have also pleaded guilty. And they've also been sentenced to two years probation.

DeAngelo Dixon, 23, and Leandrew Wallace, 21, were arrested when their would-be victims flagged down a passing police car in the middle of the robbery attempt outside of a multi-million-dollar mansion in the 800 block of N. Dearborn, police said.

Wallace grabbed one of the victim's arm as Dixon went through the man's pockets while pretending to have a gun under his sweatshirt, police said.

"I'll kill you," Dixon reportedly said. "I'm gonna fu**ing shoot you."

As Dixon reached for the victim's cellphone, one of the other victims flagged down an approaching 18th District squad car. The officers stopped and detained Dixon and Wallace while the other men fled.

Police said they recovered $1,403 from Dixon's backpack during arrest processing.

Four other individuals who took part in the hold-up were never found.

SUV connected to South Side bloodbath found in Uptown three blocks from mayor's home

A black SUV connected with two of seven homicides in the South Shore neighborhood on April 29 was recovered by police this weekend in the 4400 block of N. Ashland, less than a half-mile from Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel's family home, according to two sources who spoke with this newspaper under condition of anonymity.

Recovery of the vehicle in Uptown may indicate a North Side gang connection to the South Side killings, the sources said.

News reports have indicated that Thursday's bloodshed was the result of tensions between "street gangs such as the Black P. Stones and Gangster Disciples." Both of those gangs maintain significant footprints in the Uptown neighborhood, where the Jeep was found.

Several hours after four people were shot to death in South Shore on Thursday, the recovered Jeep rolled up alongside a silver van and a person opened fire from the Jeep, killing two of the van's occupants, police said.

Fast-forward to late Friday night. Shortly before midnight, a reportedly intoxicated driver ran over a woman in the 4400 block of N. Ashland and then crashed into several parked cars. Police detained the driver and then remained on scene to protect the crash site for investigators because the woman's injuries were described as "very serious... life-altering," but not fatal, according to a source.

About two hours after the crash, sharp-eyed police protecting the scene realized that a Jeep that was parked across the street from the crash site was wanted in connection with the double-homicide. A tow truck was called and the vehicle was taken to a police impound lot for examination.

Police continue their investigations of the seven South Shore killings.

Two years for illegal gun dealing

An Indiana man has been sentenced to two years in prison for selling 39 handguns illegally on Chicago's violence-ravaged West Side.

In the fall of 2013, Willie Lee Biles Jr, 44, made multiple trips on a Megabus to Chicago from his home in Indianapolis, where he had legally purchased at least 29 firearms from licensed dealers, according to court records.

Once in Chicago, Biles sold the firearms to individuals on the West Side for more than two times the price that Biles had paid for them, prosecutors said, adding that Biles never asked any of the individuals for identification, and he failed to verify whether they could legally possess firearms.

"The defendant conducted no background checks on his 'customers,' required no waiting period, and kept no records," prosecutors said. "These firearms have been used in attempted murders, recovered from documented gang members, convicted felons, and hidden inside drug stash houses."

East Rogers Park shooting Friday

A shooting in Rogers Park at 2 a.m. Friday wounded a 35-year-old man.

The victim was smoking a cigarette outside on the sidewalk in the 7600 block of N. Sheridan Rd. when someone walked up and fired shots, say police.

The man was hit in his ankle and taken to St. Francis Hospital, where he was listed as in stable condition.

TCF Bank robber strikes again — in Lakeview

The man who robbed a TCF Bank branch inside an Uptown Jewel-Osco on March 24 has struck again.

This time, he held up a TCF Bank branch inside a Lakeview Jewel-Osco.

After walking into the store at 2940 N. Ashland at high noon on March 30, the man passed a robbery note to the bank teller and fled with an undetermined amount of cash and a GPS tracking device.

Cops soon found the tracker dumped outside of the store entrance, police said.

New images from today's robbery are shown here along with two from Friday's hold-up.

The FBI describes the offender as a white man with blonde facial hair who's between 25- and 35-years-old. He stands about 6' tall and weighs 180 to 200 lbs.

A reward is being offered for info that leads to the man's arrest. The FBI Chicago tip line may be reached at 312-421-6700.

Man on parole for Lakeview robbery is charged with Avondale robbery

Just 17 months ago Devontae King, 21, was arrested for mugging a woman outside of MB Financial Bank at 3179 N. Clark St. in Lakeview.

Since then, he has pleaded guilty, received a 3-year sentence, and been released on parole less than three weeks after reporting to prison.

Now, he's charged with robbing another victim—in the Avondale neighborhood this time—on Feb. 23.

Police say he and Lavonta Austin, 23, robbed a 20-year-old Irving Park man of his cell phone and then ran when cops arrived on-scene.

Austin and King were found after a short foot chase in the 3600 block of W. Belmont, according to court records. Officers were assisted in their search by Austin's distinctive gold jacket and the victim's cell phone, which was pinged in a trash can next to the duo.

Court records show that Austin was released on parole just 13 days before the latest robbery—also with a 50% sentenced reduction for "good behavior." Bond for the men is set at $150,000 each.

Man tried to lure Lincoln Park girl Monday

An unknown man tried to lure a 13-year-old girl into his car Monday morning in the 900 block of W. Wrightwood, according to a community alert issued by Chicago police.

The girl was walking to school in the Lincoln Park neighborhood around 7:35 a.m. when the man drove up and called out to her in an attempt to start a conversation.

About a half-block later, the man again pulled up to the girl and yelled out to her.

She lost track of the man after she pulled out her phone to call for help.

Police say the man is white and in his late teens or early 20's with dark shaggy hair. His car is a white or cream-colored and may be a newer model sedan, according to the alert.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to call Area North detectives at 312-744-8200 in reference to case JA203667.

Boystown man charged with burglarizing Halsted pizza joint is suspect in other cases

A Boystown man with a lengthy prison record is charged with breaking into a Halsted St. pizzeria this month and cops say he is also suspected of burglarizing several other local businesses—including Ald, Tom Tunney's Ann Sather Restaurant on Broadway.

Police set up surveillance on Philip Kordowski's home in the 500 block of W. Hawthorne Plc. last week and took him into custody as he walked his roommate's dog, according to court records.

Kordowski, 51, is eyed in this liquor store break-in on March 5.

He is charged with breaking out a window and rummaging through two cash registers at Venicci Pizza, 3343 N. Halsted, on March 4.

When police went to return the dog to Kordowski's roommate, they saw a gray sweatshirt with the words "The night is dark and full of terror" written on the back lying on a chair.

Video images from the pizza burglary showed the offender wearing an identical sweatshirt, prosecutors said.

Police asked the Cook County State's Attorney's Office to also charge Kordowski with breaking into Ald. Tunney's restaurant at 3415 N. Broadway and the nearby Revolucion Steakhouse, 3829 N. Broadway, on Jan. 22 and a liquor store at 3158 N. Broadway on March 5. But, an attorney in the office determined that there is insufficient evidence to pursue those cases, according to police records.

Kordowski is currently on parole for a series of burglaries and an armed robbery in the Wicker Park neighborhood.

He was sentenced to three concurrent 12-year terms for those crimes in 2008.

Kordowski's previous prison sentences include: 8 years for burglary in 2003; 8 years for burglary in 2002; another 8 years for burglary in 2002; yet another 8 years for burglary in 2002; still yet another 8 years for burglary in 2002; 3 years for attempted burglary in 2001; 5 years for residential burglary in 1996; another 4 years for burglary in 1996; 5 years for receiving/possessing a stolen vehicle in 1996; another 4 years for receiving/possessing a stolen vehicle in 1996; 3 years for retail theft in 1994; 2 years for theft in 1989; another 2 years for theft in 1989; 4 years for burglary in 1983, and another 4 years for burglary

in 1983

He is being held in lieu of $150,000 bail.

DePaul student shot during overnight robbery attempt; latest in series of armed hold-ups near campus

A 19-year-old DePaul Univ. student was shot in the leg during a robbery attempt near the school's Lincoln Park campus on March 27.

The victim got caught up in the robbery after he walked out of a 7-Eleven store at 2600 N. Lincoln Ave. around 11:45 p.m.

One of the offenders opened fire after he started to run away, striking him in the lower left leg, according to police. He is in good condition.

The robbers are described as two male blacks in their 20's who stand about 6' tall. They were wearing dark clothing, the victim said.

Five DePaul Univ. students have been robbed at gunpoint near the school's campus this year.

DePaul's Public Safety Dept. has issued three warnings to students about armed robberies near the school's campus this year.

- On Jan. 18, a student was robbed at gunpoint near the intersection of Seminary and Montana around 2:30 p.m.

- On Jan. 27, two students were robbed at gunpoint next to a DePaul housing center at 1237 W. Fullerton around 3 a.m.

- On March 1, a DePaul student was robbed at gunpoint as he walked in the 2200 block of N. Halsted around 3 p.m.

This newspaper has also independently confirmed two other armed robberies near the school:

- Three women were robbed at gunpoint as they walked in the 2500 block of N. Burling shortly after noon on Feb. 5.

- A victim was robbed at gunpoint by two men who wore ski masks in the 1200 block of W. Draper at 2:20 a.m. on Feb. 8.
