

Secrecy, lack of transparency hallmark of private North Side security firm

Lack of oversight
by City Hall leads to abuses

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

Records show that a suburban company received nearly $60,000 in taxpayer money through a local Special Service Area [SSA] taxing body, maintained by the Lakeview East Chamber of Commerce (LVECC), and was directed to provide public security patrols from Dec. 2014 until last Sept. 2016.

Chicago's dire financial straights have left the Chicago Police Dept. [CPD] perpetually under-manned. So private institutions such as chambers of commerce, hospitals, universities and even the Chicago Cubs have had to pick up the slack and take on the burden of providing policing and security in many parts of the North Side.

But it is now emerging that there is an overall lack of oversight and transparency on the city's part that is leading to some abuses in who is hired to do that now-private security work.

Private security firms now provide policing and security in many parts of the North Side.

In Lakeview, the company that received the Chamber's money is not licensed to contract security services in Illinois and the services that were supposedly completed by the company appear to have been performed by a different firm, one that's owned by 19th District Police Officer Thomas J. Walsh.

City employees, including cops, are prohibited by law from having an ownership stake in a company that receives payment for city work.

Other than invoices from the company and the taxpayer's checks, there is literally no documentation whatsoever regarding the 20-month relationship according to the City of Chicago's Dept. of Planning and Development and LVECC's responses to our Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request for records.

There is no contract; no letter of understanding; no list of expectations; no explanation of duties; no incident reports; no activity reports; no confirmation of hourly rates or changes to those rates; and no written records regarding scheduling or manpower needs. And there are no security plans or documentation for two annual street festivals that accounted for almost $20,000 of the total tax-paid security bill, the city said.

In fact, LVECC Executive Di-

City delays Cabrini Green redevelopment plan for Division and Halsted

As the Chicago Housing Authority (CHA) moves forward with their plans to redevelop two parcels within the boundaries of the 65-acre former Cabrini Green housing complex, the city agency has decided to indefinitely suspend plans for a third, high-profile seven-acre site near the Chicago River and Halsted St.

According to multiple reports, the CHA has withdrawn its request for proposals for developing the northeast corner of Division and Halsted St.

After tearing down the last of the towers in the notorious Cabrini-Green housing project over the last six years the city has put plans to develop this space on hold while it reviews its options.

Situated between the booming Clybourn Corridor and soon to be booming and recently rezoned North Chicago Riverfront, this key intersection has become a white hot potential development site. The zoning currently allows at least 436 residential units and retail space.

A future project may be part of a broader effort to redevelop the area around the former public housing complex that once held 23 buildings and 3,600 residential units.

Earlier this year, city officials picked developers for two other Cabrini-Green sites, but they decided a few months ago to hold off on a decision on a third parcel.

The CHA released a statement that said the city needs more time to consider how best to approach the large mixed-use residential and commercial development that is envisioned for the property. No doubt the properties value has increased dramatically in large part due to the re-imagining of the North Branch of the Chicago River between downtown and Western Ave.

Architecture firm Holabird & Root had designed a proposed mixed-use high rise project for this site for local developer Peter Hostein, which included two towers of about nine stories, townhomes and retail space.

In Jan. 2016 the city and CHA asked developers to submit proposals for the three sites. Then in February the City picked a team led by Texas-based Hunt Development Group to develop 482 units of mixed-income housing on a 6.9-acre site at Larrabee St. and Clybourn Ave. The developers plan to break ground on that project before the end of 2018.

Hunt reportedly also submitted a proposal to redevelop the site at Halsted and Division streets.

Demolition of Cabrini-Green began in 1995 as part of the CHA's Plan for Transformation, its push to raze its big high-rises and shift public-housing residents into new mixed-income developments.

New Braille bus stops

Braille bus stop signs with raised letters are coming to the city to aid the blind who depend on public transportation.

The CTA thinks the signs will help attract the visually impaired who until now have relied primarily on the CTA's paratransit service, which provides door-to-door reserved transportation for people with disabilities. High use of paratransit rather than regular buses may in part be due to difficulty figuring out what stop they're at with the current signs.

The CTA hopes to place nearly 11,000 of these signs on bus stop poles. While no time-table has been announced, work is expected to get underway quickly as the project has just received a grant of $380,000 from the Regional Transportation Authority [RTA].

The new signs will include information about the location of the stop, helping riders transferring from and to rail stations according to the CTA. The total cost is estimated to be more than $1.4 million.

For more information call the RTA at 312-913-3110.

Siren noise will always be a problem

The Near North Side, Streeterville and River North neighborhoods are fortunate to have several world class medical facilities and a bevy of nearby first responders, but the downside to this situation produces safety and sound issues for area residents and visitors from the many sirens going off at all hours in those 24-hour neighborhoods.

Current federal siren regulations and traffic challenges for ambulances and firetrucks, create a complex situation for those who need to maneuver around the area and who suffer from sensitivity to loud noises.

Hearing loss experts believe people have different levels of noise susceptibility. They say that some research involving animals seems to imply that noise exposure in early years leads to more rapid age-related hearing loss.

Still the ability of First Responders to do their jobs fighting fires and carrying patients to nearby hospitals is paramount for everyone's safety according to State Rep. Christian Mitchell [26th] and Ald. Brian Hopkins [2nd]. Both Rep. Mitchell and Ald. Hopkins addressed siren noise with nearly Representing the Chicago Fire Dept. were Larry Langford, Director of Media Affairs and Communications, and Richard Edgeworth, Director of Safety. They both addressed federal and local regulations and stated that saving lives is their first concern.

Responding to residents, Edgeworth promised to look into a number of ideas raised, including limiting ambulances to dedicated streets; working with private ambulance carriers through an existing EMS consortium; investigating siren alternatives that meet federal guidelines but are quieter and training Fire Dept. truck and ambulance drivers to be more sensitive to residents. SOAR says they have worked for five years to reduce noise it says is disrupting the peace of the lakefront community, and promises that they will be in close touch to monitor these commitments and report back to the community.

Langford told the audience that the Fire Dept. has made at least 11 common-sense policy changes citywide over the years, such as reducing the frequency of activating sirens, aiming the sirens toward traffic in front of the emergency vehicle and lowering the sirens

Snowflakes can be blinding

By Thomas J. O'Gorman

Have you ever tried to chase a snowflake?

Have you ever caught one?

No, not those frozen crystalline drops of water that fall from the winter sky. I mean those fragile, bourgeois, American, college-age students who are so aggrieved at the state of the world that they have imagined themselves as the victims. And as a result, have become a backlash generation of screamers and tiraders.

You know, students who spend their time not attempting to lift the burdens of the world from the weak and the disadvantaged, but rather from their own well-fed, advantaged backs.

No working in soup kitchens; just plenty of intellectualizing the food they are fed. And finding the enemy is actually not some foreign aggressor, but rather their fellow citizens not raised in the soft comfort of 24-hour-a-day ego reinforcement.

Have you ever been the victim of an act of micro-aggression? Snowflakes have. Constantly. Or as others might call it, those moments when people don't agree with you. Those awful moments when people think you are wrong and your shoddy thinking is dismissed.

Snowflakes insist all opposing viewpoints from their's must be ignored. And those whose views differ from their own must not be given platforms. There is no 'another side.'

Have you ever had to struggle, even panic, when you need to find a safe space free of opposing ideas? Do you have any idea how hard it is to find an environment that protects your intellectual safety? Snowflakes believe that it is their academic institution's responsibility to provide such aggression free zones. Places where they do not have to defend their delusions and illusions.

Has anyone ever attempted to stifle your freedom of expression? Or curtail your expression of racial intensity, cultural sensitivity, or academic criticism? Often such intolerance, snowflakes tell us, takes place because of the cultural biases, racism, sexism or institutional judgments of tired, colonial oppressors, like Harvard, Yale, NYU or Columbia, to name but a few. That's when it really gets bad. The micro-aggression. The cloud of victimhood. Chronic anxiety.

If there is anything that characterizes the snowflake state of affairs today it is their insistence on special treatment. From colleges and universities. From employers. From government. From institutions around the world. From men. All of whom are, according to them, to blame for the current state of the world we live in. They demand that they not be forced to endure the pain and heartache of social and cultural oppression. Or held accountable for their misunderstanding of how things came about.

Entitlement is a big part of the scene. And snowflakes demand that any criticism of them cease.

Narcissism and self-absorption have become the snowflake's most effective tools in becoming a cultural force on college campuses today. Their grievances now spill out into the larger culture with annoyance and effective chaos. It's the outgrowth of the "time-out" culture of the grade school classroom. That "sit still" and "calm down" attitude has created a heinous environment that begat the concept of a prize for everyone who runs in the race. No winners. No losers. Only those who need

"Give me your tired, your poor, Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, The wretched refuse of your teeming shore, Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me, I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"

not fear the race. We are all winners if we are in it together.

Never experiencing the achievement of winning, they settle in for a false quietude that robs them of the will to achieve. When everybody gets a trophy, there is no need to try.

This is not the greatest generation. Churchill and Roosevelt would be appalled. Hitler would cheer.

This fragile snowflake generation never wants to be made to feel uncomfortable. In fact, they insist that they be protected from thoughts and words and ideas that might make them feel bad. So they plunder history. Ransack time. Rip apart the heroes of the past and chide those in the present who do not join their cause.

We all see the heavy hand of Snowflakes involved in the current madness of historic statue defilement and desecration, which as an artist, and an American, I find appalling. Such narrow-minded historical revisionism is nothing short of book-burning. From the bright light bulbs in the Chicago City Council seeking to remove an Etruscan pillar, a gift from Mussolini in 1933, from the Chicago lakefront, to New York's Mayor Bill de Blasio seeking to remove the statue of Christopher Columbus from Columbus Circle, to the raised voices of cultural and racial opportunists around the nation, the destruction of any art is always like the destruction of a book. It is the highjacking of the process of human thought. A rupture in cognition, how we look at the world and ourselves against larger ideas, better judgment and freer thought.

If we are still lost in the babel-like confusion of shutting down ideas different than our own, what world have we created for ourselves? If we only are moved by the panicked emotion of the mob, what have we really discovered about ourselves?

Do our thoughts really need to be protected? If people are in disagreement to ourselves and our ideas, is our only alternative to shut them off, keep them quiet? With no burden on ourselves to widen our own understanding?

Does intelligence mean anything anymore in America? Do the limping abilities of people to understand things outside their small frame of reference have any truth still to tell?

Does hysteria really adequately compensate for the lack of wise actions?

America appears to be at a troubled moment in its ongoing passage to security and freedom. While we do not want to trade security for freedom; can we no longer sustain both? Are we no longer able to examine the issues that once led us to a larger grasp of both freedom and security?

This is what we know: the antagonists to American progress are emotionally hobbled when it comes to views that challenge their own. Because they are less resilient than past generations of Americans, Snowflakes appear to have been raised with an inflated sense of their own uniqueness. They lack tolerance for the thoughts of others. They are heavy with judgment on the faults of others. Accusatory of the cultural accommodation and engagement of others. And combative with those who are at home with the cultural nuances of others.

Race, like gender and religion, is a war zone, not a common journey to enlightenment. Where are the uplifting words we heard from civil rights leaders half a century ago? Where is the music of faith and patriotism that help glue the nation together in the face of assassinations and shattered dreams? Back in the 1960s I do not recall people being self-conscious about race and religion. They were the issues that brought us together. Today we shield our eyes from what we see, as if we've been blinded by an eclipse. Or a storm of snowflakes.

Supporting cancer survivors, one event at a time

Cancer sucks.

Honestly, there's just no way to put it nicely. Cancer blows.

There are a couple of fundraisers on Saturday that will not only be fun, but they will also raise much-needed money to help out those affected by the Big C. Support is critical and I hope you can attend one event or the other. If not, maybe you can think about what you can do in the future to help stomp out this killer disease.

Head to Twist Out Cancer's 5th annual Brushes with Cancer art exhibition, gala and fundraiser on Saturday at Revel Fulton Market, 1215 W. Fulton St. Brushes with Cancer matches artists with people touched by cancer to create unique pieces of artwork reflective of their journey. Over a period of six months, more than 50 selected pairs connect in person, online, on the phone or by email. The artwork is revealed for the first time at the gala.

The night will feature music, dance, surprise celebrity guest appearances, dinner provided by some of the city's leading restaurants and an open bar. Jaymee Sire, former ESPN anchor and co-host of "The Iron Chef," on The Food Network will emcee. It should be an amazing evening focusing on art, entertainment, storytelling, survivorship, and hope.

Twist Out Cancer, the organization that holds the event, is based in Philadelphia, with a board located primarily in Chicago and Toronto. We caught up with its founder, Jenna Benn Shersher, to find out more.

Q. What made you decide to start an event like this? Has your life been personally touched by cancer?

A. Back in 2010, I was diagnosed with a rare type of lymphoma called Grey Zone Lymphoma, which at the time impacted less than 200 people around the world. I discovered that there were a number of organizations that were raising critical dollars for research, but there were few organizations out there that were dealing with the psychosocial issues that often accompany a cancer diagnosis. When I finished treatment in 2011, I was determined to give back to the community that had so generously given me hope, support and strength throughout my course of treatment and recovery.

Brushes with Cancer was inspired by a fellow Grey Zone Lymphoma survivor named Anna Moschner. Anna was one of the first survivors to come forward with her story and put out a call to action that was meaningful to her during the course of her treatment. She asked the community to "create a work of art not using the shade of grey, because grey was all that she was seeing."

Within a few days, we had artwork being created in her honor from all over the world. There were murals painted in Switzerland, dances in Harlem, sculptures in Toronto. People came together to support her because they were inspired and moved by her story.

Her bravery and strength caused me to think about what about Anna's story was compelling to motivate others to act. I also wondered what if more people came forward with their story and were willing to show and address their vulnerabilities head on. When we don't speak about what is hard we feel shame. It was the shame that tried to paralyze me, but instead inspired me.

Brushes with Cancer creates unexpected intersections between artists and individuals touched by cancer. Over a period of four to six months, the selected pairs are charged with connecting in person, over Skype, email and the phone to get to know each other better. The relationships are guided by our mentors who are there to ensure that both parties feel supported. The program culminates with an art exhibition and gala.

This is the 5th annual event and we are excited to celebrate the 100 participants that have been a part of the Chicago-based program.

Q. What can people expect that night?

A. This is not your typical cancer event. Of course we will acknowledge the hard struggle, the difficult aspects of cancer. But this is also a celebration of life, survivorship and hope. In addition to the 50-plus original works of art that were created to honor the inspirations, you will also see live musical and dance performances and a few special surprises.

Q. How important is it that cancer stays in the minds of people?

A. Awareness, education and research are critical.

I have no doubt that in my lifetime, medical research will make significant strides to eradicate this epidemic that is growing and plaguing our world. What I hope, however, is that more individuals touched by cancer will choose to come forward with their story, with their needs, and choose to connect with a community that understands where they are coming from.

Q. Where do funds raised go?

A. The money will all go back to funding Brushes with Cancer across the world. We have grown the program to include Chicago, Toronto, Ann Arbor, Philadelphia, Montreal and Tel Aviv. We have had over 15,000 people either participate or attend one of our programs and we are hoping to expand our reach even further this year and in the years to come.

If you live in Chicago and are part of the cancer world, you more than likely have heard of Imerman Angels, which provides free personalized connections that enable one-on-one support among cancer fighters, survivors and caregivers.

Founded by Gold Coaster Jonny Imerman, who survived cancer as a young man while

Chicago is Condo City but don't underestimate suburbs

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

Everyone views Chicago as the dominant condominium city in Illinois, but don't short change the seven suburban collar counties, a comprehensive new annual report reveals.

The city of Chicago currently has an estimated 11,336 condo and homeowner associations containing 221,580 housing units.

However, a whopping 40,904 of Illinois' 54,000 condominium and homeowner associations (HOAs) containing 348,159 residential units are located outside the Windy City in Chicago-area suburbs, according to a new comprehensive directory—the “2017 Association Evaluation Report on Illinois Condominiums and Homeowner Associations” (HOAs).

Launched in 2012, the Association Evaluation [AE] has more than 54,000 Illinois condo associations and HOAs in its database.

AE's research revealed that 677 condo associations in Chicago have more than 100 units. It found 24 newly formed Windy City condominium associations in 2016. The projects contain 17 to 406 residential units in buildings that are currently in the development pipeline or recently sold out.

“High-rise condos may create much of Chicago's world-class downtown and N. Lake Shore Dr. skyline, but only about seven percent of the residential units are found in these properties,” observed Sara Benson.

“High-rise condos may create much of Chicago's world-class downtown and N. Lake Shore Dr. skyline, but only about seven percent of the residential units are found in these properties,” observed Sara Benson, president of AE, a Chicago-based real estate data-analysis firm.

An estimated 40 Windy City high-rise condos—including the iconic 758-unit Lake Point Tower and the landmark 703-unit John Hancock Building—contain more than 500 units, and about six percent of condos are housed in buildings with 100 to 499 units.

“Most high-rises, and the highest concentration of luxury buildings are located in eight community areas along Lake Michigan—the Loop, New East Side, River North, the Gold Coast, Near North Side, Lincoln Park, Old Town and Lake View,” said Benson, who also is a veteran Gold Coast Realtor and president of Benson Stanley Realty, 980 N. Michigan Ave.

Other popular condominium neighborhoods include: West Town, Near West Side, South Loop, Edgewater, Uptown, Rogers Park, West Ridge and Near South Side. In 2016, some 17,345 condominium and townhome units were sold and closed in Chicago, compared with only 11,144 detached single-family homes, Benson said.

AE noted that “HOAs are rampant in the Chicago's suburbs” where gated townhome and condo communities abound. The directory notes that the sprawling Sun City community, built by Del

Webb in far northwest suburban Huntley, encompasses 5,400 units.

The research also revealed that Illinois' condo and HOA associations contain nearly 760,000 residential units.

The data was gathered by AE from physical reviews and Google rooftop checks of thousands of condo and HOA properties, combined with an analysis of the Secretary of State records.

“For the 2nd annual AE Report, our team of research experts scoured hundreds of sources to pinpoint and profile every condo and homeowner association throughout Illinois—both large and small,” said Benson.

“Our research team exhausted all available resources to obtain this information,” said Michael J. Reilly, chief operations officer of AE. “Various quality-control checks were administered to ensure the accuracy of the data. In some cases, on-site physical reviews of the premises were conducted.”

Here is AE's breakdown for condo and HOAs in the seven Chicago-area counties and the city of Chicago:

- Cook County—including the city of Chicago—has a total of 21,923 condos and HOAs containing 338,592 residential units. Some 18,753 of the associations—70% of the condos and HOAs—have less than 20 units, while 3,170 have more than 20.

- DuPage County has a total of 7,384 condos and HOAs containing 88,754 housing units. Some 6,550 of the associations contain less than 20 units, while 834 have more than 20.

- Kane County has a total of 7,228 condo and HOAs containing 45,914 residential units. Some 7,101 of the associations have less than 20 units, while only 127 have more than 20.

- Lake County has a total of 6,578 condo and HOAs containing 50,638 housing units. Some 6,274 of the associations have less than 20 units, while 304 have more than 20.

- Will County has a total of 4,817 condo and HOAs containing 23,724 residential units. Some 4,781 of the associations have less than 20 units, while only 36 have more than 20.

- McHenry County has a total of 3,133 condo and HOAs containing 16,222 housing units. Only 30 of the associations have more than 20 units.

- Kendall County has a total of 1,166 condo and HOAs containing 5,895 residential units. Only 11 of the associations have more than 20 units.

The Community Associations Institute (CAI), a respected national organization, listed a total of 18,500 condominium and HOAs in Illinois in 2015, placing the state in fourth place nationwide.

“Our research team was surprised to learn that thousands of Illinois condominium and homeowner associations were uncounted by CAI,” Benson said.

“Apparently, thousands of smaller condo associations and HOAs are not registered with the state of Illinois simply because they are self-managed by volunteer owners,” said Benson, who estimated that up to 80% of existing units are self-managed or controlled by developers.

“With 54,000 individual records, AE has compiled the most comprehensive database of condo associations and HOAs available in Illinois,” Benson noted.

AE is marketing its condominium and HOA data to condo service providers such as attorneys, property management companies, landscapers, and remodeling and repair tradesmen—including roofers, plumbers and contractors. Prices for the new 2017 Chicago and Illinois lists—that can be sorted by zip code, city, year of construction, property management company, and number of units in the association—start at $2,500.

Under new deal, North Side property owners to take hardest hit from new CPS taxes

Now that the Bureau of Labor Statistics [BLS] has just announced that Americans on average spent more on taxes in 2016 than they did on food and clothing combined, City Hall and the Statehouse are here to tell you that that still may not be enough.

Last Thursday Gov. Bruce Rauner signed the historic school funding legislation that makes lasting changes to how the state will help to fund schools. The Illinois General Assembly had earlier passed the same legislation changing the school funding formula and now, for the first time, the State says they're going to assist in funding Chicago teacher pensions.

The BLS data shows that in three years—from 2013 to 2016—the average tax bill for Americans increased 41.13%. Those tax payers residing in Chicago might rightly feel like they have now been forced to join the 'New Tax of the Month Club.'

In the last year beleaguered residents have seen record property tax increases appear on their tax bills courtesy of the City and Chicago Public Schools [CPS]; as well as a bevy of other new and/or increased taxes from the City, Cook County and the State of Illinois. Those include higher water taxes, a new plastic bag tax, higher garbage taxes, a new sweetened beverage tax, and record personal and corporate income tax increases passed earlier this year when the House and Senate voted to override Gov. Rauner's veto.

This does not take into account all the hidden property tax increases folded into every single Tax Increment Financing District that siphons off tax dollars needed by other local taxing bodies.

Under the new State legislation, the majority of education funds will flow to districts with higher concentrations of students from low-income families, and from districts with lower levels of property wealth.

The legislation also provides school-choice protection for parents who want to send their children to non-public schools, a move that the Chicago Teachers Union vigorously opposes.

This will be done by ensuring that district-authorized charter schools receive equal funding and by offering families with limited financial resources better access to those schools through a tax credit scholarship program. This new law requires that every charter school in Illinois be funded between 97% and 103% of the host district's per capita tuition charge, up from 75% to 125% under the current law.

According to CPS, for this fiscal year, they hope to gain and additional $450 million of new tax dollars over last year.

Part of that comes from the new State legislation which includes an estimated 2.5% property tax increase raising an additional $150 million for CPS, above the $300 million increase they had already tacked onto property tax bills this year.

It also lifts the cap on the level at which CPS can raise property taxes, which means that property owners can expect to see more tax increases for the financially struggling school system since the CPS's proposed budget assumes $269 million in as yet unidentified additional local tax dollars coming their way.

The Chicago Board of Education also recently authorized borrowing slightly more than $1.9 billion worth of short- and long-term debt at high interest rates due to their dismal credit rating. That debt too must be repaid by future tax collections.

By design, these new property tax increases will hit hardest those areas with the highest assessed value on their real estate. Within the city limits, that means the Near North Side and Downtown, and most all of the North Lakefront neighborhoods.

Property Tax increases "can be particularly unfair and burdensome to our long term residents and senior homeowners," said Ald. Michele Smith [43rd] whose wealthy ward is set to take on a great deal of the new income and property tax burdens. "While the recent legislation ensures schools will open on time, I have not been provided with a full breakdown on the tax increase formula but will share information as soon as it is available."

Between 2007 and 2015, median property tax bills rose in 36 of 38 North Side neighborhoods. North Center proved the best real estate market in all of Chicago during that period, with its median sale price up 12%. But median property taxes grew four times as quickly, by 46%, since 2007. Lincoln Square saw its median property taxes grow by 53%. In Lincoln Park property taxes grew by 32%, while Andersonville grew by 46%. The Gold Coast, River North, Lakeview, Old Town and Wrigleyville all saw their property taxes continued to rise significantly.

But at least Ald. Smith's ward benefits from the high property taxes they pay every six months as it hosts several outstanding public grade schools and the highly rated Lincoln Park High School funding town hall Thursday

Several North Side elected officials are co-hosting an education funding town hall meeting from 6-7:30 p.m. Thursday to discuss how the budget and recent school funding changes will affect Chicago Public Schools. The event will be held at Senn High School, 5900 N. Glenwood Ave.

Scheduled to attend are State Sen. Heather Steans, Rep. Kelley Cassidy, and aldermen Pat O'Conner [40th], James Cappelan [46th] Harry Osterman [48th], Ameya Pawar [47th], Joe Moore [49th]. For more information call 773-784-2002.

School. "Understandably, our community takes pride in thriving local schools. These current budget hardships should result in future fiscal accountability and full transparency. To that end, we must demand more comprehensive, forward-thinking solutions to public school funding."

will remember the priest's own father, radio host Don McNeill of the "Breakfast Club," one of America's most cherished daily broadcasts that ran from 1933 to 1968 and featured Chicago's own Fran Allison (of Kukla, Fran and Ollie fame). The show aired for decades from the Allerton Hotel. Father McNeill was devoted to the cause of justice and helped to truly set the University on the road for the supreme pastoral task of social justice in America.

PAGING DR. FINE: What new hospital doctor was recently involved in a screaming match with members of a Chicago political family who took umbrage over the deteriorating health of a well-liked politico of the past? Tragic circumstances are often layered and complex on a daily basis.

BUNKY'S COOKIES: There was no one like Bunky, the genteel Bunky Cushing, who cherished Chicago's social life and the beautiful, handsome, well-dressed characters who make it work. He loved the art of conversation with all the complexities and hilarity that came with its secrets, embellishments, nuances and passionate positioning. Though his death almost two years ago has robbed us of a Chicago and Ralph Lauren treasure, his pals still feel his zany brand of kindness and enthusiasm in the dining room at Ralph Lauren Bar and Grill, where his Bunky's Cookies on the dessert menu still brings smiles to those who order them. He is missed and well-thought of still.

OYSTERS ARE KING: Craic Oyster Fest Chicago will be held at Chief O'Neill's pub and beer garden, 3471 N. Elston Ave. It's part of a Craic Oyster Tour in September. Three cities in three weekends (Rockaway, Chicago & Boston). Craic Oyster Fest Chicago will be on Sept. 9 from 2-5 p.m. Three hours of oysters, Guinness & music in the beer garden at Chief O'Neills pub.

GOLD COAST CHORALE:

Sign-ups are going on now and the first rehearsal is Sept. 11. The Gold Coast Chorale, which meets Monday afternoons (noon-1:30) at The Clare, 55 E. Pearson St., is the largest of the seven Chicago-area chorales with more than 90 seniors singing. You'll find lots of information at www.ensembleilinois.org...lend your voice.

HAVE THE CAKE: Sophia's Room's Sophia du Brul just sent her lovely daughter, Violet, off to Miss Porter's School in Connecticut, Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy's alma mater, where I am told they make the finest chocolate cake in New England. Best wishes, Violet.

CONGRATS THRICE: Belated Happy Birthday to entertainer Johnny Mahady, he and husband, David Izaguirre, have been celebrating Johnny's birthday with the best wishes of their fans and some fabulous bubbly at many chic spots around the city over the past weekend. And rumbles of congratulations are in order to Chicago actor/comedian John T. O'Brien who is said to be very serious about getting hitched. Congrats too to new lawyer Sarah Gorecki and Aaron Konieczny who walked up the aisle at Holy Name Cathedral and said the big "I Dos."

REAL CLOUT: Courtney Thompson (granddaughter of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley) joining Chicago-based ROC Group, a top communications agency, after 16 years with Boeing.

WHO'S WHERE: Paul Marlarik III, Lynn Graham, Betty Melton, and Meg Nagle dining in their favorite booth at Ralph Lauren Bar and Grill (RL) and giving the place a perky pick-me-up... and counting the days till their favorite server, Peter Axelson, returns in two weeks after some surgery this summer... Brian and Michelle O'Connor catching "Chicago" in a nostalgic concert at the Chateau Ste. Diane O'Connell and attorney Brendan O'Connor singing along at the Lady Gaga concert last week at Wrigley Field. Post concert they hopped in a bicycle rickshaw for a truly memorable evening's return ride (which earlier had included someone's first ride on the CTA's Red Line).

I DO! I DO: Best wishes to Mike and Cathy Leonard on their recent marriage. Mike has long been an advocate and spokesman for immigrants (documented and undocumented) here in Chicago and deserves all the goodness that love brings.

MAZEL-TOUGH: Is a downtown rabbi still at war with Jewish authorities over the condition of his downtown synagogue that has been permitted to fall to pieces to alter the character of the congregation? Word is that the rabbi means business and has strong support in the right places. He promises an all out attack at his detractors, buoyed by some very heavy orthodox Jewish "home run hitters." The rabbi promises not to go down without a fight. Hello, David? Goliath?

MIRAI SUSHI: It's hard to imagine that Mirai, Wicker Park's refined sushi restaurant, has been at Division and Damen for 17 years. But owner/boss Miae Lim regaled me with stories from her early days while we sipped exquisite saki from large wine glasses on a heavenly breezy Summer's night recently. Sophisticated by all sushi standards, there is no place like Mirai. It attracts a lot of downtown people and expands any preconceptions about Japanese cuisine. Seaweed and cucumber salad, cold chicken lettuce wraps, Summer sushi roll, (hamachi, oshinko, & avocado topped with madal, scallions and ryu), and tuna/tuna roll are filled with character and flavor and have become my new staples. Try it at 2020 W. Division or in the Gold Coast at 990 N. Mies van der Rohe Way. YUM.

COLUMBIA, THE GEM: The commodores and crews at the Columbia Yacht Club have broken all fundraising records with their recent efforts on behalf of the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society which featured a sailing regatta, a poker run for power boats, a silent auction and other activities, ultimately raising $500,000 from the events. Bravo everyone!

New initiative hopes to generate affordable housing in gentrifying neighborhoods

To include six square miles near North Branch Industrial Corridor

The City has announced a pilot initiative to enhance affordability requirements for large residential development projects in gentrifying areas on the Near North and Near West sides, and along Milwaukee Ave. Over three years, the initiative hopes to help create up to 1,000 affordable units in areas that need them.

To be introduced to City Council on Sept. 6, the proposal would be implemented as three-year pilot programs in areas determined through demographic data to be experiencing gentrification pressures.

The Near North/Near West Pilot Area would cover approximately six square miles near the North Branch Industrial Corridor on the Near North Side and along the Green Line on the Near West Side. The Milwaukee Corridor pilot area would cover approximately nine square miles along Milwaukee Ave.

The plan in each area would expand the provisions of the 2015 Affordable Requirements Ordinance (ARO), which requires a 10% affordability component for all new projects with 10 or more units that receive a zoning change. The 2015 ARO also requires at least 25% of the required affordable units to be located on site or off-site, with the remaining obligation to be met through in-lieu taxes up to $225,000. The pilot initiative eliminates the in-lieu tax option to generate more affordable units within each area.

For the Near North/Near West pilot area, the proposal would address the needs within two distinct zones to create affordable workforce housing for the thousands of new jobs expected to be generated in the downtown area by the rezoning of the North Branch Industrial Corridor and to stabilize Near West Side neighborhoods experiencing limited housing investment.

In the Near North Zone, the improvements would increase the 10% ARO unit obligation to 20%. Half of the required units must be built on site or off-site within two miles in the same ARO zone.

The remainder could be built anywhere in the same pilot area.

By expanding the ARO, the City hopes to meet the growing need for affordable housing and create more options for residents, especially those in areas experiencing gentrification pressures and growing property costs. Zoning applications that trigger the ARO have increased 103% between 2014 and 2016.

"The pilot initiative is designed to balance the strong residential market we're seeing in certain neighborhoods with ongoing affordability and community investment goals, especially where investment has been slow to recover from the recession. We think it can effectively do both, resulting in a stronger housing market citywide and stronger families in the process," said DPD Commissioner David L. Reifman.

City housing and planning staff will monitor the impact of the pilots on the creation of affordable units and local development and consider what refinements may be appropriate to either continue or expand the policy both during and at the conclusion of the three-year term.

German-American fest kicks off Thursday

The German-American festival in Lincoln Square kicks off Thursday in Lincoln Square. Now in its 97th year, it is one of the oldest cultural street festivals in Chicago.

The host is the United German American Societies of Greater Chicago. Centered at Lincoln Ave. and Leland St., the three day event will be highlighted by the 52nd Annual Von Steuben Parade on Lincoln Ave. stepping off from Irving Park and marching north to Western and Lawrence avenues.

The parade celebrates Baron Friedrich von Steuben, who came to America as a volunteer offering his services to General George Washington. General von Steuben converted the revolutionary army into a disciplined fighting force, instilling in them much needed inspira-

Letters to the Editor

Remembering old friends

I know it is not quite a year since Ann Gerber has left us, but I feel her absence, as she was a generous and caring friend to many, of which I was fortunate enough to be included.

Years ago, I wrote several columnists and Ann was the only one to get back to me, she would call me on the phone. We had wonderful conversations.

Ann and I never met in person. We battled on the phone and I sent her enough postcards to wallpaper the Adler Planetarium. Ann's supernatural generosity and caring will always remain with me.

Where are the 'Quiet Zones?'

Screaming, screeching sirens and horns of countless emergency-type vehicles are rife and becoming increasingly ubiquitous in Chicago. Many are undoubtedly doing the only thing they can to perhaps save a life. That must remain paramount. Nevertheless, the disturbance, anxiety, fright, and confusion they cause to myriad others can't be ignored or underestimated.

We know that we are living in an era of a collapse of impulse control. Regardless, why should an unaware person, pedestrian, elderly or not, risk a coronary incident because of the sudden, unexpected blaring of those sounds?

Whatever happened to those civilized, considerate, empathic signs of the past, "Quiet—Hospital Zone"? The people needing it the most, patients in hospitals and their families, are most susceptible and affected.

Are there no courageous local leaders of character and conscience willing to articulate this and put an end to this pathetic scenario?

Lakeview Pantry expands service area

The Lakeview Pantry has expanded its client service area and extend its operating hours to assist more North Side residents in need.

The Pantry currently provides emergency food assistance and social service programs to low-income individuals. The new boundaries will expand these services to North Ave. on the south, Western Ave. on the west, and Argyle St. on the north.

In addition, food distribution and case management hours will be extended by 30 minutes at their Oakdale site, 1414 W. Oakdale Ave., and new evening hours added at the Sheridan site, 3945 N. Sheridan Ave.

The Pantry's home delivery program, which provides food delivery to elderly, disabled, and homebound clients, will also increase its delivery frequency to include every Saturday during the month.

In 2016, almost 8,000 clients visited the Pantry approximately 40,000 times. With this expansion of services, the Pantry expects to see over a 30% increase in client visits.

In August "more than 120 new families requested [our] help. A third of those households were located outside of our current service boundaries," said Executive Director Kellie O'Connell. "Expanding our service area is the right answer to address this need. Almost half of our clients must choose between paying for food or paying for rent and medication. Many work full time and still cannot make ends meet because of low salaries. The need is there and [we plan] to meet it."

Statistics suggest that 1 in 9 people on the North Side face food insecurity. "Lakeview Pantry is unlike any other pantry in the Midwest," said Ald. James Cappleman [46th]. "They make it their goal to serve the whole person, not just the hunger. We are fortunate to have a resource like this expanding to serve the the North Side."

A Rising Star... New for 2017 Fifth Star Honors, the City of Chicago recognized 25 outstanding young artists as members of the Rising Star Honor Roll. The Honor Roll recognizes Chicago youth who show creative leadership, passion and exceptional skill in the arts.

The City honored four Chicago artists and institutions as well for their contributions to the city's cultural landscape at the 4th annual Fifth Star Honors event. The 2017 honorees include hip hop artist and actor Common, celebrated architect Jeanne Gang, artist Kerry James Marshall and the legendary Steppenwolf Theatre Co.

The Swedish American Museum nominee Renee Freville, 17, was recognized along with the others at a reception at the Chicago Cultural Center in advance of the Fifth Star Honors show and concert in Millennium Park on Aug. 28.

Freville was honored for her visual arts.

This great honor celebrates the creative spirit of the next generation as an essential part of Chicago's cultural life.

"Growing up as a woman in the U.S. I never had put much thought into the regular struggles we have to endure. I had always been passionate regarding the topic of sexual assault and continuously puzzled by the assumptions of the victim when the word "rape" is used," said Freville. "It was not until I began working on this piece that I looked back on my life and really thought about every time my mother told me to change my clothes because there are people out there that don't think like us."

"Every time I was walking to a friend's house and I got catcalled. Every time the topic of sexual assault became too shy of a subject to discuss. A dear friend of mine had been a victim of sexual assault. When she finally worked up the courage to tell me, the most heartbreaking thing she said was that she was embarrassed and ashamed that she could not stop it," said Freville.

"So in honor of her, I dedicate this piece to every victim that has ever felt sorry or ashamed that they were unable to do anything, because it is not their fault. Rape will never be the victims fault."

"Never completely grow up. It sounds like a silly thing to say, but as we grow older some of us forget the importance of keeping that certain bit of our childlike essence. The inspiration for this piece came when I was walking through a very peculiar garden shop located in the middle of a forest in Arkansas. I will always remember the beautiful way the sunlight shone through the trees and the smile of various flowers, but the thing that has resonated most with me is this little porcelain fairy baby. During this time I was very stressed about, what I like to look back and call, "adult issues", and this little porcelain fairy baby, so innocent and peaceful looking, it stuck with me."

"Through this piece I wanted to depict an almost dreamlike, blurry state of mind surrounding the essence of innocence. There might be dark shadows in one's life, but as long as some tiny bit of hope is kept there will be a light at the end of the tunnel."

Diabetes statistics are scary.

According to the American Diabetes Association, the percentage of Americans age 65 or older with this disease remains high at 25.2 percent, or 12 million seniors (diagnosed and undiagnosed).

Overall, 1.5 million Americans are diagnosed with diabetes every year, and it was the seventh leading cause of death in the United States as of 2015.

Additionally, average medical expenditures among people with diagnosed diabetes were 2.3 times higher than what expenditures would be in the absence of diabetes.

Statistics by race/ethnicity are especially intriguing because that also contributes to a person's overall risk. For instance, 12.7 percent of African Americans have been diagnosed with diabetes compared to 8 percent of Asian Americans.

Diabetes education

With all this in mind, the staff at Continental Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, 5336 N. Western Ave., launched a monthly diabetes education program for residents that is multi-disciplinary in its approach, combining activities, dietary information, rehabilitation therapy, and nursing departments.

Because roughly 50 percent of the residents there have diabetes, the staff believes teaching residents and also their families more about the disease will not only be beneficial, but possibly preventative, as family members learn what they need to do to avoid the disease themselves.

Now, every third Tuesday in an upstairs dining room, residents gather with the staff to learn eating tips and tricks needed to keep their blood sugar numbers within normal limits. Meetings include presentations, handouts, exercises, and healthy snacks such as fresh fruit and plain Greek yogurt – an added incentive for attending.

“When your blood sugar drops,” nursing director Tami Heidenthal explained, “your first instinct is probably to reach for some sugar. However, this creates a yo-yo effect of a sugar high, then a drop. Instead, you need to choose the right snacks when you're hungry. Don't eat because you're feeling bored. Snacking right requires planning ahead by keeping healthier choices on hand for when you want them and not automatically reaching for chips or cheese curls.”

Heidenthal also recommended that residents share the handouts they receive with their families to encourage them to bring in healthier food choices when they visit. And, she encouraged residents to invite their family members to attend meetings.

“As they learn to control their own blood sugar through healthier eating and some exercise, they will need to receive less insulin,” Heidenthal said. “Arming them with this information is empowering. They really do have more control than they might have thought.”

Smart snacking tips

The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics advises less-active individuals to choose a snack that's 200 calories or less. Fixing snacks in advance, like making your own trail mix (see sidebar), air-popped popcorn, or keeping low-fat cheese on hand are all good options.

“When people reside in a facility, family members often bring in unhealthy food choices making it harder for our residents to resist temptation,” registered dietician Michelle Rosenfeld observed. “Diabetes education gives them the tools they need for why better food choices make such an overall difference. They'll learn that fiber aids digestion and protein promotes metabolism. We offer food choice suggestions like spreading apple slices with peanut butter or choosing a sandwich made with whole wheat bread instead of white bread. It's all about reinforcing new and better eating habits as opposed to just mindlessly eating what they always have.”

Easy ideas for healthier snacking

Experiment with different combinations of foods to find the mix that satisfies your palate while also curbing your hunger. And, if your sweet teeth is really nagging for a treat, choose from seasonal fruits. Frozen or canned fruits in 100 percent juice are also good candidates.

The following ideas are from the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics. Visit eatright.org for even more inspiration.

- Make your own trail mix by combining whole grain cereals, nuts or seeds and dried fruit. Bag into quarter-cup servings for portion control.
- Blend your own smoothie by adding 1 cup fat-free milk and frozen fruit to a blender.
- Mix 3 cups air-popped popcorn with grated cheese or dried spices.
- Make a dip for raw vegetables using low-fat cottage cheese or Greek yogurt.
- Mash an avocado with salsa and eat with low-fat baked tortilla chips or spread on a whole wheat tortilla, sprinkle with low-fat cheese, then roll it up and enjoy.
- Slice a medium apple and eat with 1 tablespoon of peanut, almond, or sunflower seed butter.
- Make a tuna apple sandwich using a 5-6 ounce can of tuna packed in water, 1 small apple (peeled and sliced into chunks) and 1 tablespoon light mayo, then spread it on two slices of whole wheat bread.
- Cut a whole wheat pita into wedges and serve with 2 tablespoons of hummus or bean dip.
- Make a veggie pizza by topping a whole wheat English muffin or pita with 2 tablespoons of tomato sauce, a half-cup diced fresh veggies, and 1 ounce low-fat mozzarella cheese.

— Lynne Kornecki

At Continental, menus cycle every four weeks, refreshing residents’ options and always including seasonal choices. Additionally, food committee meetings are held monthly along with the resident council to discuss food selections, measure satisfaction, and take requests.

The dietary team also works closely with vending machine suppliers.

“We’re currently requesting that our vending machines be stocked with baked chips instead of fried ones, and more sugar-free choices,” dietary manager Michelle Cain said. “Since snacks are often included as part of activities throughout the day, the activity department depends on dietary to provide options that residents look forward to receiving, but won’t adversely affect them in any way.

“We all want our residents to be happy about the food they’re served, but also healthy in reaching their goals. It’s truly a team effort.”

Jim Stack: From napkin sketches to charcoal portraits

Jim Stack

If you had asked Clare resident Jim Stack years ago how he might fill his time during retirement, drawing most certainly would not have topped his list.

He recalls a time in grade school, when he had to sketch a tree and adorn it with papier-mâché blossoms. He remembers being chided for his inability to draw the tree properly, and he believed the experience sealed his fate: Drawing didn't seem to have a place in his future.

"I hated that project," he says. "I thought it was the silliest thing. But through my life, that was in my mind, that I couldn't even draw a tree."

When Jim retired in 2000 after a lengthy career in fundraising and public relations for hospitals, however, he found himself at a loss for what his next chapter had in store. As he contemplated what his retirement might entail, he couldn't help but consider art.

"I'm fascinated by the human face," he says. "I used to sit in restaurants and sketch out faces on napkins because it was so interesting to me—different expressions and different looks."

With an entirely new life ahead of him at The Clare and no background in art, Jim took a leap. He decided it was time to learn something about what he had always believed he couldn't do. He began taking art lessons, moving from landscapes and still life to figure and portrait drawing using charcoal and pastels. The latter captured his attention most, and he stuck with it.

While Jim was working on a portrait one day, his art teacher commented that his drawing style seemed very sculpture-esque and encouraged him to bring materials to class to mold a head. Jim obliged and found that he loved this art form as well, so he started doing some sculpting work with terra cotta clay.

"It amazes me that I've been able to do the things I've been able to do with absolutely no background," he says.

Over the years, Jim has gone from pure charcoal drawings to pastels and in the past few months, back to charcoal. Initially, he was afraid of color, but he eventually graduated into pastels. With a color blindness of browns and greens, though, it was always frustrating trying to get his drawings the way he wanted them. For that reason, he was compelled to return to charcoal.

Dana

"I was spending all my time trying to figure out the colors, and I wasn't doing the drawing the way I wanted to do it," he says. "My charcoal style is different now, too. It's a lot lighter than it was before. It's a constant learning process, and that's what keeps your mind going."

Jim maintains one strict rule in the portraits he creates: He never depicts people he knows. Rather, he sticks to models, drawing exactly what he sees, free from expectations.

"It doesn't come out the way they want," he says. "They have a certain idea of what they look like, and that may not be what I draw."

Though his subjects are strangers, he's been surprised by the emotions and stories his drawings evoke. His favorite portrait prompted a fellow Clare resident to create a backstory about the woman in the drawing. What resulted was a poem about an immigrant named Agnes.

"She saw things in that drawing that I had never thought of," Jim says. "It's hard to believe I was able to create something that would produce that kind of poem."

There's a certain element of surprise that goes along with embarking on a new drawing, too. There's always something that stands out about the model, Jim says, that makes him wonder whether he'll actually be able to get it down on paper.

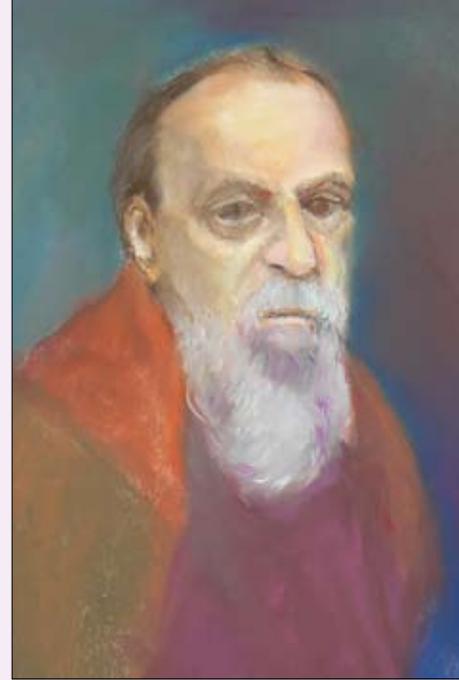

"Each time you do it, you're looking at a blank piece of paper, and you're looking at a person," he says. "What you see isn't necessarily what you've seen in the last person you drew. We've even had the same model recurring a number of times, and I always seem to see something new in the way the person looks, or the way I'd like to make him or her look."

In one instance, he drew an average man with a beard and red shawl as a Cardinal or some other religious entity. When he drew the man's wife, he thought she looked like an old-time Italian movie star and he focused on that. Other times that Jim drew the woman, he didn't take quite the same approach.

One might say Jim's creativity in his artwork stems from these interpretations. But his one wish in his drawing is that he had the ability to be freer or more abstract.

"I simply like to draw.

"I always have to have something to base my drawings on," he says. "I admire people who can take things to the next level."

In all that he does, Jim doesn't seek fame or glory. He doesn't need to put his work on display for gratification. He stores his drawings under his bed and destroys all of his sculptures.

"I don't call myself an artist even now," he says. "I simply like to draw. I do it for my own pleasure and as a challenge."

You can't predict the future.
But you can plan for it.

Police Beat....

Fake ride share driver scammed North Side bar patrons with debit card trick

A Lakeview man posed as a ride share driver and defrauded his passengers by stealing their debit cards, acquiring PINs, and later withdrawing money from ATMs, police said.

Gabriel Jackson, 49, of the 400 block of W. Barry is charged with 12 counts of operating a continuing financial crime enterprises, police said.

Authorities say Jackson would pose as a ride share driver to lure bar patrons into his car. At the end of each trip, Jackson requested a debit card, swiped it through his phone, and asked the victim to enter their PIN.

Then, Jackson would return a similar-looking debit card that did not belong to the passenger. After the victim got out of his car, Jackson would drive to an ATM and withdraw cash using the victim's real card and the PIN data that they entered, police said.

Jackson picked up passengers in the 1st, 18th, 14th, and 19th police districts, which stretch from Uptown to the Near South Side and include the Bucktown and Wicker Park areas.

Bail for Jackson was set at $50,000.

Teen charged with "Flyer Boy Robbery" — stealing phone from car stopped in Loop traffic

For over a year, Chicago police have been warning people about teams of thieves who are stealing phones from occupied cars that are stopped at traffic lights in the Loop and Mag Mile area.

Terrell Lewis

Now, there is an arrest in a related case. Interestingly, the accused man was also suspected of attempting an identical crime last winter, but charges were dropped when a key witness failed to show up in court.

Here's what we've learned:

Around 4:15 p.m. on Aug. 22, cops were flagged down near Millennium Park by a 42-year-old Highland, IN, man who said that two men reached into his car and snatched his phone while he was turning westbound onto Randolph St. at Michigan Ave.

Officers soon found Terrell Lewis, 18, running into the pedway at Randolph and Wabash. After a winding chase, police caught up with him again on the first floor of Macy's, police said. Lewis threw one phone into the street as cops approached and then threw a second phone at an approaching officer, prosecutors said.

Once Lewis was in custody, the driver was able to confirm ownership of one of the phones by entering his passcode and showing photos of himself on the phone to police.

Lewis, who lives in south suburban Robbins, is being held without bond.

Remarkably, just one week after ABC7 reported on an outbreak of thefts from occupied cars in the Loop late last year, Lewis was arrested at Madison and Columbus.

An off-duty CPD sergeant reported seeing Lewis and a second man bang on the window of a Toyota and then open the driver's door and reach inside. The sergeant honked his horn and scared both suspects away before anything was stolen, police said at the time.

Charges of reckless conduct, obstruction of traffic, and soliciting a ride on the roadway were thrown out when a witness failed to appear in court. Lewis, booked under the name Dionte Young, claimed to be 30-years-old.

In January, police said Lewis and his co-arrestee had used Subway restaurant fliers to lure drivers into lowering their windows.

Teacher slapped with federal charges for South Side ammo sales

A Chicago teacher is facing federal firearms charges for allegedly dealing ammunition and gun accessories on the city's South Side.

Brent Turpin sold an extended handgun magazine, a laser sight and two boxes of ammunition last month to a convicted felon who was cooperating with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, authorities said.

Turpin, 53, is charged with one count of conspiracy to dispose of a firearm and ammunition to a known felon, and one count of disposing of ammunition to a known felon.

Authorities described Turpin's efforts to secure a firearm for the informant at a gun show in Indiana. As the pair traveled together to the show earlier this summer, Turpin allegedly instructed the informant on what to say and do.

"If they ask you if you're from Indiana, say yes," Turpin told the informant, according to the complaint. "If they say where [are] you from, say like, say South Bend or something, or Indianapolis."

The purchase fell through when Turpin declined to present his driver's license, the complaint states.

Eight robbed across Lakeview and North Center last weekend, man pistol-whipped Eight robberies were reported across Lakeview and North Center through early Sunday morning, a brisk pace that may be largely the work of one crew, cops say.

Many of the hold-ups are believed to be connected to a single team of three or four robberies that has been working North Center, Roscoe Village, and Lakeview for nearly three weeks.

Most recently, a Lakeview man was pistol-whipped and robbed by three offenders near the Jewel-Osco at Southport and Addison around 3 a.m. last Saturday.

The man was on Addison when three men approached him and demanded his valuables. One of the offenders then struck the victim with the butt of a handgun before all three ran away with the man's wallet. The offenders—described as two Hispanic men and a black man in dark clothing who stand 5'-8" to 6' tall—were seen getting into an older model silver car, possibly a Ford Taurus.

Around 1:30 a.m. Saturday, a woman was robbed at gunpoint in the 1900 block of W. Waveland, police said. The woman reported that two men with bandanas on their faces displayed a silver handgun and took her purse, wallet, and phone before running westbound on Addison. The offenders were described as two Hispanic men who stand about 5'-9" tall and were wearing dark clothes.

Two people were mugged in separate armed robberies in the 1900 block of W. Warner around 11:30 p.m. Saturday. One victim was struck in the head. Once again, three offenders wearing dark clothing covered their faces and robbed the victims while armed with two handguns. The offenders took a pizza, a phone, and other valuables from the victims. The three were said to be Hispanic men.

Three men robbed another man around 11 p.m. Saturday in the 2900 block of N. Seminary. Once again, two handguns were pointed at the victim by male offenders who covered their faces with masks or rags. The three Police seek driver after hit and run on Lake Shore Dr.

The Chicago Police Department's Major Accident Investigation Unit is asking for the public's help in finding a driver who fled the scene of a hit-and-run on Lake Shore Dr. early Thursday.

A 58-year-old woman was critically wounded when she was struck as she walked southbound in the northbound lanes of Lake Shore Dr. near Waveland at 3:59 a.m. on Thursday, police said.

fled westbound in the south alley of George St. in a silver car that may be an older Ford Taurus.

Finally, in a case that is not believed to be related to the other five, a victim was jumped and robbed Saturday evening near the 19th District Town Hall police station. The victim told police that they were in the 900 block of W. Addison around 8:20 p.m. when two teenage offenders attacked him and took an Apple iPhone. The victim said the robbers were a 5'-7"-tall, 17-year-old black male in a black sweatshirt and a 13-15-year-old black female in a white tee shirt.

Two people were robbed Friday evening in Lakeview and North Center. Both cases are believed to be related to the three-man team that has been striking across the area in recent weeks.

Around 10:45 p.m. Friday, two men pulled out a handgun and approached the Lakeview man as he exited an Uber in the 1600 block of W. Barry, police said. The offenders took the man's phone and cash before fleeing westbound on Barry.

The robbers were two black men in their 20's, the victim said. One of them was on a bike.

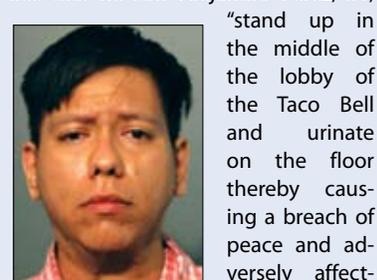

At 10:47 p.m. Friday, a woman reported that two men in hoodies tried to rob her at gunpoint in the 1900 block of W. Cornelia. She told police that she escaped after noticing that the gun had an orange safety tip, possibly indicating that it was not a real firearm.

She described the offenders as two white or Hispanic men in their late teens or early 20's. Both wore dark jackets and had average builds. They were last seen running northbound on Wolcott.

Prosecutors: man "adversely affected dining experience" at Wrigleyville Taco Bell

A West Ridge man is charged with disorderly conduct, accused of relieving himself in the Wrigleyville Taco Bell's dining room shortly after midnight on Aug. 19.

A restaurant security guard told police that he saw Alejandro Perez, 31,

Alejandro Perez

"stand up in the middle of the lobby of the Taco Bell and urinate on the floor thereby causing a breach of peace and adversely affecting the health and safety of other patrons' dining experience," according to the police report.

Prosecutors went on to describe Perez's actions to be of "such unreasonable manner as to alarm and disturb the customers." He was released on a $120 I-Bond.

Perez is surely not the first to be accused of letting loose in the restaurant at 1111 W. Addison. But he may be one of the last. Plans have been announced to close the restaurant to make way for a retail development in 2018.

Boystown burglar's prolific past should be considered in court, say prosecutors

Prosecutors are asking a judge to let them introduce evidence of previous crimes committed by a man who's accused of breaking into a Boystown pizza joint last winter.

The vehicle, possibly a GMC Terrain or similar model, continued away from the scene.

Police said the driver's side rearview mirror was broken off of the SUV and the vehicle should have extensive damage to the driver's side, front end, and hood.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to call Major Accidents at 312-745-4521.

Phillip Kordowski, 51, has been sentenced to a combined 112 years in prison since 1983, mostly for burglary. Now, prosecutors want to introduce evidence from some of those earlier cases to help them win a stronger conviction in the Boystown case.

Police said Kordowski is suspected of burglarizing several other Lakeview businesses—including Ald. Tom Tunney's Ann Sather Restaurant on Broadway early this year.

He is currently charged with breaking out a window and rummaging through two cash registers at Venicci Pizza, 3343 N. Halsted, on March 4.

In a new filing, prosecutors asked the judge to let them admit evidence of Kordowski's other convictions because "the crimes bear a striking similarity to each other despite occurring years apart."

At Venicci, Kordowski was caught on video burglarizing a restaurant close to his home in the morning, gaining access by breaking a glass door and then rifling through the cash register, the filing says.

Among the cases that prosecutors want to introduce:

- The July 28, 2008, robbery of Fullerton Food and Liquor eight blocks from Kordowski's home. He was sentenced to 12 years for that case.

- The burglary of Lemmings Tavern at 1850 N. Damen in 2007. Kordowski received 12 years in that case for allegedly breaking a window and climbing inside to steal cigarettes and booze.

- The burglary of Burning Leaf Cigar shop at 1648 N. Damen in which Kordowski allegedly broke a side window and climbed inside to steal cash in 2007. Again, Kordowski received a 12-year sentence.

- The November 2002 burglary of Wilton Cleaners at 2030 N. Damen in which Kordowski broke a window and climbed inside to steal cash from the register. He received an eight year sentence.

- The November 2002 burglary of D&D Food and Liquor at 2006 W. Division in which he broke through a window and stole $150 from the register. Again, Kordowski was sentenced to eight years.

- A July 2002 case in which Kordowski broke into a garage in the 2300 block of N. Southport and stole $500 worth of meat from a freezer, receiving an eight-year sentence.

- A February 2001 burglary in which Kordowski broke into a home in the 3000 block of N. Austin and stole a cell phone. He received a three-year sentence.

In addition to those cases, state records show that Kordowski has also received the following sentences: eight years for burglary in 2002; another eight years for burglary in 2002; five years for residential burglary in 1996; four years for burglary in 1996; five years for receiving/possessing a stolen vehicle in 1996; another four years for receiving/possessing a stolen vehicle in 1996; three years for retail theft in 1994; two years for theft in 1989; another two years for theft in 1989; four years for burglary in 1983, and another four years for burglary in 1983.

Ride share driver pulled gun on Lakeview East couple

A ride share driver is facing charges after she allegedly pulled a handgun on two passengers during an argument in the 400 block of W. Melrose early Friday.

A Lakeview East couple took a picture of the driver with her gun and called police at 2:03 a.m., a CPD spokesperson said.

Cops caught up with the car at Addison and Broadway moments later.

Jaleesa Rance, 25, of Aurora is charged with two misdemeanor counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and one misdemeanor count of unlawful use of a weapon on a public street. A handgun was recovered from her vehicle, according to police.

Rance was identified by the two men, ages 31 and 26, police said.

Uptown burglary victim decides to play detective — and has incredible luck

A 55-year-old Uptown burglary victim decided to do a little detective work of his own last Monday. And he had the darnedest luck.

He told police that he decided to swing by the "Just Pawn" store at 4509 N. Sheridan to see if he could locate any of his stolen property being offered for sale.

About a block before he reached the pawn shop, the victim saw two men on the street—and one of them, now known to be Nicholas Nikolovski, was carrying his stolen brown tool bag. He confronted the two men and Nikolovski fled, dropping some of the victim's property on the way, police said.

Cops were able to track Nikolovski down at his home in the 4300 block of N. Kenmore—mainly because the victim just happens to be the building's maintenance man.

Nikolovski is charged with one count of theft of lost or mislaid property.

Bad: gunman shot at you Good: You didn't get hit Bad: Cops say you have a warrant

It's a case of "good news, bad news" for two men whose car was shot up last week in Lincoln Park.

The men—both reputed gang members according to a police source—were in a car near Ashland and Fullerton when someone in a passing car opened fire on them around 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

The victims sped away and later met up with police.

Cops found two bullet holes in the men's car, but neither man was injured. Shell casings were recovered in the 2300 block of N. Ashland.

Unfortunately, the passenger had an outstanding warrant and was taken away from the scene in handcuffs.

Police said the gunman fired from a dark Toyota Camry that was heading south on Ashland.

Liquor store robber arrested three days later when witness sees him on street

A Lakeview man who robbed a liquor store near his home with a butcher knife was arrested three days later when a witness saw him on the street, police said.

Jacque Thompson, 40, of the 700 block of W. Diversey robbed the Parkwest Food Mart, 2733 N. Halsted St., around 7:45 p.m. last Monday, police said.

A witness and a store employee followed Thompson until he fled into his nearby apartment building and then ducked out the back door, according to police records.

But Thompson's getaway didn't last long. A witness to the robbery

Celebrating Japanese pop culture is becoming more popular than ever in the U.S. and it's making a distinctive mark in Chicago including conventions and meet up groups.

At its most recent and largest outing ever, Anime Midwest hosted every July is one of the biggest and most event-packed anime conventions in the country. Founded in Jan. 2011 in St. Charles, the event is currently held at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare in Rosemont, with this year's crowd almost reaching 15,000 attendees. As with current comic book conventions, anime conventions have appeared around the world and attendance increases at a robust pace.

Here on the North Side another group named AnimeChicago hosts two social events and six discussion groups every month for both new adult fans and seasoned veterans alike. On their website fans will find member essays, reviews and a guide of upcoming events in Chicago like their Symposium Series and theater screenings. The group says they're more than just an anime club, more like a community nexus for all things Japanese.

The term "anime" is an abbreviated Japanese term for hand-drawn or computer animation. The earliest commercial Japanese animation dates to 1917, and Japanese anime production has since continued to increase steadily.

Anime Midwest organizer Ryan Kopfs says that the range of events include 'Cosplay,' or costume play, anime screenings, an artist alley, a cosplay masquerade contest, date auction, dealers room, fan panels, formal dance, guest autographs, karaoke, Maid Cafe, rave dances, pachinko machines, and video game tournaments.

Anime Midwest also features concerts each year, with their first concert featuring Otaku band Leet-Street Boys. The past two year's concerts have been headlined by Steam Powered Giraffe. Performers often include Nerdcore rappers or bands related to Otaku culture.

Many panels and workshops cover careers in voice acting, comic book creating and publishing, YouTube videos, armor crafting, costumes, and video gaming. One of the perks of the show is free rice, oatmeal, Ramen noodles, and soda for attendees. "This tradition dates back to the science fiction conventions of the last few decades," said Kopfs.

The exhibit hall features vendors with tons of anime swag with dealers selling everything from costumes and corsets to pocky and DVDs. Unrivaled by any other convention, AnimeCon.org's Fabulous Date Auction is a chance to win a date to the formal ball. The 20-con veteran hosts auction off other cosplayers to the highest bidder. Money goes towards improving the con, and 10% of all winning bids is donated to charity.

The convention celebrates the history of anime with studio Q&A panels. The anime industry consists of over 430 production studios, including major names like Studio Ghibli, Gainax, and Toei Animation. Anime is an art form, specifically animation, that includes all genres found in cinema, but it can be mistakenly classified as a genre. The characteristic anime art style emerged in the 1960s with the works of Osamu Tezuka and spread internationally in the late twentieth century, developing a large domestic and international audience.

AnimeCon.org also organizes several anime events each year including the biggest winter anime convention in Illinois, AnimeZAP!, which brings together over 1,000+ anime fans for a three-day anime convention celebration every January in Peoria. AnimeCon.org organizes conventions that are built entirely by fans, for fans, and considered events for social gatherings, not marketing expos. For more information visit AnimeCon.org.

Light Reads is where members of AnimeChicago Meetup to discuss monthly light novel selections from Japan. The collection of light novels will be an eclectic mix, and will range from fiction to non-fiction in all categories. This is structured in the style of a monthly book club meeting. The books will be posted in advance for all members to pick up and read before gathering for a discussion. The novels chosen for discussion will be either one-shot novels or a novel series. Anime Chicago's website is at animechicago.com and the meetup group page can be found at animechicago.club.

Chicago's Potemkin Village: why our innovation economy has failed, and how to fix it Since 2012, Chicago has built an estimated 1.5 million square feet of coworking spaces, and about 80 or 90 incubators and accelerators. But according a business incubator expert, by any reasonable measure of success, this massive effort has not translated into a competitive market for advanced industries.

Chicago has not grown its share of the national venture capital market, nor brought more national investment into the region for the purposes of advancing technology according to Thomas Day, managing partner of Invent2026, a new nonprofit economic venture promoting a new Midwest Innovation Corridor rooted in applied research, technology transfer, entrepreneurship, and a lab-to-product value chain.

Day will speaking about how to leverage the region's applied research laboratories to build new industries in Chicago--new batteries, sensors for smart farming and monitoring toxins in water, and advanced materials -- to reassert Chicago's presence in the new economy, during a program 7 p.m. Tuesday Sept. 12 at The Radler, 2375 N Milwaukee Ave.

"Chicago has not kept pace with changes in our industrial economy," says Day. "Once there were 200,000 Chicagoans employed manufacturing steel; now there are none. With what have we replaced these legacy industries?"

Day hopes to help lead a Midwest innovation corridor rooted in invention, technology transfer, and entrepreneurship. Beginning this Fall, in partnership with the Women's Business Development Center, Invent2026 will be supporting the InventIllinois partnership, a program to support entrepreneurs and small business owners who are commercializing inventions generated from applied research laboratories.

Day was on the initial team that built The Bunker (now Bunker Labs), a business incubator for military-veteran entrepreneurs, and was a Research Assistant at the Paulson Institute at the Univ. of Chicago. He served in the U.S. Army as a Military Journalist, deployed with the 101st Airborne during the invasion of Iraq and occupation of Mosul.

Details Tuesday, September 12, 2017, 7:00 p.m. The talk is open to guests of all ages, and walk ins are welcome, but advance registration requested.

SECURITY FIRM from p. 1

rector Maureen Martino's told the city, over the course of a 20-month relationship with A&T Security LLC, there were exactly two emails between her group and the River Forest firm: both were incoming invoices.

A "Realty" Show

On paper, A&T Security is owned by Amanda Walsh and her brother, Thomas Walsh Jr., according to state records. Neither A&T nor the Walsh siblings are licensed to contract security services according to the Illinois Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation (IDFPR).

City employees are strictly prohibited from having an ownership stake in any "contract, work, business or sale" paid with taxpayer funds. A Chicago Fire Dept. battalion chief made headlines in 2012 after the city learned that he had received more than $250,000 from North Side SSAs in North Center and Lincoln Square in exchange for snow plowing services over the course of three years.

Amanda and Thomas Jr.'s father is a long-time community policing officer in the CPD's Town Hall station at 850 W. Addison.

Beginning in Jan. 2015, the LVECC sent an average of $3,000 a month in taxpayer money to A&T for security guard services. The checks were mailed to a River Forest real estate company where the Walsh children's mother—Officer Walsh's ex-wife—was working, according to paperwork filed in an unrelated federal case. Walsh Jr. also possesses a state real estate broker's license.

Unlike his children, Officer Walsh is a state-licensed private security contractor and his firm, Walsh Security LLC, is a fully-licensed private security contractor agency, according to IDFPR.

Serendipitous photographs taken by newspaper sources, the general public, and the Chicago Tribune show Walsh Security personnel handling assignments that A&T received tax money to perform.

This reporter first contacted Martino about A&T in early July. She responded that "Thomas Walsh the police officer is not the business owner of A&T security... Although we are not working with his firm, he has done a tremendous job in responding to crime issues for the businesses in [the 19th District] over the years."

On Aug. 1, we asked for help in understanding why Walsh Security personnel would show up to provide services that A&T received payment for. So far nobody from the Chamber has responded.

"I'm not trying to avoid any of your question! [sic]" Walsh Sr. wrote on Aug. 25. "I would really like to sit down with my son and daughter and yourself and show you how my son Tom Jr. took the Illinois State Security Contractors test & PASSED!"

Instead, we asked Walsh to simply send Tom Jr.'s contractor license number so we could rectify the purported discrepancy with state regulators. He did not reply. Nor did A&T when we contacted them for the same information.

Contracting Prohibited

The taxpayer funds that A&T received via LVECC came from SSA#8 property taxes. The monies are raised through a special property tax assessment which is then entrusted to a local non-profit overseen by mayorally-appointed commissioners for use in improving streetscapes, business conditions, marketing, advertising and security.

SSA #8, which hired A&T, covers parts of Halsted, Broadway, Belmont, Diversey, and Clark in the Lakeview East neighborhood.

City employees are strictly prohibited from having an ownership stake in any "contract, work, business or sale" paid with taxpayer funds. A Chicago Fire Dept. battalion chief made headlines in 2012 after the city learned that he had received more than $250,000 from North Side SSAs in North Center and Lincoln Square in exchange for snow plowing services over the course of three years.

Since Walsh Security LLC is owned by Thomas Walsh Sr., a city employee, it would be prohibited from taking on work funded by SSA tax money.

But A&T Security and Walsh's children are not licensed to provide security services. So, who showed up to perform the taxpayer-funded security work?

The LVECC's largest annual event is the Festival of the Arts, a weekend street festival held along Broadway each September. Last year, $10,995 of SSA #8's funds went to A&T for security services at the event.

Yet many of the security guards who worked that weekend were wearing Walsh Security identifiers. Why? Neither the Chamber, A&T, nor Walsh Security would say.

And in July 2016, the Chicago Tribune dispatched a reporter and photographer to Lakeview East for a story about SSA-funded security patrols.

Video and photographs that accompany the report show the LVECC security team to be comprised of armed guards who regularly work for Walsh Security.

The Tribune identifies one of the Lakeview East guards on duty that day as James Jurewicz, a fully-licensed security guard who frequently patrols Boystown's nightlife district with a Walsh Security team.

During a Boystown patrol in Oct. 2015, Jurewicz was instrumental in the apprehension of a robbery offender. Police identified him in the arrest report as "JUREWICZ (AGENT FOR WALSH SECURITY), James."

Video accompanying the Tribune story also shows another armed guard working for the SSA. That man, who is also fully-licensed by the state, often works as security at the Center on Halsted or the adjoining Whole Foods. Both establishments contract with Walsh Security for services, according to tax and court records. We are withholding the second guard's name as he apparently asked the Tribune not to publish it.

Officer Walsh and Martino reportedly have a personal friendship, often grabbing dinner, drinks, and going to social events together according to acquaintances and social media postings. In a FOIA response, the city said Martino reported that the elder Walsh never represented A&T business.

Same Thing Only Different

During our investigation, we learned that SSA#8 is not the only local community group that is paying A&T for services that appear to be provided by Walsh Security.

This summer, a member of the Northalsted Business Alliance provided our reporters with information showing that the Boystown business group actually pays A&T Security—the unlicensed firm owned by Walsh's children—for safety patrols along the Halsted St. bar strip. But, once again, guards who wear Walsh Security identifiers, including Thomas Walsh Sr. himself, provide the services.

Unlike SSA#8, Northalsted does not use any tax money to pay for its patrols and city employees would not be prohibited from contracting with them directly as long as the deal does not conflict with other city ethics laws. Northalsted stopped using SSA funds for security in 2014, the same year that A&T (or Walsh) began providing its patrol services, the group said in a FOIA response.

On May 29, 2014, Scarlet bar owner Paul Cannella sent an email to Northalsted members. In it, he announced that the alliance had hired Officer Walsh's company. But when the Alliance sent out a press release later that day, the company was identified as A&T and Walsh was not mentioned.

Why does a group of businesses pay an unlicensed security firm for services that are ultimately provided by an otherwise properly-licensed company? Cannella referred all questions to Northalsted Executive Director Chad Honeycutt. Honeycutt, alliance Director of Operations Eric Santiago; and Vice President Stu Zirin did not respond to multiple requests for information about the group's security arrangements.

A source familiar with the Alliance's operations in 2014 said they believed A&T was used because "the Alliance was sensitive to the issues with Walsh and the possible conflict with [his work in the police department]."

Earlier this year we reported that Officer Walsh's position as the 19th District's police "business liaison" put him in the potentially conflicting position of handling complaints against businesses that funded his private security patrols through Northalsted.

A sergeant now serves as the 19th District's business liaison and Walsh has been reassigned to handle court advocacy, the CPDP says.

In preparation for this report, this reporter asked Martino and the city's Dept. of Planning and Development to help us contact the politically-appointed commissioners of SSA #8 so we could learn more about how A&T Security came to be selected to receive almost $60,000 for security services. Neither responded.

Ward Ald. Tom Tunney [44th], who recommended the commissioners for their appointments, also refused to put us in touch with the commissioners, all of whom are public officials.

We contacted Amanda Walsh and Tom Walsh Jr. five times at the email address on their company's invoices. We also contacted each of them twice on Facebook. They did not reply.

Déjà vu: not Walsh's first dance with unlicensed security

In late 2012, The Windy City Times [WCT] published a report about Walsh Security LLC. At the time, Walsh Security and its owner, Thomas Walsh Sr., were not properly licensed to contract security work in Illinois, the paper reported. That's the exact same position that A&T Security LLC, operated by Walsh's children, is now in, regulators say.

The paper published a sidebar detailing its reporter's exchanges with Walsh Sr., whose company was under contract to provide security at the Center On Halsted in 2012. Walsh's company continues to service that contract, grossing over $130,000 in 2015 and 2016,

Not security;"unarmed community ambassadors"

Paying over $59,000 to a company named "A&T Security" for work invoiced as "security," "guards," and "security guards" would seem to be straightforward evidence that the LVECC and SSA #8 expected to receive security services in exchange for the taxpayer's money.

But when our reporters asked the city's Dept. of Planning and Development for a copy of A&T's security contractor license—the mandatory license that state regulators say the company does not have—we received a response born ready for the Spin Hall of Fame.

Suddenly the city claimed that A&T didn't provide security services after all. They "acted as unarmed Community Ambassadors."

Armed or not, state law defines security services very clearly. Whether they're called security guards, patrolmen, or "any other title or name."

Furthermore, in Dec. 2014, a Chamber newsletter announced the addition of security patrols:

"Lake View East Chamber of Commerce and Special Service Area #8 has acquired additional security for our area every Thursday-Sunday for the month of December until Christmas Eve."

A&T Security received $3,550 for that "additional security," according to accounting records reviewed by this newspaper.

The newly-coined "Community Ambassadors" were referred to as "the private security team" hired to "monitor the business district" in SSA #8's meeting minutes from 2015.

In March 2016, SSA #8's meeting minutes include the following entry:

"CRIME and SECURITY: We will start-up our private security patrol again in the Spring to walk the district and monitor crime in the district."

Once again, A&T provided that "private security patrol," according to SSA #8's accounting records.

In a video recorded by the Chicago Tribune last July, Martino refers to having a "security budget" that pays for "security officers." The "unarmed Community Ambassadors" are shown wearing reflective vests that say "Security Lakeview East SSA #8." Two of the four "unarmed Community Ambassadors" are armed with handguns.

Late last year, SSA #8 and the LVECC changed security providers in favor of HSLA, Inc, a fully-licensed Private Security Contractor Agency, according to Illinois regulators.

POLICE BEAT from p. 12

called police after seeing him in the 700 block of W. Diversey last Thursday evening. Cops caught up with Thompson and took him into custody. He was later identified by the store clerk in a photo line-up, police said.

Thompson, a member of the Black P Stones street gang, is charged with Class X armed robbery. A judge set his bail at $450,000.

Career burglar—carrying TV down a Lakeview street—busted again

A Near West Side man, convicted seven times for burglary, is back in jail today, caught red-handed walking down a Lakeview street with a stolen TV, cops say.

Samuel Maldonado, 54, was arrested just after 1 p.m. Saturday in the 4300 block of N. Clark St.

Police were in the area after a woman reported seeing someone break into her neighbor's garden apartment in the 1400 block of W. Hutchinson. Maldonado was stopped five minutes later with a TV set on the corner of Clark and Berteau, according to authorities.

Maldonado was taken into custody after being identified as the person who unlawfully entered the residence, according to Officer Christine Calace of the police department's Office of Communications.

Maldonado—who was paroled in early March after serving two years of a four-year sentence for theft—is being held in lieu of $250,000 bail.

About 20 minutes before the basement break-in a man was seen breaking into another home in the 1400 block of W. Irving Park Rd. A neighbor on that block stopped the burglar and reclaimed a TV that he had taken from the victim's home, police said.

The Irving Park burglar was described as a 50-year-old Hispanic man wearing a gray shirt who entered through a window.

Maldonado has a lengthy prison record dating back to the 1980's, according to state records. Before his most recent theft sentence, he was sent to prison for: 10 years for burglary in 2009; six years for burglary in 2006; eight years for burglary in 2002; six years for burglary in 1999; six years for burglary in 1996; four years for narcotics in 1987; four years for burglary in 1987, and four years for attempted burglary in 1987.

Another armed robbery inside Lincoln Park—sixth mugging since June 28

Another armed robbery within a small, normally peaceful corner of Lincoln Park raises the number of muggings in the lakefront retreat to six since June 28.

Incredibly, that's more robberies than that slice of parkland has seen in any full year since at least 2000.

But the police department hasn't said anything to the public about the problem.

Around 7:45 Aug. 30, four young teenagers pulled out a handgun and robbed the latest victim near the Alexander Hamilton statue in the 2700 block of N. Cannon Dr. All four then climbed into a silver Honda Accord and fled southbound.

The offenders are described only as three white teenage boys and one white teenage girl.

Here are the dates and times of the other five hold-ups and details of each incident:

- 12:36 a.m. on June 28 in the 2400 block of N. Lakeview. The victim was robbed at gunpoint on the sidewalk.

- 10:25 p.m. on July 25 in the 2600 block of N. Cannon Dr.: Two offenders stopped and tried to rob a man on the street. But the would-be victim fled and called police, leaving the criminals empty-handed.

He described the offenders as either two Hispanic men or one Hispanic and one white man. One wore a red jersey, and the other wore a black jersey. Both were last seen running southbound on Cannon Dr.

- 10:30 p.m. on Aug. 1 in the 2400 block of N. Lakeview. Three men hopped out of a minivan, pushed a man to the ground, and robbed him outside of the Peggy Notebaert Nature Museum.

The men implied that they had a gun as they took the man's valuables and climbed back into their silver Chrysler Town & Country, which was driven by a fourth person. The victim could describe the robbers only as Hispanic men.

- 5:20 a.m. on Aug. 16 in the 2400 block of N. Stockton. A local man was robbed as he waited for a 151 Sheridan bus in the 2400 block of N. Stockton Dr. He told police that a man in a white Dodge Caravan drove up, pulled out a semi-automatic handgun, and demanded his valuables.

The offender got the victim's lunch box and an Under Armour-brand gym bag containing two cell phones and a laptop, according to police. The van, which had damage to the front driver's side door, was last seen heading north on Clark St.

Police said the offender was a younger black man who stands 5'-4" to 5'-8" tall. He had braids and wore a black jacket with black pants.

- 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 19 in the 2500 block of N. Lakeview. The offender pulled out a knife and robbed the victim on a sidewalk in the 2500 block of N. Lakeview. No offender description is available.

Facing coke dealing charge, teen found with loaded handgun in Uptown park

Another gun is off of Uptown's streets after a police surveillance mission found an accused cocaine dealer with a handgun in Clarendon Park on Saturday evening.

Officers were covertly monitoring a group of ten Conservative Vice Lords in the park around 7 p.m. when 18-year-old Shannon Moore, 18, stepped behind a planter and stuffed an object into his waistband, police said.

Moore fled when cops approached, but he was quickly apprehended and a handgun with an extended magazine containing 20 live rounds was found in his waist, prosecutors say. The gun was reported stolen on April 29 in Marion, IL, investigators said.

At the time of his arrest on Saturday, Moore was out on bail after being smacked with a Class X felony charge of manufacture-delivery of cocaine in the 4500 block of N. Sheridan on Aug. 9.

He has now picked up new charges of aggravated unlawful use of a loaded firearm; resisting police; and violation of Class X bail bond.

Officers say Moore told him that he had the gun "for protection to go home with" and that he had found it under a garbage can.

Bail for Moore, who lives in Edgewater, is now set at $350,000.

Duo burglarized Navy Pier Ben & Jerry's twice, say cops; "Fleeing with all of the store's money bags"

Have you heard about the two 19-year-olds who burglarized Navy Pier's Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream Shop last month? Cops say the duo stole all of the store's cash on July 24 and they didn't waffle before going back for s'more the next week.

We've got the scoop. Cops say surveillance video showed Carlos Ortiz working as the lookout while Keshana Jarrett jumped the counter of the ice cream stand about an hour after it closed on July 24. Jarrett was seen walking to a back area and then fleeing with all of the store's money bags, police said.

Police declined to say exactly how much was taken but reported that it was equal to all of the cash taken in by the shop on Sunday, July 23, when the temperature reached 93-degrees.

A week later, Ortiz and Jarrett both hopped the store's counter at 12:40 a.m. and took money bags that contained the store's cash receipts from Sunday, July 30, prosecutors say.

The 30th was another 93-degree day at Navy Pier, which is consistently ranked as Illinois' most-attended tourist attraction.

Once again, police declined to say how much money was taken.

Jarrett worked at the shop as a cashier, police said. She was carrying $253 cash when she was arrested on Aug. 16.

Ortiz of the Ashburn neighborhood and Jarrett of the Chatham area are both free after posting $25,000 bond.

Jowan Akins

Loop robberies

Police are warning of store robberies during the month of August in the Loop. Three or four offenders entered retail cell phone stores with the intent of committing theft of cell phones from the display counter.

Attempts were made at stores in the 200 block of S. LaSalle St. 6:15 p.m. Aug. 22, and again 11:51 a.m. Aug. 28 at a store in the 200 block of W. Monroe St.

In both incidents, one offender implied a handgun and verbally threatened employees. The police describe the perpetrators as black males aged between 15 and 17 years old and 5'-5" and 5'-7" tall.

The ol' stomping ground

Last year, he was convicted of burglary and sentenced to four years in prison. But Cook County Judge Timothy Chambers cut Jowan Akins, 21, a break by letting him go to Cook County "boot camp" instead.

Five months later, Akins was freed—out on parole less than seven months after burglarizing a home in the 3300 block of W. Cullom in the Albany Park neighborhood.

Last Tuesday, Akins was arrested in Albany Park again shortly after a man confronted him inside of an apartment around 3:30 p.m. The victim told police that his wallet containing two $20-bills was missing from his kitchen table.

Armed with a description of the prowler, cops stopped Akins nearby and the victim was then able to identify him as the intruder, police said. Akins is now charged with one count of felony burglary. His bail is set at $150,000.

Robbery offenders busted after they run to the wrong train line

Don't ya just hate it when inexperienced robbers run to a Brown Line station in search of a Red Line train?

Two boys who aren't too familiar with Chicago's easy-as-pie train system are facing robbery charges after beating and robbing a woman in Lakeview Monday night, police said.

The 26-year-old victim had just left work at a popular Southport venue when the two offenders beat her up and stole her purse near Addison and Janssen at 11 p.m.

Both offenders made a crucial mistake in their escape: They ran to the Brown Line station at Southport when they desperately needed a Red Line train. A CTA worker remembered the boys and sent police scurrying toward nearby Red Line stations at Addison and Belmont.

Officers caught up with the duo near Seminary and Belmont, about a block from the Belmont stop. The victim's property was later found at the Southport station, police said.

No further information is expected to be released about the case because both offenders are juveniles.

Men pepper-sprayed and robbed in Lakeview

Two people were pepper-sprayed and robbed in separate attacks early Wednesday in Lakeview East. Police believe the same group of four people is responsible for both crimes, which unfolded in less than 45 minutes along the Halsted St. bar strip in Boystown.

Around 1:30 a.m., police were flagged down by a robbery victim at Belmont and Halsted. The 31-year-old Lakeview man was walking on the 3400 block of N. Halsted when a group of three men and a woman approached and sprayed him with mace and struck him to the ground, police said.

While the victim was on the ground, the offenders took property including a cell phone and the victim's wallet, the CPD said.

A man found near Halsted and Newport was later identified as taking part in the victim's battery, according to police. Clifton Balentine, 24, of the Englewood neighborhood was charged with one misdemeanor count of battery. He is due in court today at Belmont and Western.

No one else is in custody. The offenders were described as three black men and a black woman with slender builds, all about 20-years-old.

About 45 minutes before the 31-year-old was robbed, a passer-by found a man writhing in pain in a bush at Halsted and Aldine.

The man told police that he had been pepper-sprayed and robbed by at least one person, but he could offer few details. Police said the victim refused to file a report because he had grown agitated and just wanted to get home.

Lincoln Square bank guard pepper-sprayed, tackled, handcuffed robber, FBI says

A Chicago man charged with robbing a Lincoln Square bank on Aug. 7 may want to consider a different line of work.

For the fourth time since 2009, Victor Delfi was charged last week with bank robbery in federal court.

An FBI agent told the court that Delfi approached a teller at the Albany Bank, 4400 N. Western Ave., around 9 a.m. last Monday and said, "give me your money... No dye!" The teller turned around and saw a man wearing a nude nylon mask over his face at the teller counter, the agent said.

Delfi stuffed $1,340 into his bag and walked toward the exit where the bank security guard blasted Delfi with pepper spray, "tackled him to the ground and handcuffed him," according to the federal complaint.

Chicago police got a jump start on the robbery after a witness flagged down officers to report that a man wearing a mask had just walked into the bank.

The officers rushed to the bank and found Delfi already lying on the floor in handcuffs, according to the FBI.

Delfi was treated and released for shoulder pain at a nearby hospital, the FBI said. He later waived his Miranda rights and admitted to robbing the bank, according to the criminal complaint.

Delfi had good reason to mention that he didn't want a dye pack on Monday. The three other times he's robbed banks, the tellers included explosive packs in the money—ruining his opportunity to spend the loot.

In June 2009, Delfi woke up, bought a pair of pantyhose, put them over his face, and robbed a Lincoln Park Savings branch. He was arrested when he later tried to deposit dye-stained money into his own bank account, according to court records.

After serving a portion of a 33-month sentence for the hold-up, Delfi was released. And he quickly set about robbing two more banks—both of which gave him money with explosive dye packs inside, according to reports.

He was arrested when cops searching for the latest robbery suspect found Delfi sitting in a house with a backpack full of red-stained cash.

A court gave Delfi a 6-1/2 year sentence for the 2012 heist. He was released early and then failed to show up for a post-release appointment this summer.

Man threatened trio with knife in Boystown

An Englewood man is charged with threatening two men and one of their teenage sons with a knife in Boystown early Saturday morning.

Deonte Jackson, 24, became verbally aggressive toward the victims outside of Taco Burrito Palace, 3507 N. Halsted, around 5:30 a.m., police said. He then followed the three to a nearby parking lot while clutching a knife near his waistband, asking "Do you have a problem?" according to prosecutors.

Cops responded quickly and found Jackson moments later in the 700 block of W. Brompton. Officers found a knife in his possession, and all three victims identified Jackson, cops said.

He is charged with three counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and possession of a deadly weapon. He is free on bail.

Heroin supplier, murderer sentenced

A federal judge has sentenced a violent drug trafficker to 37 years in prison for supplying large amounts of heroin to Chicago's West Side and murdering a friend who cooperated with law enforcement.

For seven years David Price, 38, operated a violent drug operation responsible for supplying more than 90 kilograms of heroin to open-air markets, federal prosecutors said. Price was "motivated by greed and his love for money," they said.

His management style was ruthless. Price personally murdered a former business partner who was co-operating with law enforcement

Germany's audacious master float builder

Chicago's DANK Haus, 4740 N. Western Ave., is opening a new museum exhibit 7 p.m. Thursday showcasing the work and creative process of Germany's master float builder, Jacques Tilly.

For more than 30 years, Tilly has designed impressive floats for one of Germany's largest Carnival parades: the Shrove Monday parade that takes place in Düsseldorf, a city in the Rhineland that is considered to be a major stronghold of the German Carnival tradition.

Tilly's floats have gained prominence in Germany and abroad by taking on current issues and transforming the works into striking images and provocative scenes.

Tilly's artwork challenges established social norms and taboos. Of course, his artwork has often led to frequent controversies about the limits of humor.

This exhibit will be hosted in the Scharpenberg Gallery at the DANK Haus through Sept. 15 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will present an overview of Tilly's work by showcasing large-scale photographs of his most famous floats.

Thursday's grand opening will include Tilly himself, and on Saturday, Tilly will be the guest of honor on the DANK float at this year's von Steuben Parade in Lincoln Square.

The Instigation Festival returns featuring over 30 performers from New Orleans and Chicago

Improviser/guitarist Steve Marquette and dancer/producer Marie Casimir are bringing together a group of more than 30 Chicago and New Orleans musicians, dancers, performers and a video artist at multiple venues across the city starting Thursday as part of the "The Instigation Festival."

The goal of the festival is to expand upon the ongoing exchange between Chicago and New Orleans creative communities through interdisciplinary performance.

This annual fest of improvised music and dance features more than 20 of the best improvisers from both cities, ranging from Chicago saxophonist Ken Vandermark and electronic artist Damon Locks, strings/vocal Macie Stewart, choreographer Onye Ozuzu and New Orleans trombonist Jeff Albert, cellist Helen Gillet, and dancer/choreographer Maritza Mercado-Narcisse.

Marquette and Casimir launched this festival in Chicago in Sept., 2016, testing out the model of two-city collaboration. After a solid week of work including a sold-out Constellation show, they traveled with Chicago performers to New Orleans in early February of this year, receiving an equally warm reception from the Nola crowd.

Ticket prices vary but full festival passes are available for $30. For more information visit www.ConstellationChicago.com.

Opioid overdose deaths still on the rise

Stunning 910% increase deaths between 2013 and 2016

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health (IDPH) has issued a warning about the alarming trend in opioid overdose deaths. Recent analysis of Illinois death records shows that overdose deaths involving synthetic opioids, such as fentanyl, have increased more than any other category of opioids.

In Cook County, close to 1,100 people died of drug overdoses in 2016, compared to 693 the year before. Fentanyl or fentanyl analogs were responsible for 562 of the deaths in 2016.

In a major undertaking, IDPH analyzed the literal text section of Illinois death records to identify specific substances contributing to drug overdose deaths. The most striking result was the large increase in the number of deaths involving fentanyl, and opioids similar to fentanyl, which lead to a 910% increase in synthetic opioid overdose deaths between 2013 and 2016.

These data provide health professionals, law enforcement, and health care providers a more complete understanding of the opioid crisis and help identify strategies to combat it.

“While fatal overdose deaths involving opioids have increased in Illinois during the past five years, the number of deaths involving synthetic opioids has increased even more dramatically,” said IDPH Director Nirav D. Shah., M.D., J.D. “It is important that we raise awareness and recognize this growing problem and work together to prevent these deaths and the devastating pain family and friends experience.”

As local police and prosecutors try to come up with ways to stem the problem, some believe a new law targeting whoever provides drugs used in a deadly overdose should be used more often.

Called “drug-induced homicide,” the law has been on the books since 1989 but it’s rarely used. In short, it says anyone found guilty of providing the drugs that caused someone’s death could go to prison for up to 30 years.

SECURITY FIRM from p. 14

according to tax records.

WCT’s column about its experience with Walsh in 2012 lays out details that are strikingly similar to what our reporters experienced this summer.

The newspaper’s reporter wrote:

• “Neither Walsh nor the Center have commented, despite repeated requests. Walsh offered to meet, but did not follow up with plans.”

Regarding his then-failure to have a state-mandated private security contractor license, Walsh... “assured me that he had the proper paperwork in order. I followed up by phone a few weeks later to see if he’d looked into acquiring a license and he pointed me to the Secretary of State’s website, which lists Walsh Security, LLC as a business. Meanwhile, the website for the Illinois Dept. of Professional Regulations, which handles licenses, shows no record of Walsh or Walsh Security.”

Like the newspaper’s experience with Walsh, A&T’s clients have refused to comment on their arrangements with the firm. Martino declined to answer most questions regarding A&T and stopped responding to inquiries altogether several weeks ago.

Most incredible is this: After receiving multiple requests for input over the course of two months, Walsh Sr. finally contacted this reporter on Aug. 25.

The website for the Illinois Dept. of Professional Regulations, which handles licenses, shows no record of Walsh or Walsh Security.

He texted a photograph of the Secretary of State’s website showing that his children’s company, A&T Security LLC, is incorporated in the state—the exact maneuver he used with the Windy City Times, according to their coverage.

When we pointed out the discrepancy—he did not provide A&T’s license to contract security, only proof of incorporation—Walsh asked to meet in person.

Yet, just as with Walsh Security in the WCT story, A&T Security remains unlicensed with state regulators who oversee security firms, doctors, and other professions, the state says.

Exactly why Walsh decided to contact us about a business that is owned and operated by his adult children is unclear. His children did not respond to multiple inquiries.

POLICE BEAT from p. 16

and ordered the killing of another former drug partner, who was shot but survived and testified against Price at trial, federal authorities said last week.

Price was handed a 37-year sentence for heroin conspiracy, money laundering and illegally possessing an Uzi-style, semi-automatic pistol with an extended magazine.

Chicago cop tipped off drug dealers, say Feds

A federal jury has convicted a Chicago police officer on an obstruction charge for notifying a high school friend that he was the target of a federal drug investigation.

In June 2014, Ronald Coleman—who was working a drug case with federal agents—allegedly told a friend's cousin that police were planning to search several houses in the friend's neighborhood as part of an investigation into drug sales.

Upon learning of the pending raids drugs, dealers moved narcotics and other contraband to alternate locations, prosecutors said.

Coleman, 46, was convicted of one count of obstruction of justice. He faces up to 20 years in prison when he is sentenced in November.

Cousins face gun dealing charges

Two cousins from Chicago are facing federal firearms charges for allegedly dealing guns on the city's South Side.

Over a four-month period earlier this year Benjamin Vasquez Jr., 26, illegally sold 16 firearms, including a sawed-off shotgun and an AK-47 rifle, according to criminal complaints and affidavits filed in federal court.

Vasquez did not know that the buyer was cooperating with law enforcement and had secretly recorded the transactions.

His cousin Jorge Vasquez, 27, is accused of selling a rifle to an individual who was working with law enforcement, the complaints state. The deal, which occurred in an alley in the West Englewood neighborhood of Chicago, netted Jorge Vasquez $1,000, according to the complaints.

Benjamin Vasquez Jr is charged with knowingly possessing a firearm with an altered, removed or obliterated serial number.

Jorge Vasquez is charged with illegal possession of a firearm by a felon.

Aloft a foot

New hotel coming to Clybourn corridor

The deal that couldn't get done finally has - and a new seven-story hotel is coming to the Clybourn corridor.

According to reports in Crain's, a new Aloft-branded hotel will soon grow from the gravel parking lot now at 1523 N. Fremont St., just north of the SoNo high-rise towers and the more recently completed SoNu Digs micro-rental mid-rise.

Plans to build a hotel at this location reportedly go back to 2008, before the real state crash. The zoning variance needed to undertake this project goes before the City Of Chicago Zoning Board or Appeals on Sept. 15.

Project contractor Wash Construction says that the building's seven-story stacking plan calls for retail on the first level, parking on the second, and a lobby, lounge, and interior courtyard space on the third. Floors four through seven will contain 156 Aloft Hotel guest rooms.

Street Level, Expo after hours kick-off Sept. 15

Wabash Arts Corridor [WAC] hosts a kick-off party 5 to 8 p.m. Fri., Sept. 15, for the opening of Street Level: The WAC 2nd annual public art festival at Columbia College's Hokin Gallery, 623 S. Wabash. The event features a new exhibition which launches the Street Level festival and celebrates WAC's past, present and future public art projects. Visitors will see the new projects coming to WAC, including murals, site-specific installations and a new performance series. Take a guided or self-guided tour and meet the artists, curators and supporters behind the WAC.

They will also host a free art festival tour 2 p.m. Sat., Sept. 16 starting at the Hokin Gallery, the pop-up WAC Visitor Center, 623 S. Wabash.

This guided tour features highlights of the corridor and previews the new works. RSVPs are required, email Sydney@wabasharts corridor.org.

Evening on Astor fundraiser tonight

Dubbed "The World's Most Elegant Block Party," the Gold Coast Neighbors Association's [GCNA] Evening on Astor (EOA) returns for a glorious 35th year tonight from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Astor St. between Banks and Goethe. The festivities go on rain or shine.

Is there a better party for a mere $5 (suggested) donation? Whether meeting old or new friends or dancing to the popular Michael Lerich Orchestra, this al fresco setting is a delightful place to do so.

The evening includes getting your food fix on from local food trucks, including The Fat Shallot (sandwiches and sides); La Co-cinita (Latin American street food); Barges Brothers (frites and sauces plus loaded cones); and Da Lobsta (all things lobster).

Adding to the merriment is the competition for prizes for decorated tables. Categories include Best Dressed, Most Elegant, Most Casually Elegant, Most Neighborly, and Wild Card/Most Creative.

Many city, county, and state dignitaries have been invited to attend, and it's a great way to have one-on-one interactions with them in an informal setting.

Proceeds from EOA support the work of the GCNA in protecting, beautifying, and educating about the historic neighborhood.

Yes, Virginia, there is free parking in Lincoln Park

A free parking program offered by DePaul Univ. was developed with the cooperation of a community-university advisory committee coordinated by DePaul's Office of Community & Government Relations that allows eligible Lincoln Park residential neighbors to park on-campus during off-peak hours during the academic year.

In addition to the free parking, area residents are also able to purchase a 24-hour Clifton Parking Garage-only permit.

Homeowners who reside within the following boundaries are eligible for the program: from Altgeld south to Armitage, and from Halsted west to Wayne. The homeowner must reside at the property address and there are a limited number of permits available to the first 300 participants. Participation is limited to one permit per household.

Proof of residency is required at the time of registration (both walk-up and mail).

Area homeowners will be issued an "Area Resident" parking hang tag which must be displayed when parking in all DePaul facilities. An access card is required for entrance to the Clifton Parking Garage. A parking permit does not guarantee an available space in the parking facilities. The term of area resident parking permit runs through Aug. 31, 2018.

Eligible homeowners may apply in-person or via mail every year. Parking permits are available at the DePaul Univ. Parking Services Office, 2320 N. Kenmore Room 177, open Monday - Friday 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For more information, call 773-325-7275.

from the roofs to the vehicle grilles.

He told the audience that volume levels of alarms are locked in by the manufacturer and cannot be manipulated or altered by local Fire Dept. staff.

Besides, even emergency workers suffer from these same loud sirens as do residents and visitors to these areas. Indeed prolonged exposure to emergency sirens can lead to hearing loss. About 4,400 current and former firefighters nationwide are now suing Oak Brook-based Federal Signal Corp., the company that makes many of the sirens in use today, claiming it didn't do enough to make them safer for those on fire trucks who have to listen to them nearly every day.

They too - like residents - are seeking ways to shield themselves from sound blasts that reach 120 decibels, roughly equivalent to a loud rock concert. Federal Signal says that juries have decided in favor of Federal Signal in most of the half-dozen or so suits that have already gone to trial.

David Duffy, an attorney for Federal Signal, noted that firefighting organizations have for three decades advocated use of earplugs or ear coverings to reduce the risk of hearing loss from sirens or other noises in the course of their firefighting duties, "of which there are many."

So for those planning a shopping trip along the Mag Mile, noise deadening earphones might be a consideration.

With regard to motorcycle engines running fast and loud on Lake Shore Dr., monitoring and enforcement legislation introduced by State Rep. Sara Feigenholtz and passed in Springfield has now taken effect. The City will soon be monitoring sound levels along the Drive and perhaps other streets and will no doubt come up with a system to ticket and fine habitual abusers.
