Debevic's business partners say they've been denied their cut, sue partners over restaurant's closing

BY DAN CHURNEY Cook County Record

A food fight has broken out in court between partners involved in Chicago's famed Ed Debevic's restaurant, with two investors alleging some of their partners used fraud to siphon away their slice of the corporate funds.

Larry P. Kanar and Marshall N. Dickler filed a complaint last Wednesday against the following partners, officers and shareholders of the various corporations that operated Ed Debevic's: Jeffrey A. Himmel, John Fyfe, Joan Fyfe, Ivan Himmel, William Kamm and certified public accountant James Zdarsky. The suit also names the corporations as defendants.

Ed Debevic's, which opened in 1984 at 640 N. Wells St., closed Oct. 4 and is to be demolished to make way for a residential high rise tower.

The restaurant's owners have said the retro-themed eatery will reopen in 2016 at a new location.

Kanar and Dickler are alleging they were the victims of fraud, and breaches of contract and fiduciary duty. They want a judge to order defendants to account for income and expenses of the corporate entities, as well as to surrender funds defendants improperly obtained that they feel they were owed. They also want a judge to permit them to remove Himmel as manager of some of the Ed Debevic's corporations and for them to assume those posts themselves.

The proposed sale of the restaurant property this fall precipitated the suit, according to plaintiffs, with Jeffrey Himmel the suit's chief target. Himmel is chief partner in Ed Debevic's and one of the investors who own the restaurant

Ogden/Jenner merger may not happen until 2017

BY PATRICK BUTLER

Ogden Principal Michael Beyer - who only weeks ago was promoting a merger between his Gold Coast school and the allblack Jenner School a few miles west - said last week it's unlikely the two schools will be able get everything done to meet the required Dec. 1 deadline.

That would have been the latest date for CPS officials to examine and OK the merger plans, Beyer

But the merger is "still a possibility later," Beyer told Ogden parents in a recent e-mail. But with only three weeks to go before the transition plans are due, "I believe we have not fully prepared for a transition of this magnitude and should not proceed until the next school year," Beyer said.

'The Jenner/Ogden consolidation is still very much a possibility for the 2017-18 school year, but we need to do considerably more work before we are ready to make it a reality, if we decide to do so," Beyer said.

Calling the merger an idea whose time has come, Beyer and Jenner Principal Robert Croyston agreed to the proposal earlier this Beyer began pushing for the merger in June when a committee of Ogden parents started looking at ways to relieve overcrowding in the mostly upper-crust school at 24 W. Walton and began looking at a merger as the best way to handle the problem. While Ogden is at capacity with 1,000 kindergarten through eighth-grade students, Jenner, at 1119 N. Cleveland Ave., has only 240 students now that most of the notorious Cabrini-Green housing project has been razed and replaced with what is intended to be mixed-income housing.

Ogden has two buildings - one on the Gold Coast for grade school pupils and a small high school about two miles west.

Commission votes to recommend Marina City landmark designation

Marina City

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN Loop North News

It was over in three minutes and 23 seconds. The Commission on Chicago Landmarks voted unanimously last Thursday to recommend to the City Council that Marina City be designated an official Chicago landmark.

Overall, the process went "much smoother than we thought."

All seven commissioners voted in favor of landmarking at their regular meeting at City Hall.

"I'm very happy to see these buildings be designated as landmarks," said Rafael Leon, chairman of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks.

"I think that as [I've heard] from previous meetings, everybody recognizes those buildings around the world, that the moment that they see it, they see Chicago. I'm so glad that we have gotten to the point of designating these buildings as landmarks."

There has been no formal opposition to landmark designation. At a public hearing on October 16, no one spoke against landmarking. An attorney for the owner of Marina City's Hotel Chicago and most of the complex's commercial property said at the hearing that LaSalle Hotel Properties is officially "neutral" on the matter.

Honoring our veterans

On Veterans Day we honor those who served. Below are memories submitted by our readers of members of the armed services.

A prayer for veterans

Lord, we ask for blessings on all those who have served their country in the armed forces.

We ask for healing for the veterans who have been wounded, in body and soul, in conflicts around

We pray especially for the men and women, in the thousands, coming home with injured bodies and traumatized spirits. Bring solace to them, O Lord; may we pray for them when they cannot pray. We ask for an end to wars and the dawning of a new era of peace, as a way to honor the sacrifices of all the veterans of past wars. Have mercy on all our veterans from World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Iraq and Afghanistan. Bring peace to their hearts and peace to the regions they fought in. Bless all the men and women who have served in non-combative posts; may their calling to service continue in their lives in many positive ways.

Give us, Lord, the vision to see a world which, grown weary with fighting, moves to affirming the life of every human being and moves beyond war. Hear our prayer, O Prince of Peace, hear our prayer. Amen.

Let us all honor our veterans on Veterans Day and always ...

Anthony Joseph Zagar served in one of the original US Navy Seals units during WWII. As described in Tom Hawkins The History and Heritage of the U.S. Navy Seals, there were scouts and raiders given special assignments with the U.S. Naval Group in China with Captain Miles, General Tai Li and Chiang Kaishek. One hundred twenty officers and 900 men trained at ATB Fort Pierce in Florida formed the Sino-American Cooperative Organizations (SACO) also knows as the Rice Paddy Navy, training, equipping and operating guerilla forces against Japanese occupations forces.

Zagar wore a patch inside his leather flight jacket in four languages that read, "To great China's soldiers and friends. We come to help you fight Japan. Please help us together and report to the National Union Army. US Navy thanks you very much and rewards you. US Air Force will make the trip safer."

Zagar told me that the Japanese put a million dollar bounty on their heads and on one occasion an infiltrator threw a bullet clip into a campfire. Luckily the Americans all hit the deck and the traitor killed himself. Rickover Naval Academy has a few plaques about Zagar's service in their trophy case.

There are many ways to recognize and remember veterans. Today, we remember all those who have served. But for some, the remembrances are continuing.

The Big Red One Museum at Cantigny is such a place. In Wheaton, on the 500 acre estate of Lt. Colonel Robert R. McCormick, the First Division Museum was started by the one time publisher of the Chicago Tribune as a tribute to the battle in France in World War I where he fought with the American Expeditionary Forces as a soldier in the 1st Infantry Division, so named because it was the first permanent division in the regular army. The park is open until sunset, year round.

I'd like to recognize Hank Graham who once owned the Small Fry Shop in Lincoln Square until he retired. He was active in the Lincoln Square Chamber and organized the annual Tennis Tournament that was a big success for 20 years. The Colonel was a World War II veteran, participating in a number of campaigns and was awarded the Bronze Star and the Silver Star for his actions.

Bruno Zagajewski received the Bronze Star 55 years eight months and one week after he was honorably discharged from the US Army. Bruno first served in the Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corp in the mid-1930s before entering the 14th Infantry in 1942. He served in the Panama Canal when the 14th "Jungaleers" were merged into General Wymans 71st Division and took commandeered Hollywood cruise ships to France in June, 1943.

Shortly before D-Day Zagajewski met both generals Eisenhower and Patton.

Some of the men had lined the outside of their tanks with sandbags for added protection. Patton came along and told them to "get those sandbags off of there. They were slowing the tanks down.' Patton said, "I got the gust, these men got the blood to spill." Bruno noted, "That Patton was a sharp dresser, pretty fancy uniform.' When Eisenhower stopped at a post war 71st Austrian encampment, "We just watched and kept quiet, because Eisenhower was a big deal." As they made their way to Germany, Zagajewski said, "I remember getting to the Rhein river. A lot of guys got mowed down there trying to get across. Boy, that was tough. And I remember we were in a small town near Munich and the Germans were shooting at us from the steeple of the church. They had us pinned down for quite a while. I'm glad I went in the service and proud I was there. I loved serving my country."

Tim Meier served in a war that didn't happen. Korea was winding down in the mid-1950's, and we were sure the USSR would claim more territory. NATO stepped up

Tim, a mid-century modern artist, became a "construction draftsman" assigned to the Engineer Corps' SCARWAF division.

He recognized the Monte Cassino Commemorative Cross, given to survivors of Lt. General Wladyslaw Anders Polish II Corps, and found them jobs at Toul-Rosieres Air Base. The Polish government later made Meier a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Stanislaus for his help to Polish veterans. He also received the Polonia Restituta and the Polish Medal of Merit 3rd class.

Scott Roenigk served one term with the US Marines at Marine Corps Air Station Kaneohe Bay in Hawaii. He was on a tour of the Mediterranean stationed on the USS Tarawa anchored off Beirut when on October 23, 1983, a suicide bomber attacked fellow Marines in an attack that killed 241 American troops. The Beirut Barracks Bombings occurred during the Lebanese Civil War when two truck bombs struck separate buildings housing U.S. and French military forces. Roenigk was not ashore at the time of the bombing.

Leon Szkotak said the proudest day of his life was when the US Army liberated him from enforced farm labor in Austria. You see when the Germans came to his town in little Poland province, Malopolska, they shot everyone over 21. They put the teenagers into cattle cars and shipped them off. He went to Nederkupfel near Linz, Austria, where he worked for years.

"The Americans came with chocolate, cigarettes and cognac.

We just celebrated that we were alive." His wife Wladyslawa related that in Bavaria where she also worked on a farm in servitude, the SS would hang a farmer if they did not produce one liter of cow milk a day. Some days they would just add water to the milk to make up a liter. The German Russian front went through Poland four times. All of these folks were lucky because they were survivors.

Erik Godvik, a local Tax Accountant and veteran of the US Army, served in Vietnam as a Combat Medic with the 1st Infantry Division. Between his college stints at Wright College and the Univ. of Illinois Chicago Circle, Uncle Sam made him an offer he couldn't refuse. At least he got to see the world. Saigon, Lai Khe, Di An, Singapore, San Antonio, Louisville and other points of interest. Welcome home and thank you for your service.

Frank Omilian served in the post War occupation of Japan, spending two years there overseeing the reconstruction and the democratization of this Asian country. He was amazed at the rail system and the small size of this dominant Asian economy.

His story was of a visit by a US Navy Wave who became my mother. He came to visit her in San Diego. She was dressed in her sharp Navy uniform and he in his army one. His mates were giving him the time of his life, not believing my beautiful blond mother was his aunt.

Norman Heft was from the South Side of Chicago. He enlisted in the Army and received medical training at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, Texas, and became a medic.

In the early morning darkness of 23 August 1966, the quiet was pierced by a loud explosion. A 105 mm artillery round landed within the night time perimeter of his 1st Infantry Division company and took Norman from us.

It was "friendly fire" but there is nothing friendly about a 105.

Norman was a very soft spoken person but had a great impact on all who knew him. He and many other Chicagoans are listed on a remembrance plaque on the Riverwalk in downtown Chicago. He and many more are listed on www. virtualwall.org.

Private Milton Olive gave his all and the Medal of Honor recipient is remembered in Olive Park by Navy Pier. Medic Norman Heft gave his all and is remembered on the plaque along our River Walk downtown along with the names of the other Chicagoans who gave their all in Vietnam.

Lt. Chris Morgan was a fighter pilot who, on his first combat mission on October 16, 1943, was forced to ditch his fighter plane in enemy-occupied Burma (now Myanmar). Captivity under the Japanese was brutal resulting in as high as a 40% death rate for allied prisoners.

Yet through an indomitable will to live, Morgan endured beatings, starvation and jungle disease to return home in 1945. However, recovery was challenging for Chris. Yet, through determined support, he experienced healing and after the Vietnam War, used his understanding of war to become a recognized champion for returning POW and veterans

The Lane Tech High School class of 1962 had a number of veterans who enlisted or got the famous "Greetings" letter from the President.

Richard Mies was a wrestling champion for Lane at the 95 lbs. level and continued wrestling when he became A Midshipman at Annapolis. Because of his size and ability, he was a perfect candidate for the Navy Submarine

Eleanor Gorski, director of historic preservation for Chicago's Dept. of Planning and Development, says the city did meet with a representative of LaSalle, along with a representative of Live Nation, owner of the House of Blues at Marina City.

Overall, the process went "much smoother than we thought," said Matt Crawford, who wrote and edited the department's 52-page Final Landmark Designation Report. Of the public hearing that lasted about 41 minutes, he said "that's a record."

A resolution will be introduced at a City Council meeting most likely in late December. It will be assigned to a committee and eventually voted on by the full council. Marina City, 300 N. State, was constructed between 1960 and 1967, and is considered an icon of Chicago architecture and urban planning. The Marina City complex consists of five interconnected but distinct components: two identical 60-story cylindrical residential towers, a saddle-shaped theater, and a 10-story commercial building, all of which are set on a four-story base with a marina fronting onto the Chicago River. With the exception of the theater, all of the structures in the complex are cast-in-place reinforced concrete construction.

Marina City was the first planned development project in Chicago, and the first and largest federally-insured downtown housing project in the country. The scale and scope of the project was unparalleled at the time of construction. When they were completed in 1963, the residential and commercial community. The towers were the tallest reinforced concrete structures in the world. Marina City was also architect Bertrand Goldberg's career-defining commission, catapulting him onto the world stage and solidifying his reputation as one of the most innovative architects of the twentieth century.

This "city within a city," was the most ambitious and forwardthinking post-war urban renewal project of it's kind in Chicago. It was the first development to layer residential, commercial, and entertainment uses into a dense highrise complex in the center city.

Marina City's success as a dense high-rise residential development anticipated the later transformation of downtown Chicago from a nine-to-five business district to a thriving and bustling residential development's use of the Chicago River as an amenity was also years ahead of its time.

Financial incentives of living in an official Chicago landmark are modest, say experts. They include eligibility for building permits without paying a fee. However, permits receive extra scrutiny from the Commission on Chicago Landmarks, but only for work to building exteriors and interior spaces that can be seen from the outside.

Martin S. Bader was in the National Guard and enlisted in the Army Air Corps before the start of WWII. He was stationed at what was then the newly established Shepphard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, TX, where he served as an Airplane Mechanic Instructor.

Martin recently passed away at the age of 95 and was always a devoted veteran. Among the highlights of his life were that when he was 80 years old, he was invited back to his Air Force base to give a speech to the Shepphard Air Force graduates, where he reminisced of his days when the base was brand new at the start of the war, and consisted only of huts with no screens (and certainly no air-conditioning in those days).

The hangar where he assembled WWII bombers is still there today, and, among other remembrances including the victory garden he and his wife had at the time, brought back many nostalgic memories to him, which the young graduates were enthralled to hear about.

Another major highlight when he was 90 years old, Martin participated in an Honor Flight for WWII veterans taking him from Chicago to Washington, DC to see the WWII Memorial. It was a trip he cherished until the day he died. He carried his loyalty to his country throughout his entire life, and during his retirement he and his wife of 72 years, Irene Bader, volunteered over 5,000 hours at the Bay Pines VA hospital in Tampa, FL.

He worked as a DataBase Analyst Supervisor and deployed to Iraqi in 2007 returning a year later. Today Casey lives here in the Gold Coast.

James Patrick Flynn was a Sailor on the USS Mississippi stationed in Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. While he survived the attack, the memories of it, and caring for the dead and wounded immediately after the attack haunted him for the rest of his life. As he neared death in 1993 he would frequently sit up erect in his nursing home bed to look out the window to see if the Japanese bombers were approaching.

The gangs' all here

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

Regular readers of this column know that I live in East Rogers Park and so does my immediate family -my three grown kids, my three granddaughters, and my brother.

I've always felt that this was a wonderful lakefront community, a great place where I raised my children, and where they are raising their children.

Lately though, I've been fearing for all of our safety, because since Oct. 13, 10 people have been shot in six separate incidents in my neighborhood, close to my house, and close to where my kids and their babies live. And in August, a 31-year-old man was found dead from a gunshot wound, right on my block.

It's making me nervous.

So I emailed Ald. Joe Moore (49th) early one morning last week to ask him what, if anything, was being done about all the violence. He never responded to me personally, but later that day Ald. Moore sent a blanket email out to constituents, and in it, he answered all the questions I had asked.

Unpopular with the alderman

Ald. Moore doesn't like me much, even though I've been his constituent for his entire aldermanic career. But last summer I wrote about the discrepancies among two lakefront parks, Howard St. Beach --where less fortunate kids play and where equipment is dangerous and not for babies -- and Hartigan Beach, which is located at the end of Albion Ave. and its million dollar homes and is chock-full of baby swings and play stuff for tiny tots.

Although I was incorrect and Ald. Moore was correct when he said that the lame Howard playground cost more to build than the very cool Hartigan playground, I could never get an itemized contract from the Chicago Park District (CPD) to compare equipment versus labor costs, which is more than likely where the price difference lies. There's no way the equipment at Howard -- which I still stand by as being dangerous and not made for small children -- cost as much as Hartigan.

But wait, there's more as to why the alderman is so angry at me. In that column also, I stated that I wanted to see if any of Ald. Moore's contributors had gotten the contracts for the ward's new parks. On July 1, shortly after the column ran, I received a scathing email from Ald. Moore that, among other things, said, "Finally, you gratuitously suggest that somehow the choice of playgrounds was influenced by 'hefty Moore campaign contributors.' Really? What evidence do you have for that defamatory statement. If you had bothered to ask, I would have been more than willing to inform you that I play no role whatsoever in selecting the contractors for the playground projects and I have never received a campaign contribution from the contractors on the playground projects."

Funny, but two weeks later, after I'm sure he heard I'd been snooping around, I received a very different email from him. It stated the opposite of what he'd told me two weeks earlier! "In the spirit of full disclosure, the contractor, FH Paschen, has been a campaign contributor of mine in the past, though they haven't donated to me lately," he said. "As you may know, they are one of the largest construction contractors in the city and donate to a lot of elected officials and candidates for office. When I wrote my previous email to you, I was not aware the Park District had awarded them the contract and actually I was quite surprised when I received the information."

Surprised? I don't think so. Turns out FH Paschen didn't just get those two contracts for Howard and Hartigan -- the company received the contracts for all five of the new playgrounds in the ward, totaling $981,291! And just an FYI, Paschen was a Moore contributor in 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2012, and 2013.

I also checked to see if Paschen regularly contributed to other elected officials in nearby North Side wards, as Ald. Moore suggested. There was nothing in 50, 48, 47, 46, 45, 43, or 42. In 2008 however, there was a small donation to Ward 44.

And as far as being surprised, Ald. Moore held a community meeting to vote on designs for the new parks and those votes were counted by his legislative aide, Bob Fuller, who wrote me this: "Following ample time for attendees to vote - about an hour- the tickets were tallied in each bag for each playground."

So how could Ald. Moore not have known Paschen got all the contracts? And although he denied involvement, when the alderman held that community meeting where people -- without showing any proof of ward residency -- could vote on the designs, he got himself involved in the process, which I was completely stonewalled about when I sent Freedom of Information requests to the CPD to find out exactly how that worked.

And now, beachfront condos are possibly being built near Howard, with prices up to $600K on Eastlake Terrace? Well, I hope they're not expecting families to pay that much money and be moving in, for two reasons: 1) People are getting shot in that area regularly lately; 2) There is not a playground even remotely close for buyers to take their small tots to play safely (I still say there's nothing really safe for kids under five at Howard St. Beach. Meetings start this week for Ald. Moore's Participatory Budgeting and I sure hope some baby swings are on the agenda for its playground).

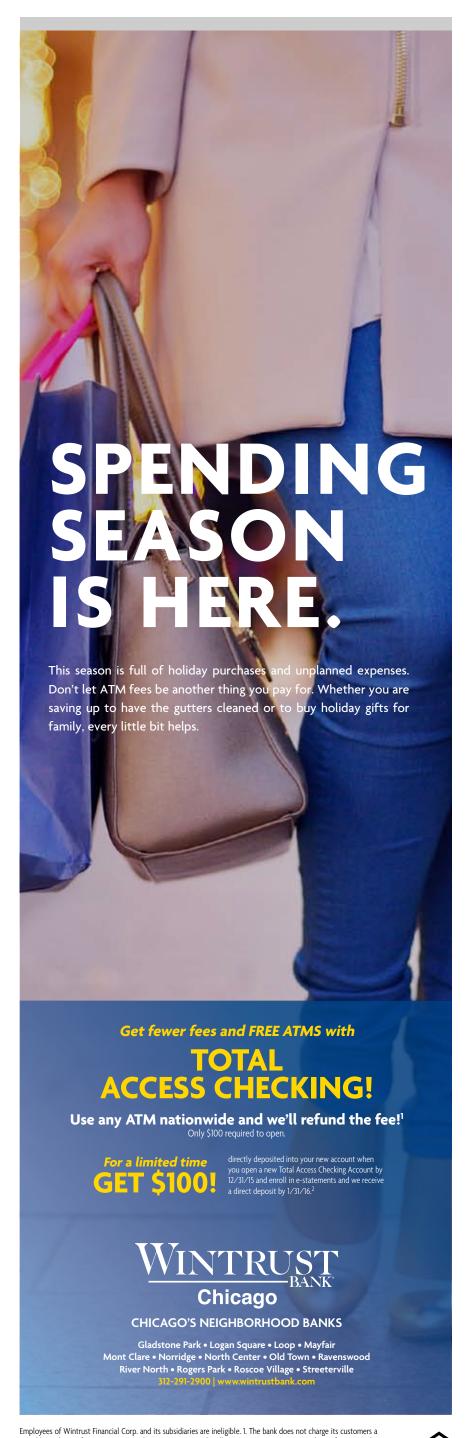

Back to the future

But enough about the playgrounds and my little tiff with Ald. Moore. Back to people being shot and the alderman's email, which said that the most recent shooting (there may be more by the time you read this), of a 27-year-old "documented gang member" standing in the alley in the 1500 block of W. Jonquil on Nov. 3, "was the latest in a recent uptick of gang-related shooting incidents in Rogers Park."

Besides that one, three people were wounded in a shooting Oct. 29 in the 1500 block of West Morse -- four blocks from my house -- and a man was shot Oct. 23 while at the Shell gas station at Sheridan and Touhy, also about four blocks from my house. Police believe the three incidents are related to an ongoing dispute between rival factions of the same gang, Ald. Moore said.

And police think an internal dispute in another gang is responsible for three other shootings, Ald. Moore said, including an Oct. 13 incident where three men were shot in the 2000 block of W. Howard; an Oct. 21 incident in which a man was shot in the 1900 block of N. Birchwood; and an Oct.

Nation's politicians wheel and deal in D.C. as usual

BY DON DeBAT

Every U.S. citizen should find time to take a trip to Washington, D.C., and witness federal government in action.

While most Americans travel to this beautiful city as tourists to visit historical buildings, monuments and the emotionally powerful Vietnam and the World War II Memorials, there's much more going on inside the Beltway.

At virtually every hotel bar and restaurant, men and women dressed in expensive business suits are doing deals and angling for an inside position to benefit unnamed clients.

They make deep eye contact, lean in and use hand gestures and speak in a whisper. Most professional lobbyists and political dealmakers cover their mouths like a Major League baseball relief pitcher talking over the next hitter with the pitching coach.

The Home Front

We can go to the polls and elect our favorite candidates who will promise to do their best for us on Capitol Hill. But, this really is how the laws of the land are crafted over lunch, cocktails and dinner or in private meeting rooms. The cigar smoke is reserved for outdoor

Despite all the political rhetoric, things haven't changed much since this writer's first trip to Capitol Hill in 1980 with a national group of 2,000 home builders. They came to meet with President Jimmy Carter and protest that 18% mortgage rates and 21% construction loans were killing new homeconstruction from coast to coast.

Fifty Chicago-area builders led by Bruno Pasquinelli, president of the Home Builders Assoc. of Greater Chicago - also met privately with U.S. Senators Charles Percy (R-Illinois) and Adlai Ste-

Sen. Stevenson seemed shocked. He told the builders he "had no idea" that they were paying 21% for construction money. The Chicago builders rolled their eyes and collectively groaned.

After the Great Recession of 2008, when the entire for-sale housing industry tanked and Congress was forced to pass a $700-billion bailout of the banking industry, most veteran home builders would say the 1980 crisis was like a kindergarten class.

Long after the bailout, former U.S. Secy. Of Labor Robert Reich noted that beleaguered homeowners and debt-weary college graduates still "don't have any bargaining leverage with creditors-and that's exactly what the financial industry wants."

Fast forward to 2015, and Congress is facing yet another financial crisis. Newly elected U.S. House speaker Paul Ryan (R-Wisconsin) is wrestling with a range of issues from Congressional gridlock to a steadily growing fiscal crisis.

Today, political experts say Washington has saddled U.S. taxpayers with trillions of dollars in future obligations, which grow every day. Outside of massive federal default, future options include huge cuts in Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid benefits, or a giant increase in taxes.

"Let's be frank. The House is broken," Ryan said. "It's time for us to turn the page on the last few years and get to work on a bold agenda we can take to the American people."

Over the past two years, Illinois Congress members alone took 70 foreign trips to 44 countries at a cost of more than a half-million dollars, reported a recent Chicago Tribune analysis.

Maybe now it is time for Congress to bail on those international junkets and buckle up for work.

While the average American struggles to pay his mortgage, save cash to send children to college, or hunts for a better paying job, everyone who works on the Potomac seems in a state of euphoria. In Washington, D.C., the measure of happiness usually is being elected or serving for an elected politician who is "in for two or four years," or even better, "in for six."

Holiday caroling at Cloud Gate begins Nov. 27

Choral groups perform songs of the season in Millennium Park

Get ready to belt out some holiday classics at Caroling at Cloud Gate - part concert, part singalong - each Friday, November 27-December 18, 6-7 p.m., at the Cloud Gate sculpture (aka "The Bean") in Millennium Park.

Holiday music will fill the air as local choral groups perform seasonal favorites and invite revelers to join in the fun and singing.

Visitors will be able to enjoy views of the official City of Chicago Christmas Tree and take a spin at the nearby McCormick Tribune Ice Rink. Even Santa Claus will join the fun this year from 5-6 p.m., before the caroling gets started. Caroling at Cloud Gate began in 2006 and is free and open to the public.

This year's Caroling at Cloud Gate performers are:

Some thought the merger was being rushed through while others were totally against merging with

In fact, there was an opposition campaign that rallied around the reasons not to merge stating that the move to the Jenner campus is the wrong environment for their kids. Their position, posted online, was that "Our children's safety is of utmost importance. While the neighborhood is changing, there are still real safety concerns." They were also concerned that the merger would impair the strong academic record of students at Ogden. That a merger "could result in Ogden teachers considering alternative teaching venues in the City."

"Ogden already has an excellent academic reputation. The Ogden community is inclusive of an incredibly diverse student body from every nationality, religion, culture and economic background. It is the only K-12 full continuum IB school in Illinois. If we change all of this, we risk a decline in student performance and standards and losing our IB status."

Don't disgrace what has been given to you magnificent Chicago's lakefront is what distinguishes Chicago from being just another enormous American Myriad attempts continue to be made to intrude upon and threaten its limited boundaries. Regardless, no rationalizations, posing as reasons, should be permitted to trump its natural and elegant offer-

The visionary city planner Daniel Burnham, over a century ago, proclaimed that the lakefront should be public, open, and free. Burnham's plan must remain paramount.

Our gem of a natural resource is virtually the only significant site in Chicago that does not have some attention-seeking person's name attached to it.

Imagine if our iconic lakefront were to remain the only major feature in Chicago that could not be bought—a noncorrupt lakefront.

Chicago, don't disgrace, but embrace what has been given

Leon J. Hoffman, Ph.D. Lakeview East

Think again on casino site

Don DeBat advocates that the State of Illinois/Thompson Center be the site of a new casino (Skyline Oct.21-27) but there's one very good reason why it should not go there. It's the location of the Clark/Lake el station, the hub of CTA rail traffic in the Loop.

Some desperate souls who've lost it all may attempt suicide by throwing themselves on the tracks. Regardless of the outcome this would lead to transit delays and gridlock.

Furthermore, casinos attract crime and riders will be subjected to (aggressive) panhandling, robberies and assaults, both on the el platform and systemwide. If there is ever to be a Chicago casino, it must not be placed in the Loop.

27 shooting with a man being shot in the 6700 block of N. Ridge. According to police, the victims in each incident are affiliated with the same street gang.

Ald. Moore said he is in regular contact with 24th District Commander Roberto Nieves, who keeps him updated on the policing strategies he's initiating in response to the shootings. The commander has received and deployed additional police resources in areas where he believes possible retaliatory shootings may occur, Ald. Moore said.

The alderman also said he's arranged for city Bureau of Forestry crews to trim trees around police cameras so they have a clear view. Ald. Moore and Cmdr. Nieves are working with building owners to install cameras and additional lighting in some of the troubled areas, Ald. Moore said.

Apparently the commander is hard at work on this. He's continuing his "custom notification" initiative, meeting with suspected gang members and their family members at their homes, Ald. Moore said. The commander and a social service provider together review the gang member's criminal record, warn him that he faces additional severe penalties if he continues his criminal lifestyle cials service resources, such as job training and GED courses, "if the gang member makes a commitment to refrain from criminal activity and instead choose a positive path with his life," Ald. Moore's email states.

He also said that until the recent uptick in violence, shooting incidents in Rogers Park had been down this year as compared to the same period last year. The neighborhood has experienced roughly the same number of shootings so far this year as compared to last year (28 this year vs. 27 last year), said Ald. Moore, who is urging people to attend CAPS meetings. (DNAinfo says differently, that the latest victim brings the total number of shooting victims to 39 this year in 28 incidents — which is one more victim than 2014's final count of 38).

No matter what the numbers are they're too high, and they're scaring people away from East Rogers

City: Package theft not a crime

City crime policies offer citizens more reasons to be suspicious of CPD crime stats

BY THE EDITORS OF CWBCHICAGO.COM

Lincoln Park and Lakeview residents are complaining that the Chicago Police Dept. [CPD] has refused to record package thefts as crimes, raising fresh questions about the accuracy of crime data in Chicago.

"My police report was rejected because I was never in 'possession' of the package," a Lakeview man told this reporter. "My neighbor witnessed it being taken [from the porch]" but that didn't matter to police who insisted that the matter was not criminal.

And, in Lincoln Park, a long-time resident offered video of a package being stolen from his porch to police. Once again, though, Chicago police rejected his report.

The man said he submitted a report via the CPD website, but the city rejected it within a week. "Porches don't count," the man was told.

He was instructed to file another timeconsuming report via phone, "which of course I didn't."

Rejecting valid reports is just one way that the city continues to drive down the number of crime reports in Chicago, critics say. Chicago magazine published an award-winning two-part series on the topic last year which left the veracity of the city's crime stats questionable at best.

Observers say the "shaving" of crime happens in many ways every day.

- When police manpower is slashed nearly 30%, citizens are required to file many types of crime reports over the phone—if they can endure the sometimes-lengthy hold times.
- Citizens directed to file police reports online recently found the task to be impossible because the CPD website was rejecting every submission. The department's software could not recognize any address—even Chicago police headquarters—as being within the city limits.

• Another frequently-cited "crime-cutting" technique is downgrading serious crimes such as burglary and robbery to lesser categories such as "theft from building" and "theft from person."

Last year, police infamously categorized the theft of a Lincoln Park woman's cell phone from her purse as non-criminal "lost and found."

And a man in Wrigleyville who found himself surrounded by five offenders who then took his keys, wallet, and other valuables from his pants was not robbed. He was "pick pocketed," according to CPD statisticians.

Holiday art contest for local high school students

Inside Publications is once again holding our holiday art contest for high school students.

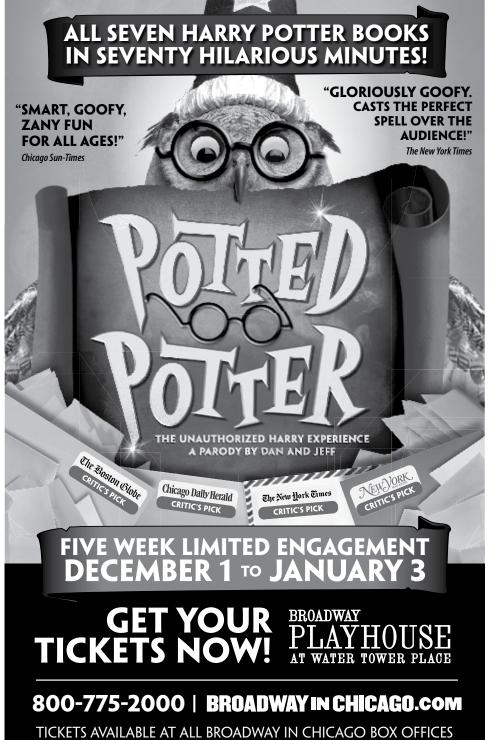

Students should hand-draw on an 8 1/2-x-11-inch vertical white piece of paper, in black ink. Submit a drawing of a North Side landmark with a holiday twist or theme. The student's name, age, telephone number, high school name, and year in school should be on the back, not front, of each drawing. Sorry, but computer artwork is not eligible.

The first place drawing will grace the cover of Inside's holiday issues for the Skyline, News-Star and Inside-Booster community newspapers on December 23, 2015.

The top artist will receive $100. Drawings by runners up will also be published on inside pages of the newspaper and will also receive recognition and prizes.

Mail or bring the students' drawings to: Inside Publications, Holiday Art Contest, 6221 N. Clark St. Chicago, IL 60660 so they are received by noon Wednesday, Dec. 16.

Voting will take place on Dec. 17-18. If you have any questions on how you or some student you know can enter or vote, call 773-465-9700.

Sulzer celebrates 30 years of public service

Sulzer Regional Library celebrates its 30th anniversary this week.

Board and video games, band music, arts and crafts, storytellers and a songwriting workshop will be among a week of festivities marking the 30th anniversary of the Conrad Sulzer Regional Library, 4455 N. Lincoln Ave., through Saturday.

The library was named for Swiss-born Conrad Sulzer, Lakeview's first permanent white settler. Sulzer arrived in Chicago in 1836, started a farm and held several public offices before his death in 1873. Montrose Ave. had originally been named Sulzer Rd. in Conrad Sulzer's honor.

The celebration started with an hour of "old school" board games and modern video games Monday.

Evanston's 35-member Ridgeview Band will give a concert at 7 p.m. the next day and the library will hold a "YOUmedia" open house today for teens, followed the next day by arts and crafts at 6:30 p.m. and a 7-8:30 p.m. open house in the Neighborhood History Room.

Storyteller Coleen Herman will take the stage at 11 a.m. Friday, followed by light refreshments and piano music by Steven Heliotes. Activities will wind up with a songwriting workshop by Jess Goodwin.

The Sulzer Library officially opened in September, 1985, after the Hild regional branch outgrew the art deco building a block away at 4544 N. Lincoln Ave.

[That building now houses the Old Town School of Folk Music.]

Over the years, the Sulzer Library acquired a massive book and media collection as well as the largest North Side neighborhood history collection of documents, photos and artifacts this side of the Chicago History Museum.

Shortly after its grand opening, the library became the focal point of the first of several heated controversies when the roof of the Thomas Beeby-designed building began leaking. Sadly it still leaks at times today.

Pubic ire soon resurfaced after the unveiling of local artist Irene Siegel's mural, "the Aeneid," which one onlooker described as "something straight out of Nero's vomitorium." Demands that the mural be removed got nowhere when it was learned Siegel's contract barred removal of the mural for at least 10 years.

Controversy returned again in 2001 when community activists complained that as many as 35,000 books from the Adult Fiction Section had been removed in a mere three weeks. Library officials downtown said only "obsolete" books were being tossed. A cursory check of those books destined for the secondary book sellers and shredders by a Booster/News-Star reporter found a copy of the Muslim Koran and several classics among those books.

It was obvious that what CPL management was saying did not match what was really going on.

When then-Ald. Eugene Schulter (47th) and at least one newspaper photographer went to see what was happening at the urging of some Sulzer staff and community activists, they were at first denied access to the library. Schulter and the media ignored the blockade and charged into the basement where they witnessed methodical and industrial-sized destruction of CPL materials being undertaken by one of the top officers in the CPL system.

Once it became apparent what was going on Library Commissioner Mary Dempsey denied that Ald. Schulter had been barred and said the large-scale book removal was the library's standard procedure for damaged or little-used books.

But CPL's own records showed that Sulzer staff had been weeding the collection of old and outdated books all along at their usual pace. The CPL brass never did come up with a believable reason why 35,000 books would need to be removed - and many destroyed - in such a short period of time.

Shorlty thereafter many Sulzer staffers were forced into early retirement or forced out of their jobs. Some had to leave the state to find work in the industry. Commissioner Dempsey barred a Friends group from volunteering in the library, cameras were banned from the library and security was heightened.

Aldermen to limit food cart operations in 42nd, 44th Wards

BY DOMINIQUE JACKSON Columbia Chronicle

Coming on the heels of the City Council's legalization of food carts on Sept.24, aldermen Brendan Reilly (42nd) and Tom Tunney (44th) have succeeded in implementing restrictions on where food cart vendors can operate. According to Hilary Gowins, managing editor for the Illinois Policy Institute, Tunney and Reilly cite public safety as a reason to restrict food cart operations in their wards.

Hours after the City Council's Sept. 24 action, Reilly and Tunney introduced optout amendments to the ordinance that would allow them to ban food carts in high traffic areas of their wards.

The City Council license committee approved the ordinances on Oct. 27, according to a Chicago Sun-Times article appearing the same day.

"It's really unfortunate that so soon after giving people the freedom to operate their businesses, the aldermen already want to take back what they are able to do," Gowins said.

Both Reilly and Tunney were unavailable for comment, as of press time. There are 1,500 food cart vendors in Chicago, and starting Nov. 13, food cart owners can apply for licenses, according to Gowins.

Chicago is home to 16,000 food establishments like restaurants, grocery stores, bakeries, wholesalers, lunchrooms, mobile food vendors and more. The city's main concerns are food safety and sanitation. Their goal is to prevent the spread of foodborne disease. They do this by inspecting food businesses, responding to complaints and food recalls and also offering education to food service managers.

Out of the 50 largest cities in the nation, Chicago was one of two that refused to license food carts, according to Stacy Massey, community relations manager for the Institute for Justice Clinic on Entrepreneurship. Before legalization, food cart vendors would have to worry about being ticketed and fined by the police, according to Massey.

Gowins said it is too early to determine the impact of legalizing food carts, but research released by Illinois Policy Institute suggests it is promising because of the jobs it will create.

The report was released by Michael Lucci and Gowins Aug. 21, outlining the benefits of allowing food carts to operate in the city, suggesting they could create 6,000 new jobs. It also said more than 1,500 food cart vendors in Chicago serve around 50,000 meals a day to consumers.

"We have every reason to believe that the industry is going to boom here in Chicago," Gowins said.

Teresa Vergra-Miranda, a Brighton Park resident, said she eats at food carts offering Mexican street food about twice a week.

"My parents are from Mexico, and we eat at [food carts] after church because it reminds them of Mexico—it reminds us of home," Vergra-Miranda said.

Vergra-Miranda also said she thinks obstruction of streets by food carts will not be a public safety concern.

"There is enough sidewalk for everyone," Vergra-Miranda said.

Chassity Santiago, a server at Salt & Pepper Diner in Wrigleyville, said she does not think food carts threaten her restaurant's business because there are already many other choices in the area.

"The food in this neighborhood [Wrigleyville] is so diverse... I don't think it would have much of an impact," Santiago said.

Santiago said she agrees food carts should be restricted from certain locations on crowded game days in Wrigleyville to avoid worsening traffic.

"The ordinance puts food carts and brickand-mortar restaurants on an even playing field," Gowins said. "There is plenty of business for both to survive and thrive."

property. Himmel is also a Chicago lawyer, real estate broker and president of Bravo Restaurants Inc., which also owns the Gino's East pizzeria brand.

Plaintiffs alleged that over the years, Himmel improperly funneled Ed Debevic's money into his own pocket and his other business interests, with some of these activities only recently coming to Erie Wells LLC is the corporation that owns the real estate on which sits the restaurant. When Erie Wells bought the Ed Debevic's property at the southwest corner of Wells and Erie streets in 2005 for $4.5 million, more than $296,000 in overpayments were made, which were returned to the investment group. However, plaintiffs claimed Himmel took and kept the overpayment returns for himself. They further alleged that at around the same time, they took out a $500,000 loan for construction and repair of the restaurant building, but the money was not spent for those purposes.

Rather, they alleged Himmel took Jumping forward to 2015, plaintiffs said their investment group has entered into a contract to sell the Debevic's real estate. As part of the contract, $550,000 in earnest money was put down, of which $150,000 is unaccounted for. Kanar and Dickler claim Himmel is trying to cut their portion of the proceeds of the pending sale by presenting and invoking fraudulent documents.

In preparation for the sale of the Debevic's real estate, Kanar and Dickler claimed Himmel closed the restaurant Oct. 4 and auctioned off assets Oct. 19, both without authorization from his partners. They want a financial report of the assets sale.

Kanar and Dickler further alleged Himmel plans to divert proceeds from the real estate sale, which is set to close by Nov. 30. In this connection, Kanar and Dickler want proceeds from the sale to go into either a trust, an escrow account or into the hands of the court for proper disbursement.

Kanar and Dickler say they also invested money in a Debevic's restaurant in the Yorktown Shopping Mall. The restaurant closed in 2011 and plaintiffs alleged they were not repaid and Himmel diverted money and income from this establishment to his other businesses and to his own use. Plaintiffs cited federal tax returns that allegedly showed "overlapping," "excessive" and "unjustified" payments for operating expenses. Further, Kanar and Dickler claim income from the Yorktown restaurant was improperly mixed with income from other businesses.

Kanar and Dickler seek damages and among their other injunction requests, an order barring defendants from using funds from any of the Debevic's corporations to pay for their defense against the
