PAWS Chicago hosts the 21st annual Angels with Tails Gold Coast

Animal shelters come together Sunday to showcase homeless pets available for adoption

BY CHARLIE SCHMOOPIE

PAWS Chicago, the city's largest No Kill humane organization, along with six shelters and rescue organizations, will bring the faces of Chicago's homeless animals to 40 stores along Oak, Rush, and Walton streets, and Delaware Pl., for the 21st Annual Angels with Tails Gold Coast.

The event offers an opportunity to stroll the sidewalks and experience the joy that a pet can bring when more than 100 homeless puppies, kittens, dogs and cats will be available for adoption noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

In 1998, PAWS Chicago launched the first Angels with Tails, Chicago's first large-scale adoption event that showcased homeless pets on sidewalks and storefronts along Michigan Ave. and Oak St. By bringing homeless pets to the forefront of public awareness, many lives were saved that day and it was the beginning of PAWS Chicago's mission to bring attention to the staggering reality that thousands of homeless pets are needlessly killed each year. 42,561 dogs, cats, puppies and kittens were killed in Chicago in 1997 alone.

The resulting attention and community responsiveness birthed Chicago's No Kill movement, which has translated into lifesaving results. The number of pets euthanized has decreased by 84%, to approximately 6,000 pets killed in Chicago in 2017.

Some 40 Gold Coast retailers will offer their storefronts and windows to PAWS Chicago and several other rescue partners to showcase and find new families for homeless animals that are looking for a home to call their own.

Man charged in River North mugging

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

A Chatham man has been charged with punching a 31-year-old man in the face and robbing him in the 400 block of N. Wells around 2:20 a.m. May 3, police said. The victim suffered swelling, bruising, and a laceration in the attack. Jaqwan Wooden, 32, of Chatham was positively identified by the victim, police said.

Wooden is charged with felony robbery and battery. He has been ordered held without bail. He is due back in court on Friday.

A second man who was allegedly involved in the robbery remains at large.

In other downtown incidents, police said a 16-year-old boy and a 20-year-old man were robbed as they walked to their car in the Loop early Sunday. The victims said they were walking in the 800 block of S. Wabash around 1:55 a.m. when they were approached by two robbers, one of whom pulled out a handgun. The robbers took the victims' phones and keys, then fled northbound on State St. in a maroon Chevy Malibu with a broken headlight. The victims were not injured and no one is in custody, police said in a statement.

A man told police that he was robbed outside of Rainforest Cafe by two teenagers who implied that they had a gun around 4 a.m. last Sunday morning. After announcing the robbery, both offenders took the man's wallet, keys, and phone then fled eastbound on Ohio St., police said. The victim described the offenders as two black males between 16- and 18-years-old. One offender wore a black hoodie with black pants.

Riverville coming to North Branch?

Ricketts buy into professional soccer and proposed new riverfront stadium

Is a second Wrigleyville coming to the North Branch of the Chicago River?

Soccer fans have a reputation for being enthusiastic in support of their favorite teams and North Side soccer fans may soon have something new to cheer for with the news that Chicago Cubs owner Tom Ricketts and local developer Sterling Bay are teaming up on a plan to bring a United Soccer League [USL] expansion team to the Chicago River's North Branch.

The proposed new 20,000-seat facility will also likely host other public events such as concerts, music festivals and sporting tournaments, and its proposed retractable roof means they can host year-round events free from fears over the weather.

It also stands to be straight up competition for the United Center, which now holds a monopoly on the need for a 20,000-seat indoor venue.

The deal will see Ricketts take a majority ownership position in the yet-to-be-named professional franchise.

While Sterling Bay announced an agreement to bring a USL team to its Lincoln Yards mixed-use development late in 2017, the newly formed partnership with Ricketts brings more big money and sports marketing expertise to the effort.

The USL team is expected to make its home at the new arena designed by local architecture firm Skidmore, Owings & Merrill.

City Hall will no doubt be expecting visits from lobbyists, supporters and opposition as the 70-plus acres of formerly industrial land — recently vacated by the likes of Lakin Recycling, Finkl Steel, General Iron, and the city's Fleet and Facility Management complex — still needs final zoning approval to move forward.

For now the new joint venture between Ricketts and Sterling Bay is shooting for a 2021 debut for Chicago's new North Side Soccer team.

Grand Ave. streetlight upgrade completed as part of modernization program

The Chicago Dept. of Transportation recently completed an upgrade to the streetlights along Grand Ave., spanning nearly the entire length from the Chicago River to Lake Shore Dr., as part of the City's Smart Lighting Modernization Program.

The new lights will produce a harsh white light but consume 50-75% less electricity than old High Pressure Sodium (HPS) lights which produced a soft warm orange light, but required more energy consumption.

Some LED fixtures also can last two-to-three times longer than HPS lights, and some think that LED lights provide better nighttime visibility. The LED light fixtures selected by the City are "full cut-off," meaning they are designed to project light downward where it is needed on streets and sidewalks, not into the night sky or nearby properties.

Citywide the $165 million project will replace over 270,000 of Chicago's street, alley and viaduct lights with LED fixtures during its four-year timeframe. Chicago is also installing a citywide lighting management system for the new LED lights. When it becomes operational later this year, the system will alert the City when lights need service.

The City expects to cut its streetlight electricity costs by more than half through the modernization. In addition, through ComEd's energy efficiency incentive efforts, the City will earn rebates that subsidize the cost of converting outdated HPS lights to LED technology. These rebates are projected to total $35 million.

To date, more than 42,000 new streetlight fixtures have been installed.

By the end of this summer, the new lights will be installed on more than a dozen major arterial routes across the city. The scope of this program does not include ornamental fixtures or previously installed white light fixtures.

State of the 2nd Ward May 23

Ald. Brian Hopkins [2nd] will discuss issues of special interest to ward residents at a Town Hall meeting 5:30 p.m. May 23 at The Drake Hotel, 140 E. Walton Pl.

The meeting is free and open to all and prior to the meeting, organizers Streeterville Organization of Active Residents will forward questions posed by attendees who register in advance.

Time for a question-and-answer session will follow the presentation.

Raised by women of power

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

I grew up surrounded by strong women. My mother and my grandmothers. I suspect my mother had to endure a lot. Keep her own council. Hold her tongue, and bide her time.

Both my grandmothers were very free with their advice and predictions. One was widowed. The other comfortably wed. Both had large families by today's standards. Each was an unchallenged rule maker, social supervisor and religious zealot. Each was Irish born, but the details of their life's journeys was very different.

My grandmother, Nora, came to America as a girl of 14 or 15, fibbing all the way that she was 16. She came to Chicago and had an instant connection from friends and family who had earlier left their small rural village of Croom, County Limerick. She was quick to find rarified employment in the household of the Boyce Family, relatives of the Buckingham, of fountain fame. She had a young man from her village here who loved her and eventually wed her. But not before she saw a lot of America, especially when working for the young Norman Rockwells in Western Massachusetts. They too had a connection to the Boyce Family, and had young children that needed looking after. I always closely scan a work by Rockwell, thinking he might have drawn the figure of a teenage girl with stars in her eyes and starch in her apron. I always wondered if she sang for his children the little Irish tunes that she liked to sing to us when small.

After her summer in the Berkshires, she returned to Chicago to wed her sweetheart, Tim, and God would give them 30 years together. Five children. A swell clapboard house and humor that still could be quenched. Tim was a good provider. He and his brother, Jack, (who married Nora's sister, Nell) were railroad men. Handsome in their stiff collars and silk ties and well-cut suits. They were thriving in their new American home. Assimilating and fashioning their own American dream. I remember that Nora had crisp and clear American ways about her.

Her sense of purpose. Geography, and inclusive sense of hospitality.

My paternal grandmother, Rebecca, seemed very different. She was part of a revolutionary movement back in the Ireland of her youth. They sought their country's independence from Britain. She was from a more landed, agricultural family than Nora. She was poetic and philosophical. Aware of the traumas of British colonial life.

She married her love, Jim, a gunslinger. A guerrilla fighter who had already been to Australia. Made a good life with the Aussies, but came home to wage a war for independence. As a young married woman she cared for three young boys and stood in solidarity with other family women marching to an underground battle of wits and no surrender. Freedom would only come after five years of fighting. And then the bloodshed of civil war, a delayed outcome they could not accommodate.

Chicago was supposed to be a stopping place on the way to Down Under. But here my grandmother dug in her feet and said, "enough."

She arrived here as a wife and a mother in exile, but with her family. Tired of war, spying, treachery and bloodshed. I used to think of them like the patriots who rode with George Washington, wrapped in the struggle for nationhood.

They created a remarkable household of warmth and faith. But with little assimilation. They came to wait out the politics. Not to slip into the rhythms of another nation.

Ironically, her sons would walk on beaches in the Pacific, in Normandy, and one would perish in the snows of Bastogne. Part of another conflict they never saw ahead when crossing onto Ellis Island.

Only now am I beginning to understand the power and the courage of my grandmothers. Is that what was galvanizing my Grandmother Nora's young heart, or my grandmother Rebecca's geopolitical world view, like she was one of the Sons of the Liberty?

Don't get me wrong, my grandmothers relished their differences and cherished the things they had in common, like me, and my sister. They loved Chicago. And the summer.

They loved to sip a Brandy Alexander at Jack Gibbon's on Sunday afternoons. They loved the news, and the chance to help another. They loved the family feasts and the characters around their tables.

In the midst of it all we had Eileen, a remarkable mom of our own in an era in which wives and mothers were stretched by the detail and duty of family. My mother was not an Irish revolutionary. Or a girl who ever had to leave her home. Or trust her life to the stars, sailing the Atlantic and reinventing herself.

Different circumstances than her mother's, but requiring strength all the same.

Every woman has her own version of "girl power."

Putting a band-aid on a crumbling lakefront

Heart of the 'Hood By Felicia Dechter

Repairs are apparently underway on the severe lakefront erosion damage at the north end of East Rogers Park. Neighbors who've fought long and hard to make that happen were happy to hear that news, yet they say what's being done are "quick fixes" and a long term solution is still needed.

"We're happy a repair plan is in place, we're all saying that's nice," said Tom Heineman, treasurer and a founding member of the Greater Eastlake Terrace Beaches Park Advisory Council (GET Beaches PAC). "But if we have another winter or spring like we had, whatever they do could easily be destroyed."

"People are happy it's being repaired," said Heineman. "We're not happy because it's gotten to this point."

Heineman said the advisory council has been working on getting the Chicago Park District to pay attention to these beaches -- Juneway, Howard and Rogers -- for the last 10 to 15 years. They used to restore, clean, and put sand on them, he said.

Work is underway at Juneway Beach on much-needed revetment repairs.

"Now that the water level is up... they're self-destructing," said Heineman, adding that Juneway and Rogers are quick fixes but Howard is a little more structural, possibly because the playground is threatened and they "have to do something more major there."

Park district parks coordinator Sarah White came out and assessed the situation last year, Heineman said, and advisory council president Therese DeTolla plans to reach out to her and Ald. Joe Moore [49th] to discuss long term plans and keep this in the forefront.

"Ald. Moore has been helpful, but his ability to influence the park district... he has the same issues we do," said Heineman, a resident of Eastlake Terrace since 1978. "He has persuasion abilities but unless the community is out there... he needs the community and press support to make something happen."

The repairs were badly needed, and he appreciated the park district's "fast action" in undertaking them, said Ald. Moore.

"The combination of high water levels and severe winter storms really wreaked havoc on our lakefront, especially our parks and beaches on the far north end of Rogers Park," he said.

"The Park District tells me the total cost of the reconstruction is $250,000 and will be paid for out of the District's capital budget," Ald. Moore said. "The park district is applying for funding from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' emergency fund, but is fronting the cost, as the Army Corps' application process can be quite lengthy and the park district understands the need to address the hazardous conditions as soon as possible," the alderman said. The parks will remain open during the process, but obviously the areas to be repaired will be cordoned off, he said.

(BTW, congrats to the Moore family, as their oldest son, Nathan, proposed to his longtime girlfriend, Elyse Toplin, last weekend at the Washington, D.C., bus stop where they first met. The entire family was invited to witness the happy moment!)

"The repairs are a necessary, but short-term measure," he said. "Rebuilding the entire revetment is a costly undertaking, probably in the millions of dollars, and likely will require the assistance of our federal government partners."

Below is a park-by-park breakdown of the repairs, which are all scheduled to start by the end of May.

- Juneway Beach Park, completed by July 15: Replace all damaged concrete along lake edge; install new sidewalk; fill new concrete in between existing concrete blocks; and restore landscape as needed.
- Rogers Beach Park, completed by June 15: Fill voids with stone and/or concrete material.
- Howard Beach Park, completed by July 31: Remove and replace concrete blocks, including leveling and filling; install new concrete stairs, sidewalk and support wall; and restore landscape as needed.

The city and the park district are also working on a plan to address the collapse of Birchwood Ave., which is a total disaster. They are also in discussions with the Army Corps of Engineers on additional shoreline protection plans, including possibly installing rock piles in the lake similar to those at Fargo and Jarvis, which were installed 30 years ago, the last time Lake Michigan levels were this high, Ald. Moore said.

And again, although neighbors are thrilled the repairs are happening, a nearby neighbor commented: "We just get some concrete fillers? Why can't we get what Lincoln Park got... a huge renovation right by Theater on the Lake with nice sitting areas? Why can't we have that in Rogers Park? We get nothing."

"It's so shady," the neighbor said. "Why can't we get anything nice? Seriously, why can't Rogers Park get anything nice?"

But Ald. Moore said that "the Lincoln Park revetment didn't just happen overnight. It was the product of a 20-year process. I'm in no way suggesting it will take 20 years to build a new revetment along our lakefront, but it won't happen this year."

"Given the high water levels, the Army Corps of Engineers probably will need to put into place more shoreline protection, such as the rock piles in place at the end of Fargo and Jarvis," said Ald. Moore. "It doesn't make sense to build a revetment only to have it wash away in a series of nor'easter storms. The Park District has commenced discussions with the Army Corps."

Off to see the 'Wizad'... Grab the kids, the grandkids, or just go yourself to see the adorable version of "The Wizard of Oz," running through May 20 at the Chicago Theatre, 175 N. State St. Somehow the creators of the show managed to do what I imagine would be a difficult task, recreating the beloved family musical and adapting it to the stage. Yet it was done magically, and it captivated my little granddaughters, as well as my husband and I. We loved the special effects and of course the music can't be beat. We had an unforgettable night at the theater, which we preceded with a fun early dinner at Rainforest Café in River North. Get there if you can to see this wonderful celebration of the classic 1939 MGM movie!

Lincoln Towing rebuked by ICC, one step closer to losing license

After over two years of testimony, examination and investigation of the business practices of Lincoln Towing, 4882 N. Clark St., the Illinois Commerce Commission [ICC] still has not yet reached a final decision about whether or not the infamous towing firm has the right to remain in business.

According to the ICC's audit of Lincoln Towing's business records, they found 831 incidents of known violations between July 2015 and March 2016.

That breaks down as 462 times when Lincoln Towing grabbed a car it shouldn't have because its contract to tow cars from that particular lot had been canceled, or its contract stipulated that it could tow only at the request of the property owner, or it didn't have a contract on file with the ICC, or the lot had a contract with a different towing company; and 369 times when a vehicle was seized by an operator who didn't have a valid permit.

The ICC said that a ruling can be expected later this summer, but that even then the case could drag on even longer.

Another public hearing on the case is slated for late June, and an administrative law judge is expected to issue a ruling on the case later this summer. The five ICC commissioners are expected to issue their final ruling after that. And still, Lincoln Towing could then challenge that ruling in circuit court.

The ICC report cited a pervasive and ongoing pattern of conducting unauthorized relocations in violation of the law and concluded that Lincoln is incompetent and unworthy to maintain its state license.

With apartments in demand, condo 'deconversions' becoming popular

The Home Front
By Don DeBat

With apartment rents skyrocketing in recent years, Chicago's downtown and lakefront rental market is so profitable that developers are looking for ways to skip the typical two-year construction schedule needed to build a new high-rise.

Instead, several major developers are opting for "deconversion"—buying all of the units in an existing condominium building and rehabbing the apartments for rental.

Under state law, an investor can acquire all the condos in a building if 75% of the unit owners vote to approve a sale. Even if some owners vote "no," the dissenting owners are forced to sell. An arbitrator would handle disputes over the appraised prices and terms.

Experts say the deconversion trend started nearly a decade ago after the Great Recession created the condo bust. Developers snatched up unsold condos in failed projects in bulk transactions and rented them out.

Over the past three years the trend has accelerated. The new wrinkle is investors are hunting for troubled older condo buildings and attempting to buy out individual owners in such hot neighborhoods as the Gold Coast, Lincoln Park, Old Town, Lakeview, Wrigleyville, Logan Square and the South Loop.

Dozens of condo boards have received offers from developers who want to "deconvert" their buildings by purchasing all of the individual units, upgrade them with new granite kitchens, fancy baths and wood floors, and turn them back into rental apartments.

Ironically, many of the high-rises now in demand for deconversion were originally built as rental properties, then converted to condominium ownership during the conversion boom of the 1970s.

Under state law, an investor can acquire all the condos in a building if 75% of the unit owners vote to approve a sale. Even if some owners vote "no," the dissenting owners are forced to sell.

Why would condo owners vote to dissolve their association? It's simple economics, experts say. First, condo resale values plummeted during the Great Recession, and prices have not fully recovered in most buildings. For example, a typical one-bedroom unit that originally sold for $294,000 in 2005, resold for only $170,000—a 42% resale price decline—a decade later, according to Cook County property records.

Second, many of the lakefront buildings were built in the 1960s and converted to condos during the boom of the 1970s and 1980s. These aging properties are showing infrastructure wear and tear, and need new roofs, elevators, windows and mechanical systems. As a result, owners currently are being hit with hefty special assessments for repairs ranging from $25,000 to $75,000-plus per unit.

Third, buildings with low owner-occupancy rates signify trouble as traditionally financed sales and refinancing grind to a halt.

"Deconversion of a financially troubled condominium building is one way for owners to recoup some cash and escape from condo jail," said Chicago Realtor Sara E. Benson, co-author of "Escaping Condo Jail." "It is a national trend. Tens of thousands of condominium units have been deconverted to rentals."

As apartment rents continue to rise, the market value of rental buildings is soaring. So, investors are willing to pay top dollar for a building they can quickly deconvert, renovate, and start the flow of rental cash.

One of the biggest players in the deconversion game is Strategic Properties of North America, a New Jersey-based company, which purchased and deconverted two North Side condo buildings in 2016.

Strategic Properties paid $35 million for the 133-unit Clark Place high-rise at 2625 N. Clark St. in Lincoln Park, and $51.5 million for Bel Harbor, a 207-unit tower at 420 W. Belmont Ave. in the Belmont Harbor section of Lakeview.

In 2018, Strategic Properties targeted the 268-unit Kennelly Square, a 22-story tower at 1749 N. Wells St. in Old Town, for deconversion. The company offered as much as $78 million to buy the property, and 75.8% for the condo owners in the building voted to approve the sale, according to an email sent out to unit owners.

A key reason Kennelly Square condo owners are eager to sell is they are facing a $14 million special assessment to cover deferred maintenance, including new windows, tuck pointing and other repairs.

A typical studio condo owner at Kennelly Square likely would have been slapped with a $35,000 special assessment on a unit with a market value of $120,000. By agreeing to sell the unit to Strategic Properties, the typical owner would receive about $150,000.

Another major deconversion is now underway at River City, a 448-unit South Loop condo complex designed by famed architect Bertrand Goldberg. In late 2017, owners voted to sell the complex to Marc Realty Capital, a Chicago investment firm.

However, not all condo boards and owners are jumping on the deconversion bandwagon. When a developer offered to buy the 492-unit Lincoln Park condo high-rise at 1660 N. LaSalle, the building's condo board quickly rejected a $141 million offer without asking owners to vote on it.

Cop settles lawsuit alleging race-charged, off-duty battery of Boystown bouncer

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

A settlement has been reached in a lawsuit that accused a Town Hall Police District community policing officer of battering and injuring a black security guard during an off-duty incident at a Boystown bar in 2013, according to court filings.

Court records show that Officer Thomas J. Walsh's liability company paid former security guard James Matthews $300,000 to settle the case which alleged hate crime, battery, and intentional infliction of emotional distress against Walsh. Matthews claimed that a shoulder injury that he suffered in the incident had prevented him from working again as a security guard.

Matthews separately received a $2,000 worker's compensation payment from The Lucky Horseshoe Lounge, 3169 N. Halsted St., according to court filings.

In addition to working as a police officer in the 19th District, Walsh's private security company, Walsh Security, has been paid with private funds to patrol the Boystown and Wrigleyville bar strips as well as the Center On Halsted at 3656 N. Halsted.

Judge Christopher Lawler brought the Matthews case to an end on Tuesday by issuing a summary judgment releasing the Horseshoe from liability under the Illinois Dram Shop Act. Lawler also granted a summary judgment in favor of the City of Chicago, which Matthews sued based on Walsh's position as a police officer.

In June 2015, then-Chicago Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy imposed a 60-day suspension against Walsh after a 15-month Independent Police Review Authority (IPRA) investigation sustained three of four charges against Walsh in the Horseshoe incident. Walsh exercised his contractual right to file a grievance. The status of the disciplinary case was not immediately available.

On the day after Thanksgiving 2013, Walsh and some friends went to dinner at a West Town Italian restaurant and split a bottle of wine, he would later tell IPRA investigator William Abbruzzese.

According to Abbruzzese's reports, around 9:30 p.m., Walsh headed to the Lucky Horseshoe where he had been friends with management for some 15 years. He belled up to the back bar with Tim Mitchell, a politically-connected man who was ex-CEO of the Chicago Park District and a long-time aide to Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley.

A few minutes later, James Matthews, then 48, walked through the bar's front door. He was reporting for his first shift as a security officer there. Matthews was met by his supervisor who walked him through the bar, showing him the layout and introducing him to staff members, according to the men's statements to IPRA. As the two guards reached the back bar, they noticed a dust-up between some patrons.

"They were in each other's faces," the supervisor later told investigators, "and I noticed one of the gentlemen involved was Tom Walsh."

A local barfly had been thrown to the ground after insulting Walsh's friend—Mitchell. Walsh said he was trying to break up the fight when security arrived.

The security supervisor—knowing Walsh to be an off-duty cop who privately patrols Halsted St.—"felt it'd be best if [Walsh] knew the new guy [Matthews]," so he introduced them. They shook hands and Matthews assumed his post at the rear entrance.

A few minutes later, Matthews saw another incident in the back bar.

Walsh was "punchin' another patron in the face. I separate them and... Mr. Walsh attacked me and knocked me down on my right side," Matthews later told investigators.

"[Walsh] started yellin' racial slurs at me while I was on the ground and... almost half the bar had to hold 'em back because I think he would've continued to attack me if they had not stopped him while I was on the ground," Matthews told IPRA.

Matthews' supervisor didn't see what happened to his new guard but did see Walsh standing above Matthews screaming, the supervisor recalled in an IPRA report. "He repeatedly called him the 'N' word—a nier."

"Walsh... comes charging, almost as if to finish him off. I'm helping [Matthews] stand up. And a bunch of [Walsh's] friends grab him, and he's just raving and, you know, telling [the injured guard] what he thinks of him and all that good stuff."

Saying the incident seemed like a scene from The Jerry Springer Show, the supervisor said Walsh "looked directly at me and spoke directly to me and said 'get that fking nier away from me.'"

Investigators heard a different story from Walsh: The intoxicated patron who had called his friend a name minutes earlier started hitting Walsh in the chest, the officer recalled.

"That's when I get up and I said—I didn't strike 'em or anything—I said keep your hands off me. I said that hurts," Walsh recalled.

"And with that, someone comes from behind me. They put their arm around my neck," Walsh said.

Sexual assault suspect confesses: "That's her! That's the one I got!" as victim arrives to ID him

A man charged with sexually assaulting a woman in a Loop elevator last weekend made an unusual move when police brought his victim to identify him: He identified her.

Prosecutors say that around 2 p.m. May 5, convicted felon Robert Skipper followed a 28-year-old woman onto an elevator in the historic Rookery Building, 209 S. LaSalle, and then began to assault her. After putting his hand under her blouse, Skipper restrained the woman, forced her to the floor of the elevator and said, "Give me that py," prosecutors said.

After getting away, the woman called 911 and provided a description of the offender. Police said two other women had reported being battered or sexually abused by a man with a similar description earlier in the day—one near Pritzker Park and the other in an unspecified Loop location.

Cops who stopped Skipper near State and Washington shortly after the attack asked other officers to bring the victim to their location to see if they had the right guy.

When the woman arrived, Skipper made eye contact and "excitedly" announced "That's her! That's her! That's the one I got! I stalk my prey," police said in an arrest report. Officers said Skipper's statement was captured on their body cameras.

Prosecutors charged Skipper with felony attempted criminal sexual assault by force; felony criminal sexual abuse by force; and felony unlawful restraint. He is being held without bail.

Skipper previously served prison time for a 2013 robbery on the South Side, according to court records.

Duo used fake money to buy used computer, but cops say that's just the beginning of their problems

A Lakeview man's attempt to sell an old computer online turned into quite the adventure Sunday evening in Wrigleyville. Before it all ended, police would summon the Secret Service and authorities would allegedly recover guns, thousands of dollars in fake currency, a stolen car, and more.

The victim used the "LetGo" app to arrange a computer sale with Derick Mitchell, 28, and Brianna Buchanan, 18, police said. But when the duo showed up to make the exchange in the 600 block of W. Addison around 8 p.m., they handed over $120 in counterfeit cash, according to charges.

Police were called and cops caught up with Mitchell and Buchanan near the Wrigleyville Taco Bell. The victim identified them as the people who turned over the fake bills. That's when things got very interesting. Police learned that Mitchell and Buchanan's car had been reported stolen in Franklin Park. It turns out that the owner of the car arranged to sell it on Craigslist. Only later did he learn that the money he received for his car was counterfeit, police said.

Two pills were recovered from the driver's seat where Mitchell was sitting. In his wallet, cops found two $100 bills, they said. They were both later found to be counterfeit.

Cops impounded the stolen car and took Mitchell and Buchanan to the police station for a meeting with the Secret Service. A search of the car turned up $3,349 in counterfeit currency of various denominations, police said. Some of the bogus bills had the same serial number as the money in Mitchell's wallet, they said.

Brianna Buchanan

Two handguns were also allegedly found in the car.

Mitchell, who lives in Humboldt Park, is charged with felony possession of a controlled substance and misdemeanor theft by deception while the state and federal investigations continue, according to police records.

Buchanan, of the Auburn Gresham neighborhood, was charged with misdemeanor theft by deception and was released on a recognizance bond.

Mitchell was free on $5,000 bond while awaiting trial for aggravated fleeing from police when the counterfeiting case went down. Judge Adam Bourgeois held Mitchell without bail for violating the terms of bail in the pending case.

Robber strikes popular River North restaurant Sunday

An armed robber struck a River North restaurant after closing time on Sunday night, escaping with an unknown amount of cash, police said.

Around 11:45 p.m., the gunman entered the restaurant and encountered an employee who was counting money at Quartino, 626 N. State St., according to police. Officials said the robber pointed a handgun at the employee and demanded that they hand over the money. The employee followed the gunman's demands and the offender ran out of the restaurant.

The robber was last seen heading eastbound on Ontario St. in a tan vehicle, police said. The car has a broken driver's side window covered in tape and a smashed grill, according to police.

The offender is described as a black man between 18- and 25-years-old with a light complexion. He was wearing a black hoodie, blue jeans, and a blue baseball cap.

No one was injured in the hold-up. Area Central detectives are investigating.

Suburban man critical after being attacked on Lake Shore Dr.; connection to May 5 mob incident

A 21-year-old suburban man was battered and critically injured as he walked with his girlfriend on North Lake Shore Dr. near Streeterville on the evening of May 5, police said. Police are conducting a "formal review" of the incident to determine, among other things, why no police report was taken until yesterday evening.

According to a police spokesman, the victim was walking at 1299 N. Lake Shore Dr. around 5:30 p.m. when a group of male and female offenders approached and struck him in the face, causing him to fall and hit his head on the pavement. While the victim was lying on the ground, one of the offenders poured an "unknown liquid" on him and the group then fled the scene, the spokesman said.

The victim was transported to Northwestern Memorial Hospital in critical condition, according to police. No offenders are in custody and the police department did not offer any description of the suspects.

The beating took place about three hours before large groups of teens flooded the streets around the historic Water Tower on May 5, injuring four and leading to two arrests. One of the arrestees, a 16-year-old, was charged with throwing an unknown substance into the face of a police officer who was working to quell the street disturbances.

A witness to that arrest told this newspaper that she believed "300 to 400" people were involved in the melee when she saw near State and Chicago. Separately, a Chicago Police Dept. Transit Unit estimated that the Boy, 13, among two struck in Uptown shooting Thursday

Two teenagers, one only 13-years-old, were shot in Uptown Thursday evening, according to Chicago police and a department source. No one is in custody. Both victims were reported in stable condition.

A witness told officials that they heard gunshots as someone yelled, "get the f out of my neighborhood" in the 4500 block of N. Sheridan around 7:40 p.m.

The younger boy, shot in his left leg, was taken to Lurie Children's Hospital. A 17-year-old male was taken to Weiss Memorial Hospital with a gunshot wound to his right leg.

Witnesses reported seeing two men fire shots before one or both offenders fled and used a key to enter a nearby residential building. Police described two offenders. One was said to be male, black, thin, and wearing a jacket that is white on the top and dark on the bottom with jeans and white shoes. The other was described as a thin black male with short dreadlocks who wore a gray jacket.

same number of participants had departed the area via the Red Line Station at Chicago. The incident began after Water Tower Place security reported a crowd of about 50 teenagers fighting outside of mall at 835 N. Michigan Ave.

According to media reports, mayhem erupted when the crowd from Water Tower Place joined with another group of teens that arrived at the Chicago train station.

Ald. Hopkins said that a link between the Lake Shore Dr. incident and the later mob disturbance "is possible but not confirmed."

News of the Lake Shore Drive case came early on May 10 in a comment Hopkins submitted to an online news source.

"I was wrong about one thing, however," said Ald. Hopkins. "I said there were no serious injuries associated with the mayhem downtown on May 5. I learned earlier today that a 21 year old victim, visiting downtown from the suburbs with his girlfriend, was attacked without provocation by four unknown offenders. He remains in ICU, critical condition with a fractured skull. His distraught parents contacted my office today, because their repeated 911 calls failed to generate an investigatory response of any kind."

A CPD spokesman confirmed that a police report about the Lake Shore Dr. attack was not filed until Wednesday afternoon or evening. "We are conducting a formal review of the incident," the spokesman said.

Raising further concern about the delay in filing a report is that hospitals are required to notify police when patients seek treatment for injuries suffered in criminal acts, a police source said.

Ald. Hopkins revealed on May 8 that police "warning systems" about mob incidents had "failed" on Saturday and said an "internal review" of the failure was underway.

Neighbors stabbed each other in River North SRO, one dead, one in custody

Two neighbors at a River North SRO stabbed each other in a dispute Sunday evening at Lawson House, 30 W. Chicago, police said. One man died and the other is in police custody.

Police said a dispute broke out on the 13th floor of the building around 5:15 p.m. Two men, one age 57 and the other 47, stabbed each other during the altercation. The older man was stabbed in the chest and died at the scene while the younger man was cut on his arm, according to police. The offender is reported in good condition at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

A resident of the building who witnessed last weekend's teen flash mob told us Sunday evening, "Never a dull moment in this place... In the meantime, I'm holed up in my room and definitely in for the night!"

Two ATMS burglarized on Halsted Street

A burglar broke into two Boystown businesses on Friday and stole money from their sidewalk-facing ATMs. The latest incidents are part of a pattern that Chicago police warned about in late April.

Just before noon on Friday, a witness reported seeing a door pried open and a man running from the scene at Tulip's Gallery, 3459 N. Halsted St., police said. Responding officers found the backside of the store's ATM pried open with cash strewn across the floor.

The man who was seen running from the area was described as white, mid-30's, 5'-6" tall, and wearing a flannel shirt.

Less than an hour later, Venicci Pizza, 3343 N. Halsted, reported that its storefront ATM had been burglarized.

Two Lakeview East businesses were targeted by burglars who emptied ATMs during April, according to a previously-released community alert.

The first incident at Kanela Breakfast Club, 3231 N. Clark, on April 13, was followed by another case at 3352 N. Sheffield three days later. The community alert offered no description of the April offenders.

The thief shattered the front door glass of both businesses to make entry, police said.

Police are asking people to look out for suspicious behavior such as loitering. Businesses should also install and maintain a surveillance system, the alert said. Anyone with information about the burglaries is asked to call Area North detectives at 312-744-8263.

Four robbed in an hour Monday in Lakeview, Lincoln Park, Roscoe Village

Four robberies were reported in just over an hour through Lakeview, Lincoln Park, and Roscoe Village early today. No one is in custody and all of the hold-ups may be related.

Police said that just after midnight, two men displayed a handgun and tried to rob another man in the 2800 block of N. Southport. The victim took off running and the would-be robbers fled northbound on Southport. According to the victim, the robbers were two black males under 25-years-old who stand about 5'-6" tall and had short hair. One wore a white top and was armed with a handgun, the man said.

Minutes later, another robbery was reported nearby in the 1300 block of W. Wellington. The offenders' descriptions were similar to the Southport incident. They were last seen running eastbound on Wellington.

Then, around 12:25 a.m., three offenders approached a victim and announced a robbery in the 2600 block of N. Wayne. Once again, a gun was displayed. The offenders' descriptions were similar to the previous cases with red and dark hoodies being remembered by the victim.

Finally, around 1:10 a.m., a robbery victim walked into Jewel-Osco at 3400 N. Western to seek help after she was robbed nearby. The victim told police that she was in the 2200 block of W. Melrose when three men wearing hoodies and scarves over their faces approached her and announced a robbery. One of the offenders displayed a handgun and took the woman's purse.

LAWSUIT from p. 5

"I just turned with my body... and shrugged him off. Whoever it was. Never put my hands on 'em. Never pushed 'em."

"...and then you know the guy's layin' on the ground. And I said what the f*ck are you puttin' your hands on me? And I... did call 'em a nier which I regret," Walsh told investigators.

Three days after Walsh met with IPRA's Abbruzzese, the men returned to the agency's offices on Chicago Avenue. Walsh wanted to make some clarifications.

"I just wanted to emphasize that while I used a very poor choice of profanity," Walsh said, "it was not meant as a racial slur. I just wanted to reiterate that."

Walsh went on to say that he referred to a white man as "nier" during the episode, too. "It was just not meant to be a racial slur. I wanted to clarify that my conduct was not influenced by the alcohol... I was not intoxicated. I did not start either event and I was assaulted from the rear by an unidentified individual."

An allegation that Walsh was intoxicated at the time of the incident was not sustained by the IPRA investigation.

Two of Walsh's acquaintances also spoke with IPRA investigators about the incident. Both stated that Matthews put Walsh in a "chokehold." Neither man could recall seeing Matthews on the floor nor did they remember Walsh verbally abusing him as he lay on the ground. One remembered Walsh using the N-word.

Mitchell, the former parks CEO who was the target of the drunk's insults, died in Dec. 2014 before speaking with IPRA. Another of Walsh's friends who did speak with IPRA has subsequently died.

The Horseshoe settlement was the second civil case involving Walsh or his security company to wrap up in recent weeks. On April 16, Walsh Security's insurance company reached a $6,000 settlement with a man who sued the company and a different Boystown nightclub over an incident that took place on New Year's Day 2015.

Walsh did not respond to requests for comment on this report.

POLICE BEAT from p. 6

Medical Examiner has ruled.

The unidentified man was found in the lake just south of the harbor entrance on the afternoon of Feb. 9. A woman who was walking near the lake called 911 and said the man was submerged about three feet from shore. Divers battled slush-filled water and sharp ice to retrieve the man's body. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

The medical examiner did not rule on a manner of the man's death. Hypothermia due to environmental cold exposure was cited as a secondary cause of death. Authorities also determined that a 25-year-old woman whose body was recovered from Montrose Harbor on May 1 committed suicide by drowning. The woman's body was spotted by Coast Guard personnel and recovered by police who conducted a death investigation.

FedEx worker busted for package theft

A FedEx driver was arrested on the Magnificent Mile the morning of May 10 and charged with stealing over $20,000 worth of packages from the delivery giant. Cops were called around noontime to handled a report of a theft offender being detained in the 500 block of N. Michigan. There, a FedEx senior security specialist told police that driver Regulo Hernandez had "withheld" numerous packages that were sent out for delivery.

Hernandez, 31, allegedly removed the undelivered boxes from shipping pallets, unsealed them, and placed the contents into a trash bag, according to a complaint. Four FedEx workers in two states are listed as witnesses on Hernandez's arrest papers. FedEx claims the value of the stolen goods is $20,271.40, but court records do not include a detailed list of what the packages contained. Hernandez, who lives in the Belmont-Cragin neighborhood, was charged with felony theft over $10,000. He was released from jail after posting $100 of a $1,000 bail that was set by Judge Mary Marubio.

Exhibition on head and neck cancer at Surgical Museum

The International Museum of Surgical Science, 1524 N. Lake Shore Dr., exhibition, "FLUX: Responding to Head and Neck Cancer," runs through August 19.

What more do you want to know about head and neck cancer?

The International Museum of Surgical Science, 1524 N. Lake Shore Dr., opens to the public this Friday a new exhibit titled "FLUX: Responding to Head and Neck Cancer," in the Museum's fourth-floor contemporary art galleries and curated by Dr. Lianne McTavish, Professor of the History of Art, Design and Visual Culture at the Univ. of Alberta.

Through FLUX, art illuminates patient experience with head and neck cancer.

The exhibit uses diverse works of various media including sculpture, drawing, photography, video and printmaking to reveal aspects of the cancer experience that often remain hidden. Appealing to all the senses, they convey the confusion, catastrophe, and hope associated with a serious illness, showing that healing is an uneven and continuous process.

The exhibition will not only raise awareness of head and neck cancer experience but also illuminate the power of contemporary art as a medium to communicate important human experiences and suffering in accessible and thought-provoking ways.

Beginning in early 2015, people diagnosed with head and neck cancer and their family members have shared details about their complex and multi-layered experience of treatment and recovery. The painful, lonely and stigmatizing journeys they have described, which are not easily conveyed through conventional research approaches, inspired the team to develop a research-creation approach to co-build awareness and understanding of head and neck cancer illness experience resulting in FLUX. Presenting artists include Brad Necyk, Heather Huston, Ingrid Bachmann, Jill Ho-You, Jude Griebel and Sean Caulfield.

The exhibit will run through Aug. 19.

Additional programming will be offered including an exhibition symposium on the promise of interdisciplinary, art-medicine collaborative practice in the context of head and neck cancer. For more information call 312-642-6502 or visit www.imss.org.

No bail for robber who allegedly took cheap sunglasses

A Des Plaines man is held without bail, facing felony robbery charges for battering a Loop convenience store clerk while stealing a pair of $9.99 sunglasses, according to court records.

Police said Gathoon Garmooos, 24, was arrested last Tuesday morning after an attempt to steal a case of Corona and the eyewear escalated into a physical confrontation and robbery at 7-Eleven, 58 E. Lake St.

When a 35-year-old store clerk tried to stop Garmooos, the suburban man kicked the clerk, dropped two 12 packs of beer, pushed the clerk to the floor and began to drag him toward the exit, causing cuts and bruising to the victim's arm, according to a police report.

Garmooos allegedly fled with the $9.99 shades and was arrested when he was seen in the area.

He's charged with felony robbery and misdemeanor battery. Judge David Navarro ordered him held without bail.

Exploring the life of Edgar Miller with Art On Sedgwick

Attendees will be discussing Miller's story and how he was instrumental in helping to build the neighborhood and to create the famous "handmade homes" of Old Town.

There's a lot happening on Old Town's Sedgwick Corridor these days thanks to the ambitious vision of Charlie Branda and the art center that she has created, Art on Sedgwick, 1429 N. Sedgwick. The not-for-profit organization is designed to enliven the neighborhood and provide a creative open environment for all to enjoy.

"We believe that everyone here matters," says Branda. "That diversity is an asset that connects people with the best part of themselves." Visit www.artonsedgwick.org for event details.

Art on Sedgwick will explore Edgar Miller's life and work in Old Town and his unique vantage point on community development 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Near North Library, 310 W. Division St.
