North Side marketing group loses its taxpayer-funded honey pot

Nearly $800,000 in SSA funds seized, given to neighboring chamber

BY PATRICK BUTLER

A controversial taxpayer-funded local business “promotional” organization will be taken over - against their will - by the Lakeview East Chamber of Commerce as of New Year’s Day, 2017.

“Chicago View,” once known as the Central Lakeview Merchants’ Assoc., will turn over control of about $800,000 in property tax money earmarked for local business promotion and development in Lakeview around Wrigley Field and the Belmont/Sheffield business and entertainment strips.

Ald. Tom Tunney (44th) and other city officials recently pulled SSA #17 from Chicago View and gave it to the Lakeview East Chamber of Commerce despite Chicago View executive director Gus Isaacson’s video stressing that SSA #17 has “always been compliant, had our deliverables in on time if not early, and always passed our audits.”

Uber knew of driver complaints prior to sexual assault - and still let him drive

BY CWBCHICAGO.COM

In July 2014, a 21-year-old South Loop man hailed an Uber in Lakeview East to take him home. Around 1 a.m. on July 31, 2014, Adnan Nafasat picked up his would-be victim near Halsted and Cornelia in Boystown. According to prosecutors, the Uber driver who took the ride request would sexually assault the young man before they arrived at their destination.

Now, this newspaper has learned, at least two separate Uber customers filed complaints with the ride-hailing company about that driver’s sexually overt behavior on the job.

Despite the complaints against him, Adnan Nafasat was allowed to continue to drive for the company. He is now charged with aggravated kidnapping, attempted aggravated criminal sexual assault, aggravated criminal sexual abuse, aggravated battery, and unlawful restraint.

The allegations about Nafasat’s behavior, as well as Uber’s alleged knowledge of his conduct before the sexual attack, are laid out in a prosecution filing called a “Motion To Allow Other Crimes Evidence.”

Nafasat’s reported behavior before the alleged sexual assault was not illegal, but “show[s] his intent and state of mind toward young male passengers... and show [Nafasat’s] propensity to be sexually inappropriate and opportunistic with young male passengers,” the state said in its filing.

Adnan Nafasat

In Feb. 2014, Nafasat picked up another Uber customer in Boystown, just one block from where he would pick up the sexual assault victim months later, prosecutors said.

Nafasat “inappropriately inquired... about sexual positions” in a way that prompted the passenger to ask Nafasat to let him out of the car before they reached their destination.

The man filed a complaint about Nafasat’s behavior with Uber via client feedback, prosecutors said.

On July 11, 2014, about three weeks before he would allegedly assault the 21-year-old, Nafasat picked up a male Uber customer in Logan Square.

During the ride to Lincoln Park, Nafasat “inappropriately inquired of [the passenger] as to what he liked sexually and what his sexual preference was,” prosecutors say.

The man “filed a complaint about [Nafasat’s] inappropriate sexual conduct and behavior with Uber through client feedback,” the state said.

None the less, Nafasat continued to drive for the company and, less than three weeks later, he attacked the 21-year-old victim in his vehicle.

He convinced the customer to sit in his minivan’s front passenger seat, claiming that the back seats were dirty and broken, prosecutors say.

After turning off the Uber tracking app, Nafasat allegedly told the victim, “No one knows where you are” and then began assaulting the man as he drove on Roosevelt Rd., according to the allegations.

“At times, when [Nafasat] had to stop his vehicle, he would grab the victim by the face and throat to prevent him from exiting... The offender also pulled down his own pants” and attempted to force the victim to perform a sex act, prosecutors said.

The victim was also choked and had Nafasat’s tongue and fingers forcibly shoved down his throat during the ride, according to the Community meetings planned to discuss Ogden/Jenner school merger

For more than a year, the communities at Ogden Elementary School and Jenner Elementary Academy of the Arts have been contemplating whether it is in the best interest of students to merge operations.

The leaders of Chicago Public Schools have observed the contemplation process and worked to provide their best insight and guidance about the opportunities the merger would present, as well as the challenges that it could pose for the education of local children.

Based on formal requests from groups involved, CPS is moving forward with a more formal community process that could allow the Chicago Board of Education to consider a merger proposal for the 2018-19 school year.

As NextLevel, an advisory group that has advocated for the merger, pointed out in its report, “Because of the critical importance of these pre-merger activities, NextLevel would encourage consideration of a longer planning, preparation and community partnership period, with the merged schools in operation for the 2018/2019 school year.”

CPS believes that additional conversations must be held to ensure the entire community can thoughtfully and carefully evaluate the benefits and drawbacks of a merger, as well as provide insights into how it would work day-to-day.

To move forward, CPS will hold meetings on the campuses of both schools to ask for community input in the following areas that would be impacted by a merger:

-What curriculum will be used at the merged school for core subjects such as math, reading, science, social studies and other subjects?

-How will grade levels be divided among the merged school’s various campuses?

-What programs from each school will remain, be eliminated or be expanded?

-What professional development will be needed to prepare staff, including certification in teaching International Baccalaureate programs?

-Given the lower poverty rate for the merged school, how will the funding shortfall from the loss of federal Title I funds be addressed?

-How will the school sustainably manage three buildings spread over more than four miles in the city?

Some advice to save your life

The story of S.T.O.P. Foodborne Illness

BY JIM MATUSIK

They opened the beast box in California in 1993. It killed four children and infected 732 others, leaving 178 with permanent injuries, including kidney and brain damage.

Actually, the box was a Jack in the Box and the killer that it unleashed was ironically called the ‘Monster Burger.’ It was a special promotion and the tagline was, “So Good It’s Scary.”

It was big and it was cheap and the restaurant was swamped with orders. The staff couldn’t keep up with the demand and as a consequence of the rush, the beef was not cooked long enough or at a high enough temperature to kill the bacteria.

There had been other cases of food poisoning before, but this was shocking and it brought the exotic sounding bacteria E coli 0157:H7 out of the lab, and plastered it across the front page of every newspaper in the country.

And out of the collective grief, shock, and anger of parents and victims, a grassroots organization called S.T.O.P. was formed.

It stood for Safe Tables Our Priority and today it has become a nationwide non-profit public health organization that is dedicated to the prevention of sickness and death from foodborne pathogens.

It advocates for building public awareness and assisting those impacted by these illnesses. It offers many services on its website including peer to peer connection which allows a mother with a stricken child for instance, to connect with a family who has already been through the same trauma.

The world of foodborne microbes contains a mix of approximately 250 different types of bacteria, viruses, mold, parasites and algae. The two most dangerous and prevalent of these are Bacteria and Viruses.

Bacteria are the largest group. They are small, one-celled microbes invisible to the human eye that come in many shapes and are capable of reproducing themselves.

The most familiar, and often times fatal are Salmonella, E coli 0157:H7, and Listeria. Infection usually occurs by direct ingestion of a contaminated product, but can also occur by simply coming into contact with an infected person.

There was a local 1985 salmonellosis outbreak that came from Salmonella typhimurium in milk from the Hillfarm Dairy in Melrose Park. It was the worst outbreak of salmonellosis food poisoning in U.S. history at the time.

Hey, what’s your claim to fame?

By Thomas J. O’Gorman

Growing up in Chicago in a family of tea drinkers life was one long Shinto Tea Ceremony. Our tea was always strong and well-steeped. Never saw a tea bag. Always loose leaves. Black. But sweet and creamy. The Irish Way. No one was expected to sip from their cup with pinkies raised. But you were expected to exercise decorum. Silent sipping was the golden rule. No slurping. From the first morning cup to the last slumber bowl before bed, everyone savored away the hearty brew.

But there was one classical, inexcusable error that would send everyone into gales of laughter. That’s when some poor soul started to sip from their cup without first removing their spoon. It was like driving a car with one leg out the door. My Grandmother, Nora O’Connor, who always presided, stood guard duty on correctness. When she would see such an error, she would usually say in her thick brogue, “And do ye think ye are, Eddie Hoban?” How low could she go?

Poor Eddie Hoban was a cousin. And the brunt of every joke, at times, while sipping tea.

Eddie was a boy of indelicate manners and became famous for almost putting his eye out while drinking his tea with the spoon still in his cup. When he did that, sometime in the 1930s, he became frozen in time as an unwise boy. The perpetual poster boy for poor breeding and social irregularity, the shame of the “lace curtain Irish.”

He achieved a larger than life status for all his social error. He never lived it down. Long after he returned to God, his reputation as a “spoon drinker” guaranteed him a unique place in the structure of family life. His tea drinking was quite a claim to fame. He became a textbook case for all to see and understand.

Eddie left us all a valuable and wise lesson in living.

My Aunt Theresa enjoyed a unique role in the larger family’s life. She was elegant but tough. More zaftig than most women, she moved with authority, but often over-played her hand in regard to her son, cousin Johnny Canning. He was portly, a fine boy with a knife and a fork. But he often became delirious around cake. The more frosting the better. He was fond of my grandmother’s tortes and loved the pastry achievements of her kitchen. But cousin Johnny’s expanding girth made easy elegance difficult. His trousers were always lowered to half-staff, much to Aunt Theresa’s displeasure.

You couldn’t miss Johnny trying to pull up his drooping drawers. Though no one was ever cruel to him because of his size, they never shut up about his drawers.

Johnny lived for cakes. At wakes and weddings, at parades, ballgames or after Sunday Mass. His trousers were always in a tug-of-war with the rest of him. He was a living legend. And to this day, whenever we see anyone with their trousers drooping down, everyone says, “Here comes Johnny Canning.”

One of my grandmother’s best friends was a refined lady of girth who was an elocution teacher in the Chicago Public Schools. Miss McAloon. She was a maiden lady who lived just blocks away and loved to take her constitutional through the neighborhood with a stop off and a chat up.

Miss McAloon walked with power and authority and took up a lot of space on the sofa. She was well-dressed and well-groomed. She looked like the TV soprano Kate Smith.

But it was her size that always caught our notice. She was by far our grandmother’s fattest friend. But it was as a teacher of elocution that we found her most exotic manner. She spoke with the pear-shaped vowels and over-enunciation of a Marx Brothers film. Her correctness created its own comedy of perfection and stunning grandeur. We loved to hear her talk. She was brogue-free. And her words when let loose had their own peculiar cadence and stride. We thought she spun gold out of straw. She could make a street-car driver sound like a downtown banker.

But we were also haunted by the thought that she might find our own grammar and English pronunciation too casual and free. But she never chided us on our choice of words or selection of pronunciation. She reserved that for the clergy.

Like our grandmother, Miss McAloon was sweet and refined and very religious. In fact, she was originally a chum of our grandmother’s from the 8 a.m. Mass at Visitation Church. And from her station in the third pew from the front, a seat very near to the pulpit, she was a ripe listener to the clergy and laity alike. She listened attentively but silently, showing no immediate reaction on her face. And she told no jokes, despite her auditing the ups and downs of the religious elocution. But she did rely on a contribution of humorous anecdotes from her experience in Chicago’s Public Schools, which we always cheered on.

Mr. Wineman, as far as I knew, had no first name. At least I never heard one mentioned. He was the only person of Hebraic heritage that would regularly visit our grandmother’s house. For many years, he, his wife and daughter lived just nextdoor in a graystone Peoria St. six-flat where they had become chummy with my grandmother. Upon their arrival, the Mrs. Wineman would always shout loudly, “Hallo, hallo, it’s the Growing up in Chicago in a family of tea drinkers life was one long Shinto Tea Ceremony.

Vinemans.” All her words came coated in a thick Eastern European accent. We loved that she made all her “Ws” change into “Vs.” I don’t know if she ever met Miss McAloon.

Mrs. Wineman was a plumpish lady and always filled with chat. Mr. Wineman was rail thin. My father always said that they were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spratt from the children’s rhyme.

The Vinemans were lovely people and always brought my grandmother gifts. The best was the Kosher salami and the Kosher Mogen David wine. The Vinemans were exotic and other worldly. Right out of central casting. After his wife’s death, Mr. Wineman’s visits became more frequent. Sometimes he stayed for lunch. The salamis continued and so did the wine. They made the visits festive. I was always fond of both, even as a child. The salami was spicy by Irish standards. And the wine was warm and toasty as it slipped down your throat.

I always laugh when I think of that wine. It’s the same wine that my grandmother would give me after I shoveled her sidewalk and front porch. I can remember coming in from the cold and her giving me a glass of it in my hand. I would sip it while sitting on her radiator. Within minutes I was anesthetized and laying on a sofa falling into a deep sleep.

My memory of these characters and their claims to fame were jump-started on Thanksgiving after dinner with my sister, Mary Regina. Eddie Hoban, Aunt Therese, Johnny Canning, Miss McAloon and the Winemans all encircled us from the far reaches of our childhoods, reminding us of more simple pleasures and more human connections. And a reminder of what a colorful place Chicago was then, jammed with families and cousins of questionable haberdashery and off-putting manners, and old neighbors who traveled the streetcars to keep their old neighbors Kosher. Everyone was a part of each other’s claims to fame, those small, off-handed idiosyncrasies, like spoons in your tea cup or baggy pants or spicy salami. Family and friendship are circles that revolve and continue to enrich the quality of life. It is one giant mazel tov.

JAX — a wise gift that keeps on giving

Premature at 11:11 a.m. on 11-11-11, short life leaves legacy

Heart of the 'Hood

By Felicia Dechter

Jackson Chance Meghie loved to snuggle. The little baby boy also enjoyed listening to music -- especially reggae -- and his feet were always moving! "He was very happy and smiled so much," said Jackson's mom, Carrie Meghie, a Ukrainian Village resident who's co-president of Becker Ventures, which owns the Hard Rock Hotel on Michigan Ave. "He had eyelashes for days and would use them to flirt with his many NICU girlfriends aka nurses. His spirit was so positive and happy that he made even the doctors forget how sick he was."

Jackson was born on 11-11-11 @ 11:11 p.m. and he was as special as his birthday was unique, said Carrie. Although he was also 10-weeks premature, he was a spirited, happy baby. But Jackson suffered from Bronchopulmonary dysplasia (BPD), a chronic lung condition affecting newborns either put on a breathing machine after birth or born prematurely.

Carrie and her husband, Terry, always thought their precious son would come home and live a long life with them. But sadly, that was not to be. The family was crushed when at just shy of 10 months-old -- after spending all but 48 hours of his life in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Lurie Children's Hospital --- little Jackson passed away in Carrie's arms while holding his father Terry's hand on Sept. 7, 2012.

The NICU had become the Meghie's home away from home, and they found out firsthand the challenges parents face having a child in the hospital. To honor Jackson's legacy, the Meghies started the Jackson Chance Foundation (JCF), whose goal is to help others "Enjoy the Moment!," just like Jackson did.

To alleviate the stress of transportation expenses while a child is in the NICU, the foundation started its NICU Transportation Program, which provides parking and CTA/Metra vouchers to families. Currently, the program benefits Lurie Children's Hospital with the goal of expanding to Northwestern's Prentice Women's Hospital in the near future.

Carrie had found the high parking costs so "maddening" that she decided to do something about it. "We felt so fortunate that we had the resources to pay for it and knew that it was impacting our family at the same time," she said. "It was just one more challenge piled on to the list of so many during that tough time."

To help raise parking funds, JCF is selling the adorable 7.5-inch stuffed, JAX the Wise Owl. If you give a hoot and would like to help, JCF is currently taking pre-orders for a Dec. 16 delivery. JAX is $38 including shipping within the U.S.; $30 if you pick up at 230 N. Michigan Ave. And for $30, you can also donate JAX to a NICU baby.

"The owl came from the wallpaper in Jackson's room at home," said Carrie, who has two other sons, Solomon 9, and Maxson, 3. "While he was in the NICU, I took some of the wallpaper and decorated his hospital room to bring in something from home."

"The owls became associated with him and then became the logo for the foundation," said Carrie. "I love how the owl represents wisdom and intuitive knowledge too, which makes it a great symbol for Jackson Chance Foundation."

If you have a child or know a child who loves to snuggle it's the perfect gift, said Carrie. If you don't, you can always buy one to donate to a NICU baby.

"Our goal is to raise enough money so that we can provide a JAX to every baby admitted to our partner NICU's in 2017," she said.

"It makes me feel very proud," Carrie added. "I'm so honored to be Jackson's mother and blessed to impact other families in his honor."

Rockin' around the Christmas tree ... is what dozens of kids will be doing Dec. 14, thanks to the generous folks at Dick's Last Resort, 315 N. Dearborn St. For the 26th year, Dick's will host its annual Children's Holiday Party in partnership with the 18th District Community Policing Office.

Dick's closes for the afternoon to accommodate the approximately 50 children brought in from area schools and churches for this unforgettable event. The restaurant serves a bountiful kid-friendly buffet hosted by Santa, while carolers from VanderCook College of Music sing Christmas Carols. The little ones get their faces painted, they dance with Santa's elves, and more importantly, they each get three presents from Jolly Old St. Nick!

Dick's underwrites the cost of the presents and in the 26 years of this event has spent more than $80,000 on gifts for the children. "These are children who probably would not be getting much for Christmas," said Dick's owner Steve Schiff. "And in these hard economic times, we wanted to provide a really special afternoon."

For the second year in a row, Ron Bockstahler, CEO aLawCenters, donated $1,000 to sponsor Christmas stockings filled with school supplies. Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White, who has attended the party for the last 15 years, will speak to the children about the importance of staying in school and not getting involved with gangs.

Each year for the last 26, the party has been organized by Chicago civic leader Kathy Posner, a Near North Side resident. Posner said witnessing the kids' joy at the event is always her own favorite present.

"A hundred years from now no one will remember, how much money I had in the bank, what kind of car I drove, or what kind of job I had... But I hope I will be remembered if I made a difference in the life of a child," said Posner, a member of the 18th District Community Policing District Advisory Council (DAC). "Watching the children's eyes light up and hearing their laughter as they sing, dance, eat and get their presents from Santa is the most precious gift I can receive for the holiday season. After 26 years of 'making spirits bright, what fun it is to laugh and sing' with these children on this night."

Eat, drink, be merry... and check out cool artwork at an art exhibition being held from 3 to 7 p.m. Dec. 11 at Rogue Fusion Restaurant, 7027 N. Clark St.

Meet local artists Jill Sutton,

Linda Sweig, and Stephen Lloyd while munching on delish food at Rogue Fusion, which serves up an "Eclectic fusion of cultures with a touch of a great service." That evening, along with the regular menu, there will be a buffet for $16.99 with smoked salmon, salad, soup, veggies, mashed potatoes, chicken piccata, and black forest chocolate cake.

The artists will be hanging out and the restaurant is BYOB so bring your own cocktails. I'm told the artwork will be on sale "way cheaper," than regular price. Hope to see you there!

Fireplaces need annual maintenance before the Christmas ambiance starts

The Home Front

By Don DeBat

With the last leaves of autumn now raked away, the holiday season is the time to snuggle up at home near a cozy fireplace hearth.

At Chateau DeBat, we can't ignore our addiction to the warm glow of the family-room fireplace. At the end of every chilly autumn and winter day there's the quiet conversation over a glass of wine while sitting in front of the flames.

However, before enjoying that first great fire, it is important to give your fireplace an annual cleaning and maintenance check to reduce possible carbon monoxide emissions.

"Every fireplace should have a professional safety inspection each autumn before the harsh winter months," notes Chicago firefighter Steve Alleyne, who runs Firefixer, a firm that specializes in fireplace servicing and repair.

Indeed, Christmas morning is the wrong time to realize you have a problem with the fireplace.

This writer has a vented gas-log fireplace in the family room, and a vent-free burner in the living room, so the inspection process covers two common types of units.

"Annual cleaning and service is needed to remove dust from the logs and prevent the burner pilot from getting clogged, which could lead to carbon monoxide buildup that sets off your carbon monoxide detector," Alleyne said.

Firefixer does the job for a reasonable $145 service call, which includes replacing batteries for remote starters, fresh embers, lava rock and a seasonal warranty. Visit www.firefixer.com.

Our family room fireplace was set up as a traditional wood-burning unit, but being carefree urban dwellers a decade ago we opted for gas logs, and the luxury of a remote-starter system.

Firefixer's recent annual maintenance check revealed that the 10-year-old gas burner was shot, probably from almost daily use during autumn and winter. He detected holes in the burner pan that could emit deadly carbon monoxide into the room, even though the unit was vented.

Firefixer installed a new 18-inch "RealFyre" premium gas burner pan by RH Peterson Co. at a cost of $200. We added a new pilot and remote starter kit for an added $375, including installation labor, glowing embers and sand Firefixer Steve Alleyne installs a new gas-log burner to replace the 10-year-old log set that failed.

Luckily, we were able to recycle our old ceramic gas logs, which Firefixer cleaned. So the total cost of the fireplace rehab was $575.

We also have a ventless gas-log fireplace in the living room, but we only light it during the holidays or when the temperature falls below 20 degrees.

Hearth purists likely would say a wood-burning fireplace—with its ambiance, crackle and scent—is a more romantic option. Most Realtors would agree a fireplace—either gas or wood-burning—is a coveted and valued feature in today's homes.

According to a 2012 survey, buyers rank fireplaces as one of the three amenities they'd most like in their house. And, 60% of new homes come with a fireplace, compared with only 36% in the 1970s.

A National Assoc. of Realtors survey reported that 46% of home buyers would pay more for a home with at least one fireplace.

"If you own a high-end residence, buyers expect a fireplace and often are willing to pay more for a home with one," said Chicago Realtor Sara E. Benson, president of Benson Stanley Realty. "A working fireplace typically adds $5,000 to $7,500 to the value of an average home."

However, wood-burning fireplaces also can be a costly headache for the novice homeowner. Readers of The Home Front may recall an earlier column reviewing this writer's adventures with hearth and home.

In the 1970s, there was the stucco bungalow, built in 1911 in the landmarked Irving Park Villa neighborhood. It had a smoky fireplace with a shallow hearth and a broken damper. Four decades have passed, but my first home recently received a fireplace makeover by Firefixer. A new ventless gas burner was installed, along with new logs and glass doors.

Unfortunately, the current owner rented the house to four male Millennials who decided to pile wood logs on top of the gas logs in the fireplace in the master bedroom and ignite it like a funeral pyre. The mess required two hours of labor by the Firefixer to get the gas logs operating again. "You won't believe what I've found in the hearth of some fireplaces—everything from melted marshmallows to toy soldiers," Alleyne said.

My next adventure was the English Tudor home built in the 1920s in the Sauganash neighborhood. The home sported a massive stone fireplace in the living room that belched smoke. It needed a new flue liner, damper and removal of a squirrel's nest from the chimney.

Then, there was the hearth love affair with the 12-room Italianate Victorian in the Old Town Historic District. Built in 1872, the home featured four amazing fireplaces faced with glazed ceramic tile. But, the old fireplaces couldn't pull a puff of smoke up the chimneys. They needed flue liners, dampers and chimney rebuilding and logs with modern starters.

A fireplace rehab project currently underway at a mountain house in North Carolina is a challenge. The 50-year-old wood-burning unit had rusted away, and following demolition, and after $189 video flue inspection we learned the vintage clay tile pipe in the chimney was cracked.

"When purchasing a vintage home, buyers would be wise to have a fireplace inspection in addition to the standard home inspection," advised Benson. "Any unexpected repair cost can easily add up to thousands of dollars."

The plan is to repair the flue, erect a new dry-stack stone facade, hearth and antique wood mantel, then install a propane gas fireplace insert with glass doors and a blower to provide supplementary heat for the house.

"A wood-burning fireplace is expensive, an energy waster and just plain too much work for the average homeowner," observed Alleyne. Once you get the fireplace logs burning, 90% of the heat goes up the chimney, he said.

"If the fireplace doesn't have an ash dump, you are left with a mess to clean up, and, you'll need a professional chimney cleaning every other year to keep combustible creosote at bay," he warned.

What's the most energy-efficient option? "The vent-free gas fireplace is the best choice if you want to keep the most heat in the room," Alleyne advised. "A ventless fireplace is 98% efficient, and can save up to 40% on your gas bill."

Vent-free fireplaces are affordable heat source because the burner is small and it is less expensive than running the furnace full blast during chilly months, Firefixer noted.

"They are very popular in high-rise condominiums and rental apartments because no flue or chimney is necessary and these units are much more affordable," said Alleyne.

If there is an issue with vent-free gas-log combustion odor, Firefixer recommends burning the gas logs for one hour with a window open at the beginning of the season.

Chicagoans only worry now is that tax-happy Mayor Rahm Emanuel might institute a hearth tax, or chimney tax similar to the one imposed by English Parliament in 1662.

With Christmas on the way, a hearth tax may sound like Ebenezer Scrooge, but it could happen.

MCA's $16M redesign will include new restaurant, public space

BY STEVEN DAHLMAN
Loop North News

A new restaurant is part of a major $16 million redesign underway at Museum of Contemporary Art. Jason Hammel will be its chef. He is the owner and executive chef of Lula Café in the Logan Square neighborhood.

Designed by British painter Chris Ofili, the restaurant will be on the ground floor of the Gold Coast museum with access from the street and also connect to new space on the second floor. In the middle of the restaurant will be a large mural by Chris Ofili.

"Before I discovered cooking, I used to think of myself as a young, urban artist, a seeker in the world," says Hammel. "Visiting the MCA, I found something beyond the galleries — a creative community of people who continually test ideas and the imagination." Hammel says the restaurant will also offer take-out.

An architectural redesign of the building is being led by Los Angeles architects Sharon Johnston and Mark Lee, who were recently named artistic directors of the 2017 Chicago Architecture Biennial.

Some 12,000 square feet of the museum will be converted into public spaces that will be accessible, free of charge, day and night. A new, third floor will contain classrooms and meeting space. The space will also feature plant-shaped lamps, some with actual greenery, hanging from the ceiling.

"This project efficiently re-uses the current space to fuel the vital connection between artists and audiences," says MCA Director Madeleine Grynsztejn. "Every space and service the museum offers should create a meaningful social and cultural experience, and with this redesign, we are positioning the museum to connect with a wider audience that is even more diverse and inclusive."

"Really, the entire restaurant is [an Ofili] commission," Grynsztejn told The New York Times. "He will have a hand in all surfaces, from the patterning of the leather banquettes to the glass of the dining room doors. And the mural will be the basis for the palette of the rest of the restaurant."

area, some residents complained the lamppost trees were even more popular with urinating dogs.

Others complained that the $25,000 the SSA spent for each of the two years the tree program lasted was criticized as a waste of taxpayer money.

In 2014 SSA#17 generated nearly $917,000 in property tax revenue for the district. In 2013 it was about $703,000 and in 2015 it was about $660,000. Administrative and personnel costs generally ate up between 25-38% of the gross revenue annually.

Then there were the oddball advertising promotions, like the one with the pliers pulling part of a bloody fingernail off in a pair-off between a beauty shop and an auto repair shop. There were also lightly viewed Youtube videos shot and posted online that promoted some local businesses, wedged between wacky commentary and silly, childish interactions. And on St. Patrick's Day two years ago, Chicago View's promotional magazine literally released 50 paper airplanes carrying $50 bills. Organizers hoped that the money would be spent in local stores and eateries.

Maureen Martino of the Lake View East Chamber of Commerce

said her starting priorities will include safety around the theater district, Boystown, Wrigley Field, and the CTA stations, especially the one at Belmont Ave., which sadly today is one of the highest crime locations in all of Chicago.

Strategies, she added, might well include opening satellite offices near "hot spots" to be manned by private security.

She also plans to beef up the chamber's maintenance crew to clean up the area as part of a concerted effort to develop Lake View as both a tourist destination as more hotels open up around Wrigley Field and the focal point of a "shop local" campaign aimed at neighborhood residents.

Asked why she thought the SSA was transferred from "Chicago View" to the Lake View East Chamber, Martino said the old Central Lakeview Merchants Assoc. was no longer a business association but had changed its mission and became a marketing organization.

Twelve ideas & tips for fun holiday activities with seniors

Holiday time can be enjoyable for older adults even if they can't participate fully in every activity. Feeling included is the most important part of enjoying the holidays. Even if your senior has physical or mental issues, they can still have a good time and feel like part of the group.

Adjust activities for special needs

Some older adults don't enjoy big groups, while some love being the center of attention. Some love to get out of the house, and some are homebodies. You know your senior best, so you can customize activities to suit their personality and special needs.

For example, someone with

Alzheimer's may want to stay in a separate room and only greet a few family members at a time to keep things calm and avoid overstimulation.

Another example is seniors with declining vision. They might enjoy being in a busy room while someone describes what's happening to help them "see" what's going on around them.

Fun ideas

When it comes to choosing activities, every older adult has different abilities, likes and dislikes. If you have a variety of options at the ready, you'll have a good chance of finding something the whole family can enjoy.

Here are a dozen ideas to get your creative juices flowing.

- Card games
- Board games
- Reading aloud
- Listening to your senior's favorite music
- Talking with kids about "the olden days"

- Watching movies together—at home or in a theater
- Family walk around the neighborhood or in a local park
- Strolling around the mall
- Online shopping for things

your older adult needs

- Enjoying tea or coffee together
- Baking cookies
- Cooking or preparing food — there are tasks for many ability levels

Pace activities and stick to routines

Older adults have less energy and stamina, so watch for signs of fatigue and suggest breaks or naps. Changing routines can also be tough for seniors to adjust to, so it's always a good idea to stick to their normal routine as much as possible.

Older adults should join in the fun whenever possible, but be careful not to overdo it.

What to know about cardiac rehabilitation

According to the American Heart Association (AHA), one in five American adults will develop heart failure at some point in their lives and approximately 915,000 Americans will have a heart attack each year.

The impact of heart failure and heart attacks can be greatly reduced by cardiac rehabilitation, which can also improve recovery after cardiac surgery, but these programs are sadly underutilized. Less than 35 percent of heart attack survivors and only 31 percent of those who have had coronary bypass surgery choose to go through cardiac rehabilitation. Many who don't participate in cardiac rehabilitation suffer lasting repercussions.

Few people are aware of how much these programs can benefit their heart health. If you aren't familiar with the benefits of cardiac rehabilitation, it's time to learn more, because it's likely that you or a loved one could benefit from it someday.

How can cardiac rehabilitation help?

The AHA defines cardiac rehabilitation as "a medically supervised program to help heart patients recover and improve overall physical, mental and social function. The goal is to stabilize, slow or even reverse the progression of heart failure [to] reduce the risk of heart disease, another cardiac event or death."

AHA segments the treatment into exercise, education and stress management.

More simply, cardiac rehabilitation is the process of helping those with heart conditions get back on their feet through extensive monitoring, medical check-ins, and exercise and diet modification.

Most programs consist of an initial evaluation stage followed by a personalized program consisting of exercises and guidance on remaining health conscious during recovery.

Specific rehabilitation programs differ depending on medical history, though participants can usually expect them to last around three months with an option to extend care. Since cardiac rehab is completely customized to the individual, someone could receive years of carefully monitored assistance depending on their specific medical condition.

For those recovering from a surgical procedure like angioplasty, in which a small balloon is used to open up a blocked artery to improve blood flow, rehabilitation can address specific post-surgical needs. In the case of angioplasty, a rehabilitation program will teach participants how to care for the catheter insertion site, which requires close monitoring immediately following surgery to reduce pain. Across cardiac conditions, cardiac rehabilitation reduces the risks of recurring problems.

What are the barriers to cardiac rehabilitation?

Despite the clear benefits of rehab, there are many barriers to entering a program. The most notable is the lack of physician referral, which is necessary to enter cardiac rehabilitation. One study in the Journal of the American College of Cardiology found that only 56 percent of those suffering a heart condition were referred to cardiac rehabilitation, leaving almost half of patients to recover on their own.

While this referral rate may seem lower than it should be, the rate for older adults is even lower. If cardiac rehab has been proven to aid in the recovery process and decrease mortality rates, why do many hospitals have dismal referral rates to cardiac rehab?

This question doesn't have a clear answer. Some studies have found that physicians are less likely to refer patients they feel are unlikely to complete a rehabilitation program. Past heart conditions and distance from a

Dialysis care at Continental Nursing and Rehabilitation

When kidney function needs a boost

The statistics are sobering – kidney disease is on the rise in the United States today.

One in 10 American adults (more than 20 million people) now have some level of chronic kidney disease.

End-stage renal disease is especially hard-hitting among African Americans at a rate that is three times higher than for Caucasians.

The combination of obesity and eating a diet high in salt and rich in calories has taken its toll, leading to long-term hypertension and Type II diabetes with terrible end results on kidney function.

“I have a whole new respect for kidneys since getting into this line of work,” registered nurse Shawndale Pugh said. “I’ve learned that we all need to teach our kids how to eat better so they will be healthy adults.”

Pugh oversees the dialysis treatment program at Continental Nursing and Rehabilitation, 5336 N. Western Ave.

“Kidneys are a wonderful and perfectly designed machine,” he said. “What they accomplish for our bodies and the fact that we’re blessed with two when we really only need one – is amazing. It has made me very health conscious about my own habits, especially in staying hydrated and avoiding sugary drinks.”

Shawndale Pugh RN, who has 17 years’ experience working with kidney patients, oversees the dialysis unit at Continental Nursing & Rehab Center.

Pugh notes that a healthy renal diet is low in salt, contains the right amount of daily calories, and includes such good sources of protein as fish and chicken.

Renal-smart diets

Kidneys flourish when we eat foods that contain the following:

- Potassium – carrots, potatoes, bananas, oranges, cantaloupe
- Phosphorus – beef, cheddar cheese, almonds, certain seafood
- Sodium – soup/broth, bacon, canned spaghetti sauce

Purine – split peas, tuna, pork, asparagus
Oxalates – green beans, cashews, tangerines, cocoa

Fluids – milk, coffee, lemonade, tea, water

Kidney function

The average kidney weighs in at just 2.8 to 3 pounds and plays a very powerful role in keeping us well. Pugh listed the top five functions healthy kidneys perform for our body:

1. Remove wastes and extra fluid
2. Control blood pressure
3. Make red blood cells
4. Keep bones healthy
5. Control pH (acid – base balance) levels

Causes of kidney impairment

Kidney function can become compromised from long-term hypertension, diabetes, blunt trauma, congenital defects, lupus, congestive heart failure and rheumatoid arthritis, among other issues.

If kidneys become too disabled to function on their own, dialysis care may be an option.

Dialysis is a life-saving mechanical process for removing waste and excess water from the blood when the kidneys are no longer functioning.

At Continental, the unit operates 12 hours a day, five days a week, with a staff of four. Patients are assigned their own machine in the unit to decrease cross contamination, and treatment times vary between two and three hours per session.

“Once hooked up to the machine, dialysis is a painless procedure,” Pugh explained. “It is not a cure – the underlying medical condition creating the need for dialysis is what has to be treated, if possible.”

At Continental’s dialysis unit, patients range in age from their late 40s to their early 60s. Currently, the unit treats 19 in-patients.

“What I like best about my work here is the ability to care for the whole patient and give them back some quality of life again,” Pugh said. “From providing patient education to identifying someone who is depressed or scared, we get to know our patients very well and can supply them with whatever extra emotional support they may need to feel better.”

CARDIAC from p. 7

cardiac rehabilitation program were also defining factors in whether an individual was referred. This can have an outsized impact on certain groups, including those 65 or older, people of color and women. These gaps in cardiac rehabilitation referrals line up with an increased risk of subsequent cardiac events.

In addition to these low referral rates, many who are referred mistakenly believe that cardiac rehabilitation caters to a younger generation, but this is simply not the case. Cardiac rehabilitation is ultimately about improving quality of life, regardless of age. In a strong cardiac rehabilitation program, medical professionals will consider an individual’s personal needs and limitations prior to defining a rehabilitation program.

Unfortunately, many patients are unaware of the benefits they could receive through a rehabilitation program and fail individuals can work with doctors and nurses to improve their own health outcomes. The HeartBeats cardiac rehabilitation program is CMSS’ newest offering at Wesley Place, where CMSS also has specialties in stroke and orthopedic rehabilitation.

Each HeartBeats participant stays at Wesley Place, where they have a private suite, access to a range of daily programming and can frequent the new Wesley Place Bistro.

Wesley Place is located on Foster Avenue, in the heart of Andersonville.

While many traditionally think of “rehab” as a daily or weekly appointment to regain strength, this holistic experience can better help meet an individual’s dietary and physical needs.

Most importantly, each person should have a complete understanding of his or her own cardiac rehabilitation experience.

“HeartBeats is unique in that it puts cardiac education front and center for each of our patients,” CMSS cardiologist Sanjay S. Gill said. “After a patient’s first consult, our nurse practitioner regularly monitors patient lab work, vitals and charts and explains the process every step of the way. By the end of their time in our program, patients leave with knowledge of preventive care in order to encourage improvement and prevent setbacks.”

Over the course of their time at Wesley Place, HeartBeats participants learn how to manage their medications and dietary needs, what questions they should ask their doctors in the future and more information about their heart conditions. Each person also leaves with a better understanding of his or her health goals and how to achieve them.

The American Heart Association attributes a 20 to 30 percent reduction in mortality rates to cardiac rehabilitation. If you have a cardiac condition or if cardiac problems run in your family, it’s time to learn more and talk to your doctor about options for cardiac rehabilitation.

Bill Lowe is the president and CEO of CMSS, a nonprofit provider of memory care; skilled nursing; supportive and assisted living; cardiac, orthopedic and neurologic rehabilitation; and other aging services.

About CMSS

CMSS is committed to helping each person live and feel as well as possible through person-centered care and life-enriching programming including art and music therapy. We believe it’s a good day when everyone who cares for you knows your story.

Located in the heart of Chicago’s Andersonville neighborhood, CMSS offers memory care in both assisted living and skilled nursing communities; short-term rehabilitation programs including specialties in cardiac, orthopedic and neurologic rehabilitation; long-term skilled nursing; supportive living; low-income senior housing; and programming for the greater community including fitness and technology classes and in-home technology support. In collaboration with partner nonprofit organization Services for Adults Staying in Their Homes (SASI), CMSS also offers home care.

As a nonprofit, CMSS is dedicated to investing its resources into programs that improve the quality of life for those served, including a robust selection of arts offerings. These programs are customized to fit individuals’ abilities, interests, and needs, because getting to know you is one of the ways CMSS is able to care better.

Top tips from The Clare Athletic Club help people stay strong, motivated

Melissa Cusick, The Clare Athletic Club

“Holiday eating is not wrong, or even bad, and should be enjoyed!” says Melissa Cusick, fitness manager and exercise physiologist of the Athletic Club at The Clare, the Gold Coast retirement community at Rush and Pearson streets.

Nonetheless, the holidays can be the starting line for a 10-week eating and drinking marathon with participants filling up at every turn. A 3,000-calorie dinner begins the race, followed by holiday baking, cocktail parties, open houses, banquets, rich desserts, a New Year’s Eve bash, and the Super Bowl at the finish line.

“One of my goals at this time of the year,” says Cusick, “is to see our independent living residents stay strong, motivated, and mindful about taking care of themselves.”

Always upbeat, engaging, and high spirited, Cusick works daily with Clare residents, leading group fitness classes and creating individualized exercise routines.

She also manages a program called “The Clare Contenders,” where she tracks residents’ attendance in exercise classes, their pool visits, and their Athletic Club visits, and posts monthly results.

“Everyone likes to see their success recognized,” she said. “It helps build accountability.”

Cusick is affiliated with The National Institute for Fitness and Sport (NIFS). Here are her top tips on being smarter about holiday feasting and exercising.

Tip #1: Do not arrive hungry

Be sure to avoid arriving hungry. Do not skip meals! This can lead to over-eating once you arrive at the party. Snack on something nutritious, high in protein or fiber, low-fat, and low in calories BUT... don’t forget you ate it – pay attention to your hunger signals!

Tip #2: Go last in line

Be the last person to go through the buffet line. By the time you finish your first serving, most everyone is finished eating their second, third, or even fourth serving.

Tip #3: Do not stand next to the food

Standing around the buffet table or by the bowl of snacks creates an almost irresistible temptation to graze. Save yourself some calories by taking a few steps back.

Tip #4: Eat, but do not overeat

Eat slowly and until you are full... then halt! It is unrealistic to expect that you will be able to cut out all fattening holiday eating, so don’t deny yourself the treats you love, just enjoy in moderation. Be selective about the special treats you have and enjoy them – just watch how much you are putting on your plate. SAVOR THE FLAVOR of small portions.

Tip #5: Use a small plate

We tend to finish what is on our plates, so select a small plate! If the plate and cup are small, servings will also have to be small. This is a good way to control your calorie consumption. Picnic plates with dividers are also useful.

Tip #6: Trim back the trimmings

Go easy on the nuts, cheese, sauces, gra-

Exercise of the Month - side crunches

Position yourself with a stable surface to your left side. Stand with feet hip-width apart and knees slightly bent. Engage your core and place your right hand on the side of your head.

Lift the right leg, bending the knee at a 90 degree angle and turning the thigh out to the side.

Bend to the right, bringing your right elbow towards your raised right knee. Avoid bending forward when performing the side crunch.

Perform desired amount of repetitions, then switch sides.

Hold on to a stable surface with non-exercising hand if balance issues exist.

Benefits of side crunches include improved balance and exercising core muscles without getting on the floor.

vy, and butter. Alternate alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages. Skip the appetizers. Check out the entire food selection before you start filling up your plate.

Tip #7: Quit the “Clean-Your-Plate Club”

Know when enough is enough. Eat your food slowly to allow your brain time to register it is full. Wait 15 minutes before going back for a second helping.

Tip #8: Eat natural

Whenever possible, choose foods that are as close as possible to how nature made them. One of the keys to a successful weight management program is to avoid processed foods. Fill up on fresh fruit and vegetables, whole grain breads, and lean meat.

Tip #9: Think before you eat

One of the biggest traps of holiday eating is the abundance of food that is available. Think about what you are eating before actually eating it. Listen to your body’s hunger signals.

Tip #10: Exercise before eating

Strive for 30 minutes of exercise before attending a holiday gathering. Exercise helps suppress appetite, burn extra calories, and increase self-esteem and motivation.

Tip #11: Exercise after eating

A short walk after a big meal can prevent you from eating more, help you burn extra calories, and allow you to enjoy time with family and friends.

Ask the NIFS (National Institute for Fitness and Sport) expert

Question: Should I perform my stretches before or after my exercise routine?

Answer: It is typically recommended that stretches are done after a warm up and/or at the end of an exercise routine when muscles and joints are warmed up. Stretching cold muscles could cause injury. Think of a rubber band that has been in the freezer. When stretched, the cold rubber band will snap at a much shorter distance than a warmer band. This is similar to how our muscles work.

Stretching can increase a joint’s range of motion, which can improve walking, posture and several other daily tasks. A good rule of thumb is to stretch to the point where you feel a light stretch but NEVER pain. If you feel pain, then ease off the stretch to a more comfortable position. Hold each stretch for 15-30 seconds before moving to the next.

Stretching at the end of an exercise routine will usually ensure that muscle groups are sufficiently warm and ready to perform a proper stretch. This is a great opportunity to stretch the major muscle groups such as the legs, core, arms and neck, among others.

The recommended amount of stretching is at least three times per week for 15 minutes each bout, but stretching more often can yield even better results.

If you prefer to stretch in the beginning of your workout, then perform dynamic stretches. These active stretches engage a range of motion that warm up the joints and muscles. Avoid ballistic or bouncing movements when performing dynamic stretches, as they can cause injury.

The power of art therapy

Memory loss can fundamentally alter how a person connects to the world around them. However, the arts have shown time after time to have a profound impact on memory, allowing many to engage with loved ones and express themselves in new and powerful ways.

This fall, Bringing Art to Life, a project led by Dr. Daniel C. Potts and Ellen Potts, is expanding to Chicago with the support of High Socks for Hope, the foundation started by White Sox pitcher David Robertson and his wife Erin Robertson. The Bringing Arts to Life program was developed in part by registered art therapist Angel C. Duncan, who is also active as a clinical researcher on issues related to memory loss and serves as the director of education at the Neuropsychiatric Research Center of Southwest Florida. In Chicago, the project will have a special focus on veterans with memory loss, in keeping with a key mission of High Socks for Hope: veterans' relief.

Bringing Art to Life - Chicago will roll out at Chicago-land Methodist Senior Services (CMSS) through the Engagement Through the Arts initiative alongside Music & MemorySM, a music therapy program that launched at CMSS earlier this year. In July, CMSS held a kickoff event at CMSS' Wesley Place, led by art therapist Jenn Ross, along with Angela Ray and Cyrus Alavi, project directors from Bringing Art to Life - Chicago. The Robertsons and their young son came by to help launch the program and talk to the group about their art.

Here's what happened at that event — and how people can bring the benefits of art therapy to others with memory loss.

Making connections, sharing stories

Part of the power of art therapy is its ability to help people open up and forge connections. Married couple Richard and Jean Anderson participated in this kickoff together. Richard, who served in the Naval Air Force Reserve and was active during the Cuban missile crisis, lives with Parkinson's disease, as well as memory loss. Together, the couple created a magnificent piece based on the quote, "Without change, there could be no butterflies."

Jean says she's experienced firsthand that art therapy can restore some of one's ability to connect with the world around them that memory loss limits. She credits the program with giving people the opportunity to reach outside of themselves.

"That's the gift of being alive — it's being connected," said Jean. "This art program gives people the means by which they can re-establish and maintain that connectedness. Maybe they'll paint something from a memory or someone loved."

During the program, Theresa Reilly, who served as an Army nurse in World War II, shared stories of her childhood on a farm, her time in the Army and her career after the war ended, teaching other nurses. Reilly seemed to thoroughly enjoy telling these stories and was engaged in the process.

She even told David Robertson about the time she went to a White Sox game with a school group, decades before he joined the team. Her memory didn't waver, even when it came to the finer details about the game she attended.

Reilly, who made an art piece based on the motto, "Deal with it," and another of a landscape with palm trees, said she had "tons of fun" and "loved the friendliness" of the program.

Ultimately, art is another way of communicating and sharing with each other, even when memory loss has made other ways of connecting more difficult.

How to bring art therapy to loved ones

There are many things you can do to bring the benefits of art therapy to people in your life, even if you don't have access to an initiative like Bringing Art to Life.

The first thing to do is look for art therapists or art therapy programs in your area. Working with a trained art therapist is key due to their extensive education in therapy, in addition to a background in art.

Art therapy education is rigorous, giving trained therapists a clinical understanding of diagnoses including Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease and more. They will have an understanding of how multiple diagnoses may interact, and what activities may be most therapeutic for each individual. The therapist can also tailor activities during the course of a session, as they see what is most engaging for each person.

Ultimately, art is another way of communicating and sharing with each other, even when memory loss has made other ways of connecting more difficult.

"Art-making opens up so many doors," said Ross. "No matter what is produced, it always opens up a door to conversation."

While working with an art therapist is the gold standard for people with memory loss and other health concerns, other types of engagement with art bring their own benefits. If you are not able to work with an art therapist, you can still create a meaningful experience for your loved ones.

Remember, creating art is not the time to set too many rules or expectations. While Ross starts people off with a particular directive, she allows the participants to shift their focus to what most engages them. Do the same for your loved one. Plan a project to get your loved one interested, but don't set an end goal. There is no wrong way for them to engage with the activity, as long as they are enjoying it.

Then, make sure you learn from what your loved one has found the most fun or soothing in the past. Listen to your loved one's preferences and allow them to shape what you bring to the table. Keep working with different materials until you find some that your loved one likes.

Making time to pick up paints or colored pencils provides a creative outlet for hardworking caregivers, too. So whether you plan to find an art therapist or just to print out some coloring pages, take the first step today. You may be surprised by the outcome.

It's a good day

Coat drive, local attorney helps needy kids keep warm

Attorney Joseph Ziccardi is again spearheading a donation drive for Operation Warm to help supply new winter coats to children in need in Chicago.

His Loop-based law firm is hosting a donation drive from now through Dec. 15 and wants to provide brand new winter coats to children in need.

Operation Warm works year-

round to create brand new, colorful winter coats made just for kids. Since 1998, Operation Warm has been manufacturing and distributing high-quality, new winter coats to more than two million children in need throughout the U.S. By actually manufacturing the coats it distributes, Operation Warm is able to efficiently control logistics, costs and inventory.

“Every child deserves to be warm, but today families are struggling with tough choices and limited resources,” said Ziccardi. “Necessity dictates that food and shelter take precedence over clothing, but children without coats are often absent from school in the winter, unable to play outside or partake in activities, and suffer from low self-esteem as a result. Our vision is that every child wearing a new winter coat is warm, feels valued and is empowered to get to school and get outside to play.”

Each coat costs about $20 to manufacture. Those interested in donating to this cause can call 1-800-730-9276, or visit www.operationwarm.org.

At least 16,284 people were infected, all but 1,059 of them from Illinois. Two people died and the infection was a contributing factor in the deaths of four, possibly five, others.

Two of the children from The Jack in the Box outbreak died from secondary contact transmission from another sick child. Ironically, the parents of the infected child both worked at the restaurant and fed him a steady beef diet, whereas the other child had never eaten a burger.

Viruses are the other deadly group. They are much smaller than bacteria and cannot exist outside a living host. They reproduce only when they invade living cells. They are easily transferred from one food product to another, from contaminated water to food, and from infected food handlers to food. They are thought to be the leading cause of foodborne illness in the U.S. and tend to occur in closed and crowded environments like hospitals, nursing homes, schools and cruise ships.

The two most recognizable of these are Hepatitis A and Novo virus.

They are most deadly because antibiotics, which are often used successfully with bacteria, do not stop viruses.

With these, recovery time usually depends on the health of your immune system.

“I am surprised that more people don’t get sick,” says Stanley Rutledge, Community Coordinator for S.T.O.P. Foodborne Illness. “A brother and sister will eat the same thing and react totally different because of nuances in their immune systems. Sometimes a human body is so frail and other times it is amazing to see how strong it is.”

There are several sobering stories on the S.T.O.P. website that tell the tale of what hell can be like on earth. This one is from a teenager named Anne who contracted E coli:

“The toxins spread to four of my major organs, my heart, brain, pancreas, and kidneys. All in all, I was in the hospital for a month, with the first two weeks in intensive care, followed by three months of outpatient therapy.”

“E coli has ravaging side effects. As the toxins were spreading throughout my body, fluid started to fill up around my heart. I was having constant hallucinations. I got pancreatitis and my kidneys completely stopped functioning for 18 days.”

“The doctors didn’t know whether I was going to live or if I would be mentally handicapped. Even though the disease ravaged my life for almost four years, I still remember almost all of my hallucinations. I was in a prison, an elevator, a friends’ house, and a hotel. The nurse told my family that reason does not impact reality so they had to play along with what I saw in my head.”

To the amazement of her doctors, Anne has made an almost complete recovery. While she was in the hospital her mother found The S.T.O.P. website and was able to contact and confer with other families that had experienced similar horrors and gain valuable information and insight.

Anne never did discover the source of the E coli that almost killed her.

Rutledge contacts any cases of foodborne illness that he can discover to encourage them to write their story or talk to the media. To some it has been the worst experience of their life and all they want to do is to forget it and never speak of it again. For others it is a nightmare that has to be shared so that it won’t happen to anyone else.

“There is one thing that people don’t realize about those that have had food poisoning,” says Rutledge. “You go back to work or school and people say ‘you look fine,’ but every time you take a bite of food and your stomach starts to gurgle, you think to yourself, ‘oh no, Is this happening again?’ And it can create an anxiety not unlike post traumatic stress disorder.”

Going to The USDA Recalls and Public Health website you can see that besides the recent nationwide recall of Sabra brand hummus, that there were 14 other recalls just in the last month. They included everything from ready-to-eat chicken to meatballs, pork gravy, shepherd’s pie, egg rolls and beef sausage.

The advent of social media has made a great impact on food awareness and contamination response. In the past, food companies and restaurants were slow to respond, but these days everyone knows everything, and right now. Sabra was a nationwide recall that happened before anyone even got sick.

Contaminated food cannot be detected by smell, color, or taste, so keep a food thermometer handy in the kitchen as it is the only way to make sure that all bacteria has been killed.

Remember that bacteria are always on the move and can grow on meat, eggs, salad, casseroles, and especially those store bought holiday deli trays. These foods should not be exposed to room temperature for any longer than two hours and if they are out for longer, then they should be tossed out.

So the next time you walk by a burger place, you may find that you’ve picked up your pace a little. At least for your own safety you have to be aware and consider all the possibilities because suddenly you just remembered that recent suburban dad quote: “You go out for a hamburger with the kids and you could just die.”

You can find some great information at STOPfoodborneillness.org. You can put your name on their email list and be contacted with alerts about food recalls and other topical information.

Or you can read about the experiences of others, share your own story or make a donation to this vigilant non-profit group.

The keys to short-term car rentals in Chicago

BY MIRA TEMKIN

Need a car rental in Chicago for the holidays, but don't want to break the bank? Want to shop in the suburbs or outlet malls, but don't have the wheels (or friends with wheels) to get there? A new app called Getaround makes it easy to rent a car without the time, cost and hassle of a traditional car rental company. And it works both ways, because residents can list their own car for rent and earn some extra holiday cash as well. Getaround offers hundreds of private cars available for rent by local Chicago residents. From just $5/hour or daily rental fees, users can open the app, choose their car (from standard to luxury) and unlock the vehicle with the app upon arrival.

Always dream of driving a BMW, sports car or Tesla? Getaround is the ideal way to put residents in the driver's seat.

There's no monthly or yearly fees to join. And renters can log in via their Facebook accounts. On the flipside, residents can share their cars and earn up to $10,000 per year.

Enjoy a car when needed, without the expense

"Car ownership is expensive, and the reality is not everyone needs unlimited access to a car," said Jessica Scorpio, Founder and

VP of Marketing at Getaround. Studies have shown that the majority of the 250 million cars in the U.S. sit idle 22 hours out of the day. She continued, "Combining Getaround Connect, our patented connected car technology, with streamlined auto insurance coverage, Getaround creates a seamless and fun sharing experience. Owners share cars ranging from a smart to a Tesla, earning thousands in extra income each year to offset the high cost of car ownership in Chicago. Getaround renters can conveniently rent cars nearby and save money on auto payments, insurance and maintenance."

Owners set their own rates

"Owners have the ability to set their own hourly and daily rates so prices do vary," said Scorpio. "Renters can book cars from as low as $5/hour and $40/day. Each Getaround rental includes an allotment of 25 miles per hour, or up to 200 miles per day."

Getaround is currently available in 11 cities: San Francisco, Berkeley, Oakland, Portland, Washington D.C., Arlington, Silver Spring, Bethesda, Chicago and Evanston. They have plans to expand into additional cities in 2017. All Getaround rentals include insurance coverage and 24/7 roadside assistance for safe, hassle-free holiday travel. For more information, visit www.getaround.com.

Gathering input from the broader community will provide key insights into these and other thought-provoking questions presented by a possible merger.

Three community meetings already have been scheduled.

The first will be 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 15, 2017, at the Ogden east campus, 24 W. Walton St.

The second meeting will be noon to 2 p.m. Saturday, March 18, 2017, at Jenner, 1119 N. Cleveland Ave.

The third meeting is 5-7 p.m. Tuesday, April 25, 2017, at the Ogden west campus, 1250 W. Erie St.

If needed, additional community meetings will be scheduled to continue the discussion around a possible merger. For more information call (773) 553-1500.

Socialite Sugar Routbord with fashion designer James Galanos, who died last week.

But Jimmy wanted to connect the aesthetics of the old world with the new. He did it with fabric and design, creating an elegant American hybrid that could stand tall and chic on the runways of the world. He was a favorite of First Lady Nancy Reagan. And in Chicago he dressed the likes of Sugar Rautbord. He was the American dream in fine fabric.

IS THIS SEAT TAKEN?: What big name hotel is playing host to Chi-town's hottest couple between the sheets. It seems a business "mogul" bumped into the hotel's darling employee, coming back from the spa, and then headed back in for some love and canoodling in the hot tub with bubbles and steam. The mogul secured permanent lodging for his Chicago visits (without his wife) and sleeps in a suite with his darling on the south side of the river.

IS THAT A DOGGY IN THE WINDOW?: Did a same-sex, married couple find more than a pooch at the Anti-Cruelty Society on Grand Ave.?

ARE YOU USING THAT STOOL?: Was there some commotion recently at Eat-aly (Italian Foodery) when two strangers were drinking next to each other when they started exchanging more than phone numbers in public? Apparently one of the strangers was well-known to nearby Chicago folk who recognized one of Chicago's very own, married in a far North suburb, but off-the-leash when he was going Italian on the beauty he found at the bar.

CAN I SEE SOME I.D.?:

What City Hall Summer worker from Sauganash is telling everyone how nice her boss was to her when she worked there after graduating from high school? She says that he treated her to lunches, dinners and concerts in the park. Her boss, it seems, is a mid-level dufus in the Streets and Sanitation Dept. But she says she has had a tough time keeping in touch since he got a new cell phone and new number. Seems his Mrs. is back in town and he is busy entertaining her.

THE WARMER THE COAT, THE BETTER: Chef Chris Favaro, from Frankie's on 5, and Diane O'Connell are in cahoots again to get as many new and lightly used coats as possible for this year's Christmas Coat Drive. So bring yours to Frankie's at 900 N. Michigan Ave. to receive your complimentary admission to the gala party that is always oh, so good. Both Frankie's and Luxbar are offering gift cards for use to their establishments after New Years. They are all in partnership with Fourth Presbyterian Church of Chicago who helps to distribute the winter gear to the street folk who need it most.

STAY STRONG GIRL: With the New Year comes the return of one of my all-time favorites, Chicago Children's Theatre's "The Hundred Dresses," the smash-hit musical about a young girl who struggles with bullying and learns what it takes to stand up to others, even when you're standing alone. A good mother-daughter date, you know. Performances Jan. 17 through Feb. 12.

THE IRISH FELLOWSHIP CLUB OF CHICAGO: The baton has been passed from IFC President Kevin Conlon, Hillary Clinton's mainstay in Illi-

Art Institute's Nora Ann Gainer and sister, Maureen Gainer Reilly, at AIC bash.

Among Old Mayor Daley's first official acts after becoming Mayor of Chicago and President of the IFC was to invite young Senator John Fitzgerald Kennedy to its St. Patrick's Day shindig back in 1956.

AMEN!: Backed by a live choir, Steppenwolf's The Christians is a fascinating new play about faith in modern America for both believers and nonbelievers. A pastor, a controversial sermon, and a schism that threatens a church, oh my!

JADE COURT: This noble Chinese restaurant from Chinatown might be brand new, but its cuisine is cultural ancient treasure. At 600 S. Racine in Little Italy it is filled to capacity with faithful loyalists who cherish its exquisite food. So glad they have moved north.

LEGAL NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE
COOK COUNTY REAL PROPERTY
ASSESSMENTS FOR 2016

This publication constitutes official notice of the changes in assessment to all owners of real property in North Chicago Township. The 2016 assessment changes as published herein are those determined by the Assessor of Cook County.

It is the duty of the Assessor to appraise all taxable real property in Cook County at its fair cash value as of January 1, 2016. Fair cash value is described as what the property would bring at a voluntary sale in the normal course of business or trade. The Assessor is required by law to assess said property in a fair and just manner.

The Assessor does not determine property taxes. Property taxes are determined by the spending needs and requests of municipalities, school boards, park districts and other local government agencies which provide public services to property owners. The Assessor's sole responsibility is to estimate the value of real estate property.

In Cook County, real property is classified according to its use. The classification system is used to determine the percentage of the fair cash value at which the real property is assessed for purposes of taxation. Accordingly, real property is assessed at only a fraction of its fair cash value, depending on its use and classification.

Changes in assessment for land and improvements are lists separately. The dimensions of the land are also listed:

- A - Acres
- B - Back Lot
- N - Irregular Lot
- S - Square Feet

Cook County uses a Permanent Index Number (P.I.N) system as a means to identify individual real estate parcels. The PIN consists of a 14-digit number. The first two digits identify the area or survey township; the second two digits identify the sub-area or section; the next three digits identify blocks.

Note:
Blocks are defined as follows:
Blocks 100 to 199 are located in the N.W. Quarter
Blocks 200 to 299 are located in the N.E. Quarter
Blocks 300 to 399 are located in the S.W. Quarter
Blocks 400 to 499 are located in the S.E. Quarter

The next three digits in the series identify the specific parcel or lot. The last four, (where applicable), identify individual condominium units, non-operating railroad parcels or leasehold's of exempt parcels.

Whenever possible, the assessment list will be listed by the street name and the street or house number of the parcel. However, the Cook County Assessor's Office official records rely on permanent Property Index Numbers (P.I.N.) only. No assessment of real property shall be considered invalid due to an incorrect listing.

If you have any questions regarding the assessment of real property you should visit the Office of the Assessor of Cook County, 118 N. Clark Street, Room 301, Chicago, Illinois 60602, or call (312) 443-7550.

NOTICE OF SALE

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on October 19, 2016, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on January 20, 2017, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive - 24th Floor, CHICAGO, IL 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate: LOT 42 AND THE SOUTH HALF OF LOT 43 IN BLOCK 5 IN THE SUBDIVISION OF BLOCK 1 TO 31, BOTH INCLUSIVE IN W.B. WALKER'S ADDITION TO CHICAGO, IN THE SOUTHWEST QUARTER OF SECTION 14, TOWNSHIP 40 NORTH, RANGE 13 EAST OF THE THIRD PRINCIPAL MERIDIAN IN COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Commonly known as 4334 NORTH RIDGEWAY AVENUE, Chicago, IL 60618

Property Index No. 13-14-304-027-0000.

The real estate is improved with a single unit dwelling.

The judgment amount was $137,140.32.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to the Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance, including the Judicial sale fee for Abandoned Residential Property Municipality Relief Fund, which is calculated on residential real estate at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 or fraction thereof of the amount paid by the purchaser not to exceed $300, in certified funds/wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. No fee shall be paid by the mortgagee acquiring the residential real estate pursuant to its credit bid at the sale or by any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other lienor acquiring the residential real estate whose rights in and to the residential real estate arose prior to the sale. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in AS IS condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information. If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOME-OWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW. You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

Ground broken for new Theater (and restaurant) on the Lake

With the Army Corps of Engineers’ $31.5 million Fullerton Ave. revetment project now complete, Mayor Rahm Emanuel and other local dignitaries turned their attention to the Chicago Park District’s [CPD] Theatre on the Lake where ground was broken Monday on a $6 million renovation of the building itself.

Lakefront Hospitality Group [LHG] will run the 140-seat restaurant and other concessions. Their plan is to enclose the theater for year-round use and also create a new restaurant on the lakefront. LHG and the CPD hope to complete the project by next Memorial Day.

Described as an “upscale pub,” the future restaurant will provide seating for roughly 140 patrons indoors plus an additional 280 across its southern and eastern patios facing Lake Michigan and Chicago’s downtown skyline.

“The patio space (and the southern view) we think is going to be unparalleled in the city,” John Wrenn, a partner with Lakefront

The future eatery at Theater on the Lake will provide seating for roughly 140 patrons indoors plus an additional 280 across its southern and eastern patios facing Lake Michigan and Chicago’s downtown skyline.

Chicago Park District/Kaufman O’Neil Architecture

Hospitality Group, told DNAinfo in October.

The overall goal is to convert the 338-seat Theater on the Lake to a year-round space. In 2013 Mayor Emanuel called for converting the site from a summer-only programming to a year-round program and event facility.

The conversion to make it a year-round program and event facility includes a complete renovation of the interior theater space, which will be equipped with a new performance space, lighting and sound systems. The building will be conditioned to operate year-round and will be equipped with new dressing rooms, green rooms and event space in the northern half of the pavilion. A concession space with outdoor seating and public toilets are also included.

The main entry to the theater will be from the lakeside with a glass enclosed lobby facing the lake. Other improvements to the site will include a new vehicular

Historic Old Town house saved from demo for now

And Old Town home has been saved from the wrecking ball, 1638 N Sedgwick is not set for demolition – at least for now.

In a 4-4 tie, the Landmarks Commission last week failed to approve the demolition request for the two-story home. Of course, the property owners will have the opportunity to appeal through an Informal Conference and eventually a public meeting.

A second Old Town home is now on the docket, up again before the Landmarks Committee 9 a.m. Friday. Local activists are trying to keep 1639 N. North Park from being demolished and plan to appeal to Landmarks to protect the home.

“By redeveloping portions of the shoreline and adding the nearly six acres of additional open space, we can ensure the lakefront remains a place all can enjoy for years to come,” said Ald. Michele Smith [43rd]. “The renovation (to convert this) to a year-round venue will allow more residents and visitors to appreciate a celebrated Lincoln Park institution, and will lend to the region’s already thriving cultural landscape.”

Chicago-centric bobbleheads issued in time for Christmas

Last week the National Bobblehead Hall Of Fame and Museum released four Limited Edition Chicago-related bobbleheads. The bobbleheads are individually numbered to only 216 and are range from $25 to $55 each:

- Chicago Bulls Greatest Season: The Chicago Bulls 1995-96 season remained the Greatest Season in NBA History after the Cavaliers beat the Warriors in the 2016 NBA Finals. This bobblehead features Bulls’ mascot, Benny, with the NBA’s Larry O’Brien Championship Trophy and the key records from the greatest season in NBA history.
- Dennis Rodman: This bobblehead features Chicago Bulls’ star, Dennis Rodman, diving for a loose ball. A member of the NBA Hall of Fame Class of 2011.
- Jake Arrieta/David Ross No-Hitter: The first bobblehead commemorating Jake Arrieta’s 2015 No-Hitter sold out quickly. This bobblehead commemorates Jake’s second No-Hitter, which he threw against the Cincinnati Reds on April 21. This is a dual bobbleheads which includes Chicago Cubs’ catcher and fan favorite David Ross.
- Gene Honda: Each year, millions of fans hear Gene’s booming voice, and now fans can hear Gene whenever they want with this talking bobblehead. Gene is the public address announcer for the Chicago White Sox, Chicago Blackhawks, DePaul Men’s Basketball, Chicago Marathon, Big Ten Men’s Basketball Tournament, NCAA Men’s Final Four and other major sporting events.

Jake Arrieta and David Ross celebrate Jake’s second career No-Hitter, which he threw against the Cincinnati Reds on April 21.

Why now?

This year marks the 20th Anniversary of the 1995-1996 Bulls season. Since bobbleheads were not made for Championship teams in the 1990’s, this bobblehead serves as the first one commemorating that season.

“A bobblehead commemorating the Golden State Warriors 2015-2016 season was in the works when it looked like they would win the NBA Championship and take the crown for greatest season in NBA history,” said Museum Co-Founder Phil Sklar. “After the Cleveland Cavaliers came back from down 3-1 to upset the Warriors, we thought that it was fitting for a bobblehead to commemorate the Bulls’ historic season.”

The Bulls’ 1995-1996 season was first of consecutive NBA Championships. They has a 72-10 regular season record and were the first NBA Team to win 70 regular season games. They also had the best combined regular and postseason record (87-13) and led the NBA in both offense and defense. Of note also were 33 road wins that season and a 44-game winning streak.
