The ground has been broken for at least a year, and the bank collective trust investing the pension plans of union workers into the project took a moment last week to celebrate Wolf Point East now at a height about even with Orleans St.

AFL-CIO Building Investment Trust assembled for a groundbreaking ceremony with labor leaders who included Chicago Federation of Labor president Robert Reiter; Ralph Affrunti, president of Chicago & Cook County Building and Construction Trades Council; Eric Dean, general president of International Assoc. of Bridge, Structural, Ornamental and Reinforcing Iron Workers; and Jethro Head, vice president of Bakery, Confectionery, Tobacco Workers & Grain Millers International Union.

Extradition underway for Jewelers Row diamond heist perp

In the early afternoon of June 6, Tamaz Hubel, 67, of Sunny Island, FL, entered a jewelry store on the 0-100 block of E. Madison and was able to conceal and remove two diamonds valued at approximately $170,000.

After the offender was identified, Area Central Detectives were able to obtain an arrest warrant and begin tracking the offender. With the assistance of Chicago and Miami-based members of both the Dept. of Homeland Security and Customs and Border Protection, along with members

Brutal CTA attacks rise as transit crime heads higher for third year

Crime stats manipulated by enforcement decisions

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Crime aboard the CTA and on its properties is on the rise in 2018, the fourth consecutive annual increase on the transit system, according to an analysis of the city's crime and transit data.

A similar increase in violent crime on CTA is being driven not by muggings, but by aggravated batteries—violent incidents that leave victims seriously injured but not robbed. Like the vicious June 14 punch aboard a train that left a senior citizen blinded in one eye and the June 1 case in which a woman was pushed onto the Red Line tracks at Belmont.

What's more, CTA's on-paper crime "reduction" is driven not by a decrease in crime, but by the Chicago Police Department's [CPD] decision to virtually eliminate the "crime" of fare-jumping and to substantially reduce narcotics arrests.

Our study of data from 2002 through May 2018 found:

- Despite declining ridership, CTA crime is up in 2018, the third straight increase.

- Violent crime peaked during the Great Recession, but continues at a rate significantly higher than pre-recession years.

- Aggravated batteries like the June 14 attack on a senior citizen hit the highest level on record in 2017. They're up again this year.

- Robbery reports on CTA remain elevated after being driven back from recession highs.

- CPD essentially stopped arresting fare jumpers in mid-2014, immediately "cutting crime" on the system by 15%.

- Narcotics arrests on CTA have plummeted, further driving down "crime" reports.

- Not counting fare-jumpers and narcotics cases, last year was the second-worst year for crime on CTA since 2002 (Crimes per million boardings); For CTA trains, last year was the worst for crime in a decade.

- Through May, CTA crime this year is up 18% over last year.

After Chicago Police released images of a man who brutally sucker-punched a senior citizen on June 14, Ald. Joe Moore (49th) hit the media with a common refrain: "Crime has gone down on the CTA considerably," he said. "He didn't rob her of any of her

Community meeting for Grand Ave. development proposal

On June 18 a public presentation for a proposed high rise development at 353 W. Grand Ave.

On June 18 the River North Residents Assoc. (RNRA) and 42nd Ward Alderman's office co-hosted a public presentation for a proposed high rise development at 353 W. Grand Ave.

Representatives of Onni Grand Limited Partnership presented their plans to construct a 38-story residential tower and six-story podium. The building would contain approximately 356 dwelling units, and provide 284 accessory parking spaces. Additionally, a pocket park located at the corner of Grand Ave. and Orleans St. would be built to encourage community gathering and provide a green space within the neighborhood. The site currently contains vacant buildings and an unused surface parking lot.

The project will have no access from the alley and all internal and retail loading will be done from Grand Ave. through an off-street valet zone.

Various city taxes will generate a bonus collection of $5,767,848 including those for Neighborhoods Opportunity taxes ($4,614,278.40), the City-wide Adopt-a-Landmark tax ($576,784.80), and Local Impact tax ($576,784.80).

The developers claim that an additional 35 affordable housing units will be built within two miles of this site (or) that nine will be built on-site, with the $4,676,282 in city development taxes collected.

Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd] says he is still seeking feedback from the community as part of the city's negotiations with the Onni Grand Limited Partnership.

"The development review process has yielded significant improvements to projects proposed in the 42nd Ward, and has resulted in substantial community benefits implemented at private expense," said Reilly.

Music isn't just a pastime, it is an obligation

What kind of music do you like to listen to? How much of your day is filled with music?

Are you strictly a style person, or are you eclectic, willing to embrace a wide slice of variety and genres? What sounds most speak to your heart?

Like most people, my taste in music is varied. Love the harmonics and rhythmic beauty of Bach, particularly when it is played by the great Bach interpreter, the late Glenn Gould. He is pure madness. Intense and beyond quirky. When you listen to him play you can hear him talking to himself and counting. It made recording him very difficult.

He also insisted on sitting in a special beat up old chair that he had used all his life when playing Bach. The crazy stuff was deep. But he was a genius.

Hearing Bach always seems to instantly place me in a contented and peaceful frame of mind. I cherish the other greats of the 17th century, Purcell and Handel. Must be their sense of musical organization and their passion for human emotion. It is easy for me to lose myself in the counterpoint and completeness of the work.

Living through the 1970s, I found myself unsettled by its sound. I lived on Motown and the Beatles and didn't want anything else.

Except for the Beach Boys, until I gave up my dream of moving to California to surf.

The 1980s music was great, we were all mesmerized by all those literary lyrics and complex harmonies that gave the decade sweet tunes by Survivor, Journey, Pet Shop Boys, Tears for Fears, Madonna. But I was hardly a die hard fan, Bach was always near at hand, accompanied by all the classics.

We were Chicago Symphony people. With great seats. Right next to the Tribune's Claudia Cassidy and near enough to easily see Sir Georg Solti's scowl reserved for late-comers. And huge fans of the Lyric. My first opera, sometime in the early 1970s, was a doubleheader with Dame Joan Sutherland and Marilyn Horne in Rossini's "Semiramide." And I remember a wondrous night later on when Luciano Pavarotti sang Tosca dangerously balanced on the edge of the Castel Sant Angelo.

I have grown to love Italian opera the most, those small humble pieces that are emblematic of the romance and excess emotion of the little things in life. "O Mio Bambino Caro," of course, from Gianni Schicchi.

Other favorites are predictable. Pearl Fishers (duet from Act 1); "Nessum Dormo," from Turandot; the Overture to "Rienzi," Wagner's most haunting melody for me; and perhaps my all time favorite staged opera, Poulenc's modernist "Dialogues of the Carmelites." He gives me goosebumps every time, like nothing else.

INSIDE PUBLICATIONS

Perhaps my taste gets a bit pedestrian here, though it does stretch widely. Perhaps to others it might look like eating Chinese food with Mexican. But that's not always bad. My appreciation is expansive and for the most part rather classically pedantic. I have grown throughout my life as a music listener. I take new delight, now, in Schubert, and love Italian jazz, especially Paolo Conte. Love to hear his work in Hotel lobby bars late at night, like the Hassler in Rome. The music transports you smack dab in the middle of the 1950s.

Firm though I am in my 17th century prejudices, Mozart has no one to compare with a century later. We had tickets for a post Christmas concert in Vienna at the Karlskirche. The "Requiem" was to be performed. We had dinner with the Mednicks and their 11 and 13-year old daughters, and later arrived at the massive Baroque church and found it to be freezing. Big thick blankets came with our pews. So we snuggled. But as the first strains of that work of Mozart began, it was as if we had never heard it. Or been seized by its beauty before. Our eyes welled with tears at sounds reserved for heaven. We stood.

As I argue with Carl Grapentine over the radio in the wee hours of the morning each day over his retiring from WFMT, I reflect on what opportunities for great music I have had. I'm grateful. My first car was an Alpha Romeo Guilina, used; it had an FM radio that picked up WFMT. That was more than 40 years ago.

Music isn't just a pastime, it is an obligation.

I have become such a student of the great 20th century English composers like Ralph Vaughan

Williams, Hubert Perry, Edward Elgar, Frederick Delius, Gustav Holst and Benjamin Britten. I love their sophisticated style and modern sense emotion. There's a deep reason they appeal to me, beyond the aesthetics. Discovering that is what music is all about. The sound comes in paint palettes for me. Rich colors. Hues I have never seen, a calmness I long for. And a sense of dignity all people need to discover.

The antidote for a toxic world of falsehood and violence. Music that beckons as if to say, listen, there really is goodness abounding in the world. There truly is a power of human achievement that goes beyond the rancor and brutality of everyday living. Music is not merely frivolity, feeding our baser instincts. It is the invitation to find a deeper humanity. A more meaningful way of living. Held out in the promise of sound that speaks to what is deepest in us. To what lies at the very heart of being human. Like the splash of a wave. The push of the wind. The fragrance of sweet and intoxicating grandeur. The sound that the angels know. The very chorus of their harmonies.

MOST VIOLENT WEEK-END OF THE YEAR: Father's Day weekend saw 56 people hit by bullets, wounded in Chicago's most violent week of 2018. The trail of wounded and dead staggers the mind of any person of civility. Are you pleased with how Chicago's political leadership is dealing with this crisis? Many of them have their own protection details provided by the city. Perhaps withdrawing their protection would quicken their more reasoned response to the urgency of combatting the violence. As usual political liberals are missing the

A beautiful day in the neighborhood

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

The 25th annual Artists of the Wall Fest was once again a smashing success, as people of all ages, races, and sexual orientations came out to play -- and paint of course -- in Loyola Park.

Artists battled the sweltering heat and with a shimmering Lake Michigan as their backdrop, they painted the seawall, which Loyola la Park Advisory Council member John Lamping calls "the most unique, 600-foot-long, 5,000-square foot mural in the world."

There were families galore, with some bringing their children and grandchildren to paint for the very first time while others had three or four generations of one family painting together (my family was three generations). There were those who started the fest as strangers, and after painting together they walked home as friends. It was a weekend of community spirit and "filled with hopes, dreams, passions and memories that everyone can share and enjoy for a whole year," said Lamping.

Lamping, who is also my neighbor of more than three decades, reported on the fest providing all the details, as well as some awesome photos. Many thanks, John, for your great work!

"Community art is a special language that uses shapes and colors as its words," said Lamping. "And no matter which actual languages the artists speak back at home, they all understand each other when they paint side by side at the festival. Art builds and strengthens a sense of community."

"Rogers Park is Chicago's most diverse neighborhood," added Lamping. "At a time when parts of our nation are struggling just to tolerate diversity, Rogers Park is building on and celebrating its diversity."

If you haven't been by to check out this year's artwork, head down to the lakefront and do so. Visit first place spot No. 112, "for some local history," by Sam Kessler and his son, Mitch. The father and son duo celebrated four legendary people whose legacies shaped much of today's Rogers Park.

He said that foursome includes the unforgettable Sam Ashkenaz, whose Morse Ave. kosher deli and super-sized personality nurtured a sense of community. And then there's Vivian Maier, a now legendary Rogers Park photographer who was hidden behind a reclusive and eccentric personality. Mary Jo Doyle, a co-founder of the Rogers Park/West Ridge Historical Society worked hard to preserve much of our history, while Tobey Prinz was a persistent community organizer who fought to save our parks, beaches and protect Rogers Park from rampant lakefront development.

Spot No. 98 depicts "some fine art and Chicago history," Lamping reported. Second place winning muralists Elizabeth Hayes and her fellow artist Ross celebrated five legendary, world-class architects. Two are contemporary women, Jeanne Gang and Zaha Hadid, and all five architects had connections with or influence on the architecture of Chicago. Besides Gang, the site is a tribute to Frank Lloyd Wright, Mies van der Rohe and Louis Sullivan. "Iconic design elements from each archi-

How Windy City BBQ masters should tune the grill for July 4th

Don't be a grease fire waiting to happen

The Home Front
By Don DeBat

The July 4th Independence Day barbecue is a patriotic U.S. tradition that goes hand-in-hand with waving Old Glory and sipping a cold Budweiser—America's beer.

Whether they reside in a lake-front condominium with a balcony, or a spacious North Side home with a big backyard, city grill masters take great pride in the rite of cooking steaks, burgers, chicken, seafood and veggies over an open flame.

To brand the main course with the required flavor and sear marks, sophisticated barbecue masters typically require a fancy Viking, Wolf or Lynx gas grill—or a popular mid-priced Weber model, fueled either with natural gas or propane.

Grilling on old-fashioned charcoal is generally considered a primitive act left to Millennials on a budget and die hard traditionalists.

When the grilling is done, the king of meat typically gives the charred residue on the grates a scrape or two, and tosses back another brew. Few lazy gas grill masters ever peek under the flavor bars or briquettes of their chrome-plated beauty to view years of residue rivaling the lava flow on a Hawaiian volcano.

Firefixer Steve Alleyne repairs a barbecue grill.

With July 4th only a few days away, this writer opened the coffin-like lid to his 12-year-old Weber Genesis Gold, removed the grill racks and V-shaped flavor bars to discover the most disgusting grease-and-ash pit known to man.

Now I know why my grill had only one hot spot on the left, where tender, Angus filets cooked to perfection. With three inches of ash covering the fire pit below, and grease clogging two of the three burners, the heat dropped off dramatically on the right side of the unit.

Grill cleaning and servicing is a dirty job, especially if you have ignored the chore for a dozen years. You'll likely need equipment—your child's beach shovel, U.S. Army issued entrenching tool, a roll of heavy duty paper towels and lots of elbow grease.

Use an empty wine-box case as a perfect container to hold the two or three inches of grease and barbecue ash. This toxic material is not for the Blue recycling can.

Lastly, remove the greasy old aluminum ash pan under the barbecue and install a new one. Scrape the grill grates, but leave the old patina for vintage flavor.

Every grill has a drip pan and tray under its cooking grids and burners. When they become too full, and when the oil or grease has reached its maximum temperature, grease fires occur. These pans and trays are removable and should be checked frequently if you're a frequent user of the grill.

Ironically, after all this labor I noticed the grill igniter no longer worked, so I had another glass of wine and called the Firefixer.

"Your neglected gas barbecue was a grease fire waiting to happen," warned Steve Alleyne, a Chicago firefighter who also is owner of Firefixer, a gas-technician firm that services and installs gas grills and fireplaces.

Surprisingly, this writer recently had experience with a barbecue grease fire on a grill in the Smoky Mountains, and it was a frightening event. The barbecue was warmed up too long and the greasy burners ignited.

"If a greasy grill bursts into flames, do not grab the garden hose and spray water on it," Alleyne advised. "Water will not put the fire out. You must use a dry chemical fire extinguisher, or sprinkle a box of baking soda on it."

Baking soda quickly cuts off the oxygen supply to the flame. Keep a box or two in or near your grill station, as well as a fire extinguisher. Salt will also work on smothering a flame. Do not use flour, or water ever when you need to put out a grease fire. It will explode and can severely injure yourself and damage your home.

"Our service call includes a thorough gas-grill inspection and interior cleaning as well as a safety inspection," Alleyne said. The $145 service call, which includes a limited seasonal warranty, calls for the following:

- Removal and cleaning of grill grates and flavor bars;
- Scraping and vacuuming of grease and ash residue, spider webs, and cleaning of clogged burners;
- Replacement of batteries for the automatic igniter;
- Replacement of various wires and connectors.

However, grill replacement parts are not included. One of the replacement parts frequently needed is the igniter, which typically costs $40 to $100, depending on the type of grill. Other replaceable parts include: grill grates, flavor bars and the thermostat.

The Firefixer gas grill service and cleaning also includes an inspection of the gas supply line to see if the grill is properly installed and vented; a check of all wiring and gas components, and a review to see if the appliance and installation are compliant with

Investigation reveals CHA paid millions to private contractors on building upgrades without addressing an aging fleet of elevators

BY ALEJANDRA CANCINO
Better Government Association
Part 2 of 2

'It's not something that should be left to politics'
—tenants' lawyer

Elevators across public high-rises for seniors in Chicago break with disturbing frequency, endangering and inconveniencing elderly residents despite hundreds of millions of dollars spent with politically connected contractors to make buildings more livable.

The latest to land a lucrative contract from the Chicago Housing Authority [CHA] is Chicago-based Globetrotters Engineering, hired recently for more than $3.5 million to assess — but not actually fix — malfunctioning elevators. That company's CEO is Elzie Higginbottom, founder of East Lake Management and Development Corp., which is a long-time property management firm for the Chicago Housing Authority.

a longtime Democratic fundraiser once enmeshed in scandals that brought down former Gov. Rod Blagojevich and top leadership at the Univ. of Illinois.

The roster of well-paid CHA contractors also includes Madison Construction, an Orland Park-based firm booted from rehab work at Navy Pier amid reports of cost overruns. Madison recently completed a $45 million overhaul of a senior high-rise in Rogers Park that came in 47% over budget, records show. The contract for that work didn't call for overhauling elevators.

Chronic elevator problems plague CHA's entire portfolio of elevator-equipped buildings, most filled with senior residents and many managed for the agency by firms long on clout. Among them is East Lake Management and Development Corp., whose founder and CEO, Elzie Higginbottom, was a major campaign fundraiser for former Mayor Richard M. Daley and whose company has been a CHA contractor going back decades.

Also among management firms at buildings with balky elevators is The Habitat Company, whose former president and CEO, Valerie Jarrett, worked as a top aide to Daley at City Hall and later became a senior adviser to former President Barack Obama.

"It makes me sick because all I see is waste and the main factor for all of this is lack of oversight," said Brenda Perry, 71, a resident at Lincoln Perry Apartments on the city's South Side, a building where at least $20 million has been spent on construction since 2013.

Despite all that spending, Perry said the elevators get stuck almost every other day, stranding seniors in wheelchairs and walkers either in their apartments with no way to get down or on the main floor with no way to get home. Stairs are rarely an option for the frail.

"It's really a lack of humanity," said Perry, a retired teacher's aide and social worker.

The case of the failing elevators is just the latest chapter in a decades-long history of trouble at the $1.2 billion-per-year CHA, among the largest public housing authorities in the nation and one where service to its tenants has over the decades been compromised by graft, political influence and incompetence.

In the mid 1990s, the scandal-plagued agency was temporarily taken over by federal authorities amid accusations of mismanagement and cronism, some of which involved elevator failures in then existing CHA high-rises that have been long since demolished.

It's impossible to draw an indisputable link between the CHA's record of clout heavy contracts and years of widespread elevator problems that don't get resolved. But the two clearly coincide.

Emily Coffey, a tenants' attorney with the Sargent Shriver National Center on Poverty Law, said the CHA has an obligation to oversee the companies it hires and ensure they perform work they are paid to do.

"This is so central to the safety of our seniors and families that live in CHA public housing,"

Coffey said. "It's not something that should be left to politics."

CHA officials declined repeated interview requests, instead opting to respond to a long list of questions regarding their elevator oversight with a written statement.

"Over the past five years, CHA has spent more than $480 million on capital improvements designed to improve the quality of life for residents and ensure the long-term sustainability of its properties," the statement reads, adding that another $152 million in upgrades are set for completion this year.

The agency also recently launched an additional $25 million push to modernize elevators, an announcement made through a press release issued as reporters pressed officials to explain problems that have persisted for years despite resident complaints.

In the statement about what was called the Elevator Modernization Program, Matt Mosher, the CHA's deputy chief of capital construction, said the agency is focusing on improving the safety, quality-of-life and well-being of its residents.

"CHA will be able to utilize the newest technology and readily available modern parts that will help reduce maintenance costs and deliver greater efficiency," Mosher said. "I know that both building residents and those who service and keep the elevators running will welcome the investment."

But a review of city inspection data and CHA records for the past seven years reveals an elevator maintenance system in disarray, rife with incomplete records, disjointed management and a history of failure. An analysis of 911

Batten down the hatches, Lincoln Park Pirates may get heave ho

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Are the Lincoln Park Pirates finally about to go under?

The Illinois Commerce Commission's [ICC] damning report citing the 50-year-old towing company that started in Lincoln Park and is now doing business at 4882 N. Clark has been released, and it's not pretty. Another public hearing is in the offing, and a judge is expected to rule on the case sometime later this summer.

It's a battle that's been going on since at least the days when folksinger Steve Goodman wrote his immortal "Lincoln Park Pirates" folk song about the feared North Side towing firm.

But like their namesake mascot, eventually the pirates were captured and put out of business.

Neighbors, civic leaders and city officials testified at one point or another during what came to years of hearings. And the ICC reported on the 831 violations filed against Lincoln Towing in just eight months between July 2015 and March 2016.

The ICC recommended Lincoln Towing lose its license after racking up those 800+ violations of the state's towing laws in an 8-month period.

During a City Council hearing more than two years ago, alleged victims of Lincoln Towing's practices told how a 55-year-old man had been knocked off a 16' ladder as Lincoln Towing's employees towed his truck away, while another witness testified how an Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services worker's car was towed away while the investigator was inside the Rogers Park police station getting information about a child abuse case.

Other complainants included a family whose car was towed off the victims' own property while the victims were on vacation.

Over the years, a number of those who encountered Lincoln Towing's crews compared them to "thugs."

But Ross Cascio, who founded Lincoln Towing, and sold the business in early 1981, once conceded to a Lerner Newspaper reporter that many of his employees had "rough edges" and that a number of them were ex-convicts because, "I like to give deserving guys a second chance."

During that City Council hearing when at least one "victim" yelled that "Lincoln Towing doesn't deserve to be in business," Allen Perl, a Chicago attorney representing Lincoln Towing, argued that his client was the real victim, then accused Ald. Ameya Pawar [47th] of bullying him personally.

But according to an ICC report "a pervasive and ongoing pattern of unauthorized relocations in violation of the law," shows Lincoln Towing is "incompetent and unworthy to maintain its relocater's (towing) license." And Lincoln Towing's lawyers have now complained to the ICC that "public outcry" has property owners canceling towing contracts with the company.

General tells locals he's optimistic about future of Korea negotiations

BY PATRICK BUTLER

A retired U.S. Army intelligence chief reminded a group of local business and political leaders that while Kim Jung-un may be a thug, President Donald Trump's recent Singapore meeting with the North Korean strongman wasn't about human rights, "it was about trying to avoid a nuclear catastrophe."

"This was about trying to achieve some control of nuclear weapons" in that region, Maj. Gen. James "Spider" Marks — a 30-year Army veteran who served everywhere from the LA riots to the Balkans, Korea and Iraq — told a recent Chicago City Club luncheon at Maggiano's Banquets, 111 W. Grand Ave.

While he doubts Kim Jung-un is likely to give up his nukes anytime soon, Marks said he'd be "fine with allowing Pyongyang to acquire nuclear power plants for peaceful use, subject to some kind of supervision."

Not that he's expecting North Korea's boss to submit to serious oversight anytime soon, but he is apparently willing to talk to President Donald Trump about some issues in the hope of getting some of America's maximum trade sanctions lifted.

Difficult as any such negotiations may be, the situation with North Korea is quite different from that negotiated by President Obama in Iran, where we allowed Tehran to keep some types of nuclear weapons and gave them a clear pass toward nuclear weapons in a mere decade — a concession Israel didn't go along with, said Marks, a member of the Military Intelligence Hall of Fame who frequently appears as a defense expert on CNN television.

"We gave them a break, with a sunset clause allowing inspection of Iranian nuclear stockpiles on 30-day notice," Marks said.

While a lot of critics blame previous U.S. presidents for adopting policies toward North Korea that don't necessarily work today, a lot has changed with North Korea in just the past few years.

"What we had were presidents confronted with different facts than we're dealing with today," he said, adding that North Korea has beefed up its military in just the past few years.

"We've got to deal with different threats facing us today," Marks said, pointing out that North Korea has built up an arsenal that didn't exist even a few years ago."

While South Korea has also changed, those changes have been more in the area of economic and technological change, Marks explained, noting that "South Korea's progress has been so phenomenal in the past 30 years North Korea couldn't hope to catch up anytime soon."

Meaning its unlikely the two Koreas will re-unite anytime soon, Marks said. "I'm not saying never. I just can't look 60 or 100 years into the future and make those kinds of predictions."

Although East and West Germany reunited after more than 40 years of separation, the situation there was far different. Marks said the two Germans were relatively closer-matched industrialized countries.

"I just don't think the same thing could happen in Korea," he said.

municipal codes.

"We also will give a free, honest assessment of the condition of your grill, what it will cost to completely rehab it, or whether or not you should dump it and buy a new one," Alleyne said.

If the grill was left uncovered over several winters, it could have severely rusted parts, including the grill head, grates, cabinet or floor.

If it is beyond repair, buy a new one and Firefixer will assemble, set up and install a new gas grill to an existing gas line for $225. The fee includes a one-year warranty.

When gas-grill shopping, you will find that prices can run the gamut. An affordable Char-Broil grill can be purchased for $199 or less at Lowes or Home Depot, and mid-price range Weber grills run $600-plus, and feature many replaceable parts. For elite grill masters, top-of-the-line Lynx, Viking and Wolf grills range from $2,000 to $8,000, depending on size.

Firefixer (www.FireFixer.com) services all types of gas barbecue grills, including natural gas and propane. For more information call 773-951-7439.

Grease fires are a rare and unexpected phenomenon and can happen to any griller on any grill, advanced or novice. But with proper maintenance of your grill, they should never happen to you. Just remember that you're cooking with fire, so never leave your grill unattended. Besides, you don't want to burn your steak do you?

Burnham's Dream comes to stage in new musical

BY PATRICK BUTLER

West Rogers Park's June Finfer says she's always had been an "idealistic do-gooder" with a fascination for architecture and people with big egos.

She suspects that's why she became a teacher at Niles West High School and worked on a play, Jersey Justice: The Trenton Six – the story of a famous 1948 civil rights case.

Finfer also did documentary films, mostly about architecture as well as an off-Broadway play on Mies van der Rohe along with a series of monologues in Graceland Cemetery on the centennial of Chicago's 1893 World's Fair. "By then, I was fascinated by the Daniel Burnhams and John Roots of that era, which was a lot like ours – a big gap between the ostentatiously wealthy and the obviously poverty-stricken. And it interested me that Chicago was developing its own architecture while the Easterners were still wedded to the classical and Beaux Arts," Finfer said.

When Chicago is chosen to host the 1893 Columbian Exposition World Fair, Burnham and Root are hired to plan and build it. It is the chance of a lifetime for ambitious Burnham and his partner, but at great personal cost.

"So I started working on this project, 'Burnham's Dream: The White City,' long before 'Devil in the White City' (soon to become a major movie starring Leonardo DiCaprio) was ever published."

Researching everything on the era she could find, even reading Burnham's letters to his wife, Finfer eventually decided the story's characters could best express their feelings in song and got a longtime friend, Elizabeth Doyle, to write the music.

Finfer said she originally wanted to build the play around Burnham's plan of Chicago, but said she quickly got wrapped up in the events leading to the fair's creation.

Finfer said she originally wanted to build the play around Burnham's plan of Chicago, but said she quickly got wrapped up in the events leading to the fair's creation. After all, the characters and events surrounding the Columbian Exposition were too good to pass up, she said, pointing to the Spanish Crown Princess's refusal to dine with Bertha Palmer, who may have been Chicago's society queen, but in the eyes of the Infanta was merely "an innkeeper's wife."

The show – running Thursdays through Sundays at Theater Wit, 1229 W. Belmont, [773 975-8150] – is "whimsical" at one level, yet I've been told it's a very informative crash course on Chicago in the Gilded Age when there was such great spirit and great need. The fair was something that had never been done at that level, and I don't think since," Finfer said.

Burnham's Dream is the tale of ambition of a city and of an architect. It is Chicago's Dream City that lived for only a few months, then vanished, while its influence on our lives continues today. The show features love and death, dreams and nightmares, ambition and fate, riches and poverty, and the ego and genius of the men, women, immigrants and American born who made it happen.

The fair, she noted, covered more than Composer, lyricist and performer Elizabeth Doyle.

600 acres – four times bigger than the 1889 Paris Exposition that spawned the Eiffel Tower.

With her strong interest in building big, has she ever thought of becoming an architect herself?

"I plan on becoming one in my next life. And with a big ego," she smiled.

In the high tradition of the Allen's Quaker roots, Irish hospitality and high cuisine were reborn in the grandeur of their country house that today is Ireland's finest cooking school, as well as country hotel. Myrtle was dear. Refined. A food hero and a woman of substance. Read up on her and her family, you'll be glad you did. Finest Irish smoked salmon I have ever tasted. And lamb from their own sheep. # Court sides with condo owner fined for complaining about building management 111 East Chestnut Condominium, seen behind the Water Tower on Michigan Ave.

Condo associations are 'mini-democracies,' says dissenting judge, dependent on members obeying rules

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

His behavior admittedly aggressive, some would say obnoxious and rude, but a state appellate court says a condominium association in Chicago was wrong to fine a unit owner for expressing his opinions about how the association is managed.

Michael Boucher sued 111 East Chestnut Association and seven of its board members after they imposed a $500 fine against him for allegedly violating condo rules that prohibit "obnoxious or offensive activity within the association."

On Aug. 23, 2011, attorneys for 111 East Chestnut Association sent a letter to Boucher, accusing him of yelling profanities at an employee of the association who tried to enter an elevator with him. Video of the incident was captured, without audio, by a security camera and a board member who later viewed it said, "You can almost see the spit coming out of his mouth, he was so furious with her."

Five days later, Boucher received a second letter, saying he had used profanity with another employee while trying to get a replacement key card, an incident in which witnesses said he was "rude and disrespectful."

Boucher says he was only expressing his opinions and the fines were a violation of the Illinois Condominium Property Act that prohibits condo boards from adopting rules that impair rights guaranteed by the First Amendment.

At a hearing with the condo board, Boucher's attorney requested a copy of evidence against Boucher, but the request was denied. The attorney later asked for a copy of a videotape of the hearing and that request also was denied.

Boucher paid the fine but sued the condo board in Nov. 2013, saying he was penalized by the board in retaliation for expressing his opinions about management practices.

Board members described in detail how Boucher deserved the fines, testifying that in addition to the two incidents for which he was fined, Boucher had in the past "used sexist, racist, and scatological language, insulted employees, and exposed his scrotum to people in a board meeting."

Boucher was accused of years of "obnoxious and offensive activity" that caused "numerous complaints from unit owners and building employees." Complaints included engaging another employee of the management company in a late-night discussion about enemas and calling the calls reveals firefighters in 2015 were dispatched to pry open elevator doors to rescue trapped passengers at a rate more than four times higher at CHA buildings than other elevator-equipped buildings throughout the city.

In addition to its written statement, the CHA also provided responses to numerous Freedom of Information Act requests as required by Illinois law.

The responses to those open records requests demonstrate the agency's inability in some cases to provide contracts for — or even identify — the companies it hires to ensure the safety and performance of elevators.

Records also show the CHA has repeatedly ignored systems put in place to flag elevator problems. Among the problems are missing inspection reports, maintenance logs and records of safety tests for dozens of its elevators.

Even so, the analysis shows CHA spends nearly $1 million each year with private maintenance companies to guarantee that each of the 153 elevators spread across its current roster of buildings is safe and reliable.

A history of connections

Just a tiny slice of the $480 million the agency says it has spent on rehabilitation work in recent years was spent on elevators, and nearly all of that was spent on cosmetic facelifts instead of mechanical improvements.

For an assessment of how to improve safety and performance, the CHA last year extended the $3.5 million contract to Globetrotters Engineering, a consultant that is no newcomer to the public agency.

Records show the CHA has paid Globetrotters at least $9.7 million for consulting work since 2011.

The founder and chief executive of the firm is Niranjan Shah. Under him, Globetrotters has since 2000 spread hundreds of thousands of dollars in donations to political candidates in Illinois, mostly to Democrats, records show.

In 2009, Shah was forced to resign from the board of trustees of the Univ. of Illinois where he had been installed by Gov. Blagojevich. The departure was prompted by a Chicago Tribune investigation that revealed how trustees like Shah meddled in admissions decisions on behalf of politicians and deep-pocketed political donors as well as friends and family members.

That same year, federal prosecutors subpoenaed records involving Globetrotters as part of the pay-to-play investigation that sent Blagojevich to prison for 14 years.

Reached by telephone Shah declined to be interviewed.

As part of its investigation, the newspaper reported how Shah had used his influence as a board member to get his new son-in-law a job at the university.

Records show that among the company's long list of political beneficiaries was Gery Chico, a Chicago lawyer who made an unsuccessful bid for mayor in 2011. Shah, his company and its affiliates donated $9,000 to that campaign. Chico has also served as chairman of the Illinois State Board of Education as well as president of the board at Chicago Public Schools.

Chico's brother, Craig, is a current member of the same CHA board that awarded the elevator consulting contract to Shah's Globetrotters. It was the only bidder on the 2017 contract, according to the CHA. Neither Shah nor officials at his company responded to questions about his political connections. Craig Chico, who was appointed to the CHA board in 2015, declined to comment.

Globetrotters is far from the only well-connected firm hired by the CHA. A BGA report last year highlighted the political ties of Madison Construction, the company with the record of cost overruns that the CHA hired to overhaul its tallest building, the 28-story Caroline Hedger Apartments, 6400 N. Sheridan Rd.

Madison has landed more than $300 million in taxpayer-funded construction work in Chicago in recent years. Company officials during that time have also contributed to the campaigns of elected officials who helped make some of the decisions to award those contracts.

One of the recipients of Madison-connected political cash was Ald. Joe Moore [49th] who represents the ward where the Caroline Hedger complex is located. Madison's $45 million rehab of Caroline Hedger came in more than a year late and significantly over budget. Ald. Moore appeared before the CHA and a city planning board to advocate for another Madison project next door to Caroline Hedger, where he ad-board by state law.

"Condominiums are not private country clubs, nor is the relationship contractual," said Lerum. "The relationship between unit owner and association is created, and governed, by statute. Board members are not authorized to pursue private objectives not authorized by statute."

First District Appellate Judge Mary Anne Mason dissented, saying that condominium associations are "mini-democracies" that depend on members obeying its rules.

"Condo associations, like some democracies, can be utterly dysfunctional," wrote Judge Mason. "This is particularly true when one association member decides that the constitution to which he agreed to be bound when he voluntarily became a member of the association simply does not apply to him."

The case will go back to the lower court to decide again, using the rulings of the appellate court as a guide. The appellate court ruled in favor of three board members who said they did not participate in the decision to withhold evidence from Boucher.

Records also show the CHA has repeatedly ignored systems put in place to flag elevator problems. Among the problems are missing inspection reports, maintenance logs and records of safety tests for dozens of its elevators.

vocated for zoning changes allowing for a new Target Store, CHA-financed construction funding and rent-free land for the developer.

Ald. Moore declined to be interviewed for this report, but in an interview with the BGA last year the alderman rejected any suggestion that campaign contributions from Madison were related to his support for CHA work awarded to the construction firm.

"I haven't accepted any campaign contributions since they came to me with the proposed project, and I knew then they were going to need a zoning change," Moore said last year.

Robert Ferrino, Madison's CEO, declined to comment when contacted by telephone, but in earlier interviews blamed the delays on the condition of the building. "We don't cheat," he told the BGA last year. "We are honest, good people."

WBEZ's Odette Yousef and Elliott Ramos contributed to this report. The BGA's Gabrielle Saul and Patrick Judge also contributed.

Paroled arsonist charged with starting fires in Lakeview Walgreens, two other stores

A convicted arsonist who's on parole for setting a Roosevelt Univ. men's room trash can on fire in 2015 has been charged with setting three fires in North Side retail stores, including a Lakeview Walgreens.

Lavale Miller, 38, was ordered held without bail on Sunday by Judge John Lyke.

Lavale Miller

Prosecutors say Miller has set three fires in the past month, with the most recent being at a Walgreens located near the Belmont Red Line CTA Station. No one was injured in the fires.

On May 30, Miller was seen entering Discovery Clothing, 3300 W. Belmont, around 8 p.m. A fire broke out in the store while Miller was inside and the business suffered a $1 million loss, authorities said.

Then, Miller was seen running out of a Walmart store in the 4600 block of W. North Ave. after a fire broke out in a clothing display around 4:30 p.m. June 11, according to charges.

Finally, on June 19, Miller was seen setting fire to the paper goods display at the Lakeview Walgreens. A police spokesman said Miller was seen "loitering in front of the ignited paper."

Prosecutors have charged Miller with three counts of aggravated arson.

In a strange coincidence, the Walgreens fire was reported exactly 13 years and three hours after a paper goods fire quickly consumed a Lakeview Dominick's grocery store.

Around 5:30 p.m. on June 19, 2005, a non-arson fire in the paper goods aisle spread quickly and gutted the Dominick's grocery store at 3012 N. Broadway. Two people were injured and more than 150 firefighters fought the Father's Day blaze.

The Dominick's building was razed, and its lot sat empty for a decade due to various political scandals tied to the property. The site is now occupied by a multi-level complex that is anchored by Mariano's grocery store.

State records show Miller was sentenced to three years for setting the Roosevelt Univ. fire in 2015. He was paroled on March 6.

24-hour massage parlor robbed in Lakeview

Chicago police are investigating the armed robbery of a 24-hour massage parlor in Lakeview on Saturday night.

Police said an employee of Masaj Now, 1235 W. Belmont, called 911 after two offenders robbed the business and customers around 11:15 p.m. The offenders ordered customers and employees to stay in their rooms on the second floor while proceeds were collected.

The primary offender was described as a black male with short dreadlocks who has tattoos on his face. He stood about 5'-7" tall and wore a blue shirt with jeans. His accomplice was described as a dark-complected black male who wore a black hoodie

Masaj Now, also known as "Body Spa, Immediate Relaxation," and "Turkish Bath Services," offers in-house services as well as outcall services by female therapists 24-hours-a-day, according to its website.

A police source described the robbery as "highly targeted."

Smile, Jerk! New photo shows man who robbed woman in Lakeview Saturday morning

Private security cameras captured images of a cowardly Lakeview mugger as he ran away with his victim's purse over the weekend.

Around 10:35 a.m. Saturday, a man came up behind a 28-year-old woman, pushed her to the ground and took her purse near Wellington and Greenview. "The guy took off running west on Wellington, jumped a fence and ran into the alley," a witness said. "A good Samaritan ran after him, and another witness called the police."

Suspect wanted.

One of those witnesses captured photos of the offender from a distance as the thief fled through an alley. Now, thanks to our email friend, we can all have a good look at the coward who's responsible.

Police yesterday described the offender as a black male in his late 20's or early 30's who stands about 6'-2" tall. He is slender, bald, and was wearing a black t-shirt, dark jeans, and yellow boxer-style underwear, police said. The new photo makes it clear that the yellow garment was actually the robber's shirt.

Shots fired in River North, felon facing gun charge thanks to tough CHA guard

A convicted felon is facing gun charges after a Chicago Housing Authority security guard detained him following a "shots fired" incident in River North on Friday.

Police say the guard saw Semione Robinson walking away from the area where shots were fired around 9:40 a.m. in the 800 block of N. Cambridge. Robinson pushed the guard, a struggle ensued, and the guard used pepper spray to gain control of the situation, according to police. The guard allegedly recovered a loaded handgun from Robinson and held him until police arrived.

Robinson is a documented gang member with a felony narcotics conviction. He lists a home address in the Garfield Park neighborhood, but police records show that he has been arrested several times in River North.

Prosecutors charged Robinson with felony unlawful use of a weapon by a felon and misdemeanor battery. Police officers who responded to the call of shots fired said they found shell casings behind a home near where Robinson was detained. Several other people who were allegedly involved in the incident fled the scene in a Hyundai SUV, police said.

Prison for Boystown burglar

A man who broke into a Boystown resident's home while the victim was sleeping last December has been sentenced to five years for residential burglary by Judge Timothy Chambers.

His parole date has not been set.

The victim woke up in his bed in the 800 block of W. Buckingham Dec. 3, 2017, to find Joseph Grant, 26, standing over him, police said. Grant ran out of the apartment with the victim's phone, MacBook, and wallet, according to court records. Cops found Grant hiding in the apartment building's basement with the victim's stolen property.

In 2015, Grant received 30-months probation for mugging a 25-year-old man in Wrigleyville.

Man charged with fleeing cops, killing woman in River North crash

A Lincolnwood man who sped away from cops, then crashed into a taxi cab, killing a woman June 20 has been charged with multiple felonies, including murder, according to Chicago police.

Ammar Hussain, 27, fled from officers who tried to pull him over after a records check "revealed a discrepancy" in his Jeep's license plate, police said early Saturday. Hussain's Cherokee collided with a taxi after he allegedly ran a red light at the intersection of Dearborn and Grand. The collision killed 66-year-old Wisconsin psychiatrist Diana Lamps who was riding in the cab's back seat.

Police said Hussain's Jeep also struck a 45-year-old man and a 46-year-old woman who were standing near the intersection. They each suffered a broken leg, police said. The cab driver, 64, suffered minor injuries.

Hussain is charged with one felony count of murder; felony aggravated fleeing through two or more traffic devices; three felony counts of aggravated fleeing causing bodily injury, and misdemeanor fleeing-eluding police. He was also cited for numerous traffic violations.

Two people who were in Hussain's car at the time of the crash were released without charges.

Early Wednesday, police said that officers were trying to stop Hussain because they receive information that the Jeep had been reported stolen.

Lamps was in a cab returning to her boyfriend's Gold Coast home after taking in a play at the Goodman Theater, according to reports.

Ben & Jerry's burglars put on ice

Two former employees accused of twice burglarizing the Navy Pier Ben & Jerry's location have been sentenced to three years probation in exchange for their guilty pleas. Judge William O'Brien approved the sentence agreement.

Keshana Jarret and Carlos Ortiz were both 19-years-old when they burglarized the ice cream shop after hours on two nights last July. Surveillance video allegedly showed Ortiz working as look-out while Jarret jumped the counter and retrieved the store's money bags from a back office. Police declined to say how much money was taken, but said the total was "equal to all of the cash taken in" on the two days. Weather records show that temperatures were in the 90's on both days.

Robbery round-up

A man was robbed at gunpoint by two offenders in the 3800 block of N. Hermitage on Friday evening. The victim told police that the men approached him on the street around 10:35 p.m. They displayed a handgun, then took his phone and black Swiss Army-brand backpack. The gunman was a 6' tall black male who wore a windbreaker with a dark and light pattern. His accomplice was also black, shorter, and wore a dark hoodie, police said. Both suspects were last seen heading northbound on Hermitage, according to the victim.

Around 5:50 p.m. on Thursday, two men stole a woman's phone near the corner of Aldine and Lake Shore Dr. The offenders then jumped into a dark-colored four-door sedan that sped southbound on Lake Shore Dr. The car's license plate begins with Z294, according to a witness. Both offenders were male, black, tall, about 20-years-old, and had short hair, the victim said.

A man told police that he was pushed to the ground by three offenders who then searched his pockets for valuables near Deming and Geneva Terrace in Lincoln Park around 1 p.m. Thursday. The victim said the robbers were three black men who stood 6'-1" to 6'-3" tall. One was slender and wore a black hoodie. Another suspect appeared to be wearing pajama-like pants.

Workers at a Lakeview East fast food stand foiled a robbery attempt on Monday evening. Employees of Wingstop, 3720 N. Broadway, told police that a would-be robber entered the store around 10:30 p.m., implied that he had a weapon, and asked for money. When the workers failed to comply, the offender ran off. The suspect, described as a 35-year-old black male with shoulder-length dreadlocks, was last seen heading westbound on Bradley Place.

Tourist's Macy's purchase survives one robber, falls victim to second outside Water Tower

How many thieves are there on the Mag Mile anyway?

Police say a tourist managed to be targeted by thieves outside of Water Tower Place not once — but twice within minutes. At 9:15 p.m. June 7, the 56-year-old woman was standing with a Macy's shopping bag outside of the iconic mall at 835 N. Michigan Ave.

That's when Andre Jones, 37, approached her, grabbed the bag, and ordered her to "give me that sh*t," according to police. The woman grabbed the bag back, then dropped it in the commotion.

When the woman went to pick up her bag, it was gone—stolen by an "unknown offender," according to police

Jones, of South Elgin, was arrested and charged with misdemeanor attempted theft because the victim declined to pursue felony robbery charges since she lives outside of the country. He was released on a recognizance bond.

In case you're wondering what was inside the bag that so many thieves just had to have, it was a small bottle of perfume.

Old Town: 13-year-old robbed two women with another teen

A 13-year-old and a 16-year-old are charged with robbing two women in Old Town on May 23, police said. The teens were arrested Friday evening after tactical officers in the 1300 block of N. Hudson recognized them from a community alert.

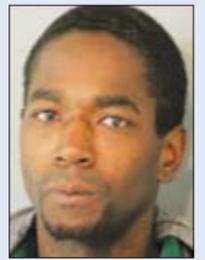

Police said the offenders have each been charged with felony armed robbery with a firearm and felony robbery. Juveniles are shielded by state law and no further information is available about the pair. They are due in juvenile bond court today.

Just after 7 p.m. May 23, a 40-year-old woman was walking in the 1300 block of N. Wells when two offenders approached her from behind, struck her arm, and took her phone, according to a police spokesman. The robbers then ran from the scene.

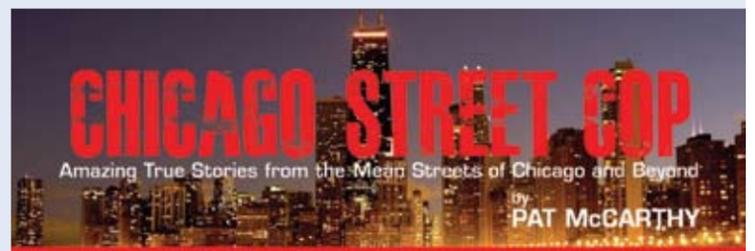

Less than 30 minutes later, a 26-year-old woman was mugged by two offenders who displayed a handgun and took her Apple Watch in the 1400 block of N. Orleans, according to a police report.

Police issued a community alert about the incidents on May 26, which eventually led to Friday's arrests.

plus years and the neighboring retail store Leather64TEN has just celebrated 13 years at this location. Both businesses are well-known and reputable within the LGBTQ community, neighboring businesses and the overall area.

So why are they in danger of immediate eviction?

Jackhammer Complex owner Jimmy Keup and Leather64TEN founders and partners Eric Kugelmann and Michael Syrjanen are all working diligently to save their businesses at that location. Unfortunately, the building they rent their space from was foreclosed on last month and Illinois foreclosure law allows the new owner to terminate all current commercial leases and demand immediate possession. This means The Jackhammer Complex and Leather64TEN residence need immediate rescue.

Time is of the essence though and there’s only about a month or less to find a new buyer before the evictions take place. Laura Rahilly, of Rahilly and Assoc. with Coldwell Banker, has been retained to find the right buyer on a very aggressive timeline. The building was extensively renovated with new plumbing, electrical, roof, kitchens, baths and HVAC and contains five, two-bedroom apartments, one three-bedroom apartment and a five-bedroom owners unit penthouse.

Keup and Kugelmann are hoping an angel investor will buy the building but the clock is ticking. For more info go to www.savethejackhammercomplex.com.

Boystown sheds reputation as Chicago’s robbery capital

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Lakeview’s Boystown neighborhood has an extra reason to be proud during this Pride month.

Just five years ago, the LG-BTQ playground and adjacent Wrigleyville were in their third consecutive year of recording more robberies than any other Chicago neighborhood. This year, the Lakeview enclaves are among the city’s safest.

It’s a big turn-around, especially when you consider the attitudes held by persons in charge back when things were terrible.

One Boystown bar owner sat in a neighborhood community policing meeting in 2011 and announced that his staff had begun to offer customers personal escorts home. “We had a Fantasyland here,” he told the meeting. “We’re never going to get that back.”

The local police commander whistled Dixie: “The crime rate has been fairly steady and kind of on a downward trend for the past several years,” she said.

And local Ald. Tom Tunney’s office was calling the problem “more of a perception issue than it is an actual crime issue.” Wrigleyville and Boystown would record the most robberies in at least a decade that year. A new record would be set the next year. And a third record would be set in the year after that. As recently as 2013, Ald. Tunney stated publicly that he had no idea that Boystown and Wrigleyville led the city in robbery reports.

But some local residents didn’t accept the “no more Fantasyland” or “perception” answers.

Wrigleyville and Boystown are comprised of three Chicago Police

Dept. beats: 1923, 1924, and 1925. In 2011, 2012, and 2013, beat 1924 consistently ranked #1 for robberies in the city of Chicago.

For the past 90 days, beats 1924 and 1925 are tied for 155th place. Beat 1923 ranks 181st. That’s a big deal and something everyone should be proud of.

Over the past 365 days, beat 1924 ranks 38th for robberies city-wide. Beat 1923 is in 153rd place. And beat 1925 is 170th.

Those rankings come directly from the Chicago Police Dept.

What does that mean in raw numbers?

Well, Wrigleyville and Boystown have recorded 46 robberies so far this year. That’s down from 63 at the same time last year. By comparison, about twice as many robberies had been reported in the neighborhood by the time the Pride Parade arrived in 2011 and 2012.

It’s difficult to look at partial-month stats before 2011 because a police department re-districting changed beat and district borders. But full-month stats are available going back to 2001.

How are Boystown and Wrigleyville shaping up this year?

So far, 2018 is tied for the fourth best-start to any year since 2001. (It tied with 2014, the year that the police department finally decided to get serious about the robbery problem.)

It is great to see such incredible results—especially when it seemed like the people in charge of public safety once seemed more concerned with denial and diversion than planning and improvement. Cheers, Boystown. We’re proud of you.

POLICE BEAT from p. 11

Cops release video of Lincoln Park robbery suspect

Chicago police have released video of a man and a car that may be connected to at least one armed robbery in Lincoln Park last month. A total of four hold-ups were reported in just over an hour on the night of May 14—in Lincoln Park, Lakeview, and Roscoe Village. Most of the victims provided similar descriptions of the offenders.

Shortly after a woman was robbed at gunpoint in the 1300 block of W. Wrightwood around 12:20 a.m., a man arrived at a nearby gas station in a vehicle that may have been a Toyota Matrix. He then used the victim's credit card to purchase cigarettes and gasoline. Surveillance cameras at the gas station captured video of the suspect and the car.

The man who used the victim's credit card was wearing a red hoodie with a design on the front and tan pants. That outfit matches the description of one offender that was given by the victim on Wrightwood.

Approximate locations of four robberies early on May 14. Police believe they may be related.

Other victims were robbed that night in the 2800 block of N. Southport; the 1300 block of W. Wellington; and the 2200 block of W. Wrightwood.

Anyone with information about the suspect or his vehicle is asked to call Area North Detective Dragojlovich at 312-744-8263.

Indiana men busted with guns near Mag Mile

Two Indiana men are facing felony charges after cops found two guns in their car near the Magnificent Mile early Friday, according to prosecutors.

Police said Kyle Kostro, 25, of Crown Point brandished a handgun in the back seat of a taxi cab in the first block of E. Pearson around 12:30 a.m. When Kostro accidentally dropped the gun, his friend Joseph Buncich picked it up and took it to a nearby car, say police.

After speaking with the cab driver, officers searched a 2011 Mercedes, which was parked nearby. A handgun was found under the passenger seat where 21-year-old Buncich was sitting, according to police records. Another handgun and a 33-round extended magazine were found in a McDonald's bag that was between Buncich's legs. A spent shell casing was allegedly recovered from the car.

Kostro is charged with two felony counts of aggravated unlawful use of a weapon in a vehicle without a Fire-arms Owner ID (FOID) card. A judge set bail at $2,000, meaning that he can go free to await trial by posting a $200 deposit.

Buncich, also of Crown Point, was charged with one felony count of aggravated unlawful use of a weapon in a vehicle without a FOID. His bail was set at $3,000.

If either man makes bail, he will be released to a pretrial services monitoring program, said a sheriff's office spokesman. Kostro and Buncich are due back in court on June 29.

Felon charged with River North robbery

A 20-year-old man who's on probation for unlawful use of a weapon is now charged with robbing a woman near the Magnificent Mile the evening of June 20.

Police said a 24-year-old River North woman was walking in the first block of E. Huron when Levon Williams approached her and wrestled away her phone. Cops and witnesses chased Williams on foot and, later, pursued a car that he was seen getting into.

He was eventually taken into custody in the 800 block of N. Mies Van Der Rohe in Streeterville.

Williams was charged with felony robbery and ordered held without bail by Judge John Lyke. Prosecutors also filed a motion for violation of probation in a gun case that Williams pleaded guilty to earlier in the year.

On Feb. 21, Judge Arthur Hill sentenced Williams to 18 months probation and 15 days of community service after Williams pleaded guilty to having a handgun illegally near his North Lawndale home. Nine other weapons-related felonies were dropped in exchange for his plea.

Prosecutors said in court filings that Williams is a member of the Traveling Vice Lords street gang.

Parolee charged with battering man in Boystown

A man who's on parole for a violent attack against security officers at the 2016 Maifest in Lincoln Square was arrested in Boystown on Monday morning after he allegedly attacked a man on the street.

Byron Carter, 20, is accused of repeatedly punching a Pontiac, IL, man in the chest and head in the 3400 block of N. Halsted around 6:30 a.m., according to court records. Carter was charged with battery and released on a recognizance bond by Judge Joanne Rosado.

Carter was paroled in Nov., 2017, after serving half of a three-year sentence he received for a wild attack on security and police officers at the Maifest street festival on June 3, 2016.

Police said security asked Carter to leave the festival after he allegedly threatened another man in the 4600 block of N. Western. When security tried to place him into custody, Carter allegedly punched a man, bit a security guard on the arm, and then used a "large rock" to hit another guard on the back of the head.

Carter wound up being charged with 23 felony counts including 21 counts of felony aggravated battery to a police officer in the case.

He pleaded guilty to one count of aggravated battery to a police officer and received a three-year sentence. The other 22 counts were dropped.

Twice-convicted sex offender is accused again

A registered sex offender who has been twice convicted of criminal sexual assault was arrested at his lakefront restaurant job on Friday to face new charges of attempted criminal sexual assault and aggravated criminal sexual abuse. The new allegations stem from an alleged incident in Edgewater on Memorial Day weekend.

Prosecutors said that Byron Jackson, 52, had drinks with a 34-year-old woman in her apartment in the 1100 block of W. Balmoral on Sunday, May 27. The woman told police that she fell asleep and awoke to find herself handcuffed behind her back with a gag in her mouth and Jackson fondling her and trying to pull her pants off, according to a police report.

At some point early on Memorial Day, Jackson took the woman's iPhone and fled the scene, prosecutors said. The woman suffered injuries to her lip and wrists, police said.

A joint fugitive task force went to a restaurant on the lakefront at Fullerton Ave. June 22 where Jackson reportedly worked. He was taken into custody when he walked in the door.

Jackson is charged with attempted aggravated criminal sexual assault; aggravated criminal sexual abuse causing great bodily harm; and theft. Judge Stephanie Miller ordered him held without bail.

State records show that Jackson is a registered sex offender whose whereabouts are listed as "unknown."

In 1993, Jackson was convicted of two separate criminal sexual assaults. He was sentenced to two eight-year terms that he served consecutively.

In 1989, he was sentenced to four years for aggravated unlawful restraint in a sexual assault-related case. Multiple sexual assault counts and other felonies were dropped in exchange for his guilty plea.

STATE OF WISCONSIN CIRCUIT COURT JEFFERSON COUNTY

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN CREDIT UNION 3500 University Ave. Madison, WI 53705

PUBLICATION Plaintiff, SUMMONS Case No: 18-CV-000183 v. DORI M. BINKOWSKI 1512 N. Green Meadows Blvd. Streamwood, IL 60107

Defendant. THE STATE OF WISCONSIN To each person named above as a defendant:

You are hereby notified that the plaintiff named above has filed a lawsuit or other legal action against you. The complaint, which is also served on you, states the nature and basis of the legal action. Within 40 days after June 13, 2018, you must respond with a written answer, as that term is used in Chapter 802 of the Wisconsin Statutes, to the complaint. The Court may reject or disregard an answer that does not follow the requirements of the statutes. The answer must be sent or delivered to the Court, whose address is 311 S. Center Avenue, Jefferson, Wisconsin 53549, and to the plaintiff's attorney, whose address is 735 N. Water Street, Suite 205, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53202. You may have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not provide a proper answer within 40 days, the Court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the complaint, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the complaint. A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future, and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

We are attempting to collect a debt and any information obtained will be used for that purpose.

Chicago Lighthouse brings lighthouses to Mag Mile

Fifty-one six-foot tall lighthouse sculptures installed on famed N. Michigan Ave. last week will catch the public's eye and maybe also capture their hearts this summer. Locals and visitors alike will see diverse art displays that are intended to raise the question: "How can I help people with disabilities?"

Lighthouses on the Mag Mile is being conducted by The Chicago Lighthouse now through Aug. 11. This free exhibition will include lighthouse sculptures created by national and local Chicago artists, many with disabilities. These artists along with more than 40 sponsoring business leaders have risen to the challenge put forward by Chicago Lighthouse CEO, Dr. Janet Szlyk: "We all have a powerful role to play to make inclusion possible for people with disabilities.

The challenge is to find your own sphere of influence and use it."

Self-guided tours of the lighthouses which includes the artists speaking about their access and inclusion concept will be available on OTOCAST. For enhanced audible wayfinding, download AWARE. For more information call 312-447-3246 or visit lighthousesonmagmile.com.

the confluence of the Chicago River's three branches and owned by the Kennedy family since 1945. It will be a 60-story 698-unit luxury apartment building with retail space on the ground floor. Though slightly smaller than originally designed, Wolf Point East will be taller and contain more units than Wolf Point West, the 48-story 509-unit $160 million apartment building that has been open for two years.

Houston-based Hines says there is "intense demand" for high-end residential units along the Chicago River. When construction is finished in late 2019, Wolf Point East, says the developer, will offer renters of those units "permanent, protected views" down the main and south branches of the river.

Christopher Kennedy, chairman of Joseph P. Kennedy Enterprises, Inc., says construction projects like Wolf Point East – that are built by union workers – are a response to an economy that keeps poor people poor and wealthy people wealthy.

"What they've done here needs to be the future of our country," said Kennedy. "This building, it's not owned by the Kennedy family or the Hines family. It's owned by everybody who works on that job. And when you work for yourself, the fruit of your labor is your own. You work better, you work faster, and you create perfection. And that's what we're getting in that building."

Eventually, the Wolf Point development will include a 950-foot south tower with a mix of office, retail, and residential space.

possessions. He just hit her in the face and moved on."

We decided to look into Ald. Moore's claim about CTA crime being down considerably. After we shared some of the results with his office, Ald. Moore declined to comment via a staff member.

Crime is down — on paper

Looking strictly at the bottom line number of "crimes" reported on the CTA annually, 2017 recorded among the fewest crimes of any year since 2002 (although 2017 was significantly higher than 2015 and 2016).

But CTA is benefitting greatly from a decision made by the CPD in mid-2014. That's when CPD ordered transit officers to stop arresting fare-jumpers. Instead, people who boarded buses and trains without paying would be issued tickets. The effect on "crime" was immediate.

In 2013, the last full year that fare jumpers were arrested, there were 1,435 fare evasion cases on the CTA. Last year, there were 103.

In New York City, the Manhattan District Attorney announced in February that his office would no longer prosecute fare-jumpers. New York cops will handle fare evaders with summonses only.

Also driving down the CTA's on-paper crime reduction is a dramatic decrease in narcotics arrests on the transit system. The reduced enforcement of drug laws is in line with a similar enforcement drop seen city-wide.

The real story about crime on the CTA is not told in overall crime numbers—those totals have been manipulated by enforcement decisions. The story is about what has been happening in other crime categories. After removing crimes that the city has essentially stopped enforcing—fare jumps and narcotics—CTA crime is nearing a 15-year high.

The CTA experienced a sharp increase in violent crime during the Great Recession. The "violent crime" category includes robberies and aggravated batteries in addition to less-frequently seen homicide and criminal sexual assault cases.

The recession peak, driven by a significant increase in robbery cases, has been pushed back. Nonetheless, violent crime has been on the increase again since 2015. Last year, CTA violent crime rose above pre-recession levels.

The number of violent crime cases has continued to increase during 2018. The increases have been recorded despite declines in ridership.

In 2017, CTA recorded more aggravated battery cases than any other year in the study. These are cases like the woman being punched on the train, persons being pushed onto train tracks or thrown down stairs, and other cases that cause serious injury. Last year saw a 67% increase in aggravated battery cases over 2016. About one third of the aggravated battery cases were reported on trains, platforms, and CTA stations.

Robbery reports are down sharply from recession-era levels. Nonetheless, hold-ups continue to be reported in numbers higher than before the economic downturn.

2018 up 18% so far

Through May of this year, CTA crime is up 18% over the same period in 2017, according to the city's own data.

CTA spokesman Steve Mayberry said the agency "always works to identify and address any crime or wrongdoing that occurs on our system, and CTA always contacts police when needed. Additionally, we always encourage customers to report any incident of wrongdoing."

Mayberry directed us to the CPD as "CTA is not a law enforcement agency and does not have its own internal police force." The police department did not respond to our inquiry.
