

Mayor, City Council hold off MegaTIF deals

Is this a bad deal?

The rush job underway to get the Lincoln Yards and The 78 TIF deals done before a new mayor and a more radical and independent City Council takes over leads many to recognize that closer attention needs to be paid to these billion-dollar deals.

Responding to mounting pressure from a diverse coalition of community organizations, aldermen, aldermen-elect, and Mayor-elect Lori Lightfoot, Finance Committee Chairman Patrick O'Connor on Monday postponed the vote on the two new TIF's until Wednesday. It could then head directly to City Council for a final vote, despite Mayor Rahm Emanuel's statement saying he'd like to leave it for the Lightfoot's administration. "Out of respect for her wishes and request, I will honor my commitment and delay the vote," said Emanuel.

But it may be too late for the mayor to stop its passage if City Council ignores his wishes.

For months Mayor Emanuel, Ald. Brian Hopkins and other City Council insiders have been fast-tracking two of the largest TIF districts in Chicago's history to help pay for luxury development deals connected to Ald. Ed Burke and Ald. Daniel Solis, both who are now under federal investigation for corruption.

That need for speed seems well-founded now when on April 2 voters made clear that they want a halt to the abuse of political power and an end to the Democrat Machine politics that has abused the TIF system. This time that 'abuse' would divert $2.4 billion from Chicago Public Schools, parks, libraries and other local taxing bodies for the pet projects of politically connected real estate developers Sterling Bay and Related Midwest.

On Monday, prior to the meeting of the Finance Committee, 10 alderman came out in protest of the TIF deals. Incoming Mayor Lori Lightfoot also said she'd like those mega-deals put on hold for now, but Mayor Emanuel clearly wants those deals done before he leaves office in May.

One of the aldermen, Scott Waguespack [32nd], warned that the MegaTIF deals involve a complex set of financial instru-

Contentious Grant Park Advisory Council elections to be held today... or not

Group questions CPD's authority to proceed

BY PETER VON BUOL

Is there an ongoing coup taking place in Grant Park? Depends upon whom you ask. After the Chicago Park District [CPD] posted information about an election for the Grant Park Advisory Council [GPAC] scheduled to take place 6 p.m. April 10 at the Maggie Daley Park Field House, the organization's current officers contacted Inside Publications and said they are still the legally elected officers of the group and have continued to remain in compliance with their group's by-law, and that they didn't schedule any elections.

These officers insist the election scheduled to take place 6 p.m. today at the Maggie Daley Field House, 337 E. Randolph Dr., violates their group's by-laws.

Numerous attempts were made to contact officials at the CPD, but no one responded in time for publication.

The relationship of the advisory council, which has long been an officially-sanctioned volunteer organization, and the CPD, has been contentious since the organization's former president, Bob O'Neill, was suspended from its board in 2017. At that time, no allegations were made against any of its other board members and none have subsequently surfaced. There are about 200 park advisory councils throughout Chicago.

According to Omar Jinaki, who has actively been serving on the council's board, the CPD has been trying to hold elections to reconstitute the organization even though the existing organization was never disbanded. These elections, said Jinaki, would not have been run according to the GPAC by-laws.

"The first election they proposed was planned to take place in the Fall of 2018, which is outside of the GPAC election period and election calendar per the terms of the GPAC by-laws. The park district then abruptly cancelled the election-with no explanation. In 2019, with very little notice, the park district proposed an April 10 election. This is also outside the GPAC election period. Moreover, the park district never held a valid Feb. 2019 meeting which is the requisite for meeting the timeline for the nominations of GPAC officers," Jinaki added.

While the CPD lists most of the officially-recognized advisory councils on its website www.chicagoparkdistrict.com/get-involved/advisory-councils and includes contact information, there is no contact information for the

"[Councils] meet on a regular basis to support the effective functioning of their local park. Councils promote ways for the community to better utilize the CPD's programs and facilities; provide communication to the CPD on matters relating to their parks; increase community awareness of CPD projects; provide the community with a vehicle through which park information can be shared; and assist in locating alternate funding sources to enhance park facilities," states the CPD's website.

According to Jinaki, the CPD has failed to comply with numerous by-laws of the GPAC.

"In 2018, the park district held meetings to state that the acting president of GPAC had been removed. However, the explanation they provided contradicts the information and account provided by the park district inspector general. CPD staff members who state that the GPAC president was removed spoke untruthfully and unlawfully. The claim was never corroborated by any valid or credible source. In short, these park district employees lied about their rationale for removing the president and their own colleagues in the park district have confirmed

The development proposal includes one existing building at 308 W. Erie St., and two parking lots at 301 W. Huron St.

Community meeting on proposed Erie St. development

The River North Residents Association (RNRA) and Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] will be hosting a community meeting 6 p.m. Monday, April 15 at the East Bank Club, Kinzie Room, 500 N. Kingsbury St., to view a presentation on a development proposal to include one existing building at 308 W. Erie St., and two parking lots at 301 W. Huron St.

The development team will present their plans and answer any questions presented about this proposal.

The proposal calls for a Business Planned Development in two sub-areas / phases: an addition to the existing building that will create a new 6-story building, and an existing 15,100 SF landsite, with a proposed 15-story / 186' tall building that will consist of approximately 153,000 SF of new office space, and contain 137 replacement parking spaces. The first floor will be a combination of retail and the building lobby.

Mob of juveniles flood Mag Mile and River North Saturday, 21 arrested

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Chicago police on Monday said 21 people were arrested Saturday around the River North and Magnificent Mile neighborhoods in the first "mob" activity of 2019.

The high arrest count is the result of a new, less-tolerant approach by police assigned to handle "large group" incidents in the downtown area.

Police said several groups, comprised mostly of juveniles, were given "direct orders" to disperse from the downtown area on Saturday after causing disturbances by disrupting traffic and fighting, a CPD spokesperson said.

Individuals who failed to disperse were taken into custody, according to the department. A CPD source said one arrestee was only 11-years-old and a 15-year-old girl was arrested for trying to punch a police officer.

A second CPD source said the arrests were part of a new policing strategy that calls for officers to apply a firmer hand to non-compliant mobs. Last year, police executives chose to take the path of least resistance by minimizing arrests and coaxing the massive

Will Lightfoot breathe some fresh air into lungs of our larger American life?

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Can you smell it? Spring is in the air. Take a whiff. Like a clean beer glass in a dirty tavern. Or a fresh towel that's never been used. There's no mistaking it, Spring is crisp and clean without the complications of the familiar layered fragrances of the past.

Spring always gives Chicagoans a first class gander at the damage left behind by Winter. You know, the potholes. Florida sunburns. Desert wrinkles and failed political careers.

It's the chance to recognize what survivors we really are. Always a good thing, here on the flatland of the prairie. For many, Winter is a time to head for southern zip codes. So the Spring becomes a time for returning home and catching up.

Winter is a breeze in my house since the arrival of the new furnace last year. No more shivering through the season with the heat blasting away to keep up. Now things are warm and cozy thanks to the technology that efficiently and economically provides superb warmth. Before that we were like Victorian peasants freezing in the dank of Winter amid the drafts in a 130-year-old Chicago cottage. If the temps were low I had to abandon my studio and move my paints and easel into the kitchen and paint by the oven that was usually roasting a winter pie or shank of game. Now even the studio gets sufficient heat, sadly losing its 19th century Parisian chill. But who needs "La Bohème" every day?

I cannot help but feel I am really speaking in metaphors about my city. The details of a cold and drafty house, battling inefficiency and waste, really are the perfect symbolic images of what stress our city is under. But it is also a fitting perception of what is now possible with a new mayor, Lori Lightfoot, and a city council that is fresh, earnest and focused on a new style of political life. Much of the old guard has been sent packing. Off to the Bastille, or simply neutered. Maybe the election was about a change in furnaces. Maybe we have undergone a powerful transformation in tossing out the old equipment and installing something new.

We should have turned on Buckingham Fountain this past election night, it would have been the perfect celebration if the temperatures held. Chicago is good at having just the right "splash" to applaud an important event. Just look at the Chicago River on St. Patrick's Day. That dyeing of the water green has become an event in its own right. It was so good to see Mayor-elect Lightfoot walking around Chicago this morning and connecting with people. Chicagoans genuinely seemed overjoyed to see her and wish her well. She's got a calmness about her that the last few occupants of that office seldom showed the public. She appears to take the long look and a common sense approach to life. Common sense is something we rarely saw used in the City Council. Just 50 little Tsars scrapping for their fiefdoms. Their city cars, their fat pensions and their client lists.

Maybe it's time we stopped quoting failed leaders of Chicago's past who thrived on the idea of the 50 ward mentality where each alderman was a mini-mayor. Seems like all you can abstract from that concept is competition over who's more powerful, better-connected and filling their piggy bank. Wouldn't it be great if the new leadership actually had a broader urban understanding? Wouldn't it be great if when they looked around they actually saw one city? One homeland? One earth to be loyal to?

We all have expectations of Mayor-elect Lightfoot; and she has some expectations of us. She appears to be deep-souled, someone whose vision is internal and eternal. She wants a new urban unity. I think she can get it. She wants to highlight a fresh domestic cohesion. I think she'll get it. I think she is a woman of the world who seeks to banish the self-serving corruption of the past.

The time is ripe for Chicago to become the envy of the nation, once more. Just when things appear to be at their worst in our national politics, Chicago turns around and elects a woman of consequence, humanity and deep integrity. She also appears to have her head screwed on right, a trait currently not required of America's national political trend. A true liberal, humanist, activist. At a sad moment in American history. I predict she will not only help Chicago raise its head with pride, but will also breathe some fresh air into the lungs of our larger American life.

Too bad many of Chicago's old guard curmudgeon politicians are not alive today to feel the energy from Mayor-elect Lightfoot. The really smart ones would understand how important she is. The others would miss the bus. From Ald. Tom Keane to Mayor Big Bill Thompson, and from Ald. Vito Marzullo to Ald. Parky Cullerton, the emotion of Chicago politics often steered the city to the past. How refreshing to have someone who can turn this bus around and head for the future with some intelligence, style and grace. Spring is in the air, like a savory Frango Mint.

Still hoping to catch the Rogers Park fishnappers

Stealing from dead artist is bad karma

An East Rogers Park art gallery is still reeling over the recent theft of a wood and copper fish sculpture that was created by beloved local artist Andy DeLaRosa, who died in 2016.

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

Those who read our March 27 story know the colorful, whimsical fish, which was hanging outside of the Rogers Park Art Gallery, 6900 N. Glenwood Ave., was stolen on March 15 by two men who are believed to be Hispanic. "If it was stolen to recycle, there's about $8 worth of copper only," said the gallery's owner, Eileen Burns. "There are no leads. We're possibly going to hang a sign in Spanish letting the thieves know that they just stole from a dead Mexican artist, and that's bad karma."

Burns -- who is obviously dismayed over the fishnapping -- has been the steward of DeLaRosa's art since she opened the Rogers Park Art Gallery in April 2015 along with her daughter, Eliza, with the intention of providing a space for local artists to show their work.

"The whole idea wasn't to get rich," said Burns, who has lived in the neighborhood her entire life, attending St. Jerome's and St. Scholastica schools. "I didn't get into this for the money at all."

After being open just a year, Burns' daughter had to bow out as she moved to St. Charles. Since then, Burns has been running the gallery on her own with help from two co-managers, W. Scott Wyatt, and John Pierson. In 2017, Wyatt spent over a month refurbishing the stolen fish.

The sculpture was hanging in front of the art gallery, which has featured more than 100 artists in the four years it has been open and has received a lot of support from the Rogers Park community, Burns said. "The gallery does a group show of 12 to 15 artists each year from June to December and then I rent the whole gallery out by the week from January to May for pop-up shows, which is what is in the gallery right now," she said.

Here's an update on the situation, which, frankly, totally stinks. Really, WTF? (that's short for What The Fish?). Several years ago the popular sculpture hung on the southeast corner of Lunt and Sheridan, much to the delight of passersby. DeLaRosa is so well-loved and respected by the folks at the gallery that there are even two plaques dedicated to his memory in the gallery's outdoor sculpture garden, which is next door.

I have walked or driven by that garden so many times and I was embarrassed to admit that I'd glanced at it but never really taken a good look. Well, last weekend I did. It's filled with the most whimsical and fun and unusual and interesting pieces of art, with Luke Russell and John Bambino being the only other artists besides DeLaRosa on display there.

Gallery owner Eileen Burns.

There's also a Little Free Library in the garden, which might be the oldest one in the city, Burns said. A huge amount of volunteers help out in the sculpture garden, but Burns said she is always looking for more.

She took over the stewardship of the garden when she rented the gallery space, which DeLaRosa had spent eight years in prior to Burns. During that time, DeLaRosa and the landlord became friends and when he died, DeLaRosa bequeathed his sculptures to his landlord. DeLaRosa, who was multitalented and did a lot of historic restoration, took a lot of sculpture stuff people threw out, started welding it together and "found object art," said Burns, who creates beautiful wreaths from all natural materials.

Burns has done an amazing job carrying on DeLaRosa's legacy, making our neighborhood a little richer in the arts by maintaining such a unique spot. ("Thanks" also to Erik Archambeault, owner of Rogers Park Social, and Pub 626 owner Colm Treary, who Burns said have both been very supportive).

"It's an honor," Burns told me. "My daughter apprenticed with Andy. We liked the guy. We took a space with grass and weeds and transformed it."

While I was there, one of the artists currently on display, Cassandra Robinson, dropped in. She called Burns a "patron of the arts," and made a good point. "Museums celebrate dead artists," Robinson said. "I really appreciate that here, there's a whole lot of living artists." Robinson's niece, Juelle Daley, also has some stunning photos hanging on the gallery's walls. Stop in and see them. They're great.

Coming soon just to the gallery's south is the PO Box Collective, which, according to a sign on the door, will be "a creative collective and social practice center dedicated to building the Rogers Park community through radical art and face-to-face programming."

And on June 1, Burns' gallery group show will be back up with several artists' works being displayed, such as purses from a woman who buys handbags at Goodwill and then paints them, and jewelry made with recycled pieces.

"I have seen such unbelievable art from people of all levels," said Burns. "We just have such a rich art."

Meanwhile, if anyone happens to see a large, copper and wood fish swimming around anywhere, please call 911. Hopefully, if caught, the thieves won't get lucky and there'll be no catch and release. There may be plenty more fish in the sea, but none are quite like the treasured one created by cherished artist, Andy DeLaRosa.

My cup of tea... are the gorgeous, vibrant photographs of East Rogers Parker Sharyne Moy Tu, and you can check them out for yourself as her photo exhibit has been extended through April at Argo Tea, 6576 N. Sheridan Rd.

North Side election results show a turn away from Chicago Machine

BY JIM VAIL

The biggest upset in the April 2 North Side runoff election results was the defeat of Ald. Pat O'Connor [40th] by socialist activist Andre Vasquez.

Ald. O'Connor served for 31 years and was Mayors Rich Daley and Rahm Emanuel's floor leader who helped pass legislation that the mayor wanted. He last served on the powerful finance committee where he continues to work with the mayor to pass the Lincoln Yards TIF deal for wealthy developers Sterling Bay.

He was a big part of the Chicago Democrat Machine that has ruled this city for generations.

But despite his power, a healthy supply of campaign donations and a negative campaign that knocked Vasquez for singing misogynistic and homophobic rap lyrics in his past, the 40th Ward voters said enough. They - like a lot of Chicago - wanted change. Vasquez won 54% of the vote.

In the 47th Ward, where incumbent Ald. Ameya Pawar walked out after two terms to run first for Illinois governor, then for city treasurer - he lost both - the battle was between civil rights attorney Matt Martin and Mayor Emmanuel's former policy chief Miguel Negron.

Just like in the 40th Ward, the voters in the 47th Ward said no to a candidate connected to Mayor Emanuel and the Machine. Negron also vastly outspent Martin. Mayor Emanuel and his union backers donated tens of thousands of dollars to Negron. Negron signs were everywhere in the community, far outnumbering the Matt Martin signs. Negron won 62% of the vote to Negron's 37%.

Just like in the 40th Ward, the voters in the 47th Ward said no to a candidate connected to Mayor Emanuel and the Machine.

Mayor Emanuel and his union backers donated tens of thousands of dollars to Negron.

Unlike the bitter battles in wards surrounding the 47th, Negron was gracious during the debates and in defeat. He tweeted out after the election: "I'd like to congratulate Matt Martin in his victory in today's election. I wish nothing but luck to him and his family, look forward to his leadership in our community, and am ready to support him as a community member and advocate."

A little further south in Lincoln Park, Ald. Michele Smith [43rd] held onto her seat against challenger Derek Lindblom. She won 54%.

In this part of the city, where wealth and power intertwine, Mayor Rahm Emanuel is not someone to ridicule. His wealth, connections and pro-business policies are generally favored by those who can afford to live in Lincoln Park. At a 43rd Ward candidates forum earlier this year, all the candidates had good things to say about the mayor who did not run for re-election.

However, Ald. Smith did distance herself verbally from the mayor during the forums. She told listeners that she was one of the few aldermen who voted against the mayor a handful of times, which she said earned Mayor Emanuel's respect.

A closer look, however, would reveal that she, like many other aldermen, mostly voted with the mayor and also had a close relationship with him.

Her challenger Lindblom is also close with the mayor and worked as a policy analyst for the mayor. Lindblom frequently boasted about how he worked with the mayor and the unions to cut pensions in order to balance the city budget.

The biggest issue in the 43rd Ward, aside from quality of life crimes, was the controversial Lincoln Yards development adjacent to the ward. City Council will vote this week on whether to give almost $1 billion in taxpayer money to the developer. Ald. Smith has criticized this project from the start, noting there was little green area - a park was added - and the traffic congestion that will result. She said she will vote against the Lincoln Yards TIF deal.

She criticized Lindblom who she claimed was silent on the issue. She said Lindblom claims he never took any money from Sterling Bay, the project's developer, but noted that he took $10,000 from the developer.

The fact is both candidates were not entirely against the project should their demands be met concerning traffic and density problems.

Another North Side race that ousted a tight Emanuel supporter was in the 49th Ward where longtime Ald. Joe Moore was knocked out in the first round by Maria Hadden. Hadden ran a strong progressive campaign that focused on fighting developers who are making the Rogers Park ward more unaffordable. It has been estimated about 70% of the residents are renters.

The Chicago Democrat Machine may have taken a hit, but it's not out. Two other North Side incumbents - Ald. Deb Mell [33rd] - whose father Dick Mell ruled the ward for decades as part of the machine - and Ald. James Cappleman [46th] are still hanging on as they continue to count the votes before they determine the winner in their runoff elections. Mayor Emanuel donated $20,000 to Cappleman's campaign, and Mell has defended the mayor in past elections, although now she says she's not close to Emanuel.

Can Ald. Tunney and the Cubs get along?

BY JIM VAIL

Ald. Tom Tunney beat the Chicago Cubs, or rather won his re-election against opponents who had backing from the 2016 World Series Champions.

The Chicago Tribune called his election “a battle of sorts for control of Wrigleyville between the incumbent and the Chicago Cubs-owning Ricketts family.”

The Ricketts family donated money to Tunney’s opponent in the Feb. 26 election, and then Ald. Tunney won easily for his fifth term.

Ald. Tunney told the Tribune that Cubs Chairman Thomas Ricketts called him after the election and said, “Well, maybe we need to communicate better.”

[The Cubs also lost their bet in the 47th Ward when Community Relations staffer Heather Way Kitzes earned less than 5% of the primary vote.]

Now 44th Ward residents are wondering if the Cubs will be able to just get along with Tunney, or if there will be simmering warfare for the next four years?

Tunney told the Tribune that Cubs Chairman Thomas Ricketts called him after the election and said, “Well, maybe we need to communicate better.” Ricketts also reportedly said they need to “work better,” and “not work the same.”

The Cubs are now the neighborhood giant, and like any big corporation, they like to get their way and not let some politician get in the way.

In 2009 the Ricketts family paid $900 million to buy the team, Wrigley Field and other related assets. The Ricketts family has since invested roughly half a billion dollars around the Wrigleyville ballpark, buying up some of the adjacent rooftop clubs, adding a gleaming office tower, plaza and hotel, and rebuilding the stadium that had been falling into disrepair. So they have put their money where their mouth is.

Ald. Tunney not only represents them, but he is one of them, a proud Cubs fan. But he has frequently said he represents Lakeview, not just the Cubs and Wrigleyville.

Tunney reportedly communicates at least weekly with the Ricketts because of the major construction going on at the site.

“The Cubs have invested tremendously in the community and we know the importance of working with all elected officials. We stand with our community and our alderman, as we work with all our neighbors,” said Mike Lufano, senior vice president, community affairs and general counsel for the Cubs. “We are a part of making this neighborhood a safe place to live, work, play and go to school.”

The Ricketts Family once owned the hyper local online news site DNAinfo.com, before shutting it down in late 2017, which some feel was used as a vehicle to pull muscle in the city when they needed a bit of fear in City Hall to get their way. On the campaign trail Tunney would frequently say the Cubs have gotten just about everything they’ve wanted from City Hall.

The Cubs are good neighbors.

Cubs Chairman Thomas Ricketts

Ald. Tom Tunney

They have created and maintained 1,000s of jobs, invested heavily in the community, provide neighborhood security since the local police are short-handed, won a World Series and lavished millions in donations into dozens of community and school projects.

Tunney says the Cubs are upset that they didn’t get subsidies to fix up the park that most team owners expect these days from cash-strapped government budgets.

Many private stadiums have been publicly financed after threats of leaving town, including the venues the Bears and White Sox use.

Tunney fought against adding more night games and opposed a pedestrian bridge over Clark St. from the hotel to the park. He worked to limit the hours of operation for the Cubs owned outdoor plaza, that he believed could lead to more neighborhood congestion and put local bars out of business.

While the Cubs still got their changes approved by the city, and Tunney praised it, he did infamously say he would “be up [their] butt every day” if the Cubs didn’t honor their commitments to the Wrigleyville residents.

Prior to the last election Laura Ricketts accused Tunney of being a rubber stamp for the mayor, blasted him for voting for the disastrous parking meter sale and police misconduct settlements in a letter to Crain’s.

Tunney said it’s not easy being the alderman in Lakeview, especially when facing a sports behemoth in his backyard and balancing that against his other neighborhood interests.

“What I do know is that I work hard for this community, I balance a lot of competing interests and I’m comfortable each and every day - 100% - with that balancing act,” he said. “You can’t please everyone all the time.”

Time will tell if the two leading powers in the 44th Ward can let go of the past and work together going forward. As that great Chicago philosopher Mike Ditka said after getting fired by daBears, “The past is for losers and cowards.” Neither the Cubs nor Tunney these days are losers or cowards.

Inclusive growth discussion

North Park Univ. will be hosting an open public discussion of equity and inclusive growth in Chicago, 6:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, April 18, in the Johnson Center, Room 314, 5141 N. Christiana Ave.

Growth in Chicago is uneven, with the downtown and North Side booming while our neighborhoods are struggling. Many Illinois residents are giving up altogether and fleeing the state.

In fact, Chicago’s black population is on track to shrink to 665,000 by 2030 — down from a peak of about 1.2 million. One factor in many people’s decision to leave is Chicago’s rising cost of living and high taxes.

A panel of experts will discuss multiple facets of the issues from policies that produced alleged inequality and racial segregation, threats to affordability including gentrification, and strategies moving forward.

Panelists include Michael Emerson, Provost, North Park Univ.; Tiffany McDowell, co-founder, Chicagoland Equity Network; John Joe Schlichtman, assoc. professor, DePaul Univ., and the moderator will be Kelwin Harris, of the Chicago Metropolitan Agency for Planning.

Bill calling for elected Chicago school board clears state House

School board elections could start in 2023

BY PETER HANCOCK
Capitol News Illinois

Voters in the nation's third largest school district would, for the first time, be allowed to elect their own school board under a bill that cleared the House on an overwhelming vote April 4.

"Dozens of parent and neighborhood groups have been formed to improve educational opportunities for the school children of Chicago," said Rep. Robert Martwick [19th], a chief sponsor of the bill. "They've been regularly dismissed and disrespected by the appointed board. And these groups have demanded elected accountability. They've demanded democracy. And that's exactly what we are here to give them, a cornerstone of democracy."

Since 1872, the Chicago Public Schools [CPS] have been governed by a board whose members are appointed by the mayor. More than a century later, in 1988, the General Assembly passed the Chicago School Reform Act that, among other things, provided for the election of "local school councils" that had authority to hire principals and approve budgets, but those reforms were effectively repealed in 1995, and centralized control of the district was returned to a board controlled by the mayor.

"In 1995, the first act of the appointed school board was to skip a pension payment," Martwick said. "They continued that for the next nine years, skipping a decade of pension payments and taking the Chicago Teachers' Pension Fund from 104% funded to 50% where it sits today."

"And that funding, that pension underfunding, has led to incredible budget pressures that take money out of the classroom, that take resources away from children, and will be borne and paid back by every taxpayer of the city of Chicago," he added.

The district has also gone through a series of other changes, many of which have been controversial, including the closing of severely under-utilized schools on the city's South and West sides, which critics said disproportionately affected low-income and minority neighborhoods, a significant expansion of charter schools, and numerous teacher strikes, most recently in 2012. Plus CPS has been rocked by various scandals including seeing its former CEO Barbara Byrd-Bennett sent to jail for corruption.

Under the proposal, voters in the district would go to the polls to choose their first publicly-elected school board in the spring municipal elections in 2023. The board would consist of 20 members chosen from neighborhood-level districts and one board president elected districtwide who would serve as Board president.

Under the proposal, voters in the district would go to the polls to choose their first publicly-elected school board in the spring municipal elections in 2023. The board would consist of 20 members chosen from neighborhood-level districts and one board president elected districtwide who would serve as Board president.

Martwick said that he would be open to negotiations over whether the legislature or an independent commission should be charged with drawing boundaries of the board districts. CPS is still in dire financial troubles, and has been shedding students by the thousands each year.

Those members would serve a four-year term, and a second election would be held in 2027. After that, the General Assembly would be expected to review how the new system is working, and it would have to act by 2029 to renew or change the new structure, or else it would revert back to a board appointed by the mayor.

The greatest fear of an elected board is that it could easily be dominated by Chicago Teachers Union candidates, leaving the CTU negotiating with their own Union supporters for contracts and benefits, leaving nobody at the negotiating table to protect Chicago's tax payers. While the CTU often claims to want to help support children in the classroom, the union's only real responsibility today is to advocate for its adult union members.

Passage of the bill in the House came just two days after voters in Chicago elected a new mayor, Lori Lightfoot, who said during the campaign that she supported moving to a fully-elected school board, according to the education website Chalkbeat.org.

Martwick said he had not spoken with Lightfoot about the proposal. He said the provisions of the bill were drafted four years ago, long before Lightfoot announced her intention to run for mayor.

"I look forward to having productive discussions with her, and obviously with the first election not taking effect until 2023, there is time to revise this if there are concerns," he said.

The bill, House Bill 2267, passed by a vote of 110-2. It now goes to the Senate for consideration. Gov. J.B. Pritzker has said in the past that he would support an elected school board for Chicago.

Honky Tonk here they come...
Ald. Harry Osterman [48th] and his staffers recently said goodbye to a family that has made a "tremendous impact" on the Edgewater community, Rich and Dori Gorman. The Gormans and their daughters, Charis and Nia, were recently presented a Pillar of Safety plaque on the southwest pillar of the Thorndale CTA embankment.

The 48th Ward is lucky to have many people who make a commitment to community, but the Gormans took their commitment to the next level, the alderman said.

Sharyne Moy Tu's stunning photo exhibit at Argo Tea has been extended through April.

"From leading NewStory Church, to supporting Swift School and establishing the Friends of Swift fundraising group, to being a key supporter of CAPS Night Out on Thorndale, and so much more, Rich and Dori have left a beautiful legacy in Edgewater," Osterman said. "They are moving their family to Nashville to begin an exciting new chapter in their lives, and I wish them all the best."

We do too. Good luck to the Gorman family in their new adventure in Music City USA!

Giant new REI Co-op store opens along North Branch

New, expanded space offers direct access to river, connecting residents to outdoor experiences

BY EDDY DOWNSTREAM

REI Co-op opened a giant new two-story store on the banks of Chicago River's North Branch. The 40,000 square-foot retail space will connect residents to the river, offering kayak and paddleboard rentals with direct access to the Chicago River and expanded assortments of quality outdoor gear.

It sits at the doorstep of a planned eco-park wetland paddlers paradise, which has been named the Wild Mile Chicago, to be located on the River between Chicago and North avenues. The project is slated to be completed by mid-2020.

With over 75 employees at this new location, REI will continue to offer a full-service bike, ski and snowboard shop and outdoor programs and events in its new location.

"Our new store location is one of REI's most exciting locations. While our new store is larger and offers a wider selection of gear for hiking, biking and camping, it is so much more than a place to shop," says Mike Daurio, REI Lincoln Park store manager. "With access to the Chicago River, it's a place where people can gather and enjoy the outdoors, directly from the store."

The location includes a ramp and floating dock where sportsmen and women can access the river. The architecture firm Skidmore, Owings & Merrill (SOM) has taken up the Wild Mile project. The mile-long eco-park would utilize the channel walls to support it and would provide a habitat for a number of different species and pollinators while also offering a unique recreational site to the city. "REI is helping residents and visitors reconnect with the river by creating new recreational opportunities than ever before," said Mayor Rahm Emanuel at a ribbon cutting.

Chicagoans will be able to walk, run or bike on paths that run alongside REI and the Wild Mile, as well as take kayaks out onto the river to see the eco-park from a different angle.

The Wild Mile will soon include habitat improvements, pedestrian walkways, fishing stations, vegetative islands, viewing platforms, canoe launches and other amenities that cater to the public and wildlife. For decades the river has been widely seen as an unsuitable habitat for many wildlife and is generally seen as polluted and unhealthy. Forty years ago, the Chicago River was mostly biologically dead and served mostly as a sewer. Nobody ever ventured onto or into the river on purpose, and if someone did fall into the river their next stop was a hospital ER since they were likely covered in pathogens.

This location will be REI Co-op's second waterfront space along the Chicago River. They also offer paddle experiences, rentals and outdoor programs at the REI Boathouse in Ping Tom Park on the Chicago River's South Branch.

The Wild Mile Chicago project hopes to find a solution to this problem by utilizing the flow of the water through the eco-park for the roots to absorb, which in turn will naturally clean the water and rid it of waste and other substances that do not belong.

"With access to the Chicago River, it's a place where people can gather and enjoy the outdoors, directly from the store," says Mike Daurio, REI Lincoln Park store manager.

This location will be REI Co-op's second waterfront space along the Chicago River. They also offer paddle experiences, rentals and outdoor programs at the REI Boathouse in Ping Tom Park on the Chicago River's South Branch.

Developing recreation and supporting private investments along the Chicago River is a major component of the city's Building on Burnham plan, under which 985 acres of parks have been acquired and 5.5 miles of waterfront have been developed.

Chicago is one of five U.S. cities where REI is investing in rewilding efforts to transform urban spaces into areas for outdoor recreation. Over the last three years, REI has partnered with several other organizations to support the long-term transformation of Chicago's Southeast Side into a thriving outdoor recreation community. This project has included efforts to develop the Big Marsh property to include mixed-use trails, future paddling opportunities and one of the biggest mountain bike parks in the country.

The nation's largest consumer co-op, REI is a growing community of more than 17 million members. REI has 154 stores in 35 states and the District of Columbia. You can also take the trip of a lifetime with REI Adventures, a global leader in active adventure travel that runs more than 170 custom-designed itineraries worldwide.

Police Beat....

Stolen drinks for all my friends

Burglars have been forcing their way into North Side bars and restaurants to steal liquor during morning hours, police said in a community alert. The offenders have been breaking through rear or front doors to gain access.

At least three incidents have been reported in River North and Old Town, on in the 100 block of W. Hubbard on Feb. 6 and Feb 11, and a second in the 1500 block of N. Wells on March 4.

Police said the crimes have been committed by between one and three black males who are in their mid-20's to mid-30's. They have been seen wearing dark clothing during the break-ins, according to the community alert. Police typically issue alerts when they believe a series of crimes are the work of a single individual or a specific group of people.

Investigators are encouraging businesses to double-check their windows, doors, and locks to ensure that they are strong and function properly. Surveillance cameras should also be inspected, police said.

Anyone with information about these crimes may contact Area Central detectives at 312-747-8380.

Man seen touching himself 'inappropriately' near Bell School

A man was seen watching children and touching himself inappropriately as students were leaving Alexander Graham Bell School in North Center April 3, according to a CPD community alert.

Police said a woman was waiting to pick up her children at the school around 4 p.m. when she noticed the man touching himself inside a newer model black Honda Accord in the 3700 block of N. Oakley. The man eventually drove away, police said.

According to the community alert, the man is black, in his late 30's or early 40's, with a slim build. He was wearing a black hoodie and black pants. His vehicle bears Illinois license plate S172376, police said.

Anyone with information about the case may contact Area North investigators at 312-744-8261 regarding case JC-210398.

Teens at center of Lincoln Park carjacking

Teenagers have become the center of the carjacking industry in Chicago now that professional car thieves know that Cook County Prosecutors won't prosecute teen-aged criminals.

The latest incident occurred April 4 when five teenagers and two adults were arrested after a boy crashed a stolen car on Lake Shore Drive in Lincoln Park.

Police became suspicious when they saw a gray Acura driving without headlights on around 12:44 a.m. on Fullerton Ave. near Lincoln Park, say Chicago police.

The officers tried to pull the car over after learning it was stolen, but it took off and eventually hit a guardrail in the 1600 block of N. Lake Shore Dr. All seven occupants of the car were arrested.

The 15-year-old driver has since been charged with a felony count of possession of a stolen vehicle as well as fleeing police, speeding on park property, damage to park property with a motor vehicle, driving without a license, driving without insurance, driving without headlights and disobeying a traffic signal.

He was taken to Lurie Children's Hospital in good condition. Two other people were taken to Northwestern Memorial Hospital, also in good condition.

Another boy, 16, was charged with felony counts of possession of a controlled substance and manufacture or delivery of marijuana as well as a misdemeanor count of criminal trespass to a vehicle, police said.

Alondra Diaz, 18, of Waukegan, Juan Avilla, 20, of Belmont Central and three teenage girls, ages 15, 15 and 14 were each charged with a misdemeanor count of criminal trespass to a vehicle.

Probation for trying to sell one-of-a-kind purse

One of three adults who were accused of trying to sell a $34,000 one-of-a-kind purse that was stolen from the Mag Mile Christian Dior store last autumn has reached a plea deal.

Tishawn Holliday, 20, pleaded guilty to one count of felony theft and received a sentence of two years probation from Judge Alfredo Maldonado.

Around 1:30 p.m. Oct. 8, 2018, four teenage women or girls entered the Christian Dior store at 931 N. Rush St. and began grabbing purses. When a 30-year-old Dior employee tried to stop one of the women, the offender threatened the worker with pepper spray, police said.

Dior management estimated that more than $67,000 worth of merchandise was stolen by the women, including the $34,000 purse that is the only one of its kind in the United States.

Holliday, two other adults, and a juvenile were arrested when they tried to sell the unique bag to an undercover cop for the bargain price of just $9,000.

"Brand new bag. Still have dustbag. Everything," said the ad that the group placed on a resale app.

Days later, investigators found the unique handbag being offered for sale online and arranged for a meeting to make the purchase in the 400 block of W. Roosevelt Rd.

The other defendants' cases are still pending in court.

More gang shootings in Uptown

A spike in gang gunfire around the Uptown neighborhood that started with a double-shooting March 19 continued Saturday evening. No one was injured, but a vehicle was damaged, and the driver of that car crashed into several parked cars as he tried to escape, according to witnesses and police.

Shortly after 5 p.m., witnesses reported hearing 10-15 shots fired near a discount store's parking lot in the 900 block of W. Agatite. A lone gunman opened fire on a black Infinity or BMW that crashed into three parked cars before speeding from the scene, bystanders said. Shell casings were recovered from the parking lot at Dollar Tree, 4443 N. Sheridan Rd.

The gunman is believed to be a black male teen who was wearing a black jacket with red sleeves, according to an officer on the scene. A witness said the shooter ran northbound in the alley at the back of the parking lot.

More than an hour after the shots were fired, a man told police in Rogers Park that his vehicle received gunshot damage in the incident. That man is a known gang member, according to a CPD source.

Saturday's incident was the latest in a series of shootings and gunfire in Uptown since two men were shot in the 1000 block of W. Argyle on March 19.

On March 26, a 24-year-old woman was shot in her right leg as she walked in the 800 block of W. Agatite, about a block from where Saturday's gunfire rang out.

On March 24, several people were shaken up, but none were injured after shots were fired in the 900 block of W. Eastwood. In that incident, witnesses reported that two men drove a Jeep Cherokee into an alley around 10:25 a.m. The men emerged from the Jeep and opened fire with a silver handgun. They then returned to the vehicle and sped away westbound.

Probation for threatening to shoot off-duty cop

A man who allegedly broke into an off-duty police officer's garage in North Center last September and then threatened to shoot the victim when he was confronted, has received 18 months probation in a plea deal approved by Judge Catherine Haber-korn.

Jonathan Hernandez, 24, had recently completed probation for another burglary when the off-duty cop caught him stealing an equipment bag containing power tools from the officer's garage in the 3600 block of N. Bell, prosecutors said. While waiting for on-duty police to arrive, Hernandez told the victim, "I have a gun. I know where you live. Where do you work?"

Charges of burglary were dropped in the plea deal.

Earlier in 2018, Hernandez unsatisfactorily completed two-year's probation that he received for stealing a bike from a garage in the 2600 block of N. Mildred, according to court records. He has been arrested 16 times in Chicago since March 2014, according to CPD records.

Man found dead in Boystown bathhouse

A 53-year-old man was found dead inside a Boystown bathhouse Saturday evening, police said. Detectives have launched a death investigation.

Officers were called to the scene after the man was found unresponsive and not breathing in a second-floor room at Steamworks Baths, 3246 N. Halsted, around 6 p.m.

The man checked into the complex before 10 a.m. on Saturday, and a staff member discovered his body when he failed to depart by check-out time, police said. He was pronounced dead at the scene, and there were no immediate signs of foul play, according to CPD.

This is the third death at the long-running Boystown facility in a little more than two years.

A 36-year-old suburban man who was found dead in the bathhouse's jacuzzi on Jan. 23, 2017, died from accidental drowning, according to the Cook County medical examiner. No contributing cause such as drug use was listed in the investigators' official findings.

A 31-year-old man who was found unresponsive at the club early on July 11, 2017, died from acute methamphetamine intoxication in a death that was ruled an accident by investigators, the medical examiner said.

Burglar crawling through vents, tearing down walls across the city

A prolific burglar spent the month of March breaking into at least 18 businesses across the city, crawling through roof vents, smashing through doors, and even tearing down walls to gain access to valuables, according to a new Chicago police alert that affects four police districts.

Cops first warned about the burglar late last month when they connected him to a series of after-hours break-ins at Loop restaurants.

Detectives now say the same man has broken into restaurants, convenience stores, and storage facilities repeatedly since March 2.

"The method of entry has varied based on the structure," police said in the alert. He entered through the roof vents on some one-story buildings. Larger structures have had their doors or windows pried open or shattered. Once inside, the man will demolish walls to get into offices and secured spaces, police said.

Investigators have connected the man to the following burglaries: 200 block of S. Cicero on March 2 at 3:31 a.m.; 400 block of S. Laramie on March 3 at 2:47 a.m.; 500 block of N. Laramie on March 5 between 4:40 a.m. and 5:50 a.m.; 4000 block of W. Grand on March 8 at 4:35 a.m.; 4500 block of W. North on March 8 at 4:07 a.m.; 0-100 block of W. Madison on March 11 at 5:27 a.m.; 500 block of W. Lake on March 14 at 3:00 a.m.; 5100 block of W. Washington on March 16 or 17; 300 block of N. Laramie on March 17 at 3 a.m.; 0-100 block of S. Cicero on March 18 at 5:38 a.m.; 300 block of S. Laramie on March 19 at 4:13 a.m.; 6600 block of W. Diversey on March 19 at 12:00 p.m.; 0-100 block of N. Dearborn on March 20 at 7:19 p.m.; 4500 block of W. Grand on March 21 at 12:33 a.m.; 0-100 block of N. Dearborn on March 22 at 11:06 p.m.; 0-100 block W. Randolph on March 22 at 11:21 p.m., and 4800 block of W. Chicago on March 31 between 5 a.m. and 9:30 a.m.

Anyone with information about the man or these cases may contact Area Central investigators at 312-747-8384 about pattern #19-CWP-009.

supervision and pay a fine of $1,719 in a plea deal.

Jerald Jeske, 51, pleaded guilty to one count of aggravated cruelty to animals in the deal, which was approved by Judge William Gamboney. A second count of animal cruelty was dropped in the agreement.

Jeske allegedly told his wife, "you love those dogs more than you love me. I'm going to kill those dogs" before he tossed them from the couple's second-floor balcony, police said.

One of the dogs died at the scene, and the other went missing, according to police.

Suspicious package snarls traffic near Lakeview post office

Traffic was snarled four hours April 3 as police and fire personnel investigated a suspicious package incident at the Lakeview post office, 1343 W. Irving Park Rd.

A woman entered the facility around 9:30 a.m. and threw an envelope over the counter. A message written on the outside of the envelope said, "Call the FBI," police said.

Fire department supervisors declared a low-level hazardous materials incident as a precaution while police bomb technicians and other investigators worked to secure the scene.

The area was declared clear at 12:30 p.m. and police said the incident was "non-bonafide."

Irving Park Rd. was closed to traffic near the post office and CTA buses were re-routed for about four hours while officials worked the scene. No arrests had been made.

Hotel fire results in meth conviction

A man who allegedly set a River North hotel room on fire while doing meth has reached a plea deal that will have him serve three years probation.

Keith Myer, 53, pleaded guilty to one count of methamphetamine possession in the case, which stemmed from a February 2018 incident at Hotel Felix, 111 W. Huron. Forty-one guest rooms were damaged by smoke and water after Myer started the fire by stuffing socks into his room's ceiling lights, police said.

Prosecutors declined to press arson charges because they could not prove Myer's intentions, according to a police supervisor's report.

North Side burglar caught on camera, cops say

Police have released surveillance images of a burglar who broke into an apartment in the Irving Park neighborhood last week.

The man crawled through a window of the home in the 3800 block of N. Troy around 1:40 p.m. March 28, police said. He then collected valuables from the apartment and fled.

Fans celebrate Star Wars' Pulp origins

Lucasfilm lands on the Lakefront for Star Wars celebration

BY JOHN PORUBSKY

You may have certainly heard of Luke Skywalker, Princess Leia, and Darth Vader but much of their inspirations go back to the days of "pulp" which included characters like Doc Savage, The Shadow and Flash Gordon, respectively. There are two Chicago land conventions this weekend which will honor heroes and adventurers of yesterday and today.

First, the Star Wars Celebration [April 11-15] is the official Lucasfilm event celebrating all things Star Wars, produced by fans for fans. This is the first time that the convention will be held in Chicago, at McCormick Place in the West Building, 2301 S. Lake Shore Dr. The location is steps away from where the Lucas Museum of Narrative Art would have been built if approved. That museum, named after Star Wars creator George Lucas, will now be located in Los Angeles with construction soon to begin.

The Star Wars Celebrations are the largest Star Wars conventions, featuring cast and crew celebrities, fans, costumes, music, live entertainment, autographs, collectibles, and panels. The first such event took place in 1999. This year's celebrities will include director J.J. Abrams (Episodes VII and IX), Billy Dee Williams (Lando Calrissian), Anthony Daniels (C-3PO), Alan Tudyk and Forest Whitaker (Rogue One), Ahmad Best (Jar Jar Binks), and Hayden Christensen (Anakin Skywalker) to name a few. Panels will most likely introduce footage from the new Star Wars film Episode IX, the continuation of the Clone Wars animated TV series, and new live action series The Mandalorian. The movie, which ends the Skywalker saga, will open in December and both TV series will be featured exclusively on the new Disney Plus subscription service to debut later this year.

As a young filmmaker, George Lucas wanted to adapt Flash Gordon to the big screen but couldn't obtain the film rights. Forced to create his own space opera, he drew much inspiration for Star Wars from classic myths and his childhood pop culture which included serial cliffhangers of the 30's and 40's, comic books, and sci-fi pulp novels.

Pulp magazines are inexpensive fiction magazines that were published from 1896 through the 1950s, which thrived in the years between the two World Wars, and vied with radio and the movies as the era's most popular form of mass entertainment.

The second event, the 19th annual Windy City Pulp and Paper Convention will take place April 12-14 at the Westin Lombard Yorktown Center in Lombard.

The three-day event draws hundreds of aficionados from all across the country to celebrate this uniquely American form of popular literature. Attendees will hear from pulp-fiction historians, see original vintage pulp art displays, watch films adapted from the great pulp stories, bid on rare pulps, and pop culture artifacts and peruse over tables of hard-to-find collectibles.

Pulp magazines are inexpensive fiction magazines that were published from 1896 through the 1950s, which thrived in the years between the two World Wars, and vied with radio and the movies as the era's most popular form of mass entertainment. These periodicals, printed on coarse pulpwood paper and boasting eye-grabbing, often lurid cover paintings, introduced to the American reading public such immortal writers as Dashiell Hammett, Zane Grey, Raymond Chandler, Ray Bradbury, L. Ron Hubbard, Robert E. Howard, H. P. Lovecraft, and Robert Heinlein. The term "pulp" derives from the cheap wood pulp paper on which the magazines were printed; in contrast, magazines printed on higher quality paper were called "glossies" or "slicks".

Auctions will be held on both Friday and Saturday. The Friday night auction consists of 230 lots of material from the estate of famed collector Robert Weinberg, while the Saturday night auction begins with 100 lots from the estate of Glenn Lord, literary executor for the Robert E. Howard estate, followed by 56 lots from a few other consignors. And more lots will be added to the Saturday night auction at the convention, to include material consigned there by convention attendees.

Both conventions promise to satisfy eager fans of Star Wars and pulps alike.

Approximately 2,500 grams of heroin with an estimated street value of $71,000.00 were discovered in a garage.

North Side man charged in $3 million drug bust

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Police say that Fernando Reyes, 42, of the 2200 Block of N. Mason, was charged with one felony count of manufacture/deliver 900+ grams heroin on April 2.

Fernando Reyes

At approximately 5:35 p.m., CPD Narcotics Officers executed a search warrant in the 5200 block of W. Grand Ave. and discovered approximately 2,500 grams of heroin with an estimated street value of $71,000.00 in the garage.

While officers conducted the targeted search, Fernando Reyes arrived and was placed in custody. In addition, the search warrant yielded approximately 26,000 grams of cocaine with an estimated street value of $3,119,500.00, two firearms, over $10,000.00 in cash, an additional 147 grams of heroin with an estimated street value of $22,050.00, a digital scale, heat shrink and numerous live rounds. The offender was charged accordingly.

Local running group hosting weekly races at local parks

For the past several years, local organizers with the Chicago Area Runners Association have been hosting free, timed 5K and one-mile runs in partnership with the Chicago Park District.

The 'Go Run events take place at parks throughout Chicago and are open to anyone who wants to race, run, jog or walk.

All runs begin at 9 a.m. unless otherwise posted.

The schedule includes one event each week at rotating locations: every first Saturday of the month at Warren Park, 6601 N. Western Ave.; every second Saturday of the month at Humboldt Park, 1400 N. Humboldt Dr.; every third Saturday of the month at 63rd Street Beach, 6300 S. Lake Shore Drive; and every fourth Saturday of the month at varying spots.

The schedule includes April 13, Humboldt Park; April 20, 63rd Street Beach; April 27, Horner Park, 2741 W. Montrose Ave.; May 4, Warren Park and May 11, Humboldt Park.

Additional 2019 dates and parks will be announced at a later time. For more information call 312-666-9836.

The mobile will be in the parking lot of Warren Park, 6601 N. Western, the second Wednesday of every month from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. The next produce giveaway will be today, April 10.

No qualifications are necessary to receive free produce; anyone can participate with no questions asked.

Free talk April 11 on reverse mortgages

The Circuit Court of Cook County's Elder Justice Center for a senior enrichment will be hosting a free seminar noon to 1:30 p.m. Thursday, at the Richard J. Daley Center, 50 W. Washington St., Courtroom 2005, to learn everything you need to know to make an informed decision about reverse mortgages.

The event will feature a lecture by Prof. R. Dennis Smith of The John Marshall Law School. The topics discussed will include the mechanics of a reverse mortgage, updates on program requirements of the federally-insured Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) reverse mortgage loan, and the "pros" and "cons" of a reverse mortgage versus various financial alternatives.

To register for the event call 312-603-9233.

Woman mugged in Lincoln Square

A woman was mugged by two men in the Lincoln Square neighborhood April 3, police said. The victim was near the corner of Wolcott and Sunnyside avenues when the men approached and took her phone and credit cards around 10:15 a.m., according to a police report.

The woman chased the men to the 1900 block of W. Montrose where the pair jumped into a dark-colored Toyota RAV4 that sped away westbound.

According to the victim, the offenders are two black men, one of whom wore a black hoodie with an orange and black design. The other was dressed in all black clothing.

Illinois Science Council bringing two events to Chicago this week

Physicist Michio Kaku is coming to the Chicago Humanities Festival for a conversation titled “Humanity in Space” 7-8 p.m. Thursday at the Music Box Theatre, 3733 N. Southport Ave.

Kaku has probed the neuroscientific frontiers of the human mind – including telekinesis, telepathy and dreams. In his book “The Future of Humanity,” he turns to a broader and less fathomable frontier: the universe.

His conversation Thursday will touch on topics ranging from wormholes to artificial intelligence and a future in which humanity finally achieves what was once deemed impossible: living among the stars.

Tickets cost $28-32 and include a paperback copy of “The Future of Humanity.” Members of the Illinois Science Council [ISC] can receive a $4 discount.

An option for one book and two tickets is available by calling 312-605-8444. Seats are limited.

Asian carp crisis

The ISC will host author and journalist Andrew Reeves in a free discussion of his new book “Overrun: Dispatches from the Asian Carp Crisis” 7-8:30 p.m. Monday at Volumes Bookcafe, 1474 N. Milwaukee Ave.

“Overrun” takes readers on a firsthand journey into the heart of the crisis that has politicians, ecologists and government wildlife officials fighting to halt the onward reach of Asian carp – four fish now within a handful of miles from entering Lake Michigan.

Along the way, Reeves discovers that saving the Great Lakes is only half of the challenge. The other half involves a scientific and political shift to restore degraded and ignored rivers and waterways create equilibrium in a shrinking world.

they spoke untruthfully,” Jinaki said.

According to the by-laws of the organization, the removal of the organization’s president or acting president must follow a specific process to be valid. Because this process was not followed, Jinaki said according to the by-laws, there is no need for the upcoming election.

“[The CPD employees] do not have the power or authority to initiate that process, because that is a process that must be initiated by a member of the GPAC with a motion for removal. No such motion was ever made; thus, no such motion could ever have been approved, and most certainly none of the GPAC members ever received a 20-day advance notice by mail of the motion that would be discussed at the following meeting. Furthermore, if the motion did make it to the agenda of the following meeting, a 66% majority of the eligible voting membership must be present to affect an act of removal. None of these steps ever occurred. None of this protocol was pursued by any member of the GPAC nor the park district employees who attend GPAC meetings. Thus, the CPD has followed no protocol by which they told the GPAC that [its officers and president] were removed and new officers would be elected. Therefore, the existing GPAC officers for all the GPAC meetings in 2016, 2017, 2018 and 2019 are valid, as is,” said Jinaki.

Jinaki believes some park district officials seem to have their own agenda and they do not want to work with what has been an active neighborhood organization with more than 1,000 members. Park advisory councils are supposed to be independent and to represent local communities, not CPD administrators.

“Park district advisory councils are intentionally separate entities from the park district to eliminate corruption and distortion of policies in favor of the CPD. This is why the two must remain completely operationally separate. Over the past year, the park district has stepped in to schedule, set the agenda for, and lead all presentations of GPAC. These acts go against the CPD’s own policies for fair and moral actions of the park district regarding park advisory councils, namely the GPAC. The park district cannot and should not ever speak for the GPAC officers, nor GPAC membership,” Jinaki added.

groups back on to Red Line trains bound for the South Side.

The tactic of pushing wild groups of teens onto subway platforms and trains filled with unsuspecting citizens resulted in several innocent persons being attacked and even robbed by the mobs in CTA tunnels and trains.

Officers this year will move more quickly to make arrests to send a message to the mobs and to reduce violent outbreaks, the source said.

Saturday’s incidents—euphemistically referred to by city officials as “large groups”—were the first widespread mob activity in the tourist-rich areas of Chicago since four people were battered and one arrest was made on Dec. 29, 2018.

ments, all adding tens of millions of dollars in fees to the bill paid by Chicago taxpayers to bankers and investors.

“TIF money needed by the developer to build out Lincoln Yards can be ported (transferred from other TIF accounts) to Lincoln Yards, funds can be pulled back by the developer from density bonus funds that were supposed to be used in other areas of the city needing development, any other “legally available funding sources,” and the inclusion of, “state and federal grants.” No other TIFs have been set up this way, so [these plans] will require further review by the Finance Committee,” said Waguespack.

According to journalist Dave Glowacz, the TIF approval would come as the passage of two new ordinances:

- The first ordinance (O2019-2185) defines the Lincoln Yards TIF district’s boundaries, lets the city stockpile expected increases in property taxes, and adopts the 85-page redevelopment plan crafted by the city’s Dept. of Planning and Development. The redevelopment plan sets a maximum budget for taxpayer-funded projects in the TIF district up to $1.3 billion.

- Secondly, the newly revealed second ordinance (O2019-2583) contains a 600-page redevelopment agreement (RDA). The RDA is essentially a contract with developer Sterling Bay; it identifies specific infrastructure components that Sterling Bay will build, with the budget for each [see graph]. And the RDA shows exactly how and when the city will reimburse Sterling Bay for building those components, paid out of property taxes generated by the TIF district.

The RDA identifies 11 separate street, bridge, river wall, and trail projects that would start in 2020 and finish by 2025. The city has budgeted $487,830,000 total for these projects—though taxpayers could end up paying more, since the RDA does not include the Webster Ave. bridge project.

City Hall insiders want the new TIF districts to fund public infrastructure such as streets and bridges that would be paid for by diverting hundreds of millions of dollars in local property taxes taken away from schools, parks, and other county services. Those who stand against the TIF deals now want to know who exactly is profiting from these huge taxpayer subsidies?

A big part of the RDA are the details on how the city plans to reimburse Sterling Bay for its infrastructure work. It involves a complex set of financial instruments—all of which can add millions of dollars in financing fees onto the bill paid by Chicago taxpayers to bankers and investors.

According to Ryan Ori of the Tribune, one of the two main investors for the Lincoln Yards deal is Lone Star Funds, a $60 billion Dallas-based private equity firm that specializes in acquiring distressed mortgages—and has faced criticism for predatory lending and unfairly kicking families out of their homes as part of a federal program, intended to stabilize communities, which sold large pools of delinquent government-insured mortgages to private equity and hedge funds, according to the New York Times.

That foreclose-and-evict business model—employing predatory lending products—could be why Chicago housing counselors found Lone Star so problematic. “They didn’t want to work with us,” Ivé Santiago of the Northwest Side Housing Center told The Chicago Reporter. She said the company’s representatives repeatedly lied to them.

Other identified Lincoln Yards investors include Chicago’s Crown, Pritzker and Ricketts families.
