Alderman sides with neighbors, rejects 60-story tower near Holy Name

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

Concerned about its impact on traffic in the neighborhood, Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] has rejected a proposed 60-story hotel/condominium at Rush & Superior streets—one block from Holy Name Cathedral. It was the third proposal for the site.

More than 300 people attended a lengthy River North Residents Assoc. meeting on March 13, at which plans for The Carillon were presented. The project by Symmetry Property Development of New York would have added 246 condo units, 216 hotel rooms, 120 hotel timeshare units, and 30,000 square feet of retail space to River North.

Concerns expressed at the meeting included construction noise during the three years it would take to build the tower, then traffic congestion when it's finished. Ward Miller, executive director of Preservation Chicago, said putting up the building would take away from the neighborhood's Victorian architectural heritage.

After the meeting, Ald. Reilly re-read Symmetry's traffic study for the project, then visited the site several times.

"The proposed parking and loading scheme that would utilize the public alley simply will not work for this proposal," Ald. Reilly announced Friday. "All parking ingress and egress and all loading activities are proposed to be staged out of a public alley to the north of the development site."

Superior St., he says, cannot accommodate the extra traffic The Carillon would attract. Curbside activities such as taxis and deliveries "will spill over onto virtually non-functioning Superior St. and exacerbate an already untenable condition."

Ald. Reilly says he has encouraged Symmetry to considered other options for the site, such as a single-use project, like a residence without the hotel and retail space, or to skip a planned development altogether and determine what could be built under existing zoning restrictions.

Property tax hike a mistake, says Reilly

Lays some blame at feet of Mayor Daley

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

Though the city's finances under Mayor Richard M. Daley were "atrocious," the current vice mayor says property tax increases did not have to be so steep.

"I think a lot more could have been done to trim spending in the City of Chicago," said Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] at a Town Hall meeting last week hosted by the Streeterville Organization of Active Residents.

Ald. Reilly says he outlined for Mayor Rahm Emanuel about $200 million in savings. "And I was ignored."

Higher property taxes this year are expected to bring in an extra $376 million for the City of Chicago and Chicago Public Schools. Last year's tax hike was $427 million. Combined with new water, sewer, and garbage taxes, a typical homeowner in Chicago will pay about $400 more in taxes this year.

Much of the increase was to pay pensions of city employees, particularly employees of Chicago Public Schools. And to make matters even more dire, the CPS has a $720 million payment due on June 30, which they have no way to pay.

Ald. Reilly, who voted against raising property taxes, says pension reform is critical. He says the State of Illinois should not require taxpayers in Chicago to help pay pensions of teachers in school districts outside of the city.

Higher property taxes this year are expected to bring in an extra $376 million for the City of Chicago and Chicago Public Schools.

"Downstaters don't pay for our teacher pensions yet we pay for theirs. We don't get to dictate how they make their spending decisions in their downstate school districts."

Alderman's taxes went up, too

When property in Cook County was reassessed in 2015, Reilly says the assessed value of his home went up 74%, which he says is typical for downtown Chicago. Indeed properties up and down the North Lakefront saw dramatic increases, and property owners can expect another reassessment in 2018.

"What that tells me is... that

Legislation aiming to protect lakeshore residents from excessive noise passes House

Legislation allowing the City of Chicago to install a noise monitoring system to study the impact of vehicular noise along Lake Shore Dr. passed the House of Representatives last week.

House Bill 2361 would allow the City of Chicago to enact an ordinance providing for a noise monitoring system upon any portion of Lake Shore Dr. The noise monitoring system would be capable of recording noise levels 24 hours per day and would be equipped with computer software capable of processing the data. The noise monitoring system would be similar in concept to the monitoring system used to measure jet noise around O'Hare International Airport.

The measure is widely supported by lakefront alderman Tom Tunney, James Cappleman, Brendan Reilly, Brian Hopkins, Harry Osterman and Michele Smith and sponsored by state Rep. Sara Feigenholtz.

The city and state are also working on expanding the state motor vehicle law to allow Chicago police to impound offending motorcycles on the third violation.

"We'd also like to increase the fines from $100 to $200 for the first offense and $200 to $500 for the second offense," Ald. Hopkins [3rd] said.

On the third violation, the motorcycle would be impounded and the offender would not only have to pay a hefty fine, but would need to go to court and show the muffler has been "returned to legal compliance."

"Almost all the motorcycles you hear have had their exhaust system deliberately tampered with. In some cases, they've removed the muffler completely," Ald. Hopkins explained.

"During the summer months, packs of up to 20 or more motorcycles literally rattle the windows of some of the Lake Shore Dr. high rises at 2, 3, 4 in the morning. I can tell you the residents of these high rises have been begging for this kind of relief," said Ald. Hopkins.

Hopkins added that he also plans to introduce legislation cracking down on noisy fire engines and ambulances, as well as police cars.

Unfortunately, it usually isn't that easy for the cops to curb violators "who don't stop for the police anymore. They just take off," he said.

And that's where Rep. Feigenholtz's bill comes in.

"The data collected through scientific noise monitoring will provide solid evidence of the problem and can give engineers more data to consider noise implications when making changes or improvements to Lake Shore Drive," she said. "High-rise dwellers along Lake Shore Dr. share complaints on a regular basis with their elected officials about vehicular noise. This is the first step to mitigate the problem of noise pollution along the drive and provide residents with some much needed relief."

City compromise to limit loud street performers

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

Loud street performers in downtown Chicago would be corralled into an area three blocks wide by 23 blocks long and limited to three hours a day during the week – two hours on Saturday – if an ordinance introduced by Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] is approved by the City Council.

It is more generous than the ordinance the lderman originally introduced, that would have banned altogether amplified street performers from Michigan Ave. and State St.

Ald. Reilly says a compromise worked out with Ald. Brian Hopkins [2nd], the Mayor's Office, the city's Law Dept., downtown residents and business owners, and the street performer community, "is a better, more equitable ordinance that balances these competing interests and could stand up to judicial scrutiny."

The street performer zone stretches from Van Buren St. in the Loop, north along both sides of Michigan Ave., west along both sides of Oak St., and south along both sides of Dearborn St. back down to Van Buren.

The ordinance would only affect street performers who use a "bullhorn or electronic amplification, or a musical instrument or other object that is struck manually or with a stick or similar item to produce a sharp percussive noise." They could only perform Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Ald. Reilly said last Friday that in recent years thousands of people have complained about "having to endure hours of non-stop amplified and percussive street noise."

As part of the compromise, he says he is working to give street performers in general access to more public spaces, including parks and CTA platforms where except for three platforms they are currently prohibited.

The next meeting of the City Council is scheduled for April 19.

Snowflakes and man buns are philosophical imperatives

By Thomas J. O’Gorman

One quarter of the New Year is done. Do you feel more comfortable? Safer? Secure financially? In control politically? Is your neighborhood more friendly? Your community organizations more successful? Your church more populated? If you played softball in Grant Park, have you found somewhere else to play Chicago’s favorite sport this summer? If you were employed by the City of Chicago have you found a supplemental insurance program in retirement?

It’s 2017 and quite honestly, I tremble. My fear is that as we tear away the pages of the calendar, we find ourselves more and more populated here in Chicago with some very passive aggressive personalities. To be specific, the snowflake. And the man bun.

If you’re over 50 you probably don’t even know what I am talking about. If you’re still trying to wrap your head around the concept of a “millennial,” then there’s no hope for you. Maybe having a one word definition might help. How about “delicates” and “hair knots.” But snowflakes and man buns are so much bigger than that. They are lifestyles. They are philosophical imperatives, if I read the culture correctly. The causes and conditions for their existence are as important as the actual fact of their presence among us.

The volume of our everyday discussions is one culprit. Too many folk raising their voices, shattering the eardrums of generations of suburbanite children who now live in the city. This may be one cause for our snowflakes. You know the children who had all those “time-outs” in middle school. All that rationalism seems to have made them delicate.

The world was their bubble outside the 606. A world of soft, guarded speech. A world in which a lot of energy went into deflecting the use of criticism or personal judgment may be another cause. Fear of offense, is yet another. Frankness. Confrontation. Strong emotional argumentation. The passion of conviction. The heated drama of the moment. None of these had any value as the snowflakes grew to adulthood. All these emotional reactions give rise to the conditions that are very likely to damage the delicacy of the snowflake. Provoking meltdown. Causing them to become over sensitive.

It also assists in helping them to not take criticism well. Like a cobweb of soft, transparent delicacy, the snowflake needs cautious conditions to survive the brutality of the everyday world. “I don’t like it when your voice gets louder” is a favorite snowflake rejoinder. “You filled my personal space with fear and violence when you would not let up,” is another. A new generation of Americans has been taught to identify what makes them uncomfortable. Refusing any deviation. Some urbanologists believe it may be how Republicans refer to many Democrats with the recent victory that put Mr. Trump in the White House.

What concerns me is that many Chicagoans don’t actually understand what a snowflake is. They have not encountered enough to catch on. Especially if you were around during World War II. You know, when many teenagers were jumping out of planes over France and Belgium, armed to the teeth. Looking for Nazis. No one had a “time-out” chair at Normandy.

Then there’s the man bun. Man buns are by no means a reference to the masculine derriere. But rather refers to that American classic hairstyle made famous by Aunt Bea in Mayberry. Long hair rolled into a strategic ball at the top of your man head. Tied in a knot. And then pinned in place by clips or pins or chopsticks. All flowing tresses and shocking disorder of the coiffure is cleared up in the sweep of the man bun.

Its origins are found relatively recent, in the past five years, where the man bun has brought a hipster sense of order to life. I bring it up because here in Wicker Park, where I live, we might be in the man bun capital of Chicago.

“Roll and go.” That’s what the man bun does. It allows the chap with long locks the freedom to let it all hang up. Hair blowing in the breeze while you skate-board to the office? Well just “roll and go.” Your rolled up hair is all set to go together with that three piece suit. Or police uniform. Or fire fighter’s helmet. Or judge’s robe.

Man buns also provide a timeless sense of the primitive. Though it might be growing in popularity these last few years, something tells me that it just might be one of the oldest hairstyles in the world. All the way back to the man cave.

As I look around my neighborhood, I am reminded that it also can be seen aplenty in Lincoln Park, the Gold Coast, Lincoln Square, Logan Square, Ravenswood and Andersonville.

I have not seen any members of the clergy, of any faith, sporting a man bun. I am not sure if it is kosher. It has an Asian mystique to it. This knot. Of course, it’s perfect for poets, painters, writers, yoga instructors, bar tenders (downtown), DJs, musicians, librarians, rickshaw drivers, gallery workers, Uber drivers and tech industry workers.

There is a web site. Just type in “man bun.”

It is recommended that you not try the man bun with less than eight inches of hair. And it is essential that it be able to be tied in the bun. You’re only getting a half bun if you are working with less than that. And if you are tying the knot with less hair you run the risk of developing what is referred to as traction Alopecia, a terrible type of hair loss.

I recently had a haircut. Just a trim. First time in 12 months. I only bring it up because as long as my hair was, just beyond shoulder length, I truly never thought about the man bun. Maybe because it just seemed so trendy. So Hollywood. So suburban. True hipsters are an evolutionary reality. A political or cultural response to the realities of everyday life. In its earliest day, the man bun was a way for celebrities to give themselves an edge. I personally don’t find it necessary to accrue an edge.

Like the snowflake the man bun is not an expression of the proletariat. There is no sympathy with the common man to be found in it. Instead, it is an expression of the elitism of the technical age. Both are the product of self-absorption and too much time in the mirror. I have no more patience with the man bun than I do the snowflake. Each are an American cartoon. Being a snowflake will not assist in the righting of the political ship of state. And having a man bun leaves little room for effective leadership outside a poetry slam or used record store. I recommend that both the snowflake and the man bun would be better off working in a soup kitchen, encouraged by the hospitality and wisdom of good old Aunt Bea, who’s instincts were not very trendy but were always flawless.

PASSOVER 2017: April 10 the Passover Feast (Pesach) begins and concludes April 18. Exodus 12 describes the mystery and miracle of this feast of unleavened bread. The feast draws families and friends together in faith and obedience, into the footsteps of the mystery and power of mercy and love and going forth from bondage. Each meal an expression of Covenant love ripe with the promise of freedom. May this blessing come on every household, to every table and to every heart that holds fast to faith.

ONE FOR THE MONEY: What Ravenswood doctor got herself in a jam of a conundrum when she thought she caught a longtime employee pilfering a box of expensive chocolates from the office, only to discover to her shock that the sweet treats were part of a secret relationship the staffer had with the doctor’s husband?

TWO FOR THE SHOW: What well-known Chicago Italian restaurateur, who is beloved by friends, has some curious hang-ups when it comes to his personal diet? Seems he has difficulty eating many dishes on his menu because they remind him too much of family and friends who are no longer with us. His palate is so emotionally sensitive that certain tastes and flavors literally bring him to tears. He never speaks to anyone about these tastes that break the heart.

THREE TO GET READY: Who is the divorced lawyer who showed up at a recent Lake Shore Drive cocktail bash and made many friends uncomfortable due to the welcomed presence of his ex-wife and the surprise pres-

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

Last week, two of the most loving and beloved dogs left this world, Clyde Regan and Charlie Swann. Since they died one day apart, I'm truly hoping they're fellow travelers out there in the universe.

Clyde was the most adorable little pup when my son-in-law, Liam Regan, brought him home 14-years-ago. I met him about a decade ago, and fell in love with his mild nature, his one blue and one brown eye, and his unwavering dedication to Liam and my daughter, Tedi. And when my granddaughters were born several years later, I marveled at Clyde's tenderness with them. He was the most well-behaved and sweetest dog that you could ever imagine. And watching him play on the Rogers Park beaches with his family was a source of great joy for us all.

A few years ago, Clyde's arthritis became so bad that he could no longer climb the two flights of stairs at my daughter and son-in-law's home. He went back to live in the house he'd grown up in, the Edgewater home of Liam's parents, Enid Winters and Bill Regan. With fewer stairs and a wonderful back yard in which to run around, not to mention being spoiled by his grandparents with lots of love plus the delish food Bill tends to cook, Clyde was able to live comfortably with his arthritis and he continued to thrive.

Yet now, everyone is mourning his loss, including me.

"He was such an important part of our family," said Enid Winters.

Bill, aka Pops, called Clyde, "My companion and best friend for the last four years and the most gentle and loving dog I have ever seen. "Who else is glad to see you no matter what kind of day you're having?"

Bill is starting a Clyde Memorial Fund, and he'll give every penny he collects to a no-kill shelter. Details are forthcoming and I will let you know as soon as it is set up. Meanwhile, please keep Clyde and all the rest of us who loved him in your thoughts and prayers.

*He's just a little bulldog

One day he packed up his bags
And he said "Bye-Bye-O"
I'm gonna get in the car
And go to Chicago ...
He's the little bulldog

That little ditty was written by Andersonville resident Sheila Swann, about Charlie, her beloved American Bulldog who lost his battle with cancer last week. Sheila wrote the song years ago, and sang it to Charlie in an Andrews Sisters style.

Clyde Regan and Charlie Swann will be sorely missed by all who knew and loved them.

Charlie was diagnosed with Non-Hodgkins lymphoma last year around the same time my husband was. So I felt a close kinship with him and Sheila... we both had guys that we loved battling the same disease and going through chemo at the same time.

Many people would have put Charlie down because of the cancer. But instead, Sheila nurtured him through treatment, through good days and bad.

"Charlie brought so much joy to our lives, to our community, to friends and strangers alike," Sheila said. "How could you not love him? He was Our Mayor, he was Our Boy."

Yet even though Charlie was strong and resilient, his decline had become "more than enough" in a fairly short amount of time. Sheila and partner Ron Roenigk didn't want it to get any tougher or more painful for him. "And I knew that I, personally, would never be able to get enough of him, never, ever," Sheila said.

Charlie had many of his friends visit him in his last few hours. He was happy and as friendly and as gracious as he has always been, she said.

"There has been a huge outpouring of support, compassion and love for Charlie," said Sheila. "I knew we were blessed when times were easy, but when things got too horrible to bear, the love, caring and compassion has really taken my breath away. I am so grateful."

"I was crazy about Charlie. I mean head-over-heels out of my mind crazy for him. There wasn't a single day over the years that I didn't swoon whenever I looked at him."

They say all dogs go to heaven, and that's where I'm really hoping Clyde and Charlie are headed. I can picture them now, happy and carefree, playfully romping their way across the Rainbow Bridge -- together.

Horseplay at its finest (Written by Tedi Smola Regan) ... Have you driven past Soldier Field recently and wondered what the giant white tents in the parking lot are? Under the White Big Top is "Odysseo" by Cavalia, which runs through April 30 and is an amazing and unique show blending many different forms of artistic expression.

With its majestic horses, acrobats, aerialists, dancers, stilt walkers, musicians and riders, my family and I were amazed. My daughters Jordan, 4, and Shannon,

Jordan, right, and Shannon, walked the VIP red carpet with Black Beauty and Bingo at "Odysseo."

2, were honestly in awe, and could be heard loudly saying "Wow!" and "That was so cool!" Their attention was held for the entire show, which is hard to do at their ages. Plus it was late, as the show didn't start until 7:30 p.m.

"Odysseo," took us through incredible scenes of nature, with real rain and lakes. We saw horses and people do things we never thought possible, and move in ways that were magical. A "WOW!" factor moment for Jordan was when a rider went under and around a horse while it was running in a circle. She was also mesmerized at the end when a gigantic lake starts to fill the stage for the finale.

We were invited for the Rendez-Vous VIP package, which included a plentiful buffet and open bar before the show. For adults there was hummus, shrimp cocktail, chimichurri beef, a kale Caesar salad, and more. The kids had a separate buffet with mini hotdogs and cheeseburgers. In that tent, there were beautiful horse sculptures and art for sale, as well as a gift shop where the girls of course had to have stuffed animal horses. They named them Black Beauty and Bingo, and have brought them everywhere for days now.

During the 30-minute intermission we were invited to enjoy an amazing spread of desserts. The kids were in heaven. After the show, we were invited to tour the stable to meet all of our four-legged friends. At this point it was going on 10:30, and although the girls were exhausted, all I was hearing was "More horsies please!" so we stayed and met the most beautiful horses.

We had such a great time watching the show, and enjoying the full experience!

Condo & HOA report reveals 55,000 Illinois associations

The Home Front
By Don DeBat

Dozens of new condominium developments—both boutique projects and large-scale high-rises—are returning to Chicago’s skyline, a new comprehensive annual report reveals.

Chicago currently has an estimated 12,260 condo and homeowner associations containing approximately 306,330 residential units, according to a new comprehensive directory—the “2017 Association Evaluation Report on Illinois Condominiums and Homeowner Associations” (HOAs).

The research also revealed that Illinois currently has more than 55,000 condo and HOA associations containing nearly 760,000 residential units.

The data was gathered by Association Evaluation [AE] from physical reviews and Google rooftop checks of thousands of condo and HOA properties, combined with an analysis of the Secretary of State records.

“For the 2nd annual AE Report, our team of research experts scoured hundreds of sources to pinpoint and profile every condo and homeowner association throughout Illinois—both large and small,” said Sara Benson, president of AE, a Chicago-based real estate data-analysis firm.

“Our research team exhausted all available resources to obtain this information,” said Michael J. Reilly, chief operations officer of AE. “Various quality-control checks were administered to ensure the accuracy of the data. In some cases, on-site physical reviews of the premises were conducted.”

AE is marketing its condominium and HOA data to condo service providers such as attorneys, property management companies, landscapers, and remodeling and repair tradesmen—including roofers, plumbers and contractors.

Prices for the Chicago and Illinois lists—that can be sorted by zip code, city, year of construction, property management company, and number of units in the association—start at $2,500 and will be available April 15. The file is sent electronically via email. For more information, call: 844-727-7267 ext. 801, or visit the website: www.foamailinglist.com.

Thousands of HOAs uncounted
The Community Associations Institute (CAI), a respected national organization, listed a total of 18,500 condominium and HOAs in Illinois in 2015, placing the state in fourth place nationwide. “Our research team was surprised to learn that thousands of condominium and homeowner associations were uncounted,” Benson said.

“Apparently, thousands of smaller condo associations and HOAs are not registered with the state of Illinois simply because they are self-managed by volunteer owners,” said Benson, who estimated that up to 80% of existing units are self-managed or controlled by developers.

With 55,000 individual records, AE has compiled the most comprehensive database of condo associations and HOAs available in Illinois.

Their research revealed that 677 condo associations in Chicago have more than 100 units. It found 24 newly formed Windy City condominium associations. The projects contain 17 to 406 residential units in buildings that are currently in the development pipeline or recently sold out.

Here is a sampling of major new Chicago projects with prices provided from Midwest Real Estate Data:

- Vista Tower. This 95-story riverfront high-rise, now under construction at 363 E. Wacker Dr. on the New East Side, comprises 406 luxury condo units and a hotel. Prices on active listings range from $979,070 to $10,368,390. First deliveries are scheduled for 2019 to 2020.
- 2550 N. Lake View. The 39-story high-rise overlooking Lincoln Park has 218 residences, plus a cluster of townhomes and single-family homes in a landscaped private courtyard. Prices of available units range from $589,000 to $5.25 million.- Webster Square. This luxury 89-unit new-construction condo building is at 540 W. Webster Ave. in the Lincoln Park neighborhood. The 12-story mid-rise is just east of Oz Park. Prices range from $487,000 to $1.525 million. The Webster Square development also includes eight custom single-family homes on Grant Place and 75 high-end apartments in a seven-story corner building that formerly was Grant Hospital.

- 9 W. Walton. This 38-story Gold Coast high-rise has 71 ultra-luxury residences. Prices range from $1.75 million to $12.95 million for the most expensive penthouse.
- 367 W. Locust. Forty-five condo residences are included in the six-story building in River North. All units are sold, and a contract for the last remaining unit is pending at a price of $686,900.
- 400 W. Huron. This 16-story high-rise in River North contains 25 condo units. There is only one active listing priced at $3.6 million. Pending contracts range in price from $1.2 million to $3.1 million.

“High-rise condos may create much of Chicago’s world-class downtown and North Lake Shore Dr. skyline, but only about seven percent of the residential units are found in these properties,” observed Benson.

An estimated 40 Windy City high-rise condos—including the iconic 758-unit Lake Point Tower and the landmark 703-unit John Hancock Building—contain more than 500 units, and about six percent of condos are housed in buildings with 100 to 499 units, including the 450-unit Boardwalk

“Most high-rises, and the highest concentration of luxury buildings are located in eight community areas along Lake Michigan—the Loop, New East Side, River North, the Gold Coast, Near North Side, Lincoln Park, Old Town and Lake View.”

Other popular condominium neighborhoods include: West Town, Near West Side, South Loop, Edgewater, Uptown, Rogers Park, West Ridge and Near South Side.

Between 2000 and 2006, rapid growth of new-construction condos occurred along the Chicago River, and in the West Loop and South Loop.

In the late 1990s, lofts, created by rehabbing vacated warehouses, were increasingly popular for their high ceilings and brick walls. Earlier, many vintage downtown apartment and office buildings with Old World charm and elegance were converted to condominium ownership.

In 2016, some 17,345 condominium and townhome units were sold and closed in Chicago, compared with only 11,144 detached single-family homes, Benson said.

AE noted that “HOAs are rampant in the Chicago’s suburbs” where gated townhome and condo communities abound. The directory notes that the sprawling Sun City community, built by Del Webb in far northwest suburban Huntley, encompasses 5,400 units.

Private Association Rating

AE also is offering the “Private Association Rating”—or PAR-Score®, designed to turn guesswork into facts and empowers purchasers, lenders and insurance companies in their decision-making process. Through a proprietary algorithm, PARScore provides a standardized rating between 400 and 900.

“Financially healthy and well-run associations receive higher ratings while risky associations plagued with low bank balances, non-paying owners, special assessments and lawsuits receive lower ratings,” Benson said.

Launched in 2012, the Association Evaluation LLC team already has more than 55,000 Illinois condominium associations and HOAs in its database. For more information on the PARScore, visit: www.AssociationEvaluation.com or www.myParScore.com.

Bug buster keeps museum insect-free

STORY AND PHOTOS BY THE CHICAGO HISTORY MUSEUM

Just as it’s impossible to keep insects out of our homes, it’s impossible to keep them from entering museums.

While insects in general are not harmful to humans, many of them can severely damage the very collections that museums seek to preserve. In order to prevent this, many museums, including the Chicago History Museum [CHM], have instituted Integrated Pest Management [IPM] programs.

IPM takes a holistic approach to controlling and eliminating the presence of pests in the museum, considering the entire museum environment, the management and use of the artifacts, and the diverse activities that occur within the building to implement successful pest management strategies.

While a team effort, our senior collection manager serves as the IPM coordinator for collections, Britta Keller Arendt, senior collection manager and IPM coordinator, commences her weekly inspection of pest traps throughout the Museum. All images by CHM staff monitoring pest activity throughout collections storage and gallery spaces on a weekly basis.

Like many museums, CHM uses blunder traps, so-called because they rely on bugs making the blunder of venturing onto a sticky glue surface. These traps are strategically placed throughout the building, capturing whatever happens to be crawling in a certain area, providing the IPM coordinator with an excellent indication of what types of insects are present and active in different museum spaces.

When each trap is collected, it is replaced by a fresh one, and the identification process begins. With the help of a microscope, the IPM coordinator records the various species found on each trap,

An adult booklouse inside a blunder trap. These tiny insects enjoy eating microscopic mold found inside books where there has been a previous humidity issue.

the number of each species, and stages in their life cycles – egg, larva, pupa or adult.

If potential issues are discovered, such as an abnormally large number of larvae of a species that’s known to damage specific collections, then the IPM coordinator will collaborate with CHM conservators and properties staff to develop and implement an appropriate plan of action.

Aside from monitoring insect activity throughout the Museum, the IPM program seeks to maintain an environment that is inhospitable to pests through proper housekeeping and sanitation efforts. This includes enforcing a strict “no drinks or food” policy in collections storage spaces, encouraging all museum staff to limit the amount of food kept in office spaces, and asking everyone to have their trash cans emptied daily. Collections staff also share the responsibility of routine maintenance of artifacts on exhibition and in storage, as well as monitoring temperature and humidity levels throughout the building.

Finally, all incoming artifacts are thoroughly examined by collections and conservation staff for potential pest activity before being processed and moved into more permanent storage within the museum.

left me with a burning desire to share what I had experienced on the other side,” she said.

Though she was known for her intuitive work and came from, “a family that produces mystics the way some genes produce musicians or athletes,” Kahn said she was not living fully. Throughout the next seven years, “I wrote and wrote, I recovered from cancer, become single again, left a meditation school and returned to my roots of Judaism, where I began to study Kabbalah. What I learned matched what I saw on the other side, in what sages call the world of truth.”

Her book is universal for anyone who wants to develop a deeper relationship with their soul, as well as a greater understanding of human nature, said Kahn, who, among other things, reads auras and cards for her clients. Kahn also offers some tools to help a person connect to their purpose and to fulfill their destiny.

“No one can do it for you, we have a unique fingerprint... it’s the Creator’s way of letting us know we are special and irreplaceable.”

Intuition is a sixth sense that is inherent in everyone, said Kahn. Developing your intuition can help build self-confidence and save people from years of bad choices. I found her book to be an unusual and enlightening read.

“I believe that if we knew our souls are eternal we would live life differently,” she said. “Connecting to our souls activates the light within. Regardless of age race or religion, we are all God’s children.”

A couple of things ... The second annual “A Cause For The Girls,” charity event will be held noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, in the Malibu Party Room (4th Floor) at 6007 N. Sheridan Road. The event benefits A Silver Lining Foundation, which funds free breast health testing for uninsured and underinsured women and men.

There will be several vendors and a percentage of sales go to ASLF, founded by breast cancer survivor Dr. Sandy Goldberg, who will attend to explain more about her foundation.

Refreshments will be served and parking is available in the building garage. Last year’s sale raised more than $2,500, which bought 21 free mammograms.

Stones ... For those who need to get their ya-yas out, the Hard Rock Café, 63 W. Ontario St., is celebrating the grand opening of “Exhibitionism—The Rolling Stones,” with a party on Saturday featuring the Stones tribute band, Hot Rocks. Anyone attending will also have the opportunity to win tix to the exhibition, opening Saturday at Navy Pier.

The fun starts at 9 p.m. All ages are welcome and admission is free. But get there early as capacity is limited.

Cubs logo was adopted from earlier use at private club

The “cherry circle” logo was first part of Chicago Athletic Association

The “C” logo is seen throughout the club.

Secondly, the 1907 annex became home to the famous cherry circle bar during the 1940's and later brought back to life when the two buildings housing the association were converted into a boutique hotel. Relics show the "cherry circle" logo used in or on a variety of elements, from stationary to architectural artifacts removed from the building during its extensive transformation into a boutique hotel which brought back the original "CAA" monogram as their official logo.

But the logo received its greatest exposure when in 1917, club member William Wrigley Jr.

(owner of the Chicago Cubs) adopted the logo that's still in use to this day. Interestingly, around the same time the logo was "adopted" by the Chicago Cubs, it received a change in its color scheme. From the beginning, the encircled letter "A" was black and red. During wartime (WW I) however, the club decided to make it more patriotic by giving it the red, white, and blue color scheme, which is the version Wrigely used for his baseball team.

Urban Remains BLDG.51 museum is a burgeoning collection of local architectural artifacts. The museum and gallery are located at 1850 W. Grand. It houses several thousand photographs of artifacts the author has rescued over the years, many from Chicago buildings about to die or mere days from a wrecking ball. The vast online collection also contains over 28,000 items, and although the core of the collection remains constant, several pieces may come and go as interests shift over time, and the grouping of objects and artifacts is often broken apart and rearranged in multi sub-collections.

BY ERIC NORDSTROM
Urban Remains

The Chicago Cubs famous circle "C" was not at first created to serve the North Side ball club. It was actually created for a private club downtown.

The Chicago Athletic Assoc. [CAA] was established in 1890 by notable Chicago businessmen.

Marshall Field, Cyrus McCormick, and A.G. Spalding as an exclusive club revolving around sports, business and social activities. In 1893 the club commissioned architect Henry Ives Cobb to construct a Venetian gothic style hotel completed shortly before the Chicago World's Fair.

Since the club's inception, their logo was depicted as both monogram and an encircled letter “C,” which was referred to as the “cherry circle.” The latter is more well known for three reasons: the logo, which was the official “organ” of the association, is a prominent interior architectural design element found throughout the main building and Madison St. annex (e.g., monogrammed doorknobs, stencils and art glass).

Commentary

Jobs, education come 20-years too late, first we need dads and belief system

BY LEON J. HOFFMAN

Chicago's lamentable, preventable violence is rife and becoming increasingly ubiquitous. It is known and talked about everywhere—locally, nationally, and internationally.

While the details of how to manage this outrageous societal experience are “committee work,” the following, nevertheless, will help to provide the framework for all courageous, civilized leaders and citizens to think about and employ if quelling this debacle is the goal. I’ve always been a bit of a dreamer and have done my share of denying, and rationalizing about numerous painful, disagreeable life events. Nevertheless, I prefer to remember that one’s history does not imply one’s destiny. I hope that that mantra will apply to such social disasters as well.

The following two reasons are the primary causes of our city's nightmare of violence.

One, the collapse of the intact family as we have known it (meaning, two effective, on-duty parents in the home)—fathers are conspicuously absent in the homes of the most violent perpetrators (usually men).

Two, there has been a move away from a committed connection to a respected organized belief system or religion. Without a significant involvement with both of the above, the predictable behavior of many young people will resemble that of untrained pit bulls off a leash.

The sad reality is that leaders of the most dysfunctional communities have not spoken out about the obvious absence of fathers in the home. They have become determined to scapegoat others for the failings described above. Are we likely to see such a return of effective fathers any time in the future? Not likely. There's no blame or judgment here, simply observa-

Police Beat....

Three in custody for robbery at Belmont CTA station

Three suspects are facing charges after an early-morning robbery at the Belmont CTA Red Line station on Saturday.

A witness said that one of the three men pulled out what appeared to be a gun, took her friend's wallet, and then fled upstairs to the platform around 1:40 a.m.

Cops arrived quickly and found the offenders sitting on board a northbound train that was preparing to leave.

No weapon was found. The suspects names were not available at press time.

Teen, two juveniles charged with robbery near Wrigley Field

A man and two juveniles are charged with robbery after confronting a victim in the 1100 block of W. Addison, less than a block from Wrigley Field around 8:30 p.m. Monday.

The victim was able to flag down a passing police sergeant who quickly radioed a description of the offenders.

Alex Clark, 18, of the Garfield Park neighborhood was arrested along with two juveniles inside of the Wrigleyville Taco Bell at 1111 W. Addison moments later.

Clark, charged with one count of aggravated robbery-indicating firearm, was ordered held in lieu of $150,000 bail. Details on the other two suspects are not available because they are juveniles.

Juveniles charged in Paulina Brown Line robbery

Four juvenile boys are facing robbery charges after they tried to hold up a man at the Paulina Brown Line CTA station around 10 p.m. March 25.

The victim told police that one of the boys claimed to have a gun while the others hit the victim and struggled to take his phone.

CTA dispatch held all Brown Line trains, which allowed Chicago police to catch up with the suspects at the station, located at 3410 N. Lincoln.

No further information was available about the case because the offenders are juveniles.

Other hold-ups:

- A Lakeview man fought off a robbery attempt while he walked his dog in the 1700 block of W. Henderson around midnight on April 2. The victim told police that three offenders jumped out of a dark 4-door vehicle and demanded money. He resisted and the men returned to their car and fled northbound on Ravenswood.

- Later on April 2, a man reported that three offenders held him down and went through his pockets during a robbery near the 2400 block of N. Lincoln in Lincoln Park. The robbers took the man's phone and wallet before running away.

Man who stole 41 tubs of Oil of Olay gets 27-month sentence

A North Center man has been sentenced to 27 months in prison for shoplifting $1,097 worth of Oil of Olay in Lakeview last year.

William E. Mayor, 27, was detained as he tried to walk out of Mariano's at 3030 N. Broadway with 41 boxes of the beauty cream in late November, police said. He was on parole at the time after serving 10 months of a two-year narcotics sentence, according to state records.

Mariano's security told police that Mayor "has done this before," but we could find no record of Mayor being arrested at that location, which had its grand opening last summer.

Sticky fingers stole Butterfingers, say police

In other shoplifting news, a Wicker Park man is facing charges for trying to take 29 Butterfingers from a Boys-town gas station, according to court records.

Wynton Wells, 47, was arrested as he tried to walk out of the Circe K gas station with the candy, valued at $40.08, on March 28, prosecutors said.

Wells has a long criminal history that includes 94 separate court cases in Cook County since the late 1980's. Over the years, Wells has been sentenced to prison twice for shoplifting and once for possessing a stolen motor vehicle, according to court files.

Robbery at Damen Brown Line

A group of teenage offenders jumped a man and then robbed him at gunpoint of his Chrome notebook bag Friday afternoon outside of the Damen Brown Line CTA station, 4643 N. Damen.

The victim told police that the teens split up after they jumped him and stole his property around 4:45 p.m.

Police said the robbers were four black males and two Hispanic males, all between 17- and 19-years-old.

The attackers broke up into two groups after the robbery, with some running north on Winchester from Wilson and others running south on Ravenswood from Wilson

Duo charged in Rogers Park burglaries

Two Far North men have been charged in connection with a series of burglaries in the Rogers Park area, police said.

Arrmon Bulley, 19, is charged with two felony counts of residential burglary and Andrew Graszer, 27, is charged with six felony counts of burglary, according to a CPD press release.

Investigators said Bulley was identified as the man who carried a bag and used the Ventra card that belonged to a victim who was burglarized on Feb. 27 in the 7400 block of N. Greenview.

Grazer was arrested on April 4 after detectives determined that he was involved in six break-ins, the release said. No further information on those cases was available.

Lincoln Park burglary alert

Chicago police are warning residents of Lincoln Park to lock their garage doors after a series of thefts were reported on the south end of the neighborhood.

Unknown offenders have entered open garage doors to steal bicycles and a motorcyle at least five times during evening hours in recent weeks, police said.

Incidents were reported in the 1600 block of N. Bissell; the 300 block of W. Concord; the 1900 block of N. Cleveland; and the 1800 block of N. Orleans.

Residents are encouraged to immediately repair broken windows, doors, or locks and to ensure that their property is secured.

Auto thieves hit Streeterville hard

A pack of auto thieves is stealing cars from Streeterville parking garages and streets, Chicago police.

The foursome has stolen five cars in the tony Near North neighborhood since March 27. One vehicle was left running while two other cars had their keys left inside, police said.

Thefts have been reported in the 400 block of E. Ohio; the 500 block of N. Michigan; the 100 block of E. Huron; the 100 block of E. North Water; and the first block of E. Grand.

Police describe the offenders as four black men between 20- and 25-years-old.

Anyone with information about the crime spree is asked to contact Area Central detectives at 312-747-8382.

Cops need help ID'in Pink Line thief

Pink line suspect

Chicago police need the public's help in identifying a teenager who took cell phones from passengers on the CTA's Pink Line recently.

In one known case, the man shown here took a victim's cell phone as the train pulled into the Kostner station and fled onto the platform around 9 p.m. on March 10.

Police say the thief is a 17- or 18-year-old black male who stands about 5' tall and weighs about 130 lbs.

Anyone with information about the suspect should contact Area Central investigators at 312-747-8382 in reference to case JA181820.

Robbery team follows woman from ATM, takes money at gunpoint

Police are investigating a tandem armed robbery carried out March 22 in West Ridge by drivers of two vehicles who had followed a woman from an ATM machine on Western Ave.

The unidentified man who carried out the robbery had allegedly blocked the 23-year-old woman's vehicle on Estes Ave. and knocked on her window with a black semi-automatic handgun, police said. The woman, who felt compelled by the gunman to roll down the window, gave him $140 cash before being slapped across the head and left behind as the two vehicles made an escape.

The victim told police that around 1:25 p.m. she had taken out $40 cash from a Chase drive-through ATM in the 7000 block of N. Western Ave. As she left the parking lot she noticed a red Chevrolet sedan following her north on Western and then east onto Estes Ave.

Near the intersection with N. Oakley Ave. a second vehicle, this one a dark-green Chevrolet Malibu, pulled out in front of the woman and stopped, blocking her car, while the red Chevrolet pulled up close to her rear bumper and stopped, police said. The gunman got out of the green car in front of her and approached, knocking on her window with the gun.

After being given the $40 cash from the ATM and another $100 in her wallet, the gunman asked the woman for more, but when she held up her empty wallet he had "smacked" her in back of the head before returning to his own vehicle and leaving. According to the victim, the red car followed closely behind the green one as the pair fled east on Estes Ave.

Hijacking on Devon Ave.

Police were searching March 22 for a maroon Lexus that was hijacked on a colorful stretch of Devon Ave. in West Ridge.

The lone passenger in the vehicle, who police tracked down a short time later, said an unidentified Hispanic male had burst into the sedan and said, "Bi—ch, get out of the car or I'm going to shoot you," while grabbing his jacket and implying he had a weapon.

The 26-year-old told police she had been waiting in the vehicle for a male friend to come out of a shop in the 2500 block of W. Devon Ave. when the car was hijacked. The male driver of the vehicle later confirmed the story, according to a Chicago Police report of the incident.

Officers had been called about 9:10 p.m. where a witness to the hijacking met and spoke with them before either of the victims could be found, police said.

The witness told officers she had seen an unidentified man jump into the driver's seat of the vehicle while a woman almost simultaneously scampered out of the front passenger-side door and ran from the area. Seconds later the Lexus had sped away south on Campbell Ave.

Officers searched for the vehicle but did not find it that night. The investigation continues, police said.

Man sentenced to probation for December robberies is arrested again—for October robbery

Two weeks after being released to serve probation for robbing two Lakeview women last December, Jwan Farley was arrested again by a Chicago police fugitive apprehension unit as he arrived for a routine follow-up appearance at a South Side courthouse.

It turns out that Farley was wanted for allegedly robbing a Lakeview man at gunpoint on Oct. 27—five weeks before he robbed the two women, according to prosecutors. He's being held in lieu of $250,000 bail.

A baseball bat to the leg for less than $2

Three men allegedly robbed a man for $1.75 after hitting him in the leg with a baseball bat on the Rogers Park side of Ridge Blvd. near Howard St., police said.

The 56-year-old had called 911 from the 7500 block of Ridge Blvd. shortly after 5 a.m., when the robbery took place.

The victim said he had been walking on the sidewalk along Ridge Blvd. when three men had confronted him. One of the men hit him in the leg with a baseball bat while the other two men demanded his money. The robbers had emptied his pockets of a one-dollar bill and three quarters before leaving the scene.

The victim was taken aboard ambulance 56 to Presence St. Francis Hospital in Evanston, where he was admitted in good condition and expected to be released a short time later, police said.

Military vet with possible PTSD involved in domestic incident

A military veteran with possible PTSD allegedly choked his girlfriend in front of their two-year-old child during a fight March 20 inside their West Ridge apartment.

The alleged attacker, 32, had also threatened to take his own life during the fight before fleeing on foot from the building in the 6100 block of N. Mozart St., police said.

Officers had been called about 11 p.m. by the 24-year-old woman who is in a live-in relationship with the man. She told officers that he had grabbed her by the throat and threatened to kill her in front of their child before releasing her neck and fleeing. She told police that she believed the man had developed a crack addiction while attempting to self-treat the PTSD.

Officers searched the area for the man but were not able to find him that night, according to a report of the incident. The woman was not seriously hurt during the fight and declined all offers for medical attention.

Woman's identification being used in big spending spree

A 45-year-old woman told police that one or more people had been using stolen personal information to open more than 32 lines of credit in her name since the beginning of 2017.

The victim, who reported the identity theft to police near the end of March, listed more than $55,000 worth of credit charges taken out under her identity. She told police she had not authorized any of the charges and did not benefit from any of the services she is being charged for.

Included in the charges is a nearly $20,000 line of credit for a new vehicle, multiple bail bonds worth more than $1,500 and three separate hospital charges totaling more than $2,500. Multiple credit lines from predatory lending agencies, utilities bills, and charges worth more than $4,000 at businesses that could not immediately be identified were included on the inventory supplied to police by the woman, based on the report.

The victim told officers she had cancelled her credit cards but did not know what else to do.

Woman says her child's father robbed her at gunpoint

A Chicago Police report from March 21 alleges that a woman was robbed at gunpoint for a princely sum on Devon Ave. by an ex-boyfriend who also happens to be the father of her child.

The 29-year-old filed the report about 5:30 p.m. at the 24th District station, where she had been driven by a female friend and witness to the alleged robbery, according to police. In her statement she claimed that the ex-boyfriend had escaped with a little more than $9,000 cash after pulling a gun on her.

The woman claimed she had been walking in the 1600 block of W. Devon Ave. in Rogers Park when the father of her child, now an ex-boyfriend, engaged her and her friend in conversation. Several minutes into the chat the man allegedly pulled a gun from his waistband and said, "Bi—ch, you're gonna give me all your fu—en money!"

The victim did not say why she was carrying so much cash in her purse, but that the robber, once he had been handed the money, ran to a waiting vehicle and fled. The victim said she recognized the driver of the vehicle as a man who lives in her neighborhood. No arrests were made but police have the name of the alleged gunman.

Boy robbed standing next to his father

A 14-year-old boy was robbed March 21 for his cell-phone on a sidewalk in front of Kilmer Elementary School in Rogers Park while his father looked on, police said.

The three teenage robbers, who the victim said he did not know and could not identify, allegedly threatened the son and his 44-year-old father with a beating, but did not show any weapons during the attack, police said.

The report stated that one of the robbers forced the son to unlock his i-Phone while threatening to kill him as his father looked on. They had changed the settings on the phone so it could not be traced before fleeing.

Neither the father or son were injured during the robbery. No arrests were made.

Secret Service called in to inspect "funny money"

Following protocol, the Secret Service was called in to investigate a phony $100 bill given to a pizza delivery driver March 21 in the 7400 block of N. Western Ave. in West Ridge.

The 24-year-old driver said he had delivered a food order around 4:30 p.m. to a woman in an apartment unit. She had handed him the bill and received $58 change before the driver left, according to the report.

Several hours later while counting out his cash bag, the driver realized the $100 bill was a fake. The bill, along with the woman's given name and address, was collected by the U.S. Secret Service for investigation.

Comic book store: more than superheroes

Stiff competition, flat sales due to lack of compelling products

BY JIEFEI LIU

Medill News Service

“Superhero comics are selling best because that’s what people are familiar with,” said Raphael Espinoza, manager at Chicago Comics Inc., but it is other comics that make this store stand out.

The store, located on N. Clark St., in Lakeview, sells approximately 55% superhero-related comics, 25% non-fiction and 20% crime and horror comics, Espinoza said.

The 26-year-old Chicago Comics store sells many old issues of comics and a wide variety of graphic novels, including fictional and non-fictional, said Eric Kirsammer, the owner, motioning toward a wall of old comics behind the counter.

“They have a good selection of older comics from the 1980s or 1990s to comics that are being released now,” said Colin Finn, who came to the store with his brother.

Together with another book store Kirsammer owns, the business grosses over $1 million a year, of which one-third comes from the book store and two-thirds from the comic book store, which has five employees, Kirsammer said.

There is a growing trend in “Stoner Comics” which depict absurd humor among characters, Espinoza said. Stoner Comics depict experience under recreational drugs and they are drawn in a style formerly used to draw in Micro-soft Paint.

“I like light-hearted comics, to escape from politics in everyday life,” said Dave Meads, who was selecting comic books, “because I am too involved in daily life.”

The store will also try to resist in its own way, Espinoza said. “We will have more dystopian fiction and fiction about civil rights struggles.”

“Our profitability has been neutral these past years, because the comic industry is in a low,” Kirsammer said.

He said the main reason for the flat profit is that publishers, notably Marvel or DC, lacked compelling products since last year. In the past, big companies used to come up with big selling products, he added.

Another reason, Kirsammer said, is that while comics have become more popular in recent years, more comic book stores have emerged and the business has become more competitive.

Nevertheless, “I am optimistic,” Kirsammer said. He said that since “there is a lot of construction going around the store which is turning people away,” and once they are finished, there will be more people coming to the store.

Revenues fluctuate during the year. As the store is located a couple of blocks from Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs, it gets a lot of walk-in customers when the Cubs play, Espinoza said.

Kirsammer said they try to create their own events, like more author signing sessions, new releases and kids’ drop-in reading,

The influence of the Internet is apparent. Sometimes people will pick up a book, look at it for a while, then leave and place the order on Amazon, but a physical store can do more than placing orders, Espinoza said.

Because comics have so many genres, comic book green hands need recommendations, and he can make suggestions based on what kind of TV series customers like, Espinoza said.

“I don’t think Amazon can do this,” he said, but he still sees Amazon as their biggest competitor in the future and says the store should have developed its online platform earlier and better.

Although the store set up an eBay store in 2004, it still takes in more revenue from in-store sales, according to Kirsammer.

“The store is nice, but sometimes it’s a little bit pricey,” said

MUSEUM OF CONTEMPORARY ART: Word is that sometime this summer the MCA will open its newly configured museum restaurant, completely re-imagined and retooled by Jason Hammel, the man behind the food revolution at Lula’s in Logan Square. Chances are you will have your mind and palate blown away by this intelligent chef’s creativity. There will be a street entrance to the restaurant which promises to ratchet up the food competition in the high-end Streeterville environs. The food culture just became interesting. A coffee bar with sandwiches is planned along with a serious foodie dining room.

The real estate is improved with a single unit dwelling.
The judgment amount was $256,566.04.
Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in AS IS condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information.
If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g)-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOME-OWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judi-

Meads. “We usually sell at cover prices, which Amazon doesn’t,” Espinoza said. For instance, the cover price for Batman Vol.1 is $16.99; Amazon sells it for $13.90, plus shipping. “Comics are ultimately continuous sequential storytelling methods,” said Espinoza, with non-fictional comics usually about the writers’ life experiences. Some are journalists returning from war zones or places people know little about. He pointed to Joe Sacco’s Palestine and Guy Delisle’s Pyongyang: A Journey in North Korea. The store also features self-published comics and local artists such as Gina Wynbrandt. “She is my favorite and her books are about loose dreams, pop culture and sex,” Espinoza said. Although originated as a subculture in punk, “underground DIY culture is prevalent in comics.” “I guess I like comic books just because they give me hope,” said Chris

Cano, who was shopping in the store. As the world is “unfair in general”, comics have the idea that “the world is inherently supposed to be good” and some people “if given power wouldn’t be corrupt,” he said. The other book store Kirsammer owns is called Quimby’s, on North Ave., in the Wicker Park neighborhood, 15 minutes’ drive from Chicago Comics. It specializes in “unusual publications, aberrant periodicals and saucy comic booklets.”

tion and description. Furthermore, none of this has anything to do with race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, political preferences, etc. Jobs and education (which we hear about daily) are, of course, important and necessary. However, they come 10 to 20 years too late. Behavior and its training begin at birth, if not before. It is naive, inaccurate, and irresponsible to imagine any other scenario. Our city's violence is a kind of societal cancer and, as with any form of cancer, after being identified, the first goal is to seek to prevent it. If that is not successful, then to cure it. And if that fails, then at least to limit or arrest its spread.

Presently, the most important issue is to contain the violence and to reduce its chance of spreading. If Chicago's goal is the immediate interruption of that egregious behavior, then the following is the only solution in a civilized world. When dealing with "terrorists" of any kind, there must be a show of force that is superior and external to that of the wrongdoers. It's just that simple.

After the horrendous behavior is halted and contained, commanding leaders of character and conscience can then examine the best ways to reconnect people to families, belief systems, and the traditional settings that have always provided the necessary structure and boundaries for civility.

Our city's dreadful violent circumstances have affected and have had an impact on the lives of countless millions of people, including the victims, their families, friends, colleagues, neighbors, those who dealt with diverse aspects of their cases, and myriad others around the world who have learned about such happenings. Nevertheless, and as difficult as it may be, we must not become desensitized to violent behavior.

Chicago's reputation has nowhere to go but up. There is no time to waste.
