Will new 'smart' street lights be used to spy on you?

Smart street lights like the ones Chicago will start installing created a stir a few years ago when it was discovered that they include "Homeland Security" applications including speaker systems, motion sensors and video surveillance that are now being rolled out with the aid of funding from the federal government.

Indeed these applications are now being tested in at least two other U.S. cities, Seattle and Las Vegas. Using street lights as surveillance tools has already been advanced by several European countries including the UK and Holland.

While Chicago has not disclosed if Dept. of Homeland Security grants are being used for the new lights they plan to install, the street lights being used in the UK are equipped with two-way communication and monitoring devices, and may be used to record conversations on the streets.

The ones now being installed in Las Vegas will broadcast official messages from the authorities during an emergency, or in the midst of a crime. They can also broadcast music and advertising.

One such lamp, manufactured by Illuminating Concepts who markets smart street lights and is listed on the city's respondents log of potential street light vendors, is comprised of a wireless digital infrastructure that allows street lights to be controlled remotely by means of a ubiquitous wi-fi link and a miniature computer housed inside each street light, allowing for security, energy management, data harvesting and digital media.

It is the only street light system now offered with embedded emergency call buttons and two-way hands-free communication. According to their website their capabilities include "energy conservation, homeland security, public safety, traffic control, advertising, video surveillance."

Their standard system does not include any recording devices and the city did not disclose if it was interested in such uses. The only time audio may be recorded is when their optional "Blue Button' feature is purchased and a call for assistance is placed to a first response or 911 phone number. The first responder may then record

City announces initiative to change Chicago's street lights, project will replace 270,000 lights

The City has launched a major initiative to upgrade more than 270,000 of the city's street, alley and park lights to more reliable and higher-quality lighting. Over the next four years the Chicago Smart Lighting Project will improve safety and quality-of-life in neighborhoods across Chicago by replacing nearly all of the city's supposedly outdated and inefficient High Pressure Sodium (HPS) lamps.

Chicago has been slow to move toward LED technology relative to other major cities. For example, the city of Los Angeles has already installed more than 140,000 LED street lights and is actively installing wireless network capabilities in that system.

Still, the project could prove to be among the largest solid-state lighting retrofits undertaken around the globe as outdoor lighting inventory totals over 400,000 luminaires including street, alley, viaduct, pathway, and lake-front settings and involving both the

Violent Crime Detectives to Garfield Park More manpower stripped

CPD moves North Side

from North Side

BY THE EDITORS OF CWBCHICAGO.COM

Newly-confirmed Chicago Police Dept. [CPD] Superintendent Eddie Johnson is moving quickly to make his mark on the beleaguered department.

One of the first changes to emerge under Johnson is the reassignment of every North Side violent crime investigator from Area North headquarters at Belmont and Western to a station in Garfield Park, the department confirmed.

Word of his detective transfer plan leaked online April 12, one day before he was confirmed by the City Council's Committee on Public Safety.

Area North investigators handle all criminal probes in an area that stretches from O'Hare International Airport to North Ave. Beach and from Rogers Park to Austin.

Well-placed sources in the department and City Hall said the plan originally called for robbery, rape and burglary investigators to move with the violent crimes de-

The plan was scaled back after reporters confronted Mayor Rahm Emanuel about the leaked report at a press conference before Johnson's confirmation. "I'll make sure the CPD get you an answer whether that's true or not," Mayor Emanuel said.

North Side Ald. Tom Tunney (44th) spun the watered-down plan as a good thing. "This is an operational and investigative issue meant to ensure a quicker response to violent crimes," he said.

With Area North's investigators moving five miles south to Harrison and Kedzie, every violent crime investigator in the city will now be stationed south of the

Once Area North's investigators move five miles south to Harrison and Kedzie, every violent crime investigator in the city will be stationed south of the Eisenhower Express-

Eisenhower Expressway.

The move could be seen as a kick in the face to North Siders, where police manpower has been slashed up to 30% since Mayor Emanuel took office.

A promise by local aldermen and, supposedly, Mayor Emanuel himself to have up to 35 officers returned to the 19th District during 2016 now seems hollow to many citizens as an entire police unit moves its headquarters out of

"Do you know how long it will take a detective to respond [from the new HQ] to Uptown or Rogers Park," one source asked.

As recently as 2012, the CPD was divided into five regions or "areas." Then, as part of a consolidation program under new Mayor

Gay, bisexual men again urged to get vaccinated for deadly bacterial meningitis

BY PETER VON BUOL

With the recent discovery of two new cases of a potentially deadly strain of bacterial meningitis among members of Chicago's gay community, the city's public health commissioner urged sexually active gay and bisexual men to become vaccinated against the

"Meningitis still poses a serious threat to all men who have sex with men in Chicago and if you have not been vaccinated within the last five years, you could be at risk," said CDPH Commissioner, Julie Morita, MD, while speaking at an April 12 press conference held at the health department's downtown headquarters.

Last year, the disease caused by the Neisseria meningitidis bacteria claimed the life of one Chicago man and infected six others. While most patients afflicted with the disease usually do recover, it can be difficult for some. The disease often causes great damage as it enters the protective membranes covering a patient's brain and spinal cord. Potentially serious complications include brain damage, hearing loss, or learning disabili-

Bacterial meningitis is a rare, but severe, bacterial infection. Symptoms commonly include a fever, a headache and a stiff neck. Additional symptoms may include nausea, vomiting, an increased sensitivity to light as well as general confusion. While the disease can be treated with an antibiotic regimen, recovery is not assured. The survival rate for those who contract the disease and are treated is about 90%.

Man charged in burglary that went viral

BY THE EDITORS OF CWBCHICAGO.COM

A 20-year-old parolee is charged with the burglary of a Wicker Park home that was captured on crystal-clear surveillance images that gained attention in this newspaper and online.

Antwoyn Carroll, also known as Andrew Moffett, is charged with burglary in connection with the break-in that was reported in the 1600 block of N. Bell on March 18.

Carroll was arrested on April 16 for trespassing in the 2200 block of W. Hirsch, police said. Investigators subsequently connected him to the burglary case, footage of which began to go viral one week earlier.

State records show that Carroll, a convicted drug dealer and auto thief, is on absconder status after being paroled in Feb., 2015.

The burglary victim posted video of the break-in online after waiting over three weeks for police to send an evidence technician to collect fingerprints, footprints, and a copy of the burglary images.

Less than 48 hours later, the Chicago Police Dept. issued a statement that said detectives had picked up the video and were investigating the incident.

"The First Deputy Superintendent has also asked the Chief of Detectives and Chief of Patrol to look into whether this incident was dispatched properly and investigated in accordance with CPD standards and protocols," the department said in a press release.

Land of the shameless, land of Lincoln

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

All right! I admit it. I am a shameless Chicago booster. I love my city and the great refined energy it displays.

I have lived in a lot of cities. Some of them are exquisite - like Paris and London; Vienna and Dublin. New York and Rome, Venice, Milan and Amsterdam. They are all attractive for different reasons. For instance, Vienna and London are great urban metropolises to cook in. Grocery shop in. Find wild game or old-fashioned cuts of meat. Most of the rest are cities to eat out in

We had great adventures picking up all the ingredients we needed for remarkable dinners this Christmas in Vienna. But as much as I love Paris and Rome, the thoughts of volume grocery shopping in either city wears me out before we start. It's all about consumerism and what is available in the shops.

London's great, too, particularly if you get to Harrod's food halls; or Fortnum & Mason's. So I really appreciate what is so readily available in ordinary Chicago grocers. Treasure Island, Eataly, Mariano's or Whole Foods have it all. Cooking a fabulous dinner is easy and uncomplicated once you have all the ingredients you need.

In many ways, on a smaller but no less grand scale, is the Island Market on the Island of Islesboro, Maine. I was there for all of last summer. The petite grocery was always filled with everything you could desire, especially fish and lobsters, cheeses and fresh bread, good wine, vegetables and fresh herbs. Butter cream cakes. One-stop high-end shopping never looked so good. In Camden, Maine, on the mainland, the grocer French and Brawn was splendid.

We are also lucky that Chicago is such a substantive restaurant town. I love helping newcomers to the city find short-cuts to the discovery of reasonable, tasty local eateries. I always send people up to "Little Saigon" at Broadway and Argyle. Simple restaurants there curl your toes they are so refreshing. I also send people to Tufano's on Vernon Park Place in Little Italy for a taste of vanishing Chicago. No frills Italian was never so good. Or I point out hidden gems like Mart Anthony's on Hubbard and Racine; or Via Carducci on Division and Winchester; or Kiki's Bistro. And Greek Islands on Halsted. All of these are places where the owner is at the front door and ready to seat all the guests. Places like these have their own Chicago vibe, quirks and are truly family operated. They take great pride welcoming you to a table. They are reasonable places. Homey. Lots of regular custom-

What is worse than feeling like a stranger in a restaurant? But that's a Chicago-thing, being made to feel easily at home with a tablefull of spectacular food. What's better than the owner stopping by to schmooze and tell you what's best on the menu.

I just went to the opening of the new Wicker Park "Urban Belly" that owner chef Bill Kim (formerly of Charlie Trotter's) and his wife, Yvonne Cadiz (Charlie Trotter's and RL), opened on Damen Ave. right by the "L" station. Such high-end Asian food. You know there is an intelligent force at work in their kitchen. The big room is so tasteful. You order at the counter. Pay. Then take a table and await your food. Liquor will be available by the time this column is out.

The place was packed with UB's frequent flyers. I had the pork and cilantro dumplings. Great. And the Phat Noodle (stir-fry Udon Noodles, with Lemongrass Chicken, Crispy Pork Belly and Braised Beef). Also try the Beef Wonton with Cheddar and the Pork with Pineapple. Try the Asian donuts too. 1542 N. Damen across from Big Star Mexican.

It's hard to believe there are so many great places along Damen Ave. All add to the quality of life of this giant metropolis.

I believe that no city has grown like Chicago, savoring the intensity of the present and always having an eye on the future. Its always been like that. Between 1850 and 1910 Chicago was the fastest growing city on the planet. We went from 50,000 to 1.5 million in 60 years. We were attractive to a lot of Yankee transplants,

Chicago Mayor Long John Wentworth

European immigrants and people heading out west. All the trains crossing the continent had to stop here and passengers had to change trains. Thanks Sen. Stephen A. Douglas.

Chicago had a reputation for good restaurants and hotels from its earliest days. Mark Beaubien, one of Chicago's pioneer frontiersman operated a very simple riverfront inn at Wolf Point back before there was an official town. Fur traders were his chief customers. Beaubien would always play the fiddle for his guests after dinner. No weapons could be brought into the Inn. Members of his family are still living here today.

Potter Palmer, however, was the man who elevated hotels to the level of palaces here in the 1860s. He once entertained the Infanta of Spain. He was all about comfort and elegance. His name has become synonymous with hospitality in Chicago. His Palmer House is still in operation. And Chicago remains a place for great gatherings and assemblies.

All the antics presently underway in the Republican Party reminded me that it was Chicago who put the party and their convention on the map. Quite literally.

Back in 1860 when Dartmouth alumni "Long John" Wentworth was mayor, he and his cronies managed to convince the newly formed Republicans to hold their first Presidential Nominating Convention in Chicago. The "Wigwam," a massive wooden meeting hall, was quickly built near what is today Wacker Dr. and Lake St. It was said to be able to hold 10,000 people.

The nation was in trouble. The issue of slavery and states' rights was pulling the country apart. People were fearful of the future. The convention would determine who the Republicans would put up for president. Senator William H. Seward of New York was generally expected to get the nomination. But some Chicago politicos, like Wentworth, thought Springfield lawyer Abraham Lincoln was the the answer to their prayers.

It is believed that 40,000 people came to Chicago for the convention. When balloting began on May 18, earlier in the day a massive rally was held in support of Seward. The throngs planned to march through the downtown and then to the Wigwam.

However when Seward's supporters arrived they discovered that their credentials did not permit them to enter the convention hall. Apparently many Lincoln supporters had been already admit-

How do we love Rogers Park?

Let us count the ways of the 'Hood By Felicia Dechter

You may or may not have heard by now that the real estate website Trulia recently released its Live Well Index, which named Rogers Park as the best neighborhood in the city and also the 11th best in the nation out of 877 cities nationwide.

The index studied the best places to stay healthy and active, and ranked neighborhoods by their amount of quiet streets, number of care facilities (day cares, pharmacies, and hospitals), and playground and parks.

I've lived in Rogers Park for the last 40 years, so Trulia is not telling me anything new that my neighborhood is the best in the city. I already knew that.

What do I love about Rogers Park? That I can walk out the front door of my house and be in the park in 10 seconds and less than a minute after that, I can be on the beach. I love that when I come home and turn down my street, I can see the lakefront and feel my blood pressure drop because of its beauty. I can eat at a restaurant and catch a bus on my corner if I so choose and I can walk and get just about anything I need.

Although I will admit it's the lakefront that I love most about Rogers Park, I also am proud to live in a neighborhood filled with people of all sorts, and from all around the world. We have a small fountain in front of my house that seems to attract park-goers and they stop and take pictures with it during the summer, when the roses bloom all around it. I've heard more languages than I could ever imagine and people of all ages

Vasiliy Galat, who originally hails from the central area of the Ukraine and has lived in Rogers Park for a couple of decades, and Ruby: "The diversity and especially East Rogers Park being adjacent to Lovola Park. And the highway (Lake Shore Dr.) is moved away, so it's a friendly place to be by the beach. It's not like downtown, where you're on the beach and feel the vibration and sounds of the highway. I like also the social environment, lots of people... writers, artists, painters, it's socially friendly overall. I came here and people accepted and colors stop there and gaze and even throw coins in to make a wish.

It's the folks that live in my neighborhood, my neighbors, that make it so great and such a wonderful place to live and I'm thrilled that Trulia recognizes that greatness. (Just an FYI, the DePaul neighborhood came in No. 2 in the city and 21st nationally, followed by Uptown, which ranked third in the city and 58th nationally. Ravenswood was #6 locally and 71 nationally; North Center #7 and 77th nationally; Edgewater #8 and 80th nationally and Lincoln Square was #9

Chloe Johnston, originally an East Coast transplant who moved to Rogers Park about a year ago from Andersonville, and Paloma: "It's just amazing to live right on the beach. I really like the people -- it's the most interesting group of people I've lived with and the friendliest by far."

Cleo Wilson, who has lived in the neighborhood since 1989: "I love this park and I love the lake. This is a great walking place, picnic area and nice community. The big deal was to get the Starbucks! I like having a Whole Foods (Edgewater) and the L access. We have great public transportation in the community."

Tom Perrone, a resident for nearly four years after moving here from around Midway Airport, and Rocko: "I kind of like the vintage, the old school. It's up and coming and friendly, and near the lake is a huge plus. There's a lot more activity up here and I love the Cubs, plus we got a great deal on our apartment!"

and 91st nationally).

Because I'm biased about my 'hood, I decided to hit Loyola Park one morning with my daughter, photographer Andie Smola, to find out what a few others who live here love about Rogers Park.

Keyana Medina, an eight-year Rogers Park resident, who is raising her three children in the neighborhood: "Diversity. We happen to feel very safe here and it's perfect for the kids.'

Brenda Barnum, a Rogers Park resident for 16 years, and Elote: "Mostly the mornings with neighbors and dogs out on the beach. I live east of Sheridan with access to the beach. I love it."

Ed Mullen, who moved here from Wicker Park about a year ago, and Dakota: "I love that in the morning I can stop and pick up coffee, walk my dog to the beach and feel like I'm in the middle of nowhere, out in the country, before getting to my busy day." Photos by Andie Smola

More detailed information due on the physical and financial condition of HOAs

The Home Front Bv Don DeBat

Condominium associations and homeowner associations (HOAs) on the North Side, in Chicago and across the nation will be more closely watched by the federal government in the future under newly unveiled financial disclosure forms.

Under the Uniform Mortgage Data Program®, an initiative undertaken at the direction of the Federal Housing Finance Agency, Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae have developed two standardized Condominium Project Questionnaire forms.

The forms are designed to provide greater consistency and financial clarity for lenders as they work to collect information to determine eligibility for mortgages purchased by Fannie and Freddie. Nationwide, the number of association-governed communities is estimated at more than 350,000 projects that house more than 70 million Americans.

Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac buy conventional mortgages from

"Before the Uniform Mortgage Data Program was introduced, condo and HOA management firms were asked to fill out and update many different versions of various lenders' project eligibility questionnaire forms, making disclosure an inconsistent and time consuming process," noted Sara E. Benson.

banks and mortgage companies, package them into investment securities, and sell them to inves-

Assuming condominium associations, HOAs, and management companies comply with the forms, lenders will be provided with much more detailed information about the physical and financial condition of the developments.

Project eligibility requirements include fiscal viability, full details on the residential units, amenities, common areas, and the ownership

Associations will also be required to provide lenders with details on commercial space, hotel or resort components, income from business operations, deed or resale restrictions, and mandatory fees charged to owners for amenities or services.

"Before the Uniform Mortgage Data Program was introduced, condo and HOA management firms were asked to fill out and update many different versions of various lenders' project eligibility questionnaire forms, making disclosure an inconsistent and time consuming process," noted Sara E. Benson, president of Association Evaluation, LLC, a Chicagobased real estate and data analytics firm.

Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac created the new standardized forms based on lender and industry feedback collected over the years, as well as from a recent survey by the government-sponsored lending enterprises.

Two types of forms now will provide lenders with a convenient way to collect information from the HOAs about the condominium project in a consistent and easyto-understand format. Here are details on the two Condominium Project Questionnaire forms:

• Fannie Mae Form 1076 or Freddie Mac Form 476. This "full form" five-page questionnaire provides a list of eligibility queries to support a full approval process for new and established condominium projects. The form includes a section of questions for newly converted or rehabilitated condo projects. For rehabs, it asks if a structural and mechanical report was conducted by licensed engineer, and if major mechanical components were replaced.

The questionnaire also requests information on insurance details and financial controls on bank accounts and reserve funds. It asks if two members of the condo or HOA board of directors are required to sign any check written on the reserve account.

The questionnaire also asks for disclosure of owners who are 60 days delinquent or more in common-expense assessment payments. The questionnaire asks: If a lender acquires a unit by foreclosure, or a deed-in-lieu of foreclosure, is the lender responsible for paying delinquent assessments?

• Fannie Mae Form 1077 or Freddie Mac Form 477. This "short form" four-page questionnaire provides a shorter list of questions to facilitate a limited or simplified review of condominium projects. This form omits the section of questions targeted to newly converted or rehabilitated condo projects.

While lender use of these new condominium project questionnaire forms is optional at this time, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac are strongly encouraging lenders to begin using and retaining them in the project review file.

"As part of a lender's underwriting review of the project, these forms will help streamline the evaluation of condominium projects and create greater consistency and efficiencies throughout the industry," noted a spokesperson for the government-sponsored lending enterprises.

Follow this link or more information on the program: www.FannieMae.com/content/news/umdpannouncement-march-2016.pdf

According to the Federal Housing Finance Agency, the Uniform Mortgage Data Program will provide the following benefits to lenders, condo associations, HOAs and management firms:

 A streamlined process. The forms require information in a consistent format, regardless of the lender. Condo associations, HOAs and management firms will be able to complete either the full or short form once, and then easily update the forms as information changes, saving them time and ef-

 Greater consistency. With clear and consistent terminology, lenders, condo associations, HOAs and management firms will have a common understanding of the data needed for the project evaluation process.

· Faster, easier. Lenders are likely to receive the required information more quickly as condos, HOAs and management firms become familiar with the standardized forms and can update the data more easily. The result is likely a faster turnaround as lenders gather the information they need for their project eligibility review.

NEXT WEEK: Condominium and HOA experts critique the Uniform Mortgage Data Program and make suggestions for refinements.

Bauler Park Playlot to get new playground equipment

Activists in the Lincoln Park community have secured the Chicago Park District's commitment for "Chicago Plays!" funds for new playground equipment at the Bauler Park playlot, 501 W. Wis-

The goal is to begin renovations later this year.

There will be a community meeting at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 27 at The Church of the Three Crosses, 333 W. Wisconsin St., on the initial redesign and to discuss possible improvements beyond CPD funding.

The CPD purchased this two-thirds-acre property in 1970 for park development. Initially called Ash Park, the site was renamed Bauler Park in 1980. The new name honors Mathias "Paddy' Bauler (1890-1977), a corrupt, colorful and controversial figure in Chicago politics. Bauler used his tavern business to create a political organization that propelled him to a 34-year (1933-1967) run as alderman and Democratic ward committeeman for the 43rd Ward. He was most well known for saying that "Chicago ain't ready for reform."

Enclave row home community opens in Bucktown

BY DEBAT MEDIA SERVICES

Enclave, a new-construction development of 49 upscale row homes, is underway on a two-acre site at 2500 W. Cortland St., just steps from "The 606" jogging and biking trail, in the Bucktown neighborhood.

"Enclave is a unique collection of new, contemporary-style three-bedroom and four-bedroom row homes designed by an award-winning architect to appeal to move-up buyers coming from condominiums and downtown apartments," said Jennifer Arons of Guardian Properties, the developer of project in a joint venture with Chicago-based Harlem Irving Companies. Enclave held their grand opening Saturday.

Each three-story or four-story row home at Enclave will feature four bedrooms, 3.5 baths, and some homes feature a penthouse family room off the roof deck, 2,270 to 3,027 square feet of living area and a two-car garage. Pre-construction base prices range from $669,900 to $759,900.

The development is bounded by Homer St. on the north, Cortland on the south, and Campbell Ave. on the east. Plans call for Enclave to be built on the former factory site of the Phoenix Fastener Co., which is scheduled be razed this spring to make way for the row homes.

"The row-home floor plans at Enclave showcase urban living at its best," Arons noted. "These unique row homes are up to 21' wide with 10'-high ceilings on the main living level—features buyers typically expect to find in $1-million single-family detached homes in Bucktown."

The row homes feature feesimple ownership, just like singlefamily detached homes.

Designed by architects Pappageorge Haymes, the glassy, contemporary facades of Enclave flood the residences with light. Enclave's interiors are spacious. Eight open floor plans are featured, and all residences have multiple outdoor spaces.

"Each row home has a professionally landscaped yard, balcony and open roof deck that provides space to entertain and unwind," Arons said.

Residence A, a four-bedroom, 3.5-bath row home showcases 2,861 square feet of living space on four levels. The residence includes a penthouse family room that opens to the roof deck. The front door opens to an inviting foyer. The first-floor includes a den or bedroom with adjoining to a full bath. A utility room and two-car garage complete level one.

Steps lead up from the foyer to the expansive 20-by-12½-foot living room which has access to a front balcony. The adjoining dining room measures 18½ by 14 feet. To the rear of the open second level is an impressive island kitchen with access to a balcony, a laundry room and powder room.

Enclave kitchens are equipped with top-of-the-line Bosch® stainless-steel appliances.

The master-bedroom suite features a large walk-in closet and a private master bath with doublebowel vanity, shower and tub. Two additional bedrooms are to the rear of the home. They feature spacious closets and share a full bath.

The top floor of Residence A features a 16½-by-14½-foot family room. Sliding glass doors open to a private roof deck ideal for entertaining.

"Buyers also can personalize their brand new, modern home at Enclave with exquisite designer finishes and European-style cabinetry," Arons said. High-end Energy Star® certified appliances are standard.

Buyers have a choice of quartz or granite countertops in a variety of colors, European-style cabinetry, stainless-steel under-mount sink and recessed-can lighting.

The master bath showcases 1¼-inch quartz or granite vanity top, soaking tub, walk-in shower with frameless clear glass door, 12-by-24-inch porcelain shower wall tile and floor tile.

Row-home interiors feature 10'-high ceilings on the main living level and ceiling heights of nine feet on the first floor and upper floors. Hardwood flooring is standard on the main living level, while 12-by-24-inch porcelain tile is included in in foyer. Bedrooms are carpeted wall-to-wall.

TV jacks and telephone jacks with CAT-5 wiring are standard in all bedrooms, living room and family room. Carbon monoxide detectors and smoke detectors are wired with battery back-up. Security system is standard.

Parks & Recreation

The 606 Trail, a short 1½-block stroll south of Enclave, is an elevated 2.7 mile-long bike and jogging venue which runs along Bloomingdale Ave. from Ashland Ave. west to Ridgeway Ave.

The 14.6-acre 606 Trail provides a recreational connection to Humboldt Park and includes several new pocket parks. The trail, which features 38 bridges, connects sections of the Bucktown, Wicker Park, Logan Square and Humboldt Park neighborhoods.

Also, just steps from Enclave, at 2554 W. Moffat, is Lucy Flower Park—an intimate city park featuring a play lot for children surrounded by shade trees.

"Lucy Flower Park has long been considered the 'hidden gem' of Bucktown," said Arons. The family friendly park has recently received a renovated playground. The play lot is surrounded by mature shade trees, a setting attractive to families with small children.

Features in the new playground include a soft play surface, modern playground equipment with age-appropriate features, benches, picnic tables, a sandbox, raised flower beds and a small water feature.

Restaurants & Nightlife

"Restaurants and nightlife abound in Bucktown, a community known for its unique artistic and cultural vibe," Arons said.

Nearby restaurants include: 90 Miles Cuban Café, Big Star, Club Lucky, Feast, Ipsento Coffee, Irazu, Lazo's Tacos and Piece Pizza. Nightlife and bistros include: Blind Robin, Miller's Café, Stella's, and the famed Empty Bottle for live rock music.

Shopping attractions include: All Star Pet Care, Asrai Garden, Hungryman Gallery, Linda's Flowers & Balloons, Lululemon Athletica, Nike and RSVP Gallery.

"With a nice selection of restaurants, nightlife, trendy boutiques, great recreational opportunities, and abundant public transportation, Bucktown really has it all," Arons said.

Its hard to fathom that the man who is still known as "honest" Abe got the nomination through the heavy-handed intervention of Chicago's political bosses. On the other hand, could Seward have had the soul to guide the nation through its darkest hours?

Gainer proposes plan to stop bullets with jobs

Cook County Commissioner Bridget Gainer [10th] is proposing a plan to address what she calls a crisis of local teen joblessness leading to rising crime rates and lost opportunity.

In response to the problem, Gainer wants to direct government spending, incentivize local vendors and facilitate employers and non-profits across Cook County to hire teenagers this summer. She is asking the Cook County Commission and local chambers of commerce, churches and businesses to join her in urgent action.

"Violence is on the rise in Chicago and Cook County neighborhoods, and communities and police departments are bracing for the worst this summer," Gainer said. "Nothing stops a bullet like a job. We must act now to give young people a better way to spend their summer."

She said Cook County can't wait for the state or federal government to act in support of jobs programs.

"Government can't fix this on its own," Gainer said. "We need to attack this from all sides, we need to form the biggest safety net this city has ever seen to take immediate action to create hundreds of jobs and put young people on the path to success."

A summer job is one step on the path to stable employment and economic stability for young people across Chicago, according to Arne Duncan, the former Secretary of Education who now is leading an effort to engage and employ young people 16-24.

"We have a long way to go but need to leave no stone unturned in creating opportunities for youth, especially those most at risk," Duncan said.

Under Gainer's plan, all elective Cook County spending not required for life, safety or health will be challenged and deferred to create funds for summer jobs programs at partner organizations such as the Chicago Cook Workforce Partnership, One Summer Chicago, Alternative Schools Network and Chicago Urban League.

Qualified Cook County bidders will be eligible to earn an incentive of up to one-half of one percent on county funded projects if they hire Chicago and Cook County teens to work on the projects.

Chambers of commerce across the county, and individual small businesses, will be able to tap into a network of young people looking for summer jobs.

"Everyone is very concerned about keeping young people active and busy for the summer," Chatham Business Association executive director Melinda Kelly said. "This will allow small businesses to join together to employ young people from their own community."

A by-product of summer jobs is the friendships formed between small business owners and enterprising young people, she continued. Often, Kelly said, the relationship leads to life-long mentorship.

"Summer employment helps youth provide necessities such as food and other essentials to their households, while they learn they have many options ahead of them to help them become successful community citizens," Kelly said.

According to the University of Illinois at Chicago Great Cities Institute's recent report, "A Lost Generation," a vast majority of Chicago males between the ages of 16 and 19 were jobless in 2014. Particularly hard hit were minority groups, with 88.5 percent of African-American males and 87.4 percent of Hispanic males unemployed.

The overall Cook County picture was not much better for teen males, with 87 percent of African-Americans, 78 percent of Hispanics and 74 percent of white teens unemployed.

"Everyone has a critical stake in providing jobs and hope for our young people," The Rev. Jesse L. Jackson Sr. said. "The county board, city, private sector employers, all of us have to work together to stem the violence and show our youth another way. Make no mistake, a job given today is a life saved tomorrow."

New Tax Increment Financing district for Lathrop Homes redevelopment ensures 100% of tax revenue generated goes to slush fund

BY CHRIS LENTINO Illinois Policy Institute

The corruption and unfairness associated with Tax Increment Financing districts [TIFs] in Chicago is well documented. TIFs have served as political slush funds, into which the mayor diverts millions of tax dollars sometimes to reward his political donors.

But Chicago's latest TIF scheme involving public housing known as the Lathrop Homes borders on criminal

In theory, TIFs are a mechanism allowing blighted neighborhoods to return to vitality by providing economic incentives to developers. TIFs freeze the existing tax rate for a designated area and collect all taxes above that rate for use in the TIF. Individual taxing bodies (the city of Chicago, Chicago Public Schools, Metropolitan Water Reclamation District, etc.) get their usual share of the money at the frozen rate for at minimum 24 years.

The city is now planning to use this system to divert property taxes in a well-established neighborhood toward a brand-new TIF fund. How? By creating a new TIF district in conjunction with a redevelopment of dilapidated public housing, which is sitting on prime riverfront real estate.

Lathrop Homes, located on 32 acres on the North Side at Diversey Ave. and the Chicago River, was once considered the gold standard in public housing. It spurned the typical high-rise model of public housing in favor of brick row houses and smaller apartment buildings. The National Register of Historic Places added the homes in 2012 in part due to the open space designs of noted landscape architect Jens Jensen.

It has since fallen into a state of disrepair and needs to be overhauled. The Plan Commission approved a new development for that area that would keep public housing while adding new market-rate units. However, that the plan would eliminate 500 public housing units.

Commentary

In order to achieve this development, the city is in the process of creating a brand new TIF district on that site. The city has held informational meetings in the community but it's only a matter of time until the TIF is presented before the City Council.

It's important to note that the land in the proposed TIF district is owned by the Chicago Housing Authority and is currently tax-exempt. That is, no property tax is collected for any property on the Lathrop Homes site. If the city approves the new TIF, the current property-tax rate of zero percent will be frozen and all taxes collected will go to the TIF.

In other words, all property taxes collected on the redeveloped Lathrop Homes site – which will house not just people with affordable housing vouchers, but also people paying full residential and commercial rents – will be deposited into a TIF account to be spent as the mayor sees fit after the site redevelopment costs have been paid.

Chicago Public Schools [CPS] gets nothing. The Chicago Public Library gets nothing. The Chicago Park District gets nothing. The only entity that would receive property-tax dollars from the site over the next 24 years would be the city-run TIF fund. And to make matters worse, Chicago residents will see their own property taxes rise as a result of this scheme, as the dollars taken from these other taxing bodies budgets will have to be replaced with new dollars from those residing outside of a TIF district.

To be sure, this isn't a little-known swath of property. This is prime real estate that is likely to bring in tens of millions of dollars annually to the TIF. For reference, three nearby TIF districts had 2014 closing balances in excess of $10 million [Addison South, $11.2 million, Fullerton/Milwaukee, $14.9 million, and Western Ave. South, $16.5 million].

This latest play with TIF funds circles back to a greater discussion surrounding the budget crises of the city and CPS. The mayor often cries poor while handing out millions of dollars to connected companies through TIF deals. The Lathrop Homes development is a joint partnership including Related Midwest, a friend of Mayor Rahm Emanuel. Related Midwest employees gave over $13,000

Task force proposes workplace changes to save city money, address absenteeism

A recent study on absenteeism among city employees zeros in on "overt absenteeism," or unexcused absences, and proposes extensive workplace changes for 34,000 workers on the city payroll.

One such change started April 15, when about 15,000 employees were required to "clock" in and out daily using a fingerprint swipe system.

"This report is a first step towards lowering absenteeism," task force co-chair Ald. Michele Smith [43rd] said. "Now that we understand the extent of the challenge, our job is to monitor the city's progress to curtail absenteeism as much as possible and as quickly as possible to reduce the negative impact it has on city services."

Smith called for the creation of the City of Chicago Absenteeism

Task Force during budget hearings last fall.

The group's report recommends standardized record keeping, uniform disciplinary guidelines and better supervisor training, among other measures, to recapture lost productivity and avoid unnecessary overtime.

A series of actions, some with longer-term and shorter-term implementation strategies, is suggested to combat absenteeism in city government, including:

- Reforming disciplinary measures and reporting persistent patterns of absenteeism by next summer
- Creating a public internet "dashboard" to go online this spring so that citizens and public officials can easily track workforce data
- Transitioning the police and fire departments from paper-based systems to more accurate electronic timekeeping structures by the end of 2018

Strides already taken to eliminate absenteeism also were noted in case studies, including one from the Department of Fleet and Facility Management. That department's study revealed that lost work hours dropped by one-third between 2012 and 2015, and that "overt absenteeism" was slashed by 65 percent due to internal department reforms, many of which are encouraged in the task force report.

The city estimates $10 million per year is lost because of "overt absenteeism," but the savings from addressing the problem could be much larger. In one department alone, the Office of Emergency Management and Communications, $3 million dollars is spent each year on excess overtime due to no-shows.

The report says "overt absenteeism" accounts for about 12 percent of overall lost work. Addressing the issue and lowering that number can have significant impact while also improving morale, according to the report.

"We still have a long way to go, and we'll be monitoring the city's progress," Smith said, adding, "Taxpayers deserve the highest level of city services delivered in the most cost efficient way, and we don't have a moment to lose to start giving them what they pay for. Rooting out absenteeism is one way to do it."

In a recent letter to constituents, Smith referred to the pledge she made during budget hearings last fall to help the city "work smarter" and use tax dollars more efficiently.

"Uncovering and defining this complex problem is just the beginning," she said. "I intend to make sure the city council continues monitoring absenteeism rates."

She also will track the rate at which changes are implemented for all city workers.

"I hope to be able to report back on progress on the on-going fight to spend your tax dollars wisely and secure the services you pay for," she said.

She welcoms comments and feedback at her office, 2523 N. Halsted St., or by calling 773-348-9500.

in Seattle and other locations as part of a wireless mesh network.

Many people already know that their cell phones and computers share data with their providers, the NSA and a host of other data-hungry watchers, but Chicago police are also now using Stingray boxes to ping and track cell phones in the area, logging location data for thousands of drivers, passengers and pedestrians that could be used to establish the whereabouts of a suspect, pursue criminals, as evidence in traffic disputes or perhaps for crowd control. These too could be added to smart lights.

The Wi-Fi tracking devices appear as white boxes mounted on poles or street lights. The data interconnects through a wireless mesh network with existing traffic cameras, police squad vehicles, networks of cameras and other interfaces on the emerging fiber network, and a host of authorities in the region, including police. Officially, the mesh network aids communication during emergency scenarios, but also can function as a roaming live-time surveillance network.

City of Chicago and the Chicago Park District. Those agencies are charged with installing and maintaining their own lighting.

The program will replace approximately 85% of the city's outdoor lights changing the night light in the city from the familiar orange glow most recognize when arriving home on a flight at night to a bright white.

The focus will be on the most common fixture types; ornamental fixtures may be converted in later stages.

With prices for longer-lasting and more energy efficient LED lights falling dramatically over the past five years, this is an opportune time for the City to evaluate the full inventory of street, traffic and underpass lights for a complete retrofit.

"By bringing our outdoor lighting into the 21st century, we will make our streets, sidewalks, alleys, and bike paths safer and improve the quality of life throughout Chicago's neighborhoods" said Mayor Emanuel. "New lights will provide more reliable and improved nighttime visibility, giving communities a greater sense of safety. The process to achieve this for our communities may be complex, but replacement of the HPS lamps will come at no additional cost to Chicago taxpayers. The new lights will consume 50-75% less electricity, generating significant electricity cost savings that will be used to finance the cost of the modernization."

In coordination with the Chicago Dept. of Transportation (CDOT), the Chicago Dept. of Innovation and Technology, and the Chicago Park District, the project is being spearheaded by the Chicago Infrastructure Trust (CIT), which launches the procurement process on Monday by issuing a Request for Qualifications and Proposals.

The project will include a public engagement process to solicit input from residents about preferences and priorities for neighborhood lighting. CDOT will continue to make targeted repairs or replacement of poles and wiring as part of the city's capital program.

"Our infrastructure investments must address the ranging needs and priorities of working families, thus community participation in this process is critical to deliver a high value project for taxpayers." said CIT Chairman Kurt Summers.

"[The city] receives more than 100 calls each day to report lighting outages," CDOT Commissioner Rebekah Scheinfeld said. "The new lighting management system will greatly improve the efficiency of city forces and allow us to respond proactively when outages do occur and restore service more quickly. The longer life of LED lights will also greatly improve the reliability of our lighting system, enhancing safety for Chicago residents."

The project will require bidders to include a plan for maximizing the participation of Chicago's workforce. The Project pre-submittal conference will be on May 3 at the new Malcolm X College Conference Center at 1900 W. Jackson Blvd. All contracts with the selected bidder(s) will go before the City Council for approval. The work is expected to start early next year. Chicago's streetlights will continue to be owned and operated by the city of Chicago.

The Smart Street Lighting project may also include several cost-effective, non-lighting technology upgrades in which the streetlights are used as a platform to deliver other public goods and services, raising revenues or eliminating costs in the process. This could include technology such as wireless internet or emergency services applications.

Riverview Bridge to soar over Chicago River

Construction to start this Winter

BY JAKE MILLER

Columbia Chronicle

Plans for an bike trail that will stretch across the Chicago River from the Roscoe Village to Avondale neighborhoods are beginning to move forward.

Originally presented in 2012 by the Chicago Dept. of Transportation [CDOT], the plans proposed connecting Clark Park, 3400 N. Rockwell St., and California Park, 3843 N. California Ave.

The Riverview Bridge, called the Addison Underbridge Connector in the proposal, will create a multiuse trail for cyclists and pedestrians that will begin on the Chicago River's east embankment at Clark Park. The trail will cross over to the river's other side at the Addison Street Bridge.

The trail will stretch approximately one mile and be suspended as high as 16 feet above the river in some locations, according to documents from the City of Chicago.

Construction on the trail is anticipated to begin this winter, said Susan Hofer, spokeswoman for CDOT.

The project fulfills residents' needs to leave the urban environment and reconnect with nature, which promotes health, recreation and community involvement, said Margaret Frisbie, executive director of Friends of the Chicago River, a volunteer organization dedicated to revitalizing the Chicago River.

Morgan Bryan, a local resident, said he is excited about the trail's development.

"I have a family—two young daughters and a wife—and we have to throw our bikes on a rack and go up north somewhere to be able to ride safely away from traffic," he said. "If we could have something on the river that's completely away from cars, I would be very happy."

Bryan also noted he could commute to work on the trail in addition to using it for recreation.

While developments along the natural landscape occasionally incite criticism, the river bank the Riverview Bridge would be constructed on is largely uninhabitable, Frisbie said.

"This project actually opens up the river and improves it rather than fencing it off or making it less accessible," she said. Peter Schlossman, president of the Horner Park Advisory Council, said some residents were concerned about the path's design. Some parents are worried that if the curves are too steep or the corners are too sharp, children playing along the trail may be exposed to dangerous bicycle traffic. However, Schlossman said this concern is minor.

Horner Park, a neighborhood north of the Riverview Bridge, will also begin construction on a new bike path in 2017 that will run underneath the Irving Park Bridge to coincide with renovations that mark its 100th anniversary, Schlossman said. There are currently plans to connect the two trails to create a continuous path.

The Riverview Bridge is financed by federal, state and local funds, according to Hofer. She added that a total price cannot be tallied until a contract has been awarded for construction. However, a CDOT presentation estimated the cost at $9.5 million.

Frisbie added that many would like to eventually see a single, continuous trail running along the entire length of the Chicago River system.

"There's a whole system of trails throughout the city, but you have to ride on streets alongside cars to get to them, and it's very dangerous," Bryan said. "I can't image this trail being a negative. To this day, I can't believe we don't have something along the river."

Give a working bloke a break

As a full-time student on Chicago's North Side, driving for Lyft has been a great experience. When I have time in between classes or on the weekends, I know that I can hop in my car and make some extra money.

However, I hear again and again that ridesharing is becoming a less affordable option in Chicago thanks to the incredibly high fees tacked on by City Hall. That is why I am so sad to hear that Alderman Anthony Beale (9th) is at it again – trying to place unnecessary regulations on an industry that is already regulated.

If the city cannot keep up with changing times and a strong, innovative, new economy, Chicago will suffer. This continued battle for more regulations and fees is suffocating a thriving industry that brings millions of dollars in revenue to our city every year.

The City That Works needs to work for today, tomorrow, and the future.

Khaled Ahmed, Andersonville

No time to waste when city's reputation and future are on the line

The Rev. Michael Pfleger, the activist priest, has been in the headlines again, commenting on his opinions about how to minimize Chicago's violence. His motives might be understandable as he tries to be helpful. Nevertheless, his ideas are naïve, inaccurate, and unfortunately misguided.

He is reported to have said that "you can have the best police department in the world, but the most powerful impact on violence are jobs and education. In that order. Period."

That popular rhetoric is simply not true, and there is no organized body of scientific evidence to support those unfortunate suppositions. Those comments mislead and tease the masses.

One cannot construct the 10th floor of a high-rise building before a stable, secure foundation is created. That's why buildings are constructed from the bottom up. It's unfair and perhaps even cruel to tell people otherwise.

The reasons for our pathetic violence, which I yet again wish to bring to the attention of readers, are the following:

Impulse control is the most significant problem in America. The increasingly bizarre, pathetic, almost unimaginable, violence of myriad kinds is predictable and, lamentably, will continue to increase.

The intact family as we have known it (meaning two effective, on-duty parents in the home) has been collapsing. And there has been a move away from a committed connection to an organized belief system or religion. Without these two involvements the resulting behavior of people (gang members and other kinds of "terrorists") will often resemble that of untrained pit bulls off a leash.

It makes no difference what one's political beliefs are, or what one's race, religion, ethnicity, or socio-economic status may be. Behavior is shaped from the time of birth, with some predispositions even preceding that. The influence of contemporary electronics further advertises problematic scenarios.

The only strategy that we can follow now, if we have the courage, wisdom, and resolve to do so, is the age-old position: When dealing with terrorists of any kind there must be a show of force that is external and superior to that of the wrongdoers. Nothing else will work.

Debate and deny all one might, but our beleaguered, noble city's reputation and future are on the line. There is no time to waste.

Easy Access: Chicago shops large and small latest targets of growing trend of ADA Title III accessibility lawsuits

BY STEPHANE GRIMOLBY Cook County Record

Editor's Note: This is the first installment in a three-part series examining the recent rise in ADA Title III accessibility lawsuits in the Chicago area. Coming installments will take a look at who is bringing the lawsuits and the impact of the lawsuits on businesses and organizations.

Fabiola Tyrawa believes she knows all of the customers at her Chicago coffee shop, but she couldn't put a face on the name of the woman who sued her.

"I'm really close with my customers," said Tyrawa, owner of Fabcakes at N. Wells and E. Superior in River North. "I know everybody coming in. I know everybody coming out. I know everybody's name."

So, in 2015, when she and her shop were sued by a woman with disabilities who claimed she couldn't enter the shop without assistance, Tyrawa said she was floored.

The lawsuit, brought under the Title III public accommodation provisions of the Americans with Disabilities Act, alleged Chicago resident Mary Mizerk, who suffers from osteoarthritis and uses a wheelchair, could not independently enter Fabcakes because the existing entrance ramp was too steep and left too little space to open the door and enter the shop.

Mizerk was represented by attorney John L. Steele, of the Accessibility Law Group in Chicago and formerly of Prenda Law - a firm that has famously faced legal repercussions over its long-running controversial practice of pursuing quick settlements from people suspected of illegally downloading pornographic films. Steele himself faces disciplinary action from the Illinois Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission for his alleged conduct in relation to Prenda's legal actions.

Ultimately, Tyrawa and her landlords settled their case, paying $2,500 each.

But it left a bad taste in the mouth of the coffee shop owner, who says a handful of her regular customers are from the Chicagobased disability advocacy group Access Living and have had no issue entering the shop with their wheelchairs.

"It would have cost $10,000 to $20,000 [to fight the lawsuit]," Tyrawa said. "I'm a small business. I don't have that kind of money."

It's no secret to labor and employment litigators that businesses are at increasing risk of being sued for discrimination under ADA Title III.

According to data compiled by the law firm Seyfarth Shaw, ADA Title III lawsuits surged in 2014 when 4,436 suits were filed nationwide, up from 2,722 lawsuits filed in 2013 - an increase of 63%.

Last year saw a more modest rise, with 4,789 ADA Title III lawsuits filed in federal court. But the eight percent increase from the previous year shows that ADA litigation isn't going anywhere, lawyers said.

Chicago's federal court saw an even higher percentage increase in 2015 and is on pace for more growth this year.

In 2014, 44 of these lawsuits were filed in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Last year, that number more than doubled to 94 cases. In fact, Illinois posted one of the biggest jumps in ADA litigation in the country, according to Seyfarth Shaw.

If the first few months of 2016 are any indication, the trend is alive and well. According to federal court records, as of the end of March, 29 ADA lawsuits had been brought against private businesses in Chicago federal court.

Why the sudden increase?

Though the ADA was written in 1990, the Dept. of Justice in 2010 further defined its terms of compliance with new ADA Accessibility Guidelines. Those guidelines went into effect in 2012.

As with any new regulation, it takes time before business owners become fully aware of their responsibilities, said Kevin Fritz, an associate attorney in employment defense at Seyfarth Shaw's Chicago office.

"It takes a few years for people to realize what's required," he said. "After something goes into effect, it doesn't necessarily get any action for a few years. And that's where we are now.

Other big cities have recognized the power of the ADA, and people in Chicago are attempting to make sure businesses there comply with the regulations as they do in New York City and other large urban areas, he said.

Steele said strong advocacy groups - like Access Living - also have made an impact, providing momentum for those with disabilities to gain the same access to Chicago establishments as those without disabilities.

Yet perhaps most prominently, the ADA allows attorneys representing clients demanding access improvements to also request attorneys fees, an award not readily available in most advocacy litigation.

"If not for that provision, we couldn't file most of these suits," said Steele, noting most of his clients couldn't afford the lawsuits on their own.

However, some believe the provision attracts lawyers to engage in "drive-by" litigation, filing numerous suits with the belief that most parties will settle quickly to avoid expensive fees incurred from compliance measures, expert testimony and prolonged attorneys fees.

Steele balked at the assertion that the cases he brings might be labeled "frivolous," though he did note that only a handful of the ADA suits he's filed have gone to trial - the rest have been settled fairly quickly.

"It's not some get-rich-quick

"It's not some get-rich-quick scheme plan for lawyers," he said. "This is by far the least profitable avenue of law that I can imagine doing."

"[There are] a couple of instances where a business [has] tried to intimidate my client, [saying], 'This is frivolous,'" Steele said. "I say, 'Great! You want to fight and pay more of my fees?'

"(T)here's just no plausible argument, in my opinion. We have photographs. We have evidence that you're not in compliance."

Marca Bristo, CEO and president of Access Living, said such lawsuits can raise awareness of discrimination against those with disabilities.

"From our perspective, people with disabilities have the right to have the Americans with Disabilities Act enforced," she said.

"We fought to have the law on the books, and the establishments who haven't come into compliance have the responsibility to do so."

But she conceded they also can risk a backlash against even organized nonprofits fighting to protect civil rights.

"I am aware, and have been for some time, of the practice of 'drive-by lawsuits,'" she said. "Sometimes, unscrupulous attorneys go out and find people and file lawsuits and settle for money. Those we strongly and vehemently object to."

Regardless of intent, Bill Pokorny, a partner at the Chicago law firm of Franczek Radelet who represents national hotel and restaurant chains, said the numbers show ADA litigation is here to stay. That's why the law firm published an article last year advising clients to be proactive in ADA compliance.

But Pokorny said business owners should also keep in mind that, with hundreds of thousands of businesses in the Chicago area, it's not likely that a small business owner will face ADA litigation.

"Even with a good chunk of these lawsuits being filed, the odds of any individual business facing a lawsuit is fairly low," Pokorny said.

"We're talking, at most, tens of lawsuits by any given tester or law firm. So, certainly, for the ones who are unlucky enough to be sued, it's a headache and an expense.

"For others, what it really does is emphasize the need to pay attention to the ADA and make sure that they're in compliance. Not only is there the risk of liability, but in most cases, it really is the right thing to do so everyone can enjoy their services and accommodations."

Pulp fiction convention rockets into town, celebrates early adventure stories

BY JOHN PORUBSKY

You may certainly have heard of Superman, Batman and Luke Skywalker but much of the inspiration for those characters go back to the days of "pulps" which included characters like Doc Savage, The Shadow and Flash Gordon, respectively.

These earlier icons will be honored along with all the other larger than life heroes of the pulps at the 16th annual Windy City Pulp and Paper Convention, which will unfold at the Westin Lombard Yorktown Center from Friday through Sunday.

The three-day event draws hundreds of aficionados from all across the country to celebrate this uniquely American form of popular literature. Attendees hear from pulp-fiction historians, see original vintage pulp art displays, watch films adapted from the great pulp stories, bid on rare pulps and pop culture artifacts and peruse over 150 tables of hard-to-find collectibles including rare issues of such seminal publications as Adventure, Astounding, Black Mask, Doc Savage, The Shadow, Spicy Detective, Weird Tales, and thousands more.

Pulp magazines are inexpensive fiction magazines that were published from 1896 through the 1950s, which thrived in the years between the two World Wars and vied with radio and the movies as the era's most popular form of mass entertainment.

These periodicals, printed on coarse pulpwood paper and boasting eye-grabbing, often lurid cover paintings, introduced to the American reading public such immortal writers as Dashiell Hammett, Zane Grey, Raymond Chandler, Ray Bradbury, L. Ron Hubbard, Robert E. Howard, H. P. Lovecraft, and Robert Hein-

The term "pulp" derives from the cheap wood pulp paper on which the magazines were printed; in contrast, magazines printed on higher quality paper were called "glossies" or "slicks."

In their first decades, pulps were most often priced at 10¢ per magazine, while competing slicks cost 25¢ a piece. Pulps were the successors to the penny dreadfuls, dime novels and short fiction magazines of the 19th century. Modern superhero comic books are sometimes considered descendants of "hero pulps" and widely recognized as the inspirations for such popculture mainstays as Star Trek, Star Wars, and virtually every comic-book hero from Batman to Spider-Man to Zorro (who originated in the pulps). Currently, a new Doc

Savage movie has long been in development by writer/director Shane Black (Lethal Weapon, Iron Man 3).

This year's convention celebrates the 90th anniversary of the science fiction magazines. The first science fiction magazine, Amazing Stories, launched in April 1926, and was soon followed by many competitors, including Wonder Stories, Astounding Stories (still being published today as Analog) and Startling Stories. The legendary character Buck Rogers first saw print in Amazing Stories in 1928. For many years, Amazing Stories and its companion titles, Fantastic Adventures and Fantastic, were published by the Ziff-Davis chain out of Chicago.

Among the panels at this year's convention will be a presentation on the art of Frank R. Paul, the dean of science fiction illustrators.

Chicagoland illustrators such as Scott

Douglas Klauba, Gustafson, Thomas Gianni and Gary Gianni will be on hand to participate at the book signing panel for the upcoming The Art of Horror: An Illustrated History.

This year's convention will also recognize the 120th anniversary of the first pulp magazine, the October 1896 issue of Argosy. With its conversion from a boy's magazine, Argosy created a format that would dominate popular fiction for the next 50 years.

Programming includes an art show featuring rarely seen original cover paintings to, and interior illustrations from many of the science fiction magazines and Argosy. There will also be a special display of art from illustrator Jon Arfstrom, presented by his family. And visionary artist Jeff Jones will also be honored in a presentation Friday night.

Other attractions include: 150+ table dealer showroom boasting one of the world's largest assemblies of vintage pulp, paperback, old time-radio, movie memorabilia, and related collectibles for sale on all three days.

There will be Friday and Saturday night auctions of rare, muchsought-after pulp magazines, pulp art, and memorabilia, a Pulp Film Festival which will screen titles adapted from classic science fiction stories which made their initial appearance in the pulps and a Pulp Art Show displaying an unparalleled collection of rare and highly sought after original pulp and digest maga-

Admission ranges from $35 for all three days to $10 to $25. Ages 13 and under admitted free with parent. Fee includes access to all convention events and souvenir program book containing pulp articles and reprints. The event will be at the Westin Lombard Yorktown Center, 70 Yorktown Center, Lombard, call 888-627-9031.

Talk on architectural restoration, preservation of old wood

The Old Town Triangle Association is hosting a free presentation at 7 p.m. on Tuesday on the care and restoration of original wood in vintage architectural homes, presented by Jeff Ediger, an expert and owner of Oak Brothers, a shop dedicated to the restoration of architectural wood.

The talk will be held at the Old Town Triangle, 1763 N. North Park.

SOAR to host meeting with Ald. Reilly May 4

The Streeterville Organization of Active Residents will host a Town Hall meeting with the Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] 5 p.m. Wednesday, May 4, at Loews Chicago Hotel, 455 N. Park. Topics to be discussed include neighborhood safety and traffic issues, as well as the state of the City of Chicago.

A Q-and-A session following the presentation and will be moderated by NBC/ WMAQ investigative reporter Charlie Wojciechowski. For more information call 312-280-2596.

Youth film festival celebrates 'Reel Look'

The Ninth Annual Chicago Youth Community Film Festival will be held May 9 in the Claudia Cassidy Theatre on the second floor of the Chicago Cultural Center, 78 E. Washington St.

The festival is part of the "Reel Look" film program, which was launched in 2007 to encourage at-risk youth to stay in school and graduate.

Central to the program's goal is the prevention of youth violence.

Following a full year of in-depth filmmaking classes, the program culminates with the gala screening of the students' creative videos, which bring the societal issues youth face every day to the forefront of public discussions.

The film program combines instructional learning and after-school programming to engage teens in media of high interest to their generation. The ultimate aim is to serve as an effective vehicle to keep youth off the streets and civically engaged.

Films made by program graduates have won awards in national and international

A reception begins at 4 p.m. May 9, followed by an awards program at 4:30 p.m. and the premiere screening at 5:45 p.m. For more information call 773-728-4030.

Officials take water treatment experience on the road to India

A team of current and retired engineers and plant managers from the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago (MWRD) along with Commissioner Frank Avila traveled to the other side of the world to show how improvements in local water quality at home in Chicago can make a world of difference to the people handling water treatment in India.

The group participated in the trip that was organized and sponsored by the Rotary Club and Bharathi Theertha, a non-profit organization that aims to improve the education, environment and health of the poverty-stricken in India and the U.S.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to impart our knowledge and share our experiences in the water treatment industry," said MWRD

Office: 773-465-9700 Cell: 773-290-7616 Commissioner Frank Avila. "We believe our message will resonate and make a lasting impact into helping improve conditions in India. We were proud to learn that the MWRD is well-respected in India, and making this trip will strengthen both our reputation and relationship with these communities."

MWRD officials worked with water experts from local treatment plants in India along with Andhra University, the Andhra Pradesh Pollution Control Board and Green Brigade organization, both based in Hyderabad, India, the Telangana State Pollution Control Board, Rotary Club 3150 of India and the Rotary Club of Visakhapatnam and student members of the India chapters of Engineers Without Borders and Rotaract clubs. India is experiencing a building boom in wastewater treatment facility construction, and organizers felt that such workshops will create positive awareness.

partment has already distributed 18,000 vaccinations. Of these, her records indicate 14,653 vaccinations have been administered. She added her department will continue its mandate to increase awareness about the disease.

Free vaccinations are being offered at the city's public health clinics and low cost vaccinations are available at health clinics throughout the city, including those operated by Howard Brown Health and some Walgreen's drug store locations.

"We are continuing our partnership with more than 80 community and clinical advocates to provide free and low cost vaccinations to protect our most vulnerable residents," Morita said.

According to David Ernesto Munar, president and chief executive officer of non-profit Howard Brown Health, gay and bisexual men face a greater risk for contracting the bacterial disease and he urged them to get vaccinated. African-Americans are affected at higher rate than other segments of the population. "Men who have sex with men and MSM who are HIV positive are at substantially higher risk than the general population of contracting a bacterial meningitis infection."

According to city health officials, the disease is most often spread through the exchange of respiratory and throat secretions while engaged in intimate activities. It can also spread simply by sharing drinks or cigarettes. While the bacteria is not as contagious at the cold virus, anyone in direct contact (including a roommate) with a person who has contracted the disease is considered at increased risk of contracting the disease

"We recommend our clients and the gay, bi-[sexual], and transgender community as a whole get vaccinated to protect yourself and reduce or eliminate the chance that you can be infected with something as deadly as meningitis," added Munar.

City health officials recommend vaccinations for all homosexual and bisexual men. For those living with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), two vaccinations, eight weeks apart, are required. Some people who were vaccinated in the past may need to receive a second "booster" dose. For those who received a vaccine in the past and who belong to a group considered to be at an increased risk for the disease, it is recommended they call their physician to discuss their vaccination history. An additional dose of vaccine may be needed. For more information, call 311 or visit www.cityofchicago.org/health to find the nearest CDPH clinic or partner clinic.

Emanuel and then-new Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy, the number of areas was reduced to three.

Harrison and Kedzie, then called Area 4, was eliminated.

Area 3, which had been based at Belmont and Western, picked up some of Area 4's turf and some of its detectives before being rebranded "Area North."

Around the same time, Mayor Emanuel and CPD merged two police districts that patrolled Lakeview, Uptown, Lincoln Park, Roscoe Village, North Center and Lincoln Square and surrounding areas to form today's 19th District.

City representatives at the time vowed that the move was an effort to put "more cops on the beat" and they promised that the new, bigger 19th District would not suffer a loss of officers.

Staffed by 470 officers at the time of the merger, the 19th District is now home to just 340 cops.

Contract violation?

Regardless, sources within the police department are saying that the move is a contract violation because the plan lacks a bid pro-

"The [Fraternal Order of Police] said to call the alderman," one police source said. "I have no idea what [the union] collects dues for. Most of the alderman will not say sh. Once again the tax payer gets screwed."

One City Council source, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, called the plan a "bad idea. We need to bolster [the 19th District]" as its manpower has been stripped away.

"How in the heck does this department operate," the council source continued. "That there are no audits or resource allocation reports is appalling."

to Emanuel's campaign fund in 2014, according to the Illinois State Board of Elections.

In 2002, the Neighborhood Capital Budget Group produced a study of 36 Chicago TIF districts and found that there was a net gain of only $300 million. However, those gains came at the expense of CPS to the tune of $632 million.

TIFs undermine efficient and transparent government operations. These deals continue to plague Chicago taxpayers and benefit the connected friends of the mayor. The solution is to place a moratorium on the creation of new TIF districts and allow for the remaining TIF districts to expire. Those first steps would allow the city and sister agencies to get their fiscal house in order in a fair and transparent manner.

Truth Peace

During this week of reflection we remember and mourn the loss of Turkish and Armenian lives, lost in the destructive conflict which is known as the 1915 tragedy.

Moving forward with transparency, truth and understanding will result in peaceful solutions.
