The next phase of construction focuses on the portion of the Flyover bridge that will cross over the Chicago River.

Main section of Navy Pier flyover bridge finally done

After much delay, the new section of the Navy Pier Flyover bridge that crossed over Grand Ave. and Illinois St. has been freshly striped and is now re-open. First opened in Dec. 2018, this milestone means users will no longer have to cross the two busy roadways.

The bike path has so far taken over four years to construct. The long delayed $60 million project has taken longer to build that it took to rebuild Chicago's downtown after the Great Chicago Fire of 1871, and is reportedly now on track to be completed by the end of the year.

After receiving hundreds of complaints over safety concerns over the years, city officials now believe these changes will dramatically improve safety along this stretch of Lake Shore Dr. and gives cyclists and pedestrians their own spaces to co-exist away from the busy streets below.

The third phase of construction focuses on the portion of the Flyover across the Chicago River. In this phase, crews are rehabilitating the moveable bridge over the Chicago River to accommodate the widened Lakefront Trail path. And the work won't be easy because the city will need to cut part of the trail through the two bridge houses on the east side of the two-level steel bascule bridge on Lake Shore Dr.

When the project is finally completed, the 2,160-foot flyover will carry foot and bike traffic over Illinois and Grand. In addition to the improvements to the Lakefront Trail, structural rehabilitation of the lower roadway, electrical controls and mechanical systems will be completed.

Burglar stole $4K worth of booze from River North hotel

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Chicago police say they've busted a burglar who stole nearly $4,000 from a River North hotel and hundreds of dollars in cash and property from a popular improv group.

Curtis Evans, 58, of River North used a prybar and bolt cutters to enter the rear door of the Godfrey Hotel, 127 W. Huron on June 18, according to prosecutors. Once inside, he allegedly stole 90 bottles of booze worth $3,933.

Police said Evans is also responsible for burglarizing the IO Theater the same day. He's accused of taking a bicycle, digital video camera, microphone, and a money bag containing $741 from the improv group's building at 1501 N. Kingsbury.

Curtis Evans

Evans is charged with felony burglary and felony theft. Bail has been set at $150,000.

CPS takes lighter approach to addressing drug problem in schools

BY JIM VAIL

Drug abuse among the sophomore students at Lane Tech High School was so prevalent this past school year that the school held an assembly to address the problem.

"They told us it's not supposed to be used by pregnant women and children, so why are we putting it into our bodies," one student, who wished to remain anonymous, said. "People were laughing in the audience. It seemed like they just researched it five minutes before the assembly."

The Chicago Public Schools (CPS) recently changed its student code of conduct policy that will no longer expel students for using drugs. Some hope it will help schools move away from disciplining students and toward guiding them to therapy or counseling.

Last year there were more than 7,000 serious student discipline infractions in CPS that include theft and sexual harassment, while there were more than 35,000 infractions for offenses that include using or possessing drugs or alcohol, as well as gambling and plagiarizing, Block Club Chicago reported.

One-third of Chicago high school students admitted to using illegal drugs on school grounds in 2017, almost 10% more than the national average, according to Project Know, an addiction resource center.

A lot of the students at Lane Technical High School at Addison

Students are known to vape even inside the classroom.

& Western vape in the bathrooms when there are no teachers around, the Lane student said. "You can still see the smoke when you're using the bathroom."

It is also easy to consume drugs when the students are off campus when they can leave for lunch.

Students are known to vape even inside the classroom. Vaping is the act of inhaling and exhaling the aerosol, often referred to as vapor, which is produced by an e-cigarette or similar device.

One teacher was dismissed and placed on the CPS Do Not Hire list because there was a student in his class who reeked of smoke, and the school claimed he did not take action, which the teacher disputes.

"They (vape) during class by putting it in their sleeve," the student said. "They just breathe it in, and hold it in, so they can get away with it."

Why are so many high school students consuming drugs?

"A lot of students are stressed out," the student said. "There are all the pressures of being a teenager, family, daily troubles."

He said classes in high school can be really stressful. Some are challenging and it's difficult to manage all those classes with all those requirements.

Ask any CPS teacher how stressful it is to teach today.

But the problem is how to cope with this stress, and children need the skills to navigate. And that is the problem, some say.

The Chicago Teachers Union is demanding that CPS hire more social workers and counselors to address the serious emotional problems kids face everyday. One teacher noted that CPS has only one social worker for every 1,000 students.

An attorney with Legal Aid Chicago said it's encouraging that CPS is viewing drug users in a more restorative and treatment-focused way, but few of her student clients she has who were charged with drug use were offered therapeutic alternatives.

"We remain concerned that substance abuse counseling resources and referrals are not really being implemented by CPS," attorney Ashley Fretthold said. "We don't see counseling referrals being made by schools in cases involving students and drug possession."

Blue Herons statue added to Fire Dept. garden

Streeterville's Engine Co. 98 has a new addition to their Chicago Fire Dept. Garden. Donated after an extensive renovation by the Ritz-Carlton, the famed sculpture of two blue herons was previously part of their lobby fountain. The McHugh Construction Co. did the rehab and donated their services to move and mount the statue.

Ritz-Carlton's general manager Peter Simoncelli along with the Streeterville Assoc. of Active Residents and the Park Advisory Council, reached out to Ald. Brian Hopkins [2nd] about moving the statue. Simoncelli said a home near the hotel would be most fitting and shared that the sculpture has been seen in wedding and anniversary photos dating back to 1975.

The statue and dedication plaque can be seen on display at 202 E. Chicago Ave.

Proceeds from police appreciation day go to 18th District 'health and well being'

TV mother-daughter combo help heal wounded knee

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

That's Carole King's theme music for "Gilmore Girls," a 2000-2007 TV series that ran on the WB, now in continuous syndication on Netflix with four new episodes in 2016. The "girls" are a smart, fast talking mom and daughter combo who speak in a sophisticated "Algonquin-ish" Dorothy Parker-like East Coast verbosity. Best friends through thick and thin, mom and daughter. Mom, aka Lorelai (Lauren Graham), a sassy 32-year-old Connecticut trust fund daughter who traded an Ivy League future and debutant society for life as an out-of-wedlock single mother. Daughter Rory (Alexis Bledel), a bright 16-year-old angel with her own plans for making it at Harvard after graduation from a posh prep school, Chilton.

Their lives in Stars Hollow, Connecticut, a rustic, historic, leafy American small town, are constantly butting heads and hearts with Lorelai's parents, the snooty Emily and Richard (Yale), whose fancy life on an estate is what daughter Lorelai has rejected. They struggle to bond with their granddaughter, Rory, in the hopes of stabilizing her growing up. Needless to say, social standing and everyday humanity are battling it out among these four. They are surrounded by a large population of prep school students, local high school kids and quirky townsfolk, as well as the denizens of high society.

I bring this up because last week I re-injured my right knee. Reopening damages I thought healed. I was enraptured by great pain. With only two pain killers left in a bottle, I managed 12 hours of pain relief from them. Pain increased as they wore off. While picking up another prescription at Walgreens, I inquired what over-the-counter pain killer I might take. My pharmacist (a very important person to those of us on multiple prescriptions) cautioned me as a Warfarin user from taking an over-the-counter pain aid. With other meds, I cannot take them safely. She suggested AR-Nicare, a homeopathic pain gel that brought fast relief after rubbing on. Homeopathic medicine made me feel like an Amish.

All I could do was lie in bed with the leg elevated. That, and watch all the episodes of Gilmore Girls. When you binge watch something, you get a deeper sense of continuity and stronger sense of story.

Holy smokes. This mom and daughter team are wondrous. They speak like they were editors at the New Yorker. Polished with a bright wisdom and antique vocabulary of expansive cultural reference. Dialogue is fast paced and laced with pompous Yankee alliteration and self-absorbed pre-occupation. The senior Gilmores never stop their strangling social well-meaning choke holds. The Gilmore Girls cannot keep their noses out of each other's relationships and other people's bees wax. In their small town, gossip-rich American landscape they thrive on every relationship faux pas and emotional handicap and betrayal that human frailty can toss their way. But there is always redemption. A saving grace. You could say that Gilmore Girls is really the saga of white privilege, as it engages more complex wasp stereotypes. It's a teen dramedy in which competitive youth are driven to talk like college professors and lose their ways on the highway to Harvard and Princeton. In laughter or tears. Everyone's in a rush to grow up. But not everyone wants to join the Country Club or the Junior League.

I'm not sure the freshness date hasn't expired on this, but it's sweet. A tale that has been with America from our beginning. The discovery of purpose and the harvesting of resources have always played out with mixed reviews. Just ask Nathaniel Hawthorne. Many characters in Gilmore Girls would be running around with large scarlet letters on their clothing if Hawthorn was creating the characters. He would hold everyone to higher moral absolutes. Although after listening to mama Emily Gilmore espouse her social code of honor, you soon see through the thinness of her credo, ethics and arguments. The senior Gilmores' rambling Connecticut mansion resembles Queen Victoria's court more than the landscape of 21st century America. Emily can't make a pot of coffee. She has servants for that. But when there is a crisis down at the local diner, Lorelai and Rory roll up their sleeves, tie on aprons and start taking short-order breakfasts and slinging hash to help out their pal, diner owner Luke. Rory is continuously providing us with the real face of "Nobless Oblige" in her countless acts of quiet forgiveness and friendship to her mom, haughty fellow prep school classmates and town ruffians. She demonstrates the sweetness of a first kiss, as well as the loyalty of a true friend as she weaves her way through the heartache and bruises of being an American teenager.

I was really cheered up by the antics and dialogue of the Girls, like it was a homeopathic gel. Can keeping your eye on the prize, in this case Harvard, really keep you poised and balanced through the zits and scars of teen living? Perhaps. Prep school students, the children of the elite, appear to have no one to love them or worry about them. Or even raise the question of who they want to be. Privilege doesn't really look all that good. Better to be eating Chinese food out of their cartons in Lorelai and Rory's kitchen than prime rib off Emily's antique china at Friday night dinners.

Lorelai manages to redeem with humor, reason, quick wits and the stark reality of everyday life.

No wonder my knee feels better. Homeopathic gel and two days of Lorelai and Rory.

Between the social confusion and the cultural disintegration unfolding in Stars Hollow, there are moments of human redemption and well-played human hope. They never give up. Even if it's only the sound of the Yankee deity speaking through the sonorous tones of the late actor Edward Hermann (aka grandee Richard Gilmore), presenting his granddaughter Rory with a first edition volume of some author they love. We will all survive prep school. And our sore aging knees.

"Where you lead, I will follow."

Hostess of the great Ward Union Hunt Balls and a fixture of elegance in County Dublin society. I spent my first Summer in Ireland in her 40-room house in 1962. I recall the walls of her bedroom were filled with Toulouse Lautrec's colorful works. She encouraged our wild explorations of land, sea and sky; endless picnics and excursion to the sea. Her dear mother, Mary, was my grandmother, Rebecca's sister. Her daughters, Geraldine and Phaedra, survive her. As does her sister Pat Duffy. Her husband Christy, a fine Dublin architect, was an Irish impressionist painter whose work we treasured. Ena was wise and elegant, reasoned and well-bred, dry, witty and a woman of her times. Her embroidery was high art. She was named for Queen Victoria's granddaughter, Ena, the Queen

RIP "Jamaica" You will be missed

We called him "Jamaica," but his real name was Croslene Kettle. And even though I knew him for probably nearly three decades--maybe a little more --I never even knew his real name until about a year ago.

Heart of the 'Hood By Felicia Dechter

The reason my family called Kettle "Jamaica," was because that's where he was from. And he loved that we loved the island just as much as he did. And we loved that he loved East Rogers Park just as much as we did. I first met Jamaica when he was working at Morseland, a restaurant/bar down the street from me. He was a cook, and he'd come out of the kitchen and talk to customers. He was quite the friendly character, and I'd always see him in the 'hood, walking around, cooking up some jerk chicken in the park, or on his way down to Farwell Pier for some fishing and hanging out on lazy summer days. With a big smile he'd always ask how my kids were and then he'd let me know if he'd seen them around and what they were doing if he had. (This came in very handy when they were teens).

Those who knew him are devastated because on June 25, Kettle lost his life at Farwell Pier. Apparently, he went for a swim and never resurfaced. His friends became worried and unfortunately, he became another victim of Lake Michigan's frigid waters. Jamaica was rushed to St. Francis Hospital in Evanston, and it is there he was pronounced dead. He will be missed by the many friends and neighbors he had made in the community, myself and my family included.

Last Saturday, there was a memorial for Jamaica at the local watering hole, The Oasis. I am in Door County, so my neighbor, John Lamping, reported on the event for me.

"The Oasis Tavern was filled to the rafters with Kettle's friends, free food and great fondness," said Lamping. "The party's revelers and atmosphere even overflowed out onto the street. The Oasis was filled with the power of Kettle's love, Rastafarian-style celebration and sense of brother and sisterhood evoking one after another to raise their glasses and toast 'Rest in Power Bro.'

"A corner of the bar was set up with photos, flowers and a petition to have the city install a plaque paying homage to Kettle at the end of Farwell Pier," said Lamping. "Out on the pier itself a small memorial is developing at the base of the lighthouse tower - flowers, the Jamaican flag, a bottle of Jamaican Red Stripe beer, fond wishes and the vibrant colors of Rastafaria (red, black and green).

"I can only describe the feeling as being a low-key mix of 'Cheers,' Woodstock and Mardi Gras all rolled into one beautiful afternoon and evening," continued Lamping.

"Even Taniel Kalijian, the filmmaker who immortalized Kettle in the indie documentary 'Pier Melodies,' sent his condolences to all of Kettle's friends in Rogers Park. His words to me were 'Kettle's energy, resilience and love of life, had an invigorating effect that I still feel to this day. Shooting the doc with Kettle at the end of the pier was one of the most rewarding experiences of my life and was the film that helped me find my path.'"

That's what I will miss most about Jamaica: His energy, his love of life, and his friendly, huge grin.

I ran into Jamaica after my trip to the island in February, and his eyes shone as I talked about Negril, a popular tourist spot, and Port Antonio, a little less-visited destination that we'd gone to. I gave him a run down of all we did, and it was as if he could picture his homeland in his mind with every word I said and every description I gave.

I last saw him a few weeks ago, as he was crossing Sheridan Road at Pratt. I was driving and I opened my passenger side window and yelled out, "Hey Jamaica, what's up?!" He turned around, smiled that big smile of his, waved, and carried on.

RIP Jamaica. Your presence lit up our neighborhood and all who were lucky enough to know you were just that: Lucky.

New spark on Clark ... Wow! Love the colorful new mural by Rogers Park artist Molly Costello at 6978 N. Clark St.

The work, commissioned by the nonprofit Rogers Park Business Alliance (RPBA), was revealed at a ribbon-cutting ceremony on June 21. Ald. Maria Hadden (49th) was on hand to celebrate with Costello, as was RPBA executive director Sandi Price.

Costello created the mural as part of the RPBA's Vision Clark Street Master Plan, a multi-year strategic plan for the Clark Street business corridor spanning Devon Avenue to Howard Street, which includes efforts such as new landscaping, storefront improvements and the addition of vibrant public art. Her work illustrates the eclectic, authentic and inclusive aspects of the multicultural Clark Street commercial corridor, while incorporating the vivid colors and designs that make up the new Clark Street brand.

Costello said she wanted to create a scene of everyday Rogers Park residents from all walks of life, so in the mural there are scenes of neighbors engaging in activities such as preparing food, working on bicycles, reading books and cutting hair.

"My hope is to create images that break down feelings of isolation that are prevalent and harmful in our society and also as a way to remind us of our collective power when we show up for each other," said Costello. "Through connecting the mural characters with stars and constellations, I try to depict the invisible threads that connect us. I hope that this mural opens up people's imaginations around how we are called to live in relationships with each other."

Home buyers should thank the trade war for lower rates

President Trump's trade war with China is having a positive effect on the U.S. housing market, experts say.

Home-loan interest rates continued to plummet in late June to the lowest level since Nov. 2016, reports Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey. On June 27 benchmark 30-year fixed mortgages averaged 3.73% nationwide, down from 3.84% a week earlier.

It was the seventh time in the last nine weeks that rates moved lower, Freddie Mac reported interest charges hit the lowest level since Nov. 2016 when 30-year fixed mortgage rates averaged 3.54%. Last year at this time, the 30-year fixed loans averaged 4.55%.

On June 27 15-year fixed mortgages averaged 3.16%, down from 3.25% a week earlier. In early Nov. 2016, 15-year fixed loans averaged 2.84%. Last year at this time, they averaged 4.04%.

On June 27, 30-year-fixed home loan rates in the Chicago-area ranged from 3.731% to 3.94%, reported rateSeeker.com.

Economists say a confidence-shaking trade battle between the U.S. and China, and a slowdown in economic growth played a major role in the recent decline in mortgage interest rates.

Meanwhile, investors reacted by driving the yield on the 10-year Treasury yield to 2.0%, its lowest point in weeks.

Economists say a confidence-shaking trade battle between the U.S. and China, and a slow-down in economic growth played a major role in the recent decline in mortgage interest rates. "Trump's trade war with China is sapping confidence," said Paul Ashworth, chief U.S. economist at Capital Economics.

Trump, who is counting on a strong economy as he campaigns for re-election next year, has pushed the Federal Reserve to immediately start cutting interest rates to undo what he sees as the damage from four unnecessary Fed rate hikes last year.

At its most recent meeting, the Fed did signal that it was prepared to cut its federal funds rate if needed to protect the economy for a growing trade dispute between the U.S. and China. The funds rate currently is pegged at 2.25% to 2.5%.

The immediate result of a Fed rate cut could mean a quarter of one percentage point decrease in home-loan rates, experts say.

"While the industrial and trade related economic data continues to dominate the news, the drop in mortgage rates over the last two months is already being felt in the housing market," noted Sam Khater, Freddie

Lincoln Park Victorian

Mac's chief economist.

"Through late June, home purchase applications improved by five percentage points compared with the previous month," Khater said. "In the near-term, we expect the housing market to continue to improve from both a sales and price perspective."

So, what do all these numbers mean to prospective house hunters and homeowners seeking to refinance? The window of opportunity for locking in a near record-low mortgage rate this summer is wide open.

Mortgage-Rate History

Mortgage rates hit a historical rock bottom on Nov. 21, 2012, when the 30-year fixed mortgage average hit 3.31%, Freddie Mac reported. Nearly 20 years ago—in Aug. 1999—when many of today's Millennial borrowers were in grammar school, lenders were quoting 8.15% on a 30-year fixed mortgage.

However, to really appreciate today's historically low interest rates, housing experts say home buyers need only to look at what banks and mortgage lenders were charging more than three decades ago in the early 1980s.

According to Freddie Mac, benchmark 30-year mortgage rates peaked at a whopping 18.45% in Oct. 1981 during the Great Recession of the 1980s. Rates fell below 10% in April of 1986, and then bounced in the 9%-to-10% range during the balance of the 1980s.

Archives of the now-defunct Federal Housing Finance Board show long-term mortgage rates were relatively affordable five decades ago at 5.81% to 5.94% between 1963 and 1965.

In 1966 and 1967, borrowers paid an average of 6.3% to 6.4%. In the 1960s, rates last dipped below 6.5% in Jan. 1968, when the national average hit 6.41%. Between 1971 and 1977, the now-defunct Illinois Usury Law held rates in the 7.6%-to-9% range.

What to look out for when you dine out

Top chefs have some red flags

BY JIM VAIL

As we continue to eat out in restaurants, do we stop to think what exactly we should look for besides whether or not the food tastes good?

Top chefs at restaurants throughout the country told one online publication what red flags to look out for the next time you eat out.

The first one that I also heard from my father was and the chefs concur, if you walk into a seafood place and it smells like fish, leave!

And if they advertise the "catch of the day" - it better come from Lake Michigan, or it ain't fresh.

Plus don't order fish on a Sunday - the chefs say most deliveries are made on Mondays and Thursdays, so it's not fresh. And ask where the oysters come from.

If they don't know, then you don't want them.

Another red flag is carpeting - vacuuming only goes so far to clean up a place filled with food.

A one-page menu is actually a good sign - "It means their cooks have become specialists and can usually nail all the dishes listed."

If the restaurant has a huge menu? That indicates the food is all frozen!

These chefs say to stay away from buffets and salad bars because it's the same stuff that just gets refilled over and over again. Plus, they are not very sanitary.

If you see a local eatery along busy Lincoln Ave. in Lincoln Square or Clark St. in Andersonville and it's empty, "that's usually a bad sign."

"If you are seated right away during peak hours, that is a red flag. The common folk aren't eating there, and for a good reason."

And if you order a meal that should take some time to cook, but it comes out right away - it's been precooked!

One chef said they learned in culinary school that if you misspell something on the menu it's for a reason - they don't have to sell you the real thing. For example, krab cakes.

If the menu is dirty, that means the whole place is dirty.

Look for how the staff interact - if it looks like they enjoy working there, it means the place is well run and everything is working properly. If they seem disgruntled, they probably don't care about your food if they aren't being treated fairly.

One chef said he checks for dust. Again, if it's not clean ... then it's not clean

And it should smell like delicious food, not perfume or something sterile, which could be a sign they're hiding something.

Artists of the Wall Update

The Loyola Park Advisory Council read Felicia Dechter's column in the recent News Star with disappointment. We understand change is difficult, however switching to on-line registration for the 26th Artists of the Wall Festival was not merely a choice, but a necessity. An email sent to all of our subscribers in May explains some of the substantive reasons behind the change. One big one was that we lost five key people in the last year from the Council, including Laura Rubrow who handled registration for 15-plus years.

However, with the heroic efforts on the part of the new group, we were able to put on a festival – and even have it be a big success despite the worst weather ever. The vast majority of attendees seem to understand this event is put on by earnest volunteers and show gratitude for our hard work. This is what makes it worthwhile to those who organize the fest: to see our community at its best!

Dechter's concern about "outsiders" taking over "your" neighborhood festival is unwarranted. Based on paid receipts, the vast majority of participants reside in the Rogers Park area.

She also mentioned the cost to participate in the festival as exorbitant. Thankfully, we are able to get paint donated (a huge expense) and we also receive donations from local businesses to keep our fees manageable. Costs go up every year, and we have seldom raised our fees. We also give a number of free spaces to five or more low-income families every year in an effort to create more diversity and inclusion. We are working to expand this program.

Perhaps it would help if Dechter knew what we do with the funds raised. We are a 100 percent volunteer organization, and our funds go to support park district programs such as the Daddy-Daughter Dinner Dance, the Black History Celebration, and Halloween and Easter events for children. And since 2018, we have created a scholarship program for kids to participate in programs at Loyola Park free of charge. This year we have allotted $7,000 for this purpose.

It was very disheartening to have a column like this published in our local paper. Dechter did not even contact anyone in our group, which is unfortunate and shows poor journalistic standards. So, rather than building a bridge to the future, she chose to disparage the work of her neighbors who put their elbow grease and dedication into making the festival a reality.

In short, Dechter got the story very, very wrong. She took something bigger than life and made it smaller.

Chicago reverend elected bishop of Episcopal Diocese of Michigan

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Some years ago, when much of the North Side's trees were threatened by an ash disease believed to have originated in China, the Rev. Bonnie Perry held a special memorial service at All Saints Episcopal Church for the trees that were lost in Ravenswood.

Rev. Bonnie Perry

"You could call it our version of Christian Druidism," a laughing Perry explained to a local reporter after the service.

Next February, Perry will become the Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan.

Ready

Perry, it seems, has always been prepared to handle the unexpected.

On that fateful Sept. 11, 2001, Perry led a special prayer service, as did a number of other local churches, following the most treacherous sneak attack on American soil since Pearl Harbor.

When she's not "doing church," as she sometimes puts it, Perry can sometimes be found working as an open water instructor certified by the British Canoe Union.

She is the fourth woman in North America certified to instruct and lead people in "advanced tidal waters."

She's also a fully trained Wilderness First Responder – which means she can help save souls in all kinds of situations.

Raised Catholic

Raised a devout Catholic, she recalls feeling a strong nudge toward the priesthood but realized she could never answer the calling under the Vatican's current rules. So she joined the Anglican Church and became a priest – as well as the first female gay pastor.

"I've been out for a long time; it's just a part of who God is creating me to be," Perry told a reporter for the Detroit Press shortly after her election June 1.

She added that her spouse of 31 years – Susan Harlow – is also a pastor in a different denomination, the United Church of Christ.

Path to Bishop

Perry served in several smaller congregations in New Jersey before taking up her assignment at All Saints in 1992 in Chicago.

She became active in local organizations, started a food pantry and community kitchen, and built up the congregation from less than 35 worshippers on a typical Sunday to an average of 250 in 2002 – necessitating the creation of a third Sunday service.

By the time Perry was elected to head the Michigan Diocese (she was one of four candidates, all women) she was no stranger in church circles. In fact, she'd been an unsuccessful contender for a bishop's slot several years ago.

This time, though, it happened.

Accolades

When the retiring Rt. Rev. Wendell Gibbs, who had become the first black Anglican bishop in the Michigan Diocese 19 years ago, learned Perry had been elected to the Michigan Diocese, he says he couldn't have been more elated.

"I believe with her energy and enthusiasm she will build on the good work we have done here," Gibbs told the Detroit Free Press.

Her job isn't going to be easy.

Like many mainline denominations, the Episcopal Church has been losing members in recent years, Perry told the Free Press. The number of baptized Anglicans in Michigan has declined 46 percent, from 29,769 in 2000 to an estimated 16,000 today, according to church figures.

But Perry believes there are ways to grow congregations – by focusing not as much on what people think about God, but how they actually act, she told the Free Press.

Diversey water main work almost done

The water main construction on Diversey Ave. between Damen and Ravenswood is in the final stages of work. The middle of the intersection at Damen/Clybourn/Diversey will have to be dug up to place all new pipes, but this work will mostly be done at night to avoid total shut down of traffic at the intersection.

This phase will take about three weeks to complete with final restoration of all streets shortly after. At present, the new water main is being aired out with an open hydrant pipe at Damen and Diversey.

The pipes are being prepared for chlorination of the new system. Once the water main is chlorinated the contractors on the project will begin the service line transfers to homes and condos on Diversey.

North Side boasts the most sugar daddies nationwide

BY JIM VAIL

As the costs to live on the North Side continues to increase, the number of wealthy men seeking to spread a little love has as well.

Seeking Arrangement, the world's largest Sugar Daddy dating site, pulled data from its 20 million members worldwide to determine where Sugar Daddies live in Chicago.

They claim in a press release that the Near North, North, Northwest and Far North parts of this city are home to over 1,000 sugar daddies.

In fact they named Chicago - and specifically the North Side - as the number one locale nationwide for sugar daddies. Streeterville has 319 sugar daddies, followed by Lincoln Park with 280, Old Irving Park with 181 and Lakeview with 163 sugar daddies, according to Seeking Arrangement.

A sugar daddy is a rich man who will pay for the pleasure of having a girlfriend. Their website defends the practice that appears to be a modern-day version of prostitution.

"Is a woman's preference for financially or socially successful men worse than any other set of criteria for mate selection?" the website states. "It appears not. For example, it seems arbitrary to think negatively of women being attracted to social status while being comfortable with women being attracted to physical beauty."

Well, perhaps they got a point. But the fact is as living expenses continue to increase, people need help paying the bills.

This is especially true for women getting a higher education. As more women are going to college today than men, and costs and student loans continue to skyrocket, a sugar daddy or sugar mama can come in handy.

Why Chicago?

The Windy City is home to the headquarters of 33 of the largest U.S. companies. Corporate headquarters in and around Chicago include Allstate, McDonalds, Motorola Solutions, Boeing and Walgreens, the largest of the large with over $118 billion in revenue in 2017.

According to The Atlantic magazine, 2014 saw a huge spike in sugar babies nationwide, especially in the southern states.

It takes about 14 years on average to pay off college debt. As a result, young women across the country are turning to sugar daddies. More than 1.4 million students - including about one million in the U.S. - have signed up with Seeking Arrangement.

The website claims that 42% of its members are students, and people who show proof of college enrollment receive "premium membership" for free.

Critics contend Seeking Arrangement is merely justifying prostitution, which the company of course denies, stating that it prohibits any exchange of money on its site.

The top five sugar daddy cities are New York, L.A., Houston, Chicago and Phoenix.

"Statistics aside," the Atlantic writer notes, "the fact that this path has become increasingly popular among so many young women is a damning indictment of the country's higher-education system. This is something that Seeking Arrangement is acutely aware of. In fact, its marketing has expanded in the past few years to specifically attract more students. But as morally suspect as seeking a 'baby' arrangement may seem, for many college students this 'outside help' is increasingly the only way out of a lifetime shackled to debt."

Hey, Loyola Park Advisory Council ... I'm very sorry you were so disappointed with what I wrote last week about the Artists of the Wall Fest, but I stand behind what I said, which wasn't even bad. This is, after all, a column, where opinions are given. And I'm certainly entitled to one, especially when it concerns my backyard.

I've lived in the neighborhood for 43 years. How 'bout you?

But before I go on, my intent was certainly not to insult the people who put their hard work and dedication into the fest. I thank you for that. But for a few years now I've felt the price was way too high for our working class neighborhood. I guess the stressful Event Brite registration was the catalyst for me writing about it.

This is not sour grapes, as I had a spot. But I really felt for those who could not get one. I also was not happy that the price is so high, even though I know good things are done with the money earned.

But this is not Lincoln Park nor is it the Gold Coast. This is the less ritzy East Rogers Park, filled with working class people, refugees, immigrants, and the likes. You mention in your Letter to the Editor that paint is donated. Why not kick that back to the community or at least charge not the $8 you do, but perhaps $3 or even $5? I'm sorry but I feel $8, on top of $35 for the spot, is just too expensive. (For those of you who don't know about this fest, the seawall is painted white and then sectioned off into spots to be painted with designs).

You also mention that five spots are donated to low-income kids. Whoopee! Out of 140 or so, that's all you could spare? Perhaps if spots were less expensive, say $10--or even $20 including paint--these kids could afford their own. Remember, spots started for the fest all those years ago at $6.

And I'm sorry the advisory council lost five people. But perhaps there's a reason for that.

It would be great if you took just a tiny bit of constructive criticism from a pretty much lifelong East Rogers Parker like me and try to improve things for next year. Again, I thank you for all your hard work though. Honestly, I'm just mentioning a few things that could be improved upon.

I agree with you, the fest is our community at its best and I would love to see it kept that way. With the theme this year being, "Our Backyard," how sad it was that there are people living here who either couldn't secure a spot to paint or they couldn't afford one...in their own backyard.

Police Beat...

Weapons charges filed against parolee who murdered 2 gay men in Lakeview in 1987

Felony weapons charges have been filed against Patrick Tullis, a parolee who was convicted of murdering two gay men in Lakeview over three weeks in April 1987.

Patrick Tullis

Tullis, 58, was arrested near his Uptown home at 1 a.m. Tuesday after neighbors reported shots fired and a man with a gun in the 4700 block of North Beacon.

Prosecutors said that police approached Tullis for questioning, but he hid his right hand and ran into his apartment building. Officers caught up with him and found a loaded handgun in his back pants pocket, according to charges. Two shell casings were found in front of his apartment complex.

Police said Tullis waived his right to remain silent and told them, "I got a little toy from a friend. I was celebrating the [Fourth of July] and began firing it into the air, but I didn't shoot at anybody. I was just shooting it in the air."

Tullis is charged with one count of Class X felony armed habitual criminal; being a felon in possession of a weapon; reckless discharge of a firearm; and two counts of resisting police. He is being held without bail.

In April 1989, Tullis was sentenced to 45 years in prison for murder and a consecutive fifteen years for voluntary manslaughter after he pled guilty to killing two gay men in 1987. He was released in July 2017 after serving half of the 60-year term.

Tullis, who lived in the 3000 block of North Sheffield at the time of the murders, tied 25-year-old John Tolbert's hands and feet, then strangled him to death with a telephone cord on April 5th, 1987, according to a contemporaneous report by the Chicago Tribune. Tolbert's body was found in a dumpster on the same block where Tullis lived.

Then, on April 29th, Tullis stabbed 43-year-old Raymondo Hernandez twenty-one times and dumped his body under the Brown Line tracks at Ashland.

Tullis told prosecutors that he killed the men because they asked him to have sex.

The victims were killed about two months after Tullis was released early from prison after serving 2-1/2 years of a four-year sentence for aggravated battery. The Tribune reported in 1989 that Tullis had been ordered to serve three extra months in prison during that sentence because he stabbed another inmate who made sexual proposals.

Near North: Six shot in two incidents overnight; All victims "uncooperative," police say Six people were shot in two separate incidents in the Near North neighborhood overnight, police said. Investigators believe the second shooting was retaliation for the first.

Police said none of the victims has been cooperative with police and investigators have no descriptions of any suspects. No one is in custody.

Four of the victims were injured when shots rang out as a large group of people fought in Stanton Park, 618 West Scott, at 12:56 a.m., police said. All of the victims are "known to police," the department said in a statement.

A 41-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his shoulder and a 49-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his chest were both listed in critical condition after being driven to Northwestern Memorial Hospital in a private car.

Police said a 22-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his chest is also in critical condition at Northwestern. A 37-year-old man who was shot in the lower back was stabilized at the same hospital.

An evidence technician was later seen recovering shell casings and a gun holster at the shooting scene. On the opposite side of the park, a woman told police that a bullet flew through her third-floor apartment window.

Twenty minutes after the Stanton Park incident, two more men were shot in the 800 block of North Cambridge, police said. Investigators believe the shootings were payback for the earlier shootings.

Both victims on Cambridge told police that they were on the sidewalk when they heard gunfire and realized that they had been shot. Once again, police said both men are "known" to the department.

A 34-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his left forearm and another 34-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his left thigh were transported to Northwestern, police said. Their conditions have reportedly been stabilized.

Twelve people have been shot in River North so far this year. City data shows that six people were shot in the neighborhood during all of 2015; eight during 2016; six during 2017; and sixteen during all of last year.

It must be the shoes: Wicker Park carjackers take victim's Toyota... And his Air Jordans

Two armed carjackers forced a driver and his passenger to hand over their expensive gym shoes before the robbers sped away in their car early Saturday morning in Wicker Park, according to Chicago police and a CPD report.

An 18-year-old man and a 17-year-old boy were sitting in the car on the 2300 block of West Wabansia when three men walked up to their vehicle around 3:45 a.m., police said. The victims were reportedly ordered out of the car as one offender pointed a gun through the driver's window while the other displayed a gun on the passenger side.

The victims were ordered to remove and surrender their footwear, including a pair of Air Jordan 5's, which can retail for $10,000 or more. (But the victims said the combined value of their stolen shoes is "only" $1,135.)

Police said the stolen car was last seen heading eastbound on Wabansia. It is a beige 2001 Toyota four-door that bears a license plate beginning with "9853."

The victims said the robbers were two black males and one Hispanic male who wore black hoodies.

Lakeview woman grazed when ex-boyfriend opens fire in apartment building

A 29-year-old woman was grazed by a bullet when her ex-boyfriend opened fire in her Lakeview East apartment building overnight, police said. The offender is in custody. She is the third person shot in the neighborhood since June 8th.

Several people were gathered at the woman's apartment in the 400 block of West Briar just before 1 a.m. when the 32-year-old pulled out a handgun. At least one of the victim's friends ran from the unit and called police while hiding in a laundry room.

Other occupants of the building told arriving officers that shots had been heard and police found the offender holding a handgun in a rear stairwell on the fifth floor, according to sources. Two shell casings were found in a nearby hallway.

One witness said the offender, who lives in the Chatham neighborhood, came to the victim's apartment after he was caught cheating on her.

The victim was transported to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center in good condition for treatment of a graze wound to her lower back.

The shooting is the third reported in Lakeview East this month

Around 1:30 a.m. on June 8th, a 27-year-old woman was shot in an apparently random attack as she walked home from work on the 600 block of West Surf. A white man on a bicycle who had been seen circling the block fired one shot at the victim as he passed by, striking her in the right side of her chest. A GoFundMe campaign to offset the woman's medical bills and lost wages has raised over $9,600 so far.

Little Village resident Victor Ochoa, 30, was fatally shot early on June 17th as he rode in an SUV on the 2900 block of North Broadway. Ochoa was struck in the head and shoulder by someone who fired from another vehicle. The shooting stemmed from an earlier altercation between the parties near Belmont and Sheffield, police said.

On June 7th, the driver of a minivan that came under fire on Lake Shore Drive in Lincoln Park called for help from the parking lot of Walgreens, 3201 North Broadway in Lakeview East. Three passengers were critically wounded and 20-year-old Michael Medina was pronounced dead at the scene. Police said the shooting was gang-related.

No one is in custody for any of the previous shootings

Brantez Evans and Lamarr Brown

Federal charges brought against pair suspected of five robberies in Loop and Near North

Two men who are suspected of robbing four fast food restaurants and a convenience store in the Loop and Near North neighborhoods over the past week will be prosecuted in federal court, according to a statement from the US Attorney's Office in Chicago.

Chicago police arrested 18-year-old Brantez Evans and 19-year-old Lamarr Brown after they robbed a Subway restaurant at 1234 North Halsted Street on Tuesday, according to a statement issued by federal authorities.

After the men entered the restaurant around 8 p.m., Brown allegedly approached the counter and lifted his shirt to expose what appeared to be a handgun. Brown then told the cashier to "give me the money," and pressured the clerk by saying, "come on man you don't want to get shot," according to an affidavit filed in federal court by a Chicago police officer assigned to the FBI's Chicago task force.

Brown and Evans escaped with $307, but Evans returned to the restaurant to claim a backpack that he left on a chair and then left again before police arrived, the officer said. The pair was arrested about fifteen minutes later in the 1500 block of North Dayton.

The FBI task force officer said in his statement that authorities suspect the two men are also responsible for robbing four other establishments, including two immediately before the Subway store on Halsted Street was held-up:

- The Subway restaurant, 177 North Wells, at 5:45 p.m. on June 21st
- The Loop Mini Mart, 14 West Jackson, at 4:30 p.m. on June 24th
- The Subway restaurant, 166 North Wabash, at 7:18 p.m. on June 25th
- The Dunkin' Donuts, 10 West Chicago, at 7:30 p.m. on June 25th

The U.S. Attorney's office in Chicago released a set of photographs that it says show Brown and Evans at or near the various robberies. Both men were allegedly wearing clothing or carrying items that police saw on surveillance images from the earlier robberies at the time of their arrests. A BB gun was also recovered, according to the federal affidavit.

Evans and Brown, each charged with one count of obstructing interstate commerce, face up to 20 years in prison if they are convicted of the charge.

A Franklin Park man who broke a Chicago TV news crew's camera equipment has been sentenced to spend more time in prison than many of the city's recent gun offenders. His is a topsy-turvy story from a town that claims to be serious about fighting gun crime.

Ismael Pereda, 47, pled guilty Wednesday to knocking over two spotlights and a news camera that an ABC7 crew had set up for a live shot near Water Tower Place around 5:15 a.m. on Dec. 23rd. The damage was estimated to be $40,000. At the time of his arrest, Pereda was AWOL from a case in which he was accused of battery and resisting police in Franklin Park.

After receiving Pereda's plea this week, Judge Timothy Chambers sentenced him to one year in prison with 182 days credit for the time he spent in jail before entering his plea. Pereda was shipped off to the Stateville Correctional Center in Joliet on Thursday. He arrived, underwent processing, received the state's automatic 50% sentence reduction for good behavior, and was paroled the same day, according to state records.

Nonetheless, Pereda spent far more time behind bars than most people who pled guilty to carrying firearms illegally in Chicago.

Roderick Trice was also in Chambers' court on Wednesday. The 21-year-old was facing four felony gun charges after police said they found a loaded handgun during a traffic stop in Uptown on Nov. 23. According to police, Trice told them that "It's an old gun and I only have it for protection. I'm trying to get my FOID (Firearm Owner's ID card)."

In exchange for his guilty plea on one count of aggravated unlawful use of a weapon, Chambers sentenced Trice to two years probation and 50 hours of community service. Prosecutors dropped the other three felonies.

Recently, 21-year-old Sheldon Graham was in front of Chambers.

Graham had been charged with multiple weapons counts, including Class X armed violence and possessing a handgun with a defaced serial number after police said they found him with the pistol in a car on the Magnificent Mile last November.

He pled guilty to one count of aggravated unlawful use of a weapon in a vehicle and Chambers sentenced him to two years of "first offender gun probation" and 50 hours of community service. Despite being charged with a Class X felony (the most serious crime category other than murder), Graham was allowed to go free after his arrest by posting a $500 deposit bond.

In another case handled by Chambers, two Indiana men each pled guilty to having a pair of firearms in a car that they were sitting in near the Magnificent Mile on June 22 last year. Chambers sentenced 25-year-old Kyle Kostro and 21-year-old Joseph Buncich to two years of "first offender gun probation."

David Williams, 24, recently pled guilty to having a loaded handgun in a Jaguar that was parked on the Hubbard Street bar strip in River North last summer and also received two years of gun probation from Chambers. Williams went free after his arrest by posting a $1,000 deposit bond.

Chambers gave the same sentence to Daniel Lancheros, a 23-year-old who was accused of having a handgun while riding as an Uber passenger near Western and Foster in February 2018. Police said Lancheros is a Latin King who scored 354 out of a possible 500 on the department's Strategic Subject's List, which "purports to identify which Chicagoans are most likely to be involved in violence, either as a victim or perpetrator."

But Chambers isn't the only judge who gives gun offenders less time than the guy who broke Channel 7's equipment.

Judge Catherine Haberkorn recently sentenced 27-year-old Jewvon Davis to 18 months probation after he pled guilty to possessing a handgun on the street in Old Town last November.

Police said in a report that Davis told them that he works in the area and he brought the gun with him from the South Side and he had been walking around looking for a guy who had threatened to shoot him.

Lazar Youkhana, a retail clerk who fired "two, maybe three" warning shots while pursuing two boys who stole bottles of Hennessy from his liquor store, receive one year of probation from Haberkorn. Youkhana cut a deal with prosecutors who agreed to drop two felony weapons charges and reduce a reckless discharge of a firearm count to reckless conduct.

A Riverdale man who was found with a gun in his car during a traffic stop in Lakeview last December and allegedly told cops he carries a weapon "because it's Chicago" was sentenced to one year of court supervision by Haberkorn recently. Valladay went free after his arrest by posting a $150 bond.

NOTICE OF SALE
PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on April 29, 2019, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on August 9, 2019, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at a public sale to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate:
Commonly known as 505 NORTH LAKE SHORE DRIVE, UNIT 4908, Chicago, IL 60611
Property Index No. 17-10-214-016-1215.
The real estate is improved with a condominium. The judgment amount was $479,961.87.
Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial Sale fee for the Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale.

The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information.

If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).
