

Montrose Point, Illinois' top birding spot, still plagued by gay cruisers and dogs

'Some places in sanctuary that women will not go'

BY PETER VON BUOL

Despite having recently been recognized by Illinois' as a premier birding spot, Lincoln Park's Montrose Point Bird Sanctuary, 4400 N. Simonds Ave., continues to be plagued by a daily invasion of gay men and prostitutes who continue to use the park for anonymous sexual encounters and who, in the process, are disturbing the sanctuary's wildlife and have been causing damage to its native vegetation.

Prostitution and anonymous gay hook ups are not a new problem in this area of the Lakefront, it has been going on for decades. What has also been going on for decades is the un-written city and police policy to look away and see nothing.

Although it is only 13.4 acres in size, the sanctuary's location alongside Montrose Beach has been a favorite way-station for migrating birds in the Spring and Fall. Birds follow lakes and rivers to navigate and this sanctuary located on landfill in the lake has been an ideal place to rest and to forage for food. Migrating birds have likely used the lake's shoreline to map their migration since the last Ice Age ended leaving behind the Great Lakes.

More than 300 species of birds are known to use the sanctuary. Avid birding enthusiasts, known as "birders," compile a life-list of all the birds they have seen. Located in a large city and providing an opportunity to see hundreds of species, the sanctuary has been very popular among birders.

Avid bird enthusiast and photographer Luis Munoz has been documenting the park on a regular basis since his retirement from the Chicago Police Dept. [CPD]. While Munoz enjoys seeing the birds and photographing them, he is disappointed a group of people still continues to use the sanctuary as a place to engage in sex acts in the sanctuary. The men engaged in this activity are commonly referred to as "cruisers" by the birding community.

"If you go there at about 9:30 in the morning, the cruisers may blend in well but they will already be there. Between noon and 3 p.m., there are a lot of them. There are some places within the sanctuary that women will not go unac-panied. For me, they know me. Once they see me, they try to avoid me and leave. It is a parade in there. The Montrose Birding community wants some form of permanent security," says Munoz, who spent decades as a detective

Room Seven concerns aired during public hearing Tuesday

Residents are invited to express their concerns about the Room Seven nightclub during a public hearing Tuesday.

At a crime and safety meeting last month, Ald. Brian Hopkins [2nd] announced his request that the local Liquor Control Commission initiate deleterious impact hearings against Room Seven, 7 W. Division St., "as a result of their negative impact on the neighborhood and continuous neglect for public safety."

The upcoming public hearing is part of that process. Attendees can provide feedback and evidence of wrongdoing during the meeting, which will be held 11 a.m. to noon Tuesday in room 805 at City Hall, 121 N. LaSalle St.

"I encourage anyone who has concerns with Room Seven and their operations to attend this hearing," Hopkins wrote in a recent newsletter.

Anyone with questions can contact his office at 312-643-2299 or ward02@cityofchicago.org.

Public safety falls short, DePaul students ask for more security

BY DANIEL REYES
The DePaulia

Pierce Horvath was a victim of an armed robbery in January.

Around 2:30 p.m., after returning to his car to get his art portfolio, Horvath was approached by a man with one of his hands in his hoodie pocket. The man pulled out a pistol while demanding Horvath to get down and give him everything he had.

Horvath lost his phone and his wallet in the armed robbery.

"Naturally, I cooperated and gave him my phone and wallet. No material item is worth a life," Horvath said. "Once he grabbed those two things, he bolted down Montana St. towards the [Fullerton CTA] L station. After, I ran into the fine arts building and luckily found a Public Safety officer who helped me through the process of contacting the police and other necessary documentation."

After Horvath's experience, he thinks more can be done by Public Safety to benefit the student body.

"I think that Public Safety should disclose more information regarding the description of these criminals, that way students know who to look for and whether or not they should report someone looking mysterious," Horvath said. "I can almost guarantee that if Public Safety released descriptions of these people, there would be less open-ended crimes that [DePaul students] have to concern ourselves with."

Attending university in Chicago does not exclude students from the violence that plagues the city. Like their neighbors in Lincoln Park, DePaul's student body continues to be exposed to situations that pose multiple threats. Now students would like the school to tighten its programs in order to offer maximum security on both Loop and the Lincoln Park campuses.

It is commonplace for DePaul students to receive emails warning of multiple crimes that have taken place on or near the Lincoln Park and Loop campuses. These crimes tend to range from stolen belongings to criminal sexual assault and armed robbery. As these emails continue, DePaul students should question whether or not they are actually protected by Public Safety.

From Jan. 18 to March 27, there were four reported armed robberies in the Lincoln Park area. Indeed quality of life crimes like assaults, harassment, trespass and attempted battery jumped dramatically in early 2016 throughout the North Side and have not slowed down measurably since then.

A string of serious crimes started on Jan. 16, when a DePaul student was sexually assaulted near Lincoln Park's Fullerton CTA stop. In the Loop campus, reports of verbal harassment and criminal trespassing along with disturbances reports have tainted the university's downtown campus. The Lincoln Park and Lakeview communities have both had a series of crime forums and town hall meetings this year due to the perception that crime is not being addressed properly.

DePaul's Public Safety protects these two campuses. However, following these reports of armed robbery and criminal trespassing, one incident leading to the shooting of a DePaul student, protocol has remained the same. Some students say that changes in protocol must be implemented or crimes on both campuses will continue.

Public Safety offers five student service programs to ensure safety. The escort service, which is one of the most popular, runs from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. and is a safe way for students to make it home.

However, to utilize the safety escort service, students are only able to contact Public Safety if they are located within the Lincoln Park area, not on the Loop campus.

Students accessing the escort service can only utilize the service from a certain time frame typically when evening classes end. But, according to Public Safety reports, armed robberies take place in broad daylight, usually between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

"It's definitely disappointing to hear that there are not escort services in the Loop," junior Jazz Ruiz said. "I have class sometimes until 9 p.m. and have to walk home by myself. There's definitely a big difference in Public Safety from Lincoln Park to the Loop."

Students have expressed dissatisfaction towards the department. Anyone can step foot into the Loop's Student Center and cause a scene or harass students, who say little to anything new is being done to offer a sense of security.

Sophomore Daniel Ghisolf-Astacio has raised eyebrows over the years when it comes to Public Safety.

"Honestly, I do not have that much [faith] into their abilities," Ghisolf-Astacio said. "The idea behind Public Safety is something that is comforting. However, having them around will not stop an armed robbery."

Robert Wachowski, director of DePaul's Public Safety department, responding to the increase of armed robberies, said "DePaul takes a proactive approach to alerting our campus community — students, faculty and staff — with email alerts and door postings when Public Safety is made aware of a crime or incident that happens on or near campus."

Addressing criticism of Loop's programs, Wachowski added that little can be done for the Loop campus when it comes to the Safe Escort Service.

"Unlike the Lincoln Park campus, where we have a service to escort students from campus building to campus building, in the Loop, because of limited resources, we do not provide this service."

In regards to the recent disturbance reports, Wachowski added that there is a plan in the works between the Chicago Police Dept. and representatives from other downtown universities. But the CPD is itself under-manned and City Hall is actually reaching out to institutions like DePaul, Northwestern, the Univ. of Chicago, Loyola, the Chicago Cubs and even local chambers of commerce to help fund private security services to bolster short-handed CPD ranks.

In response to the recent increase in armed robberies in the past couple of months, Public Safety has mostly remained the same.

While safety programs are intertwined within DePaul — some students feel more can be done. Change in the way crime is reported can be improved for instance by giving out descriptions of the perpetrators. Programs can be introduced or refined, but for now students may find safety more in their own situational awareness than counting on the CPD or DePaul Public Safety to be available when a crime occurs.

How do you spell museum?

By Thomas J. O’Gorman

What strange things life keeps in our memories. But what wonderful thoughts our memories also help to shape from nowhere for us.

This photo is of my maternal grandmother, Nora Ryan O’Connor. Native of Croom, County Limerick, Ireland not far from the picturesque thatched village of Adaire. It’s the home environs of the Earls of Dunraven. The photo is taken on my parents wedding day, Aug. 2, 1947. A time when war and sacrifice were still fresh in the minds of everyone.

My mother appears to be in the background, in the vestibule of Visitation Church on Garfield Blvd. My grandmother is standing with my uncle, her son, Tim O’Connor. He was one of her three former G.I. sons in World War II. Strange, but this is how she always looked to me. Straight standing, thin, good earrings and well dressed. I loved her shoes. I say that because my great memory is that for whatever reason Grandma O’Connor always wore shoes like our Dominican nuns did. A kind of laced shoe with a chunky heel. In our insane world of Catholic certitude that was a big deal.

My mother would have just called them “businesslike,” her term for all things practical.

I would find myself questioning how it was Grandma wore these nuns’ shoes. Did they carry some special religious meaning? She was always praying, so might there be some pious energy behind such fashion? Perhaps the shoes made all the genuflections easier or more springy? Maybe they were just easy to wear on the tootsies, aiding short walks to Church or to the store.

My grandmother was persnickety and would travel to 63rd Street to buy her butter. (She was a fine baker). I thought how versatile it was that my grandmother and the Dominican Sisters in our school could all pull off the same shoes.

Of course neither of them wore pants. That was something reserved for other women. Anyway I diverge.

Looking at this recently rediscovered photo, I thought what a wonderful story it told. Here is my grandmother at her daughter’s wedding festooned in gardenias. I thought, little did she think when she was a girl of 15, packing her bag for a journey to America, that she would have a life so transformed.

Of course, she lied about her age to make the voyage and immigrate. She was coming to the fastest growing city on earth when she arrived in 1906. She had relations in Chicago who were fast at work reconstructing picturesque, but poor, Croom on the city’s South Side. That’s where brothers and sisters; cousins and old friends were helping to make America their home. There were many familiar faces. The voices of home echoed amid the spacious apartments and homesteads that dotted the Chicago streetscapes.

The parish church, Visitation, within easy reach, was larger than any cathedral back home. It was warm and welcoming for morning Mass or a daughter’s wedding in the years to come. The photo is an image of promise, the dividend of a young girl’s energy and hard work.

My grandmother worked as a young girl for the Buckingham (of the fountain), and they in turn loaned her out one summer to young Norman Rockwell (the artist) and his family. I think she stayed with them at their place in the Berkshires in Western Massachusetts. I am happy that my grandmother moved across her new country and saw it when it was fresh. Perhaps that’s why she and her sister, Nell, used to love to travel to California and Florida in the winters. Adventures they continued all through their lives.

My grandmother lived long. Yeats would have said, she lived to comb gray hairs. She was 97 when she died. Bright, clear thinking and smarter than most of her grandchildren. She was the classic image of the successful immigrant. Made modern by her adventures, by long widowhood and by her children, whose lives were varied and deeply connected to her.

I have learned this much in my life. The great poet philosopher Thomas Aquinas wrote – “The things we love tell us what we are.” That was true in his world of the 13th century, and it is true in ours in the 21st. If you want to get a good check on what is really important in your life, ask yourself that question – What do you love? What do you invest in? What is of value in your life? Of course it can be startling and revealing.

Nora Ryan O’Connor loved her family, her cooking, her baking, Jack Eigen, Ed Sullivan, morning Mass, salt, rides in the car, Irish music, chit-chats with the neighbors and the odd Brandy Alexander at Jack Gibbon’s.

She also believed it is important to love what you do. And to be shaped by what you love. It makes life filled with meaning and purpose. That was true for her when she was 20 and when she turned 90. I felt it in my own life when I was working in the inner city, studying abroad or pursuing a life as a writer and painter.

In all my professional motivations, I tried to stay connected to the same values that I hold on to in my personal and family life. Something Moliere once wrote really sums it up – “It is not only for what we do that we are held responsible, but also for what we do not do.”

We have to be responsible for what we do. The work one does throughout life should fit the contours of a person’s larger life, and be another dimension of work always loved.

There has never been much dissonance in my life. That’s what balance is all about. But if you do things that spread an internal conflict you are just asking for heartache. Balance is about faith and hope; and it is all held together with love.

Everything you do in life is connected. That’s true of the work I did with Chicago families early in my life, and it was true of what I did for others as a political speech writer and student of Chicago politics at City Hall. My past would provide a fertile field for me as a writer and a painter.

I often think of Nora, my grandmother, and as a grandchild of immigrants, I always like to quote Ralph Waldo Emerson when considering the contribution you can make to the larger culture. He loved to say, “The only way to have a friend is to be a friend.” Doesn’t that say it all? There are no secret or magic words.

If you are a friend first; if you treat people with respect; if you act nobly and with honor – first – you will always be on the right page and you will always thrive.

I admit that I have come a long way from the short little boy who first needed glasses before he could learn to spell or do math at Visitation School on the South Side. If it wasn’t for my grandmother, I would still be asking what was on the board. She was a great encouragement.

She encouraged me to do what I loved best. She knew that I loved to write, but she also knew I was a poor speller. She rarely greeted me with a hello, but instead asked me a spelling word, like museum. It was at her needling that I studied my spelling more intensely. In the days before Spell Check everything else flowed from there – it all really came from that.

Nora Ryan O’Connor was a wise woman. What a mentor she was.

Mentoring has given me shape and character as a professional; but just as much as an artist, or a writer, or a journalist, or a savvy political Aapparatchik. It is important to have mentors – indispensable, especially in Chicago. Without them we have no road maps and are left to our own devices that can get, as Nora O’Connor would admit, lonely and rough.

LITTLE BROTHERS, FRIENDS OF THE ELDERLY: I remember when these remarkably selfless religious came from France and by their gentle ways and open doors brought new dignity to the impoverished and the homeless. They are still searching the streets of Chicago for those who hunger and suffer. They refocused their ministry to the people on whom they could make the big-

Shining a light on a noteworthy project

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

Prom season is upon us, and thousands of young girls will be getting themselves all dolled up for the big night, hair and makeup perfect, beautiful dresses adorning their bodies.

Yet there are numerous other young women who won't be attending prom, or their school dance, because they can't afford a dress. What about them?

Thanks to Sam Sisakhti, founder of the Boston-based UsTrendy -- an online fashion marketplace -- some local teens recently saw their dream of going to prom become a reality. Through his foundation and a program called the Believe In Yourself Project (BIYP), Sisakhti donated brand new, designer dresses to girls at the Pedersen-McCormick Boys & Girls Club, 4835 N. Sheridan Rd. in Uptown.

The BIYP goes into community centers, after-school programs, and low-income housing centers, providing new dresses for underprivileged girls to wear at school functions. At the same time, it promotes positive body image through mentoring and speakers, with a goal of giving young women healthy self-esteem and positive body images. It aims to empower the girls to feel good about themselves and pay that forward by taking on active social roles within their school communities.

So far, Sisakhti has provided hundreds of dresses to young ladies across the nation. The goal is to provide between 5,000 and 10,000 this year, he said.

The project is part of a broader initiative. Sisakhti is currently in talks with various influential women who at one time or currently have struggled with body image, encouraging them to serve as speakers and mentors to the various girls within the program. "We plan on setting up mentoring in Chicago so your help in spreading word would go a long way for us," he told me.

It's my pleasure to do just that. Here's a little more info on the project and how you can help.

Q. What made you decide to create Believe in Yourself?

A. I started UsTrendy 10 years ago as a global marketplace that enables independent fashion designers to list their items for sale and grow their brands online. Over the last decade, it has grown into the largest independent fashion website in the world. [We have] 20,000 sellers from 100 countries sell their clothing.

Over the past decade, I observed things which led me to launch BIYP. We have had customers post photos of themselves on social media as part of our interaction with our customers. I noticed cyber bullying going on and also body shaming in the comments sections. This was really distasteful and concerning and was one of the motivations to start BIYP.

I realized the enormous social pressure that many young girls feel to try to be hip and socially cool by wearing clothing that is seen as stylish. Many girls are unable to afford these fashions and can often feel ashamed socially.

These observations inspired me to launch the BIYP, to provide needy girls with dresses for upcoming dances and at the same time promote a positive body image through speakers and mentors.

I hope to grow BIYP into a national foundation with roots in every state across the country, to provide dresses to as many needy girls as possible, helping them to feel empowered.

Q. How can people donate and/or find out more info regarding mentoring?

A. People can help support us by making online donations. In addition we'll be having dress donations around the country and we're always looking for volunteers, mentors, and speakers at our events. And of course, retailers can assist by donating dresses.

Self love... At the age 16, after being treated for an eating disorder by a clinician on Michigan Ave., Kelley Kitley said to herself, "Someday I too want to help women and open a private practice on Michigan Ave." At 38, Kitley is living her dream and opened Serendipitous Psychotherapy, LLC., at 737 N Michigan Ave.

Kelley Kitley will sign copies of her newly-released memoir "My Self," on April 30 in Lincoln Park.

Her newly-released autobiography on survival, "My Self," is being sold on Amazon. "I have an inspiring story to share to encourage women to be the best version of themselves," said Kitley, who grew up in Lincoln Park.

"My Self" is a memoir about family dynamics, sexual assault, postpartum anxiety, panic and addiction. Kitley will be holding a book signing from 1 to 3 p.m., April 30, at the Burwood Tap, 724 W. Wrightwood Ave.

"As a mama of four kids in six years, a business owner, and living in Santa Monica without any family support, I experienced postpartum anxiety at varying degrees when each one of my children were born," said Kitley, who in the past year has been featured in over 100 national publications as an expert clinician. "I felt alone and ashamed."

"Isn't having a baby supposed to be a happy time?" said Kitley, who also speaks nationally for The Bump Club and Beyond and MommyCon, educating women and their partners on postpartum depression, anxiety, OCD, and intimacy after baby. "Instead, I felt overwhelmed, couldn't sleep albeit being exhausted, irritable, and perfectionistic. There were happy times but also dark times. Medication, therapy, and connecting with other moms authentically is what saved me."

Kitley's mission is to inspire all women to be the best version of themselves.

"My goal is to share my experience, strength, and hope after overcoming tremendous adversity," she said. "My publisher calls me the female 'Rocky.'" couldn't drag me away from the private party held last week to celebrate the opening of the Rolling Stones' Exhibitionism at Navy

Pier. It was an array of Who's Who in the crowd as bluesman Billy Branch and his band rocked out, at one point calling musician Corky Siegel and Rock and Roll Hall of Famer Sam Lay to the stage to perform. Former Ides of March and Survivor singer/songwriter Jim Peterik and his wife, Karen, also were on hand to celebrate.

Besides the famous folks, Stones fans galore had themselves one fine night of singing the blues. The only thing missing was the Rolling Stones!

The spirit of radio... The SAG/AFTRA Senior Radio Players, who have been delighting Chicago audiences since 1999, will perform three shows from the Golden Age of Radio that feature women in lead roles. This is their tribute to Mother's Day...and it's free!

Rogers Park resident Roger Badesch, of WGN-Radio, joins the Players in "Our Miss Brooks." The other two pieces will be "Ma Perkins," and "Easy Aces."

The fun starts at 7 p.m., May 3 in the Claudia Cassidy Theater of the Chicago Cultural Center, 78 E. Washington St. There's a sound effects crew on stage to help your imagination... just like in the days before TV.

County announces two North Side pilot sites for shared solar power

The Cook County Dept. of Environmental Control has selected their pilot sites to help study and establish community shared solar power in the region.

The North Side site will be at the Warren Park Field House, 6601 N. Western Ave., and Rockwell Properties commercial/industrial redevelopment, 3057 N. Rockwell St.

Community shared solar is a solar-electric system that provides power and/or financial benefits to multiple community members, expanding access to solar power for renters, condominium owners, those with shaded roofs and those who choose not to install a residential system on their home for financial or other reasons.

With federal funding of $1.2 million from the U.S. Dept. of Energy, the county is creating a solar energy case study and engineering assessment to help property owners enter the community solar market.

“We are excited at the promise of community solar to advance access and equity in renewable energy development. This is especially critical in Cook County, where as many as 75% of households and businesses cannot currently install solar on their rooftops,” said Anne Evens, CEO of Elevate Energy. “These sites will likely represent the first community solar projects in the region and will serve as roadmaps for many more projects in the future.”

The project’s goal is to facilitate access to solar power in the next five years for at least 30,000 Cook County residents who would not otherwise be able to benefit from the clean and renewable source of electricity. While the sites would need to pursue actual solar installation as separate efforts, economic business cases developed for each site will serve as a model for many different building types across the County to adopt community solar. The case studies and engineering assessments will be used as templates for other property owners who may want to enter into the community solar market. At the conclusion of the program, the County plans to share lessons learned from the pilots so other regional projects can succeed.

The initiative is part of an effort to drive down the cost of solar electricity and support solar adoption. For more information visit energy.gov/sunshot.

‘Fence sitters’ have one more chance to buy or refinance homes

The Home Front By Don DeBat

“Fence-sitters”—prospective home buyers and homeowners who were planning to refinance—and missed the boat in late 2016 now have one more chance to lock in a mortgage at a below four-percent rate this Spring.

Over the past five weeks home-loan rates have slipped a third of one percentage point from a high of 4.30% in mid-March. On April 20, the benchmark 30-year mortgage average hit 3.97%, down from 4.08% a week earlier, reported Freddie Mac’s Primary Mortgage Market Survey.

“The 30-year mortgage rate fell 11 basis points this week to 3.97%, dropping below the psychologically important four-percent level for the first time since mid-November,” said Sean Beckett, chief economist, Freddie Mac.

“Weak economic data and growing international tensions are driving investors out of riskier sectors and into Treasury securities,” Beckett said. “This shift in investment sentiment has propelled rates lower.”

The current average 30-year mortgage rate is the lowest since Nov. 17, 2016, when the average was 3.94%. A year ago at this time, 30-year fixed-rate loans averaged 3.59%.

Meanwhile, 15-year fixed loans averaged 3.23% on April 20, down from 3.34% a week ago. A year ago at this time, the 15-year fixed loan average was 2.85%.

If rates hold at these levels, experts say there likely will be a burst of home sales and refinances this spring as “fence sitters” try to beat further expected rate increases by the Federal Reserve Board.

A Bankrate.com survey showed Chicago-area lenders were charging a range of 3.756% to 3.887% on benchmark 30-year fixed loans on April 21.

Mortgage rates hit a historical rock bottom on Nov. 21, 2012, when the benchmark 30-year fixed mortgage average plummeted to 3.31%, while 15-year fixed loans edged downward to 2.63%, Freddie Mac reported.

In Aug. 1999—when many of today’s young borrowers were shooting marbles in their grammar school playground—lenders were quoting 8.15% on a 30-year fixed mortgage.

According to Freddie Mac, benchmark 30-year mortgage rates peaked at a whopping 18.45% in Oct. 1981 during the Great Recession of the 1980s. Rates fell below 10% in April 1986, and then bounced in the nine-percent to 10% range during the balance of the 1980s.

Lower than expected home-loan rates in March sparked a surge in the sale of existing homes, according to Illinois Realtors.

Lower than expected home-loan rates in March sparked a surge in the sale of existing homes, according to Illinois Realtors.

ing to Illinois Realtors.

A total of 2,478 single-family homes and condominiums were sold in Chicago in March, a 15.3% sales increase over 2,149 units marketed in March 2016. The median price of a home in the city in March was $295,000, up a hefty 9.7% from $269,000 in March 2016.

Single-family home and condominium sales in March in the nine-county Chicago area totaled 9,661 units, up 13.1% from 8,540 units sold in March 2016. The median price was $231,000 in March in the Chicago area, a whopping increase of 10% from $210,000 in March 2016.

“Consumers this spring have no choice but to be nimble as they find fewer homes on the market and increased competition for those properties,” said Doug Carpenter, president of the Illinois Realtors.

“Many Realtors are reporting an increase in multiple-offer situations, which means buyers can’t dawdle when they find what they want. They may want to make sure any offer they bring is an aggressive one.”

Statewide, it took an average of 67 days to sell a home in March, down from 77 days a year ago. Available Illinois housing inventory totaled 52,826 homes for sale, a 15.5% decline from March 2016 when there were 62,492 homes on the market.

“In inflation adjusted terms, both the Illinois and Chicago housing markets have recovered to their pre-recession levels,” noted Geoffrey J.D. Hewings, an economist at the Univ. of Illinois.

“Home sales were stronger than usual throughout historically slower months, and now, with the spring market in full swing, the numbers are proving to be more robust than anticipated,” said Matt Silver, president of the Chicago Assoc. of Realtors.

“With an improving economy, demand continues to grow,” Silver said. “While inventory shortages will possibly play a larger role, for now, we are seeing strong and favorable selling conditions. Those who are looking to buy a home should be prepared to move quickly and decisively.”

County can go back three years for those taking improper homestead exemptions

BY DAN CHURNEY
Cook County Record

A state appellate panel has upheld a lower court ruling that the Illinois Property Tax Code allows the Cook County Assessor's Office to reach back three years, to claim unpaid taxes on a south suburban house that had an invalid homestead exemption.

And don't think that they're not now looking over their records to see who may have been taking a senior exemption for granny who died in 2014.

The March 16 decision was rendered by Justice Margaret McBride of the Illinois First District Appellate Court, with concurrence from Justices David Ellis and Eileen O'Neill Burke. The decision favored the Cook County Assessor's Office in its dispute with homeowner Barbara R. Mulry.

Mulry inherited a house, adjacent to her home, from her late uncle. She had a homestead exemption for her house, but said she did not know her uncle had also had one for his home, which remained in place after his death. Mulry said she never lived in the inherited house, but rather rented it out.

To qualify for a homestead property tax exemption, a house must be the owner's primary residence. Other exemptions are given to homeowners with other demographic and legal qualifications, including senior citizens, military veterans and long-term occupants.

In 2014, the assessor's office told Mulry she had not been entitled to an exemption on the inherited house for 2010, 2011 and 2012. As a consequence, they billed Mulry for $4,188 in unpaid taxes and interest, according to the assessor.

The assessor relied on the "Erroneous homestead exemptions" section of the Illinois Property Tax Code, which the General Assembly adopted in 2013. The section sets out procedures for the Cook County assessor to use in recouping unpaid taxes, with 10% annual interest, when the assessor determines an exemption has been wrongly granted. The section also allows for the imposition of liens and 50% penalties.

Mulry contested the tax bill at an administrative hearing in May 2014, claiming the 2013 statute could only be employed from the date of its enactment forward. Instead, Mulry alleged the assessor was retroactively applying the law, violating her due process.

At the hearing, the assessor introduced computer printouts of assessor records, to show Mulry enjoyed exemptions for two properties. Mulry's attorney objected, contending computers were not trustworthy for keeping records. The administrative hearing officer rejected the contention, allowed the printouts and ruled Mulry owed the money.

Mulry then went to Cook County Circuit Court, to have a judge review the case. However, Mulry again struck out, as Judge Sharon Sullivan affirmed the hearing officer's decision. Mulry continued fighting, taking the case to appellate court, but again losing.

Mulry argued legislators did not intend for the erroneous exemptions statute to be retroactive from the date it was enacted. Appellate Justice McBride did not buy the argument.

And don't think that they're not now looking over their records to see who may have been taking a senior exemption for granny who died in 2014.

"Mulry misconstrues the significance of a statute's effective date, which is simply the date that legislation takes effect or, in other words, becomes governing law. A statute's effective date is not enough to tell us about the General Assembly's intended temporal reach of this enactment. The 'traditional rule' is that statutes do not apply retroactively unless the legislators have expressly stated this temporal reach," McBride said.

McBride went on to point out the statute's language "clearly and unequivocally" permits the assessor to take action against improper exemptions "during any of the 3 collection years immediately prior to the current collection year."

McBride further noted the 2013 statute does not "attach new consequences to prior conduct," because McBride should never have had simultaneous exemptions on two properties in the first place.

In addition, McBride disagreed with Mulry's stance the three-year retroactivity was "harsh and oppressive," noting the Tax Code gives the state 20 years to collect delinquent taxes and 20 years for a Cook County taxpayer to request a refund when they have overpaid.

McBride deleted Mulry's other contention the assessor's computer printouts did not constitute bona fide records. In advancing this argument, Mulry cited cases that were decades old, including one from 1969, in which computerized record keeping was questioned as a reliable method of maintaining records.

McBride dismissed the case law as out-of-date, because digitalized record keeping is now "ubiquitous and routine."

Encore Chorales' free Spring concert May 2

Members of the Chicago-area Encore Chorales gather 2 p.m. Thursday, May 2, to create a super-sized spring concert at Buchanan Chapel, 126 E. Chestnut, featuring memorable songs from The Great American Songbook.

Encore Chorales provide choral singing opportunities for older adults (55+), regardless of experience of ability, who seek arts education and performance opportunities that are fun, challenging, and rewarding. Admission is free but seats fill up fast.

Encore Chorales are active in six locations in the city and suburbs, serving almost 200 lively and enthusiastic singers. The Encore initiative was begun by Jeanne Kelly in the Washington, DC area as part of the groundbreaking study, "Creativity and Aging," conducted by the late Dr. Gene Cohen for the NEA, NIH and George Washington Univ., which found that choral singing can be one of the most beneficial activities for older adults.

Encore Chorales provide choral singing opportunities for older adults (55+), regardless of experience of ability, who seek arts education and performance opportunities that are fun, challenging, and rewarding.

Zombies coming to Andersonville this weekend

Parade of gore, gross and good times

Hundreds of the Undead from all over Chicagoland will descend on Andersonville April 29 in a now annual parade of gore, gross and good times.

The 10th annual Zombie Crawl will be back this Saturday and over 1,000 ghoulish zombies will be happily welcomed into the bars and pubs of Andersonville.

The Crawl is the annual fundraiser for pH Productions and pH Comedy Theater, 1515 Berwyn, the home of not-for-profit comedy arts. Established in 2002, the theater has been producing original comedic art and winning raves from new audiences as well as seasoned theater-goers.

"We're planning a lot of really great things for families as well as for our lovely zombies," says Jason Geis, Executive Producer of pH Productions. "We hope to involve the entire neighborhood in the festivities."

This year, family activities and fun will occupy the early part of the day. Once the sun goes down, the adult zombies will come out to play in the traditional pub crawl. "All of this is a far cry from the three bars and the fund-raising dream we started with in 2007," Geis added. This 10th Annual Chicago Zombie Crawl is the annual fund-raiser for pH Productions.

"We strive to be an affordable alternative for entertainment," said Geis. Tickets are $15 in advance or $20 day-of. For more information call 773-490-1360.

The pH Comedy Theater is the home of not-for-profit comedy arts organization, pH Productions. The name comes from the idea of group chemistry. In science, the pH scale is used to measure how acidic or basic a substance is which explains pH Productions' productions are a fully participatory experience and the audience leaves most every show having contributed to its outcome.

Can't wait to be a judge at the Service Club Lunch, May 18.

CHAPEAU-VILLE: I have arrived... so excited... I have been asked to be a judge for the celebrated fancy hat contest May 18 at the Service Club of Chicago's annual luncheon. It's already a sellout at the Saddle and Cycle Club and the hats go beyond all boundaries for beauty and fashion. Can you even imagine the celebrity of hats sashaying around the room? I can't wait. My grandmother would be proud. But she'd roll her eyes.

FILE THAT UNDER WHERE?: Does a certain seated city legislator said to be "blest" in the size department really keep a large desk drawer full of new underwear (briefs) in his downtown office to "cover" all emergencies? And does his wife really buy him all his undies? Or is the truth more like they are "gifts" from grateful admirers?

LE BASEBALL: Has a certain European diplomat in town suddenly become a huge Cubs fan? He must be, as Wrigley Field is where he keeps disappearing to with a certain society lady who is showing him the ropes to our "national pastime." Apparently his lady wife is not a fan of major league baseball. Well at least he'll know his strikes from his balls. And he cannot get arrested.

MOP THAT UP, ZORBA: What county politico recently brought Greek Islands Restaurant to a stand still attempting to "Greek Dance" with way too much red wine and Oozo in him? Is it true that when he stopped he had wet his pants and the floor around him? OOOoopah!

FEELING BETTER, THANK YOU: The Art Institute's Nora Gainer is back in the arms of her family after joining her sisters for a West Virginia visit to her doctor sister, Dr. Mary Gainer's farm where she took a bad tumble crossing a stream and did herself several injuries, but she is on the mend.

I COULD HAVE DANCED ALL NIGHT: Lyric Opera of Chicago released new behind-the-scenes rehearsal images from its production of Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady," starring Richard E. Grant and Lisa O'Hare as Henry Higgins and Eliza Doolittle. And the man of 1,000 productions, famed English actor Nicholas Le Prevost, will appear as Colonel Pickering. I just watched him in Midsomer Murders. He is worth the price of admission. The production runs April 28 through May 21 at the Civic Opera House, 20 N. Wacker Dr. Tickets start at $22 and are available now at www.lyricopera.org/myfairlady or at 312-827-5600.

SOMETHING'S FISHY: Trying my best to stick with the "Catch of the Day" and slim down, so I have been having the White Fish at Via Carducci, 1928 W.Division. Done three different ways. Three nights in a row, too. My favorite is the "puttanesca," olives, garlic, white wine, but the capers, grape tomatoes and olives are also superb. So is the herb roasted al forno, it's also top of the line. Fish changes daily. But it's heavenly. Tutti grazzi, Giovanni Scalzo. Does that fish make my ankles look thin?

WHO'S WHERE: Artist Adam Scott Umbach in from East Hampton, Long Island, to arrange for an upcoming exhibition (with this writer) in Chicago... Chicago's singular songbird, Denise Tomasello, "bringing the house down," the historic Empire Room of the Palmer House, that is, at the 4th annual Chicago Cabaret Convention sponsored by the Mabel Mercer Foundation... Sarah Q. Crane home for Easter demonstrating the beauty of her pastel colored Easter Eggs... Brian White and Jim Kinney in white tie and tails bedecked with medals and royal decorations joining pals at Anderson House in Washington DC for Patriots' Day and the 242nd anniversary of the Battle of Lexington... Jane Yount in Savannah, GA visiting her mother and getting her ready for her Chicago transition.

CAN I BORROW YOUR CLEARASIL?: Friends? What 18-year-old is dating his best friend's mother? It seems as if the inseparable boyhood school pals have finally found something that splits them apart. Mama. She is in the midst of divorcing her son's papa and, it seems, is taking comfort in the arms of her son's best friend at a fancy school.

She's presently showing him the delights of non-academic life. She might be letting her hubby go, but she had ensured that her golden boy is staying in Chicago and not leaving for college any time soon.

CAN I BUY YOU A JAMESON?: Is a well-known Chicago politico of the Irish persuasion becoming an eyesore (and a pain in another body part) around town at various Irish saloons where his loud and vulgar behavior seems really out of sorts for someone who is a vote getter?

DEWEY, SCROOEM & ANHOW: What law firm has had a rash of embarrassing love connections going on that have started to blur the lines between associates at the firm and the office boys and girls? While most of the names on the doors and letterhead might be dead, the sexual activities of younger attorneys and civilian staff are creating some new nicknames for the firm. Someone in a hazmat suit might want to scrub down the xerox machine before making copies. Some Cook County States Attorneys who were beat up in court recently by members of the firm say that there is just way too much testosterone in the air there. Seniors partners who have some wise perspective fear what will happen when the associates wake up and their current sextra partners go wild in the unemployment lines. Meanwhile suburban wives married to these bongo drums are already speaking to attorneys from other firms to protect their livelihoods. Storm clouds gather.

Not promoting return of Lincoln No. 11 bus pays off for CTA with too few riders

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Six months of doing nothing to promote the return of the Lincoln #11 bus route is starting to pay off for the CTA as it is likely few people within its service area even heard about its return.

Those that did may now have to start fighting all over again to keep the No. 11 route running.

After little more than six months of restored service along the Western to Fullerton portion of Lincoln Ave., the CTA is reportedly looking at again dropping service along the No. 11 route for lack of ridership.

CTA spokesman Jeffrey Tolman said daily ridership is still at about 500 – far short of the 1,500 the CTA says it needs to justify keeping the route going.

Of course the CTA never did anything to promote the return of the No. 11 route either. They did no advertising whatsoever and very little to no public relations. Most of the promotion of the re-established route was left up to volunteers and No. 11 bus supporters.

During several years of campaigning for restoration of the Lincoln Ave. route, community leaders argued that discontinuing the service was especially damaging to local businesses as well as senior citizens who used the route to do their shopping and get to

In 2016, CTA officials relented, authorizing a trial program that was originally supposed to last for six months, but was extended to a full year. After that, it would either become permanent or be discontinued, the CTA board ruled.

The route's supporters, led by Ald. Ameya Pawar (47th) argued from the start that running the buses only from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. wasn't a real test of the No. 11's popularity, since there was no weekend or rush hour service – just the times when the service was most likely to be needed.

Tolman, however, told reporters it wasn't so much a question of whether people want the route to continue, but whether keeping the

No. 11 active would be the best use of the CTA's resources.

As a result, the CTA put no resources toward promoting the route.

When the route was temporarily restored last year, another CTA representative, Catherine Hosinski estimated the 180-day test would cost about $385,000.

"My job is to make sure people use (the No. 11) and use it often," Ald. Pawar said after the six-month trial was approved. Perhaps somebody should have suggested the alderman and CTA hand out a few fliers or send out some press releases as once the initial media coverage faded there was no effort made to promote the route.

Georgia man skipped out on $2K bar tab, Trump says

It was a big, big bar tab. The biggest. Yuge. And Robert Heath had no intention of paying it, prosecutors say.

The 30-year-old tourist from Canton, GA, ran up the tab at the rooftop bar Sixteen at President Donald Trump's Chicago hotel March 10. Then, he tried to leave without paying, Trump's people say.

In legal form, Heath "knowing obtained control of alcoholic beverages having a total value of $1,838.90, intending to deprive Trump Tower Terrace permanently of the benefit of the property," prosecutors said.

An accompanying police report alleges that Heath "consumed a large amount of alcohol and refused to pay his bill" and "knowingly ordered [the drinks] with intent" to not pay.

Heath had no cash when he was arrested, police said.

He is charged with felony theft of over $500.

Records show he also skipped out on a $229 bill at Coco Pazzo Cafe on March 7 and a $100 tab March 14 at Mother's Too, 14 W. Division St.

A recent menu at The Terrace shows cocktail prices starting at $25; local beers for $12; and wines starting at about $20 per glass. The Donald also offers a $100 ice cream sundae; six "colossal shrimp" for $38 and a "pancetta, lobster & tomato" sandwich for just under $40.

Cubs home game arrests down sharply this year

The Friendly Confines have been much friendlier so far this year.

Arrests at Chicago Cubs home games are down 72% so far compared to 2016.

Police have made only five Cubs-related arrests through the first nine home games of the season—way down from 18 arrests during the first nine games last season.

This year's first Cubs arrestee was Paul Andre Katz, 52, identified in his police arrest report as a Chicago attorney.

Katz was arrested inside Wrigley Field as the team played the Pittsburgh Pirates on April 14.

Cubs security told police that they asked Katz to leave the stadium about 90 minutes into the afternoon game because Katz "was using profanity, disrupting, and causing a disturbance while seated at the ballpark," court records say.

When Katz "refused to do so," security asked him to leave the park "due to him violating the code of conduct. Subject refused to leave and was detained by Wrigley security," police said.

Katz is charged with criminal trespass to land, according to court records.

A total of 87 arrests were made in connection with the Cubs' 81 regular season home games last year. Another 62 arrests were made during the team's 2016 post-season play.

Cabbie stabbed as more North Side taxis are robbed

A string of North Side taxi cab robberies has grown increasingly violent, with the latest victim being stabbed in the chest, Chicago police said.

Detectives issued a warning about the robberies last weekend. Since then, two more cabbies have been robbed.

In the latest incident, the cab driver was stabbed in the chest when he struggled with the robber in the 2600 block of N. Kimball around 11 p.m. on April 15.

The cabbie managed to drive himself to the Area North police headquarters at Belmont and Western where he sought help.

Prior to that, another cab driver was robbed in the 2000 block of W. Fullerton around 4:15 a.m. on April 15, about three hours after yet another cabbie was robbed at knifepoint at Clark and Waveland, outside of Wrigley Field.

Three other hold-ups have been connected with the pattern, police said, including two in the 3500 block of W. Melrose around 3 a.m. on April 14 and another in the 2000 block of W. Webster at 1:25 a.m. the same night.

Detectives say the offender hails taxi drivers on the street and announces a robbery when they arrive at their destination. He has been armed with a knife in several cases and may have had a gun in another incident, police said.

The robber is a clean-shaven Hispanic man who stands about 5'-8" tall and weighs about 155 lbs. He has been seen wearing a black baseball cap, black hooded sweatshirt, and blue jeans.

Man with violent past charged with raping, robbing Lakeview woman he met in bar

A man with a long, violent criminal history has been charged with sexually assaulting and robbing a woman in her Lakeview apartment after meeting her in a bar.

Alexander Carter, 46, is charged with armed robbery-indicating a firearm, aggravated criminal sexual assault-threatening the victim's life, theft of lost or mislaid property, and reckless conduct in connection with the attack that unfolded shortly after midnight in the 500 block of W. Oakdale, police said.

After raping the 24-year-old woman, Carter collected valuables from her home, including a cellphone, prosecutors said. Chicago police followed the pings from that phone to track Carter down in the 5500 block of S. LaSalle St. about an hour after the assault. Carter's bail is set at $2 million.

State records show that Carter was paroled in June after serving half of the 25-year-sentence that he received for an armed robbery in Chicago's New City neighborhood.

A man whose court record includes more than eight aliases, Carter's previous prison stints include a six-year sentence for narcotics and a concurrent 3-year sentence for attempted robbery in 1998; six years for burglary in 1989; and 2 years for aggravated battery-great bodily harm in 1989, according to state records.

Carter is branded with a symbol of the Four Corner Hustlers street gang.

Carter met the victim at Nick's Beer Garden in Wicker Park late on April 15, then followed her and a friend to a nearby Taco Bell, according to reports.

The victim reportedly had Carter in her apartment to smoke marijuana and he assaulted her when she tried to show him the door.

'Darwin Award' effort leads to arrest for harassing police officer

Reggie Catayong, 44, of the 5100 block of N. Troy St., was placed into custody April 20 after being positively identified as the person who followed a Chicago Police officer in a vehicle as the officer left court on the 2400 block of W. Belmont.

The officer was followed to the 2800 block of W. Catalpa where, at approximately 2 p.m., Catayong shouted, "We're going to get you!" to the officer while in traffic.

Making a strong entry into the noted "Darwin Award" that features stupid actions that result in people's downfall, Catayong and the 42-year-old driver were ambushed, stopped and arrested by responding units in the alley of the 5100 block of S. Troy.

Intelligence obtained by Lincoln 20th District Tactical Officers led to a search warrant of Catayong's home which revealed copious amounts of narcotics including cocaine, liquid THC, anabolic steroids, and numerous pills.

A replica firearm was also recovered and narcotic proceeds seized. Catayong was charged with 9 felony counts.

Woman accosted by an onanist

A woman has filed a police report claiming that an unidentified man dropped his pants and masturbated in front of her the morning of March 20 on a public street in Rogers Park. The 25-year-old victim told police she was in the 6800 block of N. Lake-wood Ave. around 9 a.m. when a man made eye contact with her before running north up the street and momentarily disappearing into an entryway.

As she reached the spot where the man had gone out of her sight, she saw him again, this time standing in a doorway with his pants down, his shirt pulled up, and his 'privates' in his hand. The man was masturbating and laughed when the woman looked at him, according to her statement.

The man then ran when the woman opened her camera phone and threatened to film him while calling 911. Officers were sent to the area but did not find the man or make any arrests.

Mechanic steals customer's car from Edgewater repair shop

The owner of an Edgewater auto repair garage was forced to break the news to a customer that his vehicle had been stolen and driven away by a new employee of the garage.

The customer, a 52-year-old resident of Woodridge, filed a police report March 28 stating that a mechanic at Chicago Auto Repair, 6145 N. Clark St., stole his vehicle during a test drive. The owner of the garage was present while the report was being made and told officers that the alleged thief had been employed 10 days and had not been given a background check as a pre-requisite to employment.

According to the owner, the victim's car had received engine repairs and the newly hired mechanic was told to test drive the vehicle to ensure the work had been properly completed. He left the garage some time in the afternoon and never returned, the owner said.

The mechanic had given his employer an address in the 1500 block of W. Devon Ave. and police were investigating the location. A supplemental arrest report for the vehicle theft could not be located, but the suspect had been arrested back in early February in the 8800 block of S. Creigier Ave. for possession of a controlled substance, according to police records. In the course of that arrest he gave police a home address in Crown Point, IN.

Grocery robbed for third time by same bandit

SKM Grocery, 1455 W. Devon Ave., was robbed by the same man for the third time, according to the store's owner, who was punched in the face during the latest incident on April 11.

According to a police report filed by the 64-year-old man, the alleged robber waited until the last customer had left before running into the store at approximately 10:30 p.m.

Once inside, the robber ran straight to the cash register and attempted to open the drawer. The store owner challenged his attempt, grabbing hold of his shoulder, when the robber turned and punched him in the face, knocking him to the ground.

He then took approximately $100 cash from the register and fled the store, escaping on foot in an unknown direction. Officers were sent to tour the area but did not make any arrests. The owner declined medical attention for minor swelling to his face.

The owner gave police three earlier report numbers from Dec. 31 of 2016, and Jan. 7 and 15 from this year, that were filed after the previous robberies. The owner believes the thief lives in the neighborhood but had not seen him around outside of the robberies. Police are investigating.

Police give car back to original owner in strange situation

Police on April 11 released a 2004 Nissan Maxima to its original owner after discovering it had been purchased, two owners earlier, with counterfeit money, according to a report filed with Chicago Police.

The unusual situation began after the current owner of the Maxima had been pulled over in the 1700 block of W. Glenlake Ave. in Rogers Park and arrested for driving a stolen vehicle, police said.

However, at the 24th District station, it was discovered that the man had acquired the Maxima legitimately in a straight-up trade for his 2004 Dodge Durango with an unidentified man. He then produced the paperwork proving he owned the Maxima, according to police.

When officers dug deeper into the situation, it was discovered that the Maxima had been reported stolen after the original owners discovered it was paid for with counterfeit currency. The date of that purchase was listed as Feb. 15 of this year, though the value was not stated in the report.

The vehicle's original owner, the one who had been defrauded with counterfeit money, was called to the police station and signed vehicle recovery forms, releasing the Maxima back to him, the department said.

The man who had traded for the Maxima with his Durango was not charged with any crime and was immediately released from custody. The recovery of the Durango from the man who purchased the Maxima with counterfeit money was not discussed in the report's narrative.

Teens robbed on hoops court

Two teenagers fled the basketball courts at Green Briar Park in West Ridge after two men took a wallet belonging to one of the boy's and seemed poised to cause a violent scene, according to police.

The 17-year-olds were in the park about 8:45 p.m. April 9 playing basketball when two black males in their middle-20s walked onto the court and started demanding their basketball.

When they refused to hand over their ball, which they feared the men would steal, the men got aggressive and began asking what the boys had in their pockets.

One of the men then walked up to one of the boys, grabbed him and reached into his pocket, pulling out his wallet and walking away. The wallet had $80 cash and a high school student ID, the victim said.

Both boys told police they became scared that the men were going to beat them up and ran out of the park. Officers toured the area but did not make any arrests.

Man robbed at gunpoint at CTA bus stop

Police reported that a 63-year-old man had a gun put to his head during a robbery at a CTA bus stop in Rogers Park.

The victim told police he had gotten off a bus near 1500 W. Devon Ave. about 11:10 p.m. when two men approached him. One of those men had put a handgun against his head while demanding his wallet.

The victim surrendered to the men a wallet with $160 cash and several credit cards, police said. The robbers then fled while the man went straight to the 24th District to report the robbery. No arrests were made that night.

Man carried illegal air gun because "It's wild on the Red Line"

Spotted in possession of an illegal pellet gun, a 49-year-old South Shore man told 19th District police that he doesn't cause any trouble with the gun, he just carries it "for protection because it's wild on the CTA Red Line," police said.

Officers met up with William Fields on April 9 after a caller reported a suspicious person using a parking garage electrical outlet to charge multiple cell phones in the 3100 block of N. Sheffield.

As cops inquired about Fields' collection of electrical devices, one officer allegedly saw the barrel of a gun sticking out of Fields' backpack.

COOK COUNTY REAL PROPERTY
ASSESSMENTS FOR 2017

This publication constitutes official notice of the changes in assessment to all owners of real property in Rogers Park Township. The 2017 assessment changes as published herein are those determined by the Assessor of Cook County.

It is the duty of the Assessor to appraise all taxable real property in Cook County at its fair cash value as of January 1, 2017. Fair cash value is described as what the property would bring at a voluntary sale in the normal course of business or trade. The Assessor is required by law to assess said property in a fair and just manner.

The Assessor does not determine property taxes. Property taxes are determined by the spending needs and requests of municipalities, school boards, park districts and other local government agencies which provide public services to property owners. The Assessor's sole responsibility is to estimate the value of real estate property.

In Cook County, real property is classified according to its use. The classification system is used to determine the percentage of the fair cash value at which the real property is assessed for purposes of taxation. Accordingly, real property is assessed at only a fraction of its fair cash value, depending on its use and classification.

Changes in assessment for land and improvements are lists separately. The dimensions of the land are also listed:

- A - Acres
- B - Back Lot
- N - Irregular Lot
- S - Square Feet

Cook County uses a Permanent Index Number (P.I.N) system as a means to identify individual real estate parcels. The PIN consists of a 14-digit number. The first two digits identify the area or survey township; the second two digits identify the sub-area or section; the next three digits identify blocks.

Note:

Blocks are defined as follows:

- Blocks 100 to 199 are located in the N.W. Quarter
- Blocks 200 to 299 are located in the N.E. Quarter
- Blocks 300 to 399 are located in the S.W. Quarter
- Blocks 400 to 499 are located in the S.E. Quarter

The next three digits in the series identify the specific parcel or lot. The last four, (where applicable), identify individual condominium units, non-operating railroad parcels or leasehold's of exempt parcels.

Whenever possible, the assessment list will be listed by the street name and the street or house number of the parcel. However, the Cook County Assessor's Office official records rely on permanent Property Index Numbers (P.I.N.) only. No assessment of real property shall be considered invalid due to an incorrect listing.

If you have any questions regarding the assessment of real property you should visit the Office of the Assessor of Cook County, 118 N. Clark Street, Room 301, Chicago, Illinois 60602, or call (312) 443-7550.

gun, officers handcuffed him and searched his bag, recovering a holstered air gun and five gas canisters, according to their report.

That’s when Fields had a change of heart: “I have a BB gun but cause no trouble, Officers,” Fields allegedly said. “I just have it for protection because it’s wild on the CTA Red Line.”

Indeed, Fields has only a handful of criminal court cases in Cook County records, all for minor offenses.

The last time he was arrested was in Feb. 2015, when cops found him in possession of an air gun... at the 69th Street Red Line Station.

Lakeview server robbed after work

A Lakeview server was robbed as they left work on April 18 in the 2900 block of N. Sheffield—the same block where a man was shot just hours before.

The server was jumped around 10 p.m. near Sheffield and Wellington, police said.

They described the robber as a black man with a mini-Afro who was wearing a black varsity jacket with red and white stripes. The offender fled westbound on Wellington on a white or gray bicycle.

• Also in Lakeview: A robbery victim walked into the 19th District police station after being pepper-sprayed and robbed nearby on April 16, police said.

The victim said he was in the 3600 block of N.

Fremont around 7:40 p.m. when “Seven or eight black females sprayed the gentleman and stole his cellphone,” an officer said.

No one is in custody.

Man critical after being shot eight times in Uptown

A 21-year-old man is in critical condition after being shot eight times in Uptown on April 19. He became the third person to be shot in that neighborhood in five days.

Police said the man was standing in the 4500 block of N. Clarendon when shots rang out around 9:35 p.m. He found his way to nearby Weiss Hospital, but they transferred him to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center due to the severity of his wounds.

The gunman is described as a black man in his 20’s who was wearing a pink or orange hat, a royal blue shirt, and blue jeans with green and white plaid boxer shorts.

Police are following several strong leads, and multiple sources stated that the shooting is likely related to another shooting days earlier outside the Uptown McDonald’s, 1004 W. Wilson.

The McDonald’s victim is a documented gang member, convicted felon, and drug dealer who is known to the neighborhood, according to a source.

River North business will offer intravenous relief from hangovers, jet lag

Dehydrated from a late night of drinking? Prices at IVme will start at $89 for an “Intravenous Hydration” appointment.

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

A “wellness and performance center” opening in River North will offer relief from a variety of ailments – delivered by IV drip.

IVme opened Thursday in one of the last, if not the last, available commercial spaces at Marina City.

Customers will include sufferers of hangovers, travel fatigue, dehydration, stress, allergies, migraines, minor illnesses such as cold or flu, athletes training for or recovering from an event, or anyone who could benefit from vitamins or oxygen. IVme will also offer wrinkle-decreasing Botox and medical options for weight loss.

An IVme location in the Old Town neighborhood has been receiving positive reviews since 2013, almost all of them from people with a variety of non-life-threatening issues.

“We absolutely love our location,” said IVme founder Dr. Jack Dybis. “I honestly think we could not have picked a better spot. [Marina City] is obviously an iconic Chicago landmark, and... Hotel Chicago has been a gracious host to our new venture. We have great immediate neighbors, being between Tortoise Supper Club and SPiN, and just below Yolk.”

Dybis is a fully licensed physician and has been a trauma surgeon since 2007, most recently at Presence Saint Francis Hospital in Evanston. He co-owns IVme with Dr. Scott Yilk, a specialist in emergency medicine.

Prices at IVme will start at $89 for an “Intravenous Hydration” appointment.

According to its website, treatments generally take 30 to 45 minutes and are received while lying on a chaise lounge or sofa. Saline mixed with the selected additive is administered by a registered nurse from an IV drip to an injection point. Side effects, minor and short-lived says the website, can include soreness, bruising, and bleeding.

Nearly a decade ago, Inside Publications published a series of articles about the Montrose Point Bird Sanctuary that documented the same problems as those described by Munoz. Back then, sources told Inside certain city officials have asked the city to not enforce the law when it pertains to the men who are cruisers. Munoz said he has been told the same thing.

with the CPD and who is now retired.

Munoz understands the issues faced by today’s police officers. Violent crime takes precedence over stopping cruisers from using the sanctuary as their meeting place. In addition, Munoz adds, some dog owners continue to allow their dogs to run through the sanctuary, which is also prohibited. Doing so disturbs the sanctuary’s wildlife and can discourage birds and small animals from using it.

“People are not going to bother cops to write dog-tickets. It is just not worth it. We want the park district security to enforce the law. We have also asked Chicago Animal Control to help. They can also write tickets. We have met with them twice and they’re also supposed to be out there enforcing the law. Once they start writing tickets, which are $150 and $200 tickets, you will see a change in behavior. Those are some expensive tickets. Six years ago, we were told people would be prosecuted for violating the ropes and fences in the sanctuary. Everything the park district asked us to do, we do. Each day, I go out and document the violations,” Munoz said.

According to Munoz, the sanctuary should be open to all but continued unchecked use of the park by the cruisers has discouraged many from visiting it as individuals. The sanctuary also remains popular as a field trip destination for Chicago-area school-children.

“The only thing the cruisers are scared of are the school-groups. They really disperse quickly when a school-group appears,” said Munoz.

trose Point Bird Sanctuary that documented the same problems as those described by Munoz. Back then, sources told Inside certain city officials have asked the city to not enforce the law when it pertains to the men who are cruisers. Munoz said he has been told the same thing.

“Six years ago, we were told people would be prosecuted for violating the ropes and fences in the sanctuary. Step off the path and you will be in violation. Everything the Park District asked us to do, we have done. Now what?” Munoz asked.

One positive change which Munoz has seen has been the formation and cooperation from MonDog.org, an organization of dog-lovers who use the Montrose Beach Dog Park.

“Mondogs tell their members what is and isn’t allowed and why. They have worked with the Park District and they are going to put up signs. Mondog came up with that idea on their own,” Munoz said.

Because it is a very unique wildlife habitat, wildlife continues to provide surprises and to use the lakefront park in new ways.

“There is a killdeer [a type of native shorebird] nest in the middle of a volleyball court. The bird people have fenced it off. Will other people get mad because they now have put a fence around the nest? You can’t miss it! The birds don’t just stay within the sanctuary. They will use the entire beach. It will be interesting to see if the nest will survive. It is the dog people who walk over there. I’m curious if the dogs jump over there. It’s a great example of how Montrose Beach can be used by shore birds in April and May,” Munoz said.

Built on lakefront landfill, the sanctuary originally became a popular stopover for migratory birds during the height of the Cold War. For about a decade, the site was off-limits to all, except for those who worked at a military outpost which included a battery of Nike surface-to-air missiles meant to shield the city from an incoming attack.

What today is the Montrose Point Bird Sanctuary was originally designed in the 1930s by renowned landscape architect Alfred Caldwell to be a nature park. Caldwell’s plan was meant to convey what he described as a “naturalistic effect” with lush meadows and layered native vegetation. In the late 1990s, the Park District expanded the habitat for birds but without diminishing Caldwell’s original concept. At that time, hundreds of trees and shrubs were planted.
