

Despite claims by embattled developer to Chinese investors, modified version of failed tower not being considered by city

BY PETER VON BUOL

Embattled New York City-based real estate company Symmetry Development has been circulating curious artistic renderings of a modified tower project which would incorporate the facades of the 19th century row houses at 42 and 44-46 E. Superior St. The buildings are currently under consideration by the Commission on Chicago Landmarks to be included in the proposed Near North Side Multiple Property Landmark District.

In April 2017, Ald. Brendan Reilly [42nd], in whose ward the row houses are located, had rejected Symmetry's plans for the site. Reilly cited widespread community opposition due to the traffic issues that would be caused by the addition of a large-scale development and also the issue of architectural preservation.

Inside Publications recently contacted Ald. Reilly's office about the new renderings and a spokesperson for the alderman said he had not seen the images before. The spokesperson emphatically added the alderman does not support any proposal for the site, especially since it is under consideration for the proposed landmark district.

"He has not entertained any idea of a 60-story tower for the site," Ald. Reilly's spokesperson added.

In March, Symmetry's Jeffrey L. Laytin told a federal judge he has not been able to come up with the $562,500 he and his partners had promised to pay one of the clients of a Chicago-based attorney representing a group of Chinese investors who had bankrolled the now-failed Carillon Tower project.

The Carillon Tower would have replaced the three 19th century Superior St. row houses.

Symmetry Development is currently being sued in federal court by the 90 Chinese-based investors. Each investor provided a minimum of $550,000 to build the tower. While the tower project was rejected in 2017, Chinese investors have yet to have their money returned.

Convicted felon charged with illegally possessing loaded handgun in Old Town

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

A convicted felon has been charged with a federal firearm violation for allegedly illegally possessing a loaded semiautomatic handgun in the Old Town neighborhood.

On Feb. 17, a Chicago police officer approached a vehicle that was parked in front of a hydrant in the 1300 block of N. Sedgwick and asked the driver for his identification. From the back seat Gaston Tucker, 32, provided the officer with an Illinois Dept. of Corrections ID. But while the officer ran the identifications in her car, Tucker ran from the vehicle, prosecutors said.

Tucker has now been charged with one count of illegal possession of a firearm by a convicted felon. On July 9, Judge Maria Valdez ordered Tucker detained in federal custody without bond.

As officers began searching the area, security guards from a nearby housing complex reported seeing a man run through the complex and drop an object underneath a dumpster, the complaint states. Officers later searched underneath the dumpster and recovered the fully-loaded .40-caliber handgun, according to the complaint.

Tucker was previously convicted in state court of aggravated battery with a firearm, a felony for which he was on parole at the time of the alleged federal offense.

Tucker made a series of incriminating statements after his arrest during phone calls that were recorded at Cook County Jail, the FBI agent said.

"Boy, I quit... I ain't carry no [gun] no more. I'm through," Tucker reportedly said in a phone conversation on Feb. 20. "Only way I gotta do that is I gotta get out of Chicago... I can't be without it in Chicago, you know how that sh*t go."

Illegal possession of a firearm by a convicted felon is punishable by up to ten years in prison. If convicted, the Court must impose a reasonable sentence under federal statutes and the advisory U.S. Sentencing Guidelines.

Mother Nature wins

Piping Plovers, high lake levels force Mamby on The Beach cancellation

BY JIM VAIL

Mother Nature won, doesn't she usually?

Mamby on the Beach, a major for-profit music festival that promised close to 50,000 concertgoers over a two-day period on Montrose Beach next month, has been cancelled.

"We are saddened to announce that Mamby on the Beach has been cancelled for 2019 due to circumstances beyond our control," the organizer stated on its Facebook page. "These unforeseen issues include significantly higher than average waters of Lake Michigan eliminating the beach portion of our intended site. Additionally, our intended footprint was affected by the presence of Great Lakes Piping Plover shorebirds, a federally protected species."

Jam Productions said that it worked with the Chicago Park District and the US Fish and Wildlife Services to find a new beach location, but moving the festival at this late a date they claimed would be a disservice to fans and artists. They are now refunding the tickets.

While puzzled local activists are still not sure how this plan got approved and contracts got signed before any of the local neighbors were brought into the discussion, music fans and bird lovers alike applauded the organizers for being honest.

"Thank you for doing the right thing and protecting the birds," Alyson Wright commented on the events FB page. "Excited to see what you put together in the future."

That question has already been addressed by the Chicago Audubon Society who gathered over 6,100 signatures to ban large concerts from Montrose Beach. The petition stated that concerts have occurred near the Montrose bird sanctuary, but they were not of a size and duration that interfered with the public using the beach and affecting the natural habitat. They asked to convene a group of stakeholders to develop a policy about the appropriate use for Montrose Beach, natural areas, and nearby recreational area.

The cancellation comes after weeks of meetings between event organizers, the Chicago Park District, parks activists and environmental groups, who wanted the event moved.

Jam Productions owner Jerry Mickelson said he brought the Mamby concert to the Montrose Beach to promote Uptown. But he did so without consulting the community before closing a deal with the CPD. That community is proud of its natural habitat and protective of the beach area where

Two new high-rise proposals advance in City Hall

The Chicago Plan Commission voted to advance two new high-rise projects last week, the first is a 25-story, 241 unit multi-family rental and condo building with a retail base located at 50-60 E. Randolph St., replacing a three story valet parking garage.

The Plan Commission also approved a mixed-use project at 300 N. Michigan Ave. The project has been referred to the Committee on Zoning, Landmarks and Building Standards for consideration. The 47-story structure includes a 523' shared residential- and hotel-tower over a retail podium. Two basement levels below Upper Michigan Ave. would house the building utility and parking functions, including 26 parking stalls and 48 bike parking stalls.

The 50-60 E. Randolph proposal's Lakefront Protection Application was approved, after ensuring the building does not impede access to the Chicago Lakefront or inflict harm on the natural lakefront environment. This project does not require City Council approval. This proposal has secured the support of both the Chicago Loop Alliance and The Magnificent Mile Assoc.

End of Session Town Hall Aug. 1 at Ogden School

Want to know what happened in Springfield this session? Illinois State Sen. Mattie Hunter [3rd], Illinois state Reps Lamont Robinson [5th] and Sonya Harper [6th] will be hosting a town hall meeting at the Ogden School, 24 W. Walton, 6 p.m. Thursday, August 1. No reservations are required.

Art fair in Mariano Park July 27-28

Painters, photographers, and jewelry are among the exhibitors participating in the 2019 Mariano Park Art Series this Saturday and Sunday.

People who come to the fair in the little triangular park at 1031 N. State can sit on comfortable chairs under trees or at umbrella tables supplied by Whispers Café and enjoy gourmet coffee, fresh fruit juices, snacks, gelato, art, conversations and some of the best people-watching in the city.

The park is surrounded by restaurants for all budgets for those who want to make a day of it including Carmine's, Hugo's Frog Bar, Gibsons Steak House, Tavern on Rush, Maple & Ash, LuxBar, Nico's, Dublin's, the Velvet Taco and The Original Pancake House.

The 2018 series drew big crowds, and organizers hope for the same this year.

Born above a grocery, she died in an apartment at the Hotel Ritz

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

True confession: after all this time, I've finally viewed the Margaret Thatcher bio-film, "The Iron Lady."

Meryl Streep does her usual off-the-charts performance. But she was also one of the reasons I waited so long before viewing. She's just too good.

From Karen Blixen in "Out of Africa" to Miranda Priestly in "The Devil Wears Prada" and Julia Child in "Julie & Julia," Streep is just too good.

Though she always nails her character, I sit peeling back the make up and prosthetics to find the real Meryl. Vicious 'circus,' indeed.

Another reason for waiting was the Baroness Thatcher, herself. I just didn't want to see a flick about her.

In real life, "Lady T," historically, has haunted my life. She was PM for 11 years and 209 days from 1979 to 1990. A background character of profound affect that I was never too pleased to see.

It's not just the Irish thing, but that's a part of it.

I lived and went to school in England under the reign of terror of Mrs. Thatcher. I witnessed her abuse. The mobs early hatred. But even more than that, at each juncture of attempting to find a solution to the Irish Troubles of violence and death, Thatcher thrived, fanning the sectarian flames to enrage the IRA. She was a lifelong Methodist. She poured petrol on the flames and enjoyed the warmth. From the death of Lord Louis Mountbatten to the hotel bombing in Brighton, the IRA was actually waging war and gunning for the PM. And make no mistake, it was against Margaret Thatcher. Personally.

Thatcher had the ability to treat everyone the same. With the same belittling disgust and historical insignificance. Irish guerrilla fighters, Welsh coal miners, English sanitation workers, Scottish educators or Argentine politicians and military leaders. Any thought or action outside her shopkeeper daughter's playbook was strictly to be destroyed. Every progressive thought, humanitarian action and politically liberal ideal she found abhorrent. She was a "sweep the sidewalks" kind of British small business owner. No time for the truant, troubled welfare recipient or down-on-their-luck citizenry.

Her family were like a million other Brits. They owned a shop, an old-fashioned grocer. Tin cans of beans. Bottles of Bovril. Some washing-up soap. And fresh-baked bread each morning. Shops like these were the backbone of every English village. Her father, whom she idealized, always said this is why no one could conquer Britain. Not the Kaiser. Not Hitler. Britain was a nation of shopkeepers and proud of it. They were not a nation of equals. Everyone had their place and it made them unconquerable.

That to me is the heresy of "coziness," what I anticipated in the film. The thick-headed misunderstanding of achievement and success. It only works up until a point. If you are dissatisfied with your lot, then you've got some major problems. If you just want to keep the shelves stocked, you're fine.

I arrived in England ready for a glorious experience at Oxford. Thatcher's university. That was just after PBS had fed us so sumptuously on "Brideshead Revisited," Evelyn Waugh's long series of triumph and tragedy among the great aristocrats of the 1920s. "Downton Abbey" if you will, without the humor and whimsical characters.

Margaret Thatcher

Prime Minister Thatcher launched the British Navy against the Argentine nation at that time, their foes in the Falklands Islands. A barren strip of archipelago in the South Atlantic famous for sheep rearing. I remember the war that ensued. Morning. Noon. And night. The Falklands might as well have been Central London, or Charring Cross Road. And, of course, when she ordered the British Navy to "vaporize" the Belgrano, a war ship that was actually steering away from battle, Thatcher still ordered them to be fired upon. When the air cleared, the Belgrano and all its men had been atomized into thin air. They disappeared from the horizon along with any sense of common decency left among the British government.

Thatcher's tough act in the South Atlantic was both payback to the IRA and a warning to all the Irish that she would be tough on Northern Ireland. She luxuriated in her Reagan Era muscle and fury. It was enough to scare the Soviets into surrender. And the Berlin Wall to fall.

In many ways it set me up to hate this film about Thatcher. Strangely, in the end, I liked it. I enjoyed its quick, short-hand version of Margaret Thatcher's history and political career, from Oxford grad running for Parliament, to mad woman at the helm of the ship. I was more sympathetic, maybe because she was portrayed as weakened at times with touches of dementia towards the end. Not even seeing much of her family in her widowhood. But she stood strong. Remember she attended the Reagan funeral and spoke her pre-recorded eulogy. And went to California for the burial.

Thatcher's world, like Reagan's, dementia-filled, pre-John Major and Tony Blair, seems more distant than I thought. It wasn't even the world of cellphones or laptops yet. The Royals had not achieved their new fresh coat of public popularity. It was the era of the bickering Charles and Diana. And HM, the Queen, is thought to have loathed Mrs. Thatcher and her particular brand of British thuggery in their weekly talks. I think that's why Benny Hill was so popular. It was a sad time to be in Britain. People needed a laugh.

How strange it all seemed to be watching Thatcher in the age of Trump. Would Margaret Thatcher have understood "The Donald?" She certainly would not have gotten him and his reckless use of the English language. She would have abhorred his oily, handsy-grabby style of social interaction. She wouldn't much cotton to his loose political ideology. She being much more a Reagan girl of impeccable moral veracity.

But then, maybe I am missing the larger truth. Thatcher was despised by the British voter after her cruelty and her pull-yourself-up-by-your-boot-straps political philosophy. There was no free lunch in Thatcherdom. Many of Thatcher's initiatives were the build-a-border-wall solution to age old cultural dilemmas. When her cabinet once turned their backs on some of her European cautions in the heyday of the birth of the European Union, she told them to pack their bags for Calais and go off to live in France if it was so attractive.

Thatcher was in command for more than a decade. She went from being very unpopular to being deeply loved, up and down both the streets. In the end, she wasn't defeated by the people. She was defeated by her Conservative Party's betrayal. Something to think about when we are pumping oxygen into Joe Biden, refusing to believe that the American people could return the Trumps to the White House for four more years. There's always a Falkland's war in the wings. A battle ship to vaporize. Or a border wall to build. She may have been born upstairs of a grocery store in Grantham, but she died in her apartment in London at the Hotel Ritz.

GETTING OLD: What's really going on inside a Chicago business family of note whose very name is the definition of local business hutzpah? Are there really long unresolved grudges that still haunt the siblings who are presently yielding to the darker force causing unsurvivable catastrophe? It's the women, we are told, not the men. Hurts and grocery lists of missteps and missed moments for fuller lives and a deeper sense of humanity abound. It is said that the sisters are so blindly bent on blaming their bro that they are willing to go down in ruin,

Real estate property tax-escrow short falls plague North Side homeowners

(Second of two articles on the impact of rising real estate tax assessments.)

Most Chicago homeowners still haven't recovered much of the home-market value they lost after the

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

but that hasn't stopped property tax bills from climbing dramatically over the last decade.

Average home prices in Illinois are still 21% lower today than in 2007, reports the most recent data from the Federal Housing Finance Agency.

Even though many Illinois homes are worth less than they were more than a decade ago, property tax bills statewide have jumped by 9%, after adjusting for inflation, and after the city's 2018 reassessment, the numbers are much worse in Chicago.

Out-going Cook County Assessor Joseph Berrios raised the estimated fair market value of some properties from 30% to more than 140% in North Side and North-west Side neighborhoods.

The sharply higher assessed valuations sparked mind-bending real estate tax hikes in most North Side neighborhoods when bills arrived this month. In Chicago, the 2018 property tax bill increases are due Aug. 1, when the second installment of the bill must be paid.

The recovery of home prices in Illinois is more painful compared with the national recovery. Since 2007, the decline in home values remains 300% worse in Illinois than the national average—with homeowners nationwide seeing property values just 5% lower today on average than they were in 2007.

While city-wide real estate tax hikes average only 11% because bills declined in many South Side and West Side neighborhoods, hefty increases hit the North Side, and even after successful appeals tax bill increases of 50% or higher were commonplace.

"What this means to me is, between the shortfall new tax and the shortfall in real-estate tax escrow, my mortgage payment could increase $500-plus a month," complained Humboldt Park homeowner Chris Montgomery, in a letter to the editor of Crain's Chicago Business. "This is just not something I can plan for, and it's going to be a burden trying to cover it."

After three years of property tax increases, "culminating with what feels like a coup-de-gras of a 2018 tax bill, this might be just too much to bear," Montgomery said.

The overlooked real-estate tax escrow issue is like the tip of the ice berg that sank the Titanic.

For example, former Assessor Berrios hiked the estimated fair market value of a vintage Old Town 3-flat 93% to an astronomical $1,973,610 from $1,021,100. After a mildly successful appeal at the Board of Review, the assessed value was lowered 28% to $141,919 from $197,361. However, based on the final 65% assessment increase, the 2018 tax bill jumped a hefty 27.5% to $28,033 from $21,991 in 2017.

In June, after learning of the Berrios' 93% boost in assessment level on an Old Town 3-flat, the mortgage lender, a major Chicago bank, reviewed the real estate tax escrow and on property and erroneously concluded the estimated tax bill would rise to $33,373 based on an adjusted assessed value.

In March of 2019, the 3-flat owner paid the $12,095 first installment of taxes. Based on the astronomically higher assessment, the bank erroneously estimated that the second installment, due Aug. 1, would be $21,277. As a result, the bank immediately increased the monthly escrow payment from about $1,500 to nearly $6,400. However, the second installment bill came in at only $15,944 because both the city tax rate and state equalization rate declined.

Before the taxes jumped to $28,033 from $21,991, the monthly tax escrow was $1,465. Suddenly the bank demanded an escrow of $6,386 a month for four months to replenish the depleted escrow account. After that, the bank said it plans to escrow $2,356 a month for 2019 taxes due in 2020.

Predicting a property tax increase really centers on two wild cards—the tax rate and the state equalization factor, which can't be challenged by taxpayers.

The lender wrote in a terse email: "It is the bank's intention to continue collecting the current escrow payment of $6,386 over the next four months (July, August, September and October) amounting to $25,546, prior going through the next escrow analysis at the end of October, so the starting escrow balance in the black, plus or minus $500."

How tax bills are computed

"The property tax bill is determined by four factors: the assessment, the equalization factor, or 'multiplier,' the tax rate and the exemptions," said Michael Griffin, a Chicago real estate tax appeal attorney. "In 2019, homeowners should appeal their assessment because they are likely to see a new higher assessment next year."

Homeowners also should review their exemptions because they can reduce their tax bill if they have the proper exemptions, Griffin noted. The three main exemptions are the Homeowner's, Senior Citizen, and

After three years of property tax increases, "culminating with what feels like a coup-de-gras of a 2018 tax bill, this might be just too much to bear," said Chris Montgomery.

Senior Freeze.

The Homeowner's exemption recently was increased to $10,000 from $7,000, and the Senior Exemption was hiked to $8,000 from $5,000. Those amounts are deducted from equalized assessed value of a home to which tax rates are applied to determine individual tax bills.

Also, more seniors are qualified for the Senior Freeze because the Illinois Legislature increased the maximum annual income to receive the freeze to less than $65,000 from less than $55,000.

"Every homeowner should review their last tax bill to see if they received the proper exemptions and contact the assessor if the exemptions are wrong," Griffin advised.

Predicting a property tax increase really centers on two wild cards—the tax rate and the state equalization factor, which can't be challenged by taxpayers.

The equalization factor, or "multiplier," is established each year for Cook County to bring property tax assessments in line with other parts of Illinois. The value is determined by the Illinois Dept. of Revenue. The multiplier was pegged at 2.9109 in 2018, down from 2.9627 in 2017. In 2016, the multiplier was 2.8032.

The main engine that drives up property tax bills is the amount of money spent by local government, such as increased spending for schools, parks, libraries and police,

Meeting Aug. 15 on making affordable infill housing work

High taxes, teardowns, condo de-conversions, the rising costs of land and construction, government corruption, crime, zoning restrictions—the challenges to building housing in Chicago seem, at times, endless.

Two different design competitions were launched in 2018 to directly address some of these challenges by engaging local architects to create innovative, sustainable, and dynamic prototypes for new infill homes.

The Metropolitan Planning Council [MPC] will be hosting a meeting 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 15, at 140 S. Dearborn St. to review this work.

The Chicago Housing Taskforce—a collaborative group of organizations invested in housing equity—launched Disruptive Design: New Solutions for Homeownership to create affordable, replicable, and wealth-building single-family or owner-occupied two-flat homes in Chicago; the Congress for New Urbanism launched their Missing Middle competition to create high-quality and cost-effective housing for the middle market between the scale of single-family homes and mid-rise apartments for urban sites.

A panel conversation with representatives from and winners of both housing design competitions will allow attendees to have a chance to peruse winning submissions and hear from the architects how they tackled the monumental challenge.

Featured Panelists include Judy Frydland, Commissioner of the Dept. of Buildings, City of Chicago (moderator); Nancy Firfer, MPC; Jeremy R. Lake, Union Studio - Fill the (Housing) Gap winner; Amy Mayer, Related Midwest, and Greg Tamborino, AIA - Disruptive Design winner.

The cost is $15, and includes snacks, soft drinks, wine and beer. For more information contact events@metroplanning.org.

Upcoming Brickhouse book a lovable read

I first met Pat Brickhouse, wife of the legendary sportscaster Jack, around 1999 or so, when she was raising funds for a statue of her late husband. Someone popped their head into my office and asked if I wanted to interview Pat for a story about her efforts. I jumped at the chance. Who wouldn't?

Heart of the 'Hood By Felicia Dechter

I had been one of those kids who would come home from school and hear the instantly recognizable voice of Jack Brickhouse and his exuberant, "Back, back, back...hey, hey!" whenever someone hit a homer during Cubs' games. I had three older brothers so the games were always on at our house, and therefore Jack Brickhouse -- who died in 1998 -- was part of my childhood. I was happy to do whatever I could to help get a well-deserved statue of him erected on Michigan Ave.

I learned the sweet love story of Pat and Jack and thankfully, an extra bonus occurred: Pat became a dear friend and she has been ever since.

Pat's longtime friend, Michael Yergin, is in the midst of writing an upcoming book, titled, "The Pat and Jack Brickhouse Story." I got a sneak peek of what he has written and so far, it's very endearing.

Bergen is a nationally-known happiness guru, as well as a relationship and positive psychology expert, an author and more. He met Pat while out with his dad one night many moons ago, at the old Rush St. nightclub, Jilly's.

"She was wearing dark sunglasses," recalled Yergin. "I asked her to take off her sunglasses. She did and I told her what beautiful eyes she had/has."

Yergin also had a brush with Jack when he was a teen, as the famed broadcaster was friends with Yergin's swimming coach.

"When I was in high school, Jack visited and was watching me play basketball," said Yergin. "He came over to me and said 'Kid, I would stick to swimming and give up basketball.'"

"I would, of course, listen to him broadcast baseball when I was a kid," added Yergin. "In adult life I would run into him occasionally and remarkably, we would always laugh because he still remembered giving me that advice at New Trier about giving up basketball."

He decided to pen a book about the couple, "because so many young people never heard of Jack or Pat and it saddened me they didn't."

"He was so beloved in Chicago because he was not only a tremendous sportscaster but he was so humble and unpretentious and real," said Yergin. "People would talk about Harry Caray but had no idea who Jack was. I would see how hurt Pat was by this."

Michael Yergin decided to pen a book about the couple, "because so many young people never heard of Jack or Pat and it saddened me they didn't."

"I also wrote the book because nobody in Arizona knew who Jack and she were," said Yergin. "She was in very bad health, and missing all her friends in Chicago so I wanted her to have a sense of purpose and be excited again." (FYI, Pat is feeling much better now).

Yergin says he is getting ready to film the story he wrote, which was "a labor of love." The book includes interviews, testimonials from people who know Pat and plenty of pix, including one of Pat and I on page 122 (I also got a shout out on page 6!).

"I did it to make Pat happy and give her a way to let people know about Jack," said Yergin. "I also felt it was important for people to know how sweet and important Pat is in her own right."

"I think anyone who needs little positive/feel good affirmations about themselves will enjoy this book," he added. "And, of course, anyone who is into sports."

Pat said she feels "blessed and so grateful," that she can help keep Jack's legacy alive.

"I love it when people tell me how much they loved Jack and how important he was in their life."

Come May, Pat and Yergin will be hitting the road for a book signing tour. Pat, who has always said that her age is unpublished or that she is 39 - is finally going to go public and tell people how old she is.

I know, but I'll never tell. You'll just have to come to a book signing and meet Pat and find out for yourself. I'll keep you posted.

Great job Sam!... hearty congrats to Sam Gianfrancisco, a seventh grader at Saint Luke School, 1500 W. Belmont Ave., in Lakeview. Sam was a recent Chicago area Science Fair winner who was honored during "A Celebration of STEM," which was designed by the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District (MWRD) to encourage environmental sciences education and provide students with access to greater understanding of the important work achieved at MWRD.

The students were congratulated by (MWRD) President Kari K. Steele and the Board of Commissioners and presented with a Superior Science Project Certificate. They were also provided lunch, a goody bag and a guided tour of the Stickney Water Reclamation Plant.

Every few years the Grand Duke and Duchess of Luxembourg find time for an informal visit to the Edgewater/Rogers Park area.

That's because there are at least as many local residents of Luxembourg descent in the Chicago area as there are back home in the Old Country, Kevin Wester, retired executive director of the Luxembourg American Cultural Society told the Edgewater Historical Society recently.

An estimated one fifth of Luxembourg's population – between 60,000 and 70,000 – moved to the United States, mostly the Chicago area, during the middle of the 19th century through the early part of the 20th, Wester told a packed audience at the Edgewater Public Library.

Luxembourgers were some of the first settlers on North Side

Overcrowding, an agricultural crisis, and political unrest sent the mostly farmers to places like Edgewater, Andersonville, West Ridge and Rogers Park, as well as parts of Wisconsin, Wester said. By the 1880s, he added, the emigres had created an estimated 100 greenhouse clusters from Ridge Ave. to Rogers Park and eventually Des Plaines where the Pesche family still runs a floral business.

One early settler, Nicholas Kranz, owned a farm on the future site of Senn High School. According to some local historians, Abraham Lincoln stayed there at least once during his 1860 presidential campaign. Today a statue on the point of Ridge Ave. and Clark St. commemorates the legend.

Later generations included Peter Reinberg, the "Rose and Carnation King," then possibly the world's biggest producer of roses, who had branched out into politics, was elected an alderman in 1893 and eventually became Cook County board president, "Father of the Forest Preserves," and creator of a summer camp for inner-city kids.

According to some stories, Reinberg, who had a house on the 5600 block of N. Sheridan, reportedly did so well he had a gold bathtub, but nobody ever found it, Wester said.

Of course, it helped anyone in the flower business to be near the several cemeteries like All Saints in Des Plaines or Rosehill, Calvary or Graceland, Wester noted. Business was always brisk.

A controversial Luxembourg, Chicago Police Capt. Michael Schake, one of the city's investigators following the 1886 Haymarket Riot, was blamed by some for tampering with evidence in order to help convict the alleged rings, "but the Luxembourg community stood up for him," Wester said.

Other noted Luxembourg descendants include tennis star Chris Evert, whose father learned to play tennis at the St. Henry Church parking lot near Devonian Ridge avenues, Wester noted.

St. Henry's, in fact, was the first Catholic parish in the area, serving mostly Luxembourgers at first, but later Germans and some Irish. Adjoining the church, Angel Guardian Orphanage, was created to care for mostly German and Luxembourg children orphaned by the Civil War and later the Chicago Fire.

Also adjoining St. Henry's is the church cemetery with its own tales to tell. Like the woman who tried at least twice to poison her family with some soup she'd made, then moved to California after serving a year in jail for the murder attempt.

When she eventually died years later, she was returned to Chicago and buried with her family at St. Henry's, Wester said.

blades to see which one was the most efficient.

"Only eight-percent of energy comes from wind power," Sam said. "My motivation for this project was the fact that we are running out of fossil fuels to use. By finding a blade that would improve productivity, we can get more energy from wind sources versus fossil fuels."

"We need to find renewable energy sources, because once we run out of fossil fuels, we can't get any more, and that is a scary thought!" he said.

Anniversary "Heroes of the Night" gala. The annual event - and the organization's biggest fundraiser of the year - took place at the historic Theater on the Lake at Fullerton and Lake Michigan.

This year's bash was not only a successful fundraiser, but a celebration of the impactful work Holiday Heroes has accomplished in the Chicago area throughout the past decade. Hundreds of supporters were heroes to hospitalized children with critical, chronic and terminal illnesses by raising funds that enable the organization to plan parties at hospitals throughout our area and beyond year-round.

The parties give the young patients, their families and their caregivers the chance to forget about sickness and medical procedures for a while and simply focus on being a kid and having fun.

Heartfelt congratulations to Heart of a Hero award recipient Kristina McGrath of McGrath Auto Group, which has a Lexus lot at 1250 W. Division St. She is a supporter of many charitable causes and community organizations, including Holiday Heroes.

Proceeds from the evening go towards Holiday Heroes hospital parties, which feature music, catered meals, gifts, and favorite costumed characters. Visit www.holiday-heroes.org for information on coming events, volunteer opportunities and more.

Dr. Sohn dead at 92 after admirable life as a North Sider

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Dr. Herb Sohn, one of Chicago's best-known urologists who practiced for nearly 60 years at Weiss Hospital, 4646 N. Marine Dr., before his recent death at age 92, could easily have ended up a lawyer if it weren't for the bad cold he got working on a top-secret project at Navy Pier during World War II.

Back in 1945, the pre-law student at Virginia State Univ. joined the Navy as soon as he turned 17 because "everybody was leaving for the service and I got kind of lonely. I'd have a roommate and he'd be out of there. I figured if they're going to go, I might as well go," Sohn told DNA Info reporter John McGhee in a 2017 interview.

He soon ended up at the Great Lakes Training Center and a short time later was sent to Navy Pier where he had to take an oath of secrecy allowing him to work on a then-secret weapon – radar – where he worked under the watchful eye of armed guards in a far more secure environment than Great Lakes.

Unknown to most of the public, Lake Michigan was also a training location for more than 15,000 Navy pilots – including future president George Bush I – who learned to fly on one of two makeshift aircraft carriers, Sohn recalled in a WTTW documentary, "Heroes on Deck: World War II on Lake Michigan."

"They took two cruise ships that were going up and down the lake, took away the tops, and put a flat top on the top deck. (The ships) were shorter than a regular aircraft carrier. So a lot of the planes went into the water," Sohn said, estimating that more than 100 fighters and dive bombers ended up in the drink.

"It was also very dangerous for people on the carriers because the propellers were so close they chopped heads off," he added.

And because Navy Pier had no heat or air conditioning, Sohn and a number of other sailors got bad colds aggravated by the Sulphur the doctors were prescribing while Sohn and numerous other sailors were being treated at Passavant Hospital (now part of Northwestern Hospital) where the Navy had taken over at least four floors.

While there, Sohn talked a lot with the doctors and by the time he was ready to be released, "I figured they needed more doctors than lawyers."

So at war's end, he switched from law to medicine, graduating from Chicago Medical School in 1955.

Over the years, Dr. Sohn ended up becoming head of the Chicago Urological, Illinois State Urological, and American Assoc. of Clinical Urology.

He also became a board mem-

ber of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and joined the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves and involved himself in a number of veterans' programs.

And as if that weren't enough, he graduated at John Marshall Law School. "I was getting bored and looking for something to do," he told this reporter last year.

But even that apparently wasn't enough to keep Herb Sohn busy.

So he ran for the 9th District congressional seat five times between 1984 and 1992 and tried to unseat Richard M. Daley in the 1989 mayoral race.

He is survived by Kathleen (Kitty) Martin, his partner of 12 years; his brother Bernard, two children, Andrew and Douglas (founder and proprietor of the storied Hot Doug's restaurant once located at 3324 N. California), two grandchildren, Charles and James, and step grandchildren Lauren, Shannon and Abby.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, July 28, at Temple Beth-El, 3610 Dundee Rd., Northbrook. In lieu of flowers memorials can be made in Dr. Sohn's name at the Shriver Center on Poverty Law, 67 E. Madison St., Suite 2000, Chicago, IL 60603.

Illinois "deep pockets" law leaves taxpayers on hook for big settlements, despite minimal fault

BY JOHN PASTUOVIC

When Chicago Finance Committee members hesitated to make taxpayers the "deep pockets" for yet another lawsuit settlement, this one for $3.7 million, they peeled just another layer back on the expensive exploitation of taxpayers occurring under the old way that the city of Chicago does business. But, this time, the Illinois General Assembly deserves as much discredit as former Chicago Finance Chair, indicted Alderman Ed Burke.

The exposed scheme currently costing Chicago taxpayers millions: Publicly funded settlements to lawsuits filed against the city of Chicago, where the taxpayers foot a majority of the bill. In this particular case, in which 13 city aldermen bravely paused (possibly choked) their approval, was a paralyzed plaintiff from a 2014 drunk-driving accident where the driver was reported to have paid only $30,000 and the bar owner paid $1 million, a combined third of what taxpayers were being charged.

"How is that fair," taxpayers must be asking. But it is the norm in Illinois, where obscure terms like "joint and several liability" and standards that are more than half that of other surrounding states leave the taxpayers holding the bill.

Joint and several liability basically refers to how much a second- or third-party in a lawsuit needs to be at fault to still be liable for 100% of the lawsuit verdict or settlement. In Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee, defendants only pay their "fair share" – or the amount that they are at fault. In Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio and Minnesota, defendants must be more than 50% at fault to be left paying 100%.

But, as we already know, "fair share" is defined much differently in Illinois. Our state legislature has intentionally kept the Illinois standard at 25% of the fault to require paying 100% of the verdict or settlement. This allows trial lawyers in Illinois to find "deep pockets" defendants like the city of Chicago only slightly at fault in a lawsuit, but force the city to pay millions – in this case, to avoid a trial that might end in a bill worth tens of millions.

In 2017, a civil justice study titled, "Chicago: The City That Settles" detailed that the city spent as much as $85 million in a single year settling lawsuits and was sued on average 300 times per year. A similar 2009 study found that Cook County has spent as much as $69 million in a single year.

Reducing this lawsuit tax on Chicago taxpayers could pay for more than 2,000 more police officers, or equal more than 3,000 new teachers, or fund the Chicago Alternative Policing Strategy program for more than 30 years, or resurface more than 100 miles of Chicago roads, or hire more than 2,000 new public health nurses. Instead, the result is a boon for the lawyers, just like every other initiative born out of the stinking rot of the old Chicago Finance Committee.

Mayor Lightfoot and Governor Pritzker should take this opportunity to support reasonable reforms to the "deep pockets" liability laws in Illinois to save taxpayers real money. Moving the 25% standard to 50% – the lowest level in the rest of the Midwest – is both reasonable and a game changer for Illinois taxpayers.

Recreational pot coming to Wrigleyville?

Can anyone imagine noted Cubs broadcaster and Bud Man Harry Caray saying on the air, "It's a beautiful day to get high and go to a baseball game?"

Well that may soon be an option for Cubs fans as it looks like a location has been found mere steps from home plate that will be providing marijuana to fans and partiers alike in Wrigleyville.

According to a story reported by Ally Marotti of the Chicago Tribune, Cresco Labs, one of the largest cannabis companies in the state, has found a home for its MedMar Lakeview medical dispensary at 3524 N. Clark St.

A public notice appeared recently in the window of John Barleycorn tavern noting that a Cresco-owned venture intended to "establish a medical cannabis dispensary" there. The move would require zoning approval. They currently have a retail location north of this site at 3812 N. Clark St.

Chicago-based Cresco says they had been looking to move the dispensary to a larger spot to accommodate growing patient count and demand for medical marijuana, Jason Erkes told Marotti.

Some 79,000 patients are enrolled in Illinois' medical marijuana program, an increase of more than 24,000 since February. The growth has been spurred in part by the state's elimination of background and fingerprint check requirements for patients, and reduction in wait times for medical cards.

But every operator seems to be ramping up for Jan. 1, 2020, when the state is set to make recreational marijuana sales legal. Those pot sales will remain a federal felony.

Under the law signed by Gov. J.B. Pritzker legalizing recreational use, existing medical dispensaries may apply to sell recreational marijuana as well. They may also apply to open a second location. Putting a large facility within steps of Wrigley Field and in the center of a well-known bar strip is a clear indication of what the future use of this facility may hold.

In all, Cresco now co-owns or owns five dispensaries and operates three cultivation facilities in Illinois.

The company has applied with the state to sell recreational cannabis at its five existing dispensaries, Erkes told Marotti. If the company relocates its Lakeview facility across from Wrigley Field, it is unclear whether Cresco would have to reapply for a license to sell recreational marijuana there.

The state has not started accepting applications for second dispensary locations. Chicago has not yet established any zoning rules for the recreational industry.

Sam Sanchez, the owner of John Barleycorn and the building where it is located, did not respond to a request for comment.

First Great Pink Run coming to Diversey Harbor

Registration now open

Early-bird registration is now open at www.GreatPinkRun.com for the inaugural Great Pink Run with Glanbia 5K and 10K, to take place 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, at Diversey Harbor.

Funds raised at this family-friendly event will support international breast cancer research collaboration between leading experts at the Univ. of Chicago Ludwig Center for Metastasis Research and global researchers at the College of Royal Surgeons in Ireland.

Early bird entry fees, valid through Aug. 2, are $30 for adults. Breast cancer patients and survivors are $25. Children ages 10 – 17 are also $25.

All include Great Pink Run t-shirts. Children under 10 years old are $5, no t-shirt included.

Those who cannot make the Great Pink Run in person, but would like to support breast cancer research efforts, can join as a virtual participant for $45, including a Great Pink Run t-shirt. Adult entry fees increase to $40 from Aug. 3 – Sept. 13, and to $50 from Sept. 14 – Oct. 5.

For more information on registering at team, please contact Mariah Cater at mcater@researchacure.com.

Led by Irish Olympian and 5000-meter World Champion Sonia O'Sullivan, the Great Pink Run with Glanbia encourages men, women and children to take part in running, jogging or walking a 5K family fun-run or a Chicago Area Runners Association-certified 10K to raise funds in support of research to find a cure for breast cancer.

Great Pink Run participants are encouraged to dress in their most outrageous pink outfits and will enjoy a "pinktastic" festival.

Girls sports camp offering improv, performance classes with Comedy Sportz Chicago

Throughout July, Comedy Sportz Chicago has partnered with Game On! Sports Camp 4 Girls to teach students in grades 3 through 7 about improv and performance.

The goal of the sessions, held on three Mondays during July at the Walt Disney Magnet School, 4140 N. Marine Drive, is to improve communication and leadership skills while also developing a voice in comedy and an appreciation of the art form.

"ComedySportz Chicago is known for its family-friendly approach to comedy, and these classes allow us to introduce improv and its basics to an eager audience," ComedySportz artistic director Jason Geis said. "The girls, who will also be performing comedy, can use these 'lessons' to help in their everyday lives, too."

ComedySportz is a game-based short form improv comedy show that uses an interactive format emceed by a referee. Game On! founder Barb Lazarus said her organization's partnership with Comedy Sportz allows both groups to integrate improv – which emphasizes communication and expression – with sports.

Multi-sport programming including camps, classes, events, clinics and special projects customized for girls. For more information call 847-229-9959.

Couple charged in Uptown attack that sent 4 to hospital

Kira Beckley Corey Douglas

A man and a woman face felony charges in connection with a violent incident that sent four people, including themselves, to hospitals July 14. The Chicago Fire Dept. declared a Plan I EMS response to handle the injuries.

Prosecutors have now charged Corey Douglas, 20, of Norridge with attempted first-degree murder and felony criminal damage to property.

Kira Beckley, 19, of the 1700 block of W. Thome in Edgewater is charged with felony aggravated battery with a deadly weapon.

A police spokesperson said officers who responded to the 4500 block of N. Sheridan around 6:30 p.m. found Douglas being detained by two men. Witnesses told police that he had repeatedly struck a 24-year-old man in the head and body with a rubber mallet. A residential building vestibule was damaged during the attack, police said.

The victim was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Evanston in critical condition with multiple head injuries, police said Sunday. Douglas was taken to Swedish Covenant Hospital with minor scrapes.

Officers said they also saw Beckley having a physical fight with a 22-year-old woman. Police intervened when they saw Beckley lunge at the victim's back with "a weapon," according to police. The women were separated and Beckley was taken into custody. Police did not specify what kind of weapon Beckley allegedly wielded, but a small knife was recovered from the scene.

Beckley was transported to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center with lacerations to her chest and right hand. The other woman was transported in serious condition to St. Francis Hospital in Evanston with multiple injuries to her head and face.

The incident was reportedly domestic in nature. Douglas and Beckley are due in bond court on Tuesday afternoon.

Man swipes phone from 3-year-old, tries to sell it back to his mom

An Armour Square man who stole an iPhone from his boss' 3-year-old, then offered to sell the device back for $500 was arrested by a police tactical team when he showed up to carry out the deal at a Lincoln Park restaurant, police said.

Javonte Taylor, 25, allegedly stole the phone from the pre-school boy at his mother's restaurant in the 2400 block of N. Clark on June 30 and left the scene. Taylor was an employee of the restaurant, police said.

Prosecutors said Taylor later text-

ed the restaurant's owner and offered to sell the phone back to her for $500. The woman agreed to the deal and arranged for Taylor to meet her at the restaurant on July 8.

The woman also contacted police, and a 19th District (Town Hall) tactical team set up surveillance on the restaurant and arrested Taylor as he arrived for the meeting at 2:45 p.m. An iPhone in his possession was held for investigation.

Taylor is charged with felony theft. Judge Sandra Ortiz set bail at $1,000, which allows him to go free by posting a 10% deposit bond of $100. He is due back in court on Aug. 12. Court records show that Taylor was sentenced to two years in prison for robbery in 2011.

Robbers targeting Sedgwick Brown Line station

A series of afternoon and evening robberies near the Sedgwick Brown Line CTA station has prompted Chicago police to issue a community alert for the Old Town neighborhood.

Investigators issue an alert when they believe a person or group is responsible for a crime pattern.

Three robberies were reported near the Sedgwick station on two recent Sundays: one on the afternoon of July 14 and two on July 21 during evening hours, police said.

Each case involved two men who forcibly took phones from victims' hands in the 1500 block of N. Sedgwick. A gun was displayed by the robbers during one of the July 21 muggings.

The offenders are two black men between 18- and 25-years-old who stand 5'-8" to 6' tall and weigh about 175 lbs, according to the alert.

Anyone with information about these crimes may contact Area Central detectives at 312-747-8380.

Uptown man shot while sitting on porch

A 43-year-old man was shot in the arm as he sat on a back porch in Uptown July 15, police said. No one is in custody.

The victim and another person were on the porch of a residence in the 4600 block of N. Ashland just after 11 p.m. when they heard a couple of gunshots nearby, they said. The victim immediately felt pain in his left bicep and realized that he had been shot, according to police.

Officers did not find any shell casings in the area.

An ambulance transported the man in good condition to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center.

Armed man robs, carjacks woman in Lincoln Park garage

A Lincoln Park woman was confronted in her garage by an armed man who battered her, robbed her, and stole her car July 14, according to police. The offender remains at large.

Police said the victim, 56, was parking her car in her garage on the 1800 block of N. Fremont when the man approached her with a knife at 8:38 a.m. He demanded her valuables and forced her from the car. A struggle ensued and the woman was thrown to the ground and choked by the offender who then entered the vehicle and drove away northbound.

The offender initially ordered the victim to close the garage door behind them before initiating the robbery, according to an email shared with neighbors by a person familiar with the incident.

The victim suffered minor injuries to her legs and arms, but declined transportation to a hospital, police said.

Taken was a silver 2019 Honda Fit bearing a license plate that begins with "AZ77." The car will have damage on its roof because the garage door was going down as the robber backed out. He also struck the garage, so the car may have additional damage on its back end.

The offender is described as a black man between 20- and 35-years-old who stands about 5'-10" tall and weighs 175 to 215 lbs, police said. He had bushy hair, carried a backpack, and was wearing dark jeans, a dark t-shirt.

Catalytic converter thieves sweep through North Side

A band of catalytic converter thieves has struck at least eight times in the past week on side streets near Ashland Ave. in the Uptown, Edgewater, and Andersonville neighborhoods, police say.

Thieves love stealing catalytic converters from the undersides of cars because the parts contain expensive metals, including platinum and palladium that can demand payments of $100 to $200 at scrap yards.

Police listed eight specific incidents since July 11 on the North Side in a community alert. All of the thefts took place within a quarter-mile of Ashland Ave.

Victims said thefts took place between July 12 and July 13 on the 1600 block of W. Carmen; the 1400 block of W. Hollywood, and the 5000 block of N. Paulina. Another was reported on the 4800 block of N. Ashland on July 13.

Three catalytic converters were taken between July 15 and 16: on the 1500 block of W. Ardmore, the 1600 block of W. Olive, and the 5600 block of N. Hermitage.

The eighth incident took place sometime between July 11 and July 17 on the 1400 block of W. Catalpa, police said.

SUVs are often targeted because their high ground clearance makes it easier to access the undercarriage with a saw. Victims rarely know that their catalytic converter has been stolen until they start their car. That's when they'll be startled by a loud, roaring sound of their freshly-unmuffled engine. Anyone with information about the latest rash of thefts may contact Area North detectives at 312-744-8263 about pattern number P19-N-188.

Bike-riding, gun-toting felon threatens to shoot man

A convicted felon displayed a handgun and threatened to shoot another man for being in his way near Boystown July 17, police said. Charges have been filed.

Uptown resident Anthony McKenna was riding a bike in the 3800 block of N. Broadway around 7:55 p.m. when he threatened to batter the victim if the man failed to move, police said.

McKenna then got off of his bike, displayed a handgun in his waistband, and threatened to shoot the victim.

The victim flagged down a passing police officer to report the incident and then rode around in a squad car looking for the man who threatened him.

McKenna, 37, was arrested a short time later in the parking lot of Jewel-Osco, 3531 N. Broadway. A handgun was recovered, police said.

Prosecutors charged McKenna with being a felon in possession of a weapon, aggravated unlawful use of a weapon, and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. He is due in bond court on Friday.

In 2016, McKenna posted a graphic photo to Facebook showing injuries to his left leg moments after he was shot. Friends and family members

Convicted felon sentenced to prison for having loaded AK-47 on Belmont CTA platform

A convicted felon has been sentenced to more than six years in federal prison for illegally possessing a loaded AK-47 on an elevated train platform in Lakeview.

Jordan Watkins, 31, illegally possessed the gun on the morning of July 29, 2017, at the CTA's Belmont Station, which serves multiple elevated train lines. The rifle was strapped across Watkins's chest underneath his grey sweatshirt, was loaded and had one live round in the chamber. Watkins was also carrying a messenger bag that contained two 30-round magazines, one of which was loaded with four rounds.

After a 911 call reported a man who "has a gun on him and like a really big clip," multiple Chicago Police officers responded to the station and arrested posted responses that urged McKenna to change his ways.

Rash of robberies in Lincoln Bend

Police are waring about recent thefts from buildings that occurred in June. In these thefts, the offender(s) gained entry into the parking garage of the condo building. Once inside, the offender(s) removed property from the parking garage.

Incidents include one on the 2400 block of W. Catalpa Ave. 10:49 a.m. June 1; in the 5500 block of N. Lincoln Ave. 1:15 p.m. June 3; 5900 block of N. Lincoln Ave. June 12-13, between 6:30 p.m.-7 a.m., and one on the 5500 block of N. Lincoln Ave. 9 p.m. June 15.

Two male white offenders were involved in one of the incidents. No additional description available.

Two charged with mugging woman at Belmont CTA Station

Two men are charged with mugging a woman near the Belmont Red Line CTA station July 17, police said. And this is the third time one of the men has been arrested for robbery since 2015.

A 28-year-old woman told police that Jason Walker and Deshawn Harrison tried to grab her phone in the 3100 block of N. Sheffield at 10:58 a.m. An argument broke out and the men threatened the woman, prompting her to push them. The two then grabbed her phone and began punching her in the face and body, police said.

When the victim fell onto the ground, one of the men held her down and kicked her before the offenders fled eastbound on Belmont Ave., according to police. Officers searched the area and found both men in the 3400 block of N. Halsted. Police arrested the men after they were identified by the victim.

The victim suffered minor injuries to her elbow and foot, police said.

Watkins on the southbound platform.

Watkins was on parole for armed robbery at the time of the incident. State prosecutors initially charged him with being a felon in possession of a weapon and being an armed habitual criminal.

Watkins, who was on parole at the time he possessed the rifle, had previously been convicted of multiple felonies and was not legally allowed to possess a firearm. He pleaded guilty last year in the federal case to one count of illegal possession of a firearm by a felon. U.S. District Judge Andrea R. Wood on Wednesday sentenced Watkins to six years and four months in federal prison.

Walker, 22, was ordered held without bail. Bail for 19-year-old Harrison was set at $10,000.

This is the third time Walker, who is currently on parole, has been charged with robbery since 2015.

Residential burglaries in North Center

Police are investigating three residential burglaries in North Center. In those burglaries, the offender forcibly entered into the residences through rear or front doors during the daytime hours. Once inside, the offender removed property from the home before fleeing.

Incidents include one on the 4300 block of N. Paulina St., June 6, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.; another on the 4400 block of N. Rockwell St. 10:30 a.m. July 11, and one on the 4400 block of N. Rockwell St. 11 a.m. July 11.

The suspect is described as one African American male; 5'-10"-6' tall; 230-270 lbs; black hair; short hairstyle and a dark complexion.

Man on probation for gun charges found with weapon

A man who is on probation for having a gun in a car in the Old Town neighborhood is back in jail, accused of having a gun in a car in the Old Town neighborhood last week.

Police working a concentrated mission on the 1200 block of N. Sedgwick following a recent shooting pulled Coby Underwood over around 9:30 p.m. July 6 because his van had only one working headlight, according to a CPD report. Officers reportedly smelled pot coming from the van, and they asked the occupants to step out.

Two handguns were found behind a loose panel next to the rear passenger seat and cops located heroin and crack cocaine in the car, too.

Popular drag performer injured in crash dies after surgery; Other driver's alcohol level was 3x legal limit

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Jherion Bates, a popular drag performer who was hospitalized after an allegedly drunk driver, Gerrick Birt, struck his car head-on in Boystown last week, died on Sunday, July 21, according to the Cook County Medical Examiner. He was 25. The cause of death has not yet been determined.

Bates, who performed in clubs as Gigi Mayonaé, underwent surgery at Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center on Saturday morning to repair a broken pelvis.

He returned to Facebook from his hospital bed at 9:45 Sunday morning. Bates said he was not experiencing as much pain as before and joked, "I'm mad I'm missing Sunday Funday." But something happened, and Bates was pronounced dead at 1:50 p.m. An autopsy is planned.

Friends are taking to social media to remember Bates.

Fellow performer Ario Gato wrote, "Rest In Peace Miss Gigi Mayonaé! You were such a kind soul, a supportive sister, and an INCREDIBLE talent. Wish we had more time together. My heart is broken."

Chicago police listed a home address for Bates in downstate Danville. The medical examiner's office listed a home address in the Woodlawn neighborhood.

3x The Legal Limit

Police said 29-year-old Gerrick Birt's blood-alcohol level was more than three times the legal limit when he sped south on Halsted St., swerved into the northbound lanes, and slammed head-on into Bates' car just south of Addison St. at 2:14 a.m. Thursday.

Bates told Facebook friends that he was on the way to Charlie's nightclub, a venue where he frequently performed, when the other car slammed into him.

Birt was charged Friday with

felony DUI causing an accident with bodily harm, two counts of misdemeanor DUI and traffic violations, including failure to have insurance.

Bail for Birt was set at $10,000. He went free on Saturday after posting a 10% deposit bond of $1,000, according to a Cook County sheriff's spokesperson.

Patrol officers working near Roscoe and Halsted raced to the crash scene after they heard a loud noise and then saw smoke coming from two vehicles. Police said an officer smelled a strong odor of alcohol when they found Birt sitting behind the wheel of his car, which had caught fire. A cop helped him from the car because he was unable to follow directions, police said.

Snapchat video from moments after the crash shows smoke billowing from cars and a lone horn honking at an otherwise eerily quiet scene.

Birt allegedly told officers that he didn't remember much of the drive. Police said he told them that he was driving from Rogers Park to his Bridgeport home after consuming three ounces of Jack Daniel's whiskey.

But later, police said, Birt told them he had been drinking Miller beer and only remembered that he drove out of a parking space. He did not recall drinking whiskey or telling police that he consumed Jack Daniel's, the officers wrote.

An Earlier Case

Court records show that Birt was charged in 2014 with possessing more than a half-pound of pot, driving without insurance, and running a stop sign at 3400 N. Sheffield, just a few blocks from Thursday's crash scene.

Gerrick Birt

He would eventually plead guilty and receive 18-months probation. Also charged in that case was his passenger and close friend, Mikal Johnson. Johnson would be murdered less than a year later in Logan Square.

Birt also goes by the name Cody DeCamry.

Seven shot on lakefront near Fullerton

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Seven people, mostly women, were shot early Saturday near the entrance to Theater on the Lake, 2401 N. Lake Shore Dr., according to police sources. No one is in custody. It is the second mass-shooting incident in the area since June 6.

The shooting came shortly after police supervisors twice summoned officers to disperse large crowds in nearby Lincoln Park.

Police said a group of people was walking toward the lakefront at 3:20 a.m. when they encountered another group that was leaving. A verbal altercation broke out and escalated, causing people from both groups to pull out handguns and open fire, police said.

A CPD surveillance camera captured images of at least two men firing guns near the brick sign marking the entrance to the lakefront theater's parking lot.

Officers who reviewed the video footage described two gunmen:

- A black male wearing a bright green T-shirt, white do-rag, black hat, gray faded jeans and black shoes.

- A black male wearing a black graphic T-shirt with writing on the back and white stripes on the sleeves, dark pants, and gray boxer shorts.

Both suspected gunmen fled westbound on Fullerton and then northbound on Cannon Dr. after the shooting, the officers said. Police leaders twice summoned more units to clear large crowds from the area of Cannon Dr. north of Fullerton in the hours leading up to the shooting. The 19th District Police commander led the first effort around 12:30 a.m. A second push was made about an hour later.

Six victims were found at the scene:

- A 28-year-old woman with a gunshot wound to her lower left leg

- A 27-year-old woman with a gunshot wound to her upper right

- A 28-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his upper left thigh

- A 24-year-old man with a gunshot wound to his right calf

- A 24-year-old woman with a gunshot wound to her left shoulder

- A 24-year-old woman with a gunshot wounds to both legs

The victims were treated at Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center and Northwestern Memorial Hospital. All of their conditions have been stabilized and none is believed to have life-threatening injuries.

About an hour after the incident, a 46-year-old woman walked into Holy Cross Hospital with a gunshot wound to her left chest. She told police that she was on the lakefront at Fullerton Ave. when she was shot. The woman has been transferred to Mount Sinai Hospital.

This incident is the second mass-shooting to be reported in the immediate area this year.

Three people were injured and one was killed when their mini-van came under fire from another vehicle as they traveled on Lake Shore Dr. at Fullerton late on June 6. Investigators believed the June shooting was revenge for another gang-related shooting.

from p. 10

Police said Underwood, 19, told them that he owned the vehicle, but had no knowledge of any firearms or drugs being inside.

Underwood is charged with three narcotics possession charges and misdemeanor unlawful use of a weapon on public lands (a Cook County prosecutor refused to file a felony gun charge).

Judge Sandra Ortiz set bail at $5,000 on the new charges. However, Underwood was also ordered held without bail on a violation of probation.

Paroled robber sexually assaulted transgender woman on Halsted St.

A transgender woman was sexually assaulted and choked in a Boystown gangway this week by a convicted robber who was released from prison earlier this month, according to police and state records.

Officers were called to the Center on Halsted, 3656 N. Halsted, at 2:10 p.m. July 17 after an employee reported that a man with a knife was hiding in a bathroom stall on the ground floor, according to dispatch records.

Cops detained the man, identified as Rosha Banks, 24, and secured a knife. The woman, also 24, approached officers at the scene and said Banks had sexually assaulted her near the LGBTQ service center on Monday, July 15.

An investigation was launched and prosecutors have now charged Banks with aggravated criminal sexual assault causing bodily harm, criminal sexual assault by force, criminal sexual assault-consent, kidnapping by force, aggravated battery-strangulation, and possession of a deadly weapon.

Prosecutors on Friday said Banks forced the victim to perform sex acts in a passageway on the 3600 block of N. Halsted and later threatened to kill her if she left him.

Judge Mary Marubio ordered Banks held without bail.

Banks was sentenced to three years in prison for a 2017 robbery. He was released on July 3 after serving half of his sentence.

Rosha Banks

Lakeview man pistol-whipped

Three men cornered, pistol-whipped, and carjacked a Lakeview man near his home July 18, police said. No one is in custody.

The 32-year-old victim told police that he was walking on the 1600 block of W. Nelson around 9:30 p.m. when the offenders approached him and demanded his car keys at gunpoint. He was then cornered, struck in the face with a handgun, and robbed of his phone and wallet.

Police said the three men then got into the man's maroon-colored 2016 Acura RDX and drove east on Nelson.

The victim was transported to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center for treatment of his injuries to his face.

Police said he described the robbers as three black men, including one with dreadlocks and another with short hair. The offenders came to the area in another vehicle, but the victim was not able to describe that car.

Officers later said they found the victim's cellphone in the 1200 block of W. Wellington. CPD plate reader technology pinged the victim's car as it moved through the Englewood neighborhood about two hours after it was stolen.

Uptown man shot in the arm is uncooperative

A man who was shot in the arm during an altercation between two groups in Uptown July 20 is not cooperating with the police investigation, CPD said.

The 27-year-old was in the 5100 block of N. Broadway around 3:40 a.m. when an argument broke out between two groups of men. Someone in one of the groups opened fire, striking the man in his right forearm, police said.

Officers responded to a call of shots fired at the time of the incident, but there was no victim on-scene at the time, according to a police statement. Personnel at Northwestern Memorial Hospital notified police later when the victim walked in and sought treatment for the wound. His condition was stabilized.

Investigators reviewed video footage and confirmed that the man was shot at the Broadway location. Area North detectives are handling the case.

Lincoln Park assault update

BY CWBCHICAGO

Chicago police on Sunday were advised to keep an eye out for a stolen SUV that was used by the man who brutally attacked a recent DePaul graduate near the school's Lincoln Park campus last week.

Investigators are looking for a white 2010 Suzuki Vitara bearing an Indiana plate that begins with "101." Officers were told the SUV has a sunroof and was reported stolen on July 17, hours before the victim was attacked on the 2300 block of N. Halsted.

Police said they had secured video that shows a man driving the wrong way on Belden Ave. and then emerging to attack the 22-year-old woman with a knife around 3:30 a.m. Investigators suggested the attack may have been sexually-motivated, but a CPD spokesperson said the victim was not sexually assaulted.

A community alert issued by police on Friday described the attacker only as "male."

Passersby found the woman on the ground outside of a DePaul facility bleeding from her neck, about 50' from where the attack apparently unfolded. Officers initially thought the woman may have been struck by a car until they discovered slash wounds to her face and neck. Her condition has been stabilized, and doctors expect the woman to recover.

A 2018 attack

Last week's incident sparked memories of a similar attack on a woman that was reported about a half-mile away on April 10, 2018. In that case, a 21-year-old woman was attacked from behind by a man who repeatedly stabbed her in the 1200 block of W. Webster around 10:50 p.m.

Surveillance video later showed the assailant double-park an SUV on a nearby side street, then sit on a landscaping fence until the woman passed him. He then stood up, grabbed the woman in a chokehold from behind, and "immediately stabbed the victim numerous times in the neck and back," police said at the time. He then returned to the Cadillac SRX and drove away.

The victim said the man never said a word. Police never revealed a motive, and the case has not been solved, according to information on the city's crime data portal.

The 2018 attacker was described as a male of unknown race who stands about 5'-9" tall and was wearing all black clothing including a black hoodie and baggy black pants.

Cops seeking man and woman in connection with double stabbing

Police have released images of two people they want to identify in connection with a double stabbing that took place in the Loop earlier this month.

The man and woman reportedly approached a group and engaged them in conversation on the 100 block of E. Washington around 11:25 p.m.

WANTED

The victims were waiting for a ride-hail car near the northeast corner of Wabash and Washington when another vehicle drove up with a man and woman inside. The offenders stepped out of their car and the situation escalated, police said.

Police said the male offender stabbed a three-month pregnant 27-year-old in the stomach. A 26-year-old man in the group was stabbed twice in the abdomen. The offenders returned to their car and drove away eastbound on Washington, police said.

Anyone with information about the individuals may contact Area Central detectives at 312-747-8380 regarding case JC337989.

Robbery victim undergoes surgery after attack at Belmont Red Line; Incident similar to recent pattern

A robbery victim underwent surgery this weekend after he was attacked at the Belmont Red Line CTA station late Friday or early Saturday, police said. The incident appears to be similar to a series of attacks that detectives warned about earlier this month. No one is in custody.

The man told police he was standing outside the station when three men approached him and asked for a cigarette between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. on Saturday, according to a CPD spokesman.

When he told the men that he did not have a cigarette, one of the men punched him in the face, knocking him to the ground. The three then began beating and kicking the man before stealing his phone and leaving the scene.

The victim took himself to nearby Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center where he underwent surgery for unspecified injuries, the spokesperson said.

Police described the robbers only as three black men between 20- and 29-years old.

Detectives recently issued a community alert warning about a group of robbers who are attacking and robbing lone men near the Belmont station. In the alert, police said a pair of men had been robbing the victims on sidewalks in the area.

On July 8, a man was about 100 yards from the station when two men approached him from behind and punched him in the face around 1:50 a.m. Both robbers went through the man's pockets and took his property before running from the scene, the victim said.

Another man was attacked outside the station at 11:45 p.m. on June 30. A third incident that police believe is connected took place further away in the 2500 block of North Clark at 3:30 a.m. on June 22.

The offenders in the alert were described only as two African-American men.

Festival Etiquette, how to behave at Lolla, Pitchfork

With tens of thousands of people ready to descend upon Grant Park Aug. 1 to 4 for Lollapalooza, the people who make Four Loko's alcoholic beverage have surveyed event-goers to see what they don't like about going to these giant outdoor shows.

Modern-American music festivals have become cultural behemoths and with so many people converging on one location at one time, people naturally want to know 'who's acting like a fool?'

Last month the beverage maker surveyed 1,815 attendees of 16 major festivals - with the average festival goer they surveyed having attended eight events, and 46% who drove at least two hours to get there (17% had flown or driven six hours). So these are the grizzled veterans of the festival scene, and their number one complaint? People peeing outside the porta-potties. That's the same complaint heard from Wrigleyville neighbors about baseball fans and concerts-goers at Wrigley Field, go figure.

While it's understandable to be tempted to let loose when you're stuck in a long line and The Black Keys are about to take the stage, don't do it. There are laws against peeing in public and you'll still miss your favorite band if you're arrested or tossed out.

Other irritants noted in the survey's Top 10 were people holding up signs, smelly bodies, moshing/crowd surfing and those pushing to the front during sets, those who sneak in on fake or shared bracelets, the ubiquitous videotaking during music sets, people stoned out of their bejesus on liquor and drugs, PDA's/couples hooking up, people who are showing too much skin or wearing costumes.

Who are these animals?

Sadly, the survey identified Chicago's Pitchfork Festival as having the smelliest crowds in America and third worst for crowd-surfing/moshing.

NOTICE OF SALE PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on May 15, 2019, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on August 19, 2019, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at a public sale to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate:

Commonly known as 4180 N. MARINE DRIVE UNIT #1505, CHICAGO, IL 60613 Property Index No. 14-16-303-040-1170, Property Index No. 14-16-303-040-1198. The real estate is improved with a condo/townhouse.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial Sale fee for the Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale.

The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). firefighter and teacher pensions. And don't forget Tax Increment Financing Districts [TIF] too. They are all over the North Side. The CTA's Red Line 'Super TIF' alone sucks up all new property taxes generated on a great deal of the North Side in that the district is a mile wide and runs up the North Lakefront from North Ave. to Devon Ave. And there are dozens of other districts too from the Loop north to the Evanston border. Those TIF districts take all of the new property tax revenue being created these days, and will for years to come, forcing those individual taxing bodies to increase the demand for more taxes on non-TIF properties to meet their budgets. TIF districts in wealthy North Side 'blighted' neighborhoods may be one of the greatest property tax swindles ever created in Chicago history.

Chicago's 2018 tax rate decreased slightly to $6.786 from $7.266 per $100 of assessed valuation in 2017. In 2016, the tax rate was $7.169 per $100 of assessed valuation.

"The 2018 tax rate in Chicago was lower, and so was the state equalization factor," noted Griffin. "With the sharply higher 2018 assessments in the city, the multiplier and the tax rate should have moved lower if the amount of money that local governments request remains the same as last year."

TIF districts in wealthy North Side 'blighted' neighborhoods may be one of the greatest property tax swindles ever created in Chicago history.

Griffin said other problem is that the assessment increases vary by neighborhood and from small to large for Chicago homeowners, "so everyone should appeal their assessment to reduce the assessment increase to as small a level as possible."

Experts say property owners who think they are over assessed should appeal now before they receive next year's tax bill. If they wait until the tax bill arrives in 2020, it will be too late to appeal.

Visit newly elected assessor Fritz Kaegi's website: www.cookcountyassessor.com, or call 312-443-7550 to find comparable properties or start the appeal process. If appealing at the assessor's office does not lower the assessed value, there are two other appeal options: the Cook County Board of Review (312-603-5542) or www.cookcounty-boardofreview.com, and the Illinois Property Tax Appeals Board (217-785-6076), or www.ptab.illinois.gov. ## Bughouse Square Debates this Saturday

The Bughouse Square Debates pays tribute to the bygone era when Washington Square Park, 901 N. Clark St., was a place of pontification by persons of all ages, preaching to park patrons within earshot on whatever matter they found particularly interesting.

At a time when polarization is intensified by the extremes of digital discourse, the Bughouse Square Debates are a public forum where people can encounter new ideas and share their own—in person.

Bring your loudest heckling voice, mount the open soapbox, and exercise your First Amendment rights. Take it to the park this summer, and leave your hushed ‘library’ voices behind. In this free-speech competition, orators mount soapboxes and take about 10 minutes each to have their say about the hard left and the hard right, racism, First Amendment issues, City Hall corruption, civil liberties, MeToo, Black Lives Matter, pop culture – or any other burning concern. The champion soapboxer receives the Dill Pickle Award.

This year the Newberry Library’s annual Bughouse Square Debates take place noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, July 27.

But an added twist will be part of this year’s debate. You particular gripe could become law.

Ald. Brian Hopkins will be stationed under a tent at this year’s debates to hear your arguments over something you thin needs to be codified by law. He wants to hear what’s ‘bugging’ you and what you think can be done to fix it.

Residents can address the alderman by telling him in advance about your topic, where they will then direct you to the Society of Smallness table to register for the “Open Soapbox,” which is a five-minute, first-come-first-serve debate format, occurring after the Main Stage debates.

If those debate topics offer an idea that could be used to fix something about Chicago there will be judges to listen to what you have to say. If any idea is selected by Ald. Hopkins’ office, it could be written into an ordinance and submitted before City Council.

The Newberry Library will also be hosting a book fair before and after the debates. For more information call 312-255-3610.

Renowned ALS researcher suing Northwestern, administrators for allegedly trying to push him out of job

BY KAREN KIDD
Cook County Record

A longtime Northwestern University researcher and renowned expert on Lou Gehrig’s disease has sued the university, claiming he is being forced out of his position.

Teepu Siddique, a neurologist at NU’s Feinberg School of Medicine in Streeterville, also claims in his 15-page lawsuit filed July 2 in Cook County Circuit Court that he has “incurred the unjustified animosity of powerful administrators.”

Those administrators, NU Dept. of Neurology Chair and Center for Neurogenetics Director Dimitri Krainc and Medical Affairs Vice President and Feinberg School of Medicine Lewis Landsberg Dean Eric G. Neilson, are named as defendants along with the university. Siddique’s lawsuit claims multiple counts of breach of contract and that Neilson and Krainc have interfered with his contract.

Siddique, founder of NU’s Neuromuscular Disorders Program and the Neurogenetics Laboratory, has led the Les Turner ALS Research Laboratory since 1991, according to information posted on the Les Turner website. Siddique is a professor of neurology and cell and molecular biology, as well as a physician-neuroscientist with expertise in neurology, molecular genetics, biochemistry, cell biology and animal modeling of human neurodegenerative disease.

Siddique’s lawsuit describes him as “a physician-scientist, internationally recognized as an expert in neuromuscular disease and a pioneering world-renowned neurogeneticist who has discovered multiple causative genes for the inherited form of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), commonly known as Lou Gehrig’s disease.

“Recently, his group also discovered a gene for Parkinson’s disease,” the lawsuit said. “ALS is a fatal disorder without a cure that kills its victims within three to five years. It is to understand and cure this disease that Dr. Siddique has dedicated over 38 years of his life.”

Siddique’s research has since 1985 been continuously funded by the National Institutes of Health, according to the lawsuit.

Siddique claims that since Krainc’s arrival at Northwestern in 2013 “and largely by his instigation,” that defendants in the case “have engaged in a concerted effort to strip (Siddique) of his ability to carry out the work for which he was hired and which has elevated defendants to the forefront of ALS research and neurogenetics.”

Siddique claims his research funds have been cut and redirected to other projects, his staff and budget have been reduced and donors have been discouraged from funding his research. He also claims defendants are responsible for “promulgating the false narrative that Krainc – not (Siddique) – was responsible for the development and success of the neurogenetic program at NU Feinberg.”

Siddique is asking for a jury trial and damages of more than $30,000 in each of the six counts listed in his lawsuit.

WINS from p. 1

recently a couple of Piping Plover eggs hatched. There are only 60 living pairs of Plovers left in the world, so the eggs are a serious event and the concert threatened their survival. A Great Lakes Piping Plover chick hasn’t hatched in Chicago since 1955.

One person noted on social media that had Mickelson and Jam Productions not been so pig-headed, the concert could have been relocated to another area and not cancelled.

“Thanks for doing the right thing,” Brad Miller wrote. “If your team would have moved the event when this all first started till waiting to the last minute, it could have been a go.”

Environmentalists also threatened to file a lawsuit under the Endangered Species Act. Bird lovers have said the concert would threaten not only federally protected endangered birds, but also years of habitat restoration that has turned the park into one of the country’s top migratory stopover sites.

But neighbors are wary now, as they know the Park District and concert organizers are sure to try and stage a giant for-profit festival someplace near Montrose Beach and Harbor again.

TOWER from p. 1

America with foreign investors, the main motive is to get quick and easy access to a U.S. Visa by investing $500,000 into an economic project that creates jobs. The EB-5 green card program was created by U.S. Congress in 1990 to stimulate the U.S. economy through job creation and capital investment by foreign investors. These investors must invest in for-profit commercial enterprise and engage in for-profit activity formed for the ongoing conduct of a lawful business. It does not include noncommercial activity such as owning and operating a personal residence.

All EB-5 investors are admitted to the U.S. as “conditional” permanent residents or green card holders. The investment must create or preserve at least 10 full-time jobs for qualifying U.S. workers within two years, so that the EB-5 investors can convert from conditional green card holders to permanent residents.

In addition to the federal lawsuit, Symmetry is currently facing additional suits and liens in the Cook County court system.

The three Superior St. row houses date from a time period in which the area was known as McCormickville due to numerous area homes once owned by members of the McCormick family.

The McCormick brothers had founded the McCormick Harvesting Machine Co. and became enormously wealthy. At one time, their company was the largest manufacturer of farm equipment in the world. In 1902, their company merged with the Deering Harvester Corp. and was renamed International Harvester. Today, as Navistar, the company manufactures commercial trucks and buses.
